

This Town-- That World

A LAMENT

Old rockin' chair's got me. March is gone and here it is April 12, and I've been fishing only one time. The weather has been too cold... or windy... or rainy... or threatening... or sump'n. And the water has been too muddy, and the car-locks on my boat are in a fix, and... Honestly, I never expected to see the day, but it has come... The boys have even quit bringing around their big catches (if any), just to prove that envy doesn't turn a fellow green... I hereby apply for membership in the Chew, Spit and Whittle Club.

1502231646. That number reached Governor Combs Friday night, so I copied it for future reference, only to learn it was exceedingly temporary.

To this desk now comes a modern definition of the expression, "fast on foot." It says: A person is fast on foot when he can get to the refrigerator or bathroom and back by the time the commercial goes off.

DAFFYNITION

We do not mean to malign any man or woman who has the courage to stand for election to an office in Floyd county, even if we do print here a description of what our caller called a "candidate shoe." Said he:

"It's all heel and tongue and no sole."
(Note, fellows, we didn't spell it "soul.")

AN INVITATION--AND PROMISE

Saturday marks the opening of Clean-Up Month in Prestonsburg and Floyd county... I shall observe the occasion by cleaning this desk down to the bare wood. The public is invited to inspect said desk and see the materials therein from 9 a.m. till 11 a.m. Don't delay--by noon it will probably be all messed up again.

THREE TOWNS SLATE POLLS

Wheelwright, Wayland Candidates Unopposed In Municipal Elections

Three Floyd county municipalities will indulge in the usual city elections next November, but two others have foregone that political pastime, the County Clerk's records here revealed after last week's deadline for filing.

Two complete tickets are in the running here, and the same situation prevails at Martin. In Wheelwright and Wayland those candidates who filed are without opposition.

Here, the People's Party entered these candidates for city office:

For Mayor--Harry Sandige; for Council--Bill May, Donald W. Elkh, Virgil (Cowboy) Griffith, William "Bill" Jack Stephens, Garnet Mayo, Gladys Cooley, Bill Gray, Paul Messer.

Griffith and May are members of the present Council, and Sandige is a former mayor of Prestonsburg. The Community Development ticket which had filed before them is composed of Dr. George P. Archer for mayor; E. B. (Junior) May, Clifford Wright, Dr. Edward

145 CANDIDATES FIND SPOTS ON MAY BALLOT

DRAWING HELD HERE MONDAY FOR POSITION

Jailer's Office Draws Largest Group; G.O.P. Enters Limited Number

Floyd county's candidates, 145 of them--125 Democrats and 20 Republicans--drew Monday afternoon for position on the ballot to be prepared for the May 23 primary election.

Except for a scattered few who were obliged to be elsewhere, all 145 were present at the courthouse for the drawing conducted by the County Clerk.

Surprisingly enough, the list of candidates for Jailer on the Democratic ticket is not as lengthy as was the case four years ago when jobs were more plentiful. Twenty filed before the Saturday midnight deadline; four years ago, the total stood at 24.

Names of the candidates and their addresses follow, in the order listed after the drawing:

Democratic Candidates:
For Representative, Dist. 96 -- Allen Stone, Blue River; Joe Wheeler Burchett, Lancer; Keith Scott, Garrett; Robert (Bob) Griffith, Garrett.

For Representative, Dist. 97 -- Ben Martin, Drift; Roberta Frazier Ferguson, Price; Paul Tackett, Beaver; David R. "Socker" Akers, Price; Ella Stewart Chullum, Melvin.
For Sheriff -- Herbert Lawson, Garrett; David B. Leslie, Prestonsburg; Joe Wheeler Lewis, Betsy Layne; Tuley Salsbury, Garrett; Frank Crum, Allen; Truly Francis, Garrett; John M. Hall, Allen; Henry C. Hale, Blue River.

For County Attorney -- Robert Wellman, Prestonsburg; Bradley J. Surrill, Prestonsburg.
For County Judge -- Ted Nelson, Prestonsburg; Henry Stumbo, Prestonsburg; Bill Cooley, Prestonsburg.
For County Court Clerk -- Foster Meade, Amba; David R. Hereford, Prestonsburg; Clarence "Ollie" Robinson, Prestonsburg; Ernest Turner, Drift; Burnis Martin, Watergap; Jerry Hall, Jr., Drift.

For Coroner -- Oscar Wallen, Prestonsburg; Glenn C. Patrick, Martin; James J. Carter, Prestonsburg.

For Tax Commissioner -- Manis Conley, Prestonsburg; Olive Akers, Drift.

COAL SKIDS TO NEW LOW

In Big Sandy Field; Few Mines Operating Full Five-Day Week

Coal production in the field represented by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association has skidded 470,300 tons under the tonnage mined at this time last year, according to the latest report of the Pikeville office of the group. This is a 16.2 per cent increase, it was noted.

On April 1 last year total tonnage mined stood at 2,902,610 but this year it was only 2,432,310 tons. For the week ending April 1 this year the group of operators mined 154,990 tons but in the corresponding period last year the field produced 223,130 tons.

The skid in production has been consistent for two weeks, it is noted from the Association reports. For the preceding week production was also off 16 per cent.

Only five operations worked the full five-day week ending April 1. These were Kathryn Elkhorn, Princess Elkhorn No. 1 and No. 2, Southeast Coal Company No. 2 and Southeast Coal Company Big Chief mine. It is said that two of these operated to stockpile coal for future deliveries.

Pointing up the loss of work-days is the number of days worked in the period since January 1. There were 65 working days in the period and the field represented by the group worked only 36.44 days. In the corresponding period last year the field worked a total of 46.47 days.

Truck mine operators in the Association were producing a greater tonnage, however, than last year, although the total loaded is insignificant as compared with the rail operators.

As of April 1, the truckers had loaded 2,025 cars of 50-ton average while last year they had loaded only 1,656 cars.

Silicosis Held Cause Of Ex-Miner's Death

Herbert Oney, 58, former miner, died Monday at his home at Garrett after an illness of 10 years. Silicosis was given as the cause of death.

A son of Mrs. Ara Coburn Oney and the late Will Oney, he was a native of the Handsloe section of Salt Lick Creek. Long a resident of Garrett, he was a member of the United Baptist Church.

Surviving, besides his mother, are his widow, Mrs. Lily Campbell Oney, one son, Harold Oney, Willard, Ohio, one daughter, Mrs. Truly Francis, of Garrett, and a brother, Reece Oney, Norwalk, O.

The funeral was held Wednesday from the United Baptist Church on Salt Lick, the Revs. Tom Sutton, James Johnson, Green Allen, Stewart Howard, Henry Mullins and Orville Rice officiating. Burial was made in the Green Baptist cemetery at Handsloe under direction of the Turner-Ryan Funeral Home.

RIVER CLAIMS FLOYD ANGLER

Ligon Man Drowned On Fishing Expedition Near Gate City, Virginia

Raymond Henson, 40, of Ligon, died a short time after he was removed from the river near Gate City, Virginia, early Sunday morning. Located by his brother, Johnny Henson, submerged in the water and entangled in fishing lines, he was removed to a hospital where it was found that he could not respond to artificial respiration.

The victim and his brother were on a fishing trip and Johnny Henson went to sleep in the car. Raymond left him to inspect a fishing line and when his brother later went down to the river he suspected that Raymond might have become entangled and drowned. He pulled the body from the river with a reel.

Mr. Henson was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Smith Henson. Surviving is a daughter, Sue Henson, of Ligon, and besides Johnny Henson, the following brothers and sisters: Curtis Lee Henson, Kingsport, Tennessee; L. D. Henson, and Mrs. Kanzeala Justice, all of Ligon; Mrs. Juanita Hopkins and Mrs. Lourana Bishop, both of Gate City, and Mrs. Marie Gearheart, Columbus, Ohio.

Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday from the home of Mrs. Dossie Justice at Ligon, the Revs. Jerry Hall, M. C. Wright, John B. Hamilton and Gerald Hopkins officiating. Burial was made in the Henson family cemetery at Ligon under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Wins "Miss Amvet" Title

Miss Phyllis Mayo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mayo, of Martin, won the title recently of "Miss Amvet of Floyd county."

Miss Mayo will now go to Louisville to the state convention, where she will represent Amvet's Post 27 in statewide competition. The three-day convention begins June 23.

She is a graduate of Martin high school and is presently employed in Ray R. Allen's office at Martin.

All Master Masons are invited to attend.

MEADE GIVEN PEN SENTENCE

In WDOC Arson Case; Hi Hat Elkhorn Pleads Guilty to Pollution

Arwin Meade entered a plea of guilty to a charge of attempted arson in circuit court here last Wednesday, and was given a one-year pen term.

Meade was arrested inside Radio Station WDOC here by state police and was accused of attempting to burn the building. An attempted arson charge against Dave Stephens and Alton Stephens was dismissed on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley, who noted that the two had been given trial on a companion case and had won an acquittal. The conspiracy charge against Arwin Meade and Alton Stephens also was dismissed on the grounds that a companion case had already been heard.

The Hi Hat Elkhorn Coal Company entered a plea of guilty to the charge of stream pollution and drew a fine of $100, plus costs. The six other convictions during the term are:

Donald Slaven, child desertion, plea of guilty, two years, probation asked; Thomas E. Burchett, child desertion, plea of guilty, one year, probation granted with the provision that he pay $60 a month for the support of his children; Sol Bradley, possessing moonshine whiskey, $100 fine and 30-day jail term; Edward Bentley, knowingly receiving stolen property, $100 fine; James Rice, escaping jail, 10-day jail term; Harrison Reed, breaking and entering, one year pen term.

The $1,000 bonds of Profit Moore, Tommy Burke and Mark Henry, each accused of child desertion, were forfeited when they failed to appear for trial.

Forty-one cases had been dismissed as of Wednesday morning. Most of these were for child desertion.

LESLIE SETS CITY CLEANUP

Period, Apr. 15-May 15 Designated by Mayor In Clean Town Contest

Mayor Edward B. Leslie this week proclaimed April 15-May 15 Clean Up-Paint-Up-Fix Up month in Prestonsburg, and urged every resident to participate in the program to help the city win a trophy in the National Cleanest Town competition.

Everyone in Prestonsburg will benefit from the program, the Mayor said, pointing out that the campaign helps prevent fires, safeguards health, promotes safety, builds good citizenship and increases property values.

"In asking the co-operation of every citizen, I want to remind you that now is the time to take stock of our community," Mayor Leslie said. "If everyone in Prestonsburg and by that I mean every home owner, every storekeeper, every industrialist, every school child, and everyone in the city government, puts forth an all-out effort, then our community will retain and build its reputation as a progressive town."

"We want the whole state of Kentucky and the entire country to know that Prestonsburg is a safe, beautiful and healthy place in which to live and do business," the Mayor asserted.

GUESTS OF SOUTHERN BELL HEAR GOVERNOR AND GREEN

The Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company was host to a public relations dinner here Friday evening, prior to the Saturday midnight cut-over from its old central office installation on Lake Drive to the new building on Westminster street.

C. Hunter Green, Louisville, vice-president and general manager, spoke briefly of the company's work in Floyd and other counties of the area and also took a look at the telephone service of the future.

"We do not quote figures and tell these things to pat ourselves on the back, but we honestly believe in this country. We think we can invest money here and get it back, the same as in Louisville or anywhere else," he told the gathering.

Peering into the future, Mr. Green told of experiments with the Echo satellite in which telephone messages were "bounced" off the orbiting balloon. He predicted the

OPTION LAND FOR HOUSING

Advertising Timetable To Be Met, Leslie Says; Summer Start Envisioned

Joe Hobson, executive director of the Prestonsburg Housing Commission, announced this week that purchase of a site for the low-rent housing development here awaits only approval of the option by the Federal Government.

The Home Finance & Housing Agency, Atlanta, has approved the $35,000 figure placed by appraisers on the Joe M. May property on the new Prestonsburg-Auxier road at May's Branch here, and Mr. May has agreed to accept that price. The option agreement was sent to the agency's Atlanta office last week, Hobson said.

Mayor Edward B. Leslie said the timetable setting July as the deadline for advertising for contractors' bids on the 35 housing units will be met, perhaps beaten by a few weeks. If this happens, work on the development would begin this summer.

MRS. SHORT ANNOUNCES LIBRARY WEEK PLANS

Individual Contests Won by FFA Chapter At West Liberty Meet

The Prestonsburg Chapter, Future Farmers of America, participated in the Eastern District FFA Day held Saturday, April 1, at the Morgan county high school, West Liberty. Nearly 300 Future Farmers, representing 24 high school chapters, participated in the event.

Ratings of the Prestonsburg Chapter members who took part in the individual contests were as follows:

Eugene Blackburn, sorghum, superior; Glennis Pitts, corn, excellent; John Wayne Shepherd, home improvement, excellent; Willard Lefferty, forestry, excellent; Homer Cusley, creed, excellent; Jackie Howard, sweet corn, excellent; Charles Hackworth, hay, good; Marvin Hughes, strawberries, fair.

In the group contests the chapter rated excellent in secretary's book and excellent in chapter meeting.

Lloyd Wells, vocational agricultural teacher at the Prestonsburg high school, is advisor to the chapter.

Opportunity Opens To Army Enlistees

Unlimited opportunities to see Europe are open to young men who enlist now for direct assignment there.

This Army enlistment option enables a soldier to spend his 3-day passes and 30-day leaves sight-seeing on the Continent.

Sidewalk Paris cafes, German castles, Austrians in embroidered leather shorts and Italian vineyards will become familiar sights. Once you've set foot on European soil, you'll want to see it all: Holland, Sweden, Greece, Switzerland and Spain.

To find out whether you qualify for guaranteed assignment to Europe, see your local Army recruiter at the Post Office, Prestonsburg.

FBI SEEKING CAR'S OWNER

New Dodge Recovered From Lake Stripped Of Identifying Data

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and state officers this week were seeking to identify the owner of an automobile which was recovered late Monday night from Dewey Lake by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad.

The car, a 1961 red Dodge, bore no license plates and contained no papers or other means of identification of the driver or owner. The auto had been driven only 1,717 miles.

When a small portion of the car was sighted above the surface of the lake at Copperas Creek it was at first believed that a wreck had occurred and that the driver had been killed or drowned.

Marks at the roadside indicated that the auto had been deliberately driven into the lake, perhaps Sunday night. Had restoration of the lake to the higher summer conservation pool begun on April 1, as had been announced, the car would not have been visible.

NO BOOZE VIOLATIONS FOUND BY GRAND JURY

Garrett Man Is Jailed On Intoxicants Charge; Officer Trio Searches

Bill Sexton, of Garrett, was jailed here Saturday morning by a trio of officers who raided his premises and found a large cache of intoxicants allegedly being held for illegal sale.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, Martin City Policeman A. J. Reed and State Trooper Elmo Allen were passing the Sexton place Friday night and saw him coming down a hillside with bottles protruding from his pockets. Arrested and searched, they found he had two pints of whiskey and three bottles of wine on him. He was taken before Magistrate Zeb Ousley and charged.

Saturday, armed with a warrant to search Sexton's premises the officers found 207 pints of wine and 103 pints of whiskey.

The intoxicants were turned over to the Alcoholic Beverage Board, Saturday evening.

BRIDGE BID IS $2,427.95

Buffalo Span Contract Awarded to Liney Boyd; Railway Payment Voted

Contract for construction of a bridge across Buffalo Creek was awarded Friday by the Floyd fiscal court to Liney L. Boyd on his low bid of $2,427.95. The court specified that he is to begin work on the span within 20 days from the date of awarding the contract.

C. M. Holbrook was awarded the contract to build a bridge across the left fork of Abbot Creek. He will be paid $800 for the job.

The court voted to pay the C. & O. Railway Company $1,500 for right-of-way on its property on the McDowell-Big Mud road, and it directed that rights-of-way for the Whitaker-Little Paint road be purchased by negotiation if possible. If negotiation fails, the order directed, the County Attorney is to file condemnation proceedings.

CITY OFFICIALS TO PLY BROOMS IN KICKOFF OF CLEANUP DRIVE; DEVELOPMENT GROUP IN MEET

Final plans for Saturday, kick-off day in Prestonsburg's month-long clean-up campaign, were made at Wednesday's meeting of the Community Development Council.

Mayor Edward B. Leslie and Councilmen Wett Hale, chairman of the city beautification committee, will be on the streets, using brooms, to set an example for all citizens.

A few days later, a bus will be chartered and used to take citizens on a sightseeing tour of Prestonsburg and its eyesores as well as its beauty-spots.

The week of April 24 will be devoted to Junk Days when a truck will be available to haul away junk cleared by homeowners from their basements and attics. A call to the police station will procure services of the truck.

The Development Council voted to make formal request of the City Council that it enforce the city ordinances relating to the care of vacant lots and livestock and the disposition of garbage by paying garbage collection fees. The Council also will be asked to enforce the ordinance against illegal dumping of garbage and other waste materials.

Major indictments returned since Tuesday of last week follow:

Tavis Hamilton, striking and wounding Roscoe Vanover; Delphia Hall, cold check, two indictments;

ELLIOTT HOSPITALIZED

Olin Elliott, of Allen, who suffered a fractured arm and lacerations in an auto accident near Garrett, Monday, has been hospitalized at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin. His condition is not serious, it is said. Another passenger in the car, name unavailable, was also hospitalized and it was said his condition was not serious.

W. W. Burchett (right), member of the Kentucky Public Service Commission, talks with Gov. Bert Combs by direct wire during the dinner given here Friday night at the Wise Restaurant by the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company. At left is Byron M. Simpson, Paintsville, commercial manager for Southern Bell, and (center) C. Hunter Green, Louisville, vice-president and general manager.

FLOWER TIPS Petunia, Begonia, Snapdragon, Coleus, Ageratum, etc., should not be set too early; if frost-bitten, they may never produce proper growth and flowers. Many growers have them for sale long before they can be put outdoors safely; wait until the weather is ready and then get stocky plants grown under high light intensities.

Demo County Chairman May Continue In Office, If Candidate, Is Ruling

A Democratic county chairman may continue in his party position after he becomes a candidate for office, the attorney general's office said Monday.

The opinion was in answer to Knott county Tax Commissioner Delmar Draughn, of Hindman, who asked for a ruling on the legality of Knott county Democratic Chairman Bruce Martin, of Hall, Ky., retaining that post while he is an active candidate for tax commissioner.

The attorney general's opinion said that the party chairmanship is not a statutory office.

Draughn said his question is whether Martin, who opposes him for the Democratic nomination, can be a candidate and still retain the power to nominate election officials.

The county tax commissioner said the attorney general evaded this question in his reply to him. He said Martin has the authority to submit names of five people to the State Election Commission, one of which will be chosen by it to represent the Democratic party on the county election commission.

This enables Martin to pick his own men as an election official, he continued.

"My question is: Is it legal for him to be a candidate and yet have a voice in selecting election officers? To me and many other candidates in the county this is unfair."

Draughn said he plans to rephrase this question and submit it to the attorney general's office before the May 23 primary.

Cleaning winter clothes, rugs, drapes at home can be dangerous. If possible, have the work done for you. If you must dryclean at home, remember that most cleaning agents are flammable and give off poisonous fumes. Never use these fumes to concentrate the area—give them air!

ELLA STEWART CHULLUN WILL REPRESENT A SPECIAL INTEREST GROUP

As the campaign in the representative's race goes on, it becomes obvious that political factions and special interest groups are promoting and supporting particular candidates. It is not hard to learn who is controlled by the Combs faction and who is controlled by the Chandler faction and who is put out by this or that interest.

I want to say here and now that I also intend to have a special interest in the Legislature. I will represent that group who has a special interest in the progress of the people of Floyd county. That group who are interested in more industry, more jobs, more roads and better schools. I will represent that group who believe government should give decent care to its old aged, needy blind and dependent children, and who believe in the rehabilitation of its crippled men, women and children.

YES, if anyone asks you if Ella represents a special interest group, you say, "yes, Ella represents 'SPECIAL INTEREST' in the people of Floyd county."

VOTE FOR ME NOW, I'LL VOTE FOR YOU IN THE LEGISLATURE.
Your friend,
ELLA STEWART CHULLUN
Candidate for State Representative 97th District.

WE HOPE THE GOVERNOR ACTS—AND QUICKLY

Because we are cramped for space this week and will not have room for editorials, we use this column for such comment.

It is encouraging to note that Governor Combs is giving serious consideration to the disgraceful situation which has existed in Newport for years and which continues to exist.

The most forceful, burn-your-bridges-behind-you action Bert Combs can take to root out the gamblers, prostitutes and liquor interests there will earn for him the gratitude of all Kentuckians who are interested in good government. Three other Governors have failed, or refused, to do anything to meet this Northern Kentucky situation. This is the best of all times to let the good people of that part of the state and law-abiding citizens of all parts of the Commonwealth know beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Governor of Kentucky recognizes these racketeers and worse for exactly what they are and that a Kentucky Governor can wage war on them as effectively as did Governor Lausche of Ohio, several years back.

If armed men were to walk the streets of Prestonsburg, threatening peaceable citizens in their homes and businesses, and if local authorities would not or could not give them protection, we believe the state would send help without delay. The guns may not be visible in Newport and environs, but they're there, and the threat to the peace and good name of the city is even more grave than that posed by one or two trigger-happy hoodlums.

We were glad to see that the A. B. C. Board may be called on to earn its keep. If Newport will not invite the State Police, perhaps the State Militia should pay a visit.

SUCH IGNORANCE!

If some people I know had been on the grand jury, the other day, a certain witness might have been tossed out on her educated auricular appendage. The gal had been living in Michigan for a time, and was before the grand jury to complain about her husband. And when the jurors got around to asking about the poor guy she expounded along these lines:

"Well, it's this way. I know you Kentuckians are ignorant, so I'll explain. He has been in a hospital with what they call hernia. Of course, you call it rupture."

On that pedagogic note the Wolverine State's gift to the world store of knowledge departed.

IT'S NEW!

Here is proof positive that we specialize in protection for our senior citizens:

Prestonsburg, Kentucky

April 8, 1961

Mr. S. R. Hatcher, President
State Wide Insurance Agency
Prestonsburg, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Hatcher:

Thank you most kindly for check of the Continental Casualty Company for two months of hospitalization for my mother, Mrs. Agnes A. Spradlin, who has been confined so long with a broken hip.

Few of us ever realize the blessings of insurance until we are faced with heavy loss.

Frankly, I must confess that at the time my mother bought this insurance last summer I had some misgiving concerning it, even though I was fully aware of the strong financial standing of the Continental Casualty Company. I just could not see how that any responsible company could assume such a risk on behalf of any person who had attained the age of around 87 years.

However, the fact that the aforesaid company is now paying fully for my mother's hospitalization, and, would continue, if necessary, to pay for same until the sum of $5,000 should be expended, is absolute proof of the fact that Continental Casualty Company's noble experiment on behalf of the aged people of America is a complete success.

I do hope that other large insurance companies will join with Continental in solving the serious problems of the aged, thereby rendering it unnecessary for the Government to intervene in behalf of our senior citizens.

Again thanking you and the Continental Casualty Company for this valuable assistance in our hour of need, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,

ALEX H. SPRADLIN

COMMUNITIES SHOULD USE SCHOOLS FOR RECREATION

BY CHARLIE VETTNER

Perhaps your community is already using your school building for an indoor recreation center and the acreage on which it stands for a summer playground? Kentucky has a law which not only states that recreation is a proper municipal purpose of all cities and counties, but also permits our Boards of Education to discharge their recreational responsibilities to the taxpayers.

Recreation is a function of education. As far back as 1948, the Feabody College Survey of the Jefferson County Educational System commended that Board of Education for its forward move in opening all school buildings for recreational use after school hours—under professional supervision. School buildings belong to the people and they have every right to their maximum usage. This practice means service to the public in the kind-size package—educational and recreational facilities for one cost.

For a long time the school building has occupied a strange position in too many of our communities. What other tax-supported building is used only partially for nine months and allowed to stand idle the other three? And, most of these unused facilities lie in the midst of communities badly in need of club rooms, meeting places, recreation grounds and gymnasiums, all of which are available in school buildings.

Education and recreation are co-functional. It is hard to tell where one starts and the other leaves off. An educational activity during school hours may become recreational for the adult working men and women at night. A boy is educated in manual arts in the shop during the day. His Dad, who works at a desk all day, recreates himself by building a chair in that same shop at night. The same principle applies to other activities.

Our national leaders are greatly concerned about the physical fitness of our youth—and rightly so. Our boys and girls get a good start in a program of body building in school gymnasiums and on playgrounds while they are students. Is there sound logic for denying them the same facilities for continuing their physical fitness programs after graduation?

A basketball coach once told me that gymnasiums exclusively are for the school teams. As taxpayers we have every right to reject this philosophy. Such practice constitutes less than maximum usage of a public building. As more homes are built, there is less open space for play. This demands complete usage of the schools' playgrounds. No community would be without a church or school. In the development of the whole child, no community can afford to be without facilities for recreation—and your community already has these in your school building.

A union of education and recreation is desirable. This popular trend is sweeping the country. In Milwaukee the recreation program is part of the educational program. The recreation director is an assistant to the Superintendent of Schools. Richard VanHoose, Superintendent of Jefferson County Schools, points out that the purpose of the Jefferson County Plan of Recreation is to interlace its program with that of the schools, supplying activities which neither conflict nor compete with the school program. Such co-ordinated effort guarantees a strong leisure time program which, in turn, gives additional strength to the educational system.

The old horizon has changed. As this new trend of thought presents itself on the new horizon, it will be accompanied by objections. Rarely will these objections come from the more progressive school

CANCERS DIFFER

Not all cancers are alike. They differ in type, rate of growth and response to treatment. But, the American Cancer Society explains, most cancers have one thing in common: they're most curable when diagnosed and treated early.

Cliburn Mementos Placed On Exhibit

New York—One of the new tourist attractions in New York is the Van Cliburn exhibit in Steinway Hall. Seldon is an artist so young honored with a permanent display in his honor. On display are gifts ranging from evening bags for the pianist's mother and teacher to autographed music and other mementos of his first triumph, the winning of the 1958 Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow when he was 23.

Since 1945, according to a recent American Cancer Society report, facilities for cancer treatment in the United States have more than doubled.

Smell Causes The Downfall Of Home Still

Richmond, Va.—The smell from a house in a residential section puzzled some folks but it didn't fool the trained noses of Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division agents.

They found the house vacant except for the basement, which contained a 150-gallon still fired by gas routed around the meter and twenty 50-gallon fermenter barrels.

The absent bootleggers had been pouring the mash down drains into the sewers but the smell was more difficult to handle.

She says "AGLE" has no meaning in any language and adds: "It is a good name for a political column."

Child Finds 'Perfect Cake' Not So Good

Trenton, Mo.—Mrs. Doyle Ricketts tried a new cake recipe and let her 3-year-old daughter, Doylene, sample it.

The child took one bite and said the cake was good. Then she took a second bite and announced the cake was perfect. The mother beamed at such praise but a moment later noticed the child was not eating the cake.

"I thought the cake was perfect," she said to the child.

"It is Mommy, but I don't like perfect cake."

College Head Breaks The Ice With A Song

New Concord, Ohio—New students seldom know quite what to expect when the president of Muskingum College, Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, declares he is ready to sing a solo.

The annual event takes place during the week first-year students arrive to begin college life, and it's designed to put them at ease. After a few deceptive classical notes by the pianist, Montgomery launches into: "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey."

To My Friends and Voters of the 97th District:

I am running for the office of Representative. If elected to the Legislature, I will not take any coaching from anyone. If I am elected to go to Frankfort, I will go for the interest of the people that put their trust in me and sent me down there. Here are a few things that I stand for:

1. I will introduce a bill to take the sales tax off of food and medicine.
2. I am in favor of the coal miners getting their pay every week.
3. I am in favor of raising the old age checks.
4. I am in favor of raising state aid to all needy children.
5. I am in favor of raising the teachers salary.
6. I am in favor of a state college in Floyd county.
7. I am not in favor of raising the state laws against the truck mining operators.
8. I am not in favor of passing laws to try to put the working man out.

Thank you

MARTIN, KENTUCKY

CIVIL WAR BITTERNESS FLOWERED WHEN EAST KENTUCKIANS FOUGHT

BY HENRY P. SCALF

One hundred years ago war clouds drifted over the mountain highland through which the Big Sandy River penciled its way to the Ohio. Prestonsburg and Paintsville, sister towns of the valley, awakened slowly to the agitation stirred by area leaders.

In Prestonsburg Andrew Jackson May and John M. Elliott, leading barristers, spoke for the Confederacy. At Paintsville, Nathaniel Auxier, Johnson county landowner, argued forthrightly for the Union. The two towns, only a dozen miles separating them, drifted poles apart.

Nathaniel Auxier, Democratic leader, was a familiar figure on the streets at Paintsville in the early months of the war. On week-ends he came to town, often flanked by one or two of his many sons, and on street corners or at the courthouse he denounced secession and disloyalty. To those who upbraided him that his party heads were Confederate leaders he answered that he owed loyalty only to his country.

Young David Valentine Auxier listened quietly to the arguments of his father who, although he had named a son after James Buchanan, had broken with his party on the issue of secession. Every attorney at the Paintsville bar was a Democrat, and Johnson county had cast every vote save 18 for Beriah Magoffin for governor in 1859, yet under the lash of Nathaniel Auxier's logic old political moorings were loosened. The county became almost solidly Union in sentiment and contributed nearly an entire regiment to the Union army. Nathaniel Auxier gave two of his sons.

Reason and arguments cease when men have guns, and men of the Sandy country suddenly found their hands filled with weapons. They used them at Ivy Creek, Middle Creek and at Wireman's Shoals. There were battles when neighbors fought neighbors, brothers were against brothers, and fathers and sons charged and fired at each other. For most it was a long travail of bitterness. Many found release from it in unmarked battlefield graves.

It was in this regional spirit of bitterness that John B. Auxier, Johns Creek farmer and miller, and a brother of Nathaniel, attended chores at his mill one day. Down the road marched a group of Confederate soldiers, escorting wagon loads of corn. They demanded he grind it. Auxier, as pro-Union as if he had been wearing the Northern blue, declared his mill was out of order. The Confederates insisted he must repair it.

Auxier descended to the machinery recessed under the mill floor, pretended to be at work and quietly slipped a stone into the works of the crude turbine. Ascending to the mill proper he demonstrated to the discomfited rebels that the machinery was inoperative. They took the corn away, muttering in their suspicion of the miller.

A few days later a friend brought Auxier news. The Confederates had become firmly convinced he had sabotaged his own mill. A Confederate officer was openly vowing to "get him."

Auxier decided that it was time for action. He organized a company of men in which two of his nephews, David and George, enlisted. John B. Auxier was named captain of what afterwards was known as Company A, 39th Kentucky Volunteer Infantry. John Dils, of Pikeville, was designated colonel commanding. John B. Auxier rose through the military hierarchy to become a major, and his nephew David succeeded him as captain. George became a sergeant.

A few miles from the Auxier home, Prestonsburg had been seething with Southern sentiment. It changed hands many times during the internecine strife. Most of the young men had joined with May, Williams or Marshall and were in Virginia, because Union occupation troops held the valley. Gone were Aquilla Harman, afterwards a revered Methodist minister, and men like Edwin Trimble, former magistrate, county attorney and special judge at times. Many would never return.

December 3, 1862, Confederate troops under Col. John N. Clark-son of Virginia, descended upon a flotilla of Union boats at Wireman's Shoals, three miles north of Prestonsburg, and captured them. They carried away many prisoners, including Isaac Goble, David Auxier, James Y. Brown, Owen Hatfield, Isaac Dawson and many others, the exact number indefinite. We learn little of them from official records and depend almost wholly upon letters and personal memoirs.

The prisoners were lined up and tied with a long rope, knotted around an arm of each. Five guards herded them along—one on the front and each side with two in the rear—as they began the nearly three-week march to Richmond. At night they were put in rail pens, built from nearby fences, and were fed parched corn.

One day they were put to cutting firewood in the forest. An unnamed prisoner killed a guard with a stone and escaped. Footsore and ragged, the others finally reached the Richmond prison. They were incarcerated several months.

April 7, 1863, David Auxier, weary from the rigors of prison life, wrote his parents, Nathaniel and Hester Ann Mayo Auxier, in Johnson county. Evidently he had regular communication with them and his wife, Elizabeth Hinton Auxier, for he acknowledges the receipt of clothes from his parents.

A copy of the letter was carefully preserved by the late Millard M. Auxier, of Nebraska, and is excerpted here.

"I have been locked up in this wretched penitentiary ever since the 30th of December and I have no idea when I will be released. . . . It seems that our government holds a prisoner who bears the appellation Col. Zaivina, alias Col. Thomas, who was captured soon after the war broke out and for the last months he has been kept in close confinement. Said Zaivina (sic) or Thomas bears a commission from Gov. Letcher on account of which he cannot be exchanged under the Virginia State Line Troops places us in the same position. The Governor, therefore, ordered that Capt. Thomas Dameron, Lieut. Wilson Dameron, Lieut. Isaac Goble and myself and J. W. Howe, William S. Dils and Samuel Pack be held in close confinement in the penitentiary until our Government agrees to release Col. Thomas."

David asked his parents to help if possible to get him exchanged. He said that he and six others would bear any expense, even for a trip to Washington.

"We think that if we had a good friend there that our release could be brought about," Auxier's letter continued. "Get recommendations from Cranor, L. T. Moore and others of influence. Tell Col. Dils to retain Isaac Goble's and my commissions and tell Capt. Auxier (John B. Auxier, his brother), to give receipts for our wages and hand it over to you and Isaac wants you to let his wife have his part of it. If you undertake to do anything for us, retain money enough to pay yourself out of it. If you go to Washington, Dameron requests you get John Richison to go with you."

The letter closed because "my paper gives out," and he expressed the poignant hope, "I will get out someday."

The 39th Kentucky Volunteer Infantry was organized several months before it was sworn into federal service, February 16, 1863, was muster day for the organization at Louisa, and David Valentine Auxier was formally mustered into Company A, although a prisoner at Richmond penitentiary.

Sometime between April 7, 1863, when David Auxier was writing his parents from prison and February 24, 1864, when he was promoted from Lieutenant to Captain in Company A, he either escaped or was released from confinement.

Of the long trek homeward we are uninformed as to Auxier but we may assume that it was hazardous, as was the return of James Y. Brown.

The Confederate authorities turned Brown, Goble and others out of prison one cold, wintry day. The ground was covered with snow and they were almost naked and suffering from vermin. Given clothing in the Chesapeake Bay area by the federal government, they continued on foot toward Kentucky. Brown was ill and collapsed on the way. The others wended their way homeward and Brown's sons, George and Miah, rode horseback to bring their father back from a Maryland farmhouse to the Big Sandy valley.

Back under the parental roof and reunited with his wife, David Auxier found many things not well with his kinsmen. His mother gave birth to her thirteenth child, Andrew E., in 1864. She died early in May. His father began the decline that was to carry him to the grave eight months later. Nathaniel Auxier, who so longed to see his America a united country, did not live to see Lee's surrender. He died January 24, 1865. With his two older brothers in service, Andrew J. Auxier, 20, afterwards the beloved Big Sandy Valley jurist, became the family head.

A personal family tragedy is a minute event in the total agony of civil war, and men of the Big Sandy, long inured to strife and bitterness, continued to march and fight. The South was dying in 1864, but they continued the struggle only because of the bitterness.

Little Confederate territory remained intact that year, but in Southwest Virginia there was one pocket of resistance the Southern army would hold on to grimly. It was Preston's Salt Works at Saltville in Smyth county. In the year preceding the surrender it was the chief supply of that commodity for the Confederates, and the loss of it would immeasurably increase their misery and need.

In the autumn of 1864 the Union began preparations to seize these giant vats that boiled, day and night, for the Confederacy under the watchful eyes of troops. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, Kentuckian and Union commander, gathered 5,000 men, chiefly Kentucky regiments, at Pikeville in September. Slowly the mammoth aggregation of men and materiel of war for a mountain campaign filed out up the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy, threaded its way over rugged terrain toward Saltville.

In the meantime other Kentuckians were gathering. Gen. John S. Williams, Montgomery county, Kentucky native, hastily gathered 3,000 men, most of them from the Kentucky hills, and, impressing 700 old men and boys from the Southwestern Virginia counties' reserve, raced to Saltville's defense.

There, in the low hills and ravines of Smyth county, Kentuckians met Kentuckians, October 2, 1864. Locked in the struggle on the Union side, among other regiments, were the 40th Regiment of Kentucky Mounted Infantry organized in Carter county and the 39th Kentucky. Big Sandy's very own. Opposite them was a Confederate regiment that had earned laurels on many fields, the 14th Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry under Col. Andrew Jackson May, and Col. Edwin Trimble, both of Prestonsburg.

One historian has noted the record of some of the Kentucky mountain Confederate groups. At Princeton, armed with the Belgian rifle firing an enormous ball, these former squirrel hunters wrought havoc on the Union forces under Ruth-erford B. Hayes, later President. Hayes reminisced in the years of peace of the terrible impact of that deadly fire.

Now Kentuckians, brothers, neighbors and kinsmen were to meet in battle at Saltville as a fruition of their hate and bitterness. Each, Union and Confederate, went into battle, remembering the dark deeds charged to the other and their adherents back in the valleys and coves of the hills. Each remembered the guerrilla bands from which they or their kinsmen suffered. In their mind's eye they still could see the burning cabins and towns.

The two armies collided, head-on, at 10 o'clock in the morning. It was a chilly and overcast hour, the sun peeking through fitfully. There were eight hours of ferocious struggle. Historians agree that in no Civil War battle of comparable size was there such fierceness as at Saltville.

Burbridge, outnumbered by too much paraphernalia, and unable to deploy effectively, lost the advantage of superior numbers. His colored troops came under attack from May and Trimble.

Trimble had often told his men, "When we are in a close place I will look to the right and then to the left and you will know." So reminiscenced a Floyd county Confederate veteran, Charlie Goble, who served under him.

Goble saw the colored troops in position behind wrecked brick buildings and as Trimble and his men advanced the colonel slowed to a stop and looked to the right, and then slowly turned his head, to the left. Goble had but a moment to feel impending danger before he saw a colored soldier take deliberate aim at Trimble and fire. Col. Trimble, scion of a prominent Big Sandy family and for whom Trimble Branch at Prestonsburg was named, died as he fell. Greenville Davidson, of Prestonsburg, afterwards a public official of Floyd county, picked up Trimble's body and carried it to a farmhouse.

It was the death of Trimble that deflected the Fourteenth Kentucky Regiment away from the brick buildings and in moving to the right it met the 39th Kentucky Volunteers. The two Eastern Kentucky regiments, now on foot in the treacherous terrain, slashed at each other like embattled Turks. Back in the Sandy country many of them had been neighbors, had called each other by their first names. Kentuckians, kinsmen and neighbors fought. The bitterness flowered.

They had not wanted to be there, but some strange allure of mixed patriotism and hate had brought them. Captain David Auxier had told his uncle, Major John B. Auxier, "I feel like I will not return." The Major had replied that if he felt that way, perhaps it could be arranged that he didn't go on the Virginia expedition.

Young David had shook his head, saying, "I shall go."

Soldiers remember their premonitions, and it may be that David recalled his misgivings at Saltville, remembered it more vividly as he suffered from a chest wound on the field. Comrades carried him to a barn and left him with other wounded.

Darkness threw a mantle over the bloody field, and Burbridge, with several hundred casualties, began to disengage his troops. It was then that David's brother George missed him, inquired to learn that he had been taken to the barn. George found the barn but David was gone. Friends had carried him to the nearby Powers farm house and put him to bed. Later they brought Lige Hensley, suffering from a leg wound, and placed him beside David.

Capt. David Auxier, of the 14th Kentucky Infantry, U.S.A., who was fatally wounded at the Battle of Saltville, October 2, 1864. He lies buried in the McCready cemetery in Smyth County, Va., and a stone will be erected at his grave this year by Big Sandy valley relatives.

"Wonder" doctors using secret methods, gadgets or medicines may promise to cure cancer, but there's no proven case on record to support their claims, according to the American Cancer Society.

Polly S. Perry, Amba, Succumbs March 30th

Funeral services for Mrs. Polly Salisbury Perry, 60, of Amba, were held at 1 p.m., Sunday, April 2, at Rock Schoolhouse at the mouth of Toler Creek.

The Revs. Leo Roberts and Charles Perry officiated. Burial was in the Steve Howell cemetery at Amba under direction of the Baker Funeral Home.

Mrs. Perry died about 5 p.m., Thursday, March 30, at a Lexington hospital after a long illness.

Born in Floyd county, she was a daughter of Tom and Mindy Runyon Salisbury. She was a member of the United Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Bill Perry; two foster sons, William Marvin Martin, of Mann, West Virginia, and Roosevelt Salisbury, Detroit, Michigan; a brother, Penn Salisbury, of Amba, and a sister, Mrs. Ida Bell Hall, also of Amba.

There is no "miracle" cure for cancer, according to the American Cancer Society. Of the more than a million cured cases on record, all have been treated by surgery or radiation, the only approved medical methods.

DRIFT CLUB ENTERS CONTEST ON COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT

The Drift Woman's Club has entered the community improvement program sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in cooperation with the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, it was announced this week.

The purpose of the community improvement program is to provide information, inspiration and incentive for every federated woman's club to join with cooperative forces in the community to improve its social, economic and cultural conditions.

Prizes totaling $70,000 are offered in the competition including a top national prize of $10,000. Two cash prizes are offered in each state. The first prize winner in each state then competes for 10 national prizes. All cash awards won by clubs must be spent in the community.

In previous competition — in April, 1956, — the Drift club was awarded a prize of $100 for its work in community improvement, and now again it has entered the contest to win first prize.

The club is asking every resident in the community to cooperate in every way possible to help the club's projects become successful.

The club's main community improvement project will be the garbage disposal undertaking and the community clean-up campaign.

In the process of setting up the project the club called a meeting last June and invited other women's clubs to attend. Members from Martin, Allen, Wheelwright and Wayland clubs were present.

A committee was named, composed of Mrs. Ben Martin as chairman, Mrs. Glenn Ward, Mrs. G. W. Showers, club members, and Magistrate Johnny Caudill.

John M. Stumbo and B. F. Reed were named to meet and get the sanitary project under way. This effort is to be a pilot project, so that other magisterial districts in the county may successfully carry on the same work.

A plot of land was leased by the club for five years. With the cooperation of the magistrate, equipment was used to bulldoze a garbage pit about 40 feet deep by 140 feet long. The garbage is to be covered up at intervals, to make it a sanitary disposal as suggested by the state sanitary engineer.

Lawmakers of the Commonwealth have set the minimum penalty for auto racing on the streets or highways at a fine of $50. A judge may fine a convicted racer as much as $200 and send him to jail for 30 days. A driver who is found guilty of violating this traffic law also has six points assessed against his operator's license. Under the driver improvement program of the Department of Public Safety, a driver who accumulates 12 points in three years can lose his license for six months.

The club hired a garbage collector and canvassed the community for customers who are charged a nominal fee for the service.

The state highway department furnished signs which prohibit roadside dumping. An effort was made to clean up some of the sore spots. In one small clean-up campaign two families were awarded first prize of $5.00 each, but due to inclement weather the campaign for the community was postponed.

In the meantime, the film, "Keep America Beautiful," was shown at Drift and McDowell schools and at a meeting of the Drift P.T.A.

Now, with spring at hand, the club is making plans to join the countywide clean-up campaign and is asking everyone to help.

The club is pleading with the public to stop dumping on the roadside and destroying the signs the state highway department has erected.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude to all who were so kind and helpful to us upon the passing of our husband, son and brother, Willie George (Bill) Salsmons. To those who brought and prepared food, those who sent floral offerings, the pallbearers, the choir and pianist, Mrs. Thelma Allen, and Mrs. Billie Jean Osborn for the beautiful music and song; those who prepared the grave, our pastor, the Rev. James Stratton, and the ministers who assisted him, Revs. Isaac Stratton and John P. Carr, for their comforting words, the traffic officers and Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

THINK

Has your drivers license expired? Renew your license in your birth month only. Look at the top right hand corner of your license for year of expiration.

Why do so many people forget their birth month? If you knew how difficult it is to get a license you would keep them renewed in order to prevent being checked on the highway.

JOHN GRAHAM CHAPTER, DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION

The John Graham Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, was organized at Prestonsburg, June 25, 1946, by Mrs. Joe M. Davidson, who became its first regent. The chapter was named for John Graham, early Floyd county settler, judge and the area's first merchant, who died at Emma in 1835.

Shown here is a tea given by the chapter at the home of Mrs. Angeline Archer, Prestonsburg, in 1946. Mrs. Lida D. Spradlin was regent. Left to right, front row, are Mrs. Spradlin, Mrs. Herbert Salsbury, Sr., Mrs. C. P. Stephens, Mrs. Everett Sowards, Mrs. Angeline Archer, Mrs. Lon S. Moles, Mrs. Winnie F. Johns, Mrs. M. J. Leete, Mrs. O. T. Stephens. Back row and center, are Miss Minerva Friend, Mrs. A. B. Combs, Mrs. E. P. Arnold, Mrs. John W. Hensley, Mrs. C. L. Hutsinpillar, and Mrs. J. O. Webb.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past, trusting they will recall pleasant memories of our yesterdays.

Lopez Is Speaker At Kiwanis Meeting

The Beaver Valley Kiwanis Club of Wheelwright had as guest speaker, April 3, Eugene Lee Lopez, administrator of the Methodist hospital, Pikeville. His subject was, "Problems Which Confront the Methodist Hospital at Pikeville."

Mr. Lopez was born in Mexico, educated in Illinois, married in Mississippi, had a son born in Little Rock, Arkansas, and came to Pikeville last July 1. In his talk, he took a patient and showed how his care and well-being depended on cooperation from all departments in the hospital, from laundries to the general staff. He also explained how a hospital is run.

At this meeting the club also had as a visitor a former charter member and Lt. Governor of the Kentucky-Tennessee district of Kiwanis, Waldo B. Cummings, who now resides in Canada.

The club also had eight advance management men from Inland Steel's Chicago plant.

That night Union medics, under the threat of imminent capture by the rampaging Confederates, visited the farmhouse at the prompting of Major Auxier. One look at David and they saw he would live but a short time. Hensley would live if his leg was amputated.

There, in the near darkness of the farmhouse, in the dim light of a kerosene lamp, the doctor braced Hensley with liberal amounts of whiskey and took off his leg. Hensley, enraged when he found his leg had been removed, cursed the doctor roundly. David, who had been praying, closed his companion, "Don't say that, Lige."

George Auxier found his brother at the farmhouse, stood silently by as the crude battlefield amputation was performed on Hensley. He vowed to stay with David, but the wounded man demurred.

"No, George, you cannot," David said. "You will be taken prisoner."

Major Auxier and George both realized David was right. To stay would provide no help, as they saw death was not far away. They agreed to go, prolonging their farewells, listening for Confederate cavalry. Suddenly all the soldiers in the room began to weep.

"It was the first time I had seen soldiers weep over the death of a man," Major Auxier said in the after years.

Hensley was still the bed companion of David Auxier when he died. He remembered how he suffered and prayed and the climactic clapping of David's hands just before he expired. He had lived two days with that ugly hole in his chest.

Farm people came and took the body away for burial. Lige Hensley didn't know where.

In the meantime, Burbridge dragged his defeated army back toward Kentucky but instead of the Levisa Fork route he returned by way of Pound River and Pound Gap. The weather turned inclement, rain pelted his troops. They began to throw away equipment, abandoned guns and wagons. By the time the army had reached Pound River it was exhausted.

When the army began to pass the Roberson farmhouse on Pound River it was being subjected to a sudden snow. James Monroe Roberson, then a boy, but later a Pike county circuit judge, recalled that the heavy traffic reduced the road to liquid mud that churned up under the wheels of vehicles and ran out into the river. When the troops began to ascend Pound Mountain they were almost in despair. Laboring to reach the summit, they created a traffic jam, the like of which the area had never seen. They untangled themselves by dumping wagons and artillery over the mountainside.

News travels slowly in a mountain country devoid of communications, and war intensifies the difficulty of dissemination. Nathaniel Auxier, now approaching life's end, heard of his son's sacrifice only after several days' delay.

David's grief-stricken wife vowed she was going to Virginia to see him buried with Christian rites. Protestations of the family that such a journey through a guerrilla-infested mountain country, and that by a woman with Union sympathies in Confederate territory, was hazardous, to say the least, failed to impress the young widow.

Nathaniel Auxier finally bowed to the wish of his bereaved daughter-in-law and sent for the Rev. Robert Hurt, friend of the family but a well-known Confederate sympathizer. Hurt, a Virginian by birth, knew scores of the officers and men on both sides. Nathaniel thought he would provide a safe escort for Elizabeth Auxier to the Saltville battlefield.

Winter was encompassing the mountains when Rev. Hurt and Elizabeth Auxier set out on horseback for Virginia, and they were several days on the road. They found the Powers farmhouse after many inquiries. The Powers family showed the widow an unmarked grave on the farm.

Hurt and Mrs. Auxier arranged to have the body exhumed and it was interred with appropriate rites in the McCready cemetery. They set a small stone, upon which had been inscribed the legend, "D. Auxier," and then they returned to Kentucky.

As the months wore away and peace returned, Mrs. Auxier again went to Virginia to visit her soldier-husband's grave. She was accompanied this time by the dead man's uncle, James W. M. Stewart. In the decades that followed residents in the vicinity of McCready cemetery recalled vividly the weeping widow of Kentucky.

Mrs. Auxier never went back. Childless, she went to her people in Greenup county and, later remarried, moved to West Virginia where she died. Rev. Hurt and James Stewart died. No one in the Auxier family now knew where Capt. David Auxier was buried. Even the name of the cemetery slipped into the limbo of unremembered history.

Family ties run deep in the mountains, and 62 years after Capt. David Auxier fell his brother, E. E. Auxier, who lived in Nebraska, returned on a visit to Kentucky. He had been born the year his brother fell and his mother died. He and Garland Rice, Rev. Hurt's grandson, went by train to Saltville and made many inquiries as to the location of the grave. They were unsuccessful.

A New Banner Is Unfurled

A flag designed by Ella Faye Wallace was recently adopted by the Prestonsburg grade school. The flag was the winning design in a contest sponsored by the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce. Miss Wallace was awarded $10 as first prize and Jimmy Crum was given $5 as second place winner. There were 400 entries.

and Mabel Auxier Rice, his wife and a niece of Captain Auxier, accompanied by Mrs. Joe M. Davidson and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Sowards, were returning from Wilmington, North Carolina. They decided to visit the battlefield site. As they toured the scene they talked of the division of their people as they struggled there nearly a century ago. Mrs. Sowards' grandfather, Lieut. Greenville H. Davidson, of Company A, 14th Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, had carried the body of Col. Edwin Trimble to a place where it was protected from the blast of war. Both Mrs. Rice and Mrs. Davidson were nieces of the soldier for whose grave they searched.

They made many contacts in the Saltville area, finally were referred to an aged man, Curren Sanders, who, although he had lost an awareness of many things due to his years, was still wont to reminisce about the Battle of Saltville. He could not remember anything about the Auxier grave, he said, sadly shaking his head.

The party admitted defeat, were getting in the car when Mrs. Rice thought she might have the key that would unlock his memory. She asked him if he remembered a widow and a man coming from Kentucky decades ago, searching for a soldier's grave. He did not remember. Many people had searched for their sons and brothers.

The old man stood shaking his head as his visitors were starting to leave again. Then, suddenly, the rush of memories came and he recalled the widow and her companion. They had found the grave on the Powers farm and removed the body to McCready cemetery. He remembered well, for the widow had wept long and deep.

Sanders took the party to the McCready cemetery, and they walked among the ancient graves. Many had imposing stones, many were unmarked. Sanders could not point out where Capt. Auxier was buried but he knew it was here.

It was Rice who found it. He removed the moss from what he believed was the head of a grave and examined a crude stone. Scratching away the lichens, he read, "D. Auxier."

This summer, 100 years less three after Capt. David Auxier died, his relatives in the Big Sandy valley will again journey to McCready cemetery and erect a large memorial. They will not remove the field stone, however, upon which Rev. Robert Hurt inscribed a name as the sorrowing widow watched.

It is too symbolic of the tragic years.

The Rev. Daniel McClellan, a Maryknoll Father from the United States, Reader's Digest reports, has helped thousands of South Americans improve their homes and their lives by the organization of 200 credit unions in Peru. The Andean town of Puno where he lives received its first X-ray equipment when a credit union lent a doctor $3,000.
