

Teacher's Action Names Co. Board

Daniels Claims Demotion Made 'To Punish Him'

The recent hiring of teachers has resulted in the filing of a circuit court action against the Floyd County Board of Education and Superintendent of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. by Donald Ray Daniels, of Wheelwright, who says he was demoted at a loss in salary.

Daniels, a certified teacher the last 15 years, was reassigned in the recent hiring of school personnel from the principalship of Wheelwright High School to the positions of social studies teacher and football coach there.

In his suit filed last Friday, Daniels alleges that the action was taken "to punish, penalize and discriminate against the plaintiff for his political affiliations and associations" and was not taken to carry out any legitimate purpose in the proper administration of the school system.

Daniels claims the reassignment means a substantial reduction in his salary. He cites KRS 161.760 to the effect that the salary of a teacher in the public schools cannot be reduced from one year to the next except where such reduction is a part of a uniform plan affecting the entire school district, or unless there had been a reduction of responsibility for the teacher. But this statute, Daniels' petition claims, provides that such reduction in responsibility can be made only if the teacher is given written notice prior to May 15, setting out the specific reasons for such action. He says he was notified of the reassignment from principal to teacher and coach by letter dated June 9.

Plaintiff claims the reduction of salary was not incident to a uniform plan.

He asks the court for a judgment declaring the relative rights of the parties to the action; that the demotion and reassignment to be declared null and void, and that he be restored to the position of principal—or, in the alternative, that the board and superintendent be enjoined from reducing his salary, regardless of the position he holds during the coming school year.

(Reports of civil action present only the plaintiff's claims in the case.)

Order Delays TV Franchising

The fiscal court met last Friday, as scheduled, but was prevented by injunction from accepting bids for television transmission franchises.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. could not be reached last week-end, but it was said Monday that he expects to prepare an answer this week to the petition filed by Everett Akers, of Martin, who was granted the injunction by the Perry circuit court.

The fiscal court adopted a resolution recommending to the state Department for Finance and Administration that the Floyd County Water & Gas System replace a two-inch gas main with a three-inch line from Garrett to the county line at the Lackey bridge to provide gas to residents and to the Golden Years Rest Home in Knott county which provides care for about 90 elderly persons.

Cost of the project is placed at $25,796. The gas and water system is to provide $5,000 of that amount, and the Coal Producing Fund the remaining $20,796.

State Office Repair Cost May Be $50,000

Moisture proofing and repairs of the State Office Building here will cost about $50,000 according to an estimate by the state.

Work includes repairing the roof, building a new roof hatch, repointing stone and brick, caulking around windows, doors and joints and painting the exterior.

The project is slated for bids, July 7.

Court To Get $369,493 State Road Aid Fund

The state funding of Floyd county's road aid program this year will mean actual dollars received rather than a paper credit for materials used on roads.

The fiscal court has entered into a contract with the state which means that $369,493 will be received, with the county taking bids, with state approval.

Prior to this year, County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said, the state handled all the bidding and buying of materials, charging the amounts bought against the total allocated for the county.

District Highway Engineer Gail Mullins agreed with court members that the new method of affording aid is more satisfactory, pointing out that the county can save money because it can make purchases without meeting costlier state standards.

Force account work on roads, in which county equipment is used with state reimbursement, is being reviewed in Frankfort, Judge Jones said.

She pointed out that the alleged failure of Adams Enterprises to meet provisions of its contract with the state to provide gravel for roads, and the subsequent cancellation of the contract, is working a hardship on counties as they face unusual road problems after two severe winters.

"It may be another month before new bids are taken," she added.

Rural Highway Commissioner Ingram, who attended the court meeting here, said that, considering the location and what the county has to work with, Floyd county has the best road program in the state, with the exception of Shelby county's.

This Town...That World

FREE TO WORK

Freedom with responsibility—we accept the principle, but sometimes it galls. We are free, this Fourth of July, to praise, to criticize, to assemble if we like or to scatter ourselves abroad. Free to work—and that's our own particular brand, this day when most of the lucky ones are whooping it up or sleeping it off, or otherwise shedding the dull load of care. It's great to be free—even if it doesn't include, say, a spot of fishing on this holiday. But the show must go on—such as it is.

I am reading P. G. Wodehouse again. And I mourn, all over again, his passing.

CRADLE SONG

Had you noticed?—those male cardinals have changed their tune, so to speak, in recent days. Instead of the clear, challenging note there now is a trill to his song. Could be that there are young'uns now at his house and that Papa is turning his talents to the lullaby.

Everytime I hear one of these, around our place, that vacation elsewhere loses a few points on my ticker.

USGS Report Blames Mining As Major Cause

Coal mining and related activities appear to be major sources of sediments that threaten prematurely to shorten the useful lives of two large federal flood control reservoirs in eastern Kentucky, according to a study by the U.S. Geological Survey, Department of the Interior.

USGS scientists also determined that surface mining appears to contribute on the average at least several times more sediment than underground mining to Dewey and Fishtrap lakes, flood control and recreation reservoirs operated by the Corps of Engineers.

"The overall problem had been detected by the Corps of Engineers, who found that Fishtrap Lake was filling with sediment about seven times faster than expected," said Russell Flint, USGS hydrologist, Louisville, and a co-author of the report. "At their request we began a study of the streams above the reservoirs to determine the quantities and sources of the sediment and to try to relate the sediment yields to changing land-use practices in the stream basins."

"We found that the overall average sediment yield for the Fishtrap drainage area was about 1,770 tons of sediment per square mile of basin and about 464 acre-feet (572,000 cubic meters) of sediment

State, Federal Agencies Join Martin Job Planning

Representatives of state and federal agencies conferred with officials of the county and the city of Martin here last week in a new effort to get under way the long-delayed Martin stream clearance and flood control project.

Represented at the meeting, in addition to local officials, were the Community Development Agency, the state Department for Natural Resources and the Corps of Army Engineers.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. is reviewing earlier work done toward gaining easements from property-owners which are required before work can be begun.

The Corps will help identify needed easements and their boundaries, it was said.

County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said two members of her office staff are joining in the effort to get the project going.

"Working together, they hope to know where they stand in about three weeks," she said.

The proposed work, which includes deepening and widening of the stream channel and reinforcements of its banks, is planned to extend from the junction of the right and left forks of Beaver Creek to a point downstream from Arkansas. The multi-million-dollar undertaking was authorized by Congress about 10 years ago.

Some landowners have said that they have never had explained to their satisfaction exactly how much of their land is to be taken.

The city of Martin is responsible for easements on property within the city limits. The county has the job of acquiring easements outside the town.

Flood Warning Meet Slated Tomorrow

All who are interested in an effective flood control weather warning system for Eastern Kentucky are invited to attend the meeting scheduled tomorrow (Thursday) at Pikeville High School at 7:30 p.m.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins will preside at the meeting, which will permit the public to have a voice in determining the need of such a warning system that may affect lives and property.

Among those scheduled to have a part in the discussions are Dr. Robert Clark, reputed to be the nation's top hydrologist, and Herbert S. Groper, acting chief of the Office of Disaster Preparedness. The National Weather Service and Civil Defense also will be represented.

The Pike County Chamber of Commerce will host the meeting.

It's Simple—Car Smashed in Door For Store Loot

The store of Travis Newman at the mouth of Branham's Creek was broken into Saturday midnight in the most forceful way.

Joe W. Lewis, who investigated the break, said the thieves simply rammed a car into the door, broke it open and made away with approximately $1,500 worth of merchandise.

Although no arrests have been made in connection with the incident, an investigation is continuing, according to Lewis.

A raid Saturday night by Joe W. Lewis and ABC Agent Ted H. Salisbury netted the officers 133 cans of beer and four pints of whiskey and resulted in the arrest of Hazel Hale on charges of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages and selling alcoholic beverages. The booze was confiscated near Mrs. Hale's home at Blue River.

Charges of selling and illegal possession were placed against Danny Meade by Sheriff Doug Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Randall Lewis last Tuesday. The arrest stemmed from a raid conducted two weeks earlier by Joe W. Lewis and sheriff's deputies in which a quantity of beer and whiskey were seized on Jack's Creek, near Wheelwright.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Death May Have Taken Holiday

July 4 and its long week-end, with thousands returning to the area, had as of noon Tuesday been without major accident on highways of the five-county section patrolled by officers of the Pikeville State Police Post.

A pedestrian, identified as Ronnie Williams, of Ivel, was hit by an auto Saturday night, it was reported here, but the accident had not been reported to State Police.

The heaviest traffic was recorded during the week-end as many from other sections of the state and from other states returned to spend the Independence Day holiday with relatives.

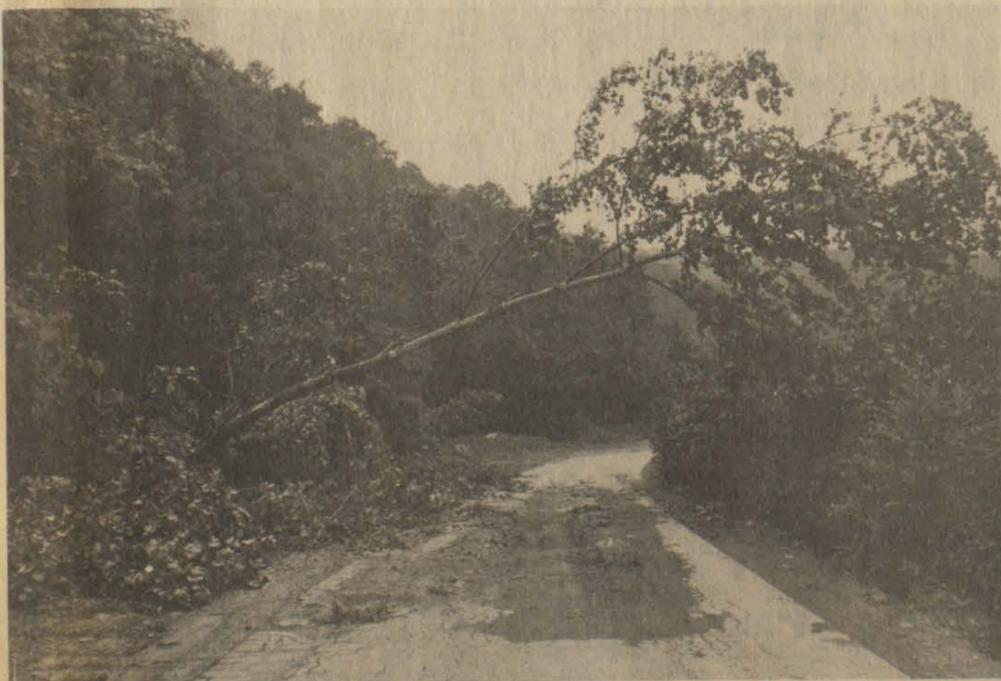

Heavy rains fell Saturday night, Sunday and Monday afternoons, cutting into scheduled sports schedules. Sunday's rain was accompanied by high wind. On Corn Fork of Cow Creek large trees were uprooted, blocking the road temporarily.

Boat traffic on Dewey Lake was heavy as usual, but was without mishap.

Rain or the threat of rain cut into the July 4 celebration at Martin. Prestonsburg was having perhaps its quietest day of the year on the 4th, with courthouse offices closed and only a scattered few places of business open. Tuesday morning, there was for a time only one car in the often-crowded Courthouse parking lot.

Prestonsburg's observance of the day awaited nightfall for the annual Fourth of July fireworks display.

Severe Winds Hit Corn Fork Section, Sunday

While heavy winds accompanied Sunday afternoon's thunderstorms in several sections of the county, perhaps nowhere were the gusts more severe than in the Corn Fork vicinity near Dewey Lake. Shortly before this photo was snapped, workmen had cleared the Corn Fork road of several large trees which had been blown down and uprooted, blocking the road. One Corn Fork resident described the wind as tornado-like since it uprooted trees in three or four, isolated spots along the hollow. Homes were undamaged although the roof of a storage building was reportedly blown off.

"Shenandoah" Comes to Eastern Kentucky

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, located at the amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park, continues this summer in bringing the best of Broadway entertainment to eastern Kentucky. In keeping with this tradition, one of the most successful and highly-acclaimed musicals of the seventies, "Shenandoah", begins a run July 5 that should, in all aspects, be one of the most successful productions ever attempted at Jenny Wiley.

"Shenandoah" is a special musical in several ways. It is the poignant tale of a proud, independent farmer in the Shenandoah valley of western Virginia during the Civil War. The world around him is torn by conflict, yet he not only resolves to stand aside from war, but also refuses to allow his family to "go out and look for strangers to kill."

The drama unfolds as Charlie Anderson slowly comes to realize that he cannot keep from becoming concerned in the strife surrounding him, and his isolation is ultimately shattered. Conflicts from a distant time come to life on the stage to permeate the generations, that have since passed.

Performance on the amphitheatre stage, however, should bring an added dimension to the storyline. The actual Shenandoah valley is not all that far removed from the eastern Kentucky mountains which enclose the outdoor theatre. Any set constructed for the play will be fortunate in being complemented by a mountain towering directly behind.

To this natural scenery may be added the similarity of culture and regional attitude toward the Civil War, upon which the play is based. The experiences of the western Virginians differed little with that of eastern Kentuckians in regards to the conflict, which forces the saga occurring on stage to intensify its meaning in regards to the audience.

"Shenandoah" glows as a strong statement against war and in favor of family and brotherhood. Charlie Anderson, the central figure in the story, is a lesson to us all in integrity, courage, and humanity. The strength of this central character is best illustrated through the fact that John Cullum, who originated the role on Broadway, was awarded a Tony for his sterling performance.

A Tony also went to aughor James Lee Barrett, Philip Rose, and Peter Udell for their brilliant libretto, which they adapted from Barrett's non-musical movie of the same name.

A melodic, sentimental score for "Shenandoah" was composed by the team of Geld and Udell. Their credits range from Broadway music to pop, country, and rhythm and blues chart toppers such as "Sealed With a Kiss" and "Hurting Each Other", but for this musical the team strove toward folksy ballads, lullabies, and hymns, added a country flavor, and ended up with a thoroughly warm and emotional score. Equally compelling are the ballad-like soliloquies which will be sung by Martin MacDonald in the starring role of Charlie Anderson.

In what resembles a lost Rodgers and Hammerstein production, the Anderson family moves from laughter to tears, combines the two, and set out courageously to uplift everyone's morals. Like "Oklahoma!" this "Shenandoah" is a folk-musical that celebrates American rural life with vivid

The "Red Baron" Profiled on KET

The life of Manfred Von Richthofen, the heralded flying ace of World War I, is the subject of a 60-minute documentary on KET. Airing Tuesday, July 11 at 9 p.m. (ET), and Sunday, July 16, at 4 p.m., the program profiles the complex, solitary World War I hero in "The Red Baron."

Using original film footage and still photographs, the program recalls the airplane's transformation from a non-combat observation vehicle to a major offensive weapon.

In 1951, Von Richthofen first went aloft as an observer. Legend says that from that moment, he knew his destiny lay with the airplane. He became a pilot and after each of his steadily mounting dogfight conquests he awarded himself a trophy. After his 14th victory, he painted his plane red. Manfred Von Richthofen was considered the undisputed master of the skies.

Men who flew with Richthofen—both his comrades and adversaries—tell about the agony and drama that were as much a part of the era as the romantic flying scarves and the exciting dogfights. Archie Whitehouse, a former English World War I pilot, tells about his complete flight training and his first air victory—all of which occurred in six hours.

The program follows the career of Von Richthofen, which included more than 80 victories, and actual film footage shows him dressing for his final mission. In his last dogfight he was engaged by seven enemy aircraft before finally being shot down. He was honored by a full military funeral by his sworn British enemies and today the Red Baron—Manfred Von Richthofen—is remembered as the most famous flying ace of all time.

'Ten Commandments' Must Await Funds, Official Says

The law requiring that a copy of the Ten Commandments be displayed in Kentucky classrooms will be implemented as soon as funds become available, according to a Department of Education official.

House Bill 156, passed during the 1978 General Assembly, says, "It shall be the duty of the superintendent of public instruction, provided sufficient funds are available...to ensure that a durable, permanent copy of the Ten Commandments shall be displayed on a wall in each public elementary and secondary school classroom in the Commonwealth."

The act also provides that the copies will be 16 inches wide by 20 inches high and that they "shall be purchased with funds made available through voluntary contributions made to the state treasurer for the purposes of this act."

Dr. James B. Graham, superintendent of public instruction, has appointed Shirley P. Williamson, head of the Office of Communication Services, to oversee implementation of the act. Communication services includes all printing operations and publications of the Department of Education.

Williamson said, "The department has no problem with implementing the law as soon as funds become available." She said that thus far only $11 has been donated to pay printing costs.

An attorney general's opinion has been requested to determine what is "durable" and "permanent" and to determine whether an outside group can have the copies printed, with distribution by the education department, or whether the department must have the copies printed. If the department arranges for printing, bids must be taken as with most state contracts.

The state department for finance and administration is currently determining a ballpark figure for the cost of printing enough copies for about 31,000 classrooms in Kentucky, Williamson said.

Broccoli is one of the best sources of vitamins, iron, potassium and riboflavin and it has very few calories.

Poor Taxpayers By WILMAY

Gov. Brown, whose political ambitions are known, has reversed gears on reducing taxes, since Prop. 13 passed in California. Official shifting with the wind by many officeholders is one cause of loss of confidence in government. James 8:1 says double-minded persons are unstable in everything. God detests ambivalence, which is not limited to politics! Many hope that protest against heavy taxes continue, not to curtail services or increase unemployment, but to compel government to end waste and graft.

Good examples of these are found in THE CASE AGAINST THE RECKLESS CONGRESS, edited by Congresswoman Marjorie Holt, with every chapter by a different Congressman (from both parties) and on a separate topic; also in TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT in July Reader's Digest, by Sen. Hayakawa of Calif., and in THE GREAT NATIONAL RIP-OFF, July 3 issue of U.S. News & World Report, both magazines rated reliable. Cover of U. S. News & World Report reads: "How People Cheat and Steal $25,000,000,000 a Year from Government." There is the crux of the problem. This article, like others and some big dailies prove that plenty of the chiseling occurs on the inside! There will be no loss in jobs and services if officials put a stop to extravagance and corruption, if they quit creating new government jobs every election year; if they end bureaucratic rule and cease throwing huge sums away on worthless projects.

One recent asinine case is the more than three million just allotted to teach bus drivers in West Virginia how to deal with passengers, about as badly needed as rings in their noses! Almost a quarter million was appropriated to teach mothers how to play with their children. Still crazier ones have been approved for decades. The national debt is almost beyond comprehension but such tomfoolery continues at rapid pace, according to reports from the media. The worst aspect of it all is the apathy of many good citizens.

Legalized gambling in New Jersey took in over $2 million the first week. It will spiral and spread! More women than men gamble. The late Dr. George W. Truett—recognized worldwide as the foremost minister of his day—said: "The moral safety of the nation and of the world is largely in the keeping of the Christian pulpit." It is also in the keeping of women, as stated in previous columns, for the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, since mothers rear the ministers, politicians or statesmen, whichever each official happens to be. One thing is sure, gambling women and those who go half nude (with particular reference to the disgraceful current vogue of breast exposure) will not promote moral safety, let alone spirituality. A Southern Baptist tract lists scriptures against gambling; but many church members as well as non-members bet on the races, love the sweepstake offers inundating the country, play pinball machines, buy and sell chances, indulge in bingo, etc. Gambling destroys character, leaves behind broken lives and homes, hungry children and unpaid bills. More than one gambler wound up in prison or the electric chair for some murder committed as the result of the gambling fever. More than one started in what appeared to be innocent forms that merely whetted the appetite for larger filthy lucre.

Notice of Intention To Mine

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Express Coal Co., Inc., Box 310, Pikeville, Ky. 41501, intends to file an application for the deep mining of approximately 67 acres on Frog Branch of Little Mud Creek, Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 1 mile from State Route 2030. The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Kentucky Coal Corporation. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: deep mine.

The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Pikeville, Ky. 41501.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described deep mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0001. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

when heavy air pollution is crossing the state. Heat strokes, bites, stings, poison ivy or oak, cramps in swimming, accidents of every description from multiple causes—often due to carelessness—are just part of the hazards summer brings. Prevention beats cure. Children can be taught safety but it takes drill, reminders, and supervision. Family counsels make an ideal time to discuss dangers. Youngsters who grow up participating in such are less likely to become victims.

When Japanese beetles ruin roses or other flowers spray with a solution of Sevin, or put into a bottle and sprinkle it on. If this pest attacks fruit trees, young shrubs cheese cloth or net "petticoats" will protect the tender foliage and yet provide air, sun, and rain. Some plants are immune to the insect. None is more free from all pests, requires less care, multiplies more rapidly, or is prettier than the hemerocallis, or common day lily that once came only in the single, and solely in orange color, but is now available in double, and many shades, plus stripes, blotches, every mark except polka dot! Prices range up to $40 per plant, with seeds at nine cents each. Early and late varieties prolong the season from May till November. They grow easily from seed, are stunning in arrangements, and the first arrivals have the advantage of blooming along with Gloriosa daisies, tritomas, galliardias, asclepias or butterfly flowers, making grand combinations.

No-cooked frozen jams are incomparable, frozen pickles equally fantastic. The tomato season can be extended 2-4 weeks by planting a few of the cherry type which mature first, and some late varieties, too. The latter permit picking green ones when killing frost is due, wrapping each in paper, and storing them in a cool place until Thanksgiving. Connoisseurs know that homegrown fruit and vegetables have superior flavor because none is lost in lengthy transportation.

Carroll Says Student Behavior Greatest Educational Threat

"We will be constantly challenged to maintain a strong educational system in Kentucky," Gov. Julian Carroll last week told members of the steering committee of the Governor's Task Force on Education.

He asked the task force to continue its work to improve education in Kentucky and called for the creation of an overview committee to monitor the effects of recently passed education legislation and its implementation.

Gov. Carroll told the task force, meeting for the first time since the end of the 1978 General Assembly, that student behavior problems remain "the greatest threat to a proper educational environment...It is really a sad commentary on our times that some of our school districts have found it necessary to hire security guards to protect the safety of their students and teachers," he said.

Gov. Carroll said that one response to discipline problems has been a truancy project set up in Jefferson county as a cooperative effort between state government, the Jefferson county schools and the Jefferson district courts. The project was begun after discovering that Jefferson county has 16,500 truant students annually—almost 15 percent of all its school-age children.

Funding of education, kindergarten programs, and in-service training for teachers are areas the governor recommended for further study by the task force.

He also asked the task force to "take the initiative to inform the public of what we have done to improve education in Kentucky." He added, "We can't let the public believe that the results of our education legislation will be instantaneous—because it will not." Results will be measured for years to come, he said.

Don Stephens, executive director of the task force, identified eight areas to be studied by task force subcommittees. They will be the overview subcommittee, student behavior, weighted pupil formula, classified and non-certified personnel, tax programs, kindergartens, professional improvement, and parent involvement and public relations.

One Amazing Statement

For goodness' sake!

We were prepared for the U. S. Geological Survey report (which appears on Page 1) on every count but one. We knew without stirring from this desk that Dewey Lake was Silt Basin, filling in rapidly, its days apparently numbered. We knew without months of study that mining operations upstream were responsible for a large part of the tons of mud, coal, sand and gravel that are being unloaded, day and night, into the reservoir.

But one statement in the report caught us unawares. It reads:

"We think the combination of sediment and land-use studies will have transfer values to other areas, both by helping to pinpoint the major sources of present problems and by aiding in the planning of future reservoirs."

Translated into less prosaic prose, that paragraph says this:

"The study of Dewey and Fishtrap Reservoirs has this one value: It shows us what may occur at some other lake."

We repeat: For goodness' sake!

If all those months of study are only to warn against another tragedy at another body of water, what has been achieved more than ordinary use of the eyes and a bit of commonsense would have made obvious without maps and gauges and plumbing the depths of the mud?

Why can't this study mean more? Why can't those who made it dare, even at this late date, to suggest that silt dams to catch some of those tons of sediment could add to the years of these two stricken lakes?

Across the hills, a few miles as the crow flies, is Carr Fork Reservoir, an impoundment which also lies in coal mining country. When it was built, silt dams were built, also. And the results there are beautiful to behold.

The study has been made. Since this is an age of survey and study and hem and haw, we are glad it was done.

But now it strikes us that somebody should be willing to do something, without more years of study—for Dewey's sake!

color, but "Shenandoah" is set in a more distant and a more troubled time, and hence is tinged with sorrow. Throughout, the show sustains what reviewer Kevin Kelly of the Boston Globe called "A reaffirmation of American spirit."

"Shenandoah" has found a home on the Jenny Wiley stage, and a more natural location could never have been dreamed of. This often light, often serious, often tear jerking paean to mountain heritage runs from July 5 through July 23, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings at 8:30. More appealing entertainment is not likely to be found anywhere.

costlier brand, so this new gripe shouldn't disturb too many. Here's my latest:

The postoffice here was not only closed, July 4—may the Eagle scream as high as I did when I ran into it—but it was also locked. Inside was that box, the rental of which is $48 a year (at the most recent quotation), and its contents are sealed against me. Could I as a minority prove to somebody that I'm being discriminated against?

Oh, well, maybe most of my mail would have been month-end bills, anyway.

WHOSE RIGHTS?

By the barest (5-4) of margins the Supreme Court this week ruled that a ban on filthy, indecent language on radio and television is constitutional. But a dissenting statement by Justice Brennan is, to us, almost as shocking as the dirty words that caused the litigation in the first place.

The judge admitted that the majority opinion probably would be applauded by most parents who want to protect their children from such tripe but complained that it ignores the rights of "a receptive, unoffended minority."

Sure, there are people to whom such filth is welcome. They are "receptive and unoffended," true. But Brennan's logic (in some quarters, known as hogwash) would argue that, since we have a minority which likes housebreaking, kidnapping and other crimes, and are not offended by them, law against such crime would be unconstitutional.

Yea, verily, it's a great country that is able to survive some things and some people.

"Will you love me when there are silver threads among the gold?" the woman thrilled.

"Humph!—why not?" replied her husband. "I loved you when it turned to gold and two other colors before that!"

Happy July 5!

Tons of Documents Filed

More than a year after the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire, some 720,000 pages of legal documents have been prepared by the office of Kentucky Secretary of State for certified mailing to defendants in civil suits relating to the fire.

According to Drexell Davis, secretary of state, his office has prepared and mailed most of the summonses and complaints against the 3,600 defendants named in nine state and federal suits.

"About two truckloads of documents began arriving at our office May 25," Davis said. "The Campbell circuit clerk telephoned to warn us about the coming deliveries. I'm glad that office notified us, because we did not have adequate storage space. We arranged to borrow the Governor's conference room in the Capitol basement for storage."

Davis said his office became involved in the litigation procedures because several of the defendants and their companies are located outside Kentucky. This forced the plaintiffs in the cases to invoke Kentucky's "long arm statute," which extends the jurisdiction over the suits to Kentucky courts—and necessitates the involvement of the Secretary of State's office.

Davis said the nine civil suits consisted of six suits in state circuit court and three in federal court. Some 2,100 defendants were named in the three federal suits, while two of the state suits had 700 defendants each. About 100 defendants were named in the remaining four state suits.

Davis explained that a summons and a complaint were prepared for each defendant in each lawsuit. He noted that several defendants were named in more than one suit, and that some defendants were named in most of the suits.

Davis said that in the Beverly Hills suits, a summons usually consists of 70 pages, with the complaint averaging about 170 pages.

Normally, Davis said, his office includes a staff of two to three persons to handle the procedures involved in suits in which the "long arm statute" is invoked. However, he said the volume of materials involved in the Beverly Hills suits required a staff or seven full-time workers.

He said his office handles about 5,000 "long arm statute" cases in a normal year.

Davis noted that his office charges $4 per defendant in filing fees in such cases. The Secretary of State's office has collected more than $14,400 in filing fees from the Beverly Hills plaintiffs.

Davis said the "long arm statute" procedure is much like normal litigation procedure: His office prepares letters, summonses and complaints to be sent the defendants by certified mail; attaches a green certified mail card to the envelopes; collects the green cards that guarantee the defendant has received the summons and reports the receipt to the proper court.

VILLAGE SQUARE

"...AND SINCE PART OF THE CONGREGATION WAS OUT HERE, I THOUGHT A CHANGE for the SECOND SERVICE WAS IN ORDER..."

Ends 41 Years as Educator

Sherrill Frazier has retired from teaching after 41 years in the Floyd county system.

After attending Pikeville College, his teaching career started at age 19 at a rural school called Progress which was near his home at Martin. After teaching two years at the rural school he entered the University of Kentucky where he received a B. A. degree and later did graduate work in his major field and counseling. His first high school teaching position was at Wayland in 1939. After serving in the Army from 1942-45 he taught one more semester at Wayland and was then transferred to Martin High School. He remained at Martin, except for the school year 1959-60 when he taught at Prestonsburg, until the four Right Beaver high schools merged as Allen Central in 1972. He taught there for six years until his retirement in June.

Frazier has served in many capacities in the teachers' association which have benefited the teachers' position, but the education of the children of Floyd county has been his major aim for the 41 years, and to all those who have passed through his classes he says:

"It has been a privilege and a pleasure. My very best to you wherever you are."

Frazier, who is known for his one-liners and anecdotes, was given a surprise dinner with gifts and a plaque by the faculty and administration of Allen Central and then "roasted" by members of the group.

His retirement plans include more time at Riverfront Stadium, work with the Martin Kiwanis Club where he is serving his second term as president, four grandsons, and some travel.

LETTERS To the Editor

Again, the McDowell School

I would like to offer some final comments, or parting shots, if you will, on the McDowell High School issue and Mr. Miller's letter. I will also confirm what many of my friends have suspected for years by commenting on his letter in reverse order:

Your record of accomplishment will be judged by what you have not done, not what you have done. Unfair but true. If one high school student becomes disenchanted with the educational process because of a lack of adequate facilities, then your glowing list of accomplishments mean nothing.

Mr. Miller's plaintive cry, "Why me?" instead of those other people who have neglected McDowell for 20 years is perhaps the most interesting part of his letter. This is the politician's lament, after he has inherited a mess from the "other party". This attitude is certainly out of place among dedicated, non-political, professional educators.

Why all the fuss after 20 years? Some of us chose professions other than politics-education because we didn't have the proper connections with the good, old boys in the courthouse. Most of us left because the coal industry was dying and we held the radical notion that a person should work for a living. But the times, they are a-changin'. We've seen ghetto schools that are as good as Floyd County's best. We've seen dedicated school boards and administrators who put their political ambitions aside for the good of the children. We've seen teachers hired and the school business conducted solely on the basis of best qualified and getting the most for every school dollar, not "kinfolk" or to whom do we owe a favor.

There are a lot of new folks out there who will grab their money and run after this coal boom levels out, but a lot of us have been here before and have returned to stay. We will do everything in our power to help the professional educators who are doing the job for us. But we won't be quiet.

My compliments to the McDowell PTA. You seem to be an unusually dedicated group. I would point out to you that there are school systems where the maintenance and administration of the school is done by those who are paid to do the job and the parents are not forced to pay the taxes and also get out and hustle extra money. I hope you good people see that day soon.

The Unsinkable Aircraft Carrier

By PAUL SCOTT
Guest, Columnist

From my first air glimpse of Taiwan (Formosa) in six years, the growing global strategic military importance of this island-nation of 17 million—The Republic of Free China—became immediately apparent. Located approximately 100 miles off the southern coast of Mainland China and 1200 miles from the southern tip of Japan, Taiwan rises out of the blue waters of the Western Pacific as an oriental fortress, whose control holds the balance of naval and air power in this vital region of the world.

The huge deep water port and massive ship and repair facilities, which spread out before one's view at Kaohsiung at the southern end of this 300-mile-long island, is capable of handling the Far East fleets of both the U.S. and Soviet Union with plenty of space to spare. The military significance of this "unsinkable aircraft carrier", as Gen. Douglas MacArthur once called the island, comes through loud and clear when one walks through the $1 billion facilities of the China Ship Building Company and associated industrial projects surrounding Kaohsiung port.

The giant drydock here is the second largest in the world and can handle vessels of more than one million tons, or larger than any now afloat or under construction. No U.S. shipbuilding facility can come close to matching it. The drydock's size, 3100 feet long, 300 feet wide, and an average of 46 feet deep—is exceeded only by facilities at Nagasaki, Japan. Twenty-three vessels of all sizes, including a 450,000 ton supertanker are under construction and the yard's facilities are still not being used to capacity. As Vice-President Lin Hung-chaun, of the China Shipbuilding Corporation and a graduate of MIT at Cambridge, Mass., reported in an interview: "Our harbor and ship repair facilities can handle the entire U.S. Seventh Fleet and can repair one-half the fleet at one time. Communist China has nothing like this. Should these facilities fall into the hands of Peking, the Communist would be able to build a first-class Navy within 10 years."

Adjoining this shipyard is the China Steel Corporation with a capacity for turning out more than 1.5 million tons of steel a year. Plans are underway to double the company's capacity by 1983.

This expanding industrial-military complex is part of the Republic of Free China's six-year economic development program which included 10 major projects and in which the new government of President Chiang Ching-kuo is investing upward to $10 billion. The grand design provides for an industrial base unmatched on the Asian mainland or elsewhere in the Far East except Japan. The projects, of which five have been completed, include a new airport, five atomic powerplants, a petrochemical industry, two new deep-water ports, the shipping and steel complex, a north-south superhighway and improved rail facilities.

When we last visited Taiwan in February, 1972—the month former President Richard Nixon visited the Chinese mainland to sign the "Shanghai Communiqué", which called for the normalization of U.S. relations with Communist China—the huge shipbuilding-steel-complex was a series of rice fields. The industrial miracle which now stands in comparison to what has taken place in Communist-controlled China, where there has been little economic progress because of the continuing purges and upheavals.

The Republic of Free China has become the second largest exporter in Asia after Japan and is now the 12th largest trading partner of the U.S. Although Taiwan supports an army of 650,000, its standard of living is ten times higher than Communist China. There is virtually no unemployment. This growing military capability along with the island's new industrial might makes Taiwan the major strategic prize in the Western Pacific and a natural naval-air base which both Moscow and Peking want to control and use against the U.S.

In addition to the U.S., Russia, and Communist China, Japan also has a big stake in Taiwan's future allegiance as this island bastion lies across the sea route of that industrial power's oil lifeline from the Middle East. With the Soviet's fast growing Far East fleet beginning to dominate the Sea of Japan, a Moscow-controlled naval base in Taiwan would outflank U.S. naval installations in Japan and the Philippines and force a withdrawal of the U.S. Seventh Fleet from the Western Pacific.

This "Destabilization of the Pacific Basin" could easily happen, according to Senator Barry Goldwater (R. Ariz.), if the Carter Administration goes through with its plans for the normalization of relations with Communist China. In a memorandum now being circulated to a group of selected Senators, the former GOP presidential nominee warns that continued diplomatic recognition of the Republic of Free China on Taiwan is necessary to avoid these potentially catastrophic results.

"Abandonment of Taiwan would be the trigger to set afire all of Asia and the Pacific Basin," states Goldwater. "I predict that if Taiwan is abandoned by U.S. the increasingly adverse results of our late retreat from Vietnam will pale into insignificance."

Noting the tremendous economic and political achievements of the 17 million free Chinese on Taiwan compared to the poor showing of the 800 million tightly-controlled Chinese on the mainland, Goldwater reported: "On each and every day of Taiwan's existence it stands as an accusation of the economical, political and intellectual poverty of their fellow Chinese under communism. It stands as a major tribute to capitalism. It is a bone in the throat of mainland China."

3 from Floyd Receive Berea Degrees

Berea, Ky.—Three Floyd county students received degrees at Berea College commencement exercises this spring. Jolene Crawford, Timothy Crawford and Sandra Ousley were three of 191 students to be awarded diplomas.

Miss Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delzie Crawford, of Melvin, received a degree in biology. A dean's list honor student, she was named to Mortar Board National Honor Society her junior year. As part of the labor program at Berea, she worked as a biology lab assistant. She also was active on dormitory government councils and in intramural sports on campus.

Timothy Crawford, also a dean's list student, received a degree in political science. While at Berea, he was advertising manager for THE PINNACLE, student newspaper; manager of THE CHIMES, student yearbook; president of his dorm and of the Freshman class, and was the Student Association's communication's officer. He also was chairman of the 1976 Berea College mock Democratic convention, president of the Kentucky Young Democrats and chief officer of the Legal Aid Society. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Manis Crawford.

Miss Ousley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ousley, of David, was one of 22 students to receive a degree in nursing. She was awarded her nursing pin at a ceremony just prior to commencement exercises. A dean's list honor student, she was an active participant in intramural sports at Berea and an active member of the Baptist Student Union for four years. She was a nominee for the Veltin Prize for Good Citizenship, chosen "Woman of the Year" in her dormitory for two years and was named to Mortar Board National Honor Society.

Berea awarded honorary degrees at commencement exercises to Robert Penn Warren, Kentucky-born Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist, and to Dr. A. D. Albright, president of Northern Kentucky University.

Sound Happenings

By COEY HARRIS

We're back! But with a serious gripe. Did you know that even though you have racks of rock albums, have had to put three new sets of tires on your car from running to concerts and have driven the bank tellers and postmasters into early retirement ordering tickets, that ticket distributors refuse to establish a ticket outlet in Eastern Kentucky because they feel there is no market here to justify the hassle of a ticket outlet? Ridiculous? How about totally misinformed on the whole situation? Well, here's the run down. Jim Justice of J. J.'s Sound Shop met with the head honchos of a large promotion agency which brings in most of the fabulous concerts that are reachable from this area and the above outdated response is the basic idea thrown back at him with a little giggle here and there. Sort of makes your blood boil? But, does it make you steamed enough to do something about it? Well if it does here's the master plan. Jim Justice, known infamously as J. J., is now taking up petitions containing names of concert-going folks to present to the promoters to show that our idea of a live concert is not just Uncle Joe and Pa sitting on the back porch pickin' and drinkin' white lightning. He needs every music fan's support whether you fall in with country or rock. Go to one of the shops and pick up a petition form, fill it with names, making sure the people whose names you get are alive even though they can still vote the promoter won't count those who are there in spirit only. It's all up to us, if you want a ticket outlet within an hour's drive from your little cabin, let's work and pull together to get it.

"All songs written by Bob Dylan" is a famous line that appears on the new album, "Street Legal" to tell the world that Dylan still lives, creates, and produces. With his new album, "Street Legal", Dylan reminds us long time fans he is still with us and remains the greatest musical reflective poet of our time. The cuts contain social reflections to blues with some of the best musical arrangements since "Blonde on Blonde". Do you like Kansas and the style of Foreigner? Well take the intricate keyboard work of Kansas, the romantic lyrical work of Foreigner, pull together the guitars, vocals and harmonies and you have Prism. Prism with their new album, "See Forever Eyes," joins the class or rock currently occupied by such greats as Kansas and Foreigner. The group is currently underrated. With the cut "Nickles and Dimes", Prism shows their own style. "You're Like The Wind" contains lyrics that can only provoke romance. The rock hardens with "N-N-No" with the aid of sound effects common to Pink Floyd. Check out this package.

One more complaint-Red, Hot, and Blue Productions has contracts to groups such as the Godz, Wet Willie, and Bob Seger, yet can get no cooperation from the community for giving the artists a place to perform. Come on music fans, we got things to do! Next week, Coey.

Hyden Honors Ex-Pres. Nixon

Leslie county's mountain-rimmed Hyden, one of the smallest of Kentucky's county-seats, loomed large on the news map last week-end when it entertained Ex-President Richard M. Nixon.

The former president left his California retreat in response to an invitation from Leslie county officials to speak at the dedication of a Hyden recreation complex which was named in his honor.

His Kentucky visit brought to Hyden scores of newsmen, along with a throng of visitors from other parts of the country. A number of Floyd countians attended the dedication, Sunday. Among those who greeted the former president was Ex-Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

An estimated 6,000 persons braved Sunday's heat in the air-conditionless sports complex to hear Mr. Nixon's address.

His visit to Kentucky was unmarred by any demonstrations, and those who saw him said he apparently enjoyed "every minute of it" in one of the most heavily Republican counties of the state.

The company serves customers in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Lawrence, Magoffin, Pike, Knott, Letcher, Leslie and Perry counties.

Rev. and Mrs. Lafferty To Be Honored Sunday

The children of Rev. and Mrs. Clark Lafferty will honor them on their Golden Wedding Anniversary, Sunday, July 9, with a reception at their home on Prater Creek, between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

McDowell Woman Says Rescue Squad Helped Save Youth

The Left Beaver Rescue Squad was credited this week by a McDowell woman with a service that may have saved the life of her son.

Mrs. Otis Newsome said her 14-year-old son, Keith, and other youths were playing in the hills near her home last Saturday afternoon when he fell approximately 20 feet, suffering a back injury which temporarily paralyzed him.

His companions did not know what to do. His father has had open-heart surgery and could not go to the scene of the accident. Mrs. Newsome called the Rescue Squad.

"Within 15 to 20 minutes," she said, "about eight members of the Rescue Squad were there with stretchers. They carried Keith from the hill, loaded him into their ambulance, and took him to two hospitals before finding help at the third, Highlands Regional."

Young Newsome remains in the hospital here. His mother said it is feared he has a ruptured spleen.

TO VISIT IN MARYLAND

Mrs. Lucy Ransdell will leave this week for a month's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Philip Schroeder, and Mr. Schroeder, in Bethesda, Maryland. Soon after her arrival there, she and the Schroeders will be joined by other members of their family for a reunion at Bethany Beach, off the Delaware coast. Attending, in addition to Mrs. Ransdell and Mr. and Mrs. Schroeder, will be Mrs. Ransdell's other daughter, Mrs. Jay M. Shields, and Mr. Shields, of Abilene Texas; the Shields' daughter, Mrs. Stephen Perkins, and Mr. Perkins, also of Abilene; another daughter of the Shields, Mrs. Michael Ragsdale, Mr. Ragsdale, and children, Leigh, Todd, and Tim, of Arlington, Texas; and Mr. and Mrs. Shields' son, J. T. Shields, Mrs. Shields, and children, Tyler and Benjamin, of Houston, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Jay M. Shields will accompany Mrs. Ransdell home following her visit.

INJURED IN FALL

Mrs. Rebecca Rasnick sustained a fractured hip and wrist in a fall Sunday morning in the entrance to Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. She is being treated at Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington. Her sister, Mrs. Bill Pettrey, and Mr. Pettrey accompanied her there.

RETURN TO NORTH CAROLINA

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mays, formerly of this county, have returned to their home in Tranquil Harbour, Long Beach, N.C., after a months camping trip to Kentucky. While here they visited friends and attended the 1978 graduation exercises at Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes.

Tacketts Claim $250,000 Damage Caused by C.&O.

Because their property has been isolated by removal of a railway crossing, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Tackett last Wednesday asked a total of $250,000 damages in a circuit court suit filed here against the C. & O. Railway Company.

The Tacketts' petition points out that they own approximately 40 acres of land in what is known as Layne Bottom at Harold. The property is separated on the east side from US 23 by the Big Sandy river and on the west by the railway. The only access to the property from the highway was by way of a railway crossing which, they say, was removed within the last five years by the company over their protest, leaving the land inaccessible.

Mr. and Mrs. Tackett claim that the defendant has admitted it had no legal right to remove the crossing. They ask judgment for $150,000 compensatory damages and $100,000 punitive damage. (Reports of civil suits reflect only the plaintiff's claims.)

Labor Department Opens
Pikeville Black Lung Office

The U.S. Department of Labor has established at Pikeville its first district office to handle black lung claims, as jurisdiction in black lung cases switches from the Social Security Administration under a black lung benefits reform law.

Claims will continue to be filed in Social Security offices, but will be forwarded to the Labor offices for adjudication, district manager Daryl Ratliff said.

Ten satellite offices for the Southeast, including seven in Kentucky, one in Prestonsburg, will be set up to handle most of the personal contact involved, he said.

Adjudication, Ratliff said, "will consist of getting non-medical as well as medical evidence and giving the claimant and responsible employer an opportunity to critique the evidence. In essence, the coal operators are going to have to pay for this."

Like other district managers to be named, Ratliff came from the Social Security Administration. He was the agency's district manager here for 12 years.

The Labor office at Pikeville is one of seven nationwide. It will serve approximately 30,000 persons in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama, Ratliff said. Other satellite offices were to be located at Beaver Dam, Bowling Green, Harlan, Lexington, Madisonville, and Whitesburg in Kentucky; Birmingham, Ala. Gainesville, Fla., and Jacksboro, Tenn.

"The criteria (for office location) would be proximity of the coal industry, the availability of medical facilities used by miners suffering from black lung and where they move to when they leave the coal fields," Ratliff said. "A lot of people move to Florida. All your coal miners in southeastern Kentucky pretty much go to Lexington for medical evaluations and, over in western Kentucky, Bowling Green is pretty much the center."

"We have a couple of problems that have to be resolved," Ratliff said. "We have the issue of getting suitable space in these places and we also have to work through civil service procedures to find employees. I'm right now in the federal building."

TURNLEY—BALLARD WEDDING SOLEMNIZED IN LEXINGTON

Miss Connie Denise Turnley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Turnley, of Martin, and Mr. William Dominic Ballard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Ballard, of Bradstown, Ky., were united in marriage May 27, at 2 p.m., in the Russell Cave Baptist Church, Lexington, Ky., with the Rev. Burton Callico performing ring ceremony. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. William Michell, of Lexington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza gown, fashioned with a basque bodice with a ruffle V-D on bodice applied with imported Venice lace, the bodice topped an A-line skirt that swept to a chapel train. Her headpiece, a Venice lace cap with Venice lace pink forget-me-nots was attached to a walking-length silk illusion veil trimmed with Venice lace. She carried a cascade of white miniature carnations and pink sweetheart roses, with matching streamers, and a removable corsage.

Mrs. Marcia Turnley, Lexington, sister-in-law of the bride, was her matron-of-honor. Gail Vancleave, Campbellsville, and Cathy Damron, Pikeville, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of pink polyester knit with chiffon capes trimmed in lace at neckline. They wore picture hats and carried French bouquets of pink silk sweetheart roses and baby's breath with pink satin streamers. The flower girl was Kathy Gayheart, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a powder-blue polyester knit gown, and the groom's mother wore a pink polyester knit gown. Their corsages were of cymbidium orchids. The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Crit Gayheart, wore a long aqua-blue dress with matching jacket and wore a corsage of white carnations. Jerry Ballard, Bradstown, was his brother's best man.

A reception was held at the Hospitality Inn in Lexington. Mrs. Paul Maggard, Mrs. Ralph Gayheart and Miss Marlene Ballard assisted with the serving, and Miss Elaine Ballard was at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard are living in Lexington.

Moped Driving Not for All

For parents who are thinking about buying mopeds for their teenagers, the Department of Transportation last week released a word of caution:

Contrary to general belief, 14- and 15-year-olds cannot legally operate the motorized vehicle.

A valid driver license for operating an automobile or a motorcycle (or a combination license) will automatically cover operation of the moped, according to driver licensing director F. E. Hodges.

Hodges said that "those who do not already have a valid operator's license must obtain a 'learner's permit' before they can legally operate the motorized bikes which have become so popular." Mopeds are essentially motorized bicycles without the power and speed of motorcycles. They were legalized by the 1978 Kentucky General Assembly, effective June 17.

According to Kentucky law, learner's permits are not issued to anyone under the age of 16; thus, the moped regulations forbid moped operation by those under that age.

"There is no special test set up for moped operation and the applicant for a license will be given the standard written test and eye examination now required for issuance of a learner's permit," Hodges said.

Beginning drivers operating under learner's permits, as well as licensed drivers between the ages of 16 and 18, must have the signed consent of parent or guardian and the same rule applies to the under-18 moped operator.

"The eager young buyer should not be misled about the age requirements and other licensing criteria," Hodges said. "Driving without a license or under age 16 can result in arrest and conviction of operators and/or guardians."

Senator Says Eastern Coal Losing as West Is Favored

A recently-released government study clearly indicates that Kentucky has assumed a major role among states East of the Mississippi in expanding fuel sources to meet future energy needs, Senator Wendell Ford said last week.

Ford said that the report, prepared by the U.S. Bureau of Mines, documents that coal, despite the absence of a firm national mandate, has emerged the primary source to which this country has turned in meeting the present and immediate future energy needs.

But, Ford added, a companion study detailing energy development in the Western states supports his contention that Eastern coal is de-emphasized in favor of coal mined in that area of the country.

"Nearly 200 mines with an estimated annual production of more than 465 million tons are anticipated in the West," Ford said. "This compares with 189 new mines east of the Mississippi, with a production capacity of only 246 million tons.

"One of the many problems to result from a production imbalance like this would be a reduced net energy production because so much energy is expended transporting the coal from the low population centers of the West to the high density areas of the East."

The report, which is based on figures through July, 1977, lists 535 future fuel-related projects in the 26 Eastern states. Of that total, 445 involve coal—either new mines, new electric generating plants or coal conversion facilities. (The listing does not include hundreds or relatively small and short term surface mining operations which will be opened and closed in the next several years in the Appalachian coalfields.)

"As far as the Eastern half of the nation is concerned, coal has become the dominant source of energy," Ford said. "As a result of this trend to coal, more than half of the future energy projects are concentrated in seven states, most of the large coal producers. I hope that federal energy policy-makers will read between the lines of this report and accept the fact that unless we accelerate our research and development efforts, we'll never realize the maximum benefits in tapping coal's vast potential."

Among the Eastern states, West Virginia heads the list with 71 new energy projects—including 62 new coal mines.

Pennsylvania is second with 51 new energy projects, followed by Kentucky with 43. The breakdown for Kentucky shows 27 new mines; seven coal electric generating plants; five coal conversion plants; one hydroelectric generating plant, and one oil or gas electric generating plant.

The five coal-conversion plants—more than any other state—represent nearly a third of the total of 16 for the entire Eastern half of the nation. In addition, Ford pointed out that two other proposals—one to convert coal into a solid clean substitute and a gasification facility that will produce ammonia for fertilizer stand a good chance of becoming reality.

Nevertheless, Ford called it a "national disgrace" that the list of planned coal conversion facilities totals only 16 in the East and 27 in the West.

"That figure speaks for itself and indicates better than words the federal government's lack of commitment to coal research and the development of synthetic fuels," Ford said. "If the government was serious about making the wisest and most productive use of coal, there would be 10 times as many coal conversion facilities planned."

One other observation Ford made about the study concerned the fact that 69 new nuclear electric generating projects are planned for the East. "One will be in at least every state except for Kentucky and West Virginia," Ford added.

McBrayer To Resign Effective August 1st

Kentucky Commerce Commissioner Terry McBrayer announced Saturday that he will resign his post, effective Aug. 1.

McBrayer, a native of Greenup, has been Kentucky's commerce commissioner since January, 1977. In announcing his resignation, McBrayer stated, "I said 18 months ago that I would vigorously pursue and establish a variety of new programs that would take us into the future, programs we could build upon for generations to come. Today those programs are a reality. In short, I believe what I came to do has now been done."

McBrayer's formal announcement as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor is expected to follow the effective date of his resignation.

President Nixon's Visit To Hyden, Kentucky

It was a great and wonderful surprise to me and my family that President Nixon was coming to Kentucky, and most of all to eastern Kentucky, to the humble little town of Hyden in Leslie county in the hills of Old Kentucky. But one thing, for sure, he did not come to a little town of little spirit; he was met with mountains of it, a wild rousing spirit, the absolute, pure, whole-hearted true spirit. Those people expounded more true Americanism and elation than I have seen since the ending of the Vietnam war.

Many people from other counties and states joined in the jubilation of having their former great president pay a visit to this part of the country.

In all this my family and I and Mrs. Rhoda Brickly, joined with extreme pleasure in the celebration and the welcoming of President Nixon. We were awaiting for the motorcade on a long stretch between Manchester and London, Kentucky on the Daniel Boone highway. We each had large, beautifully painted posters we waved in jubilee as they approached. The signs say, WE LOVE NIXON and NIXON, NOW MORE THAN EVER. They waved back at us, Mr. Nixon also waved. We then joined the motorcade back to Hyden, to where he was staying.

Sunday, I went back for the dedication, which was a rousing, exhilarating occasion. My heart goes out to the courageous people of Leslie County for their wonderful welcoming to President Nixon, for what he has done for them and for our country. I appreciate these people's courage for standing up in the face of the commonwealth's political machine and saying, Thank you, President Nixon for all the good things you have done for us and our country. They said it in their speeches, in their press and on their signs along the highway and in their city. Thank you for ending the war in Vietnam—the crowd cheered loud and long on this. They gratefully cheered him for bringing the four hundred prisoners of war home from the hands of Hanoi, where they had suffered heartbreaking conditions as much as eight years. Thank you for the enactment of the revenue sharing plan for our cities, so that each may have money for improvements. Thank you for your staunch stand against communism. Also for opening up friendly relations with the People's Republic of China, and many other good things.

I was interviewed by several of the news media of different channels, asking my opinion of the visit, and if I thought it might have political consequences. I told them I was elated over the visit and that our country could certainly use him in these times of uncertainty and lack of leadership.

They asked my name and where I lived.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Baxter and the board of directors for the Evelyn P. Fowle, Inc. wish to express their heartfelt thanks to all who participated in making the household shower of June 24 such a great success.

We are especially appreciative for the Prestonsburg Council Of Churchwomen who planned the event and The First United Methodist Church where it was held.

A great many useful gifts were received and all will be needed as we are expecting girls to be admitted in the near future. The facility still needs garden and yard tools, used fans, desks and book-cases, etc. Anyone having unused items can call the girls home at 886-3867 and they will be picked up. It is also planned to freeze and can food for the winter months so any offerings of fresh fruit or garden produce are welcome.

Again, THANK YOU—ONE and ALL!

In 1977 alone, more than 4 million additional jobs were created in the private economy, according to the 1978 Employment and Training Report of the President.

Conservative Outlook

COMMON GROUND WITH UNIONS

By Congressman Philip M. Crane, Chairman American Conservative Union

The future of the blue-collar worker does not lie with expanded government programs and expanded government control over our lives. The future, instead, lies with conservatives who seek to lessen government interference in our private lives.

described. There were three main components. One, a proposed reinvestment tax credit to encourage industries to remain in the cities. Second, amendments to the existing federal environmental statutes. This would require all federal agencies to prepare environmental

Philip M. Crane

Earlier this year, I organized a meeting of Conservatives and Republicans in an area hard hit by lay-offs, plant closings, blizzards and most recently the coal strike. After meeting with the Union rank-and-file in Youngstown, Ohio, we staked out areas of agreement: disincentives to production resulting from heavy taxes, declines in productivity owing to over-regulation by the government, unjust trading practices of foreign competitors, and the need for reliable energy supplies.

Both union leaders and conservative spokesmen emphasized the need for a strong, healthy economy unshackled by government regulation, development of energy and other resources, and of paramount importance—jobs. As former conservative Republican mayor Jack Hunter stated, "It is not government handouts that Youngstown needs. Rather it is jobs."

We returned in mid-March, as promised, with a legislative package specifically directed at the ills the union members had impact statements and cost-benefit analysis prior to the issuance of any regulations. The third area would enforce existing legislation by expanding anti-dumping enforcement. Both the Treasury and the Anti-Trade Commission are given compressed timetables to conduct their dumping investigations—cutting the time frame approximately in half.

Since many of the common denominators determined by the conservatives and the union people were clearly the fault of Congress, we have the obligation to relieve industry and to reverse the dangerous trend which faces such cities across the nation.

Fees Increase as State Starts New Fiscal Year

Kentucky got an infusion of $7.5 billion in new tax dollars Saturday to run state government for the next two fiscal years.

General taxes won't increase, but Kentuckians will encounter higher fees in some cases. There's also a definite trend toward more state debt.

Most of the money in Gov. Julian Carroll's 1978-80 budget will go to continue existing programs, with large increases for elementary and secondary education.

Strip-mine regulation and state fire code enforcement will also receive large pieces of the budgetary pie.

The governor and 1978 General Assembly also decided there would be enough money in the budget to fund two major new programs.

One is a crisis assistance program aimed at providing short-term financial aid to people who "fall through the cracks" of other state assistance programs.

The other program is designed to help elderly and poor Kentuckians pay their winter home heating bills.

The only new tax must be borne by "litter-producing" industries—the term encompassing a wide range of businesses from newspapers to soft drink companies. The tax will be used to fund a statewide litter reduction plan.

The legislature also approved extending the coal severance tax to include value added in processing, which is aimed at boosting revenues. Some fees for licenses and documents issued by the state will increase. For example, the fee for a birth, marriage, divorce or death certificate will double from $2 to $4.

And an extra $15 has been tacked on to fees for most traffic violations to fund a local police pay incentive program.

Carroll recommended, and the legislature approved, extending the debt limit of some state agencies, and creating new agencies with authority to issue revenue bonds.

The governor said revenue bonds would be paid off from project revenues, but several legislators warned that if projects did not live up to expectations, taxpayers could ultimately foot the bill for many of the projects.

This Is a Shocker—First Rate Increase Suffered in 27 Years

In a time when the cost of living keeps climbing, an increase in natural gas rates would not seem out of step.

But, for the 35 customers of Lyda Gas Co. in Elkhorn City, it's a bit unusual.

It's their first gas rate increase in 27 years!

Under the new bimonthly rates, they'll pay $6 for the first 4,000 cubic feet of gas and $2 per 1,000 cubic feet for all over 4,000 cubic feet.

The old monthly rates, set in 1951, were 83 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 3,000 cubic feet, 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet and 55 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet.

The Kentucky Public Service Commission, which approved the increase, agreed that the current rates "do not produce sufficient revenues in the present economy."

Opinion Says Firm Liable for Taxes

Ohio-Kentucky Utilities, Inc. is liable for the payment of Public Service Corp. property taxes to the city of Wayland, according to an opinion issued by the state Attorney General's office.

Rickie Pearson, assistant attorney general, said there are no statutory or constitutional provisions which exempt utility companies from the payment of such taxes.

The opinion sought by Ed Burtner, Big Sandy Area Development District, Prestonsburg.

The Rio cost more than a grand.

In 1853, money took America to the banks Of the Rio Grande. In that year, the Gadsden Purchase further extended United States territory down the west bank of the mighty Rio Grande. And established what today is the border between Mexico and the states of Arizona and New Mexico. The cost: $10,000,000. And Americans put up the money. By purchasing government securities. You could bank on America back then. And you still can. By buying U.S. Savings Bonds at work. Through the Payroll Savings Plan. That way, a little is set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Automatically. So help keep your future, and America's, flowing smoothly. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They're a grand way to save.

Our Fragile Earth

BY DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

The wild animal trade has become big business. Demand for exotic pets and zoo specimens is at an all-time high. According to Joe Wing of the Associate Press, observers have listed several reasons for the trade's popularity: wildlife films, affection, curiosity, snob appeal and money.

Poachers, sometimes a part of organized crime, are directly threatening some species and are destroying non-tartar animals and the prime habitat of some endangered species. Orangutan babies, for example, bring high dollars on the contraband market, but often their mothers must be killed before the babies can be taken. Habitat destruction has occurred in the quest for giant saguaro cactus plants in Arizona. This cactus can be sold for about $1,000 to unscrupulous landscapers. Large holes are left and many small cacti are destroyed in the process.

Despite stringent laws in the U.S., the trade is flourishing because enforcement is lax or non-existent. It is estimated that 150 of the 300 ships entering Los Angeles harbor each month carry contraband plants or animals. Many are smuggled by organized rings to the U.S. through Mexico, where the geography of the border itself is a problem. Singapore, Bangkok, Hong Kong, and western Europe are also illegal trade centers.

Some plants and animals are more in demand than others, depending primarily on their rarity. Snakes, like the harmless eastern indigo, presently a threatened species, bring as much as $300 each, while a matched pair of rare Australian birds can bring several thousand dollars. Various species of chimpanzees and monkeys, coatimundis (a south American raccoon-like animal), tarsiers and lemurs (primitive mammals), orchids, and carnivorous plants are presently in high demand.

This demand invites corruption. Forged origin certificates are routine and bribes range from $10-100 per specimen, according to Jean Ives-Domala, author of "The Animal Connection," an expose of the animal trade.

Other problems include a high mortality rate in transit. For every bird imported live into the U.S., one has died during the trip and for every imported live tropical fish, five have died during their journey.

The American Pet Products Association blames zoos for promoting illegal pet traffic, but a Department of Agriculture veterinarian says that only 10 percent of imported birds sold as pets are bred in captivity. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has requested additional import restrictions on certain species. Next: energy tips.

Nine from County On UK Dean's List

More than 1200 University of Kentucky students have been named to dean's lists in several UK colleges for the 1978 spring semester.

The UK colleges reporting their dean's list are agriculture, architecture, arts and sciences, business and economics, communications, education, engineering, fine arts, home economics, nursing, and social professions.

To be honored by their deans, students must achieve a high academic standing based on a 4.0 grading system.

Floyd county honor students and their UK colleges are:

Kathy Lea May, Prestonsburg, Education; Beckie T. Little, Beaver, Nursing; Julian A. Deaton, Wheelwright, Engineering; Benita Riley, Wheelwright, Communications; James David Flanery, Allen, and Teresa Pelphrey Gibson, Prestonsburg, Business and Economics; Kelly J. Dingus and Phillip R. Flanery, Martin, and Sharon Lynn May, Ivel, Arts and Sciences.

Four Floyd Students In ALCOR Program

Four Alice Lloyd College students from Floyd county will be working in the Alice Lloyd College ALCOR Program this summer.

Gregory Alan Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, of Minnie; Gladys Mae Manns, daughter of Mrs. Ester Manns, of Garrett; Tammy O'Quinn, daughter of Mrs. Margaret O'Quinn, of Garrett; and Anthony Wade Moore, a graduate of Alice Lloyd College and a junior at Morehead State University, son of Mr. and Mrs. Budge Moore, also of Garrett.

Working in ALCOR this summer, the students serve as a bridge between area families and health-education agencies, in addition to providing recreational activities for all ages. According to Christine Stumbo, ALCOR director, it takes a special type of student to work with the ALCOR Program. An ALCOR student worker has an opportunity to grow in his ability to relate to children, teenagers, adults and the elderly in a variety of problem areas.

ALC Students in Summer Plays

What's Jack up to this time? The King has sent Jack (center), played by Jackie Wayne Salley, of Hazard, to get the Fork-Tailed Bugher (second from right), played by John Michael Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hughes, of Martin. Turns out the only way to kill the Fork-Tailed Bugher is to pull its tail off. With Jack in the Alice Lloyd College Appalachian Summer Theater production are his two "mean" brothers, played by Keith Banks (left), of Weeksbury, and Roy Burke, of Halo. The cast also includes Jack's mother, played by Elizabeth Cronmiller, of Appleton, Wis.; and Mrs. Bugher (right) played by Lisa Grigsby, daughter of Mrs. Janice Brown, of Wheelwright. The Jack Tale will be presented Monday at Vest in Knott County; Tuesday at the Drift Elementary School, and Wednesday at Wheelwright High School. All performances begin at 6 p.m.

Two other Appalachian Summer Theater plays will be presented this weekend. Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Saturday; and "The Aesop's Fables" at 2 p.m. Sunday. Both plays will be at Alice Lloyd College. Admission to all productions is free, and the public is invited to attend.

Kentucky Power Seeks Increase

Citing a need to bring its rates closer to the current cost of doing business, Kentucky Power Company last Thursday filed for a general increase with the Public Service Commission.

Using the 12-month period ending March 1978 as the "test year" required by the Kentucky Service Commission, the company is requesting an increase in revenues of approximately 10 per cent, or $9.8-million. Kentucky Power's actual operating costs in that period were included in the filing to support the rate increase application.

Waldo S. La Fon, Kentucky Power's executive vice president, said in announcing the action, "We have made every attempt to hold the amount of increase to the absolute minimum to maintain our ability to provide the quality of electric service our customers require."

"Our present rates are based on the cost of doing business in the test year of 1975," he said. "Except for increased fuel costs, they reflect none of the effects of inflation since then."

Under the proposed new rates, using current fuel costs, customers using 500 kilowatt-hours a month would pay about $2.10 more; customers using 750 kwh, $2.90 more; 1000 kwh would cost $3.70 more, and 2000 kwh would cost $6.60 more.

"By requesting this relatively small increase in revenues at this time," La Fon said, "we hope to stay even with current costs." He said that this increase would be only the second sought by Kentucky Power in its history.

"We hope our customers realize that even with inflation and higher usage causing bills to increase, electricity in this part of the country still costs considerably less than in most areas," La Fon said. He said that an Edison Electric Institute national survey of 228 electric utilities showed Kentucky Power's residential rates at nearly all levels of usage were lower than nearly 200 of the other companies surveyed as of Jan. 1, 1978.

Water Fatalities at '77 Level, July 4 Weekend Not Reported

Water-related deaths for the year are unning about even with those of last year, but the figures for the Fourth of July week-end were not in when the report was made.

Approximately 40 deaths were reported during the first six months of this year, eight in boating and 32 in non-boating accidents, state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson reported last Thursday. He said there were 134 water related deaths in the state last year.

One of the biggest safety problems faced by boatowners is proper boat operation, said water enforcement administrator Doug Shoulders. "Although boating courses are offered in schools and other facilities throughout the year, operators often do not know the rules of the water," he said.

Shoulders pointed out that many injuries and property damage are caused by boat wakes. "Operators too often fail to obey the 'No Wake' or 'Idle Speed Aone' signs, which are usually posted around swimming and docking facilities," he said.

Citations are frequently issued for failure to carry approved coast guard flotation devices aboard. Only those marked "U. S. Coast Guard Approved," with the numbers 1, 2 or 3 may be worn. A throwable life preserver identified as No. 4 may also be used aboard some craft, he said. Shoulders warned that ski belts are not approved by the coast guard and should not be used as flotation devices.

Boat registration is another law that is often overlooked, mainly by new boaters. "Failure to properly register your boat, and have the registration papers on board for inspection, may cost you a fine of up to $100 plus court costs", Shoulders warned.

A properly registered, "non-documented" boat must display the registration number on both sides of its bow. (As a result of legislation passed by the 1978 General Assembly, boats listed as "documented" must be registered, but are not required to display a Kentucky registration number.)

Boat registration run from $5 to $12, and are determined by the size of craft. Owners may register their boats with their circuit court clerk or with the circuit clerk in the county in which the boat will be principally used.

Finally, if your trip includes some night boating, Shoulders recommends that your motor boat should be equipped with running lights, regardless of its size. You must install a red light for left (port), a green light for right (starboard), and a white light on the stern that can be seen from all directions.

THE MAJORITY of those enrolled in programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) are under 25, according to the 1978 Employment and Training Report on the President.

MINORITY GROUPS and young workers suffer disproportionately higher rates of unemployment than the work force in general, according to the 1978 Employment and Training Report of the President.

Idle Rate Drop Noted in May

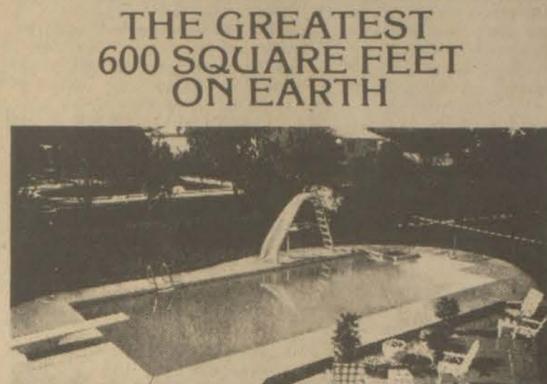

Kentucky's unemployment rate dropped slightly by .1 percent from April to May, according to Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources.

That represents 1,400 fewer unemployed workers in May than April. The rate in May was 4 percent of the total labor force in Kentucky as compared to 5.5 percent nationwide.

The number of people unemployed in Kentucky in May was 61,300 people which was 7,800 more than a year ago. The rate of unemployment was .4 percent higher than last May. Almost one third of this May's unemployed persons were new and reentrants into the labor force.

Total employment in Kentucky is estimated to be 1,487,300 in May, 44,700 more workers than during May of last year.

Most of this employment gain took place within the nonmanufacturing industries. Construction employment is 11,000 persons higher than last year; trade has increased 15,800 and government is up by 10,500. Most of the increase in government workers (67.9 percent) occurred within local government. The number of state workers (excluding education) has increased 1.7 percent over the past year.

County Record Storage Decided

The state Archives and Records Commission has endorsed new and revised schedules for retention and disposal of public records maintained by state agencies and county governments. Basing its decisions on recommendations from officials of the state Department of Pibraries and Archives, the 15-member commission determines the fate of most records held by public agencies and offices. Such records may be stored for specific periods of time, copied or destroyed.

At its quarterly meeting in June, the panel approved new records schedules for the Governor's Council on Agriculture, Kentucky State Board of Chiropractic Examiners, Kentucky Council on Economic Advisors, Department of Energy and State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors.

The commission also established new schedules for the State Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists, Kentucky Horse Council, Commission on Human Rights, Board of Examiners and Registration of Landscape Architects, State Board of Medical Licensure, Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission, Real Estate Commission and Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority.

Standard timetables for records storage were set by the committee for circuit and county court offices in various counties. Included were Adair, Allen, Bracken, Carter, Casey, Christian, Clinton, Crittenden, Cumberland, Edmonson, Elliott, Fleming, Grayson, Jackson, Breathitt, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Leslie, Lincoln, McCreary, Magoffin, Mason, Menifee, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Owsley, Pulaski, Robertson, Rockcastle, Rowan, Russell, Simpson and Webster counties.

A schedule for records keeping by Fayette county's urban-county government was also established.

Schedule changes were approved by the commission for several state agencies: Kentucky Arts Commission, Executive Department for Finance and Administration, Kentucky Heritage Commission, Division of Construction in the Department of Transportation, Academic Affairs Office of the University of Kentucky, and Department of Military affairs.

Federal Regulations Require Small Charge For Family Plan Service

In the past, family planning services in Floyd county have been free, but federal regulations require that all family planning clinics charge a fee for services given in their clinics. Kentucky was slated to begin charging this fee three years ago, but put it off as long as possible prior to being told it must charge a fee for services or have its funds cut.

So, beginning July 1, the Floyd County Health Department's Family Planning Program began charging a small fee in accordance with the family income and size. For example, a family of three with an income of between $8,000 and $9,000 per year will pay 20 percent of the total cost of delivering this service (or $10 for an annual exam and $1 for a supply visit). Some will pay a little more, some nothing. A sliding fee scale is used to calculate the amount paid by each individual.

"In order to keep the program going, we must comply with federal regulations," "If you have any questions, please feel free to call this office."

Have your blood pressure checked.

W-Hollow—Place of Plenty

He's back home! Automobile accident, heart attack, heart attack, stroke—none has stopped the great hulk of Eagle. Already he's working on his 52nd book, writing it inside before a word is dictated aloud. The jawline might be slack, the hair gray and the powerful frame confined to a bed or wheelchair, but those who have seen him say his face bears the same look of determination, his eyes the same hope, his voice the same hint of triumph that has brought him back time and again.

Kentucky's beloved Jesse Stuart is out of hospital and back in W-Hollow in Greenup county where in June the glorious tide of green mingles with bird songs and gentle breezes. The season is one of pure beauty around the Stuart home: sloping meadows smelling of cut hay; trees so leaf-filled as to touch one another in the wind, and alongside the road tiger lilies sway in that special strength that keeps the orange-gold blossoms spreading their special beauty though cut back year after year by mowing machines.

A quarter of a century ago, Stuart "came back" from a car wreck in Mexico. Recovering from an injury, he told his wife, Naomi Deane, and the Lewis county couple with them that it was a warning for him to come back to earth, return to a simple but fulfilling way of life.

"We've been flying around, living too high," he commented to his longtime friends.

In the autumn of 1954 while at Murray State University for a lecture, Stuart's first heart attack put the massive frame in bed for more than a month before he could be returned to W-Hollow. While still at Murray he began writing in his mind a book that was destined to help others. "The Year of My Rebirth," his 19th book, continues to be one of the most popular of his more than 50 books.

Ashland Daily Independent writer G. Sam Piatt, who recently interviewed the author, poet and lecturer, said Stuart remarked that every time he had a physical setback "there has come a book. One will come out of this."

He has written more than 3,000

published works, not counting his books. His work has been translated into many languages. He has taught and traveled in many countries. He always returns to W-Hollow.

His 50th book, "Dandelion on the Acropolis," has a universal message. While Stuart and his Naomi Deane were in Greece in the early 1960s he noted a coin-gold dandelion at the Acropolis. If that dandelion could talk!

As Stuart's many friends know, his recent setback came in mid-March while watching the Midwest regional basketball finals on TV. The UK Wildcats and Michigan State were battling for the mid-east championship finals. The next two months were spent in Ashland's King's Daughters' Hospital.

When Stuart lectured, Naomi Deane was always where he could see her. When he writes in his mind, he voices his words to Naomi Deane. Through each physical setback and recovery, she has been there.

She's been at his side for almost 40 years. It has been an unbeatable combination—he, booming and strong; she, quiet and strong. If his left side is weak, she will be his left side.

So far, most of his time since the stroke has been in a hospital bed, propped up so he can see his world. According to writer Piatt, "with the aid of a wheelchair he has been out in the sunshine, out where wild birds sing and squirrels play in the trees behind the house." It can be taken for granted that Poet Stuart heard the birdsong and saw the gamboling of small creatures.

After his fifth heart attack Stuart wrote his 51st published book, "The Kingdom Within (A Spiritual Autobiography)," to be published in early 1979. Last December another heart attack put him back in hospital. But he always returned to W-Hollow to write again.

The doctors say no visitors at present, but a card would make its way to W-Hollow.

W-Hollow? It's a place of vast wealth in the things of life that really count. Fresh air and sunshine, growing green in summer and serene white in winter. A strong place of vast replenishment. A place just right for a strong man to start work on another book.

Two Area Women Study Art of Mountain-Moving

Two Eastern Kentucky women are learning to move mountains.

Sandy Feltner, 22, and Teresa Hale, 20, are the only female students pursuing careers in the heavy equipment field at Hazard State Vocational-Technical School.

"It sure beats waiting tables," said Miss Feltner who hopes eventually to "man" the controls of a bulldozer for a local coal company.

While her partner practices tricky maneuvers manipulating pedals, levers and buttons, Miss Hale wrestles with the dirty but intricate workings of crankshafts, pistons and carburetors. She has studied diesel mechanics for nine months, four months longer than Feltner has trained in heavy equipment operation.

Neither needs or wants special treatment. Feltner shuns the popular notion that women holding or seeking traditionally male roles in industry are asserting their independence. "I'm not trying to score points for women's lib. I want to do a job well and make a living. Enjoying my work is important to me. It's rewarding to see the fruits of your labor in the massive scale of coal mining.

Both women gave their instructors high marks.

"They haven't treated us any different than the fellows," said Hale, a resident of Whitesburg. "They haven't made it any harder or easier on us. We've not expected or received any special privileges."

She and Feltner were introduced to vocational education in high school, and each has worked briefly in industry. At the junior high level, Hale was one of the first girls in her class to enroll in an industrial arts program. While attending high school in Tennessee, she worked as an electronics assembler in a cooperative education program. She continued with the electronics firm as a full-time employee for one year after graduation.

In her spare time, Hale enjoys crocheting, shopping, dancing and tinkering with her car.

Miss Feltner, who lives in Hindman, began her vocational training at a later stage than Miss Hale. She became familiar with the basics of welding, sheet metal work, carpentry, instrumentation and pipe fitting while employed as a junior mechanic for a large manufacturing business in Cincinnati.

Baseball, horse riding, water skiing and riding motorbikes are among Feltner's recreational interest.

Hale is an active member of a national student organization, Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. She placed third in diesel mechanics skills competition during a club-sponsored statewide event this spring.

Schooling for specialized vocational fields is coordinated at Hazard Vocational School by the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program. Funding for such training is supplied through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Achieving personal and career goals are important to both women. Hale says she needs more on-the-job experience.

"I don't expect to start at the top. It takes years to get good at trouble shooting. I'd like to get my journeyman's (apprentice certificate), and in five years, work up to field mechanic."

Wear a Life Belt, Non-Swimmers Advised

Most drowning victims never even meant to go in the water.

They fell out of a boat or slipped off the bank. Although it may seem silly to caution people to put on a life jacket or life belt before they even get their feet wet, that's just what a UK farm safety specialist advises waders, boaters, and fishermen who can't swim.

Larry Piercy says this might save many of the people who would otherwise drown in farm pond accidents around the state every summer.

He also suggests roping off a safe swimming section of the pond with a gradually sloping bottom that goes from shallow to deep. Put up a sign that indicates the area safe for wading or swimming. Warn of any drop-offs or water that is too shallow or stumpy for diving.

Keep the following rescue items close by, just in case, Piercy adds: (1) a strong 12-foot pole, painted white, for fishing out people close enough to shore; (2) an inner tube and-or a capped gallon plastic jug with about 1 inch of water in it to add weight for throwing. Attach inner tube or jug to about 40 feet of waterproff rope and practice throwing it out to an imaginary swimmer in distress.

With children, the best course of action is to teach them to swim very early, keep safety belts or vests on them in boats or when they're fishing or playing along steep banks, and don't ever leave them unsupervised near farm ponds or other water.

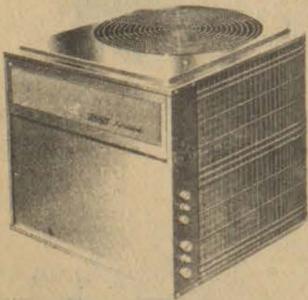

"Never swim or go wading without a grown-up nearby" should be a hard-and-fast rule for little kids.

DOWNPLAYS SPORTS

Local school committees (boards) in Massachusetts have been directed by the state board of education to develop physical education activities that stress individual achievement instead of competition. The new emphasis is on sports in which all students can participate and which students can use for the rest of their lives. Organized sports, says a state department official, are structures so "a lot of kids who might have developed a little later are culled out," and young students are expected to handle adult games and rules "but they're not able to handle them emotionally." There has been some opposition to the new regulations on the basis that "competition is the American way of life."

Pike Hearing Set To Discuss Black Lung Reform Act

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced Thursday that the U. S. Department of Labor will hold a hearing in Pike county on the proposed regulations for the Black Lung Reform Act of 1978. The hearing will be held at 10 a.m., July 10 at Millard high school, 13 miles south of Pikeville on U.S. 460.

These proposed regulations will affect the implementation of the Black Lung Reform Act which was sponsored by Congressman Perkins and signed by President Jimmy Carter on March 1 of this year following a long battle by Perkins.

"It would be a miscarriage of justice to see the clear intent of Congress evaded by these proposed regulations," Congressman Perkins said.

He continued: "I am watching this process very closely and I am in constant contact with the Department of Labor so that the law will be followed. I have an important bill which will be voted on in Washington, July 10 which will prevent personally attending this hearing but you can be absolutely certain that I am working on this just as hard as I can."

On May 26 Perkins filed detailed, written comments on these regulations proposed by the Department of Labor. Public hearings have been held in Washington and Charleston, W. Va. These hearings as well as this one at Millard give all who are affected by these proposals an opportunity to be heard.

Pupil Immunization Schedule Announced

In an effort to have all children entering school for the first time adequately immunized, the Floyd County Health Department will be conducting mass immunization clinics throughout the county during July and August. Many of these clinics will be held on school grounds in the health department's mobile van, while others will be held at the county health department and at regular outpost clinic locations.

Additional services available at these clinics, without charge, will include TB skin tests, urinalyses, and hemoglobins. A physical examination by a physician, plus all of these lab tests and immunizations, are required by the Floyd County Board of Education before a child may enroll in school for the first time, whether it be a kindergarten student, a first-grader or a transfer student.

The following is a schedule of the immunization clinics which the health department will be holding within the next two weeks:

Wednesday, July 5, and Friday, July 7, at health department here, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Monday, July 10, Wayland Methodist Church, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Monday, July 17, Osborne Elementary School, Bypro, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Wednesday, July 19, health department, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Floyd County Health Department urges all parents, especially those with children entering school, to see that their children's immunizations are up to date and to take advantage of these free services the health department is offering.

A schedule of the remaining clinics to be held in the various sections of the county will appear in future editions of this newspaper and will also be announced on local radio stations.

Thieves Use Modern Means To Protect their Status

As homeowners resort to more and more sophisticated alarm systems to protect their homes from burglary, thieves are keeping pace with some pretty sophisticated devices of their own. The July Reader's Digest reports that many carry the same modern surveillance equipment the police do, with capacity to intercept official radio transmissions. Additional equipment enables them to test the silver in your house—this way, they can take the sterling and leave you the plate.

EFFICIENCY — The HP10 is our most efficient heat pump yet! In cold weather it takes solar heat from outdoor air to deliver up to 3¢ of heat for every 1¢ of energy used. In warm weather the HP10 air conditions your home with Energy Efficiency Ratios* over 8.0, far better than past heat pump industry performance.

DEPENDABILITY — The HP10 is built with our most dependable components. You not only get economical heating and cooling, but the durability and long life Lennox equipment is known for. The HP10's indoor partner, the CBP10, is a specially matched coil/blower unit that ensures maximum performance and efficiency.

SERVICE — As an independent Lennox dealer, we provide fast, effective service. We're experts — you can count on us to install and service your equipment right. Call or visit us, the energy savers at:
