

Man Held Here After Official Suffers Injury

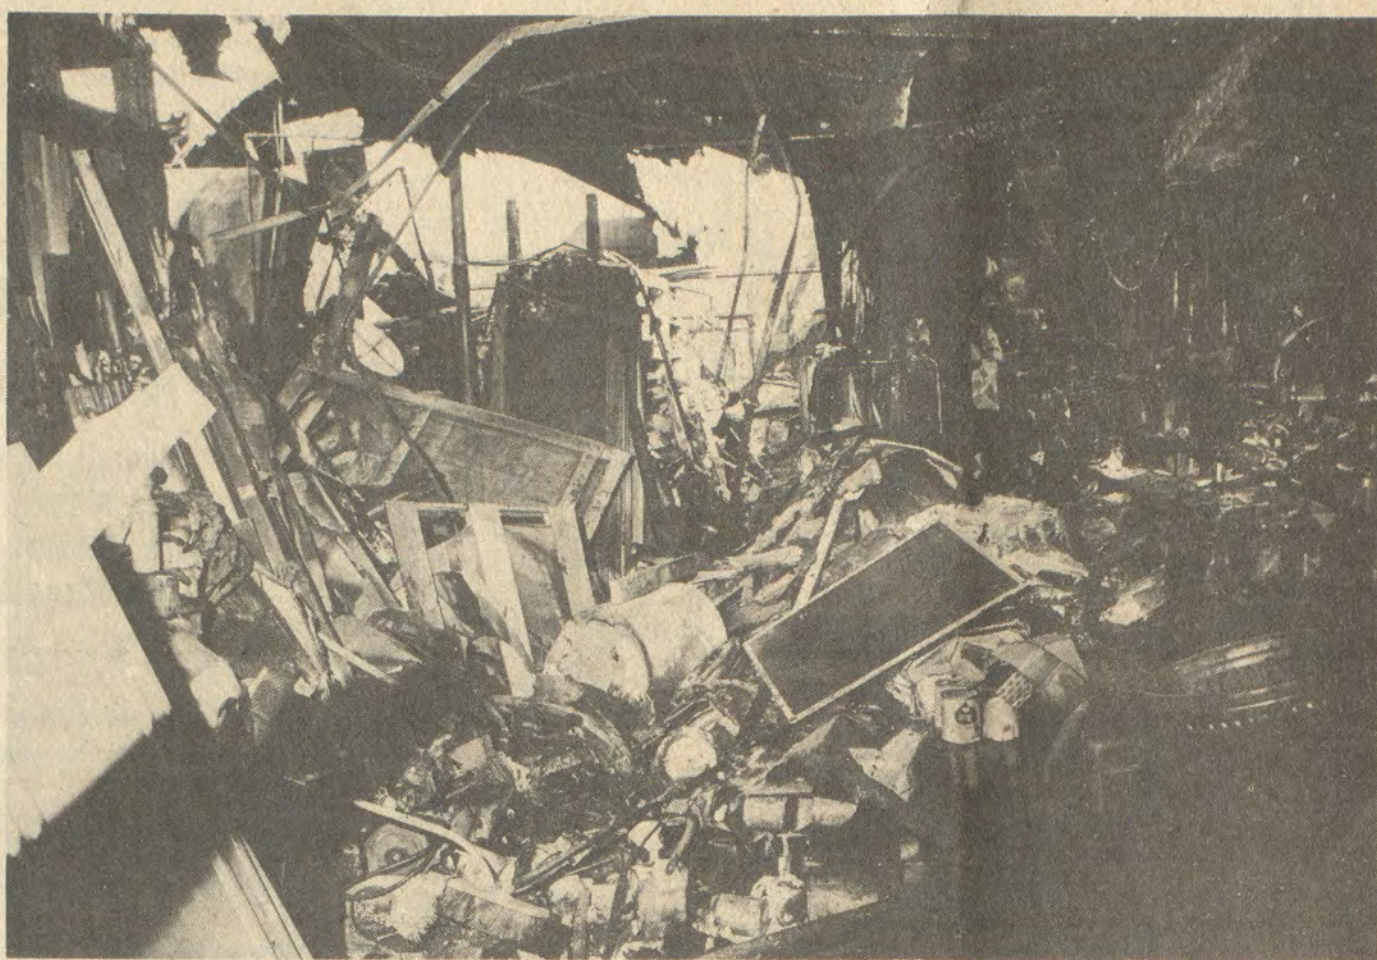

A series of violent incidents in the Garrett-Hueysville section of Right Beaver Creek over the week-end involved the injury of Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, of Garrett, an attempted robbery at Garrett and gunfire near Hueysville which blasted electric lights, shot up a building and an automobile.

Constable Bob Hackworth said Monday, after a trying week-end, "I'm going to try to get up a petition, asking for more police protection."

Magistrate Roberts suffered a dislocated shoulder and a knee injury when he assisted Constable Hackworth in the arrest of Doug Sexton, who allegedly was speeding up the Rock Fork road, near Garrett. After a chase Sexton was overhauled and arrested but broke free and struck the pursuing constable with a stick, according to the officer. Magistrate Roberts then seized Sexton and was thrown heavily onto the roadway. Hackworth said he overtook Sexton, who made a leaping kick, striking the officer in the chest, then continued his flight.

Sexton was jailed on charges of second degree assault, third degree assault and escaping custody.

Building Owner Says Fire Loss Believed Total

Prestonsburg's worst fire in several years late Saturday destroyed the Pelphey building on North Lake Drive which housed four offices and a hardware and carpet store.

No estimate of the total damage was available.

The 142-foot-long building was considered a total loss by its owner, Donald Ray Pelphey, whose real estate office was one of those gutted by the blaze.

The fire, which was discovered shortly after 7 p.m., is believed to have originated in a coffeemaker which had not been unplugged in the Kentucky Central Life Insurance Co. office. From that point at the northern end of the building, the flames swept quickly throughout the structure.

In addition to the owner's office and the insurance firm, the building housed offices of the Hill Engineering Co. and Marvin Crider & Associates, architects, Lloyd's Hardware Store and its associated carpet store.

A janitor's decision to delay work inside the building from late Saturday till Sunday may have indirectly caused the fire, Fire Marshal Tom Blackburn said he was told. The janitor said he regularly unplugged the coffeemaker in the insurance office when he arrived for cleanup work after occupants of the office had gone home.

Blackburn said the heavy concentration of smoke left firemen almost

PBS Files Protest On School 'Clutter'

Directors of People for Better Schools (PBS), the citizen-group which led the fight for removal of asbestos from Prestonsburg High School, last Tuesday night served notice on the Floyd County Board of Education that it is calling on the Superintendent of Public Instruction to "take such action as your position warrants to investigate and compel the Floyd County Superintendent of Schools and the Floyd County Board of Education to maintain not only Prestonsburg High School but all schools in Floyd county in a condition to insure the health and well-being of the student population."

The letter, addressed to Dr. James B. Graham, Superintendent of Public Instruction, was read at the board meeting. Copies of the letter, with affidavits attesting to the "unsanitary and unsafe" conditions at the school here, were sent to Atty. Gen. Stephens and Secretary Conn. of the Department of Human Resources.

The affidavits were signed by Ruby Catherine Clifton, PBS president, Joyce A. Everly, Shirley Holbrook, Brother Timothy Hartnett, Ann P. Wharton, Rebecca J. Short, Ann R. Latta, Myrtle Hill Davis, Leonard Grant and Carolyn Ford.

Some of the affidavits mentioned the school roof, claiming it still leaks after completion of repair by a contractor. All attested to the general clutter. Most mentioned unsanitary conditions in bathrooms.

One of the affiants, Ann Wharton, said she was asked to leave after she had been at the school only five minutes, because she had failed to get permission from the school principal, William Hughes, to make the visit. But she said that in those five minutes she found trash all around the entrance and inside the front door, that the roof had leaked in room 115 to the extent that all sewing machines in the room had to be moved, most lights in that room were out of order, and privacy of the first-floor women's restroom compromised because a broken window permitted anybody in the hallway to look inside.

The board of education recently employed private cleaners to take over the work at Prestonsburg High School and has been paying the firm $375 a week. Jim Washington, Huntington, W. Va. contractor, was quoted as telling the board last December that the roof was leak-proof, although the roof work had not been completed at that time.

Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. commented:

"All we can do is keep trying. We have run through 12 to 15 janitors at the school this year, then contracted with a firm to be responsible for keeping the school clean, and now they've quit and we have a new one. We even offered to hire cleaning people the PBS would suggest."

Grigsby added that the contractor on the school roof has been contacted and that he will return here for further work.

Convention Hall For Park Gets $115,000 Grant

As the Floyd fiscal court advertised this week for bids on the construction of a security building at the county park under construction near Allen County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones received word that a grant of $115,000 has been made by the state Development Cabinet toward construction later of a mini-convention center at the recreation center.

Bids on the security building will be opened May 22. Its construction will be financed by EDA funds left over from the bridge project there.

Work on the convention center, which will seat up to 400, is a project for the future, Judge Jones said.

"My congratulations," William L. Short, secretary of the Development Cabinet, wrote Judge Jones, "on the aggressive leadership and forward planning within your community. We are pleased to be able to contribute to the success of the project."

Work on the road leading from the end of the bridge across Beaver Creek to the parking area in the park was under way this week.

Tennis courts and ballfields also are being put into playing shape and are expected to be open within the next 10 to 12 days.

Plans for the golf course will await completion of other park development, since the course already is playable, it was said.

This Town...That World

Sunday, as most of us are aware, is Mother's Day. As a rule, I am not enamored of these "Days" and "Months" and so on that are officially proclaimed and largely unobserved, but this is a special occasion that reflects honor on whoever had the idea of honoring the finest people any of us have ever had the pleasure of knowing.

This is not to say that all women who bear young are great human beings. Some function mainly as incubators. But those good, gentle, self-sacrificing souls who have loved us, nursed, comforted and kissed us when we were utterly unlovable—these are the Great Ones to whom we pay overdue, if sometimes empty, honor.

I don't presume to know how mothers feel about the matter, but I have an idea that they want something more lasting than a few flowers or a material gift. Something deeper, more eternal—some non-commercial evidence of unfeigned love.

I still remember the joy of a mother's face, some years ago, when her least one brought his offering—a bunch of flowers, some dog fennel among them, clutched in a grubby hand.

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

It grieves me slightly to report this. In neighboring Pike county, where perhaps as much moonshine liquor has been produced and consumed as any part of the land, they no longer can tell good liquor from bad, or determine what is wrong after some mumbskull has drunk the stuff.

The other day, according to the public prints, two men became quite ill after tipping the jug. They were hospitalized.

Stream Work, Rates On Gas, TV Talked

The newly formed Concerned Citizens of Martin, will hold its second meeting next Thursday (May 17) at 7:30 p.m. at the E. P. Grigsby Senior Citizens Center.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. will speak on complications in the channelization of Beaver Creek in the vicinity and through Martin. In 1968 Congress appropriated $3 million for the channelization of Beaver Creek, with the county and town charged with handling the clearing of titles and easements. Under six county attorneys, for a variety of reasons, the local work was never accomplished. The projected "digging out" of the creek would, according to the Army Corps of Army Engineers, lower the flood level three to five feet. At present the Army Corps of Engineers is authorized to do the work under a $7 million grant.

Mr. Turner feels that the project is in danger of being cancelled unless local action is taken soon, and he will report on recent developments.

At the same meeting Paul R. Gearheart, president of Tel-Com, Inc., will explain the new cable system in Martin and adjacent area (about 550 customers)—the payment system, the Atlanta station pick-up and the Home Box Office (HBO).

About 50 residents of Martin attended the first meeting of Concerned Citizens on April 23 at The Hut Restaurant. The subject of the meeting was the rates charged by the Martin Gas Company. David Allen, manager of the gas company, responded to questions. Chairing the meeting was Rev. William Poole, pastor of Saint Juliana Church in Martin.

After lengthy discussion, a petition was circulated and signed at the meeting. It read:

"We, the undersigned subscribers to the Martin Gas Company, request an investigation of the Martin Gas Company as to its fidelity to the terms of the rate increase granted December 20, 1978. We residents of the town of Martin who have of the highest existent natural gas rates, even though we sit on large deposits of natural gas, are anxious to know: if rate increases have been granted on the basis of extensive repair of faulty service lines (which repair apparently has not been made in spite of the purported scarcity of gas), if the federal government is making a grant-loan to the Martin Gas Company for this repair, if the relocation of KY 80 will facilitate some repair to the Martin Gas Company lines at no cost to them, and how much gas is being bought from South Eastern Gas Company at 0.149 per MCF and sold by the Martin Gas Company at $3.55 per MCF. We, the undersigned, also seek a refund to subscribers if an affirmative answer to questions above merit such a rebate."

Mr. Allen, in defending the rates, consistently pointed out that the Martin Gas Company only passes on to its consumers the high rates of the Columbia Gas Company, and that the Martin Gas Company's rates were approved, after an appropriate hearing, by the Energy Regulatory Commission of Kentucky.

An update of the issue will be offered at the May 17 meeting.

Jury Says Probation Not Granted to Newport

The report in last week's Times that James Newport, of McDowell, was granted probation on a 30-day jail term for transporting alcoholic beverages is incorrect, District Judge Harold Stumbo said Saturday.

In fact, Judge Stumbo said, Newport was still in jail here, serving his term.

Memories of 104-Year-Old Hurt Include Frank and Jesse James

It's only been in the past year that George Hurt has begun to experience some of the health problems that generally come with advanced age. Before that, he'd only been in a hospital once. "That was for low blood one time when I was living up at Wayland," he explained. Although now a patient at Riverview Manor Nursing Home here where close checks can be kept on respiratory trouble which he has experienced lately, George Hurt is a fine looking man—over six feet tall, powerfully built, and still showing a lot of black hair among the gray.

His appearance is particularly remarkable, considering his age—104 as of May 1.

Born at East Point in 1875, Mr. Hurt spent his childhood in Lawrence county living with an aunt and uncle after the death of his mother when he was quite young. His only schooling, he says, was "three or four days" in a one-room school at Richardson in Lawrence county.

Perhaps his most vivid memory from his youth in that section revolves around the periodic visits of an infamous group of Missourians, the James boys—Frank and Jesse and members of their gang.

Hurt said he recalls the outlaws vividly from their occasional visits to Lawrence county where they would stay with his uncle, Tom Blankenship. "I can remember my aunt beggin' the boys to give up their stealin' and go straight," Hurt recalled. He recalled that the James group would rob wealthier residents and give some of the loot to less fortunate residents, a la Robin Hood.

"For as long as I can remember, he's told that story," commented his son, Ernest Hurt.

In recounting more than a century of life, Mr. Hurt summed it up this way—"All I ever done was load coal." A veteran of 40 years underground in places like Wheelwright, Weeksbury, Wayland, Van Lear and Auxier, Hurt said, "I done the first lick of work ever around Auxier and Van Lear...I reckon I crushed every rock that went into that bridge at Van Lear."

Although he loaded coal at 23 cents a ton, he loved the long hours underground at a time when safety regulations and limitations on dust concentrations were all but unheard of. His son said he'd seen his father cry following his retirement

More Muskey for Dewey Lake Included in Stocking Plans

By JOHN WILSON

It's shaping up as a very productive year at the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' Minor Clark Fish Hatchery near Morehead, according to Mike Hearn, assistant hatchery manager.

Some bass have already spawned in the hatchery ponds, and others are in the spawning process. This activity is occurring earlier than usual, a reflection of the mild spring weather we've had this year, Hearn says.

Muskellunge have also spawned, producing more fry this year at the Clark Hatchery than ever before. Walleye production is also at an all-time high, Hearn says. More than 847,000 walleye fry, the offspring of 44 fish captured from Lake Cumberland this spring, have already been stocked.

Of these, 503,000 were placed in Cumberland and 344,000 went to Martin's Fork Lake. An additional 1.3 million walleye fry obtained from a federal hatchery in Ohio will be raised to an average length of 1.5 inches and will then be stocked in Lake Cumberland.

Two hybrid species are also doing well at the hatchery. A recent spawn of tiger musky (a muskellunge-northern pike cross) is doing well, and 600,000 rockfish—white bass hybrids obtained from North Carolina are growing nicely. These fish will soon be joined by an additional 600,000 fish from North Carolina or from brood fish taken from Lake Cumberland.

Biologists are now attempting to capture brood rockfish from Lake Cumberland. These fish will be taken to the hatchery, where they will be spawned and the fry they produce will be raised to stocking size.

"The arrival of the rockfish will just about cap off our busiest season," Hearn says. If they produce as well as the other species have so far this year, there would be a bumper crop of game fish for stocking in Kentucky waters.

It's already been decided where most of these fish will be stocked, Hearn says. The bass fry will be used primarily in the farm pond program and will be distributed in May. It will then take 18 months to two years for them to reach the 12-inch minimum legal size. The musky will be used to stock Cave Run Lake and musky streams around the state.

Tiger musky, which don't get as large as purebred musky but seem to be even more aggressive and willing to strike an artificial lure, will be stocked in Fishtrap, Dewey and Green River lakes. Previous stockings of this hybrid in Dewey Lake should reach the 30-inch legal minimum size sometime this summer. This will be the first stocking of this hybrid in Kentucky.

The rockfish—white bass hybrids are destined for Lake Herrington and Barren River Lake. This will be the first stocking of this hybrid in Kentucky.

The rockfish hybrid seems both more adaptable to some fresh water conditions and easier to catch than the rockfish, according to Fisheries Division Director

Charlie Bowers. The current hybrid world record is more than 26 pounds. While it doesn't grow as large as the rockfish, it is still plenty big enough to interest anglers, Bowers says.

Rockfish raised at the hatchery this spring are scheduled for stocking in the Ohio River, Lake Cumberland and the tailwaters of Kentucky and Barkley lakes. All of these waters have been stocked with rockfish in the past.

Fund Drive Contest For Floyd Animal Shelter

In an effort to raise necessary funds for the operation of the new animal shelter near here, the Floyd County Humane Society, Inc. is sponsoring a fund-raising contest among the county's fourth grade classes, according to Cindy Manuel, shelter manager and wife of Terry Manuel, animal warden.

In the contest, each fourth grade pupil will decorate a can or similar receptacle with the name of the humane society, and Mr. and Mrs. Manuel will judge the best entries from each class. The winner's entries will then be placed at a public place in the respective communities for the collection of contributions between May 16 and May 23.

The homeroom class which collects the most contributions will win a prize and will have a picture published in the newspaper.

Leonard Roberts and Peggy Davis, of the Appalachian Studies Program at Pikeville College, examine Dr. Roberts' new book on the famous Hatfield-McCoy feud.

Hatfield-McCoy Story Published

"Squirrel Huntin' Sam McCoy: His Memoir and Family Tree," edited by Floyd countian, Dr. Leonard Roberts, has just been published by the Pikeville College Press, Pikeville.

The work contains photo-illustrations of the original 52-page handwritten account by "Big Sam" himself of his activities in the feud.

Big Sam McCoy was an eyewitness to many of the tragic episodes of the famous feud that disturbed the Big Sandy-Tug River valleys in the decades following the Civil War, from the 1870's to the 1890's. Big Sam gives accounts of the hog trial, the Roseann Johnse-Hatfield elopement, the terrible election day stabbings and the Randolph houseburning.

Some of his versions vary from the traditional accounts. For example, Big Sam gives convincing evidence that Randolph won the hog trial, and he describes the continual fighting that followed this trial. He also declares that in 1888 Devil Anse was not in the party that burned Randolph's house and killed two of his children.

Big Sam fought with one Bill Staton over the hog trial and, as he put it, had to kill Bill to save his older brother, Paris.

Sam was never to have a peaceful year after his trial. Attacked both on the road and in his home, the final menacing act occurred in 1910 when his house on Pigeon Creek was surrounded and at least 50 shots were fired into it. Within two weeks Sam had sold all his belongings and had set out for other parts with his wife and small children.

Big Sam lived in many places in the West, but remained longest in Missouri with homes in St. Louis and Joplin. While in Joplin in 1931, he scrawled a summary of the famous feud, candidly discussing his role in most of the battles, and describing the many raids where he was present. Many of the participants he names have not appeared in earlier accounts of the feud. His written record is preserved for posterity in this book, with a careful transcription of his manuscript with notes by the book's editor, Leonard Roberts, who is director of Appalachian Studies at Pikeville College.

Some 71 photographs make up a first class collection of the McCoy family. Children and grandchildren, many with their families, appear in photographs. The book is in hardcover only, in a limited edition, 181 pages. It should be on the bookshelves now, or it may be ordered from the publisher at $9.95, plus 75 cents postage.

Eugene Lyon, of Garrett, was jailed last Friday on a first degree wanton endangerment charge by Constable Hackworth after he allegedly had attempted to rob Ernest Ward, night-watchman for the contractor on the KY 80 bridge at Garrett. Hackworth quoted Ward as saying Lyons stuck a rifle barrel through the door and demanded his money. Ward said he seized the gun barrel and wrestled Lyons to the ground but that the intruder escaped his grasp and fired one shot. Lyons was captured 20 minutes later by Constable Hackworth.

The following night, one or more persons fired shots into a building near the junction of KY 80 and KY 7, near Huesville, then shot out lights and riddled a parked car with 26 shots. The building that was under fire is owned by Anthony Castle, according to Constable Hackworth.

Warrants have been issued, but Hackworth declined to name those accused until they are arrested.

Saturday night, a shooting was reported at the Steak House, near Maytown, but nobody was hurt. A warrant has also been issued in that case, it was said.

Clell Williams was jailed here last week on a first degree assault count after he allegedly had beaten his wife, Marcella, last Wednesday night with a shotgun at their home at Burton. The woman remained in a hospital Monday. Later that night, Virgil Tackett was shot in his arm while driving in the Burton vicinity. Tackett has not identified his assailant.

Tommy Nelson, of Prestonsburg, was seriously stabbed late Saturday night at a Blue Grass festival held at River, Johnson county. Knifed in the lower abdomen, Nelson underwent surgery later at the Highlands Regional Medical Center and his condition is reported improved. State Trooper Robert Hawkins and the Johnson county sheriff's office are investigating the stabbing.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

Doyle Collins, drunk driving (DUI), by State Trooper Shelton; Earl T. Patton, attempt to elude and DUI, by State Trooper Rederick; Melvin G. Kelly, DUI, by Prestonsburg Policemen Wright and Kilgore; Freddie Conn, DUI, by State Trooper Rederick; Joie Ray Stevens, resisting arrest and two counts assault in third degree, by State Trooper Weedman; Carl Chaffins, carrying concealed deadly weapon and menacing, by Prestonsburg Policemen Lawson, Murdock and Woods.

In addition to the above arrests, a total of 34 persons were lodged at the jail on charges of public drunkenness.

helpless in fighting the fire. "There were so many rooms, it was like a maze," he said. One fireman was overcome by smoke but later returned to the fight after receiving oxygen.

The fire chief said construction of the building was such that the spread of the fire from office to office was unimpeded. He explained that there were no fire breaks between the offices.

The building was completed in 1973. Mr. Pelphrey said Monday that he plans to rebuild and that he expects the job to entail completely new construction.

The carpet store and hardware contained not only carpeting but also paint and paint thinner, and firemen fought to prevent an explosion. Two minor explosions did occur, but Randy Crum, store manager, said these came from aerosol spray cans. Fire Chief Blackburn said the burning carpet created a poisonous smoke.

The architects' office perhaps escaped with the least direct fire damage but got its share of smoke and water. All occupants of the building lost furniture and fixtures, but most important papers and records were saved.

All the businesses are continuing their services from other locations. Lloyd's, the heaviest loser in equipment and stock, reopened Monday morning in its former location across the street. Hill Engineering reopened in the Hovatter building, across Lake Drive (US 23).

The Prestonsburg Fire Department had two trucks and a mini-pumper in action. These were manned by regular firemen and volunteer firemen, about 25 in all, and they had help from owners and employees of the several businesses affected, plus assistance from bystanders.

Most of the fire was restricted to a point inside the building which is about six feet above floor level. None of the residences on Central Avenue which are separated from the Pelphrey building only by an alley was damaged.

The five-member PBS board of directors wrote State Supt. Graham:

"As parents and as concerned citizens, we believe we have done as much as we can do at the local level to implore our school officials to uphold at least a minimum of cleanliness in the Prestonsburg High School. Unfortunately, in a school-year's time, we seem to have failed."

And that, they said, was why they were appealing to Dr. Graham for help.

One was slow about coming around, and he wound up at the UK Medical Center, and they made tests to determine if, maybe, they had drunk some white lightning fortified with methanol or some other poisonous ingredient.

And, after all the reports had been stowed away and the scientific findings made, it was solemnly announced that those toxicology tests indicated that the two had simply drunk too much.

Now they tell us that the federal government is squandering $106,000 of our tax monies so that some professor can learn how fish react when startled. The National Taxpayers Union is very unhappy about it. I don't belong to the union, but I'm not too happy about the matter myself.

But if this professor can put into my possession solid information about the line of communication used by fish to warn the whole finny tribe to lie low when I hie myself off to lake or stream, I'll defend his research till I drop and might even consider slipping him a buck or two on the side.

Those grand juries which persisted in demanding that the parking area at the rear of the courthouse should be properly marked were so right. It's marked off now, and Tuesday morning when about 35 cars and trucks were parked there, only one wasn't in its proper space. The area hasn't been policed—drivers of those vehicles which at one time clogged entrances and exits to the desperation of everybody concerned appear to be quite willing to take the hint and park as they should.

Now, if we can get a grand jury to demand that parking be arranged for those who would like to patronize the post office...

when he'd see men coming home, covered with coal dust after working in the mines.

"Why, I'd a lot rather be in a coal mine right now than settin' here in this chair," the old timer said.

Aside from the mining occupation, Hurt always managed to raise a garden and he and his wife, who died 50 years ago, reared three sons and a daughter. Of his wife, Ruby Goble, of the Dewey section of Johns Creek, Mr. Hurt recalled fondly, "I just the same as raised her from a baby and then married her as soon as she was old enough." Mr. Hurt never married after the death of his wife. "She was the only one I ever needed," he said.

Hunting and fishing always played an important part in his life and his son said at age 95 his father would "skin a straight-up-and-down mountain carrying a shotgun, top the ridge, and start hollerin' for me to hurry and come on up."

Although Mr. Hurt sees working conditions as improving vastly since his days in the mines, he feels that something has been lost in the character of the people. "People used to help each other a lot more, it seemed like. There was always big corn workings and everything where neighbors would pitch in and help out," he remembered.

When asked the inevitable question of his secret of long life, Mr. Hurt said: "Ah, Lord, I couldn't tell you. A lot of hard work I guess, and I'd go right ahead even if I was feeling bad. I never would give in to my feelings."

Work on Roofs Of Schools Set For Fourth Year

The Floyd County Board of Education decided at its regular monthly meeting last week to continue the costly task of replacing or repairing school roofs. The roof program is in its fourth year.

J. C. Moore, of McDowell, veteran maintenance department employee, was hired as maintenance supervisor, succeeding George E. Allen who has retired.

The need to hire more substitute teachers was discussed. Supt. Grigsby said his staff is now working on a new salary schedule for substitute teachers serving during the coming school year and that the pay schedule will be ready for the board's consideration at its June meeting.

A delegation from Parents for Better Schools (PBS) attended the meeting, and the janitorial situation at Prestonsburg High School was discussed. The board decided to continue to contract the services of cleaning firms until the work proves unsatisfactory to all—and if that happens, it was said, the board would of necessity have to return to the method formerly employed, that of hiring individual janitors. The school has had a heavy turnover of custodial help this year. (See separate story on PBS protest.)

Personnel employed:

Linda C. Gearheart, teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Ruth Blanton; Reina Tarquino Trusty, certified substitute teacher; Kim Hall emergency substitute teacher; Carolyn Rowe, teacher aide at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Meigs Dismisses $4 Million Suit

Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs dismissed Monday a $4 million damage suit alleging collusion among bidders on three Floyd county state road projects in 1970.

Meigs, who heard the case without a jury, said there was not enough substantial, persuasive evidence to support a judgment in the case.

J. D. Barter Construction Co., of Harrisburg, Ill., and Mattingly Bridge Co., of Louisville, sought the damages from Jack Ruth, of Georgetown, a former president of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors, and Victor E. Comley, of Nicholasville, the association's executive director.

The Barter and Mattingly firms contended that Ruth and Comley conspired with other Kentucky highway contractors to secure the rejection of low bids by Barter and Mattingly for three projects on US 23 in this county totaling $9.8 million.

Meigs said plaintiffs had failed to produce sufficient evidence to prove that either Comley or Ruth interfered with the state's bid-letting process.

Attorneys for Barter-Mattingly had sought to prove that Ruth and Comley influenced former state Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss to reject Barter's bids for $9,782,754 in July, 1970.

Meigs said evidence produced no reason for Comley to interfere in the bid process. He said Comley, as the association's executive director, would have tried "to steer as cleanly as possible between the Scylla and Charybdis" of the association members, and would have no reason to favor one contractor over another.

Meigs said the case against Comley should be "dismissed out of hand," since there was no proof that he had any motive to influence Goss or did influence him by any overt act.

He said evidence indicated Ruth, however, has an "abundance of motive" to influence the bid process but that even the stronger evidence introduced against Ruth was not sufficient for a judgment against him.

Drawing on the proof submitted by the plaintiffs, Meigs said he would have to indulge in "rather gross speculation" to conclude that Ruth had overtly influenced Goss.

"There's just too much required by surmise, suspicion—too much speculation..." to conclude that Ruth had influenced Goss by some overt act, Meigs said.

In the absence of more convincing evidence, "I find no other course of action but to dismiss," he said.

$2.8 Million Mud Cr. Road Contract Let

The state Transportation Department has awarded 10 contracts totaling $13 million for highway work in northeastern Kentucky.

The contracts resulted from a March 23 bid-letting held in Frankfort. A statewide total of $26.9 million contracts was awarded.

A $2.8 million contract was awarded to Raymond Construction, Louisville, for construction of a bridge and approaches in this county on the Harold-Grethel road (KY 1426) and the KY 979 Connector. The contract includes 1.3 miles of grading, drainage and surfacing.

The largest contract calls for grading, drainage and surfacing on 1.8 miles of US 23 in Lawrence county from near Fuller's Branch near Blaine Creek. The successful bid of $8.7 million was submitted by Bizzack Brothers Construction Corp., Frankfort.

In Bath county, Walker Construction Co., Mt. Sterling, received a $769,660 contract for construction of a bridge and approaches at Prickley Ash Creek on Owingsville-Sharpsburg road (KY 36).

Other highway contracts, listed by county, are:

—Pike County, two contracts totaling $286,543 to State Contracting and Stone Co., Lexington, for blacktop surfacing on 5.5 miles of the Elkhorn City-Shelby Gap road (KY 197) from KY 195 southwest, 1.7 miles of the Marrowbone-Hellier road (KY 195) from KY 611 west, 1.5 miles of the Lower Pompey-Raccoon Creek road (KY 1441) from KY 1789 north, .8 mile of the Laurel Fork-Feds Creek road from the Feds Creek road east, about one-half mile of the Newsome road from U.S. 23 north. Also in Pike county, three contracts totaling $258,184 were awarded to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville, for surfacing on 2.5 miles of the Beehive Creek road from U.S. 23 south, 1.1 miles of the Owl Branch road from U.S. 23 east, .3 mile of the Lower Pigeon Branch road from KY 197 south, 1.5 miles of the Powell Creek road from 1.5 miles east of KY 80 continuing east, one-half mile of the Harless Creek road from KY 80 northeast, one mile of the Blaze Branch road from U.S. 23 southwest.

In Garden Village .2 mile each of Hager Bottom Street and Thacker Street and .1 mile each of Justice Street and Clark Street, 1.2 miles of the Beech Creek road from KY 194 southwest, one-half mile of the Long Fork-Virgie Road (KY 1469) from the end of the blacktop southwest.

—Martin county, a $152,325 contract to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville, for surfacing on .8 mile of the Rockhouse-Davisport road from the end of KY 1224 southwest, .7 of a mile of the Calf Creek road from KY 292 southwest, .7 of a mile of the Sweetwater road from KY 40 to Mountain Gap, 1.1 miles of the Collins Creek road from KY 40 southwest, one mile of the Little Blackdog Creek road from KY 40 east, about one-half mile of the Preston Branch road from KY 40 south.

Bevins Suit Asks Damages from 4

Clifford G. Bevins and his wife, Linda, of Prestonsburg, filed suit Monday in the Floyd circuit court seeking to recover a total of $170,000, including $100,000 for libel or slander, from their former associates in area mining enterprises.

Named as defendants were Joe D. and Joyce Weddington, of Prestonsburg, Jack C. and Vince V. Price, of Johnson county.

Plaintiffs claim that they entered into an agreement last Jan. 19 with defendants, transferring all their interest in six or more firms and that, in return, the defendants were to pay them $25,000 and assume responsibility for all liabilities involved in the several companies. They claim the defendants' refusal to perform the obligations of the agreement has resulted in their harassment by creditors and have caused them "emotional distress, humiliation and embarrassment" to their damage in the amount of $50,000.

Also claiming that Weddington has slandered or libeled them, both orally and in writing, to creditors, they ask $100,000 damages. An injunction also is asked to forbid the defendants from "misrepresenting to the public or any of the creditors alluded to that the plaintiffs, or either of them, are responsible for paying any of the obligations of the business referred to in the agreement of Jan. 19."

An additional $20,000 is asked to cover legal services.

(Reports of damage suits present only the plaintiff's version of the case.)

With Winter Past, Dewey Lake Readies for Busy Visitor Season

A number of recreational facilities are now open at Dewey Lake. This announcement by Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir Manager, U. S. Corps of Engineers, is welcome news to many in the area who are suffering from vernal agorophobia, or an acute case of cabin fever.

Among the facilities open are both the Jenny Wiley and the German Bridge camping areas; Terry's boat dock and the state park's boat dock; the downstream recreational area located at the dam; the nature trails in the park and German area, and the chair lift will open, weekends only, beginning this Saturday. Guided tours of the Dewey Dam operating structure are available, upon request, daily between 2 and 4 p.m.

The swimming pool and miniature golf course are scheduled to open May 30, and the amphitheater will open June 21.

Fishing conditions are said to be improving. Bass are beginning to spawn, and members of the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club, Department of Fish and Wildlife, and Department of Forestry and Corps of Engineers are providing fish attractors in the lake which is at summer pool and clear in the headwaters but murky at the dam.

Fishermen and golfers have known all along that Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park offer almost year-round opportunity for these forms of recreation or relaxation.

Murray said that he and all Corps of Engineers personnel at Dewey felt that the fine cooperation of county, state and local officials, and most of all the public, made the 1978 season a safe one. He said with the same cooperation, the 1979 season can be another "safe" summer at Dewey Lake.

Two freshmen and three sophomores at Prestonsburg High School have scored in the upper 10 per cent nationally on the National Educational Development tests administered last October, it was announced last week by Edgar V. Craft, guidance counselor at the school. Each of the top-ranking students was awarded a Certificate of Educational Development.

Hamilton, sophomore, daughter of Mrs. Wanda Hamilton, Prestonsburg.

"It is natural that we recognize our outstanding athletes, our fine bands, our locally bred beauty queens, even asbestos, but it is not often that we are able to recognize academic excellence, primarily because it is quiet and unassuming," the PHS guidance counselor commented in announcing the list of those who excelled in the test.

Answer to Statement of Lenville Mosley, Walker Blackburn, Willie Moore and Joe Shepherd:

Dr. Ralph Johnson Is a Friend of the Working Man.

"I know and sincerely believe that our economic system cannot function without the working man having a safe, healthy and productive working environment that also gives him secure financial rewards."

STRONG UNION FAMILY BACKGROUND—

"My mother's brother, Uncle Alben Cooley, is a member of the Chemical Oil & Atomic Workers, which is the organized union of his employer, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. Many of my cousins and relatives on my mother's side are members of the UMWA and the Chemical Oil & Atomic Workers Union. My great uncle, Fred Johnson, of Estill, Kentucky, has been a life-long member of the UMWA and is a retired union miner. Many of my relatives on my father's side have been supporters and members of the UMWA. My father-in-law, Elzie Campbell, of Mousie, Kentucky, has been a long-standing UMWA mine worker and presently is employed by National Mines in Knott County in a classified union job. His family has many life-long UMWA members. I come from a strong union background from both my mother's and my father's families, as well as from my wife's family."

SHARES AND UNDERSTANDS THE WORKING MAN'S PROBLEMS AND PLIGHT—

"I know the working man's problems and understand the plight of the insecurity that an unstable coal industry can bring to his family. I have and continue to dedicate myself to stabilizing the coal industry so that the working man and his family can have a secure and rewarding life, both now and in the future. I have had firsthand knowledge of the problems of all the working men in Eastern Kentucky who have been employed in the coal industry, the gas industry, the rail and transportation industries, as well as the supporting industries for these, through my being reared here in the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky and through my work as a dentist. I have also learned that you can't make any man join a union or any company accept the union. The only thing you can make somebody is "mad". I cannot dictate what relationship any employer will have with his employees or an employee will have with his employer, nor can anyone else. This is something to be worked out between them."

STRONG ECONOMY FOR EASTERN KENTUCKY—

"I am for a strong economy for Eastern Kentucky, recognizing that the coal industry, through a partnership of employers with employees, have to provide a stable, safe and rewarding environment in which to live in Eastern Kentucky for today and provide the means to have a diversified economy for our children in the future; and I will work with all the people, regardless of the type of employment, to assure that we have a better place in which to live, not only for ourselves but for our children and grandchildren. This is my pledge to all the people of Eastern Kentucky."

Dan Slone , 65, Dies In Head-On Crash

Floyd County Board of Education vehicles have been involved in two traffic mishaps which occurred less than a mile apart within the week. The first, last Wednesday morning, resulted in the death of Dan Slone, 65, of Wayland.
The accident occurred at 9:45 as Slone was traveling south toward Allen in a mini-pickup truck. According to State Trooper Dennie Williams, traffic had been halted by flagmen on a stretch of road near the Almar Theatre while grading was being done by a state highway department crew. Tom Blackburn, driver of the board of education truck, came over a slight rise onto the halted traffic to find that his brakes were not working. Trooper Williams said Blackburn told him he saw nothing in the opposite lane and swerved there to avoid running into the parked cars and met the vehicle driven by Slone, head-on.

Slone died at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin about four hours later.
The victim was a retired miner, last employed by the Elk Horn Coal Corp., and was a member of the Regular Baptist Church. He was a son of the late Mack and Sarah Slone.
Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Vina Hall Slone; five sons, Emil Slone, of Otisco, Inc., Danny D. Slone, of Richmond, Buford, James F., and Paul E. Slone, all of Wayland; four daughters, Mrs. Janie VanHoose and Mrs. Peggy Sue Hall, both of Wayland, Mrs. Olive Conley, of Richmond, and Mrs. Joy Lee Patton, of Hueysville; two brothers, Delzy and Birchell Slone, both of Garner; one sister, Mrs. Mary Belle Thacker, of Leburn; 19 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at the Stone Coal Regular Baptist Church at 10 a.m. Saturday by Regular Baptist ministers, and burial was made in the Lucy Hall cemetery at McDowell under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.
The second accident, in which no was injured, occurred Tuesday morning near the bridge leading from KY 80 above Allen to the Floyd County Park when a school bus taking students to the Garth school ran into the rear of another vehicle. According to the driver, a car parked on the roadway blocked traffic, causing other cars in front of the bus to stop suddenly, and the driver was unable to come to a stop in time to avoid a collision.

County Cleanup Urged
By JANET E. HICKS
Health Educator
Getting rid of garbage and trash is a problem for everyone in Floyd county. In rural areas like ours, the individual frequently must handle his own trash either by taking care of it on his own property or by bringing it to a collection point. Proper handling of waste protects all of us, conserves our natural resources, and adds to the beauty and quality of our environment. More importantly, handling garbage properly prevents the spread of disease. Every Floyd countian should do his or her part by seeing that solid waste is disposed of in a sanitary manner.
This year, the months of May and June are cleanup and beautification months in Floyd county. In cooperation with County Judge Executive Yvonne Jones' proclamation of clean-up month in our county, the Floyd County Health Department would like to assist in this program.
Kentucky Law KRS 224-060 requires the local health department to investigate public health nuisances. However, garbage dumps and trash in creeks require investigation by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. Persons with these types of problems may contact Vicki Baker, field inspector, Non-Hazardous Material and Waste Management, 825 High Street, 3rd Floor, Hazard, Ky., 41701 or call 606-439-2391.
The Floyd County Health Department does, however, inspect restaurants, food markets, food-borne disease outbreaks, mobile home parks, and motels. For assistance in any of the above matters, call the health department at 886-2788.

To become a member one has to fire a perfect score on the practical pistol course. Of the 13,000 persons graduating previously only about 50 have been eligible for membership.
Asher, a Harlan county native, graduated from Loyall High School in 1965 and entered the Army, serving two hitches in Viet Nam in various airborne infantry units. He is a 10-year veteran of the State Police, serving as a trooper and detective at the Ashland Post and came to Pikeville with his promotion to sergeant in September, 1977. He currently resides in Boyd county with his wife, Shirley, and son, Doug II.

Firm Presents P'burg Facelift Study Findings

Establishment of hundreds of additional parking spaces was pointed to as prerequisite for future revitalization of Prestonsburg's downtown business section at a meeting Tuesday night in which members of the Prestonsburg Merchants Development Association and interested citizens heard the report of a Greenville, Ill. planning firm concerning renovation strategies for the city.
Allen W. Johnson, president of General Designs, the firm engaged some months ago to study the city's problems, presented architect's drawings and showed a series of slides which illustrated work which had been accomplished in a number of other communities and explained how similar plans might benefit Prestonsburg's shopping area. At the outset of the meeting, he commended the sizeable crowd which attended. "In more than a hundred communities in which we've worked, I've never made a presentation before a larger group," Johnson commented.
"You are as poor in terms of parking as any community we've seen," said Johnson, who told the group that Prestonsburg needs 435 added parking spaces "just to approach being adequate."
One plan occupying considerable discussion at the meet involved the proposed construction of a three or four-tier parking structure on the present site of the municipal parking lot opposite the courthouse. Johnson said such a structure would provide about 300 spaces and would cost an estimated $3.4 million. Johnson said because of the prosperity of the town it seemed unlikely that any monies could be secured through federal or state funding programs. "I think it could be done locally," Johnson said, "but the question you all must answer is—do you think it's that important."
Johnson also offered dozens of other suggestions which his firm had compiled through close examination of city facilities and a series of interviews with residents and business people on possible renovation projects. A question and answer session followed Tuesday night's meet which was held at the Floyd County Library.
(Editor's note: Tuesday's meeting was still in progress as this abbreviated report was being written. A more detailed account of the session with accompanying photos will appear in next week's issue of The Times.)

By midyear 1978, one out of every two U.S. women 16 years old and over was working or looking for work, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Veterans' Insurance Item 20 Years Late

The item published in The Times last week to the effect that World War II veterans are eligible to a dividend on their G. I. insurance apparently was outdated by a mere 20 years or more.

In response to an inquiry made by S. R. Hatcher, of Allen, after publication of the item, the Veterans Administration advised:

"We are sorry but your inquiry, which we are returning, refers to a dividend which was declared in January, 1950." VA cited the provision of federal law which provides that no claim by an insured for payment of a special dividend declared prior to Jan. 1, 1952 shall be processed by the Veterans Administration unless such claim was received within six years after the dividend was declared.

Apparently the item sent The Times for publication was dug out of somebody's scrapbook. Sorry.

Humane Society Meet
Asks Public Input

The Floyd County Humane Society, Inc. will hold an open meeting, Thursday, May 17 at 7:30 p.m. in room 113 of the Pike Technology Building, Prestonsburg Community College.

With the new animal shelter near Prestonsburg scheduled to open within the next few weeks, the humane society is asking the public to submit any ideas or ask any questions regarding the operation of the facility. Next week's meeting will give area residents that opportunity.

"The new animal shelter has been established to serve the residents of Floyd county, so we're hoping people will make a little effort and attend this important meeting," said Debbie Burke, humane society spokesman.

WHY IS

BILL
WELLS
RUNNING FOR COUNTY
JUDGE

GOOD QUESTION.

Politics is supposed to be cold, dirty, and demanding. So why get involved? Why run for office? Because if you're like Bill Wells, you care about things too much to stand on the sidelines.

WHO IS BILL WELLS TO CARE?

He is a Floyd Countian committed to put Floyd County's future first. He is a father, and a grandfather, who wants Floyd County to be an even better place for his children and your children. He is a citizen, who is fed up with the inability of county government to meet the needs of the people.

BILL WELLS CARES ABOUT MAKING GOVERNMENT RESPONSIBLE TO THE PEOPLE!

He knows that government seems too impersonal. When people want action, they can't get it, and when they need answers, they can't get at the source to ask the questions.

Bill Wells will be a new voice for Floyd County. He will hold community meetings to hear your complaints, your questions, your needs. Then he will cut through the red tape to solve your needs.

HOW TO SHOW THAT YOU CARE, TOO!

Work for Bill Wells for County Judge-Executive.
Write us at 108 Hager Street, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653

Appalachian Moods Set May 17, on KET

Foot-stomping, fast-strumming, flat-picking and "some mighty intense vocalizing" characterize "Appalachian Moods," a 30-minute bluegrass music special Thursday, May 17 at 10:30 p.m. (ET), 9:30 (CT) and Sunday, May 20 at 2:00 p.m. (ET), 1:00 p.m. (CT).

"Appalachian Moods," featuring the Black Mountain Bluegrass Boys, the Wild Turkey String Band and folk singer Christine Niemann, brings to life a blend of Appalachian music styles including traditional bluegrass, traditional old-time mountain and contemporary folk songs.

"A Million Lonely Days," "Messin' With The Law" and "Just How Long" by the Black Mountain Bluegrass Boys exemplify the best of bluegrass, which combines instrumental improvisations with high-pitched vocals.

The Wild Turkey String Band has clung to its pure, traditional old-time mountain sound based on fiddle tunes brought to America by Scottish, English, Irish and French settlers. The "hoe-down" quality of the song invites one to go a-clogging and square dancing.

Folk singer Christine Niemann provides the contemporary element in "Appalachian Moods" with a blend of old and new musical styles.

(Pol. Adv. Pd. For By Candidate)

Greg Stumbo, Candidate for State Representative in the May Democratic Primary, has not made any false promises during this campaign. Instead, he has offered fresh new ideas and concepts that he believes will bring our Coal Severance Tax Dollars back here where they belong. Greg knows that it takes money to repair and maintain our rural and secondary roads, build bridges, upgrade the schools, and organize a solid waste program to solve the garbage problem. He believes that with qualified leadership in Frankfort we can obtain the money to fund these projects.

Can He Do It? Here is a true story.

In January of 1978, Floyd County was ready to lose approximately ½ million dollars of Federally Appropriated Money granted to build a bridge to the new County Park at Allen. It was a complicated legal issue and the situation looked bleak. Without a bridge the park was useless. County Judge Henry Stumbo called upon Greg, then Assistant County Attorney, and sent him, as Floyd County's Representative, to Atlanta, Ga. in an effort to salvage the project through negotiations with the Federal Agency.

When Greg returned home it was a relieved and happy Judge that learned—the Job Had Been Done. Floyd County was assured the bridge would be built—another step toward the dream of a County Park For All Of The People.

Later, another problem arose concerning lawsuits filed against the County and the Fiscal Court over the park. Again, Judge Stumbo called upon Greg, (even though he had previously resigned his Assistant County Attorney's job to return to private law practice) to represent the County as Special Counsel. As of this date, Floyd County has not been out one cent as a result of these lawsuits, and never will be.

Have you heard that there are going to be bridges built at Dwale, Tram, Minnie and Hunter, along with new roads for Little Mud, Abbott, Little Paint, Jacks Creek, Clear Creek and just about everywhere else?

Will these be new projects, or the ones we heard about four years ago?

If you drive to Allen you will see a New Bridge and a New Park. Greg Stumbo is not saying that he was responsible for these things. We are just using this as an example of what can be accomplished with responsible, qualified leadership—dedicated to the needs of All The People.

If you look back over the past four years and see that the roads have gotten worse, the garbage deeper, taxes higher, utility bills increased and more Severance Tax Dollars lost downstate, then you'll agree, WE NEED GREG STUMBO IN FRANKFORT.

PUT FLOYD COUNTY BACK ON THE GO!

Extension Service Notes

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

Do you like to eat baked sweet potatoes but don't care for digging them out of their ridges. Then try butternut squash, when it is baked it has almost the same flavor as sweet potatoes but grows on a vine for easier harvesting.

This year gardening meetings were held at Weeksbury, Harold, Maytown, Wheelwright, Bonanza, and Wayland to introduce butternut squash, broccoli and cauliflower to home gardeners.

It is too late now to set out broccoli and cauliflower since they are cool season crops and perform better when planted the first week in April.

Butternut squash is a warm season vegetable and should be planted when the soil temperature is at least 60 degrees F which is usually around May 10.

In preparing butternut squash hills for planting, dig the hole 6-10 inches deep and eighteen inches wide and three inches higher than the ground. If a soil sample was not taken, spread one handful of 6-12-12 fertilizer on the hill and mix the fertilizer in the hill.

In each hill plant six seeds two inches apart and one inch deep. When the squash plants are four inches tall thin them out to the best three plants.

Weed Control: Hoe soil only one inch deep. Squash roots are only two inches from the soil surface. They can spread out 6 feet or more.

An even better way to control weeds is to mulch. Mulch and fertilizer help more than fertilizer alone.

For bigger and better plants you can side-dress butternut squash with ammonium nitrate. When the plants begin to vine, spread 1/4 cup of ammonium nitrate around each hill; work it in with a hoe.

Butternut squash is ready to pick when the color is light brown. Cut it off with a sharp knife leaving 1/4 to 1/2 inch stem, for longer storage life. Let squash dry for 2 weeks in a warm place. Store at 45-55 degrees F. Check every few weeks and remove one showing signs of spoilage.

For recipes on preparing butternut squash 22 different ways, call the County Extension Office for a free copy, 886-2668. Also we have a limited supply of broccoli and cauliflower recipes.

Parents of eligible pre-school children, 3 to 5 years old, may apply for enrollment from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, May 11, at the Head Start Centers at Dwale and Drift. Those seeking to enroll a child should bring with them verification of family income and child's immunization record if available.

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

Congratulations to Dr. June A. Brose on her winning second place in the costume competition at the meeting of District XI, Kentucky Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Pine Mountain State Park. Dr. Brose is a member of the Pikeville B & PW Club and is a member of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckman Caldwell attended the baptismal services at the Mullins Emmanuel Baptist Church last Sunday when their grandchildren, Beverly and Brian Branham, were baptized.

The Betsy Layne community has several churches; The Freewill Baptist, Calvary Baptist, the Church of Christ, the Church of God and the Betsy Layne United Methodist. If you do not have a church home, these churches welcome you to attend.

Citizens of Betsy Layne were saddened to learn of the death of Alice Justice Campbell. She was the sister of Perry Justice, owner of the Justice Funeral Home at Pikeville.

Harria Stamper was honored with a party on her ninth birthday, at her home, she received many gifts. She is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Harry R. Stamper.

Mrs. Betty Bartley spent Friday afternoon with her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Jones, and Bobby.

We extend our sympathy to the family of John L. Martin, Mr. Martin was from Floyd Co. and attended Betsy Layne High School. He was the husband of Lorraine S. Martin and the brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Davis.

Mrs. Hattie Johnson has been ill at her home.

Mrs. Edith Mae Stanley is in Louisville with her daughter, Patty, who has had surgery. She is doing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hall have returned home after a two-week vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Branham spent a few days in Florida recently.

Mrs. Helen Lucille Tabler, niece of the late Jess Elliott, who has been visiting Kelsa Elliott for two weeks, is now a patient at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital. She became ill the day before she was to return to her home in Tacoma, Washington.

Dennie Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Daniels, has improved at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital. He was in a car wreck several weeks ago.

There will be a revival at the Betsy Layne Church of Christ, beginning May 13 and continuing through May 18. Bennie Blankenship will bring the messages. Thomas Spears is the pastor there.

Congratulations to Wesley Robinson upon his graduation from Pikeville High School. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Robinson.

"Aunt" Margaret Boyd has been a patient in the Pikeville Methodist Hospital, but has been moved to the Pikeville Nursing Home. Aunt Margaret is one of the older citizens of Betsy Layne.

We wonder why there has been no Red Cross or arthritis drives this year for Floyd County. Maybe some one with more knowledge can tell us more, and where to send our small contributions.

Applications Being Taken for Highland Terrace Tenants

Applications are now being accepted for apartments at the Highland Terrace high-rise presently under construction at the mouth of Mays Branch here, according to Julia May, executive director of the Prestonsburg Housing Authority.

The four-story structure, which is expected to be completed by late July or early August, will provide 80 units for older citizens (minimum age 62) or disabled or physically handicapped persons.

Work on the Church Housing Authority project is being done by the J. T. Goggins Company, of Danville, Kentucky.

Miss May, who is managing Highlands Terrace for the Church Housing Authority, stressed that persons interested in housing at the new project should contact the housing office at Green Acres or call 886-6707.

JAMES GAYHEART
Democrat for
STATE SENATOR

I'm glad people are looking at the candidates and their qualifications. The voters of the 29th District need to send a senator to Frankfort who will work for all the different interests in eastern Kentucky. I am that man. I have been a college administrator, operate my own business, and ran for the Senate in 1975.

I am a veteran of three years' service in the U.S. Army. I will work with any veterans' or DAV group for jobs and benefits.

I will support the working man and try to bring new industry to the district, so the young people will not have to leave to get jobs. After two years at Alice Lloyd College I had to go to Michigan to find employment at a Ford truck plant where I was a member of the United Auto Workers. I pulled picket duty, receiving $25 a week striker's benefits. I understand the problems of the working man.

My father and stepfather were United Mine workers. My mother receives Black Lung benefits after being denied it for over five years, winning only after an Appeals Judge heard the case. My family knows the hopes and the sorrows of the Black Lung program.

There were 13 children in our family. Our disabled father received free medical care through the UMW. This represented a security that only disabled miners can appreciate and caused a feeling of despair that only disabled miners can understand, when those benefits were suddenly taken from us.

I am not supported by any big-time politicians or big companies. My only obligation or debt I will owe will be to the voters of the 29th District. This will allow me to go to Frankfort with my top priority to work only for all the people of the 29th District. This is the main issue of this campaign. The candidate who is willing and concerned about working for the people of our district, who will work for a good rural road program, educational opportunities for our young people, sanitary landfills, housing programs and tax exemption for our elderly, handicapped and retired people is the best candidate. That candidate is James Gayheart. Work for me a minute or so on Election Day and I'll work for you for the next four years.

Mail Size Standards
Effective July 15

"Use up your small and undersized envelopes and cards before July 15," Postmaster Don Osborne reminds customers. That is the date when the Postal Service's new size standards become effective.

The Prestonsburg postmaster said that because the envelope and greeting card industries have had more than three years to prepare for the new standards, few retailers should still be selling undersized pieces. "Many consumers, however, are likely to still have smaller envelopes and cards in their supply of stationery," he said.

The regulations also prohibit flimsy cards. In the future they must be at least seven-thousandths of an inch thick. An official post card, for instance, has a thickness of nine-thousandths of an inch. Undersized pieces and flimsy cards are being banned because they can become trapped in other mail, tear and jam mail processing machinery. As a result, the letter of others can also be damaged.

The standards also affect oversized and odd-shaped pieces of mail, Mr. Osborne said. For first-class mail weighing one ounce or less, there will be a surcharge of 7 cents for pieces more than 6 1/2 inches high or 11 1/2 inches long.

For more information, the postmaster suggests customers check with a post office window clerk.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN

Artist on the Water—Greg Goble

By KENNY RICE

Each summer, water sports participants grow in numbers in Floyd and surrounding counties. The facilities offered by Dewey Lake is the main reason for this increase in boating, fishing, paddle boating, swimming and water skiing.

Water skiing is the fastest growing water sport in this area. There are many reasons for this rapid increase of people wanting to glide across the water on what amounts to a couple of slender boards.

Greg Goble, a junior at the University of Kentucky majoring in mine engineering, learned to water ski when he was an eighth grader at Prestonsburg Elementary. He tells why he was taken by the sport.

"I was around the water a lot and I like to swim, and learning to water ski was just an opportunity that came up. After I started skiing, the challenge got me hooked. I think skiing is something that you don't get satisfied with, there's always things to work on and you can move from two skis to one ski and then to trick skis. I like individual sports, and skiing is one of the best. It's up to you to get better and the more you work on it the better you get. Plus—it's a relaxing way to spend an afternoon on the water while you get a tan and you meet a lot of people. Everyone's friendly, I hardly ever pass a boat where the people won't wave and say 'hello'."

Goble has worked so hard at improving his skiing skills, that he is regarded as one of the area's top skiers. The artistry one can achieve on skis has impressed Goble also. He has advanced from the basic skiing rules to the mastery of the one ski and now on to trick skiing complete with 360 degree turns and jumps.

Greg hasn't forgotten the basics of the sport however, and he offers these tips to those wishing to take up water skiing this summer.

"Probably the first time you ski, you won't stay up very long, there's a tendency to get tired in your knees and thighs. But you'll get in better condition as you ski more. The important thing in starting out is getting up on the skis. To do this, get the slack out of the rope, have the rope between the skis with your knees up to your chest, set your tail back on your heels. Keep the tips out of the water from eight to fourteen inches. As you break out of the water, don't put much weight forward, as the rope pulls out extend your arms with the rope. You should be able to get up on the skis within five tries, but don't get discouraged if you don't get up that soon, sometimes there's hesitance because you may feel awkward about standing on water."

Goble also stresses the importance of keeping your composure in the water. "When you first get up on the skis, ski as you feel comfortable. If you feel like stopping, try to angle over toward the shore and let go of the rope, and you can swim toward the shore. However if you quit, or fall, in the middle of the lake, be sure to hold your ski out of the water so other boats can see you. Never panic. If there's an emergency and you feel out of control, let go of the rope and fall backward away from the skis and rope. With your ski vest on, you'll float with your head and shoulders out of the water. When you fall your feet will come out of the skis. You take slack out of the rope by pulling on the handles but if you lose your grip on the rope never try to grab the line, just let go of the rope and fall into the water. Skiing is a safe sport, if you keep your poise."

PUBLIC NOTICE

There will be a regular meeting of the Floyd County Task Force in Solid Waste, Thursday May 10, 1979 at the hour of 6 p.m. in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex Conference Room.

5-2-79.

Thursday Night

"The Hell Bound Train"
First Assembly of God Church
Martin, Ky.

Another important aspect of skiing is the communication between driver and skier. It takes three people to achieve this, the skier, an observer and the driver. It's the job of the observer to relay the signals from the skier to the driver. These signals, basically speed up, slow down, turn left or right, etc., should always be decided before any of the three get on the water.

"It also helps if the driver is a skier," Goble says, "If the driver skis, he has an instinct for what's going on behind him. The driver is very important. A good driver makes it a lot better on a beginner, especially on getting him up on skis to start out. The driver knows how to throttle the boat to pull the skier out of the water and he knows what his boat is capable of doing."

A good boat is also valuable to the skier. "A good boat pulls the skier smoothly, it can plane (assume normal running position) quickly, which can get you on top of the water faster. It makes a lot of difference," Goble notes.

DIXONS FINISH SECOND

Last fall Mike Dixon finished second in the University of Kentucky intramural horseshoe pitching tournament. Two weeks ago, Mike entered the UK intramural doubles horseshoe tourney. His partner was the man who quarterbacked Prestonsburg to the district championship in 1976, and who happened to be Mike's brother, Greg.

Mike and Greg advanced through the rounds of the tourney and into the finals before losing to the defending champs.

"I wish we'd won, naturally, but I'm happy to reach the finals again," Mike said.

"We gave a solid effort and lost to a very good pair of horseshoe pitchers (who pitch in a Lexington league) so I'm proud we made the finals. Second isn't all that bad," added Greg.

MUSIC IN ALL-STAR TRYOUTS

Prestonsburg's All-State center, Dee Dee Music, will be in Laurel county this Friday and Saturday competing with 17 other girls for one of the 10 spots available on the Kentucky All-Star squad that will face Indiana in June.

REGIONAL GOLF DATES

The Eastern Kentucky Regional Golf Tourney with 20 teams ranging from an area covering Jenkins, Pike county, Ashland, Johnson, Magoffin and Floyd counties runs May 19-20 at the Paintsville Country Club. The team with the best total for four players will advance to the state tourney. The top eight individuals will advance to the individual state tourney, the week following the team tournament.

DERBY PARTY HOSTS

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Ford, Jr. entertained with a Derby party at their home here Saturday evening. Enjoying the occasion with them were Mr. and Mrs. Dow Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dingus, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Calhoun and son, Steve. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ford at the close of the evening.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Vickers announce the birth of their second child, first daughter at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, on May 2. The baby has been named Sarah Susanne. Mrs. Vickers' parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. (Huck) Francis, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Vickers' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Vickers, of Tampa, Florida. Mrs. Ruth Isbell, of Prestonsburg, is the baby's maternal great-grandmother.

HERE FROM LEXINGTON

Mrs. Oriole Maggard, of Lexington, was here and elsewhere in the county during the week-end for a visit with relatives and friends. While here, she was a guest in the home of Mrs. Grace Sutherland, Miss Alice Harris and Mrs. Martha Allen, and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Troy B. Sturgill, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dingus and other relatives. On Sunday she attended the 50th wedding anniversary observance of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Burchett, on the Auxier road.

FIRST-ROUND FORM—Phil Simms, Louisville senior at Morehead State University, shows the form that made him the first-round pick of the New York Giants in the recent National Football League draft. Ohio Valley Conference "Offensive Player of the Year" in 1977, Simms was the seventh player selected nationwide by the NFL clubs.

Loblolly Pines Hit By Severe Winter

Kentucky's loblolly pines are beginning to show the ill effects of last winter's severe weather.

According to officials in the state Division of Forestry, for the past several years many loblolly pines across the state have turned brown in late winter and early spring. The cause of this browning is known as "winter burn." It is a direct result of the severe cold weather of the past three winters. Pines planted along highways and in other exposed areas are particularly susceptible to winter burn.

Unlike hardwoods such as oak, pine trees retain their foliage year round and need small amounts of water during the winter months. During periods of intense cold weather, the water normally available in the ground becomes frozen. In shallow soils that problem is intensified because the pine roots cannot grow below the frozen layer.

Under moderate to strong winds the roots cannot absorb water as fast as the needles lose it through respiration and transpiration. The faster the wind, the faster the water is lost. This causes the cell structures within the needles to dry out, collapse and die.

Due to cold weather and lack of growth, the needle tissues retain their greenery for a short while. Once the weather warms up and growth starts, existing needles turn a reddish brown.

Fortunately, only the needles are affected. The trees themselves are rarely killed by winter burn. By the end of June, affected loblolly pines should turn green, although the foliage may appear thin for a year.

According to forestry officials, the best way to avoid this unsightly problem is to refrain from planting loblolly pines in exposed areas. The only cure for a tree that has been winter burned is time.

For further information on winter burn (or any tree insect or disease) contact your nearest Kentucky Division of Forestry district office.

WHAT DO YOU THINK, ENERGY GROWS ON TREES?

Buck Stove Owners Know It Does.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if energy grew on trees? Every morning the sun could come up and, from sea to shining sea, America could sprout a little more energy.

Naturally, energy does grow on trees. Trees, in fact are our only expandable energy source.

The only problem with using energy from trees has been that the sun does a great job of packing energy into trees, but people do a poor job of getting it out again.

Until Buck Stove, that is. Buck Stove is almost as good at getting energy out of trees as nature is at getting it into them. Buck Stove is the wood stove for modern America.

How well do Buck Stoves work? Well, a recent owner survey uncovered the fact that 96% of the families surveyed used their Buck Stove as their primary heat source. Doesn't that tell you something?

Another interesting fact came to light during this survey. Of all the really great reasons for buying a Buck Stove (like saving 50—80% on your heating bills, as a majority of our customers do), fully 48% of the customers surveyed listed outstanding quality as their number one reason for buying a Buck Stove.

Of course, this didn't surprise us. We know all about that quality; which is why we can conditionally guarantee your Buck Stove for the lifetime of the original owner.

Buck Stoves are safe and easy to install, too. These all-steel, heavy-duty stoves meet the strict safety standards set by the National Fire Protection Association and Underwriter's Laboratories. And every Buck Stove dealer has trained, certified installers who assure you of the safest, most effective installation. Or, you can even do it yourself.

Because energy grows on trees, and money doesn't, Buck Stove is the sensible alternative for the American homeowner.

To Add Life to Interior

By FRANCIS H. PITTS
County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

After all the time spent indoors this winter, it's natural to be tired of interiors and furnishings. One easy and usually inexpensive way to give a home a new look is by changing the pictures on the walls.

Move pictures around within the home, or replace them for the next few months with others that you like. Consider hanging a grouping of smaller pictures on a wall where you presently have one large picture, maybe you'll want to display some of the artwork done by the children, or a needlework project you finally finished this winter.

The first thing to do before hanging anything is to consider the wall space you have. Don't limit yourself to wide open spaces in the center of a wall. Small arrangements can add a welcoming note between windows, beside doorways, and at the foot of stairs.

When choosing spaces, remember that eye level is relative. Be sure to consider whether the grouping is usually seen while seated or while standing. Pictures in children's rooms need to be placed at their eye level.

Not every space needs to be filled. Too much on the walls or too many large pictures make a room look small and cluttered. It's important to leave some empty spaces for the eyes to rest.

Pictures hung together in a grouping should give the feeling that they belong together. They may be similar in size, color tones or subject. The frames don't need to match, but they should be complementary.

If one of your favorites doesn't seem to fit in, find a special spot for it elsewhere. Don't let it ruin an otherwise pleasing arrangement.

As you gather items for the grouping, keep in mind the color and texture of the wall that will be the background. Take into account also the furniture, lamps or plants which will be seen with the grouping. Don't let pictures "float" by placing them too high above a piece of furniture, or by spacing them too far apart within the grouping.

Generally an odd number of objects can be arranged in a more interesting way than an even number. You may want to include a plaque or other three-dimensional piece along with flat pictures.

Whatever the number and size of the objects, try to have at least one straight line. It may be along the bottom, a side, the top or through the middle. This will help make the arrangement a unit rather than a haphazard collection.

Some examples of wild flowers and their special requirements:

The soil in the coniferous forest is always acid. Fungi needed for Pink Lady Slippers are present here. Pipsissewa grow well here, too.

A mixed forest of oak and evergreens is also very acid. Here wild Azalea, Mountain, Laurel, Trailing Arbutus and Hepatica do well.

Under Hemlock Trees the Little Brown Jug can be found.

Hepatica need filtered sunlight when in flower but can stand complete shade thereafter.

Wild Columbine does best in shade and needs semi-shade.

Wildflower Gardening

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

According to Rufus Fugate, agriculture agent in Leslie county who is widely known for his knowledge and love of wild flowers:

The majority of cultivated plants do succeed reasonably well in any good garden soil and if some do not survive, they can easily be replaced with no turnings of conscience that a choice native species has been sacrificed. A wild flower garden is quite a different matter.

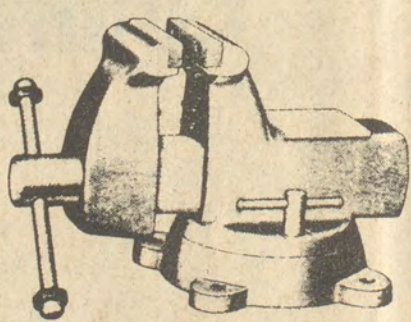

Wild flower gardening is either done correctly or the flowers are destroyed. If you are going to try your luck, garden study the environment under which the plants are growing, then put them back in, as nearly as possible, the same kind of situation: A plant growing in very acid soil can never be happy in soil that is less acid.

A gardener should investigate the climate conditions on his own place thoroughly, then try to choose those species which will take hold in that situation. Factors that you need to consider are: the amount of shade or sunlight; types of trees and undergrowth; pine or mixed hardwoods; soil pH or acid level; existing vegetation, wet areas, dry areas, rocky areas; some grow well on large rocks and a little soil; available organic matter.

A POSITIVE CANDIDATE

These groups, along with the many thousands of people that Benny Ray has talked to, have learned that Benny Ray Bailey has an understanding of the issues, can address the issues, and is very positive in his belief that we can build a better life here in the Mountains. Other candidates may resort to spreading rumors and gossip. Benny Ray Bailey is not that kind of a candidate; he will not be that kind of Senator.

The voters of Floyd County have received Benny Ray with high enthusiasm. People know that a candidate that has made all attempts to talk with them during the campaign will just naturally continue to talk with them after the election is over.

Benny Ray's view of politics is simple and straightforward: "I believe that all candidates should make every effort to make the voters aware of their stand on the critical issues. If all candidates will state publicly that they will support the working people, that they will work for the return of our coal severance tax money, that they will work for better housing programs, for more funds for our rural roads, will support education, and demonstrate to the people that they have a grasp of these issues, then the real winner of this election will be the people of East Kentucky. I don't believe our people enjoy or approve of malicious personal attacks by misinformed people. I will never participate in this type of underminded politics."

Benny Ray Bailey offers the voters of District 29 a candidate who has made every effort to present to the people his views on the critical issues. Benny Ray has asked for the views of the people. As State Senator, Benny Ray will continue to work with our people to see that we get a fair hearing on all legislative matters. A vote for Benny Ray Bailey makes sense for East Kentucky. It's a vote for you.

A few months ago, Benny Ray Bailey began his campaign for State Senator. Since he began, Benny Ray has made every effort to contact every single voter in the 29th Senatorial District. Benny Ray has tried to identify the real issues that are of concern to our people and tell the people of his ideas on the issues.

Benny Ray Bailey has a deep faith in our people and in their ability to relate to the issues. Benny Ray has attended all meetings, addressed all groups, and met with any person or group of persons that have requested him to. The results have been very positive.

All groups that have met with Benny Ray and listened to his presentation of the issues have given him their endorsement. Among these are:

1. The United Mine Workers of America's Political Action Committee, COMPAC;
2. The local union of the Communications Workers of America;
3. The Kentucky Education Association's Political Action Committee, KEPAC, which represents classroom teachers in Floyd, Knott and Perry Counties.

Fashioning a Wardrobe to Fit You

By Ruth Gerchick

These days, even fashion models must watch their clothing budgets. Yet somehow, they always look chic and expensively dressed.

Barring occasional opportunities to buy at wholesale prices, how do models manage to dress so well? What do they know that most of us don't?

Good planning is the answer. Models take lessons from experts. They learn how to appraise their appearance realistically and how to make necessary improvements. Not least, they know when clothes are well-made and fit correctly. Although not all models are beautiful, all successful ones accentuate their best features and extract extra mileage from their clothing dollars.

Of course, not everyone wants to look like a model. Many women prefer not to reek with chic. Nevertheless, a becoming, coordinated wardrobe is a must for the office, and it does wonders for your morale, wherever you are.

How to re-vamp your wardrobe? The best way to start afresh is to go through your closets and weed out clothes you haven't worn for a year or more, either because you don't like them, they fit badly, or they're not comfortable. Sweaters that have pilled will never look fresh, nor will belts with tarnished buckles dress up a bright new skirt. It's better to have fewer, wearable clothes right at hand than a closetful of sad and sullen outfits that are dated.

After shaping up your closet, ship out the tired clothes to the Salvation Army or some other worthy agency. Next, analyze what's left. Try pairing shirts and tops in new combinations. The beige sweater you wore with the now baggy brown skirt may be the perfect complement to a pair of raspberry colored jeans.

After making all the new matches you can find, list other items of clothing you need to round out the selection. When you're ready to shop, remember your scheme and limit your browsing time. It's easy to forget what you came for, and spontaneous purchases may wreck your budget as well as your plans for a carefully co-ordinated wardrobe.

By now, having weeded out the unflattering clothes, you'll have a pretty good idea of colors that become you and those to avoid. If you're a brunette with fallow skin, you're probably not addicted to mustard or bottle green anyway. "It's best to stick to basic colors (blue, brown, black, beige), for expensive coats and suits because the basic colors will never go out of fashion" according to Nancy Andrews, the stylist for the Vicki Vaughan junior dress division of R and M Kaufman. Scarves, jewelry, and other accessories can provide the bright touches and extra flair.

Simple "classic" designs offer the most fashion for the least amount of money. "Classic" doesn't have to mean dull, however. It does mean a minimum of clutter, few fancy buttons or trimmings and collars that are neither extremely small nor extremely large, so the garments won't look hopelessly out of style when next season rolls around. "It's easy to be drawn towards faddish new trends," said Ms. Andrews "but if you're on a limited budget, it's much safer to go with an updated version of a classic style."

If the dress fits, wear it. But how can you be sure, especially if you are shopping by yourself?

Shoulders are the key. Garments hang well when shoulder seams are in the right place, usually just above the V between the outstretched upper arm and the chest. However, loose and flowing blouses or ones with batwing or dolman sleeves sometimes break this rule with shoulder seams that drift a few inches down the arm.

If a jacket or dress is fitted, the waistline must match yours. Although back darts and seams can be adjusted to your dimensions, you can save alteration money by choosing the right size to begin with. Jacket lengths are important too. When worn with pants, jackets should cover the seat. A skirt jacket may be slightly shorter, unless you are especially tall.

You can't judge a book by its cover nor clothing by its labels, but in both cases, the printed word helps. Become familiar with brand names. Some large companies make a range of styles in 5-6 different proportions. When you've found a brand that fits you well, you can save shopping time by continuing to look for new styles under that name. Reliable companies standardize their sizes so you can be sure of a good fit time after time.

Look, too, for properly matched print designs. Check that stitching is neat and seams are even in width and securely sewn without puckers. Zippers should be neat and easy to close.

Insist, also, on knowing the composition of the garment's fabric and recommendations for its care, including whether it may be washed rather than dry-cleaned. A dress ruined by improper care is no bargain.

Give Children Their Own Garden Spot

In working with gardeners, I find that many young adults now starting families of their own never had the experience and pleasure of gardening when they were growing up. To one who has had a garden ever since a teenager, it is difficult to conceive of anyone growing up without plants around him.

If at all possible, we should give our children an opportunity to experience the joy of growing plants. Even where there is no room for a garden outdoors, a few pots on the porch or on the windowsill may provide a place to start a plant hobby.

The family garden is a place where the family can work together. Too often, however, the child is delegated the more unpopular jobs in the garden, such as weeding. To get the most benefit and learn the most about gardening, children should have a small portion of good land that is their very own. It may be portion of an existing garden or in a flower border. Here they can experience the entire process of gardening.

Do not make the child's garden too big. Size will vary with the age and apparent interest of the child. Almost any child will find gardening exciting in the beginning. However, if he is given too much to care for, it will become a chore and finally may be very discouraging.

Have the child select plants that are easy to grow and have a good chance for success. Select vegetables that are favorites at the table, or flowers that can be cut and brought indoors. Most children like to pick flowers and should be given that opportunity.

Vegetables such as beans, lettuce, corn, tomatoes, peppers, squash and cucumbers are productive. With a little care, they will produce fairly quick results and maintain the child's enthusiasm. Marigolds, zinnias, celosia and cosmos are a few flowers that are suitable for the beginner.

Midget vegetables are also available and are appealing to children. Where there is space, midget watermelons create enthusiasm. Tomato "Tiny Tim" produces small "cherry" tomatoes on small bushy plants. Midget corn and cabbage can be grown in limited space. Novelty plants, such as the "Sensitive" plant, fold their leaves when touched, delight of many children.

There are times when plants may fail, or the child does not keep the garden well weeded. This is all a part of his learning process, but the child may need help to determine why some things succeeded and others failed. Let him take total charge of his own garden plot, but give him enough help so that the entire project does not fail. Total failure may lead to total discouragement, and the child may never want to try again. Thereby the real pleasure of working with plants may be lost forever.

With their own garden spot, children can learn much about the soil and plants around them. The problems caused by insects and diseases will also become familiar. Methods for pest control can be tried and evaluated by them through experience. Small children should not be allowed to handle pest control materials. Any necessary applications should be made carefully by adults according to directions.

Growing plants can be one of the most gratifying and creative experiences a child can know. It often develops into a rewarding lifetime occupation or hobby.

Getting a Piece of the Auction Action

By Connie Emerson

Auctions can be an effective antidote for inflation. Whether the sale is at a sophisticated metropolitan gallery or in a tree-shaded farmyard, it's possible to buy furnishings, housewares, art, and even automobiles at far less than you would pay elsewhere. The following tips will help make your auction experiences more rewarding.

- Attend your first auctions as a spectator. In the beginning, you may be intimidated by what seems to be fast-paced bargaining, but after a short while the auctioneer's patter will begin to make sense.

- To become a bidder, you must register before the sale. When you pay your refundable bidder's deposit, you will be given a paddle or card with a number printed on it. This number will serve as your identification when you are highest bidder on an item.

- It's best for bidders to attend estate auction sales and sales where there are no reserves or minimums (the lowest amounts for which articles will be sold). If you do go to a sale where reserves are allowed, try to determine the bottom price which will be accepted by talking to the owner of the item in question.

You will not be able to obtain this information from the auctioneer or others involved in putting on the sale, because reserves are kept confidential.

- At any auction, carefully examine the items you are interested in prior to the sale. Check for distinguishing clues, such as hallmarks and dates, which can give you an idea of an article's value. Look, too, for flaws, cracks, or repaired places which might make the items worth less. Contact an expert if you have doubts or questions. Most auction previews are held the day before the actual sale and this gives the prospective buyer time for inquiry. Feel free, also, to ask the auctioneer about the items in question. Most auctioneers who are licensed and bonded have proven that they are honest and knowledgeable.

- Look over the auction merchandise for "sleepers"—items that have a good chance of selling for much less than their true value. In order to identify sleepers, you'll need a good knowledge of antiques. Remember that anything of quality construction, beauty, historical significance, or rarity should appreciate. Your chances of finding great buys also increase when you attend sales at which most of the buyers are unsophisticated, as opposed to crowds composed mostly of dealers and serious collectors.

- Watch any dealers present to see how they bid for items of interest. The types of items they bid on and the levels to which they go are good indicators of value.

- When you have decided how much you're willing to pay for an item, allow an additional 10% leeway for bidding in case competition is spirited. After you've made up your mind as to your limit, stick to it.

- Get into the bidding early so that the auctioneer knows you are interested and won't inadvertently leave you out when the bid is raised. When you wish to bid, raise your paddle or card to about head level and move it slightly. Sometimes bidders with whom the auctioneer has dealt before indicate a bid by nodding or making other positive gestures, but as a novice you'll want to make signals which can't be misunderstood.

- Whether you plunge in at the beginning with a bid high enough to discourage others, "jump" bid with large increments to intimidate competition, or raise bids by minimal amounts, be aware that at an occasional auction, almost every item goes for much more (or much less) than it should.

- Don't plan to pay for purchases by personal check. The policy at most sales is that successful bidders must pay for the items they've bought with cash or by certified check immediately after the auction is over.

- The buyer is responsible for removing his purchases from the auction premises, usually within a week of the sale. This can increase costs by a substantial amount if the items are heavy or must be crated and shipped long distances, so keep those costs in mind when you bid.

Freighters: The Uncommon Way to Travel

By Anthony Joseph

Why not be a world tourist? Want to enjoy dancing the "sha" in Jamaica or sightsee the exotic "green pyramids" on the French Polynesia Island of Rapa Iti? These places and many others are within easy financial reach simply by cruising the seven seas by freighter.

"By freighter?" you gasp. "With dust, dirt, bananas, smelly oil drums, and bags of sugar? That's not for me!"

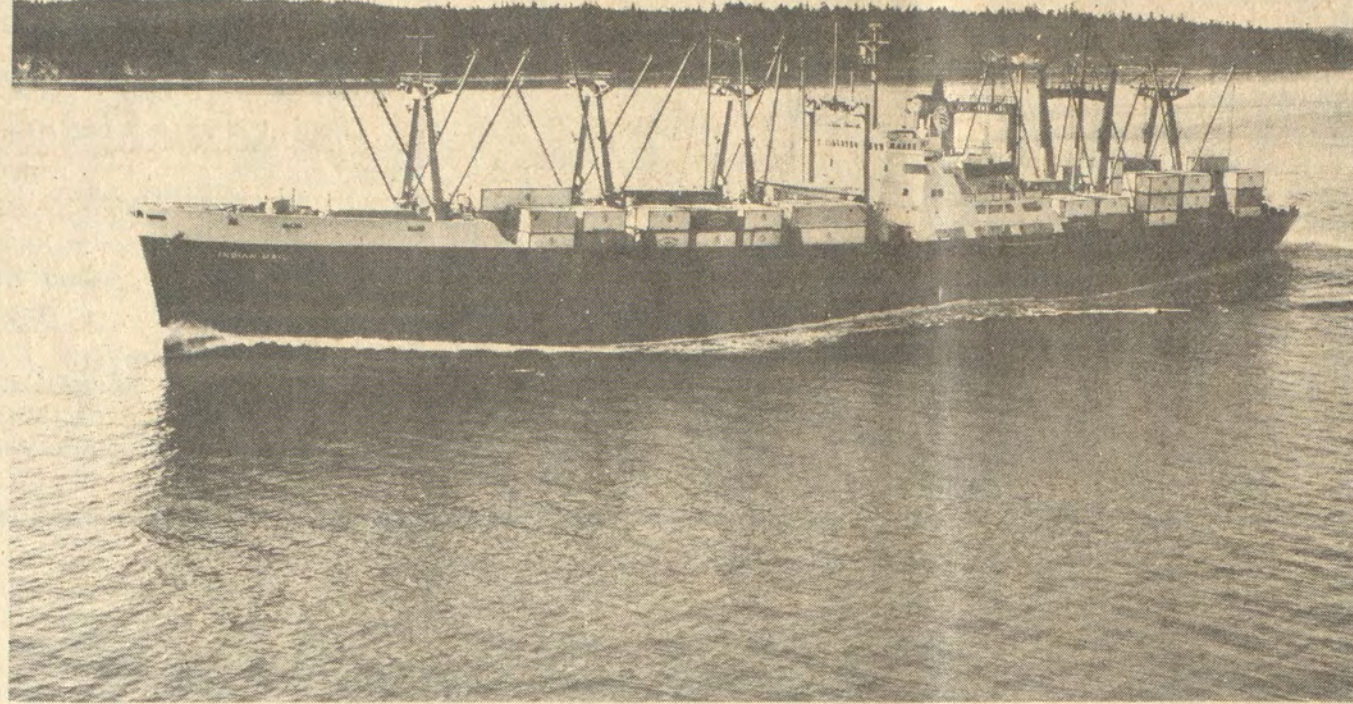

Before you close your mind completely to freighter travel, examine the facts. Traveling by freighter offers many exciting possibilities for a wide range of travelers. Many of today's freighters are as modern and comfortable as most hotels, as streamlined and swift as the latest liners, and limited in destination only by the world's ports of call.

Take your choice among thousands of cruises—from short trips of a few days' duration along the Pacific Coast to British Columbia, to an eight-month cruise around the world. Book passage on a sleek new vessel bound for Hong Kong or, if time is no major factor, try an older, picturesque steamer.

Surprisingly, it's traditional for freighter lines to provide delicious food, first-class facilities, and accommodations, not only for the owner and company's representatives, but also for the freighter's passengers. The food aboard ship may consist of elegant buffets, appetizing smorgasbords, and national dishes of the captain's country, in addition to specialties at parties and dinners to which all passengers are invited. You'll find the captain and crew treating you more like a personal guest than merely a paying customer. And you don't have to pay extra rates for such personal treatment.

Thirty dollars a day provides first class tourist cabins, outside, amidship and topside. However, if you select an older, slower freighter, you'll probably pay $12-$15 a day for the same first class service. Passenger liners charge about the same rates for cabin or tourist accommodations and much higher rates for first class.

Bookings for cabin space on a freighter, which usually carries 12-30 passengers, must be made far in advance. All luxury liners require voyage arrangements at least six months to a year in advance; freighter booking is no exception to this rule. But cancellations are common, so a reservation for a sailing next week is often possible.

Arrival and departure times are a little uncertain, too. Even though you're considered a first-class passenger, the freight still comes first. The only certainties in freighter travel are the ports of origin and destination. Sometimes sailings are delayed a few days to meet cargo requirements, so you should be prepared for a last-minute change. Many freighters adhere to strict schedules, but it's not unusual to see a freighter schedule with trips listed as 10-15 days, 20-40 days, or even 60-90 days.

But don't let these time uncertainties worry you; they only lend to the leisurely travel pace aboard freighters. Freight passengers, usually teachers, doctors, retired folks, and other professional people, are trying to avoid scheduled hourly events, games, and other activities. Instead, they're in search of unscheduled relaxation and relief from daily pressures. So, as a freighter passenger, turn the uncertain time schedules into pleasant surprises. Here's a terrific opportunity to catch up on all those activities you've been wanting to do: playing cribbage, bridge, or pinochle, or just reading or relaxing without interruption.

Where can you get information about specific trips and fares? Most travel agents don't book freighter passages, but you can write to the Air and Marine Travel Service, 501 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022, for a $2 guide, called "The Trip Log." Or get The Directory of Cruises with a list of freighter travel agents for $2.75 from P.O. Box 505, Woodland Hills, Ca. 91366. And a $5 membership fee to P.O. Box 526, Caldwell, Id. 83605 gets you a yearly subscription to the paper, Freight Travel News, which warns of lines overbooking and recommends vessels known for strict schedules as well as outstanding service.

Once you've made up your mind to go by freighter, try to visit the ship you're booking, if possible. Not only will you know what to expect, but your visit will put you in the right mood for a relaxing freighter voyage.

★ Kentucky Afield ★

By JOHN WILSON

As we approach some of the best bass fishing of the year, remember there are still a lot of those valuable bass swimming around in Kentucky waters.

The bass we're talking about are the ones that have been tagged as part of a major research project of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resource's fisheries division. What makes them particularly valuable is that the tags they wear are worth money—up to $1,000—when they are returned to fish and wildlife.

Of the 2,577 bass tagged last spring, 637 tags were returned. That means there are still a lot of bass wearing tags worth $1, $5, $25, $50, $100, or $1,000.

And in addition, Ted Crowell, the biologist in charge of the project, in now in the process of tagging more bass. If weather conditions cooperate (they didn't last year), he hopes to tag an additional 4,000 fish this spring in selected lakes, streams and a portion of the Ohio River.

As was the practice last year, fish and wildlife officials aren't releasing the names of the waters where the fish are being tagged or the number of tags assigned to each monetary value. The reason for this secrecy is an attempt to keep fishing pressure as near normal as possible, according to Charlie Bowers, director of the fisheries division.

The 637 tags which were returned last year were worth a total of $5,140, including the fish which brought a Louisville angler a check for $1,000. Tag numbers are matched with dollar values by a random drawing. No one knows which bodies of water contain the high priced fish.

Similar tagging studies without cash rewards usually yield a tag return of less than 5 percent so the purpose of paying for tags is to get a high return rate, which will in turn provide more meaningful data. With a 27 percent return, it appears that the cash incentive is working, Bowers says.

The study is designed to give biologists a clearer picture of the fishing pressure exerted on our most popular game fish, the bass, and to gauge the effectiveness of the increase in size limit from 10 to 12 inches which became effective in January 1978.

Tag returns from last year ranged from a low of 11 percent on one stream to a high of 41 percent on a small lake. The additional results of tags returned this year should give biologists a much better idea of the total bass fishing picture in Kentucky, Bowers says.

Special envelopes for returning the tags are available at most docks. But if you can't locate one, send the tag along with four scales from the fish to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Fisheries, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Be sure to include the length, weight, girth and where the fish was caught.

There will be a waiting period of several weeks before the first checks are sent out for fish tagged this year, Bowers says. Dollar values will not be assigned until all tagging is complete. Be patient, and if yours is a $1,000 bass you'll hear about it soon enough.

Pikeville-Published Magazines Marked for Literary Awards

Kentucky's college and independent magazines received praise and advice at the annual literary awards program sponsored recently by the Kentucky Arts Commission.

Twenty-five literary magazines were represented at the ceremonies in Shakertown. The program included individual conferences with the judges as well as a panel session to answer the editors' questions.

The judges, John Delaney, Raphael Rudnick and James Tate, nationally-known poets from the New England region, said Kentucky has a "quite palatable diet of literary magazines."

The judges praised most Kentucky magazines for having a "strong focus" and for finding and filling a niche. "For the most part, the magazines have a very strong sense of place," said Delaney. "They are focused on particular regions or subjects."

They said magazines, especially college magazines, should strive harder for editorial excellence. "It doesn't benefit anyone to publish a flawed or unfinished poem or story," Tate said. "If you insist on a high standard, you will get it."

"In all, the magazines were noble efforts, remarkable successes," Tate said. "I was especially impressed by those magazines that combine poetry and fiction with reviews, essays and interviews."

The awards to independent magazines: THE MOUNTAIN REVIEW, Whitesburg, received the largest cash grant, $700, in the independent category. It was cited for "a strong sense of place and purpose which allowed it to generate its own power. It has national value because of its focus."

PLAINSONG, a new magazine based in Bowling Green, received $400 as a "strong, new entry with excellent poetry."

THE KENTUCKY POETRY REVIEW and THE LOUISVILLE REVIEW, published in Louisville, each received $300. The Louisville Review was called "the most wordily in technique and

Tots In The Tub

Bathing a baby or small child can take your full attention, but it can be fun and safe if you plan ahead and follow these basic guidelines:

- Remove any electrical appliances, such as curling irons or radios, from the bathroom.
- Arrange soap, washcloth, towels, and the child's clothes near the tub.
- Place a mat or towel in the bottom of the tub to prevent slipping, and wipe up any water on the floor around the tub.
- Test water temperature, then help the child into the tub. You don't have to lift his entire weight.
- Don't answer the phone or doorbell until you have the child out of the tub and ready to go with you. Never leave the child alone in the bath. He could climb back into the tub, lock you out, or turn on the hot water.
- Wash the child from head to toe, being careful to avoid getting soap in his eyes.
- Help the child out of the tub, then dry and dress him.

Telling Others About Your Divorce

If you've been divorced recently, how do you gracefully handle the questions that will inevitably arise? Here are a few suggestions on who to tell and who not to tell about your divorce—and how.

Telling your children's teachers about your divorce will help them understand if your children's behavior changes or if they demonstrate any difficulties in adjusting. First, let your children know what you are planning to do and then make individual appointments with the teachers.

Let your boss and co-workers know about your new circumstances. A simple statement of fact will eliminate embarrassing or awkward questions about your spouse. Save any other details for those co-workers with whom you are friendly—but discuss them after business hours.

Don't tell everyone you're introduced to that you're divorced unless you feel it's relevant to the conversation. A lot of people you won't have to tell at all—such as the doorman or cleaning person, who'll read the simple signs.

Try to avoid saying too much when you tell anyone about your divorce. The only information you need to give is your legal status, divorced or separated. Which friends you tell more—and how much more you tell them—is up to you.

Plainly Speaking

Does even the thought of giving a speech make you nervous? Whether you have to address a business meeting or give a speech to the PTA, you'll be a lot more confident with the help of some of these speechwriting tips.

The most effective speech is one prepared with a specific audience in mind. To help you know your audience better, contact the group's program director or the person who asked you to speak. What type of meeting is involved? Who else is on the program? Is there a question-answer session to prepare for?

A speech is written to be listened to. Therefore, it must be understood the first time. Make sure you are concrete, precise, and simple. Use a vocabulary appropriate to the audience and to the topic. Never talk up or down to them.

Seek a conversational tone in your speechwriting, and keep your sentences short and simple. Use the active voice instead of the passive. When appropriate, use slang to help establish rapport with the audience. Omit detailed statistics in general and round off figures.

After you've finished writing, read your draft aloud, listening for tongue-twisters and awkward phrasings which need to be eliminated.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
Attorney General

These days almost everyone owns a hand-held hair dryer. When the news came out that many models contained potentially-dangerous asbestos, consumers everywhere became understandably alarmed. Although most corporations stipulated their belief that asbestos in hair dryers has yet to be proven to be a threat to consumer health, they have complied with a U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission order to provide comprehensive information on the use of asbestos insulation in hair dryers.

Asbestos, when inhaled, is a suspected cancer-causing agent. The potential danger occurs when heat-shields, which are installed to keep the plastic of the dryer from overheating and melting, are made of asbestos. The blowing action of the dryer may disperse the asbestos into the air, where it can then be inhaled.

As of April 17, 1979, there were 111 models of hair dryers—listed by model number—known to contain asbestos. Several companies are already offering replacement parts or units for the asbestos hair dryers.

General Electric will retrofit with a non-asbestos liner all GE hair dryers which are asbestos insulated after they are brought in by concerned consumers, and offers this toll-free number for information: 1-800-241-5822.

Gillette will give a replacement unit upon request to any owner of a Gillette model containing asbestos. Consumers can call Gillette toll-free at 1-800-328-9208.

The North American Philips Corporation will exchange model HB-1700 Norelco 1000 for a new asbestos-free model at the request of consumers. Their toll-free consumer number is 1-800-223-1828.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. will apply their normal consumer policy of "Satisfaction guaranteed or money back."

If you have a question about asbestos or want to know if your hand-held hair dryer contains asbestos, please call the Consumer Protection toll-free hotline, 1-800-372-2960. If you have any other consumer complaints write to Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

DR. RALPH DARRELL JOHNSON

CANDIDATE FOR

STATE SENATOR

29TH SENATORIAL DISTRICT

FLOYD, KNOTT, MARTIN AND PERRY COUNTIES.

*If the United States continues to lean more and more toward coal as a primary energy source, new and better forms of transportation will become necessary. Safer and faster rail service is a primary need and additional research is needed in the area of air transport as a faster and more dependable form of transportation.

*I feel that the Gun Control Act of 1968 should be repealed as soon as possible. The government has no right to dictate when and where a law-abiding citizen may buy or sell a gun.

*As I stated before, I feel that miners should work under conditions that are as safe as possible and that the rights of property owners should be protected, but we must realize that over-regulation could make coal mining in Eastern Kentucky impracticable and unprofitable for everyone involved.

*Vietnam veterans should have the same rights, privileges and pensions as other veterans, and as your State Senator I will do everything in my power to see that they get a fair deal.

U.S. Agency Warns of Dangers On Abandoned Mining Properties

The U.S. Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) has issued a warning of extreme danger to amateur prospectors, adventure seekers and vacationers who are trespassing in quarries, sand and gravel pits, abandoned mines and other mining areas.

Assistant Secretary for Mine Safety and Health Robert B. Lagather, noting the fatalities and potential disasters which have occurred on these mining properties, issued two warnings: Don't venture into areas not open to the public and where you have no business; and be careful, watchful and responsible in seeing to it that your children obey the same rules.

"Every year," Lagather said, "especially in summer, a number of trespassers in quarries, sand and gravel pits, abandoned underground mines and other mining properties become fatality statistics. They are unfamiliar with the dangers of the mining environment and walk into accidents with no suspicion of the perils all around them."

Last year five persons drowned—four in ponds in abandoned quarries or sand and gravel pits and one by falling off a dredge where he was trespassing.

Six others died in underground abandoned mines—two asphyxiated by gasoline engine fumes, two by falling down shafts they were attempting to explore and two killed by explosives through amateurish ignorance of proper procedures.

Two victims were electrocuted in separate incidents while trespassing on coal mine sites; four others were killed by cave-ins of sand and gravel; and four died in falls over quarry walls.

An 18-year-old coal miner was never found after it is believed he fell deep inside an abandoned copper mineshaft while exploring the mine with a younger friend.

"More fortunate were three teen-age boys who were rescued after spending a terrifying 26 hours lost in an abandoned clay mine in April," said Lagather. The youths were rescued after a companion, who had decided not to explore the mine, reported his friends missing in the mine for four hours. "It took 22 hours, three rescue teams and the involvement of nearly 100 persons to get the youths out of the mine," said Lagather.

"Summer is for vacation and fun, not for irresponsible play in areas where you can be seriously hurt or killed. Abandoned, idle mining properties are inherently dangerous. I hope everyone will remain aware of the dangers and avoid turning a vacation into a nightmare."

State Fire Marshall Warns Against Danger of Picric Acid

State Fire Marshal Bob G. Estep last week issued a warning to Kentuckians to be alert to the dangers of picric acid, a chemical that is highly explosive in crystalline form.

"Picric acid is usually a liquid found in school laboratories, hospitals, animal hospitals, tanneries and metal fabrication facilities, but it can be found anywhere. And therein lies the danger," Estep said.

In the crystalline form, it is unstable, highly explosive, poisonous and shock-sensitive. "It will explode if jarred only slightly," Estep said.

Picric acid is found primarily in glass bottles or cans, but it also may be in other types of containers. It is used as a preservative, an antiseptic and in dying and tanning process.

"In its liquid form it is not explosive, but when it has been unused for a period of time it has a tendency to crystallize. That's when it takes on the explosive characteristics of nitroglycerin," Estep explained.

Estep warned that persons finding any yellow, crystalline substance should immediately notify the State Fire Marshal's Office at (502) 564-3626 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and Kentucky State Police Headquarters in Frankfort at (502) 564-3579 at other times. "Under no circumstances should the chemical be moved, or even touched," he said.

Late 'Welcome Home' For Vietnam Vets

A delayed "welcome home" is scheduled for Kentucky's 119,000 Vietnam Era veterans during the week of May 28 to June 3. President Carter has declared the week as "The National Salute to Vietnam Era Veterans."

Mrs. Mary G. Sindors, director of the VA regional office in Louisville, says the one-time observance will be America's way of saying "thank you and welcome home."

Of the 119,000 Kentucky men and women who served in the 10-year-long Vietnam War, 39,000 had a tour of duty in Vietnam. Of these, 7,000 had also fought in Korea.

The state's regional office and two VA medical centers at Lexington and Louisville will hold special acknowledgement programs during the week.

All services and assistance provided by the Department of Labor for middle-aged and older workers is open to those encountering, or who anticipate encountering difficulty in securing and maintaining employment due to reasons related to age or characteristics associated with age.

Howard Keathley has the knowledge and experience to build a better Floyd County.

He was born at Harold, a son of Bertha King Keathley and the late Grover Keathley. He is a 1950 graduate of Betsy Layne High School. He attended Pikeville College where he met and married Lucille "Tiny" Cartmell, of Emma. They later had two daughters Evelyn "Ebbie" Keathley and SuzAnne Keathley. Howard and Tiny have one granddaughter, Susan Renee.

It has been proven in the past that promises will not bring forth progress. Goal setting, hard work, and determination to see these important goals reached is what Howard Keathley is talking about.

Realization of what needs to be done and where it's needed most is the first step. It is very obvious where this county has been neglected most!

For example, our inadequate means of travel on our "so-called" roads and highways, our inadequate water, garbage, and sewage systems, our inadequate, inefficient ambulance, emergency and fire prevention and control services. These subjects are vital for our safety and simply cannot exist and operate without support. Our health and education programs definitely cannot be neglected.

I will visit the communities of each district at least once a month.

Floyd Countians, there is hope for the future of this county if a change is made in the right places.

Howard Keathley is a man with a great desire for progress and growth and possesses the determination and positive attitude to see it brought forth!

He has served in Stuttgart, Germany, Fort Lee, Va., and Fort McClellan, Alabama. He has received the Army Commendation Medal and the Meritorious Service Medal for exemplary duty performance.

Attending the commencement in Alabama were Captain Carter's parents, Curtis and Virginia Carter, of McDowell, his sister, Gini, and her fiancé, Bobby Gayle Smith, of Frankfort.

Capt. Carter and his wife, Shirley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Butler, of Drift, reside at 3329-B, Avery Drive, Fort McClellan, Ala. with their two children, Cari Ann and James Curtis.

New KET Instructional Series

The three R's are enjoying an enormous comeback in classrooms today. Reading, writing and arithmetic are vital skills for students to learn—no one will argue about that. Once they learn these skills, however, they must also incorporate them into everyday life by being able to use the skills they have in a thinking, reasoning manner. Students must learn to think about the things they know and make their skills work for them.

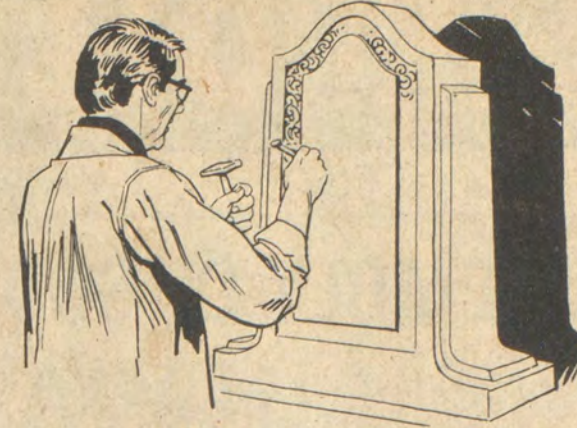

On Wednesday, April 25, KET held a preview session for members of the press and educators. A new instructional series, "Thinkabout," was the subject, and skills essential to learning was the focus. The 60-program series which will air on KET during the '79-'80 school year, is designed to help 5th and 6th graders become adept at problem-solving by using the things they learn in school as their tools.

KET, as one of 34 consortium agencies responsible for producing "Thinkabout," has been involved with the design and testing of the series since 1976. Harry Hinkle, KET's coordinator of utilization, says that the secret to the success of "Thinkabout" is the fact that it takes everyday situations and helps students approach them logically.

"An example of a problem that a kid could encounter is a lost dog or a difficult school report," says Hinkle. "The series helps them see how they can get organized and use resources, such as the library, to do research to help them find the answers they are looking for."

During the month of April KET utilization staff members held workshops throughout the state to familiarize elementary school principals and other administrators with "Thinkabout," and to prepare them for implementation of the series in their instructional programs next fall. An informational program about the series will be broadcast in schools via KET's preview week in June, and a copy of the broadcast schedule will be distributed to each school district this spring. All of these plans lead up to airing the series during the 79 - 80 school year.

"We're coming down the home stretch with "Thinkabout," says Hinkle. "We have had Kentucky teachers help test the programs and design the classroom handbook, and now were preparing to help them actually use 'Thinkabout' in schools. Staff members are excited about the series, as are the educators who have attended our workshops. They think that 'Thinkabout' is worth talking about—and so we do."

Flash Flood Warning System Being Tested

Since July, 1978 a program has been implemented in Floyd and 10 other Eastern and Southeastern Kentucky counties that has helped warn residents of impending floods. The program is known as the Local Flash Flood Warning System.

John Conley, Disaster and Emergency Services-National Weather Service weather coordinator, and director of the pilot project, explained that the program is "basically a self-help system to get people out of the way of flooding. Our primary concern is with saving lives and, secondarily, saving property."

The system, which costs the counties nothing, is a voluntary cooperative effort. Equipment utilized includes 11-inch rain gauges, or all-weather gauges, furnished by the NWS, and the County Flash Flood Program manual. Each county has a system which is designed to meet its unique needs. The counties included in the program are: Letcher, Leslie, Pike, Martin, Johnson, Bell, Magoffin, Floyd, Knott, Perry and Harlan.

Rain gauges go in flood-prone areas, such as along streams or in basin areas. Streams that are highly flood-prone may have several rain gauges placed along the stream to provide more accurate readings. Rainfall near the source of a stream may cause flooding in a valley downstream that is miles away and received no rainfall, Conley said.

The County Flash Flood Program manual, besides outlining procedures to be used in the program, provides information on the location of telemark gauges placed along the streams by the National Geological Service. This further enhances the warning system. These gauges send beeping noises over a telephone line to give the present river level and the amount it is likely to rise.

The volunteers involved in the program are trained by Conley and include a county flash flood coordinator and alternate county flash flood coordinator for each county. An observer is chosen for each of the approximately 130 rain gauges placed in the 11-county area.

Observers keep a daily record of rainfall and send reports to the county flash flood coordinator. The coordinator forwards the reports to the county flash flood coordinator. The coordinator forwards the reports to the Louisville NWS on a monthly basis.

When conditions are conducive to flash flooding, the NWS notifies the areas most likely to be hit. A watch means that heavy rains occurring or expected to occur may cause flash flooding. The county flash flood coordinator notifies observers to keep a close watch on rain gauges and to report their findings to him. He averages the reports on a graph to determine the amount of runoff likely.

A flash flood warning means that flash flooding is or will be occurring on certain streams or in certain areas. The county flash flood coordinator notifies the county judge or civil defense director in the event that a flood is imminent.

If the county flash flood coordinator determines that flash flood conditions exist before the NWS, the civil defense director can issue a flood warning. However, only the NWS, with trained meteorologists, can announce a watch.

The River Forecast Center developed a graph to help predict river crests over a four-state area. The graph matches average rainfall and soil index-showing saturation level--to come up with a flood stage. Floods are categorized as minor, moderate and major. Minor flooding means that streams are bankful, with little or no damage occurring to property. Moderate flooding occurs when streams are overflowing banks and there is some flooding in low-lying areas along streams. Major flooding exists when lives are endangered and evacuation is necessary. Property damage is extensive in this type of flood.

The present program, being tested for its usefulness as a good warning system, is on a one-year contract with the NWS that runs from July 1, 1978 to June 30, this year. The system was utilized during the December, 1978 floods in Magoffin and Johnson counties and "worked well," Conley said. Similar programs have been used successfully in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

"People in mountainous areas have to deal with the threat of flash floods daily," Conley said. "The purpose of this program is to help them deal with this reality by giving them the time needed to get away before flash floods hit."

Clean-Up Week Set In Martin May 21-25

The City of Martin will conduct a Clean-Up Week during the week of May 21-25. All residents of Martin will be able to have their garbage picked up free of charge. Catching the Disco Fever

By Francine Gouvin

Just in case you hadn't heard, disco is booming in America—and around the world—and big money says it's not just a passing fad. One major record company just plunked $6 million into a new division to promote disco and launch a disco label. Two hundred applicants are lined up for the six $35,000 franchises available from the Pennsylvania-based 2001 Club, which has already spawned 10 discos since 1974. And industry sources say the disco business generates an estimated $4 billion annually, making it bigger than network television.

It's impossible to talk about the disco phenomenon without mentioning Saturday Night Fever, the movie that was probably the single most effective catalyst in the mass acceptance of disco dancing. Previously the domain of black, latino, and "gay" clubs, disco is now the rage of suburbia as well as big cities, with devotees ranging from teeny boppers to jet setters.

Identification with Travolta's transformation on the dance floor fits right into today's pervasive "me-consciousness" and has brought thousands of sedentary listeners to their feet for the disco experience. And while there's no disputing the physical fitness aspects of vigorous dancing (210-550 calories per hour), it's the mental uplift and social opportunities that motivate most disco dancers.

Philosophically speaking, dancing is a statement of the times. In the quest for "total fitness"—one of today's national preoccupations—dancing is an immediate physical expression that allows people to encounter themselves mentally through movement. It helps them get in touch with themselves. Mental health practitioners have long recognized this, and many prescribe dancing as therapy. Says one professional dance therapist, "Movement exploration can increase self-awareness and can begin and support the process of change."

As a youth movement, discos are the rebirth of the "sock hop." Numerous clubs across the country cater to the 13-18-year-old market, providing a safe, well-chaperoned environment for socializing. Others, geared more toward the adult market, open on Saturday or Sunday afternoons for the teen crowd.

One of disco's strongest appeals is that anyone can disco. There are some stylized steps, but for the most part, you "do your own thing," dancing singly, in pairs, or in groups. In many clubs such as Xenon and Studio 54 in Manhattan, the dress code is also "anything goes," with some clubs encouraging bizarre and outrageous costumes.

Several manufacturers are producing special disco lines which feature zany T-shirts with designs that respond to body heat, changing colors as the temperature rises. And Arthur Murray has just come out with new "Disco-shoes" which, at $100 a pair, feature micro mercury-activated lights in the heels and soles which blink faster and faster as you dance.

But the lights on dancers' feet are nothing compared to the extravagant lighting systems integral to most discos. The light man at Manhattan's Infinity, for instance, disor-orchestrates floor-to-ceiling columns of blue, pink, and green neon tubing with overhead rows of spotlights intersecting the hundreds of dancers cramming the floor. Some electronically-programmed laser systems create patterns that don't duplicate themselves for years!

It's all part of the disco mystique—the fantasy land of escapism that few deny permeates the disco experience. The bright colors, the booming, blaring beat, the "beautiful people" dressed up for a night out, all combine to take the disco dancer out of the mundane, and in some cases, depressing, everyday world and transport him into a surrealistic trip where he is the star of the moment.

In fact, combined with the physical exercise it provides, disco may be the bromide of the 80's. As one proponent of vigorous dancing for exercise says, "Once you're physically fit, your productivity is better, your sex life improves, you handle stress more productively, you have fewer headaches, and you become depressed less frequently." And there's nothing wrong with that!

...about your Social Security

By JOHN FAULKNER
Manager of the Prestonsburg
Social Security Office

Remember the Social Security office is located on U.S. 23 North about 500 yards past the Highlands Hospital. If you have any questions please call or come see us. We are there to help you. Our office hours are 9 to 4:30, Monday - Friday.

Q—I will be 65 this year but I am going to continue to work. Do I need to contact the Social Security office?

A—Yes. Absolutely. Even though you are going to continue working you can still get Medicare when you are 65. You should contact the Social Security office three months before you are 65 and file an application. Bring your birth certificate and 1978 W-2 form too.

Q—I am receiving a Teacher's Retirement Pension. I had also paid into Social Security when I worked at another job during the summer months and have enough quarters to receive Social Security. However, I heard recently my Social Security will be reduced because I receive the Teacher's Retirement. Is that true?

A—No it isn't. If you are eligible for Social Security on your own record it will not be reduced because you are receiving a pension—no matter what kind it is. It will also not affect your Social Security on your husband's record if you retire before December 1982.

Q—How old do I have to be to draw widow's benefits?

A—To be eligible for regular widow's benefits you must be 60 years old. Once again you should file three months before you want your checks to start.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics says that 27.5 million or 58 percent of all husband-wife families had more than one earner in March 1978.

Award Winner

Miss Cassie Hill, of Franklin, Ind., winner of the 1979 Lucille M. Wright Citizenship Award of the Girls Clubs of America, was honored at a banquet at the Hilton Hotel in Indianapolis, April 24. She was presented a plaque and a diamond pin at this time.

Miss Hill is the daughter of Mrs. Linda Sharon Horne Hill, formerly of Lackey, now of Franklin, Ind., and Neil H. Hill, of Salt Lake City, Utah. She is the granddaughter of the late Isadore and Alice Horne, of Lackey.

A 10th grade student, Miss Hill is a member of the band and a candy stripper for the Johnson County Memorial Hospital where she has done more than 400 hours of volunteer service. She is a member of the Mormon Church and is a member of the executive board of the Franklin Girls' Club.

Five-Day Services To Mark Homecoming

The annual homecoming meeting of the Free Pentecostal Church of God at Wheelwright will be held with a series of services beginning Wednesday, May 30, and continuing through Sunday, June 3. Speakers at night services, beginning at 7:30 on the first four days will be Rev. Ernest Brock, Cumberland, Ky., Rev. Chester Trent, Hopkinsville, Rev. Glen Sturgill, Norton, Va., and Rev. Donald E. Greene, London, Ky.

The meeting will end June 3 with an all-day service led by the Rev. Don Brady, of Dearborn Heights, Michigan, with dinner on the grounds.

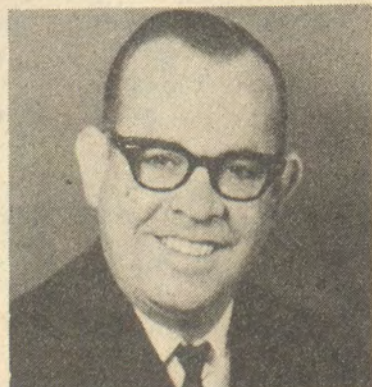

Room and board will be provided out-of-town guests.

Help preserve our past—we need something on which to build the future. Support the Kentucky Heritage Commission during Historic Preservation Month in May.

Democratic candidate for

COUNTY JUDGE-EXECUTIVE

I am a Democratic candidate for County Judge-Executive. I think the people are tired of promises—they want action.

It's not what I can do for myself; It's what I can do for my County. So please elect me your next County Judge-Executive of Floyd County.

Your support will be appreciated.
