

Grand Jury May Hear Marijuana Handler

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. this week called on Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen to subpoena for grand jury questioning a Wheelwright man who had entered in district court a plea of guilty to possession of marijuana for the purpose of sale and had been fined $200, plus court costs, with his 30-day jail term probated.

The defendant, Robert L. Justice, Turner told the commonwealth's attorney, had in his possession marijuana valued at $2,000 (about two pounds) and admitted at the time of his arrest that he had it for sale in Wheelwright.

"This," Turner said, "was the largest quantity of refined, marketable marijuana seized during the 16 months I have been in office...It was my intention to seek the maximum penalty for Mr. Justice."

Turner explained that he wants Justice before the grand jury to place him under oath and question him about where the marijuana was procured and about the nature of his intended dealings. He added that, since Justice has entered a plea of guilty, he is no longer shielded by the Fifth Amendment.

Trial of Justice had been set for June 14. The county attorney explained to Allen that in the course of preparation for the trial it was discovered that the plea of guilty in district court had been entered May 30.

"Such an action," he wrote, "has placed this case out of reach for the County Attorney's office, and I am at this time asking for your assistance."

In another marijuana case Don Kimberley, of Langley, was permitted, with the county attorney's approval, to plead guilty, pay a fine of $150 and be granted probation of his 90-day jail term on condition that he remain out of the county 12 months. Kimberley's supply consisted of about half an ounce of marijuana. Only one state trooper, Don Weedman, of several officers involved in the raid on Kimberley, appeared for trial of the case, the Turner said.

Missionary to the Mountains... Hers Is 'Uncommon Dedication'

Miss Myrtle Pugsley, who has taught Bible lessons in Floyd county for the past 36 years, relaxes at her Prestonsburg home.

If you have any grade school recollections of a trim, purposeful woman telling stories from the Bible, chances are you remember Myrtle Pugsley.

The way her former students tell it, Miss Pugsley could be counted on to provide a welcome break from the school routine with Bible lessons vividly illustrated with pieces of colored felt. A stately procession of dromedaries out of Midian, a dusky sage from the East in flowing burnoose, a fiery chariot—all sprang from her creative fingers as the needs of each story dictated.

All of this, of course, was in the days when a less exacting interpretation of the separation of church and state prevailed, and people like Myrtle Pugsley and her long-time companion, Anna M. Woods were allowed to do their missionary work on public school time.

When the Supreme Court changed all that—for what some lament as the growing secularization of our culture and others celebrate as our growing sensitivity to the rights of different viewpoints in a pluralistic society—Miss Pugsley barely broke her stride. She simply conducted her classes outside school hours.

Myrtle Pugsley arrived in Prestonsburg on August 17, 1943, newly graduated from the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, and on her first assignment from the Southern Highland Evangelical Mission. In many senses, she had come a long way. Born in 1906 to a rural Nebraska family, she was 22 and doing domestic work in neighboring homesteads when she felt what she describes as "the Lord's call to prepare myself for Christian work." It was a call she resisted for another eight years, she confesses. It was not easy for a Nebraska farm girl to leave home—least of all for Chicago.

But she did go to Chicago and stayed there, working as a waitress by day and studying the Bible at Moody by night, for the next six years. Long before the end of

Estimated Work Cost $7 Million

Highlands Regional Medical Center will take another step next week toward implementation of its first major expansion program, a work that will cost an estimated $7 million.

The Medical Center's plan for expansion will be reviewed by the Big Sandy Health Council Project Review Committee on Wednesday and the full Council on Thursday, June 13-14.

In 1968, local, government and community leaders from the five Big Sandy counties unanimously approved plans for a comprehensive regional medical center to be built between Paintsville and Prestonsburg. The initial step in reaching that ultimate goal was achieved when the present facility opened in January, 1973.

The current expansion program continues the planning of the late 1960's that built the hospital. It also implements the hospital's long-range master plan, commissioned four years ago, that has been on file in the Winchester office of the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency for more than a year.

Highlands' Certificate of Need application for expansion calls for the addition of at least 47 beds, renovation of existing space, and new or expanded ancillary facilities. Total new construction would amount to some 54,000 square feet at a cost of $7 million.

A major area affected by the expansion is the emergency room. Highlands recently added a new team of physicians to the region's only 24-hour, physician-staffed emergency service. An entirely new and much larger emergency suite is slated in the new proposal.

Also included are a new laboratory, a physical therapy area, a intensive care unit, patient and family waiting facilities, chapel and business office.

June Gasoline Supply Drops But No Early Crisis Viewed

There's less gasoline this month, but the situation is not really critical, distributors of oil products in the area agreed this week.

The reductions range from 70 to 80 percent of the fuel allocated in June, a year ago.

Distributors qualify their optimism in the face of these cuts by adding that the situation can be weathered "if nobody hits the panic button and begins hoarding gas." They also point out that conservation of fuel is important.

The Gulf distributorship manager, Marvin E. Music, said the last few days of the month may be the critical time, but he sees some help in the fact that this month has no holidays to add to the traffic flow.

Gulf's allocation is 80 percent of its June, 1968 volume. Music said he sees stations closing on Sundays and gearing their hours to fit the gas supply but feels that the situation is not critical at this time.

"But," he added, "nobody knows what July will hold for us."

Hardin Short, Union 76 distributor, said his allocation last month was at 80 percent and that he has received no word about June allocations. "We got through O.K. on 80 percent, but if it goes lower things will get sticky," he said.

Texaco at Banner is at 70 percent this month—lowest of the allocations reported. Paul Keene, manager, said that this allotment will make the going "tough," but the demand is currently down a bit and it may be the middle of the month before it will be time to see if Sunday closings and shorter hours are advisable.

"Fortunately, we had a good year in 1978; otherwise, with this cut to 70 percent, we would be really down," Keene added.

At the Ashland Oil bulk plant at Paintsville there was nobody in position to make a statement as to its prospects.

Glue Blamed in Death Of Boy in Lexington

Death of a 10-year-old boy whose body was found Monday morning near the Lexington apartments where his family lives has been ascribed by Lexington police to toxic fumes from paint and glue.

The victim, Eric Amburgy, was a son of Ronald Amburgy, formerly of Martin. He had not been seen since Sunday night when he reportedly told his mother he was going outside to play. Police said a bag filled with paint was found around the boy's face and that a tube of glue was beside him.

OFFICE NEWS

My son, Paul Neil, who served in several capacities and well with The Times, has left us for greener pastures. He did our photography, "Our Yesterdays" column much of the time, feature stories, and so on and on, and served as a sort of goodwill ambassador, especially with those who liked the twang of a banjo, and, in a pinch, drew for us wacky cartoons. Don't push me into a further extolling of his virtues.

In his stead we have Ron Marstin, a scholarly gentleman who has not flinched from any of these chores (we haven't yet asked for a cartoon or for a few bars of "Old Joe Clark") and who is doing them all well. We ask for him only the kindness you have shown the rest of our gang, so long.

THE BIG CLEANUP

With summer only a couple of weeks away, I got into my spring housecleaning last week-end and cleared this desk down to the tobacco crumbs, paper clips and coffee stains. Upon beholding my handiwork the wife inquired if a clean desk didn't make me feel better, but I refused to say it did. I'm one of those people who become attached to old friends.

This reminds me that when, a few weeks ago, I explained that a piece which we had reprinted about veterans' pay

Council Hears Cable System Here May Sell

A cable TV system serving many Prestonsburg residents is to assume new ownership this month, it was announced last week. Dave Flanery, of Flanery and Dingus Electronics, Inc., advised the Prestonsburg City Council at its meeting last Thursday of the upcoming sale of the company to Bettervision Systems, a division of Midwest Corporation, of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Flanery gave as the reason for the sale the retirement this month of William J. Dingus, his partner of 28 years. Flanery is to continue as manager under the new ownership.

According to a letter of Carroll Rollyson, division manager of Bettervision, the company intends to spend between $75,000 and $100,000 upgrading the system. Planned improvements include the installation of a satellite receiver and dish, and the addition of three new channels.

Flanery told the council that he was convinced that Bettervision was "technically the best" of the 21 companies that had shown an interest in buying the system, and that it would serve the city well. "That matters to us," he said. "The people and city of Prestonsburg have been good to us over the years. This is our home."

After being reassured by Flanery that Bettervision would fulfill all obligations to the city presently borne by Flanery and Dingus, the council voted to transfer the cable TV franchise from Flanery and Dingus to the new owners. Flanery indicated that he also intended to seek ratification of the deal by the Floyd fiscal court before calling it final.

'A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum'...

And What Happened Here?

What happened in Floyd county?

That question is being heard wherever election postmortems are held in this county, and in scattered spots elsewhere in the state.

The question stems from shocking upset of the primary racing form by John Young Brown, Jr., whose statewide win in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last Tuesday has veteran politicians shaking heads rather than hands.

Brown paid Floyd county one brief campaign visit, and that was only a few days before the balloting. His principal opponents, Terry McBrayer and Harvey Sloane, personally campaigned in the county. McBrayer staged a district rally near here, and two former governors, Bert Combs and "Happy" Chandler, spoke for him, called on their old friends to give McBrayer their support. The "organization" reportedly was pretty solid for the Eastern Kentuckian

But when the vote was tabulated Brown had polled 5,841 votes in this county to 3,004 for McBrayer—and Floyd county had given the "Chicken Man," as he was popularly known hereabouts, a vote that was topped in only three other Kentucky counties—populous Jefferson (where Sloane was the big winner) Fayette and Daviess.

The Times asked Brown's campaign manager in this county, Dr. Joe T. Hyden, of Martin, for an answer to the question.

It wasn't money, Dr. Hyden declared—"we didn't spend a dime on election day." Hyden ascribed the heavy Brown vote to several factors.

As campaign manager, he said, he worked quietly "but just about night and day for seven weeks. We had the support of people who didn't ask for credit, actually didn't want to be known because, I suppose, they didn't want to hurt the feelings of Bert Combs and Happy

Chandler who were for McBrayer." "We also used the 'pyramid system,'" the Martin dentist added. "When we telephoned or found one voter for Brown, we got that voter to promise to call two more, and so on...The miners' endorsement meant a lot, too—they went, all out for Brown."

Aside from the "invisible organization" that was Brown's, there are those who say the political situation which developed in local races—notably, those for state senator, state representative and county judge-executive—left McBrayer, the Administration favorite who was expected to benefit from whatever strength the Establishment has, nobody's favorite. Said one, who preferred to remain unidentified:

"All the interest of officials and local party leaders centered on the local races. They were so busy nominating the people they were for, or defeating

Dwale Looks To Become City

US 23 cuts across the top of it, the C & O railroad slices through it, but these are not the only things dividing the community of Dwale today. There is also the issue of incorporation.

Some residents think Dwale would do better if it incorporated as a sixth-class city. In fact, judging by the number of those who signed the necessary petition—167, by one count, out of about 230 adult residents—a substantial majority would seem to be of that opinion. But there are strong feelings on both sides of the question.

No one would dispute that the roads are in bad shape, that the raw sewage in some parts of town is hazardous and offensive, or that drink, drugs and rowdiness are sometimes a problem. The question for some is whether incorporation in the solution to these problems.

Jack Nelson, for one, thinks it is. A disabled miner, Nelson has spearheaded the drive for incorporation. Lee Frazier is another. "The county has never done anything for us," he said recently. "The roads are pitiful, and any work that has been done on them, we've done ourselves."

Frazier is echoed by Mrs. Opal Branham, who favors incorporation because "we want to get something done for our community." Mrs. Branham tells of the time recently when local residents took up a collection, bought gravel, rented a backhoe, and ditched and patched their road over two weekends. "There is no other way to get anything done," she remarked.

Jack and Sharon Howard feel the same way. They cite the need for adequate water and sewerage systems and for police protection. Incorporation, they think, would give the community more clout when it comes to competing for state and federal grants money.

But incorporation would mean new taxes, too, a prospect that some resist because they already find it hard enough to make ends meet, and that others resist because it means subsidizing some whom they think are unwilling to help themselves.

"If people want to do better for themselves, they can," says Mrs. Ernest Sword. "Those who want to are already keeping their places up and having their trash collected. Why should we pay to have the garbage collected for those people who are too lazy to do it for themselves?"

"Those people" keep cropping up in discussion of the pros and cons of incorporation. They are perceived as

Department of Tourism To Begin Work, July 1

Gov. Julian Carroll signed last Thursday an executive order establishing the new Kentucky Department of Tourism, implementing legislation enacted by the 1978 General Assembly. The department will go into operation July 1.

The new agency will coordinate the promotion and development of all aspects of tourism development in the commonwealth and will encompass work now being done by the Division of Advertising and Travel Promotion in the Department of Public Information and the Division of Tourism Development in the Department of Commerce.

The agency will, for the first time, bring under one roof the state's efforts in promotion of tourism and tourism-related programs and activities, including tourism information dissemination, information center operation, matching fund coordination, tourism advertising and international tourism development.

"We can look with pride on the rapid growth of tourism in the last several years, and its becoming one of our billion dollar plus industries," Gov. Carroll said.

The executive order establishes four divisions—advertising and promotion, media relations and hospitality education, tourism research and tourism business development.

The governor said he will name a commissioner to head the new department prior to July 1.

UK Students Studying With Floyd Physicians

Dennis Tackett, Charlotte Dye and Kim Daily, clinical associate students from the University of Kentucky, are studying under the supervision of local physicians this summer.

Mr. Tackett will be at Martin with Dr. Maddiwar. Miss Dye will be at Mud Creek Clinic with Dr. Joyce, and Miss Daily will be at Prestonsburg with Dr. Charlathon.

The students are doing the work under the supervision of local physicians to become acquainted with the practice of medicine in a rural area and to familiarize themselves with the culture and health care delivery system of a rural area.

Their stay in the area is coordinated by the Big Sandy-FIVCO Area Health Education System, funded by the state.

Workshop To Show How To Complete Fund Application

Local school district personnel responsible for preparing their systems' applications for federal funds to educate handicapped children will have some extra help this year in completing the application forms.

The Kentucky Department of Education will conduct a series of one-day workshops for local school district administrators. Both the application forms and a new instructional manual are being sent to local school personnel, according to Billie R. Downing, head of the department's Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children.

The proposed budget for the coming fiscal year calls for Kentucky to receive $12.6 million in federal funds. The major portion of the money will be allocated to local school districts to help pay excess costs involved in providing special education and related services to exceptional children.

Downing said bureau staff members will assist local administrators in preparing their applications for funds.

One of the workshops is scheduled at Prestonsburg Community College, June 12, beginning at 9 a.m.

Scouts Stage Aluminum Drive

Members of Den 3, Wheelwright Cub Scouts, during aluminum drive.

Wheelwright Cub Scout Pack 146 completed its month-long aluminum can drive May 18. They brought all their cans to the Senior Citizens Center where they were greeted by Cubmaster, Raymond Hall and Katie Newsome, director of the Senior Citizens Center.

The aluminum was weighed by Eddie Collins, bus driver for the Senior Citizens, and then loaded onto the truck by the Cub Scouts. The project was very successful, and more than 800 pounds of aluminum were collected. The Scouts donated their aluminum to the Senior Citizens Center as a fund-raising project.

Douglas Jackson, of Hall Hollow, donated his time and truck to transport the aluminum to the recycling plant in Ashland. The Scouts participating in the drive were treated to Pepsi Cola and cookies by the Senior Citizens.

Boy and Cub Scouts actively involved in the re-cycling project were:

those they were against, that by election day Terry McBrayer was 'way down the list. This state of affairs left the county wide open for Brown, who was coming on strong."

Others saw the vote as a protest against the state administration; others, an outright rebellion against "politics as usual."

A second upset was recorded by Martha Layne Collins in her come-from-behind win over the administration-favored Bill Cox and other strong contenders, Prather and Hollenbach, for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor. Her Republican opponent will be Harold D. Rogers.

The Floyd County vote by precincts appears on Pages 6 and 7, Section 3.

Locally, the Democratic race for county judge-executive was a cliff-hanger, with Ex-Magistrate Bill Wells defeating Jerry Lafferty, Jr. by 140 votes, according to the tabulation from the voting machines. The machines will be checked Thursday for possible error. The vote totals in that race:

- William R. Wells, Jr., 797.
- Jerry Lafferty, Jr., 3,417.
- Marcella R. Bailey, 496.
- Howard Keathley, 844.
- T. P. Reynolds, 1,277.
- Bill Wells, 3,557.
- Dewey Roberts, 1,319.
- Turner Lafferty, 169.

The Democratic nominee for judge will be opposed in November by Ronald H. Frasure, Republican, who was unopposed in the primary.

The Floyd vote for state senator:

- Fred A. James, 361.
- Joe D. Weddington, 1,917.
- Benny Ray Bailey, 5,176.
- Ralph Darrell Johnson, 3,124.
- James Gayheart, 340.

Dr. Johnson polled 2,049 votes in Knott county to 1,740 for Bailey. But the latter came back to register a 2-to-1 vote in Perry county with 1,558 votes to 760 for Johnson and 104 votes in Martin county to 36 for Johnson. His majority in the three counties was 2,609.

The vote in Knott, Perry and Martin for the other senatorial candidates was:

In Knott—Weddington, 165; Gayheart, 878; James, 62.

Perry county—Weddington, 264; Gayheart, 1,208; James, 60.

Martin county—Weddington, 68; Gayheart, 89; James 21.

Bailey is unopposed in the November election.

Also unopposed in November is Gregory D. Stumbo, who defeated incumbent James "Jitter" Allen in the Democratic primary for state representative. Their primary vote:

Allen, 4,367.

Stumbo, 5,030.

Jimmy "Gabe" Turner, of Drift, incumbent, won the Democratic nomination for railroad commissioner. In this county he polled 4,357 votes to 2,237 for Bob Damron, his nearest competitor.

Steven L. Beshear, of Lexington, won the nomination for attorney general but in this county Jarvis Allen made a strong 5,495-vote showing. Beshear had 1,455 votes in this county, and Jack Smith had 863.

The Republican primary was a comparatively tame affair. Ex-Governor Louie Nunn won easily for governor.

her training, the once-reluctant apostle was eager for another call. When the call came from the mountains, Myrtle Pugsley knew that her life's work had been assigned her.

That was 36 years ago. A couple of generations of children have come and gone. Anna Woods has gone. Myrtle Pugsley has stayed. She cooks for herself, bakes her own bread, does her washing in an old wringer-type machine, even makes her own soap. If she has slowed her pace a little, as she says, it is her only concession to her 72 years.

They have been disciplined years in the service of an orderly God. In the struggles dramatized by the classic Greek playwrights between boisterous deities urging their devotees to press against the constraints of society and the sober gods of propriety and order, there seems no doubt about which side Miss Pugsley would have taken. Her God enjoins obedience to the law, circumspect behavior, modesty in dress, and deference of mind. Such a God, clearly, can also command uncommon dedication.

And "uncommon dedication" this woman has.

Police and juvenile authorities say that sniffing or "huffing" glue or paint fumes is a growing problem in Lexington that includes children as young as six or seven years.

Breathing the fumes of these substances can produce a brief "high," which is cheap but more dangerous even than alcohol or marijuana, authorities say.

newcomers, shiftless, transients. They tend to rent trailers. Some are thought to be troublemakers. Some of the more established residents see incorporation as a means to create zoning ordinances that would limit the access of "those people" to Dwale.

Others, including some with trailers to rent, fear that zoning ordinances will infringe on the rights of individual property owners to manage their own property. "I'm not against incorporation," explains Paul Slone, who rents out some trailers in the area. "Anyone who rents knows that you can get some bad tenants sometimes. But each person should worry about their own property, and not run about worrying about what others are doing with theirs."

A few people in the upper section of town—the part known, ironically, as Dwale Bottom—have a concern of their own. There has long been talk of making an access road to US 23 from that end of town, and incorporation could help make the plan a reality. "I don't mind the idea of another approach road," said Mrs. Sword, "but I don't see why it should cut through my property."

If the town is incorporated this year, it will not be the first time. Dwale was a city in its own right in the past. Nobody seems to be able to remember just when it stopped being a city—1936, someone thought—or why—"just went broke," another said. But, whatever the reason, it is no reason not to try again, according to those behind the current push for incorporation.

The Medical Center, a non-profit hospital, is directed by a board of trustees from Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

Burl W. Spurlock, of Prestonsburg, was recently elected board chairman, replacing Allan Perry, of Paintsville. Perry stepped down from the chairmanship after three consecutive terms and continues to serve as an active board member.

"The regional acceptance of Highlands has been tremendous," according to Spurlock. "Over half of our patients come from outside Floyd county, over one-third of the medical staff have their practices in other counties and nearly half of our 370 employees live in other counties, primarily Johnson."

The hospital's 350-page Certificate of Need application indicates a traditionally high occupancy rate at Highlands running well above the optimum level established for the facility. The document also contains data that reveal beyond capacity use of nearly all of the hospital's routine and special services.

"Our plans provide the necessary space and beds we should have considering the services we offer and our heavy utilization," Spurlock indicated. "The expansion is really the next step in the evolution of Highlands into the diversified regional facility the leaders of the Big Sandy envisioned in 1968."

Next week's meetings are part of the long Certificate of Need approval process that began when Highlands submitted its application last March 16. The meetings are open to the public and will be held at the National Guard Armory, north of here. The Project Review Committee will meet Wednesday at 6 p.m., and the full Council on Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Subsequent reviews will take place over the next several months at various regional and state levels.

Rabies Clinic Schedule Change

A change has been made in the schedule announced last week for the Floyd County Health Department sponsored rabies clinics. On Saturday, June 9, instead of the clinic being held at the Water Gap Post Office at 1:15 p.m., the location for that time has been changed to the home of Elsie and Linda Stevens, on Route 23 at the Water Gap road intersection.

The policy, which reflects a recent amendment to the group's by-laws, appears to settle finally a question that had been with the organization since its inception last September—namely, whether it is to concentrate on the problems of Prestonsburg High School specifically or to take up those of the Floyd county school system in general.

"We were tickled to death to see the grade school parents at the meeting," said PBS secretary Joyce Everly. "What we are looking for is a countywide organization."

Grant added that an effort would be made to attract teachers to the organization. Up to this point, teachers have played a relatively small role in the group.

Among the issues raised at last week's meeting, which drew about 50 persons, were what some called the "filthy" conditions of the city's schools, lack of discipline, unreliable transportation of grade school pupils, and an alleged reluctance on the part of some school officials to allow parents to inspect conditions at the schools. The group decided to bring these matters to the attention of the Floyd county school board at its regular meeting tonight (Wednesday).

THE RENDEZVOUS

There's this story of the nobleman in Jerusalem whose servant sent into the marble place, met Death and fled to his master's quarters, shaking in terror. "I have seen Death, and am greatly frightened by him," he explained. His master was highly indignant. He sallied forth into the way and himself met Death.

"You have sorely frightened my servant, and I am exceedingly angry," the man told Death. But Death replied, "I did not see your servant. I am to meet him in Damascus tonight."

Returning home, the nobleman found his servant missing. Said another: "He has fled on horseback, riding to Damascus."

Turtle Shell Reveals Age, Sex and Species

Everyone knows that a turtle's shell acts as a protective suit of armor for the reptile. But the shell also serves other purposes. On close inspection, it can reveal the turtle's age, sex, and species, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children.

Some species of turtles—the wood turtle, for example—have rings on the scales of their shells. Each year the turtle grows a new ring, so you can count the rings and guess the turtle's age. This method isn't foolproof, however, says the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children, for the rings can wear down as the turtle gets older.

How to tell a male from a female turtle? In many species the shape of the lower shell is the giveaway. The male's lower shell is more concave than the female's, allowing him to balance on top of the female while mating.

With over 79 species and sub-species of turtles in North America alone, the turtle shell is a big help in identification. For example, the shell on the map turtle is lined with a faint, yellow pattern of spots and lines—like a map. The box turtle, a land species (other land turtles are called tortoises, notes Ranger Rick), has an arched shell, four to five inches high. And the ornate box turtle's upper and lower shells are marked with a distinct pattern of rays.

The hawksbill turtle, easy to recognize because of its shell's overlapping scales, is the smallest of the sea turtles, and is the species from which "tortoiseshell" comes. "Today these animals are so rare that they are in danger of dying out," says Ranger Rick. It is illegal to sell tortoiseshell made from hawksbill turtles.

Rhubarb is one of the earliest signs of spring. You'll find it available in the grocery from January to June. In your garden, you can harvest it as early as late April.

Look for firm, crisp, fairly thick stalks that are either red or pink in color. Variety makes the difference in color. In the home garden, you may have some that is more green; it may be tougher than the red. If it is tough, remove some of the coarse strings from the outside before cooking. It can be peeled like celery.

To prepare rhubarb, wash and trim and remove the discolored ends. Cut off and discard any leaves. Never cook the leaves, because they contain large amounts of oxalic acid. Oxalic acid combines with calcium to form an insoluble salt. This prevents the absorption of calcium by the body. Rhubarb may be cooked and served as sauce or frozen for use later in the year. It adds color and flavor to meals in a salad or dessert. Combined with strawberries, it has a delightful flavor.

Rhubarb makes a valuable addition to the diet since it provides worthwhile amount of calcium, phosphorus, potassium, vitamins A and C.

Rhubarb Sauce

1½ pounds rhubarb, cut-up
two thirds cup sugar
In a medium saucepan in ¾ cup boiling water, heat rhubarb to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 5 minutes or until rhubarb is tender. During the last minutes of cooking time, stir in sugar. Makes about two and two-thirds cups sauce. To make strawberry-rhubarb sauce; prepare as for rhubarb sauce but stir in 1 pint strawberries, halved with the sugar and heat to boiling. Makes about 4½ cups.

Rhubarb Pie

4 cups rhubarb, cut into 1" pieces
1½ cups sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon grated orange peel, optional
¼ teaspoon salt
pastry for one 2-crust pie, 9"
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Early in the day, combine rhubarb, sugar, flour, orange peel and salt. Let stand while you prepare the pastry. Roll out half of the pastry and line 9" plate. Spoon filling evenly into crust and dot with butter or margarine. Prepare top crust and place over the filling. Bake 40 to 50 minutes until crust is golden brown in a preheated 425 degrees F. oven. Serve warm or cold. Makes six servings.

Some surprising news about mileage from America's luxury leader.

1979 Fleetwood Brougham by Cadillac... 55% better EPA estimated mpg than its 1974 counterpart.

Cadillac has long been a leader in luxury... and today continues to demonstrate this kind of leadership with a full line of fuel-efficient luxury cars.

1. Fleetwood Brougham and DeVilles... 55% better EPA estimated mpg.

Our customers benefit from this new generation of luxury cars that brings fuel efficiency and cruising range to a level of comfort and convenience that's unmistakably Cadillac. What's more, the percentage of increase referred to above is based solely on EPA estimated mpg (city). No EPA highway test was conducted in 1974.

Fleetwood Brougham, Coupe deVille & Sedan deVille
Year	EPA est. mpg (city)	Est. hwy mpg	Fuel capacity (gals.)	EPA est. range (city)	Est. hwy range
1974	9	Not Avail.	27	243	Not Avail.
1979	14	20	25	350	500

Remember: Compare the estimated mpg to the estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage and range depending on your speed, trip length and weather. Your actual mileage and range will be lower in heavy city traffic. Your actual highway mileage and range will probably be less than the highway estimates. California figures will be lower. All comparisons are based on standard engines. Cadillacs are equipped with GM-built engines produced by various GM divisions. See us for details.

2. An estimated cruising range of 350 miles per tankful (EPA city) - 500 miles (EPA highway) for Fleetwood Brougham and DeVilles.

As Seville led the way in efficient size and Cadillac luxury... Fleetwood Brougham, Coupe deVille and Sedan deVille continue that leadership in combining fuel economy with luxury. Lively, responsive, beautifully agile... these are automobiles designed for the way you live today. Yet, cars with classic Cadillac elegance through and through. Their impressive cruising range estimates are obtained by multiplying the EPA mpg (city) estimate by the car's standard fuel tank capacity rating... also by multiplying the estimated highway mpg by the car's standard fuel tank capacity rating.

3. Seville: first of the fuel-efficient U.S. luxury cars... by Cadillac.

Seville was introduced as a dramatic new concept in U.S. luxury cars. Since then, our customers have helped make Seville an American success story. With its EPA estimated 19 mpg (city) and its highway estimate of 19 mpg... Seville continues to lead the way as the luxury car of the decade.

4. 40% better EPA estimated mpg for 1979 Eldorado compared to 1978 model.

We're not the people to see for the magnificent new Eldorado. An EPA estimated 14 mpg (city) for the 1979 Eldorado is 40% better than its 1978 counterpart. Based on the estimated highway mpg of 22, this year's Eldorado shows a 46% higher highway mpg than last year's. Comparisons are based on standard engines. California figures are lower. And the new Eldorado offers a combination of standard features found on no other U.S. car. Including electronic fuel injection, front-wheel drive, four-wheel independent suspension, four-wheel disc brakes and electronic level control - all standard. It's easy to understand why the 1979 Eldorado is the best selling Eldorado ever.

5. It's a golden opportunity to own the Cadillac of your choice right now.

Now is the time to see us. We're most likely to have the Cadillac model you want... with the available features you want. It's a golden opportunity but it won't last forever.

Crockett's Garden Begins New Season

Tips on how to handle proliferating pests, non-flowering phlox and grass-devouring grubs are just a few of the suggestions in the new summer gardening season of "Crockett's Victory Garden" beginning Sunday, June 10 at 6 p.m. (E.T.) on KET.

Now in its third year on KET, "Crockett's Victory Garden" again features the thriving victory garden and greenhouse, along with visits to outstanding gardens around the world. Keeping the garden and houseplants healthy, productive and beautiful—with some special additions and innovations—is the focal point of the new 26-part series.

Landscaping is among the upcoming features, and a plot of land adjacent to the garden has been turned into a demonstration area where viewers will see how to plan a perfect landscape setting with evergreen and deciduous trees, flowering shrubs, groundcovers and decorative accents such as a small ornamental pool. The victory garden landscape will be an ever-changing one: plants, shrubs and trees will be displayed at their peak, then replaced by others to give viewers a look at the widest possible selection of beautiful plants.

America's favorite flower, the rose, will be featured in the victory garden for the first program in June as the 1979 All-America Rose Selections make a guest appearance, allowing viewers to compare the newest varieties. Tips on rose care—planting, pruning, feeding, mulching, dusting and spraying—will be included.

Host Jim Crockett is currently recovering from an illness and hopes to make it back to the victory garden in time for the season premiere; but if his doctor prescribes more rest, Bob Thomson will be filling in for him. Thomson, an experienced nurseryman, has been broadcasting gardening programs on radio and television since 1962, and his many fans have come to rely on his expert gardening advice.

"Crockett's Victory Garden" will continue to be a source of advice for viewers who send in questions about their specific problems with everything from non-blooming wisteria to iris borers.

WIFE AND CHILDREN

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q—Can you give me some information about cancer of the voice box?

A—Cancer of the larynx, or voice box, while not a common disease, does account for two to five percent of all cancer cases. The outcome of this form of cancer is almost entirely dependent on how early it is discovered and treatment begun. If diagnosed early, when the cancer is commonly limited to one vocal cord, the disease can be cured in the great majority of such cases, a normal voice will be obtained.

In the disease's late stages, however, when the cancer has spread to other areas of the larynx and throat, treatment often involves laryngectomy, the surgical removal of the larynx. If laryngectomy is the necessary form of treatment, most patients can learn to speak again through a technique known as esophageal speech.

Cancer of the larynx in the United States is primarily a disease of white men in their fifties. The ratio of male to female patients is about seven to one.

Several environmental or occupational factors have been linked with laryngeal cancer. Habitual smoking and heavy drinking are among the most important of these. A British study showed that bartenders and tabacconists have a higher death rate for laryngeal cancer than the general population. Other environmental factors that have been occasionally associated with cancer of the larynx are exposure to wood and metal dusts, and repeated inhalation of some chemical substances.

One of the most common early sympoms of laryngeal cancer is a prolonged hoarseness. Any hoarseness lasting for more than three weeks should be investigated by a physician.

A relatively simple preliminary examination for laryngeal cancer can be made by the physician in his office using the laryngeal mirror. This device resembles a dentist's mirror with a long handle.

The two main types of treatment are irradiation and surgery.

(For answers to your question about cancer, you may call, toll-free, Cancer Helpline at 1-800-432-9321.)

Recent Poll Shows How Citizens Rate Kentucky

An overwhelming majority of Kentuckians, 86 percent, rate the state as "an excellent or good place to live," according to the recent Kentucky Poll of Public Opinion. The poll was conducted by the University of Kentucky's Survey Research Center.

The newly created Kentucky Poll of Public Opinion, directed by Dr. Robert Meadow of the U.K. political science department, is a continuing, quarterly poll of the opinions and attitudes of Commonwealth citizens conducted by the Survey Research Center (SRC) staff.

Certain features and services of the state drew high marks from those polled. Substantial majorities say they are satisfied with police protection, health care, cultural activities, public libraries and universities.

Satisfaction with some other areas is less consistent, however. Respondents are less satisfied with public schools, welfare and services for the elderly.

"Most troubling of all," Meadow said, "is dissatisfaction with the overall quality of government services for the taxes people pay, where only 42 percent say they are satisfied."

"In addition, less than half the population, 42 percent, say that they are satisfied with the conditions of roads in the state."

The first Kentucky Poll involved a telephone survey of 565 adults, age 18 or over, from throughout the Commonwealth. The poll was conducted between April 16 and May 16, 1979. Theoretically, surveys of this size have a 95 percent confidence level with an error margin of plus or minus five percent.

"This means that 95 times out of a 100, the reported results should be off no more than five percentage points from results we would have gotten had we called every residential telephone number in the state," explained Dr. Leonard Tipton, another SRC staff member and a faculty member of U.K.'s School of Journalism.

Kentuckians also were asked: In your opinion, what are the two or three most important problems facing Kentucky? Those interviewed named the national problems of inflation, and unemployment, as well as road conditions and the quality of education in the state.

Approximately 26 percent cite education as the first or second most important problem facing Kentucky. And, a series of questions on the survey asked about particular educational issues. Those interviewed indicate a trend favoring more educational requirements in schools and a concern for the perceived decline in standards.

Only 36 percent agree that schools are teaching basic skills as well as they once did. Further, 79 percent call for a skills test as a requirement for a high school diploma. Large majorities also favor teaching courses in sex education, citizenship education and consumer affairs.

"Our respondents demonstrated considerably less consensus on two apparently controversial educational issues," added Meadow. "A majority, approximately 57 percent, agree that teachers should have the right to bargaining collectively, while 52 percent agree that they (teachers) should have the legal right to strike."

"In addition, when Kentuckians were asked whether physically handicapped children should be placed in the same classrooms as children without handicaps, approximately 42 percent agreed and 51 percent disagreed."

Kentuckians were also polled about their opinions on health care and energy. On the issue of health care, 74 percent indicate they think the federal government has a responsibility to assure adequate health care for all citizens.

On the energy issue, those interviewed are closely divided, with 45 percent saying that the energy problem is very serious or serious and 53 percent saying that the energy problem is only a little or not at all serious.

"Citizens favor several ways to solve the energy problem," Meadow added, "with approximately 84 percent agreeing that the 55 mph speed limit should be enforced, 84 percent agreeing that the 55 mph speed limit should be enforced, 84 percent agreeing that more coal should be used, 85 percent agreeing that fuel efficient cars should be developed, 91 percent agreeing that tax incentives should be provided for conservation, and 82 percent agreeing that businesses and government should be required to lower heat and to use less lighting to conserve energy."

"It is also interesting to note that a large majority oppose both increased taxes on gasoline, about 87 percent, and gasoline rationing, about 67 percent."

In addition, approximately 54 percent oppose the decontrolling of domestic oil prices and 48 percent, nearly half of the sample, oppose the increased use of atomic energy.

Aside from the issue questions on government, education, health care and energy, Kentuckians were also asked about their desire for public opinion to help form government policies.

"Respondents feel strongly that they should have input into the decision-making process, and they express a desire for a greater role for public opinion," Meadow said.

SUPPORT RONALD FRASURE FOR A BETTER FLOYD CO.

We are encouraged to exercise our right to vote. I went to the polls to do just that and my name had been purged, without my knowledge, for some unknown reason. Someone told me they could do that if you hadn't voted within two years. It wouldn't have been two years till this fall since I voted. A friend of mine voted when I did last and her name was there. I understand I should have been notified when my name was purged. There were names of people on the list that had been dead more than two years. WHY were their names left on the list? It looks like the dead have more privileges than the living.

To the voters: let's help Ronald Frasure this fall and see if he can't eliminate some of this mess instead of contributing to it as has been done in the past. There are old people that live in these hollows that need their roads fixed—they're not able to walk. I trust that he will have a feeling for them and give them some attention. Let's try him. We may want to keep him.

Summer Stock at Jenny Wiley Prelude to Stardom for Some

At first glance the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre looks just like any ordinary, run-of-the-mill summer stock theatre. Summer after summer, groups of unknown actors sweat through rehearsals seven days a week, smile through performances five nights a week and, when late August rolls around, they pack up and head to other jobs at other theatres.

But in its 14 previous seasons, Jenny Wiley has proven to be one of those overnight stops for actors and actresses who later become known as "overnight successes."

In short, lots of Jenny Summer Music Theatre alumni have gone on to make it big.

Bill Campbell, manager of the theatre this season, said recently that, for a theatre the size of Jenny Wiley, it has done surprisingly well in having in its cast members who were later to be stars. To prove his point, he can name at least three former Jenny Wiley company members who have gone on to bigger and better things.

Those three are Ron Palillo, television's Arnold Horshack on "Welcome Back Kotter," Randy Jones, the cowboy in the singing group, The Village People, and Eileen Barnett, who is Stephanie on NBC's daytime drama, "Days of Our Lives."

Campbell said Palillo is probably the most recognizable of the three because of the popularity of the character he portrays on "Welcome Back Kotter." Arnold Horshack's trademarks are his simple-mindedness and a loud laugh. Back in 1970, when he was at Jenny Wiley, there were no parts like Arnold Horshack for Palillo to play. Nevertheless, he managed to distinguish himself from the average actor.

One of those who notices Palillo was fellow performer Margaret Silbat. "I think Ron was destined to do well," she said. "Aside from being rather physically unique, he was a theatre person inside and out. He used to eat, sleep and drink nothing else but theatre. That's what it takes."

While at Jenny Wiley, Palillo, whose name was then Paolillo, showed talent in more than just acting. Aside from playing major roles in "Hello Dolly" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," he also directed productions of "Little Mary Sunshine" and "Spoon River Anthology." Because he was interested in art, Palillo's graphics decorated the posters and the souvenir program.

While Palillo was something of a mini-star when he was at Jenny Wiley, Randy Jones, now a member of the singing group, "The Village People," spent his season at Jenny Wiley in 1972 without making much of a stir.

That season, the theatre did productions of "The Grass Harp," "Jenny Wiley," "Carousel," "Once Upon a Mattress" and "The Music Man." While Jones appeared in them all, he did not play a starring role in any of them. What he did distinguish himself in was in dancing. Since good dancers are rather hard to come by in the summer stock theatre business, Jones has his hands full being one of the featured dancers at the theatre.

His most memorable role at Jenny Wiley was as a dancer. In "Jenny Wiley" he danced the part of an Indian in a lengthy ballet sequence. Fans of the Village People would probably not be able to recognize him from that role, however; he wore a mask during the entire ballet.

After leaving Jenny Wiley, he answered an ad in the Village Voice newspaper which called for dancers with mustaches. He won the part and became a member of the Village People, who have since made the hit recordings "Y.M.C.A.," "Macho Man" and "In the Navy".

Unlike Jones and Palillo, Eileen Barnett is probably not readily recognizable to the average T.V. viewer. True soap opera addicts, however, would easily spot her as being the character Stephanie on NBC's "Days of Our Lives". Barnett is a true alumna of Jenny Wiley—she spent two seasons there (1968 and 1969) and played the female leads in all but one of the productions. Back in those days she was known as Eileen Bittman.

Aside from her work with the theatre, she was active in community work in Prestonsburg, she sang with the Community Chorus, and later gave acting lessons to children in the area.

After leaving Jenny Wiley, she appeared on Broadway in "Company" and made guest appearances on television's "Quincy," "Happy Days" and a short-lived show called "The San Pedro Beach Bums." Barnett is happy with her part on the soap opera (it's steady work) and is now trying to build up a singing career.

The list of former Jenny Wileans who have "hit the big time" could go much farther. Steve Currens, who played small parts in 1970, recently wrote a play that opened on Broadway. Jim Varney, a 1969 cast member, was a regular on ABC's "Operation Petticoat" and recently appeared in the Allen King special, "The Final Warning". C. Mitchell Douglas, who managed the theatre in 1969, 1970, and 1971 now works for the largest talent agency in the world and personally manages Tennessee Williams and Shelley Winters (his itinerary for the next few weeks includes England, Vienna and Rome). He is also the author of a show, "Ragtime Blues," which has had excellent reviews and which he hopes to take to Broadway soon.

The cast for this season has not arrived at Jenny Wiley yet. Bill Campbell cannot wait until they arrive. "Who knows? one of them may become a super star of tomorrow," he says.

The theatre's season opens with "Starting Here, Starting Now" (June 20-24 and Friday evenings through August 17), and continues Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday nights through August 19 with "The Robber Bridegroom" (June 27 thru July 15), "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" (July 18 thru July 29), and "Pippin" (Aug. 1 thru Aug. 19).

Bloomers were named after Amelia Jenks Bloomer, a 19th century feminist who wore them first in 1851.

The Teen Scene

All Quiet On The Home Front

The generation gap may be in, but being constantly on the outs with Mom and Dad is not. Parents are people, too. Understanding your folks' feelings and listening to their opinions may make for a happier home life:

- Communicate with your parents. Mom may yell when you're late for dinner but that's probably because she was worried about you. Use your head and call your parents if you're delayed. It will put their minds at ease and just may avoid a confrontation.

- Be considerate. Commanding Dad to drop you off at play rehearsal after he's had a hard day at work is looking for trouble. Try explaining instead that you're running late and would appreciate it if he could help you out. And be sure to let him know how much you appreciate his thoughtfulness.

- Let your parents know they still matter. Your parents may feel hurt if you confide in your girlfriend instead of them, or skip a family dinner to go out on a date. It's not that Mom and Dad don't want you to have a life of your own. It's just that growing up can be as scary for parents as it is for teens. When parents act angry or hurt, it may be because they're afraid you don't need them anymore.

- Ask your folks about their teenage years. Maybe Mom doesn't want you to date that football captain because she dated her school's star basketball player when she was your age and got hurt. Many parents want to shield their children from disappointments. Talking about her past dating experiences may help Mom realize that history doesn't always repeat itself.

- Relax. Sure, it's not easy being a teen. But it may be even more difficult to be the parent of one!

Benefitting From Social Security

Just because you're 18 doesn't mean you have to be on your own financially. Nearly 800,000 students, between the ages of 18 and 22, currently receive a monthly Social Security check because of the death, disability, or retirement of a parent or grandparent. Here's how you can continue to qualify for that monthly stipend:

- Full-time high school and college students are eligible for checks until the end of the semester or quarter in which they turn 22. Young adults who attend trade or vocational schools full-time can receive checks until they complete their course of study or until two months after the month in which they celebrate their twenty-second birthday, whichever comes first. You are ineligible for checks if you marry, leave school, or become a part-time student.

- You can continue to receive monthly checks for a four-month vacation period as long as you are enrolled as a full-time student before the vacation period starts and intend to return to school full-time once vacation ends. If your checks stop because you decide not to return to school, but you change your mind before the end of the four-month period, you are eligible for back payments.

- Yearly earnings can affect the amount of your Social Security check. If you earn $2,760 or less from a job, for instance, you'll receive your payments as usual for the year. But for every $2 you earn above $2,760, one dollar will be subtracted from your check. Check with your local Social Security office for details.

Learning To Say No

Everybody isn't doing it. And officials at Planned Parenthood in New York City can prove it. Their new booklet, "Teen Sex? It's Okay to Say NO WAY," is a bestseller according to a spokesperson for the organization. Designed to offer support to those teens who may feel that premarital sex isn't for them, the booklet touches on feelings that what's right for everyone else may not be right for you; saying "No" isn't as easy as it seems; what to do; and how to find someone to talk to. Single copies of the 11-page pamphlet, now in its second printing, are available for a quarter from Planned Parenthood Federation of America, 810 Seventh Ave. New York, N.Y. 10019.

Bob Hope knows just how much Red Cross helps veterans.

"If you're a veteran, the rules and regs that affect your benefits can sometimes be baffling. Where to turn for help?"

"Last year, American Red Cross helped tens of thousands of former servicemen and their families get their educational, disability, insurance and medical benefits."

Keep Red Cross ready.

Court Street

Today is the first day of the rest of your life.
Give blood,

Red Cross is  counting on you.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of WILL R. OSBORNE:
Daddy, you have been gone one year today,
All your suffering is gone, I pray;
Along with you went a great many things
Like a father's love and the joy it brings;

Like seeing you there in your favorite chair,
Now all I see is empty air.
Like seeing you smile from ear to ear—
Never your voice again to hear.
Now you are in heaven; in God's name I pray.
I will meet you there in heaven someday.
For I have lost a part of my heart;
It went with you the day we part.

A LETTER OF THANKS From GREGORY D. STUMBO DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Without the work and support of my family, friends and neighbors, this would not have been possible. If I succeed at the task before me it will be by your accomplishment; should I fail there will be only myself to blame. There is nothing in the world warmer than the feeling I have for all those people who gave us their confidence and support.

This election proved that politics doesn't have to be a "cold, dirty game." I wish to publicly congratulate my opponent for conducting a clean campaign and I ask for his help in preparing for the 1980 General Assembly.

Now that this election is behind us, let's look to our State Motto, "United We Stand, Divided We Fall," for direction. Throughout the campaign we stressed a positive attitude aimed at the idea that together we can build a better place to live. I would like the help of EVERY FLOYD COUNTIAN in making that dream a reality.

Again let me say "thanks" to everyone who supported and worked for us. We intend to work as hard after the election as before to assure that your confidence will not be in vain.

Sincerely yours,
GREGORY D. STUMBO

State Asking Public Input On Mine Rules

The state Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement will hold one of a series of public meetings on the development of Kentucky's proposed permanent program for surface mining regulation at 7 p.m. June 12 at Prestonsburg Community College.

Purpose of the meetings, which will be co-sponsored by the state's Environmental Quality Commission (EQC), is to gather public comments to use in formulating the program. Comments submitted at the meetings may be written or oral.

"The meetings will give every Kentuckian a stake in this program, and all comments and concerns can be fully considered by the people who will actually write Kentucky's regulations and program plan," Gene Brandenburg, commissioner of the bureau, said.

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has set up a task force to develop the program by August 3. The Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement working with EQC will be responsible for transmitting information gathered at these meetings to the task force.

San Quentin Prison Is Featured on KET

The experiences, emotions and opinions of the inmates of San Quentin, America's most violent penal institution, are documented on "Inside San Quentin," Tuesday, June 12 at 10 p.m. (ET), on KET.

San Quentin is located in one of the most affluent sections of the country, although it is a reality which most of the residents of Marin county, Calif., prefer to ignore. The freeway exit for the prison is marked "Last Marin County Exit"—and for many of the men who take it, it's the last exit of their lives.

"Inside San Quentin" was produced by a group of filmmakers who had extraordinary access to the prison. They witnessed murders, a gang war, armed inmates and prisoners on drugs; they worked with a guard who later was beaten to death by inmates, despite his attempts to befriend and counsel them; and they saw a value system that provided just one means of settling disagreements—murder.

The 90-minute special was produced during one of the most violent periods in the prison's history, at a time when three or more murders a week occurred regularly within the prison walls.

"Thin Man," one of the inmates serving a life sentence in San Quentin, says, "If you send someone to a madhouse like this here, it ain't going to do nothing but make him worse in the long run. I ain't rehabilitated or nothing. I'm just here."

SOUTH LAKE DRIVE

PRESTONSBURG

★ Kentucky Afield ★

By JOHN WILSON

Memorial Day traditionally marks the beginning of the summer boating season and with school out, many families head for the lake for their annual vacations.

As a result, things can get pretty crowded sometimes with boaters, skiers and fishermen in powerful boats forming a seemingly endless parade up and down our lakes and large rivers.

Fishermen who have a day off in the middle of the week can usually find conditions a lot calmer than those who only have weekends to fish. There is a way to fish on weekends without being bothered by the crowds—fish at night.

Not only do you have the lake more to yourself, but you'll also probably find your catch rate increasing. Remember, anglers aren't the only ones bothered by heavy boating traffic and activity on and around the water. Chances are that most game fish (and particularly the larger ones) find a deep-water hideout during the day and do most of their shallow water cruising and feeding at night when things are more peaceful.

Some white bass and crappie fishermen are quite skillful at night fishing. They use lanterns or battery-powered sealed beam lights to attract plankton, which attracts shad, which in turn attracts game fish. This angling system involves anchoring in a fixed location, setting up the lights, lowering a baited hook and waiting (sometimes until just before dawn) for action to develop.

Trout fishermen at Laurel Lake in southeastern Kentucky have discovered this technique works well on trout. Instead of minnows, their favorite baits are worms, whole kernel corn or small cheese balls.

Bass fishermen tend to move around more, searching for feeding fish in shallow water. Black lures are generally the most productive. Noisy surface lures and large black plastic worms are two favorites with confirmed night bass casters.

Although it's pleasant to be out on the water on a bright moonlit night, fishing seems better when there's no moon - the rule here is the darker the better.

Casting at night requires a finely developed sense of feel—and hearing. Often the first indication of a strike is the sound of a fish breaking water. After a bit of night fishing, the angler learns to set the hook at the first sound of a splash anywhere in the vicinity of where he thinks his lure is.

Since it's difficult (and sometimes impossible) to see the shoreline, hang-ups and snags are much more frequent than when fishing in daylight. Light tackle isn't recommended. Often the only way to get a lure back is to yank with brute force and hope it doesn't fly back and hit you in the head.

Another reason for heavy gear is the size of bass likely to be encountered at night. Lunker largemouths seem to do most of their shallow water foraging at night. The anglers' chances of meeting up with a really big bass are enhanced if he doesn't quit fishing when the sun goes down.

With visibility reduced to near zero, it pays to be particularly safety conscious at night. Make sure your boat has the proper running lights as required by state law and that they are in working order. A powerful spotlight is helpful while under way. Reduced speed is a must.

It's a good idea to be familiar with the particular section of the lake where you'll be fishing. Make sure you can find your way back to the dock or launching area—an unlighted ramp can sometimes be hard to find on a pitch-black night.

A jug of coffee, a supply of mosquito repellent, a light jacket to ward off the cool, damp night air and a spare flashlight are about the only other pieces of equipment the night fisherman needs. If your summer daytime angling isn't all you'd like it to be, try night fishing—you'll probably discover it's worth losing sleep over.

Clearing Up the Problems of Acne

By Nancy Kaplan

Although no one has ever died from acne, its effects on a growing teenager's physical and emotional well-being should not be minimized. It's important, also, to understand its cause.

Below the Surface

Although acne is in large part determined by heredity, it seems to stem from the biological changes that take place in the adolescent as he matures from childhood. At puberty, there is an increase in the male hormones known as androgens in both the male and the female. These androgens stimulate the sebaceous (oil) glands deep within the skin into releasing a fatty substance called sebum through the hair follicles. The majority of these glands are found on the face, chest, and upper back and the result is oily skin. This in itself is no problem. But when the passageway to the skin's surface becomes plugged up, one result is development of either a blackhead or a whitehead, called a comedo.

The blackhead is a result of the sebum mixing and oxidizing with skin debris and bacteria, while the whitehead is caused by the follicle becoming so filled with sebum and scales, it closes off. If the whitehead ruptures, it will pour its contents into the surrounding tissues and set off an inflammation that results in a pustule or pus-filled pimple. This may in turn develop into a cyst—a large, hard lump under the skin's surface which, if untreated, could lead to scarring.

There seems to be some controversy over the role diet plays in acne. Studies seem to indicate that chocolate, nuts, cola, pizza, potato chips, and shellfish do not cause acne. But skin types vary, so if you suspect that a certain food is causing your face to break out, temporarily eliminate it from your diet. If this leads to an improvement in your skin, eliminate this food permanently.

Treating the Problem

Although many people tend to wash excessively as a preventive measure against acne, it is important to remember that acne is not a disease caused by dirt. Wash gently 2-3 times a day to avoid irritating the skin or making it tender and sore. Washing your hair often and keeping it away from your face will also help. But if you find that conventional measures do not work for you, you probably should seek aid from a dermatologist. These are some of the most effective treatments that he may prescribe:

- Vitamin A Acid (Retinoic Acid). This medication does a tough peeling job, thus unplugging pores with great efficiency. It also increases the blood supply to the skin which aids in clearing it. But the results are slow (it takes up to two months to start working), and its use should be carefully supervised by a dermatologist. Another Vitamin A derivative, known as 13-cis-retinoic acid, is still in the experimental stages of development, but it shows great promise for its ability to dry up skin oil.

- Benzoyl peroxide. This preparation slowly releases oxygen when applied to the skin, causing peeling and drying, but it is less irritating than Vitamin A acid. It also has the ability to reduce bacteria. Since it helps the skin react better to the Vitamin A acid, the two are often prescribed together.

- Liquid nitrogen and carbon dioxide (dry ice). These agents may be used in some cases of severe acne to cause peeling. They "freeze" the top layers of skin away and should have dramatic effects within three days.

- Hormones. In extremely severe cases of acne, dermatologists may prescribe estrogen (the female hormone). The estrogen acts through the pituitary gland to decrease production of the androgens (male hormone), which in turn reduces the production of oil. Because of side effects, however, doctors exercise caution in prescribing hormones.

- Cortisone. This reduces inflammation, and when diluted and injected directly into acne cysts, hastens the healing process and reduces the chance of recurrence.

- Antibiotics. Tetracycline, one of the most commonly used antibiotics for treatment of acne, has proved effective in wiping out the bacteria which leads to inflammation. Erythromycin taken internally has also had relatively good results, and combined with Vitamin A acid as a topical preparation, it has proven effective.

All dermatologists agree that to prevent scarring you should never squeeze or pick at pimples or blackheads.

With recent developments in research, help is now available to the four out of five teenagers who suffer from acne. Consult your family physician or dermatologist to take advantage of these new techniques.

Present Tom Thumb Wedding at Martin

"The Tom Thumb Wedding" was presented by kindergarten, first and second grade students at Martin Elementary School recently.

Kyle Newman gave a polished performance as the minister, and Margalee Turner as the bride wore a traditional white floor-length wedding gown with long, trailing veil. Bridegroom Kris Reitz and the other male members of the wedding party wore full evening dress suits.

Teachers in charge of the production are Shirl Patton, Darlene Martin, Donna Gray, Ora M. Allen, and Elizabeth Flannery.

9 Floyd Students Graduate at ALC

Nine Floyd countians were among the Alice Lloyd College students receiving associate degrees in commencement ceremonies May 26 at the college. The Floyd county students are:

Patty Jean Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Little, of Weeksbury; Randy Conn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crit Conn, of Dana; Roy Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Johnson, of Halo; Karen Conn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Newman, of Grethel; Timothy Alan Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Moore, of Garrett; Gladys Mae Manns, daughter of Mrs. Ester Manns, of Hueysville; Roy Dean Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Bruke, of Halo; Sally M. Hotelling, daughter of Mrs. Ola Jones, of Wayland; and Priscilla Ann Fraley, wife of the Rev. Donald Fraley, of Hi Hat.

In his commencement address, Dr. J. M. Boswell, president of Cumberland College, told graduates that "our society may be doomed to extinction unless we can come up with better solutions to our spiritual, psychological and cultural problems."

Dr. Boswell said our society is very good at solving technological problems. He cited as examples improved transportation and new technologies being developed to combat the energy crisis.

"The solving of these kinds of problems by one generation allows us to go a step further in the next generation," he said. This is not the case with spiritual, sociological and cultural problems. Of these, said Dr. Boswell, we must reach "for a solution which enables man to live in peace with himself and his neighbors."

In his baccalaureate address, the Rev. James Highland, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shelbyville, drew a parallel between the Biblical story of the children of Israel's search for the promised land and every life having a promised land. He said, "When you've lost the zeal and zest of the quest for the promised land, you've lost your reason for living."

Dr. Highland continued the parallel asserting that every life contains something akin to the Battle of Jericho in the quest for fulfillment of dreams and goals.

"There will be a testing time," said Dr. Highland, "but you cannot let it defeat you."

Finally, in the quest for the promised land, "God has resources which are available to help you."

In closing, Dr. Highland urged graduates to "be tempted by the impossible, for the scripture says that 'with God all things are possible!'"

HISTORY AND FENCE POST LINKED WITH BLACK LOCUST

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

Before farmers started using steel instead of wood for fencing material, the black locust (Robinia pseudoacacia) was by far the favorite timber for posts, and for good reason. The heartwood of this tree is highly resistant to decay and can be expected to last for many years. As a matter of fact, locust fence posts have been found serviceable after being in the ground for over 35 years.

Actually locust posts can last much longer. Back in 1607 when the first settlers to American shores constructed their huts at Jamestown, they used corner posts cut from this tree. One hundred years later when the British naturalist and botanist, Mark Catesby, visited the site, he wrote that some of these posts were still standing solid and intact.

Locust wood, according to UK Extension forester Jim Newman, owes its resistance to decay to the mineral deposits in its cells. It is also a very dense wood, making it hard enough to take the edge off chisels, saws, and other wood-working tools.

Other than fence posts, locust wood has been used for insulator pins on telegraph and telephone poles, and for a long-lasting flooring. The tree has been widely planted too, for its fragrant drooping clusters of white flowers resembling the blooms of the sweet pea.

Some flowers, says Newman, are produced every year, but every third or fourth year the tree is completely covered with bloom. There is usually a good nectar flow which is a delight to foraging honeybees. These flowers mature into a seeded pods that provide winter fare for quail, doves, and grouse.

Farmers of a half century ago liked to have locust trees growing on their farms for reasons other than to provide fence posts. Some of them didn't know why, but they did know that the grass around and under these trees was always more lush and greener than elsewhere in the field.

Reason for this, of course, is because being a legume, the locust has nodules on its roots containing nitrogen forming bacteria that increase the nitrogen content of the soil. Also being shallow rooted with the roots running many feet from six to eight inches underground, and with suckers sprouting from these roots, a locust thicket is soon formed. This makes the tree ideal for erosion control and has recently been found useful in the restoration of spoil banks and strip mined areas.

The black locust's generic name is Robinia, a name that comes from Jean Robin, gardener to Henry IV of France. Robin introduced locust seed into France from Louisiana around 1601 and promoted its planting in that country. As a consequence when classifying this tree, Linnaeus named it in Robin's honor. And how did the tree come by the name "locust" which is an insect of sort? Well, the story is that in 1610 when naturalist William Starchey was writing about the flora around Jamestown, he assumed this tree to be related to the carob tree of Asia Minor—a tree that produces an edible seed pod similar to or tree. This carob tree is also called "St. John's Bread" from the belief it was the "locust" eaten by St. John in the wilderness as related in the Gospel of St. Mark.

Dist. Sportsmen Set Meet Here, June 12

Sportsmen from a 12-county area will meet here June 12 to nominate candidates for a seat on the state Fish and Wildlife Commission.

Five candidates will be selected by vote at the meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the district courtroom of the courthouse.

The names of these five will then be submitted to the governor, who will appoint one to represent the Seventh Wildlife District for a four-year term on the commission.

The nine-member Fish and Wildlife Commission, at its regular quarterly meetings in Frankfort, adopts seasons, limits and other fish and game regulations, approves the fish and wildlife department's annual budget and generally serves as a voice for the individual sportsmen of the state.

All sportsmen (legally defined as those residents who have purchased hunting or fishing licenses for the past two consecutive years) in the following counties may vote in the election: Floyd, Breathitt, Elliott, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Perry and Pike.

"The commission members are the elected representatives of the local sportsmen," says Carl E. Kays, commissioner of the fish and wildlife department. "It is important for those who want a voice in wildlife conservation to participate in these elections and we urge every eligible person in the district to attend."

The current Seventh Wildlife District commission member is Dr. W. W. Campbell, of Jackson, who is eligible for reappointment.

DEMONSTRATE RESUSCITATION

Burl Scott (left), assistant safety director, and Ova Spencer, safety inspector, Beaver Creek Division, National Mines Corporation, display at a recent meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club the training department "dummy" used in CPR demonstrations.

"Thousand and one, thousand and two, thousand and three", went the rhythm court of the CPR (cardio-pulmonary-resuscitation) instructor demonstrating lifesaving techniques at a recent meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. James A. Duff, Garrett.

Burl Scott, assistant safety director, and Ova Spencer, safety inspector, Beaver Creek Division, National Mines Corporation, following a demonstration, conducted a question-and-answer period, after which each of the clubmembers attempted to "revive" the patient—the dummy furnished by the National Mines Corporation training department.

During a business meeting following the program, winners of the club's essay contest for elementary school children at Wayland and Garrett were announced. They were Donna Sue Gore, an eighth grader at Wayland, and Susan R. Slone, eighth grade, Garrett. Five-dollar awards were given to each of these students.

A nominating committee was elected to select nominees for the coming club year, the election to be held at the club's next regular meeting.

Ways were discussed for the club to raise the $200 pledged to the Area Fire Department. It was decided that a larger group would have to be present for any plans to be made.

Due to the serious illness of several clubmembers and the absence of a few others who were out of town, the attendance consisted of only six clubmembers: Mrs. James A. Duff, Mrs. Eugene DeCoursey, Mrs. James E. Martin, Mrs. Don Hughes, Mrs. Jack Stevens, and Mrs. Otto Martin, and the two guest speakers.

Brown's Request Gets P'burg Track Coach, Successful Season

One of Eastern Kentucky's top high school runners, Prestonsburg's James Brown, wanted someone with track experience to help improve his chances of a good senior season that would win him some medals, recognition and a track scholarship to college.

Brown asked Burger Queen manager Forrest Hughes to coach him. Hughes was a fine choice. He had run track at his high school in Ohio, at Alice Lloyd College, at the University of Kentucky and at Morehead State University. For the last 10 years Hughes has been studying the science of running.

Hughes agreed to help Brown because, he said, "James Brown is a phenomenon for a runner in Floyd county, he has great talent and I hate to see talent, academic or physical, go to waste."

"What Hughes did not count on was coaching the entire Prestonsburg track team for this season.

"I started out coaching James and wound up with the whole team," Hughes chuckled at the recollection. "But they were a great group of kids. They were willing to work. There was never a day when they'd try to avoid working."

The result of the group effort of the Prestonsburg track team was a third place finish in the regional, the highest finish for Prestonsburg since 1965, and qualified three boys for the state meet—Jack Wells in the 440 Brown in the mile and two mile runs and Richard Burchett in the 220 Prestonsburg almost had qualifiers for the state meet in four other events. The top two finishers in the regional go on to the state and the Blackcats' 880-yard relay team ran third, the mile relay fourth and Wells finished third in the high jump with teammate Jody Collins finishing fourth.

"Greg Slone had a big lead in the 220 and would have qualified for the state, but he stepped in a hole at the Hazard track (site of the regional) and finished fifth," Hughes said. "It was a solid team performance in the regional."

This track team accomplished all this with only a month's preparation prior to their first meet. And the school records set by the 880 relay and mile relay teams, plus the three school records Brown established in the half-mile, mile and two-mile, were no small feat for a team that had only two boys with track experience before the season.

"Brown trains on his own, but the others were just getting involved with track for the most part. For example, the No. 2 runner on our team, Chester Petry, is a senior who had not played any sports in high school, but became a fine runner. Freshman Jack Ousley hasn't trained much but he has fine potential. Jack Wells could place in the state meet the next two years. It's hard to believe the track team we had in the short time it was put together when you consider the number of hours spent by the great track people and to see what we accomplished is fantastic," Hughes beamed.

Prestonsburg's team gained regional respect by winning every dual meet this season, winning the Prestonsburg Invitational, and placing in all the meets with bigger schools. Aside from the regional performance, Prestonsburg's brightest moment on the track came at the Boyd County Invitational involving teams from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky and featured some of the best track talent in each state. Although Prestonsburg's enrollment was larger than any other school, the Blackcats finished in the upper half of the more than twenty teams at the meet.

"I'd like to thank Gene Wright (athletic director) for his support. If it wasn't for him, there wouldn't have been a team this year. He and Bill Hughes (principal) provided us with gas money to go to the meets and helped get our track in shape for us to practice. Mr. Wright took the responsibility of the team, and all the boys appreciate his efforts."

The biggest disappointment of the season was that Brown was not able to run in the state meet. There is a rule stating the runner in the state meet has to run in every event he qualified for during the regional. Brown ran in the mile and two-mile in the regional to help Prestonsburg as a team collect points. When he went to Lexington for the state meet, Brown and Hughes felt James' best shot at a top three finish would be in the two-mile, so Brown did not run in the mile. When it came time for the two-mile race, Brown was not allowed to enter because he failed to enter the mile run.

"We found out about the rule just before the two-mile race," Hughes explained. "Brown is the type of runner who gets faster, the farther he runs, and I think he would have placed in the two-mile. It's a stupid rule and I hate it that James didn't get to run in the state meet."

Hughes will probably not return as track coach, because "It's hard to run a business and coach." He is very pleased with the season Prestonsburg had and would like to see Floyd county schools boost their track programs.

"I think it's safe to say there are potential state track champions roaming the halls of Floyd county schools. With the proper training small schools have a shot at state titles. Look at the success a school like Jenkins (perennial track and cross county power) has had. I wish the county would start a track and field day for high schools and grade schools to see the talent available in track and to encourage it."

Hughes might be the man to start the program. Just get Brown to ask him to coach.

COPS
Sometimes the obvious is the overlooked. Such was the case in my column two weeks ago on McDowell High's baseball season.

While writing about first-year coach Dennis King's fine season which carried on the baseball tradition established at that Left Beaver school by Pete Grigsby, Jr. and David Turner in the 1960's and early 1970's respectively, I omitted Malcolm Layne who did his part in keeping McDowell among the 15th Region's best each season.

During Layne's two seasons at McDowell (1979-78), he guided the daredevils to the runnerup sport in the district and the semi-finals of the region in his first season. Last year, his team had a 20-4 record, won the 58th District and finished second in the 15th Regional Tournament to Paintsville.

GOLF TOURNEY
The fifth annual Maytown Volunteer Fire Department golf tournament will be held June 16 and 17 at the Jenny Wiley course.

Qualifying play will be on Saturday and an entry fee will be charged. Trophies will be awarded in each flight.

"There are a dozen or so real fine golfers in Floyd county, and that's amazing considering the availability of golf courses in the county," George Gray, tourney manager, said. "We're expecting another competitive tournament."

For additional information, contact Gray at 285-3808 or Ray Prater at 285-3363 or call the Jenny Wiley Pro Shop.

UK All-Stars vs. Pan Am Squad

Former University of Kentucky All-American Jack Givens will play on the all-star team comprised of former UK players that will meet the U.S. Pan Am team in Rupp Arena, June 22.

Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall will lead the Kentucky All-Stars while Indiana University coach Bobby Knight has been named to direct the Pan American team.

The exhibition game will provide competition and training for the Pan American team but will also serve a second purpose. Receipts from the game will be divided between the Adolph F. Rupp-UK Basketball Museum Fund and the Amateur Basketball Association U.S.A. to offset the cost of the U.S. team's participation in the Pan Am Games.

The players comprising the All-Star team and Joe Hall are donating their time and thereby are making contributions to the two worthwhile causes.

Coach Hall is personally inviting the former Kentucky players and is gaining commitments from an impressive group. Among those slated to participate are the four seniors from the 1978 NCAA Championship team - Rick Robey, Jack Givens, Mike Phillips, and James Lee.

The Pan American team includes many of the nation's top collegiate and high school players, including Kentucky's Kyle Macy, Ralph Sampson, from Harrisonburg, Virginia, who is considered by many college coaches as the top 1979 high school prospect in the U.S., will also be on the Pan Am team.

The Pan American games are Olympic styled competition involving amateur athletes in the western hemisphere. The U.S. team is supported by donations through the Amateur Basketball Association.

The Adolph F. Rupp-UK Basketball Museum will house memorabilia from the Rupp era as well as depict the on-going tradition of Kentucky basketball.

The game is set for 8 p.m., Friday, June 22, and tickets go on sale at the Lexington Center ticket office Friday, June 1, at 9 a.m.

Mail orders will be accepted and should be accompanied by checks or money orders payable to Lexington Center Ticket Office to: Pan Am Tickets, 432 W. Vine, Lexington, KY 40507.

Wins Texaco Scholarship

William M. "Mike" Skeens, a student in the senior class at Russell High School, Russell, Ky., has been designated a Texaco Merit Scholarship winner. Presentation of a Merit Scholarship Certificate was made May 18 by J. H. Salness, manager of Texaco's Chicago Operations Center at Oak Brook, Illinois.

Young Skeens is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Skeens, Jr., Flatwoods, Ky. His father is a tank truck operator at Texaco's Ironton, Ohio, sales terminal. The award winner is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Roberts, of Harold.

The Texaco Merit Scholarship Program was established to help Texaco employees provide college educations for sons and daughters with outstanding high school records. The awards can be applied toward the cost of four years of undergraduate work at any recognized U.S. college or university selected by the recipient. Texaco underwrites the entire cost of Texaco Merit Scholarships, but they are granted on the basis of nationwide competitive examinations. The National Merit Scholarship Corporation, an independent, non-profit body, selects scholarship winners and determines the amount of stipend.

Skeens, who will be graduated from Russell High School this month, will enter Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va. this fall. He plans a pre-med course, with a view toward a medical career.

While a student at Russell High he has been a member of the Beta Club, has played on the golf team, been a member of the First Christian Church of Russell and worked, part-time. He has also won awards in algebra, pre-calculus, history and was selected the outstanding chemistry student for 1977. In addition to the Texaco Merit Scholarship, he has received the Outstanding Entering Freshman in Chemistry Scholarship at Marshall University from the Ohio Valley Section of the American Chemical Society.

Ground Broken For New Road

Among the pre-election events in the area was the appearance in Martin county May 23 of Gov. Julian Carroll for the official groundbreaking ceremonies marking the beginning of construction of the Inez-to-Ulysses highway.

The $65 million project will be a four-lane coal-haul road connecting Martin county with US 23 in Lawrence county. Work on the first 3.3 miles of the highway is scheduled to begin soon, and the governor predicted that the entire route will be completed by late 1981.

Addressing a gathering of some 60 who sheltered themselves beneath umbrellas, Gov. Carroll put in a plug for his favorite candidate for governor, Terry McBrayer. He said that McBrayer had promised him to build the road from Inez to Auxier.

Russell Williamson, 76-year-old educator-banker who has for years led the Martin county fight for better roads, called Carroll "the greatest governor for us we ever had," and praised the governor for other projects, one of which is the new bridge that will replace the old toll span connecting Louisa and Fort Gay, West Virginia.

Coal Severance Funds Approved for Hospitals

A $6,000 allocation recommended by the Floyd County Coal Severance Economic Aid Board has been approved, according to Commissioner William S. O'Daniel, Department for Local Government.

The allocation to FIVCO—Big Sandy Emergency Medical Services will be used to upgrade communications equipment in the emergency rooms of the three Floyd county hospitals.

Economic aid funds were established by Gov. Julian Carroll in 1976 and approved by the 1976 and 1978 legislatures with $10 million allocated from coal severance money each biennium.

State Police Begin Drive For Recruits

State Police Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg announced here today that the Kentucky State Police will begin a statewide recruiting drive on June 1.

It will be the first time that the state police have sought to attract new recruits since 1976. For the past three years, they have been able to meet their existing manpower needs by drawing on an applicant backlog that finally was exhausted only late last year.

According to the Commissioner, at least 35 additional troopers must be added to their present force if they are to maintain an authorized strength of 1,905 officers for the coming fiscal year.

Brandenburg said that the statewide drive also will include a major effort to attract interested minority and female applicants. Four black and four white troopers are being assigned fulltime to identify qualified minorities and women and make them aware of the career opportunities offered by the state police, he said.

"The special recruiting force will also seek assistance from community leaders and organizations whom we hope will be of particular help to us in reaching qualified minorities and women interested in becoming state police officers," he said.

Currently, the state police force includes one female and 21 black officers.

KSP Sgt. Larry Fentress, one of the officers named by Brandenburg to coordinate the statewide recruiting effort, said that the necessary forms will be available to interested applicants at any state police post, or the permanent driver examining centers in Louisville, Lexington and Covington, between the hours of noon and 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday beginning June 1 and ending June 15.

The deadline for return of the completed applications to state police control will be midnight, June 30.

Fentress said that the short application period is necessary in order to meet an early fall training date at the State Police Academy, "while still allowing recruiters and the state police personnel board adequate time to evaluate each candidate's fitness and select those considered most qualified to complete the 16-week training program required of all prospective troopers."

For the information of those interested in becoming a state trooper, Fentress said that every applicant must meet the following minimum qualifications:

Between 21-30 years of age; have high school diploma, or its equivalent; U.S. citizen and resident of Kentucky, and possess a valid Kentucky motor vehicle operator's license; at least five feet six inches tall without shoes, with weight in proportion to height; vision correctable to 20-20 with glasses, and 20-50 without glasses.

In addition, each applicant also must pass a medical exam and undergo an investigation of his background to insure that he is of good moral character.

Applicants accepted for training will receive a salary of $710 a month while attending the state police academy. Upon graduation, their starting salary as probationary troopers will then be raised to $1,048 a month.

MARKS MEMORIAL DAY

Confederate Memorial Day was observed by Greenville Davidson Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Sunday, when Mrs. Sallye L. Clark, a charter member of the chapter, placed a wreath at the confederate marker in the public square, here.

Pageant Contestant

Miss Elizabeth Ann Hamilton, 15-year-old daughter of Pay Hamilton, of McDowell, and Mrs. Dorothy DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, has been selected to be a state finalist in the 1979 Miss United Teenager Pageant which will be held at the Executive West Hotel in Louisville July 20, 21, and 22.

Contestants from over the state will compete for the state title and the winner will receive an all-expense paid trip to compete in the national finals, a three-phase pageant in Washington, D.C., Hollywood, Calif., and Honolulu, Hawaii. The national winner will receive a $15,000 cash scholarship, a trip to Europe, and a new car for her reigning year, as well as other awards.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic and civic achievements, beauty, poise, personality, and each is asked to take part in the volunteer community service program, by contributing at least eight hours of time to a worthwhile charity or civic work of their choice.

There is no swimsuit competition required for the 14 to 18-year-old contestants who will each write and present an essay on "My Country."

Miss Hamilton is being sponsored by the Left Beaver Coal Company and by Milady. She is a student at McDowell High School where she is a cheerleader, member of the basketball and baseball teams. Her interest include gymnastics, swimming, softball, cooking, and sewing.

Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre Undergoing Needed Facelift

If you're in the vicinity of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre this month, don't be surprised by the flurry of activity going on there. No, you haven't missed the opening; the theatre is just undergoing a much needed facelift.

Through the cooperation of Lowell Baker, superintendent of Jenny Wiley State Park, the entire amphitheatre is being "spruced up" in honor of its 15th anniversary season. Fresh paint is being applied, both inside and out, and the grounds are being readied for flowers and shrubs. In addition, Mr. Baker, along with his maintenance supervisor, Jack Snyder, has checked and repaired areas of the theatre that the public doesn't see—plumbing, drainage, as well as the cooling systems in the offices.

Along with the Park staff, some JWSMT staff members are making some impressive additions to the amphitheatre. Robert Cooper, scene designer and technical director, is in the process of constructing two 40 foot towers to be used as lighting positions. The towers will require some 700 feet of pipe and will replace the present hazardous light trees. According to Cooper, "These towers will not only offer ideal lighting positions, but will enhance the aesthetic view of the theatre, as well as upgrade the value and safety of the facility for the technicians and audience alike."

Another project Cooper has in the works is a wooden floor designed to sit on top of the present crumbling concrete stage. The floor is to be built of special, pressure-treated pine and will be engineered to dismantle to afford storage indoors during the winter. The floor will be a plus for the theatre because of its flexibility as compared to concrete.

Also new this year is a specially designed sound system. During the spring a sound consultant was brought in to assess the theatre as to its audio requirements. As a result, JWSMT is purchasing its own system which will provide the first adequate treatment of sound at the theatre in many years.

All of these improvements and additions will serve to maintain the national reputation that JWSMT has attained. However, none of these projects can be completed without additional funding. Each of these items are crucial improvements, without which the life of the facility will be drastically shortened.

Support is needed through the sale of Patrons Cards and season tickets, it is emphasized.

P'burg Native Wins Mother of Yeat Title

Mrs. Donald (Madge) Marcello, of Rochester, N.Y., formerly of Prestonsburg, was selected, May 12, "Mother of the Year," by Westgate Plaza in the Rochester area.

Her selection was based on a letter Westgate merchants received from her daughter, ten-year-old Kathy, a fourth grader at Walt Disney School.

Following is the text of the letter which brought the honor to Mrs. Marcello:

"My name is Kathy Marcello. I am ten years old. And I would like to tell you why I think my mother should be Mother of the Year. My mother's name is Madge and she works 8 to 10 hours a day, and Saturday. And my mother always finds time for me. If I need help with my homework or Girl Scouts, she will always help me. And if I have a problem or I am sick, my mother is always there when I need her. And not only is she my mother, she is also my best friend. That's why I love her. And that's my reasons for wanting her to be the mother of the year."

Mrs. Marcello is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brady Shepherd, of Prestonsburg.

Vietnam Veterans Week Proclaimed

On behalf of the City of Prestonsburg, Mayor Harold W. Cooley has proclaimed this week Vietnam Veterans Week. The proclamation cites as a reason for so honoring the Vietnam veterans the fact that, while they served their country as well as those who served in other American wars, they have been unfairly burdened with a negative image on account of the unpopular nature of that war.

Noting that disabled Vietnam veterans have met with apathy and little recognition, the proclamation urges that they be given "the highest priority attention."

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
 Attorney General

Today's consumers must be ever-cautious to avoid becoming rip-off victims. But the risk of being ripped-off in the insurance game is much greater for consumers who live in the southern and eastern U.S. and have little education and low incomes.

These people can easily be taken advantage of and are often conned into buying debit or "industrial" life insurance. With this type of insurance, premiums, usually not more than a few dollars, are collected weekly or monthly for policies offering limited protection, according to a Federal Trade Commission staff report. The report concludes that ownership of multiple policies is common. Since the policies are marketed primarily to low-income consumers, some buyers must skimp on food to pay their premiums.

Most of the debit industry's consumer abuses cited in the report apply to industrial policies, so named because they were originally marketed to 19th century English industrial workers. Some abuses listed in the report are:

— "Overloading," where insurance agents encourage policyholders to buy more insurance than they really need or can afford. Even with multiple policies, many buyers' total insurance coverage is well below the national average.

— Agents advising parents to buy life insurance policies for their children's education, but neglecting to mention that the policies usually don't pay back as much as is invested and that the FULL face amount is paid only if the child dies.

— Agents convincing customers that if they cash in an old policy and use part of the money to pay the first premium on a new policy, they will have both cash and a new policy. This is misleading because if the old policy is less than five years old, it cannot surrender any cash benefits and the customers can lose all or part of their old policy's investment.

Although insurance companies conceded that this type of abuse takes place occasionally, some former employees of the companies insist such abuses are common and in some cases the agent's bosses know about them but do nothing to prevent them.

State regulation of debit insurance has usually been less strict than regulation of ordinary policies. This is because some state regulators feel that without debit insurance poor people would not be able to get any insurance, so they are reluctant to take any action against the companies or agents. Also, most state insurance regulators have neither enough time or staff to go after the agents and companies guilty of these abuses.

If you have general questions about insurance, you can call the Department of Insurance at (502) 564-3630.

... about your Social Security

By JOHN FAULKNER Manager of the Prestonsburg Social Security Office

Q—My wife and I get monthly SSI payments. Her uncle died recently and left her his house and land. Do we have to report this to Social Security?

A—Yes. You should notify Social Security if you or your spouse becomes the owner of any additional real estate. Any change in your resources—what you own—may affect your SSI payments.

Q—I receive SSI payments. A friend recently moved in with me, and we are going to share the household expenses. Do I have to notify Social Security of this change in my living arrangements?

A—Yes. You must notify Social Security if you begin living with others and share in the household expenses. You also should let Social Security know if there is any change in the amount you or the others contribute to expenses. These changes might cause an increase or decrease in your SSI payments.

Q—Up until now, my mother lived alone in an apartment. Because her health is failing, I've convinced her to come live with us. How will this affect her SSI payments?

A—If an eligible person (or couple) lives in another person's household and receives support and maintenance in kind from that person, the basic SSI amount is reduced by one-third. This reduction takes the place of counting the dollar value of the support and maintenance as income. Your mother should notify Social Security of her change in living arrangements.

Susan Won One Home Ec Medal— And, Look! Who Won the Other

Brother-sister home ec. award winners display course work.

When Billy Bassett, Prestonsburg High School senior, needed an extra course to meet the required credits for the year, he decided on a class that might seem a bit out of the ordinary for most young men—home economics.

But home ec. it was, and for 18-year-old Bassett it was not to be a year of just "getting by" in the traditionally female class, for when the school's annual home economics awards day rolled around, he and his sister, Susan Williams, received two medals for best achievement in their respective project categories.

Billy's project, an impressive blue ski suit, pants, vest, jacket and all, won for him top honors in the clothing category while his sister won the top award for her hand-pieced Dresden Plate quilt.

Why did Billy join the class? "Well my sister was in it and I needed a course, so I thought it would be worth a try," he pointed out.

Claiming body work on automobiles as his only previous manual skills, Bassett said when home ec. teacher Janet Rowe asked him if he would like to make something, the ski suit idea immediately came to mind.

"I do a lot of skiing, in Canada and out West," Bassett commented, "so I thought this would be a good opportunity to have a really good quality ski suit."

So, while his sister, a three-year home economics student of Mrs. Rowe, meticulously pieced together the complex Dresden Plate design and worked on a variety of pillows and embroidery, Billy sewed his fully lined ski suit which he describes as being of better quality and costing much less than commercially available suits.

Billy said friends and classmates in other classes at PHS haven't given him too much of a hard time. "They just usually don't believe me when I tell them I'm taking home ec."

POOL OPENING DELAYED

Opening of a new public swimming pool complex at Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill has been delayed until June 9, park superintendent Robert Hazelrigg said. The pool was originally scheduled to open Memorial Day weekend, but the opening was delayed because of problems in obtaining items needed for pool operations.

Mrs. Rowe, who supervised the work, said a great deal of guidance had been provided Billy and Susan by Lula Mae Slone of the Archer Senior Citizens Center and Sr. Mary Pineau of the David craft project.

Susan and Billy reside on the Lake Road with their parents, Freddie and Lois Williams.

New Care Center Board Is Named

A new board will take over management July 1 of the Comprehensive Care Center which provides mental health, mental retardation, alcohol abuse and drug abuse services in the eight-county Kentucky River District.

The new board, named Kentucky River Community Care, will deliver the services formerly offered by Upper Kentucky River Regional Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board, Inc., which will go out of service on June 30 and turn over all its assets and operations to the new non-profit corporation.

Board members for the organization are:

Breathitt—James R. Fugitte and Phillip Litteral; Knott—Jim Bergman and Joyce Terry; Lee—Malcolm Kilduff and Daphne Northern; Leslie—Ida Asher and Freddie Lewis; Letcher—Ransom T. Holbrook and Burtis K. Webb; Owsley—Joan Cornett and Steve Turner; Perry—Carroll Fugate, James McCall and Donnie R. Spencer; Wolfe—Nell Johnson and Sheri Campbell.

Kentucky River Community Care will serve the residents of Breathitt, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry and Wolfe counties.

The old Upper Kentucky River regional board has been in operation since September 1966. During 1977 and 1978 it lost several key members of the professional staff. The Perry county grand jury recommended the board be changed to represent more of the business, professional and educational segments of the district.

WHAT DO YOU THINK, ENERGY GROWS ON TREES?

Until Buck Stove, that is, Buck Stove is almost as good at getting energy out of trees as nature is at getting it into them. Buck Stove is the wood stove for modern America.

How well do Buck Stoves work? Well, a recent owner survey uncovered the fact that 96% of the families surveyed used their Buck Stove as their primary heat source. Doesn't that tell you something?

Another interesting fact came to light during this survey. Of all the really great reasons for buying a Buck Stove (like saving 50-80% on your heating bills, as a majority of our customers do), fully 48% of the customers surveyed listed outstanding quality as their number one reason for buying a Buck Stove.

Of course, this didn't surprise us. We know all about that quality; which is why we can conditionally guarantee your Buck Stove for the lifetime of the original owner.

Buck Stoves are safe and easy to install, too. These all-steel, heavy-duty stoves meet the strict safety standards set by the National Fire Protection Association and Underwriter's Laboratories. And every Buck Stove dealer has trained, certified installers who assure you of the safest, most effective installation. Or, you can even do it yourself.

Because energy grows on trees, and money doesn't, Buck Stove is the sensible alternative for the American homeowner.

Buck Stove Owners Know It Does.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if energy grew on trees? Every morning the sun could come up and, from sea to shining sea, America could sprout a little more energy.

Naturally, energy does grow on trees. Trees, in fact are our only expandable energy source.

The only problem with using energy from trees has been that the sun does a great job of packing energy into trees, but people do a poor job of getting it out again.

The week was concluded with church services led by the Rev. Doug Burkett of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Madison Co. Has 15 Rabies Cases

State health officials are concerned about a serious outbreak of rabies in Madison county, where 15 confirmed cases in animals have been reported since March 29.

Joe Skaggs, a veterinarian with the Department for Human Resources' division of preventive services, said 43 cases of rabies have been confirmed statewide this year.

Officials suggest that Kentuckians take the following steps to reduce the rabies risk:

Beware of any wild animal that is approachable.

Vaccinate domestic animals against rabies. The vaccine is effective for at least a year. Kentucky law requires all dogs more than four months old to be vaccinated.

Keep domestic animals confined to the owner's property. If a pet becomes ill or shows signs of rabies infection, take it to a veterinarian.

If bitten by an animal suspected of having rabies, immediately scrub the wound with soap and water—the best preventive measure against the rabies virus.

Capture the animal. If it is wild, kill it so tests can be run to determine whether it is rabid.

Report the case to the local health department.

Anyone who has been bitten should get in touch with a physician who will determine whether anti-rabies treatment is necessary.

Skaggs said 78 rabies cases were identified in Kentucky last year, but only 29 were found in 1977, the lowest number recorded in any one year.

The last human death resulting from rabies in Kentucky was in 1973.

SOME GARDEN REMINDERS

Gardening is about to get in full swing. Here are a few ideas you might be able to adapt to your garden.
When gardening space is limited, concentrate on crops that will produce a lot in a small space, like tomatoes, lettuce, greens, turnips, radishes, bush squash, pole or bush beans, and onions.

Avoid crops like peas, vine squash and melons, sweet corn and potatoes, which need lots of room to produce much. Choose varieties carefully. If you want to grow squash, beans and cucumbers, plant bush varieties rather than the vining types that spread all over the ground. Or grow vine squash, cucumbers and melons on trellises—make them take up vertical space rather than ground surface.

Practice successive cropping—growing two or more crops in the same space one after another. For example, after an early harvest of lettuce, plant a late-maturing crop like beets. Or follow early beans with cabbage.

Try companion cropping. This means growing two kinds of plants in the same space at the same time. The idea is to combine a quick-maturing crop like radishes, lettuce, spinach or beans with a late-maturing crop like cabbage, broccoli or winter squash.

Weed control is important because weeds rob crops of water and nutrients, and they may harbor insects, nematodes and disease organisms that can infest crops.

Use black plastic or hay, straw or other organic materials as mulch to discourage weed growth. Mulching also helps the soil retain moisture, so you get by with less watering, and that's an energy saver. If you're going to remove weeds mechanically, decide before you plant your garden whether you'll be weeding by hand or whether you'll cultivate between the rows with a rototiller or garden tractor. These machines require more maneuvering room between rows, and you have to take that into account when you draw up your garden plan.

Cleaning up the garden at the end of each gardening season will help reduce the number of bugs that carry over from season to season. Checking the garden regularly for invading insects and taking immediate action against pests should help keep them under control.

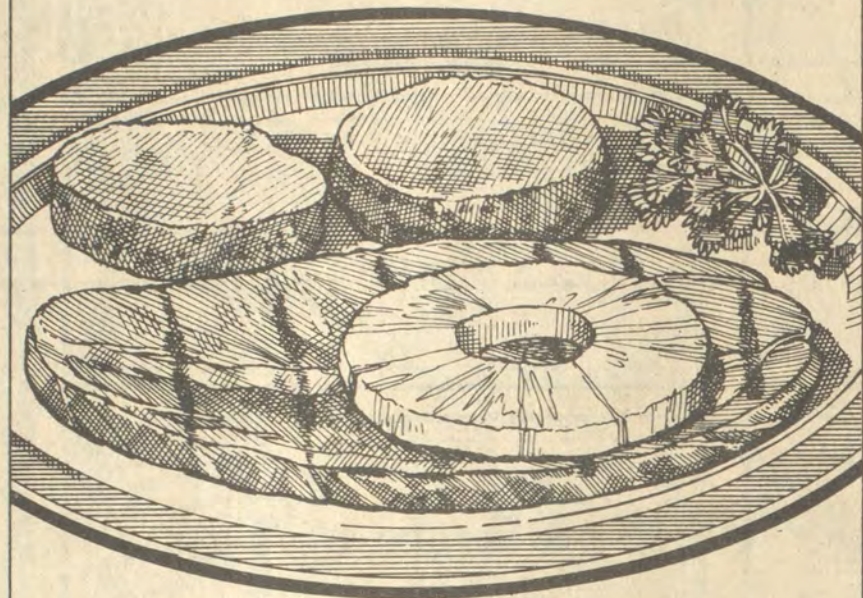

Insect control is important in preventing many insect-borne plant diseases, such as bacterial wilt of squash and cucumbers, as well as damage to plants caused by insect feedings.

Many plant diseases can't be cured, so the best strategy is to prevent them by choosing disease-resistant varieties whenever possible. Tomatoes that are resistant to soil-borne diseases like fusarium and verticillium wilt, for instance, are strongly recommended.

Where you put your garden can influence the likelihood of disease. Avoid lowlying areas with poor air circulation and soil drainage. Crops whose roots are standing in water a good deal of the time and whose foliage remains wet for extended periods are more susceptible to invading disease organisms. If soil drainage is a problem, consider gardening in raised beds. Old tires or wood treated with copper naphthenate can hold soil for vegetable gardening.
