$10 Million Project Under Way

An overview of Kentucky Power's Beaver Creek substation.

Major construction work at Kentucky Power Company's Beaver Creek substation near Hi Hat is well under way and scheduled for completion next spring, according to W. R. Miller, the company's transmission and distribution manager.

The $10-million project, which is the first of its kind in the United States and only the second in the world, is designed to help meet the rapid growth in electrical power demanded by the people of the region.

One of the problems faced by an electric utility, explained Miller, is maintaining voltage at a near constant level. This is due, in part, to the way customers use electricity—many of them demanding power at the same time—and by the distance from a generating plant which supplies the power.

The new solid-state equipment being installed at Beaver Creek is designed to solve the low-voltage problem. Called a static var compensator, the new device replaces older and slower mechanical switching equipment. American Electric Power (AEP) (Kentucky Power is one of its seven operating companies) and ASEA, a Swedish electrical parts manufacturer, designed the new equipment. New River Electric Company of Roanoke, Va., is doing the construction work which began early last spring.

The substation at Beaver Creek is an important link in Kentucky Power's and AEP's 138,000-volt transmission network. Presently five 138,000-volt lines meet there and a sixth is under construction. In addition, the substation is a major source for the region's 69,000- and 46,000-volt subtransmission lines.

Attempted Suicide Claimed As Baril Trial Delay Asked

Tony Baril, whose second trial for the knife-slaying near here of Chester Porter is scheduled for Dec. 18, attempted suicide at the county jail here last Friday, according to his attorney.

Disclosure of Baril's attempt on his own life was made by Richard Rutledge Burmeister, assistant public advocate, in his motion for a continuance of Baril's trial in the Floyd circuit court. Burmeister's statement in support of his motion for the continuance of the trial to a later date said, in part, that "due to as yet undetermined factors the defendant attempted to take his life while at the Floyd county jail..."

As a result, the statement continued, an emergency order was signed by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo, transferring Baril to the Grauman Unit in Louisville for evaluation and study. Dr. Lawrence Green, a forensic psychiatrist with Comprehensive Care of Bowling Green, also was quoted as saying that the defendant is in need of exhaustive study.

It was said at the jail that Baril's wounds were razor blade slashes down, not across, both forearms. His wounds were later described as "a suicide gesture."

Earlier in the day, Baril had been administered sodium pentothal (truth serum) during examination by Dr. Green and he was described as "high" when returned to the jail. Later, it was said, he had one or more drinks of whiskey.

Night turnkey Gene Hall was quoted as saying Baril gained access to the whiskey while Hall was outside the jailer's office to see who was coming up to the third-floor area on the elevator.

(Whiskey is kept in the jailer's office for medicinal use by persons "sobering up" after prolonged drinking bouts, it was explained.)

Other motions filed by the public advocate's office in the Baril case asked:

That Circuit Judge Hollie Conley vacate the bench at the coming trial, on the grounds that he is prejudiced.

That photos of the body of the victim, which were shown to the first trial jury and are described as "irrelevant and highly inflammatory," be suppressed.

That any relationships, associations or ties existing between the commonwealth's attorney and prospective jurors be disclosed.

The defense also cites as "highly prejudicial" statements imputed to the commonwealth's attorney to the effect that the jury in the first trial of Baril stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

The defense said this week that a motion is being prepared to ask for a change of venue on the grounds that the defendant has received adverse publicity.

Court Ponders Waste Problem, Increased Fees

"The state is not going to let us have any money until we have an approved landfill site. We have none as of this date. I don't even know if we'll have one this time next year." Thus did county Judge-Executive Bill Wells sum up the present state of the county's plans for a new garbage collection and disposal system during a meeting of the fiscal court this week.

County Planner Dick Leslie pointed out, however, that an agreement may be reached with Johnson county this week granting Floyd county access to a certified landfill site there.

In the meantime, problems surrounding the present collection system and the management of the county's existing dumps continue to vex the court, some of the trash collectors and their customers.

Paul Slone, who collects garbage in District One by arrangement with Adrian Lafferty, the franchisee for the first three magisterial districts, petitioned the court for a raise in fees which he claims

This Town...That World

Thanksgiving was a great day—now, wasn't it? Fine weather and all that. And it didn't come on a Monday, for which I am doubly thankful.

This silly business of changing the dates of time-honored holidays to make them fall on a Monday makes as much sense to us as the proposal that July 4 be changed to the 5th because too many accidents happened on the 4th.

LOOKING FORWARD

Although I am, as they say, getting along, I still have some goals. Three of them come to mind:

1. Travel from here to Hazard on a four-lane road.

2. To drive across the new bridge at Louisa and all the way thumb my nose at that wretched, old toll bridge.

3. To take a certain hound to the hills and hear again echoes of hunts enjoyed years ago.

He isn't around to defend himself, and I have often wondered if he really said it. Anyhow, President Coolidge has been quoted as letting these words of wisdom fall from his lips:

"When more and more people are thrown out of work, unemployment rises."

Maybe it was after that that he decided to become Silent Cal.

IN RE OFT-TOLD TALES

What is the toughest critter known to man? Some opt (as they say, these days) for a mule at his mulest, or a billygoat at his onliest, but if what this oldtimer said is true it must be an Arkansas razorback.

Said he:

"One day, this big razorback boar ran across a case of dynamite, rooted it open and proceeded to eat a dozen or so sticks

Gas Rate Increases Granted Two Firms

The Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission has approved rate increases for two Floyd county natural gas companies.

Customers of the Auxier Road Gas Company will pay a monthly rate of $3.94 per 1,000 cubic feet of gas for the first 2,000 cu. ft. For all amounts over 2,000 cu. ft. the rate will be $3.51 per 1,000 cu. ft. The minimum monthly bill will be $4.

The rate hike was held needed to offset the increased cost of wholesale natural gas supplied by Columbia Gas of Kentucky.

Customers of the Mike Little Gas Co. of Melvin will pay a monthly rate of $2.39 per 1,000 cu. ft. for the first 2,000 cu. ft.; $2.19 per 1,000 cu. ft. for the next 28,000 cu. ft.; and $2.14 per 1,000 cu. ft. for all amounts over 30,000 cu. ft. The minimum monthly bill will be $4.20.

This increase reflects the higher cost of wholesale natural gas supplied by the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company.

Blaze Claims Four Children On Johns Creek

Lives of four children were claimed by fire in the Kimper section of upper Johns Creek shortly after midnight Sunday.

The blaze which destroyed the trailer in which they were sleeping apparently started from a gas heater.

The victims were Fletcher Casey, 9; Wayne Casey, Jr., 8; Jason Lewis Morley, 2, and Gary Clifton Morley, 1.

Deputy Pike County Coroner Jerry Bee said all four died of asphyxiation.

Dora Mae Casey, 14, daughter of Peggy Marie Casey, told investigators she was sleeping on the couch in her family's trailer at Prater's Trailer Park when she awakened after 1 a.m. to find the kitchen area in flames.

She went for help, and could not re-enter the trailer because of the fire, state police said.

Melvin Thompson, of the Johns Creek Volunteer Fire Department, and state police arson investigator Barry McKenzie said firefighters arrived about 15 minutes after the call came in about 1:30 a.m.

The Morley infants were the sons of Gary L. and Jenny Reynolds Morley, also residents of the trailer park.

The Morleys had left the children with Mrs. Peggy Marie Casey when they went to a Lexington hospital to visit Morley's sick brother, officials said.

Later, Mrs. Casey's 11-year-old son became ill, and she took him to a clinic at Grundy, Va., about midnight, leaving Dora Mae with the other children.

Bomb Threats Pose Fire Dept. Problem

"Bomb threats are killing us," Fire Chief Tom Blackburn told Prestonsburg City Council Monday. Blackburn was commenting on a report of fire department activity for this year, which lists 19 bomb threats among a total of 135 runs.

Seven of the bomb scares were reported by the high school here, and five by the elementary school, with May the most disruptive month for the schools.

The report also lists 18 home fires, 10 of them out of town; nine fires in business premises, four of them out of town; 25 auto fires, and 19 runs by the department's recently organized rescue unit.

In a litigious mood, the council vowed to sue the contractors responsible for recent Archer Park renovations and challenged the federal highways department to sue the council over an issue involving signs near the same park.

Archer Park Administrator Susan Johnson told the council that there is no way of heating the park's roller skating rink until insulation of the building is completed, a task which she claims is the responsibility of contractors who completed flood renovations at the site five months ago.

"Let them sue," Councilman Ron Hager advised the body, which decided to take no action on removing the signs, pending action by highways department attorneys.

A $12,000 bid by Mountain Leasing Construction, Inc. was accepted for filling in and levelling the site of the old municipal building adjacent to the Playhouse on First Avenue for use as a parking lot. Until the basement of the razed building is filled in, the lot is hazardous for parking, councilmen said.

Marvin Crider Jr., and contractors James Hazelett and Elliott Glass, the contractors accepted responsibility for insulating the entire building but that the work has not been done to date.

On a motion of Branham, the council voted to ask City Attorney William Francis to file suit against the contractors for completion of the work.

The argument over signs at the entrances to the park has arisen as a result of federal anti-billboard legislation, which makes signs of that size and proximity to U.S. 23 illegal, according to highway authorities. The city disputes the charge, however, claiming that the city council has jurisdiction over signs within the city limits and noting that the signs are informational.

"Let them sue," Councilman Ron Hager advised the body, which decided to take no action on removing the signs, pending action by highways department attorneys.

The final decision is expected to be made at the Dec. 14 meeting here of the bank's shareholders.

Spurlock Says Shift to State Banks Frequent

The proposed change of the status of the First National Bank to that of a state banking institution is nothing new—"it's happening all over the country," Burl W. Spurlock, president of First National, said Monday.

Two basic reasons for such changes—reasons which apply to the one proposed here—are cited:

1. National banks, as members of the Federal Reserve System, are required to keep on deposit funds of considerable consequence—how much depends upon the size of the bank—and this money is sterile, since it bears no interest. Though state banks are required to maintain reserve funds, this reserve can earn interest for the depositor-bank.

2. The Federal Reserve restricts national bank loans to any one individual to 10 per cent of the bank's capital and surplus, while state banks are permitted to make such loans up to 20 per cent of those resources.

Mr. Spurlock explained that the change, if made, would put the bank in a more competitive position with other state banks.

The most recent shifts of Kentucky banks from national to state status have been in Clark and Montgomery counties.

The change to the status of a state bank would not otherwise affect the bank or those who do business with it. Insurance on deposits would remain as at present—up to $40,000 on each individual deposit.

"The change would give us more flexibility and would not affect any depositor or any individual or firm indebted to the bank," Spurlock explained.

And yet talk of change has its moments of trauma. "We've had very sentimental thoughts about the matter," Spurlock said, noting that the First National is now in its 76th year (it was chartered May 12, 1904).

The name under consideration for the institution is The Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg, Inc. Other names may be considered, however.

And, says Spurlock, "We could back out of the plan to change, any time before a state charter is actually issued."

The final decision is expected to be made at the Dec. 14 meeting here of the bank's shareholders.

Wrecks Claim Two in County

Two Floyd county residents have died within the week from injuries suffered in highway accidents.

Dead are Gary H. Prater, 21, of Buckeye, who succumbed Sunday to injuries sustained in the wreck of his jeep, Nov. 17 near David, and Mrs. Liddle Brown, 76, of Beaver, who died Saturday after being injured in a mishap at Grethel.

Prater died at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, where he was taken following the single-vehicle accident on KY 404 in which he reportedly sustained extensive head injuries.

The accident which resulted in the fatal injury of Mrs. Brown occurred shortly after noon Saturday on KY 979, below

Court Affirms 12-Year Term Of Gearheart

Following the failure of his appeal in the State Court of Appeals two weeks ago, Don Stephen Gearheart, 22, was lodged in the county jail here Monday to be transferred to the state reformatory for the 1977 slaying of Brian Conley.

Gearheart was convicted of first degree manslaughter and given a 12-year sentence in April, 1978, in connection with the shooting of Conley at Eastern during a coal miner's labor dispute the previous July.

The Court of Appeals upheld the decision of Trial Judge Reed D. Anderson, of Pike Circuit Court, who heard the case here in lieu of Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley in view of Conley's relationship with the victim.

Chief Justice John S. Patmore, of the state Supreme Court, also denied a motion by Gearheart for discretionary review of the case by that court.

Gearheart had been free on bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

Officers burn marijuana seized in last Wednesday's raid at Tram.

The largest haul of marijuana on record in this county, with an estimated value of $58,000, was confiscated last Wednesday in a raid carried out by Kentucky State Police detectives at Tram.

Wednesday's police action came after Det. Danny Stumbo and Det. Sgt. Delmar Lafferty searched a small farm which was being rented by Phillip Hatter, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Although only two pounds of the illegal weed were discovered in Hatter's

South Central Bell Rate Boost Allowed

The Kentucky Utility Regulatory Commission has approved a $10.18 million rate increase for the South Central Bell Telephone Co.

The rate hike was needed, according to the commission's order, to offset the increased cost of workers' wages.

The increase was the result of a rehearing that was held Oct. 17. In August, the commission had granted a $8.05 million increase after the company had requested $44.6 million.

Perkins Asks Synthetic Fuels Debate

(Note: Congressman Carl D. Perkins' statement of Nov. 8 on the House floor Nov. 8 is reprinted from the Congressional Record.)

Mr. Speaker, almost from the beginning of my service as a Member of this House, I began taking the floor to call for creation of a national energy policy. We did not have a coherent energy policy back there in the late 1940's and early 1950's.

Today, as we close out the 1970's and move toward the 1980's things have not changed. We still do not have a coherent energy policy.

And the Member from the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky is still taking the floor to call for a sane policy that will get us out of this terrible energy trap we are in.

Those among us who resist change and who do not want to disturb the status quo should take great comfort in the present situation. If we persist in the present course—if you want to call standing still a course—we will have plenty of time to reflect upon the principle as we sit in our cold houses and look out at the useless automobiles stacked up in the silent streets.

We in America have built a society heavily dependent upon petroleum. Now that petroleum is in short supply, and will get even shorter, we still have not made adequate preparation for an energy substitute.

From the very first day the settlers landed upon this continent, we have had almost under our shoe soles an abundance of energy-rich coal which can be turned into clean, efficient, liquid fuel for our Nation and its society.

We used it for a century and a half—until Americans began their economic honeymoon with petroleum. Then the use of coal began to decline. People came to think of it as "dirty" and old fashioned. The technology for making clean, environmentally acceptable fuel from coal has been with us for decades. And it is improving all the time.

We do know how to make liquid fuel synthetically from coal. We could have synthetic fuel plants in operation in 3 to 5 years, or even sooner, if we recognize the real national emergency that is upon us.

There are those in this country, perhaps in this Congress, who would cling to our dependence upon petroleum until the last barrel is pumped from the rocks of Earth. If this view prevails we will be dancing with the dead and whirling with the dust.

And this American nation we have built will become something far, far different. It is apt to be something not to our liking.

How many times do we have to be told that we are using twice as much petroleum as we produce from American wells?

How many times do we have to hear that we are dependent upon foreign nations for half of our liquid energy fuels? And how many of our foreign suppliers could we really depend upon when the chips are down?

When will the terrible truth of our situation sink in and galvanize us to do something about it?

There is no great mystery about how to get out of this fix we are in. All we have to do is gear up a synthetic fuels industry that will utilize our hundreds of years supply of coal.

That will put us once more in control of our destiny. That will rid us of the threat of blackmail by terrorists and crazy holy men. That will put us beyond the power of the international oil cartel which is wrecking our economy and which is responsible for the 15 1/2-percent prime rate that punishes the United States today.

It is a sad spectacle, Mr. Speaker, when a nation once so proud and strong is paralyzed in the conduct of its foreign policy in the oil-producing areas.

It is humiliating when we must go hand in hand to some irrational despot in Iran and say, "Please, may we have our embassy and our citizens back?"

We would not be in this sorry shape today if back in the early 1950's we had not been so foolish as to junk the beginnings of our synthetic fuels industry based upon coal.

The great oil companies responsible for that folly are still around today—only they are bigger and richer now. And they have become international to the point that their responsibilities are not exclusively to the United States, but to international stockholders whose interests are not the same as ours.

Now, I know that this sounds like ancient history. Only the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Mr. Price, and I remain of those who battled against the oil companies on this floor in 1953.

We had a good synthetic fuels program going, with operations in Missouri and Alabama and Colorado.

The Missouri plants were at that time producing coal-based motor fuel at a price within 2 cents a gallon of that produced from petroleum.

But the Eisenhower administration, then in its first 3 or 4 months of office, was completely taken into camp by the big oil interests—principally Walter Hallinan, of Pittsburgh, who was chairman of the President's energy advisory group. This group told the President that synthetic fuel production based on coal was a waste of time—that it would never be needed. We had plenty of petroleum, Mr. Hallinan said.

Well, the President and his Budget Bureau lost no time in gutting the synthetic program, and the House and Senate appropriations committees bowed to their wishes.

Exit the synthetic fuels program. And enter the long road to dependence upon oil from the Shah and the ayatollah and any other ruler who had a teacup of oil to peddle on the world market. That was how the big oil companies looked after our national interests back there in 1953. And I gather, from reading the papers the last day or two, they are still looking after our interests in about the same way.

Mr. Speaker, the hour has long passed when the giant oil companies and cartels can be trusted with the economic and military security of this country.

For three years, we in this Congress and the preceding one have been talking about energy and we have done next to nothing.

There may be times when we best serve the Republic by doing nothing—but this is certainly not one of them. The time for action is upon us. We will deserve the censure of our fellow citizens if we do not come to grips with the paramount energy problem.

It is true that the administration has at long last come forward with a synthetic fuels proposal.

It is true that the House has passed an amendment to the Defense Production Act which will get us started—but very slowly—toward providing synthetic fuels for the Defense Establishment.

It is true that both Houses of Congress have synthetic fuels legislation under consideration.

But it is not true, Mr. Speaker, that any one of them or all of them combined will make a real dent in the crisis.

To talk about a goal of synthetic fuel production of a million or two barrels a day in 1995 is like talking about a fly speck on an elephant's hip.

The House leadership is aware, I am sure, that the Committee on Education and Labor earlier this year reported a bill, H.R. 4514, which would make a significant and crash effort to equalize synthetic fuels production with present petroleum imports—and do it in the shortest possible time.

I urge the leadership to summon up the courage and bring this bill to the floor, and let us debate it and amend it if need be and vote upon it.

Our bill provides for a wholly owned Government corporation with directors and management appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate to set up and operate a synthetic fuels industry in this country.

It is not limited to energy from coal—but it encompasses all known forms of energy available within our borders: shale, solar, biomass, gasohol, and any others.

It provides for a broad spectrum of participation by private industry as well as by the Government corporation. It offers every incentive that has ever been suggested to get private industry into the production of energy which we can control right here in our own country.

It is a comprehensive bill, and in my judgment far superior to anything that has yet been produced by the administration or other sources.

Mr. Speaker, I urge the Congress to consider this legislation. Let us do something to let the ayatollah know that the American spirit of old is not dead, and that the hour will come when those who insult us will suffer for it.

Recession or Not . . .

In State 'Sun Shines Bright'

Employment and personal income are at record levels in Kentucky, with the purchasing power of residents outstripping inflation by a $2.4 billion gain in real income during the last four years, a report prepared by the Kentucky Development Cabinet shows.

The report, officially submitted last week to Gov. Julian Carroll by Development Secretary William Short, lists achievements in Kentucky's economic growth from 1975 to 1979 and describes the development initiatives undertaken during that period.

Total personal income grew by $8 billion between 1974 and 1978, more than in any other four-year period in the state's history, the report shows.

During that same time, per capita personal income—average dollars per Kentuckian each year—went from $4,524 to $6,607, an increase of 46 percent. Short pointed out in a letter accompanying the report that personal income has increased more rapidly in Kentucky than in the nation as a whole during this period. Personal income in the state now stands at 84.3 percent of the national figure of $7,836, the report shows.

A substantial number of new industries have been established in the past four years and many existing industries have expanded their operations, Short noted. The report shows that more than 161,000 new jobs have been added to the state's employment base, for an increase of 12.4 percent in the total number of jobs.

There was also "a striking change" in the number of self-employed persons, such as business proprietors and professionals, which went from 136,400 to 152,400, an increase of 11.7 percent, the report says.

Short noted that Kentucky's unemployment rate remained well below the national average throughout the period because of the increases in total jobs and income.

Other growth areas listed in the report include:

- An increase of 17 percent in the 1978 gross farm income of $2 billion.

- An increase in total value of Kentucky's farmland from $6.3 billion in 1974 to $11.4 billion in 1979—an average annual growth rate of 16 percent compared to a national growth rate of 14.9 percent.

- An increase of approximately three and a half times in agricultural exports between 1972 and 1977, from $132 million to $473 million.

- A record coal production of 147 million tons in 1977, exceeding production in any other state during the past decade and adding $2.5 billion to the state's economy that year.

- Capital expenditures for new and expanded manufacturing plants of $1.72 billion from 1975 through 1977—the highest three-year total in Kentucky's history.

- Expenditures of $4.6 billion by travelers in Kentucky between 1975 and 1978, for a 69 percent increase in tourism income over the previous four-year period.

The report lists among state activities designed to promote economic development the establishment of the Kentucky Center for Energy Research, the Kentucky Film Commission, the Kentucky Horse Park and a separate Department of Tourism, and the reactivation of the Governor's Economic Development Commission.

In addition, a number of development activities are now under way which can be expected to benefit Kentuckians in the coming years through increased numbers of jobs, higher incomes and greater tourism activity, the report says.

These include the development of nine multi-county industrial parks with the aid of grants and loans from the Kentucky Development Finance Authority, the construction of 10 public riverports with the help of $14 million state funds for riverport development and the investment of $12.6 million in state funds in two major tourist attractions, convention and community centers, and fairgrounds improvements throughout the state.

In addition, the role of the Kentucky Development Finance Authority was recently expanded to take in tourism and agricultural projects, and the Department of Commerce was reorganized to provide greater assistance to companies seeking to locate in Kentucky, to promote international trade and to give technical aid to existing and new small-business enterprises, the report says.

D.A.V. Auxiliary Honors Gold Star Parents

The Disabled American Veterans Ladies Auxiliary of Auxier was host to a Gold Star mothers dinner Sunday, Nov. 18, at the Auxier Fire Department building.

A nice program was enjoyed by all those attending. Rev. Clifford Austin brought the message and Billy Powers and family and Jenny Wells sang some beautiful hymns.

A cake and gifts were presented to the following mothers and fathers:

Lula Wallen, of Prestonsburg; Mattie Wallen, of Water Gap; Fannie Runnels, of Prestonsburg; Alka Holbrook, of Middle Creek Road; Dixie Campbell, of Auxier; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Butler, of Paintsville; Alice Collins and Julia Adkins, both of Boonscamp; John and Alka Castle, of Red Bush.

Also honored were Gretel Daniels and Maggie Adams who are patients at Riverview Manor Nursing Home.

A crowd of approximately 125 persons enjoyed the occasion including State Commanders Henry Richardson and Roseda Thomas.

Commander Harlie Sturgill was master of ceremonies for the day.

His Apology Due the World

Liberally gifted with hindsight, we see room for error in the invitation given by the United States to the former Shah of Iran to come to a New York hospital for treatment for cancer. His admission was particularly unfortunate if, as has been claimed, the same treatment was available for him in Mexico City.

Yet, if any apologies are due, they are from Iran's Khomeini—and his apology is not due only to one nation but to the world.

For he has called for a "holy war" to be waged by Moslems everywhere against the "infidels," more particularly described as Americans. Monster or madman, he apparently would plunge the world into a war that could mean extinction of a great part of its population and an end of civilization as we know it.

Oddly enough, Khomeini rages against the American "infidels" but is silent about atheistic Russia.

Khomeini, a man who calls for guns in every Moslem's hands, death for the "infidels," death for those of his own people who oppose him, a blood bath for the world, and who is the first national leader to violate the security of the embassy of another country—what a spiritual leader!

of the stuff. Then he moseyed up on back of our barn and than he run into our best plow mule, which for plumb downright cussedness he took a big bite out of.

"Well, sir, as you may know, a mule ain't no animal to go around takin' bites out of. Old Jake, he just hauled off and kicked that hog square in the stummock. Ordinarily, a little kick like that wouldn't have bothered that hog a bit, but it stirred up that dynamite so much that it went off. The corn crib was tore to flinders, winders cracked up to two miles away, and some said they found pieces of that mule over in the next county. And I tell you, mister, for a day or so we had a mighty sick hog on our hands."

is needed if he is to hire adequate help. A customer, Mrs. Jean Hickman, of Cliff, who said that her garbage has not been collected since August 21, opined that most customers would be willing to pay more if regular service was provided.

Judge Wells maintained, however, that any raise in rates would have to be negotiated with the franchisees themselves, suggesting that Sloane attempt to resolve the issue either with Lafferty or through a voluntary arrangement with his customers.

The question of fairer distribution of county equipment, including the three bulldozers used to compact and cover waste at the landfills on Mud Creek, Turkey Creek and Blue River, was hotly disputed among the magistrates, with the judge-executive urging that the county landfills supervisor, Town Newsome, and county road foreman, Sam Fitzpatrick, be given authority to transfer equipment from one district to another as needed.

A decision on transferring compensation insurance for county and CETA workers from the Sandy Valley Insurance Company to Hall and Clark Insurance remained unresolved, with Judge Wells pressing for the transfer and Magistrate Hershel Hamilton opposing it.

Eastern Kentucky's Changing Economy . . .

Dollars and Sense

By DR. RAYMOND S. FERELL
Coordinator of Regional Research
Appalachian Development Center
Morehead State University

The economy of Kentucky's rural areas has played the major role in upholding the development which has been occurring in the state since 1970. That is the conclusion of Dr. Evan Brunson in a paper, "Maximizing Rural Development in Kentucky," which was presented at the recent Kentucky Economic Association meeting Louisville. Dr. Brunson is director of research with the Southern Growth Policies Board at Research Triangle Park in North Carolina:

The coal boom was one of the factors which fueled rural economic growth, Dr. Brunson concluded. Those counties which had higher rates of population growth were also those counties which had substantial growth in coal mining. In Eastern Kentucky, Martin, Johnson, Whitley, Floyd, Knott, Letcher, Breathitt and Pike counties all had population increases of over 20 percent between 1970 and 1977, and all are substantial coal producing counties.

Growth in manufacturing also has helped keep the Kentucky economy moving. By analyzing the U.S. Bureau of the Census "County Business Patterns," Dr. Brunson noted that 14 counties in Kentucky had 2,000 more jobs in business in 1977 than they had in 1970. In Eastern Kentucky, Pike county's employment increased by 6,223, Pulaski county's by 4,232, Whitley's by 3,723, Laurel's by 3,304, Madison's by 3,012, and Harlan's by 2,457. These figures are the total of all business employment increases, including manufacturing.

Manufacturing employment growth also has been significant particularly in those counties which are close to the interstate highways. Whitley County has an increase of 2,139 in manufacturing employment between 1970 and 1977, Pulaski has 1,718, Madison, 1,531, and Laurel, 1,023. These figures emphasize the need in Eastern Kentucky for transportation and access to improve the chances of attracting industry.

What then, can Kentucky, particularly Eastern Kentucky, do to have continued rural economic development? While Dr. Brunson gives very high marks to the state for its commitment to rural development, and even suggests that many of the objectives have already been reached, he suggests that the state should pursue three strategies for continued rural economic development.

First of all, the economy of rural counties, particularly in the coal counties, must be diversified. This means that the state should pursue policies to expand the present business and industrial sectors, and encourage re-location of industry. The state already has this as an objective, but a much more intensified effort will need to be made in the future.

Secondly, the cities and towns must be made more attractive to new industry. Continued capital investment in roads, railroads, airports, and water and sewage systems are necessary for continued growth, particularly in those areas where growth is already occurring such as London-Corbin, Richmond, and Mt. Sterling.

Finally, the state's rural areas have a very high potential for increased tourism and recreation. The state has one of the nation's best parks systems and more emphasis should be placed on this area in the future.

Kentucky, concludes Dr. Brunson, has a very high potential for continued economic development. The main obstacle is attitude, but that is the strength of Eastern Kentucky because we are more positive about our future.

Letters to the Editor

Replies to Poole Letter

The fate of the world may well be at stake in Iran.

In the Nov. 19 Letters to the Editor of the Lexington Herald the Rev. William Poole, of Martin, suggested that we owe an apology to the people of Iran.

At that point my blood boiled.

A lunatic could see that the trouble in Iran is, in fact, the Near East, not the Middle East.

The Rev. Poole seems not to comprehend the real root of the matter. He is loud of mouth and shallow of wisdom.

The trouble is, sir, between Russia and the United States of America. Perhaps they don't teach that in theological seminary, but the reverend is way out in left field; he knows not of what he speaks.

He has a right to his view, as I have mine. I would not deny him that right if I could. That is the American way, and I trust it always will.

He seems to be very ready to accept and promote extreme left wing causes—and to downgrade the best interest of the United States of America, which I love.

Nutrition Programs for Elderly Will Not Be Cut, State Says

Nutrition programs for Kentucky's elderly will not be decreased this year, despite cutbacks anticipated by the Department for Human Resources.

The department's division for aging services, the state agency which administers congregate meal programs for the elderly, has received $746,316 to supplement nutrition programs for senior citizens this fiscal year.

Kentucky is one of 26 states and U.S. territories receiving part of $10.3 million to cover program costs which have occurred after Oct. 1, 1978. Larry Michalczik, acting director of the division for aging services, said that without the additional funding, Kentucky's nutrition programs would have been decreased because of rising costs of raw food and transportation, the largest expenses in the program.

Michalczik said the state asked for supplemental funds "because we felt our nutrition program suffered decreases in serving levels. We couldn't serve as many meals to the elderly as we did last year."

State-funded nutrition programs served meals to about 75,000 elderly persons in the 1978-79 fiscal year at approximately 220 nutrition sites statewide, according to Anita Privett, of the aging services division. She said with the additional federal dollars, at least the same number of meals could be served again this fiscal year.

Privett said the state's 15 area development districts, which administer nutrition programs for the elderly on local levels, had already planned to cope with program decreases by making staff cutbacks and cutting the number of serving days per week. She said the Bluegrass area development district, which includes 17 counties, would have served 9,000 less meals during the 1980 fiscal year as compared with 1979.

Esther Rigby, nutrition project director for the Bluegrass district, had planned to cut from 247 serving days annually to 108 at the district's 21 meal sites. She said centers normally serving meals to the elderly five days a week would probably have only been open four days weekly. The additional money makes the reductions unnecessary, she said.

The Barren River area development district would have dropped 10,000 meals served to elderly in that 10-county area this fiscal year. Bill Guthrie, aging planner for the district, said he had made plans to cut from serving 750 meals daily to 700 meals a day. He said he

Health Dept. Holds Three Free Clinics

On Friday, November 30, the Floyd County Health Department will be conducting a Pap smear clinic from 8:30 to 11:30 and 1:00 to 2:00.

In order to have continuing protection against cervical cancer, a woman must have a Pap smear at least once a year. This clinic is a free service and the public is welcome to attend.

On Monday, December 3, the regularly scheduled Martin Outpost Clinic will be conducted at the Beaver Valley Clinic from 10:00 to 12:00 and 1:00 to 2:00. Services offered at this clinic will include immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, blood pressures, and Pap tests.

Both clinics are free and the public is welcome to attend.

The semi-annual Regional Heart Clinic was conducted at the Floyd County Health Department on November 5 through the 7th. A team of cardiologists from the University of Kentucky Medical Center saw 215 patients, the majority of which were children (151). The attending patients were from Floyd county and surrounding counties.

Food was furnished for the patients, during their long wait to see their physicians, by the Prestonsburg Chapter of the Kiwanians. The Floyd County Health Department wishes to thank these ladies for their services in helping to make this heart clinic a success.

Mrs. Combs To Speak Here on Printmaking

December 2 at 10 a.m. in the Emma May Cultural Center, a talk about prints and printmaking will be offered by Duna Combs. Printmaking is an art form dating back to the ancient wood-cut block used by the Chinese in the second century A.D. to imprint wax and clay. From those early beginnings the wood block was used to print texts and pictures in books around the seventh century, and the art form quickly spread to Japan and Europe. In America the wood-cut was the choice of John Foster in 1670 for a portrait of Richard Mather. A century later two Americans were in full control of wood-engraving and their works showed up in numerous books and magazines. Winslow Homer, John Lafarge, Thomas Nast were well known artists who worked the medium brilliantly.

The woodcut, one of four distinct processes in printmaking was fore runner of Intaglio, and the stencil.

Saturday mornings, Mr. Combs will explain the processes using matrixes (copper plates, lithographic stones, silk screens, wood blocks) and show the images hand-pulled from the plates. The audience will see etching, aqua-tint, mezzo-tint, lithograph, relief and silk screened prints. The work on display is the work of her Morehead University students.

Also noted will be the numbering of editions, different papers used for prints, and how to begin to distinguish among the different prints. Pointing up the subject will be a display of the many books the library houses on the art of printmaking.

Mrs. Peachie Collins is coordinator of the program, and more information can be had by calling the Floyd County Library. The program is free and open to the public.

Students in Piano Recital

Two students from the class of Nancy Lyon performed November 18 in a Kentucky Music Teachers' Association piano recital at Ashland. Kim Hodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Hodge, and Betsy Arnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Arnett, both of Paintsville, were among 30 students from the Ashland Area Music Teacher's Association who performed at the First Christian Church in Ashland. Betsy Arnett, a seventh grader at W. R. Castle School, played "Magic Circles," by Jean Paul Ivey; Kim Hodge, an eighth grade student at Central Elementary, played "Minuet," by Bela Bartok.

Every two months the Ashland Area Music Teacher's Association will sponsor such an event. Each teacher is asked to bring two students to perform. Students of all levels will be encouraged to participate.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Floyd CIRCUIT COURT
CR. NO. 79-CI-024
First Federal Savings and Loan
Association of Paintsville...Plf.
VS. NOTICE OF SALE
Wayne Porterfield, et al... Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the July term, 1979 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 7th day of December, 1979 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three (3) months, the following described property to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land lying in Floyd County, Kentucky, on the right fork of Middle Creek and described as follows:

Beginning at five willow trees in the edge of Middle Creek at the point where the Nora Prater line intersects Middle Creek; thence with the Nora Prater line to new Kentucky Highway No. 114; thence with Kentucky Highway No. 114 to the creek; thence following the creek back to the point of beginning.

Being the same property conveyed to Wayne Porterfield by deed from Hershel Owens and Pauline Owens, his wife, dated June 30, 1975, recorded in Deed Book No. 223, page 163. Records of Floyd County Court Clerk's Office.

There is excepted from the above described property that portion conveyed by Wayne Porterfield, et ux, to Jack Whittaker, et ex, by deed dated November 17, 1975, recorded in Deed Book No. 224, page 194, Records of Floyd County Court Clerk's Office.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $77,104.70 with interest thereon at 8 percent annually from the 30th day of November, 1979 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms. Purchaser shall make a cash deposit of $1,000.00 on date of sale.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of November 1979.

DAN ROWLAND
Special Commissioner
Floyd Circuit Court

11-21-31.

Admitted to Kentucky Bar

MARTHA LAYNE COLLINS, (left), Kentucky's Supreme Court Clerk, congratulates Joni Tackett Page, of Lexington, on her admission to the Kentucky Bar. Mrs. Collins administered the Constitutional oath to the new attorney during ceremonies in Frankfort. Mrs. Page is the daughter of Judge Charles Tackett and Mrs. Tackett, the former Emmalene Hall, former residents of Prestonsburg.

VA Says No Dividends Paid on Lapsed Policies

Several different groups of individuals and organizations in Kentucky are now circulating what the VA calls "the old dividend hoax."

It promises that veterans of World War II can collect a dividend based on their service, "even if they haven't kept their policies in force."

The VA has been plagued for years by an annual influx of queries about, and applications for, the non-existent dividends.

It is a hoax that has recurred annually since 1948. The hoax is fueled anew every few years by the mysterious distribution of official-looking application forms complete with an address where dividends are said to be available for the asking.

Ashland Coal Gets Permit To Construct Tower in Johnson Co.

The Kentucky Airport Zoning Commission last week approved three applications for permitted construction along state airways:

— A permit to construct an antenna tower 6.5 miles northeast of the Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport near Van Lear in Johnson county. The tower, erected by Ashland Coal Inc., will be 200 feet high.

— A permit to construct an antenna tower seven miles southeast of Barkley Regional Airport near Paducah in McCracken county. The tower, 300 feet high, will be erected by National Tower Leasing Co.

— A permit to allow construction of numerous street light standards near the approach end of Bowling Green Airport's Runway 3 in Warren county.

Two permit applications submitted by Peabody Coal Co. for construction in Waverly (Union county) were set aside until more information could be obtained.

"No one can build his security upon the nobleness of another person." Willa Cather

The bogus application states that dividends are payable even though premiums haven't been paid since 1945.

The insurance centers in Philadelphia and St. Paul think the rumor may have its roots in a special dividend paid in 1950 and 1951, but all payments under that program were ended in 1970 by an act of Congress.

Another theory is that the rumor starts annually when the VA announces dividends for holders of current insurance policies. These payments are made automatically on the anniversary date of the policy and no application is necessary.

The VA insurance centers are deluged with inquiries about the dividends. In the past 10 years the St. Paul center has received over 400,000 letters of inquiry about the dividends. They come from every state and as far away as Bangkok and Thailand. It is estimated that it has cost the VA at least half a million dollars to respond to these inquiries and inform the veteran there is no such dividend.

The VA sends a printed notice to all veterans who apply for the so-called dividend. It says that Congress has not passed a law giving World War II veterans a dividend on GI insurance policies that are not in force.

WAYLAND NEWS

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club met recently for a program meeting in the home of Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Garrett, with Mrs. Marie C. Mullins in charge of the program on the subject, "Education and Home Life."

Mrs. Mullins who is head of the Home Economics Department at Allen Central High, listed four main objectives to be stressed during the 1979-'80 school year.

1. To study school curricula and work for needed changes to assure the right of each individual student to acquire mastery of the basic skills; 2. Parents to upgrade child care in the home to improve the overall quality of family life. (Here the speaker emphasized that parents should "guide a little, shape a little, emphasize common courtesy, stress the importance of the rights of others in order that these lessons may help to make the child a better student throughout his school life."); 3. Availability of scholarships; 4. Explanation of things being done for the child, as this is the "International Year of the Child."

Mrs. Mullins pointed out that there are books which can be obtained from the Governor's office in Frankfort which explain the rights of the child. Concluding, the speaker stressed that "Mankind owes the child the best it has to give."

Prior to the program, devotions were conducted by Mrs. Hansel Bradley. During the business session later it was decided to order the usual pecans for sale this year and also some Christmas items to raise money for the club's civic activities.

A discussion of the next meeting, the dinner entertaining daughter clubs, was held and volunteers accepted for food for the dinner.

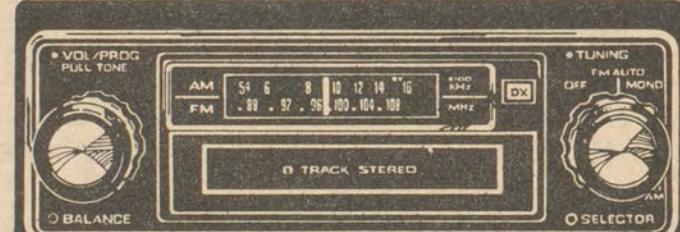

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Mike Froman, Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. Joyce Stevens, Mrs. Gwen Francis, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Don Hughes, Mrs. June DeCoursey, Mrs. Laeunice Dunfee, Mrs. Anita L. Mullins, Mrs. Loretta M. Martin, Mrs. Marie C. Mullins, Mrs. Marsella C. Bradley, Mrs. Avanelle C. Wells, and Mrs. Libby Martin.

Miners Meet UMW President

PIKEVILLE, KY.—Sam Church, new president of the United Mine Workers of America, visited Pike county last week in an attempt to restore harmony between coal miners and company officials at two union mines.

In doing so, he apparently also restored some harmony to the UMW in Kentucky.

"This is the cooperation that rank and file has been begging for several years now," said J. B. Trout, who has been international executive board representative from District 30 in Pikeville since 1973.

"We've had better cooperation in the five days Sam Church has been in office than we've had in seven years."

Arnold Miller, UMW president for the past seven years, resigned his office while in a Charleston, W. Va., hospital recovering from a heart attack.

Trout claimed Miller had ignored Kentucky, perhaps because the state's three union districts failed to support him in the last union election.

Church, 43, a former miner from Matewan, W. Va., who attended Berea College for a year, told a news conference in district headquarters here "unemployment is Kentucky's big problem now, a problem caused by a slump in the coal market."

To help remedy this, he said, the UMW is supporting government action to stimulate coal use. The union wants federal backing for development of plants to convert coal to synthetic fuels and for power plants switching from other fuels to coal.

"I see a large growth in the coal industry during the next 10 years because of the switch to synthetic fuels," he said.

"The coal industry will boom and the mine worker should be part of the boom."

Unemployment Rise*Noted Last Month

Unemployment information released Nov. 20 by the Department for Human Resources indicates the October unemployment rate was 5.7 percent, 0.4 percentage points higher than the September rate. The national unemployment rate for October was 5.6 percent.

Unemployed Kentuckians numbered 92,000 in October, 6,900 more than during September, said Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department. "The October increase was primarily due to job lay-offs plus the large number of new and re-entering workers in the labor force," he said. Youth unemployment continues to be high throughout Kentucky, he added.

According to MacDonald, Kentucky's October labor force of 1,631,000 was the largest ever recorded. MacDonald credits this to increased job opportunities within the state and more persons seeking jobs because of inflation.

Makes Christmas Plans

The Allen Woman's Club held its November meeting at its clubhouse with Anita Lafferty, president, presiding. A devotion entitled "To a Friend" was read by Ferne Ankrom, and the treasurer's report was read by Pat Derossett. Minutes from the October meeting were read by Diana Reed.

Mary Hinchman, Jo Ann Adams, Pat Derossett and Bonita Porter attended the 7th District meeting sponsored by the Martin Woman's Club on Oct. 27. Seventh District officers elected are the following:

District Governor, Ruby Akers, Drift Woman's Club; vice-governor, Maxine Bierman, Prestonsburg Woman's Club; Jr. Director, Sharon Watson, Prestonsburg Jr. Woman's Club; Recording Secretary, Agnes Caudill, Hazard Woman's Club. Patricia Lee, president of KFWC, was guest speaker.

The club's annual Christmas dinner plans were completed, and the dinner is to be held on Saturday, December 1, at the Plantation.

The committees for the annual Christmas parade were announced by co-chairmen Jo Ann Adams and Bonnie Spencer. The parade will be held on December 8 at 12 noon. A Snow Prince and Princess, and Snow King and Queen will be elected from Allen Grade School to reign over this year's parade. In case of rain, the parade will be cancelled, but Santa will be at the Branch Bank Josephine giving out treats. The children may have their pictures taken with Santa for a small fee which will be donated to the Allen Volunteer Fire Dept. Also, a bake sale will be held with the proceeds also going to the Fire Dept.

Hostesses for the Nov. meeting were Lois Marshall and Nancy Marcum. Refreshments were served to the following members: Anita Lafferty, Mary Hinchman, Pat Derossett, Diana Reed, Ferne Ankrom, Jo Ann Adams, Bonita Porter, and Hollie Blanton.

Recommend Increase In Tax, Toll, Fees
For State Road Fund

Potential sources of revenue to bolster the state road fund were outlined in the Governor's Task Force on Transportation's report presented to Gov. Carroll here today.

Recommendations contained in the report included increasing the motor fuels tax by two cents per gallon effective immediately; removing the 5 percent sales tax exemption on motor fuels; transferring the debt service retirement for state toll roads from the road fund to the state general fund; doubling present fees on toll roads to keep up with inflation; and increasing registration fees on all vehicles from $12.50 to $25.

According to the report, the two-cent increase would raise the motor fuels tax from 9 cents to 11 cents for gasoline and 11 cents to 13 cents for diesel fuel.

Also, the report states an additional $54 million would be available in the state road fund if the toll road debt service retirement was transferred to the state general fund.

Gov. Carroll said the main factors influencing funding decisions include "what transportation services do Kentuckians expect, what can they afford, what are they willing to pay for and how can these needs be financed?"

Carroll said the state should "build projects now," alluding to the task force report figures that show the cost of construction or reconstruction of a highway has nearly tripled since 1967.

"We should borrow money now and build instead of waiting for money to come in" when projects are more expensive, Carroll added.

"The strength of Kentucky's economy comes from a successful transportation program," he said, adding that governor-elect John Y. Brown supports this concept.

Brown Sees Hard Decisions Ahead for Him, Assembly

In his first major address to the new General Assembly, Democratic Gov.-elect John Y. Brown, Jr., said he does not intend to abuse his power.

The address, delivered without notes last week at Kentucky Dam Village, went over much of the same ground that the 45-year-old millionaire covered during his successful primary and general election campaigns.

He said again that the state has great potential and its leaders merely need vision and unselfishness to lift it economically into the national limelight.

Brown again avoided specific proposals for the 1980 session in his speech at the pre-legislative conference in Kentucky Dam Village State Park.

But he gave some hints as to his priorities, declaring for one that "I'm going to ask you for funds to build the finest park system in the nation."

He said he also would ask for the necessary bonding authority to construct a comprehensive road system.

In effect, the incoming governor agrees with outgoing Gov. Julian Carroll, who told the legislators in a luncheon speech earlier in the day that it is wiser to sell bonds to finance roads to cope with inflation.

"There will be some hard financial decisions and I don't want to unload it all on you and I don't want you to unload it all on me," Brown told the lawmakers.

He said that the Carroll administration is easy to criticize, but was responsible "for some great undertakings in the last four years," including support of education and economic development.

The new governor said he would continue those advances. He said that "I have only four or five pieces of legislation" that should be enacted in the next session, and mentioned revision of the state income tax to eliminate what he called unfairness to poor taxpayers.

Brown flew down to this resort park for the speech with some aides and left shortly afterwards.

He called it "a little frightening" that as many as 1,400 bills will be introduced in the coming session and said he thinks this indicates there is too much government.

Brown asked the legislators to avoid excessive output of proposed bills "just to get your name on a bill."

He said that he has respected the assembly by not interfering with its choice of internal leaders and asked that at the same time the lawmakers respect his election mandate.

"I'm assuming you've given me effective leadership," Brown commented, then added that he did not even know which leaders were elected here earlier in the day.

Equitable Gas Wins Increase of Rates

The Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission has approved a natural gas rate increase for the Equitable Gas Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The company serves portions of eastern Kentucky.

Customers will pay a monthly rate of $2.79 for the first 2,000 cubic feet of gas. The rate per 1,000 cu. ft. decreases as more gas is used. The minimum monthly bill will be $1.80.

The rate hike reflects the increased cost of wholesale natural gas supplied to the company by the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co.

College Gym Nears Completion

Pikeville College gymnasium nears completion on the lower campus.

The long siege of continuing problems attached to the restoration of the Pikeville College gymnasium after the disastrous flood of 1977 is nearly over as the finishing touches to construction take place and the sanding of the new flooring begins. Once that is finished, it remains only to install the seating.

Plans are still set for the December 14 game with Berea College, and the homecoming game the next day against Milligan College of Tennessee.

Hopes are running high for a successful basketball season, since the PC team returned as runnerup in a tournament in Salina, Kansas, where the Panthers finished second in a field of eight teams.

David Rowe and Howard West were listed on the all-tournament team.

• Christmas candles are cheerful and attractive, but beneath their light can be drips of wax—globes often stuck right in the carpet. Here's how to remove it. Freeze the wax hard with an ice cube, then lift it off with the dull edge of a table knife. Use your vacuum cleaner to pick up any remaining bits of wax.

A TRIBUTE TO MAE CECIL

By: LORRAINE LAYNE

MA MA:

This day was set aside in honor of your Sunday School teaching career which has lasted more than half a century.

As a young woman of twenty-eight, you gathered your first little flock of bright-eyed listeners around your knees. They were also found on your lap . . . in your arms . . . and in your heart.

In fifty-two years, the pattern has never changed. You still love each one as if it were your own . . . and . . . each one loves you.

Some have gone on to be with the Lord . . . but hundreds remain . . . many of them called into the Master's service. Many have married, and as time passed, brought their own babes back to you for loving instruction.

All the smiling faces gathered here today are happy because you taught them what JOY means: Jesus First! Others Second! Yourself Last!

And they know the Ten Commandments of God because it was required before they could leave your class. Some cried when they passed this test because they didn't want to leave you. These you gently nudged from the nest with a hug and a kiss. You didn't cry until they were out of sight. You had to learn to let go of them, and they had to learn to let go of you.

But they'll always remember Ma Ma and her favorite part of THE LORD'S PRAYER: "Lead us not into temptation . . . but deliver us from alllll evil."

And they'll remember your testimony and the way you waved your tiny hand in a shout when your body had become too feeble to stand during the service.

They'll remember your place on the end of the pew and the faithfulness with which you and Pa Pa attended church . . . sometimes on a cane . . . many times when neither of you were able.

They'll remember the Christmas plays when you lined up your babies and coached each small mouth until the age-old story, once again was told anew.

They'll remember the Easter egg hunts, your chicken and dumplings and the way there was always food in Ma Ma's kitchen when they went to visit.

But more than this . . . they'll remember that Ma Ma said: "It pays to be prayed up, paid up and ready to go because the Lord might come at any hour." They'll remember that she said: "The world didn't give us salvation and it can't take it away." They'll remember that she taught: "We've all got a work we can do. There's no place to sit down and quit!"

And Ma Ma, they'll remember that you didn't quit . . . that even though you were eighty years old, it was the Lord who had to say: "That's enough Mae. Sit down and rest awhile. You've earned it. Rest until I call you home, where I'll give you a new body that needs no rest. In that day, you can gather all your little ones about you. You can leap with them upon the grassy slopes of Heaven. You can march with them up and down the streets of gold."

And Ma Ma, when you take them before the pearl-white throne . . . to meet the Great King Himself . . . I believe the angels will stand back . . . and allow you to make the introductions.

GOD BLESS YOU MA MA CECIL.

FROM ALL THOSE WHOSE LIVES YOU HAVE EVER TOUCHED.

Jean Thomas, Now 98, Honored As Ashland Museum Dedicated

A long-cherished dream of folklorist Jean Thomas was realized Nov. 20 as a museum was dedicated in her honor at the new Appalachian Cultural Park, south of Ashland.

Some 150 persons attended a reception and party for Mrs. Thomas on her 98th birthday in the reconstructed museum home in "The House in the Woods" on McCullough Drive.

The Jean Thomas Museum represents the first phase of the Appalachian Cultural Park which is being developed by the Greater Ashland Cultural and Economic Development Foundation, Inc.

The brick cottage was expanded to include an art gallery and meeting room, an Appalachian gift shop, an archives area and a storage vault.

Funds for the museum and "The Gathering Place," a community center which will be built on an adjoining site, were provided from a $1,259,600 grant from the state's local Convention and Community Centers Fund.

Mrs. Thomas, who is in a nursing home, was unable to attend her birthday party. Her niece, Sandy Crawford, said there was no need to make a wish as she cut the cake. "Speaking for Aunt Jenny (Jean Thomas), I think our wish has already come true," she said.

The three-tiered cake featured a model of an English cottage and a miniature "traipsin' woman" wearing Mrs. Thomas' familiar costume — a long, black dress with white ruffled collar and cuffs. Similar costumes were worn by the volunteer guides who showed visitors through the museum. The museum is filled with antiques, primitive musical instruments and other memorabilia.

Ashland banker G. B. Johnson Jr. paid tribute to members of the community, local officials, Gov. Julian Carroll and other state officials for their part in the successful completion of the project.

Charles Hall, chairman of the commission named by the Greater Ashland Foundation to manage the Appalachian Cultural Park, said plans for the park include an amphitheater, relocation of the one-room schoolhouse where Jesse Stuart once taught and the moving of a log school house from the Logan Street site where Jean Thomas' home formerly stood.

He said the park commission later plans to revive the folk song festival which Mrs. Thomas began in 1931 and which was discontinued in 1972 because of her declining health. A continuing drama may also be developed for presentation in the amphitheater, he added.

"We're excited about the whole thing," Hall said. "It's just the beginning of what we know will be a truly great thing for Eastern Kentucky. It will be the seed for many great things to come in this area."

The Appalachian Cultural Park is expected to become a major tourist attraction. It will also provide a center for scholars interested in studying traditional Appalachian music, folklore and history.

Open House Slated

The Wells House, a preschool for developmentally disabled children and a group home for mentally handicapped adults operated by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, will have open house Sunday, December 2, from 2 to 4 at the home on Third Street, Pikeville.

The pre-school has functioned for several years in Pike county. It trains developmentally disabled children in personal and social skills and helps them prepare for entry into public school. The pre-school is housed in the newly-decorated ground floor of the Wells House. Paula West, teacher, and Esther Newsome, aide, are in charge of the program.

The purpose of the Group Home is to assist people who have been institutionalized in making the transition to community living. Pam Meyer, the program supervisor, trains the residents in personal and domestic skills in a home setting. During the day, residents work at one of the horticultural training programs run by the agency.

IN MEMORY

In memory of my beloved brother, Donald G. Mullins, who departed from this life one year ago, November 11, 1978—Born August 5, 1946.

Your gentle face and patient smile, with sadness, we recall.
You are not forgotten, Donald G. nor will you ever be.

As long as life and memory last.

We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,

As time goes by, we miss you even more.
Donald, I remember the talk we had, a few days before God called mom home to be with him.

I told you the answer to our life, and what God can do.

And I pray that you had time to ask God to save you.

The one thing God has promised—He'll go with us, through our darkest hour.

And praise God, when I enter Heaven's gate—you will be there with Mom—Dad, and all of God's children.

Your loving smile, your gentle face—No one can fill your vacant place.

Fed. Program Aims at Providing Disadvantaged Adequate Heat

It happens every year about this time. Temperatures begin to drop, leaves start to turn and brisk winds announce the approach of winter weather.

And along with the change of season come higher heating bills.

The Kentucky Department for Human Resources is managing a $4.5 million federal program aimed at keeping low-income, elderly and handicapped Kentuckians warmer this winter.

The program provides labor and materials to weatherize the homes of disadvantaged Kentuckians, at no charge to the residents. Improvements include window repairs, weather stripping, storm windows and attic insulation.

Weatherization improvements are made on owner-occupied single family dwellings. Rental property housing low-income persons may be weatherized providing the landlord agrees not to increase the rent for at least one year.

Up to $1,000 per home can be spent on materials and program support costs including tools, transportation, equipment and on-site supervision, according to Mark Caines, coordinator of the project for the Human Resources Department's Bureau for Social Services. The U.S. Department of Energy, which provides funding for the project, allows Kentucky to waive the regulation that sets the regional limit at $800 per dwelling. Kentucky is the northern-most state in the southeastern states region.

Human Resources is authorized this calendar year to allocate $4.5 million to the local agencies administering the weatherization project, Caines said. Twenty-one community action agencies and four independent agencies manage the project on local levels through the state. Caines estimates that 5,000 Kentucky dwellings will be improved by the end of December.

The push to spend the federal money, Caines said, stems from President Carter's emphasis on assisting low-income persons faced with high utility bills due to improperly insulated homes. Federal officials hope to complete the majority of weatherization work by the end of this December before winter weather halts outside house repairs.

While 25 agencies manage the weatherization repairs on the local levels, the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Manpower Services administers CETA funds from the U.S. Department of Labor to pay salaries of weatherization workers. Funds for materials, administration and other expenses are allocated to local agencies by the Human Resources Department's Bureau for Social Services.

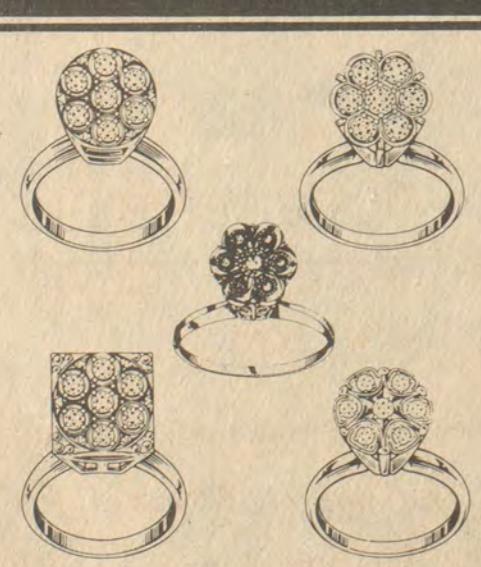

Caines said each of the 25 local agencies has an outreach staff in every Kentucky county. Those staffs receive recommendations on persons potentially eligible for the home weatherization benefits. To qualify for weatherization, persons must receive annual income at or below 125 percent of the federal poverty guidelines. Special emphasis is

B & H Denied Rate Hike

The Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission has denied a natural gas rate increase sought by the B & H Gas Co. of Stansville.

The company's proposed rates would have produced additional annual revenues of more than $27,500, an increase of 58.34 percent.

The company told the commission it needed the rate hike to cover increased operating expenses and to make system improvements required by the commission.

According to the commission's order, the present rates produce sufficient revenues to meet expenses and debt service requirements and provide a reasonable surplus.

The proposed rates, the commission said, "are unfair, unjust and unreasonable in that they produce annual revenues in excess of those found reasonable."

B & H serves approximately 270 customers in Floyd County.

Floyd Student Shares Record For Relay Run of 24 Hours

When four members of the Morehead State University track team started running last Tuesday morning their primary goal was to raise funds for a Special Olympics program to benefit handicapped youngsters in the Morehead area. But while they were at it the four athletes, who included Prestonsburg high school graduate Jim Brown, managed to set a new world's record for the 24-hour relay run.

"We decided we'd might as well try for the record even though we didn't actually think we could break it," commented Brown, a MSU freshman and son of Jason and Nancy Brown, of Middle Creek.

Brown, along with teammates Tim Back, of Morehead, John Broders, of Somerset, and Steve Gosney, of Cincinnati, O., started the marathon Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. running in alternating mile relays. "Each of us would run a mile, relay the bat to the next man, and then rest about 15 minutes or so," Brown pointed out.

Recalling the run, Brown said, "We managed to keep up the pace, and by 1 o'clock Wednesday morning we knew we would break the record." Exhausted, the four "just coasted" after realizing they had set a new record. The runners covered 234 miles, beating the existing record of 133 miles set by a California team in 1977, and Brown pointed out that the MSU team quit with 45 minutes to go. "So we could have racked up several more miles," he commented.

Brown said the team received a lot of support from local people who brought food and refreshments throughout the run and offered encouragement to the weary runners.

Brown said this week that the idea that he and his fellow runners had set a world's record "is just now starting to sink in."

"I just hope now that I can continue to develop and turn into a good performer for Morehead," Brown said.

Democrats Name Lowell Hughes Senate Whip for Coming Session

State Senator Lowell Hughes (D-Ashland), native of Prestonsburg, was named Senate Democratic Whip last week by party caucus at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park.

Senator Hughes, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hughes, now of Florida, is a graduate of Prestonsburg and the University of Kentucky.

Speaker of the House is again Rep. William Kenton (D-Lexington). The new speaker pro-tem is Rep. Hank Hancock (D-Frankfort). Kenton is the first legislator to be elected three times as speaker. He has served under two governors.

President Pro-Tem of the Senate is Joseph Prater (D-Vine Grove), who previously held that position. The new assistant pro-tem is Joe Wright (D-Harned).

These selections must be approved by the full membership of their respective houses when the legislature convenes in January.

Other leadership positions filled which are selected by caucus only are:

Senate-Democratic floor leader, John Berry (D-New Castle); Republican floor leader, Eugene Stuart (R-Louisville); Democratic caucus chairman, David Karem (D-Louisville); Republican caucus chairman, Walter Baker (R-Glasgow); Democratic whip, Lowell Hughes (D-Ashland); Republican whip, Clyde Middleton (R-Covington).

House-Democratic floor leader, Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow); Republican floor leader, Art Schmidt (R-Cold Springs); Democratic caucus chairman, William Donnemeyer (D-Bellevue); Republican caucus chairman, Herman Ratliff (R-Campbellsville); Democratic whip, Woody May (D-West Liberty); Republican whip, Woody Allen (R-Morgantown).

The leadership of the General Assembly comprises the Legislative Research Commission (LRC), the rules committee and the Committee on Committees. President of the Senate and speaker of the house serve as co-chairman of the LRC.

The Disaster Unemployment Assistance program, administered by the U.S. Department of Labor, was originally enacted into law in October 1969. It was concerned mainly with migratory farmworkers made jobless by major disasters who were not covered by unemployment insurance or other compensation.

KYDOT EMPLOYEES HONORED—Two state Department of Transportation employees from Highway District 12 were among the more than 100 employees honored for 25, 30 and 35 years of service with the department during a banquet at Lexington's Hilton Inn last month. Among the honorees present were, from left, Byron O. Laws, West Liberty, 30 years; and Aubrey Onkst, Prestonsburg, 30 years. Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson (right) presented the awards.

Prestonsburg Store To Figure In Quadruple Grand Opening

C & H Rauch, Kentucky's largest jeweler, this week announced the first quadruple grand opening ever to occur in the state.

November 29 will mark the official grand opening of the firm's locations in Prestonsburg, Morehead, Shelbyville and a second Frankfort location. This will complete 13 of the 39-store goal for C & H Rauch in Kentucky. Other locations include Lexington (Gardenside, South Park and Woodhill) and stores in

REBEKAHS MEET

Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 met November 20, with Mrs. Pauline Owens, noble grand, presiding. The following officers were nominated for the ensuing year: Noble grand, Mrs. Otelia Smiley; vice grand, Mrs. Maman Leslie; secretary, Mrs. Rebecca Bingham, and treasurer, Mrs. Jean Hickman. Plans were made for the District 4 meeting to be held at the I.O.O.F. Hall here, Saturday, December 1. Members of Miriam Rebekah Lodge are requested to bring a covered-dish and a gift for Christmas exchange at that time. Dinner will be served at 6 p.m.

Pikeville, Somerset, Hazard, Richmond, Frankfort and Mt. Sterling.

Expansion plans for 1980 include additional locations in Eastern, Central and Western Kentucky. Because of the firm's rapid growth, the number of its employees has doubled in the past five months.

Celebration plans include a ribbon-cutting at each new location by a local official and a corporate officer from C & H Rauch.

A grand prize package will be given at each new location in excess of $2,000. In celebration of the four-store opening four leaf clovers will be presented to each person requesting them as long as supplies last.

Turkey Bowl... What Happened?

By KENNY RICE

In 1968 two dozen former Prestonsburg High football stars got together on Thanksgiving afternoon at a vacant lot in Lancer to play a game of tackle football. To reduce the risk of injury they opened a nearby fire hydrant to flood the field, leaving behind a gridiron of mud and mud puddles.

For the next nine Thanksgiving afternoons Prestonsburg football alumni played a game of tackle. The annual event became known as the Turkey Bowl. The first two games were played in Lancer but as interest and attendance grew the game moved to Archer Park. The Prestonsburg Fire Department watered down the softball field at Archer for five straight years until the Bowl was shifted to the Prestonsburg Football Field in 1975.

During the last Turkey Bowl held at Archer Park some of the players passed a hat through the crowd of spectators to raise money for charity. The response was so great that the players decided to form a Turkey Bowl Association and sell tickets to the game with the proceeds going to some civic cause.

The next three Turkey Bowls raised enough money to send two Prestonsburg football players to Prestonsburg Community College on a scholarship, and to help the Stewart Wright Fund. The Turkey Bowl was as much a part of Thanksgiving to the people of Prestonsburg as was Macy's Parade to the people of New York City. The Bowl was a fun way for old friends to get together for a couple of hours of romping in the mud, plus the opportunity to raise money to help worthy projects.

The Turkey Bowl looked like an annual event that could just keep on going. The older players were "retiring" from the Bowl but there was a steady crop of recent grads coming up.

In 1978 something unusual happened. There was no one going around to Prestonsburg stores distributing tickets to be sold for the Turkey Bowl. There were no team meetings to get organized for the Bowl. Thanksgiving came and there was no Turkey Bowl.

Last week, on Thanksgiving afternoon, the PHS Football Field was empty, as was Archer Park, as was the vacant lot in Lancer. There was no trace of the Turkey Bowl.

It appears that as the older players decided they would rather stay in front of the TV and watch the pros play on Thanksgiving, instead of rolling in the mud, there was little interest on the part of recent PHS football grads to keep the tradition alive.

Will the Turkey Bowl return? It is hard to tell right now. Perhaps the 1977 Bowl was ominously ending the tradition. The football field was frozen when it was watered down and mud was mixed in with ice. By halftime there was a scoreless tie and a lot of frozen bodies, so the players unanimously agreed to call Turkey Bowl X a draw and go home to warm up.

Even "Wimpy" Clark, who had played in every Bowl, decided it was too cold to play the second half. And as one player said, "If Wimp doesn't want to play you know that it's just too bad for anyone to be playing."

For the record, the East won 4, the West won 4 and there were two ties.

KAREN DUFF HIRED AT AC

Karen Duff, who starred on the 1975 district championship team at Allen Central, will become the assistant basketball coach for the girls team at her alma mater upon her graduation from the University of Kentucky in December.

"I feel good about being a part of something again that I was a part of when girls basketball started back. I am very aware of how far the girls program has come since I played at Allen Central. I was proud to be on the first championship team and I feel Allen Central has a good chance of repeating as champs of the district this season," Karen said.

Karen earned All District and All Regional honors as a starting guard on the 1975 Lady Rebels team. She played two years of college basketball at Alice Lloyd where she started and won the Women's Athletic Award for athletic and academic performance.

She has been working some with the team already and is pleased with what she has seen of this year's Allen Central club.

"My first experience with the team has been fantastic. We won the Pre-Season and got a winning streak going. I hope we continue to improve this season, the potential is there. I hope in my capacity as an assistant to be able to contribute to coach (Judy) Eversole and the team. I want to help make winning a tradition for the Allen Central girls."

She expressed hope for continued growth of the girls basketball program throughout the state and especially in Floyd County, adding that Allen Central can be one of the leaders in the girls game.

"I hope that the school and community will get involved and that we can win their support to the girls program. We are working very hard and I hope to make all the people involved with Allen Central very proud of us."

BEST WISHES

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to one of Kentucky's top sports fans, Perry Jones, of Wheelwright. Perry is in Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin suffering from a back injury. His absence from the Jenny Wiley was noticed by many 15th Region fans.

THE JENNY WILEY

The 16th annual Jenny Wiley Invitational Tournament was another success with close games for most of the tourney and with good crowds each night.

Prestonsburg athletic director Bert Layne, the tourney director, was pleased with the Jenny Wiley this season. The region's oldest invitational, next to the Paintsville tourney, continues to carry on while most schools in the area have been unable to maintain an invitational tourney for more than three or four years.

BLUEGRASS INVITATIONAL

Phil Sloane, of Allen Central, made the all tournament team. Phil scored 23 points against Lafayette.

Beginner's Good Luck

Willard Ousley, of Star Route 5, Prestonsburg, had never caught a fish till he and Mrs. Ousley went to Auburn, Ala., Nov. 7, to observe their 39th wedding anniversary. There their son, Rudolph Ousley, a senior veterinary student at Auburn University, persuaded them to try their luck with him at a nearby pond. They caught 18 channel catfish, and the elder Mr. Ousley landed seven of the 18.

Way Of The Cross Outreach

37 South Lake Drive
Prestonsburg, Kentucky

Dear Friend:

Your help is urgently needed!

Without your help there may be thousands of our youth passed up and not given the opportunity of finding Jesus Christ as their savior.

We need your support to do it.

The Way of the Cross Outreach has in existence a mini program for our youth. Six to eight boys have been given long term housing, food and trained in the gospel. Let's not forget society's cast-a-ways rejected because of their life styles, but accepted into the body of Christ because of their need.

Your Help is needed to Continue!

(1) A group home is available for purchase. IF finances are received.

(2) A coffee house for our youth can become a reality with a christian atmosphere. IF we have people available to keep it open 7 days per week and finances to maintain it.

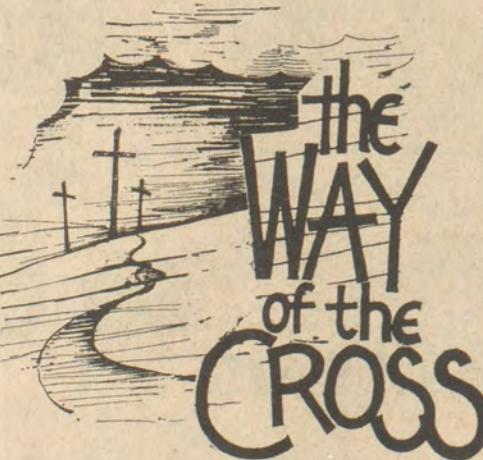

(3) The Floyd County Board of Education has granted permission for assembly programs dealing with drugs and alcohol to go into the school system and to make it a part of the school curriculum. If we have finances to attract Gospel groups to our area and follow up counselling and ministry by our churches and pastors.

These goals can become a reality and we can reach our youth for Christ only if you care enough to give of your time and finances.

Do you Care?
Will you Give?

Please attend a community meeting to discuss these issues at the Way of the Cross Outreach, 37 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, November 30th at 7:30 P.M.

Trojans Win the Jenny Wiley

By C. "OLIE" ROBINSON

Tournament Games

The Wheelwright Trojans won the annual Jenny Wiley Invitational basketball tournament Saturday night by defeating the Virgie Eagles, 57-54, while the Allen Central Rebels lost in the first round of the Blue Grass Festival to the defending state champs, the Lafayette Generals.

The Magoffin County Hornets eliminated the host team, the Prestonsburg Blackcats, 54 to 51. The Blackcats were led in scoring by 6-6 senior center, David Pitts, who had a game high of 28 points. The tourney opened on Wednesday with the Betsy Layne Bobcats blasting the Mullins Tigers by a score of 95 to 58. Darrell Newsome pumped in 32 points and teammate Ronnie Akers had 20 points. Paul Layne connected for 19 points. Mullins was led in scoring by Jeff Meek with 17 points. The Virgie Eagles won over the McDowell Daredevils, 88 to 37. Todd May, sophomore center (6-7) led the Eagles with 29 points, Fred Armstrong, connected for 13 points for the Daredevils. The Daredevils now with a record of 2 and 3.

In the semi-finals, the Virgie Eagles won over the Betsy Layne Bobcats by 70 to 68. The Bobcats staged a fourth quarter rally that came up short. The Bobcats were trailing by 13 points going into the final quarter. They tied the game and then went ahead by two. With the score tied at 68 all, Todd May connected for a field goal and with seven seconds left in the game the Bobcats failed to score as the horn sounded. The shot went in and came out. Todd May led both clubs with 35 points. Darrell Newsome connected for 22, Paul Layne had 20 for the Bobcats.

In the championship game Coach Dan C. Johnson's Trojans won by 57 to 54. A change of defense on Virgie's 6-7 Todd May, in the second half proved to be the difference. May in the first half scored 17 points, but in the second half only 4. Monroe Jones scored 17 points, eighth grader Gerald Osborne again sparked the Trojans with 12 points. Strawn Berger and Henry Isaacs both played well and dominated the boards for the Trojans.

Tonight (Wednesday) the Coal Classic will start and the Trojans will participate in it for their third straight tournament.

Bert Layne, athletic director of Prestonsburg High School, presented the trophies. Mullins won the Sportsmanship trophy. The Prestonsburg cheerleaders won first place honors, while the Virgie Eagles placed second. Virgie won the team free shot trophy. Jimmy Salyers won the individual free shot trophy.

The all-tournament team:

Dave Conley, Elkhorn City; David Pitts, Prestonsburg; Ronnie Akers, Darrell Newsome and Paul Layne, all of Betsy Layne; Todd May, Rodney Rowe and David Hall, of Virgie; Mike Blanton and Neil Blanton, of Magoffin County; Fred Armstrong, of McDowell; Henry Isaacs, Monroe Jones and Tony Hall, of Wheelwright.

In the Bluegrass Festival at Lexington the Allen Central Rebels lost in the opening round to the Lafayette Generals, 65 to 63. Allen Central held a 63-61 lead when Mark Martin hit two free throws, but Lafayette managed to tie the game when 6-7 junior center Mike Budzinski tapped in a missed shot with 45 seconds remaining. Then, with only 9 seconds to go, junior guard Eugene Collins was fouled and he sank both shots for the winning margin.

Phil Slone connected on 10 of 19 attempts for 23 points for Allen Central. Also in double figures for the Floyd countians were Jeff Bailey with 14 and Mark Martin with 12. Collins, of Lafayette, scored 26 points. Allen Central's record is now 6 and 1.

PCC Chorus To Sing "Messiah," Dec. 2-3

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will present "The Messiah" Sunday, December 2, at 3 p.m. at the Mayo Methodist Church, Paintsville, and Monday, December 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pike Auditorium of P.C.C.

Soloists for the performance will be Bob Young, tenor; Doug Smith, bass; Dee Dee Kalos, soprano; Elma Jessen, soprano; Malinda Preston, contralto; Vicki Pack, contralto. Mary Grace Garland will accompany the chorus and soloists. The performance will be under the direction of Gus Kalos, head of the music department at Prestonsburg Community College.

"The Messiah" was completed by Handel during the twenty-four days between August 22 and September 14, 1741. After a rehearsal on April 8, 1742, it was performed for the first time at a charity concert held at Dublin on April 13. Approximately a year later, it was heard in London on March 23, 1743 but since that time has probably had more performances than any masterwork in the history of music.

The public is invited to attend the programs.

Wrestling Draws Large Crowds Here

Joe David Fraley, of Prestonsburg, pits his strength and prowess against Mildred, the Wrestling Bear.

What causes grown men to climb inside a canvas ring and attack a 700-pound bear? What prompts normally sedate and peaceable citizens of all ages to rise up against hooded villains? Wrestling, of course! Professional wrestling, that is.

For the past few Saturday nights since professional wrestling returned to the area, large crowds of fans have converged on the National Guard armory on the Auxier road to watch as their favorite "good guy" either triumphs over their most despised "bad guy" or is defeated, usually through various displays of vile trickery.

The recent matches have seen a number of nationally-known pro's compete, including women wrestlers, midgets, and, most recently, a fighting bear.

The bear, a female European-type bruin named Mildred, has been a particularly big draw in recent weeks as scores of the area's "finest" have tested their manhood against the 725-lb., de-clawed battler. Although Mildred, who savors cola drinks between rounds, has yet to inflict injury, one of her human competitors fractured his arm trying to get out of the ring.

One wrestler, The Miser, whom fans apparently love to hate, reportedly has honed the art of crowd agitation to a fine edge. At last Saturday night's contest, in fact, spectators became so "tore up" over the wrestler's taunts that many began throwing things at the hooded heckler—shoes, Grapette bottles, peanut clusters—anything handy. The scowling Miser was escorted from the ring by two armed guards, it was reported.

The coming Saturday's matches will feature several well-known wrestlers as well as a return series of matches with Mildred vs. the public.

The determination of what is normal weight for each individual is difficult because of variations in body build. Insurance companies often define an overweight person as one with a deviation of 10 per cent or more above the ideal weight. On this basis, it is estimated that at least one-fifth of the population of the United States at age thirty is overweight. If 20 per cent or more above the ideal weight is considered obese, it is estimated that there are 5 million obese adults in the United States. Of course, with the exception of about one per cent, individuals are overweight because they overeat.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Building, Prestonsburg, 886-8106, our registered pharmacist would be glad to discuss diet aids with you if you are concerned about being overweight. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we care about our customers. We offer a complete medical family profile to assure your family that you receive the very best in medical attention. This may be used by your doctor to review your medications and is also available for tax and insurance purposes.

PRESTONSBURG AUTO PARTS
580 North Lake Dr. Prestonsburg, KentuckyDo's and Dont's for Renovators

Renovating an old house can mean hard work, fun and — frustration.

The frustrations come when the owner is not sure what to do. There is often a question of what to keep or leave unchanged, what to get rid of, or whose advice to accept in either case.

The do's and don'ts were explained in a recent workshop by staff members of the Kentucky Heritage Commission, the state's historic preservation agency. The workshop was held to give architects, contractors, homeowners and others interested in preserving and rehabilitating old houses an opportunity to exchange ideas. The group, headed by William Hearn, restoration grants coordinator for the commission, gave recommendations for exterior treatments, masonry tuckpointing and cleaning, wood repair and paint analysis.

Mary Oppel, a grants manager for the commission, said that distinctive exterior features should be retained to maintain the environment of the building. Many of these features are associated with the size, scale and mass of the structure. She recommended that original landscape features be retained, but that signs, new materials and walkways not be introduced.

"Brackets, hood molds, windows and cast iron columns should be retained—and many just need to be uncovered," Oppel said. "Boarding up, changing the size and putting in new windows is not recommended." Original interior features, such as stairways and woodwork, should be kept, she noted, and if something has to be replaced, new material should match old. If a new wing is to be added, a contemporary style to contrast with the old is a good idea, she added.

According to Hearn, when it comes to masonry cleaning, the product being removed—whether it's paint or pollutants—is an important factor. "For one thing, it's best never to clean unless it has to be done...and if it is necessary, clean by the gentlest method possible, such as low pressure water and soft natural bristle brushes."

One cleaning method is a chemical solution application which is removed with water pressure. This was used successfully on the Hancock County Courthouse in Hawesville, said Hearn. In any case, a small area should be tested and watched to determine if there are any aftereffects.

"We never approve sandblasting a brick building or using a mechanical instrument such as a circular saw to remove paint from brick," said Hearn. Sandblasting removes the protective glaze from the brick and allows moisture to seep in the walls—and that's one of the worst enemies of masonry walls.

"For many people with painted brick buildings, we simply encourage them to repaint," he said.

Many masonry buildings don't need tuckpointing (the filling in of the mortar joints between the bricks or stone), according to Hearn. For the ones that need it, the commission recommends duplicating the old mortar in composition, color, texture, joint size and method of application. "There are only four or five contractors in Kentucky that do masonry tuckpointing," Hearn noted.

It is better to repair than to discard a rotting or broken section of wood, according to Gibson Worsham, another grants manager for the commission. "The concept of wood restoration rather than replacement is new to Kentucky. It involves the insertion of an epoxy resin into the rotted place," he explained.

However, for this and many of the services required for rehabilitating old houses, there is a lack of specialized craftsmen, said Worsham. "The skills necessary for maintaining old houses are missing and materials are equally difficult to find," he said. "We're working on a directory of craftsmen to help people locate technical information and services."

The Heritage Commission doesn't receive requests from many projects for paint analysis. The commission staff usually recommends that the architect or house owners do scrapings to try to find the original paint color. "Retaining the original paint colors or repainting with colors similar to the original brings out the distinctive character of the building—both inside and outside," said Oppel. "However, wallpaper was used in the interiors of many of the older houses. And, we recommend keeping the original or replacement with similar wallpapers."

All of the advice of commission staff supports one of the Heritage Commission's chief maxims: Adapt the use to the building—not the building to the use.

Former Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams challenged the automotive industry to re-invent the car. What does that mean? Can it be done? Is it being done? We asked the Department of Transportation and the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association:

Can we

Re-Invent the Car?

Telling the motor vehicle industry to "re-invent the car" is a lot like resurrecting Christopher Columbus and asking him to rediscover America.

The challenge to Detroit was sounded by former U.S. Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams -- and his phrase lingers on. Actually, the car designers and engineers are fully aware of the need for creativity. The auto archives are full of companies that failed to satisfy public demand for innovation.

Seldom, if ever, does a year go by without a noteworthy improvement in the automobile. The U.S. Patent Office in Arlington, Virginia, has filed over four million papers in its long history, and automotive patents represent a high percentage of them. Some automotive patents go back beyond the day when the Duryea brothers rolled a single cylinder, gasoline powered runabout on the streets of Springfield, Massachusetts, over 80 years ago. That was the birth of the U.S. industry as we know it today.

To relate "invent" or "re-invent" to the total automobile is difficult. There are no Edisons or Howes or Whitneys in the annals of the auto industry because the car itself is a complex combination of many inventions. There are people who have worked on brakes, others who pioneered the storage battery, some who developed the internal combustion engine. The list goes on -- and on.

There may not be a single area of the automobile that hasn't received some type of periodic improvement.

Of significance in these times of environmental concern is the progress made in lowering vehicle emissions. Hydrocarbons are down 85% from the uncontrolled products of the Sixties. Carbon monoxide has been reduced 82% and oxides of nitrogen emissions have been halved.

While manufacturers have improved fuel economy by nearly 50% in the past five years, the price and the supply of fuel remain uppermost in the minds of the motoring public as we near the Eighties. Manufacturers are committed to reaching the mandated 27.5 mpg fleet average by 1985.

The average of all domestic automobiles produced in 1980 will register at least 20 miles per gallon of fuel. It is true that the mpg figure has been mandated by the Federal government; but while the Federal government has set standards for fuel mileage, clean air and safety, it generally has left it to car and truck producers to determine how to reach those goals. In most cases there has been no attempt to legislate an invention.

When equipment has been mandated, the results generally have been unsatisfactory. A prime example was the ill-fated interlock system of 1974. It required a car starting sequence involving the seat belt. Congress finally killed the device after a public uproar.

Nobody needs to shove the motor vehicle industry onto the path of innovation. All of the competing companies wish they had more small, fuel efficient cars on the market. Wishing is just a fraction of the story.

Today there is an all-out effort to produce cleaner, safer cars that consume less fuel. More and more lightweight materials like high strength steel, aluminum and plastics are being used. Electronics are being introduced to control and monitor the operation of the engine and other parts of the vehicle.

Ahead, electronics will be in charge of virtually all engine movements including fuel and air intake and exhaust gas recirculation systems. They will tell us when our tires need replacing and will diagnose engine ailments. We already have computers that measure distances and estimate your driving time and miles per gallon of fuel.

Re-invent the car? More likely, we will improve on the transportation system that Americans want and need. Engines will be smaller, with more four- and six-cylinder entries, perhaps with a different kind of power plant like the electric car. Engineers can be expected to utilize what is good and focus on making it better.

Never have engineering challenges been greater. Between now and 1985, the vehicle manufacturers will be spending some $80 billion to design cars that meet Federal fuel standards.

V.J. Adduci, President of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturer's Association, says, "Success will be measured by the marketplace. The customer has always been the ultimate arbiter of automotive innovation."

This statement was prepared by the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Too little has been added in recent years to the pool of scientific knowledge from which must be drawn the fundamental technological advances imperative for the automobile of the 1990's and beyond. The industry has spent only a very small fraction of its research and development dollars on basic research. It has concentrated its efforts and resources on applied technology to satisfy near-term federal standards for fuel economy, emission control and safety, and to meet consumer demands. At the federal level, there has also been only limited emphasis on basic automotive research.

The premise that the car will remain the prime means of personal mobility for the foreseeable future, and the industry's acknowledgement that it does not have the resources to overcome decades of inattention to the need for replenishing the science and engineering of automotive technology have brought Detroit and Washington together in remarkable endeavor.

The five domestic auto manufacturers (including Volkswagen of North America) and the government, after months of discussion and planning beginning with last May's White House meeting with President Carter, are working to develop a jointly sponsored Cooperative Automotive Research Program. The program, designed to help lay the technological base for the next generation of automobiles, is before Congress as an important component of the Administration's Transportation-Energy Initiative. It would be financed in part by the proposed Energy Security Fund, which would provide $800 million over the next decade. Based on a preliminary understanding, the manufacturers would match federal funding at levels of up to $50 million a year.

The undertaking will have the following characteristics:

- A focus on basic research which can contribute substantially to improved automotive technology by developing knowledge in such fields as thermal and fluid sciences, structural mechanics, electrochemistry, aerodynamics, noise and vibration, materials science and processing, control systems, and friction and wear. (In-depth analyses of research opportunities in each area and an inventory of ongoing related research are underway.)

- A pluralistic approach, involving a range of university, industry and Federal laboratories in performing the research, to insure that there are independent sources of new ideas and an increased supply of automotive engineers.

- Personnel exchanges, especially between industrial and university laboratories, to maintain the flow of information and the transfer of new engineering knowledge.

- Wide and open dissemination of results to all interested parties, subject to patent provisions.

- A level of effort and timing determined by the capacity of the science and engineering community to absorb new funds and the competing demands on Federal and corporate resources.

- Industry financial participation that will include mechanisms for industry contributions through direct grants to universities, increases in effort at automotive laboratories, and other arrangements.

- Federal agency participation that will be determined by an evaluation of the policy responsibilities, research management capabilities and the role of research within each agency. To insulate the program from political and technological pressures of the various Federal regulatory programs, the initiative will not be managed by a regulatory agency.

- Decentralized project selection mechanisms, within an agreed upon general agenda of research areas, and avoiding specified quantitative technological targets, because of the inherent unpredictability of the results of this basic research.

Current work is focused on planning to provide the administrative and technical framework for the program. Working groups, including participants from government, industry, and universities are now formulating the detailed research agenda.

What began in December 1978 as a challenge to Detroit by former Transportation Secretary Adams has, with the responsive and farsighted partnership of the auto manufacturers, and the leadership of the Administration, evolved into a landmark cooperative program of much promise. The launching of the Cooperative Automotive Research Program represents an unprecedented investment in the future of the automobile industry and all that industry means to the nation's economy -- not to mention the cherished personal mobility of the American people.

This statement was prepared by the Department of Transportation.

CREDIT INSURANCE

The credit card has brought many conveniences to the American shopper. However, it has also created problems.

One such problem is personal liability for lost or stolen cards. Thieves can take advantage of this situation by making large unauthorized purchases with stolen credit cards.

Many insurance companies now offer credit card insurance which limits your liability if your cards are lost or stolen. Credit card companies have also started offering this type insurance. Payments are usually low and are automatically charged to your account.

Before you consider buying such insurance, you should know that the law already protects your credit cards by limiting your liability for lost or stolen cards.

The Truth in Lending Act protects you from getting taken for large amounts of money by someone who has found or stolen your credit cards. If your cards are lost or stolen, you do not have to pay for any unauthorized charges, but you must write the company notifying them of the loss.

The most you will ever have to pay for any unauthorized charges is $50 per credit card. Even if someone runs up several thousand dollars worth of charges before you report the card missing, your liability is still limited to $50 per card.

Be sure to keep a list of your credit card numbers separate from your credit cards so you can immediately notify your card companies of your loss.

The Truth in Lending Act gives you added protection in that it states credit card companies may not collect any loss from you unless they can prove several things.

They must prove they issued you the card at your request or that you used it at least once before it was lost. They must also prove there was some means to identify you, such as a photo or signature strip on the card. Card companies must prove they notified you of your potential $50 liability and they provided you with a stamped, self-addressed envelope and form to notify them in case the card was missing.

Because the law already limits your liability for lost or stolen credit cards, you should carefully consider whether or not you actually need credit card insurance. Don't be tricked into buying coverage which the law gives you free.

However, if you have a large number of credit cards, insurance may be desirable. Whatever your decision, be sure you read and understand any insurance policy before you sign.

If you have questions about the law on lost or stolen cards, write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

Home Care Operator Paid For Deceased Patient Care

Information regarding possible fraud by a family care home operator has been turned over to the Fayette County Commonwealth's Attorney by the state Department for Human Resources.

DHR spokesman, Barbara Hadley, said officials of the department's guardianship program discovered payments for care and maintenance of a patient had been made to a home operator for 3½ years after that patient had died.

The erroneous payments, totaling $10,000, were made because guardianship unit, which issues the checks,

Sen. Ford To Address UK Stripmining Symposium

U.S. Sen. Wendell H. Ford of Kentucky will be among speakers at the first Symposium on Surface Mining Hydrology, Sedimentology and Reclamation in Lexington Dec. 4-7.

The symposium is being sponsored by the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, College of Engineering, Office of Engineering Continuing Education and Extension and the Institute for Mining and Minerals Research. It will be at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Ford will speak Dec. 5 on the congressional intent of the 1977 Surface Mine Reclamation and Control Act. Talks on implementation of the act and the act as it relates to private industry, Kentucky, research and the roles of the College of Agriculture and the College of Engineering will follow Ford's address that day.

Speakers will be, respectively, Walter N. Heiner, director of the Office of Surface Mining in the U.S. Department of Interior; Ben E. Lusk, president of the Mining and Reclamation Council of America; Gene Brandenburg, commissioner of the state Bureau of Surface Mining and Reclamation and Enforcement; Becky Green, director of environmental studies for NERCO in Portland, Ore.; C. Oran Little, associate dean for research in the UK College of Agriculture, and James Funk, associate vice president for academic affairs and coordinator of energy research in UK's College of Engineering.

The conference, intended to be an annual event, also will feature presentations of more specialized subjects in concurrent sessions on hydrology, sedimentology and reclamation. Six different mini-courses will be presented simultaneously two times.

The symposium has been organized to gather current information from various institutions, such as universities, government agencies and practicing engineering and consulting groups. The information will be disseminated for use by field reclamation and engineering personnel.

Stanley B. Carpenter, associate professor in the College of Agriculture's Department of Forestry, is program chairman.

The Labor Committee of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped brings together leaders of the unions to work on programs promoting handicapped workers.

was not notified of the death of the client. Neither did the client's survivors submit claim for death benefits from Social Security. Such a claim would have alerted department staff to halt checks.

The situation was further complicated by the fact that the personal care operator had moved her home from one county to another one week before the client died. Afterwards the operator was caring for only one patient in the new county residence, and she did not have to be licensed by the state.

"We feel this particular incident is an isolated one," Hadley stated. "But the fact remains that there was a lack of communication between the family care operator and the department, and within the department, and we will have to prosecute to recover the funds."

"Officials within the department have been concerned for sometime about the lack of our ability to provide appropriate guardianship services and to monitor the guardianship system," said Hadley. "Proposals have been developed to streamline the procedure and expand the staff in that area. Before they can be put into effect, we need legislative approval and budget appropriations, and we are requesting those from the 1980 General Assembly."

The state becomes the guardian of individuals when they are ruled incompetent by the courts and committed to the care of the Department for Human Resources.

Five-Generation Reunion

Five generations of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Newman, of East McDowell, were represented at the recent Newmans' 60th anniversary observance. Shown in photo are Mr. and Mrs. Newman (seated); their daughter, Veda Hamilton (standing, right); her son, Curt Hamilton; Mr. Hamilton; daughter, Kimberly Walters, and her son.

Ability, not disability, is what counts, according to the Presidents' Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Notice of Intention To Mine

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Mountaineer Resources, Inc., P. O. Box 246, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 113.2 acres located west of Risner in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately .34 miles north east of State Route 1210's junction with Notch Block Fork Road and located east of Caney Creek, latitude 37° 34' 52", longitude 82° 49' 14". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Kentucky Coal Co., & Ester Ousley. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Mountain Top Removal. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping, and reference the above application number. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

KET Special Pays Tribute To Great Radio Comedians

The medium was radio, and the sound that still echoes today is that of laughter. It reached its height in the 1940's with the comedy shows of Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Fred Allen, Jim "Fibber McGee" Jordon, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope.

And all of them are present—most in person—on "The Great Radio Comedians," a special airing Tuesday, December 4 at 9 p.m. on KET.

"The Great Radio Comedians" was originally broadcast on many public television stations in 1972. This year, as radio enjoys a revival of its former popularity in America, the program makes its debut on KET.

Producer Perry Miller Adato says that her goal was to produce a program that would enable viewers to "experience it—to enjoy radio again—and not just recognize it as nostalgia."

As a result, the program is rich with the voices and faces of the past in an ever-changing montage. And the comedians themselves—Edgar Bergen, George Burns and Jack Benny—recall with undiminished enthusiasm the comedy revolution that happened in radio.

Fuel Assistance Program Expected Ready Dec. 3rd

Low-income families faced with a loss of heat this winter can apply for financial assistance under the federal government's new Energy Crisis Assistance Program.

Grants totaling $3.5 million have been approved for the state and are expected to become available to crisis-needy families by Dec. 3.

Administration of the program will be carried out by the state Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Social Insurance.

Unlike the state's Energy Cost Assistance Program, the federal money is not tied to age or disability requirements.

According to Jack Waddell, bureau commissioner, people may qualify who have an income at or below 125 percent of the poverty level and who are without or will be without heat within 15 days.

The program limits the amount of money a qualifying individual may have in checking and savings accounts. A single person is allowed to have cash assets up to $1,500, while a couple may have up to $2,250. Real property such as homes, cars and jewelry are not counted.

Applicants may receive up to $400 depending on the amount needed to obtain or retain heating service. Generally the bureau will issue a check payable to both the applicant and the heat supplier.

If the $400 limit is not used and another crisis occurs, application may be made for the balance.

To apply, applicants must state the amount needed to have the fuel bill paid and provide verification that a crisis exists and that their income and resource levels are within program limits. Checks will be issued approximately three to five working days after an application is made.

To apply or obtain further information, contact the local Bureau for Social Insurance office or call the Department for Human Resources ombudsman 1-800-372-2973.

Kentucky's Changing Economy

By DR. RAYMOND S. FERELL
 Coordinator of Regional Research
 Appalachian Development Center
 Morehead State University

The forecast for Kentucky is that the coming recession will not affect the state as badly as it will the United States as a whole. This is the conclusion of Dr. Charles Hultman, chairman of the Kentucky Council of Economic Advisors (KCEA) and Dr. Charles Renfro, acting executive director of the KCEA. Their forecasts have just been summarized in the September edition of Kentucky Economy: Review and Perspective.

According to their projections, personal income (the total of all income to Kentuckians including wages, salaries, interest, rents, etc.) will rise throughout 1980. For the year 1978, the total state personal income of 23.2 billion dollars was an increase of 13.07 percent over that for 1977. During 1979, personal income is expected to increase by 13.44 percent and during 1980, the anticipated increase of 11.25 percent will result in a total state personal income of 29.3 billion dollars.

Of course, much of the increase will be the result of inflation which is really not expected to fall below 10 percent for 1980. Even with inflation removed, the state will continue to fare well despite a mild national recession.

About 60 percent of personal income is in wages and salaries to individuals. These are expected to increase by around 11 percent during 1980 to a total of 17.7 billion dollars. Most of this increase is expected to be in the wages and salaries paid to workers in manufacturing (14 percent increase) rather than in the wages and salaries paid to others (9 percent increase). Despite these increases, employment is expected to decline during 1980.

Total non-agricultural employment is expected to decline by about .7 percent from 1979 to 1980. Most of this decline will occur during the last quarter of 1979 and the first quarter of 1980. By the end of 1980, the state is expected to be recovering from whatever effects the recession will cause.

Most of the decline in employment will occur in manufacturing, contract construction, federal government, and agriculture. The durable goods manufacturing sector (which includes the automobile industry) will be affected the most, a projection which may be low as a result of the recent action by the Federal Reserve Board. Credit to purchase durable goods will be harder to get during the next year.

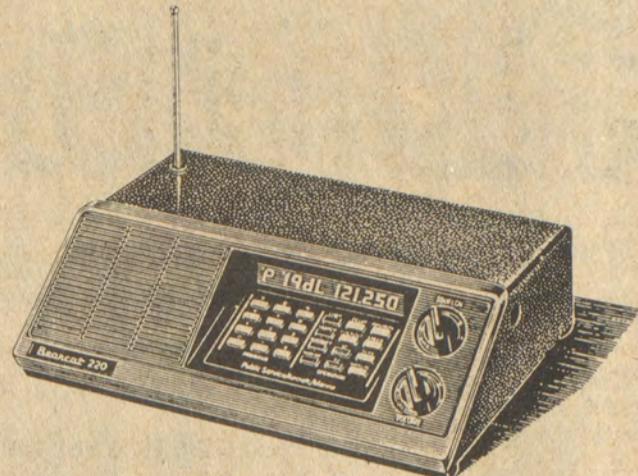

What will be the outlook for Eastern Kentucky? A lot depends upon what the federal government does over the next year and how serious will be its commitment to coal and to fighting inflation.

Under the assumption that the federal government will be committed to increased coal production, the KCEA projects that employment in coal mining will increase during 1980. They project that coal mining man-days will increase from the 1978 total of 8.6 million to over 11 million in 1980. There may be some shifts in this employment, however.

One of the anticipated effects of the new permanent federal regulations for coal mining will be a reduction in the number of small coal mines. If this is true, then much of this increase in coal mining employment will be as a shift from employment in small mines to employment in larger mines. This could have a significant effect on the Eastern Kentucky economy.

If inflation continues to rise as expected, however, we can anticipate a tighter squeeze on credit and this will affect the ability of even large coal mines to operate. The next few months should be very interesting.

THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN GUN

A custom-made pistol of gold is in the hands of a $1 million assassin and pointed at James Bond in 'The Man With the Golden Gun,' encoring on ABC-TV, SUNDAY, DEC. 2.

Roger Moore (pictured with Britt Ekland) is dueling this time with the notorious Scaramanga (Christopher Lee), a professional widow-maker who earns $1 million each time he helps to decrease the population.

Scaramanga lures Bond into his sights by keeping a solid gold watch over the site of a Solex Agitator, a missing energy machine that the free world's top secret agent has to find and return to its rightful owner before it is used to harness the golden rays of the sun for wrathful purposes.

JOHN DENVER AND THE MUPPETS

John Denver (pictured) will welcome the Muppets as his guest stars for his holiday special, 'John Denver and the Muppets, A Christmas Together,' WEDNESDAY, DEC. 5 on ABC-TV.

Appearing with Denver on the special will be Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and other popular members of the Muppet cast of characters. Principal Muppet performers are Frank Oz, Jerry Nelson, Richard Hunt, Dave Goelz and Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets.

The show will feature a new Christmas song written by Denver and much of the music he and the Muppets recently recorded for a Christmas album to be released by RCA Victor.

VALENTINE

Is there such a thing as being too old to fall in love? ABC-TV's 'Friday Night Movie' presentation will explore this topic in the form of a two hour tele-play entitled 'Valentine,' starring Mary Martin and Jack Albertson (pictured). The film will be aired FRIDAY, DEC. 7.

Mary Martin is a veteran actress and mother to Larry Hagman of 'I Dream of Jeannie' and 'Dallas' fame. Mr. Albertson has starred in such series as 'Chico and the Man' and 'Grandpa Goes to Washington.'

When Santa comes to fill your stockings he'll find them at their sparkling best. After unpacking them from their year's hideaway, you can remove surface dirt from felt stockings with a clean rubber sponge. Your teakettle's steam provides a special beauty bath. Being careful not to get the material too wet, slowly steam the surface in the direction of the nap. Voila! Good as the new gifts soon to be stuffed inside.

★ Kentucky Afield ★

By JOHN WILSON

William Tell used a crossbow to shoot an apple off his son's head, but that's not the recommended way to practice for Kentucky's first statewide crossbow deer hunt scheduled for Nov. 20 through Nov. 30. This hunt is for crossbows only. Other bows or firearms may not be used during this 11-day period.

Prior to this year, crossbows were legal only in the Pioneer Weapons Area of the Daniel Boone National Forest. This year, the crossbow season is open in all but 10 of Kentucky's 120 counties. These counties, which are closed to all deer hunting, are Estill, Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lincoln, Magoffin, Martin, Perry, Powell and Wolfe.

Several wildlife management areas are closed to all deer hunting and several more do not allow crossbow hunting, so check the 1979 Deer Hunting Guide (attached to your deer permit) carefully before you take off for a crossbow hunt.

Also check your crossbow itself—it might not be legal this year. In the past, those hunting on the Pioneer Weapons Areas could use crossbows with a minimum pull of 80 pounds. But this year, all crossbows used in Kentucky must have a minimum pull weight of 100 pounds.

Crossbows must have a working safety device, and the bolts (that is, crossbow arrows) must have a minimum weight of 390 grains and be fitted with barbless broadhead points at least  $\frac{1}{8}$  inch wide. Bolts may not be chemically treated nor carry attachments containing chemicals.

Like other archery hunters, crossbowmen (crossbowpersons?) may not carry any kind of firearm while actually hunting, but must have a valid annual license and deer permit in their possession.

Crossbow hunters are not required to wear hunter orange clothing, but they must have the deer they take checked at the nearest check station or by a conservation officer.

Of course, if you've already taken your deer during the first phase of the archery season or the Nov. 10-12 gun hunt, all this is academic, because you're limited to one deer per year (except under certain conditions on some wildlife areas), no matter what method you use to take it.

After the crossbow season ends Nov. 30, the second phase of the gun season opens Dec. 1 and runs through Dec. 3. Again, check your deer hunting guide, because many of the counties that were open for the November gun hunt will be closed in December.

After the gun hunt, longbow and compound bow hunters will have the woods to themselves again until Dec. 31, when all deer hunting will cease until next fall.

Is A Christmas Club Valuable?

You Bet It Is!

Oftentimes during the Christmas shopping season, people must pass up a really special gift idea in favor of one that is not so special because it costs less. The problem is that despite good intentions to save for Christmas, that time of year is upon us before we know it and account is that it is a forced savings plan. You receive a payment card which reminds you to stock your account regularly all year with small deposits. Thus, you don't feel the pinch. But when you have completed your Christmas Club, you have accumulated enough money to be able to give everyone on your Christmas list the kind of special gifts you like to give.

always seems to catch us with less cash than we'd like.

The solution is to prepare for Christmas well in advance with a Christmas Club. The value of a Christmas Club

How To Get Started

To start your Christmas Club for 1980, simply stop by any of our convenient locations and talk with one of our new accounts personnel. It is best to begin in November or December so that you have the entire year to make your deposits. At the end of 52 payments, usually in mid-November, we will prepare your check and mail it to you in plenty of time for Christmas shopping.

A Special Holiday Offer

Open your account now, and we'll give you a free gift (only one per household, please!) Choose a sparkling acrylic crystal ornament from several holiday designs. These ornaments add charm to any room. Display them from your tree or window, or even on your desk or coffee table. Each ornament comes with its own protective pouch so you can enjoy them year after year. These ornaments make an ideal gift for friends, and as a Bank Josephine Christmas Club member you can purchase additional ornaments for only $1.50 each. Decorator stands are also available at $1.00 each. So why not get started today? Let us set up a Christmas Club for you so you'll be prepared for the big day next year.

Work Continues Here as Openings Planned

Although construction is still under way on the Highlands Plaza development which adjoins Heck's on University Drive here, one store, C. & H. Rauch Jewelers, has already opened its doors to customers and several others are soon to follow including Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy No. 2, a Thompson's IGA supermarket, Owens Music Center, Shoe Show and a stereo-sound shop. In addition, a boutique and at least three other shops are also planned. Developer of the construction project is the Georgia-Cumberland Corporation, of Atlanta, Georgia.

By LARRY BURKE

Many years ago in Maine there lived an invalid minister who conducted a weekly radio program. He had many listeners. Every week letters of praise and thanks were mailed to this man. His ministry was a great success and his followers were many.

Very few of his hearers knew of this minister's personal predicament. He was blind, and had been bedridden for fourteen years. Yet, every week his messages stirred his audience.

This invalid minister was able to practice the fine art of "appreciation." He appreciated people, had a concern for others and didn't let his own infirmities stand in the way.

Those with lack of gratitude are ill and a thankful person is the healthful person. Appreciation and thankfulness made this bedridden man more healthy than many of his "well" listeners.

NORTH HOMEMAKERS MEET

The North Prestonsburg Homemakers Club met Tuesday, Nov. 20, at the First Christian Church annex. Betty Ward presided in the absence of the president, Glenna Cesco, and Christine Spradlin gave the devotion using "Thanksgiving" as her topic. Mabel Allen read the minutes of the previous meeting and Thelma Wallen gave the treasurers report.

The group voted as their Christmas project, to make a donation to the Rescue Squad. Christine Spradlin gave the lesson on "How to be a Good Hostess." The group displayed baskets they had made from the basket making lesson last month.

The hostess, Garnet Fairchild, served refreshments to Frances Pitts, Christine Spradlin, Thelma Wallen, Mabel Allen, Tokie Burchett, Betty Ward, Elizabeth Ramey, Agnes Bauers and new member Libbie Hall. The next meeting will be Dec. 18 with Thelma Wallen as hostess.

THANKSGIVING GUESTS

Mrs. Rhoda Jarvis, of Allen, had as her guests over the Thanksgiving holiday, her sisters, Mrs. Milly Armstrong, Mrs. Virginia Stai, Mrs. Marie Gartin, all of Columbus, O., and Mrs. Mae Hamilton, of Allen. Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Gartin had not seen each other for 22 years. Also visiting were Michael Armstrong, a nephew, and two grandchildren of Mrs. Gartin.

The Mayo State Vocational-Tech School of Practical Nursing off-campus class at Pikeville is Chapter 14 of Ky. H.O.S.A.

Student officers representing Chapter 14 were the president, Mrs. Juanita Compton, of Price, and the vice-president, Mrs. Barbara Damron, of Myra.

Attending with them as teacher-advisors were Mrs. Margaret Tackett, coordinator of the Mayo Practical Nursing Program, of Allen, and Mrs. Veronica Click, instructor in practical nursing, of the Pikeville class.

The theme of the conference was, "Developing Leadership Skills," including instruction in parliamentary procedures.

There are 45 miles of nerves in the body.

Small, Old, and Beautiful: Bonsai

By Paula Stevens

For centuries a horticultural art form—known as bonsai—has been a highlight of the gardens of the Orient. Today the bonsai is flourishing in more and more Western balconies, decks and roof gardens.

Bonsai are miniature trees grown in pots and pruned and shaped to reflect all the elements of a large tree growing in its natural setting.

Because of the bonsai's reputation as a centuries-old plant and its intricate, sculptured form, many gardeners have shied away from the technique, thinking it is too difficult and demanding.

Though some Japanese prize bonsai are more than 350 years old, the quality of a bonsai relates not to its age, but to the abstraction of nature that has been created. A presentable bonsai can be created in a few seasons.

The technique is not difficult. The major requirements are daily watering during their growing seasons and occasional pruning because the plants are rooted in shallow pots.

Probably the best way to begin is to take a field trip observing trees in their natural environments to see the details of nature's art. Remember, your bonsai will be a miniature sculpture of nature. Visit your area's botanical gardens and local bonsai society to get an idea of the different styles and techniques and how to care for them.

Bonsai can be classified into five basic styles, based on the overall shape of the tree and how much the trunk slants away from an imaginary vertical axis.

• Formal upright style—the easiest for a beginner, has a conical or rounded form. The tree is erect with horizontal branches. Plants in the formal upright style look best in oval or rectangular containers, planted about one-third of the distance from the end. Do not center.

• Informal upright style—much the same as the formal upright style, except the top bends slightly to the front. Check the slant by looking down at the trunk from above. The style looks best in an oval or rectangular container, planted about one-third of the distance from the end.

• Slanting style—the trunk has a more acute angle than the previous styles. The lowest branch should spread in the direction opposite to the slant of the tree. The top of the tree should be bent slightly towards the front. The lower branches should be arranged in groups of three, starting one-third the way up the trunk. This style looks best in the center of a round or square container.

• Cascade style—the trunk starts growing upwards and then turns downward abruptly, reaching a point below the bottom edge of the container. It looks best in a round or hexagonal container that is higher than it is wide. The tree should be planted off-center from the cascading side.

• Semicascade style—the trunk grows straight up and then turns down at a smaller angle than the cascade style, with the branches reaching below the level of the soil's surface, but not reaching below the bottom of the container.

Once you have visited a nursery and selected a style and the appropriate tree and container, follow these basic steps:

- examine the tree and select a front side.
- remove the tree from the container, holding the trunk firmly at the base and using a long knife or spatula to loosen the root ball, tapping gently.
- Beginning at the base, prune unwanted branches and stems, striving for an alternate branching effect that will give the tree an asymmetric form. Remove any growth from the underside of branches.
- Wire the branches to shape them, using wire one-third longer than the branch to be wired. One wire can hold two branches, if they are close to each other on the tree trunk. Wrap the wire clockwise on one branch and counter clockwise on the other to prevent it from girdling the trunk. Anchor the wire at the base of a single branch by overlapping it. Near the base, anchor the wire in the soil. A garden center can show you the technique of wiring.

• Reduce the size of the rootball by one-third, untangling snarled roots and keeping them moist. Place the tree in a container with a thick layer of potting mix in the bottom. Sprinkle more soil over the roots, pressing down to fill in the spaces between the roots. Set the container in water until the top of the soil is moist, adding a top dressing such as moss or pebbles.

The bonsai should get filtered—not direct—sun, and it should be watered often. Pinch off any unwanted new growth.

And enjoy this new dimension to your garden.

Animal populations sometimes increase rapidly or express uncharacteristic behavior. The causes, probably a combination of factors, are not always known, although some sort of stress is usually responsible. These unusual outbreaks are sometimes caused by a plentiful food supply (or a lack of food); the absence of predators; internal physiological forces, triggered by some external force such as weather; or man-made changes.

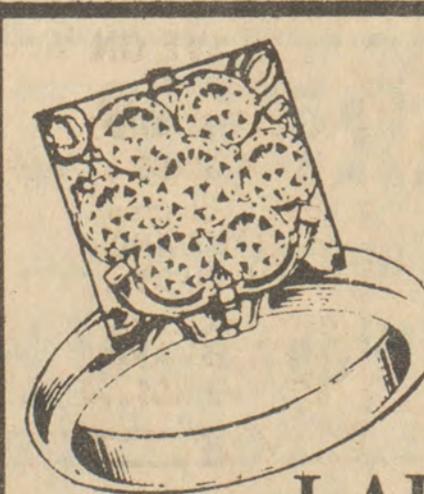

Newspapers and scientific journals document these unusual happenings often; however, many more cases go unreported. For example, when a local open dump is closed, the resident rats almost always invade nearby homes, causing homeowners to panic. This situation usually corrects itself over time as the rats gradually disperse.

The unusual recent increase in the Washington, D.C. rat population, however, is not easily explained. Rats, sometimes in packs, have been showing up in fashionable, formerly relatively rat free sections of the city. They have invaded the city's subway system and even ride subway escalators. They have been seen on the sidewalks of Washington's main downtown shopping and business centers, and have invaded Capitol Hill offices.

City workers spread approximately 50 tons of poisoned bait each year, apparently with little success. But the combination of the bait, downtown construction projects, and neighborhood cleanups may have forced the rats to seek new habitats. Growing natural resistance to poisons may also be a factor. Similar outbreaks have occurred in New York City, where people have actually been attacked on city streets by rats, Miami, and other large cities.

In similar fashion, erratic behavior occurs in bees occasionally, causing some serious problems. Africanized or killer bees, genetic mistakes permitted to escape in Brazil, have caused several deaths in South American countries. Occasionally in the U.S., our native bees go on stinging rampages; one such incident happened last spring in Florida.

For four hours, Roger Stuart, a Putnam County farmer, and his family were terrorized by native bees for no apparent reason. Stuart was stung about 50 times while trying to escape the bees, which were described as "not swarming, just vicious." The bees covered a five-acre area and also attacked two cows, chickens, a turkey, and rabbits, and killed two dogs. There was no apparent reason for the attack. Next: industry and pollution.

Check Credentials Of IRS Employee

Taxpayers should ask to see the credentials of any individual claiming to be an Internal Revenue Service employee, the IRS cautioned.

From time to time, individuals pose as employees of the IRS to collect money for what these impostors refer to as unpaid taxes, according to the IRS.

In almost every instance, taxpayers who owe money will receive written notification before being contacted in person by the IRS. In addition, every IRS employee who makes public contact carries distinctive identification, and is required to show it when conducting official business.

Taxpayers who doubt the validity of the credentials offered can verify the person's employment by immediately calling IRS toll free:

Shopping Aisle

Take It Back

Here are some tips that should help you if you ever have to return some merchandise to a store:

- Check out a store's return policy before you have to return anything. If the store will accept returns, see if they set a time limit and if they insist on receiving the cash register receipt. If you're returning clothes, you might also have to provide the tags that were on them when you bought them.

- If you can't get a cash refund, get a credit slip. Be sure to use it as soon as possible, preferably when the store is having a sale.

- Always return defective or broken merchandise at once. Don't try to repair it yourself, because you might only make the damage worse. Then you'll never get a refund.

Under The Rug

Buying carpeting? Don't overlook padding! It prolongs carpet life by absorbing wear and tear, preserves pile texture and prevents furniture weight damage. Good padding also reduces heat loss, muffles noise and makes vacuuming easy.

The padding you choose should depend on how much buoyancy you want and how much traffic you expect on the carpet. Most paddings are moth and insect-resistant, while some are mildew-resistant.

Felt padding is considered best choice for high-traffic areas because it is dense, durable and gives firm support. Felt may be made of animal hair or hair and jute, with or without rubberized backing. Avoid felt, however, if someone in your family has allergy problems. It also will mildew if it gets wet.

Rubber padding has more buoyancy than felt and it insulates well against noise. It is available in flat sponge rubber, waffled sponge rubber (which helps prevent skidding) or foam rubber. Use high density foam, which compresses more than sponge rubber.

Urethane foam varies from buoyant to firm, depending on how it is made and how dense it is. Urethane is not affected by dampness.

Make a simple store test before buying. Lay padding on a hard surface and cover it with a sample of your carpet. If your heel hits the hard surface when you step on the carpet, you need better quality or a thicker pad. Most paddings are covered by a warranty.

Tracking Down A Garden Tractor

If you're thinking of buying a garden tractor, carefully review your needs first. For what purposes will you use it? Do you actually need a tractor at all? A small tractor, powered by an engine of 6 to 12 horsepower, is designed to mow lawns, power a snow thrower or pull simple accessories. Garden tractors, ranging from 10 to 20 horsepower are intended to pull ground-engaging tools such as plows, cultivators and ditch diggers. A small tractor will not do heavy work efficiently, while using a large tractor for light work is wasteful. Most wasteful of all is tying up the money and storage space needed for the equipment if you use it infrequently. It's cheaper to hire an hourly worker.

Here are some pointers if you find you really need a tractor:

- Some smaller lawn tractors use recoil starters at lower cost than the electric starters commonly used on tractor engines. Look for engine noise and vibration controls such as rubber engine mounts.

- The type of transmission affects ease of driving. Automatic transmissions are more expensive, but they adjust to any desired speed within a fixed range. Other transmissions require a stop before shifting gears.

- Choose rear tires on the basis of the work your tractor will be doing. So-called "turf" tires are designed for use on grass. Tires with "agricultural tread" bite into the soil to give a good grip for ground-cutting tools.

The Difference In Discounts

A factory outlet is not the same as a discount store and knowing the difference could save you money. The following are the major types of discount businesses:

- Thrift shops. Usually run by religious or charitable organizations, thrift shops offer a variety of used clothing, appliances, and books. Selection and condition vary widely. Check to find out whether the purchase price is tax-deductible.

- Consignment shops. Although consignment shops offer the same variety of goods as thrift shops, costs are generally higher because the shops are run for profit. The store acts as a middleman between seller and buyer. Occasionally, higher quality merchandise can be found when estates are offered for sale.

- Factory Outlets. Operated by factories, these outlets save you money because the seller pays little overhead and no distribution or delivery costs. Some manufacturers produce goods specifically for their outlets while others sell merchandise that a retailer has refused or that is late for delivery. Outlets also sell irregulars, which are slightly damaged, and seconds, which are more seriously damaged. Quality varies. In calculating savings, you should consider the cost of transportation as well as problems in delivery. Credit is rarely available and there are no returns.

- Discount stores. These are retail stores that offer a selection of products at a discount. Often the merchandise comes from job lots. They are generally more convenient than factory outlets and some offer credit. Prices are lower because there are no frills. Often clothing has labels removed. There are no returns and sales help is generally limited.

New Laws For Lemons.

Do you have to keep meeting payments if that new car or toaster you bought is a lemon? The Federal Trade Commission says no. Under new Federal regulations, buyers can withhold payments on contracts held by banks and finance companies for defective merchandise. You can also stop payments if the retailer fails to honor a warranty on goods or services.

Here are the conditions:

- The new regulations do not apply to contracts made before May 14, 1976.

- In the case of a lemon that the seller refuses to replace, a consumer may be able to collect a full refund plus a cancellation of remaining payments.

- If a finance company or a bank is involved, it is up to the lender to recoup losses from the retailer.

- The rules do not apply to loans from lenders who are not affiliated with the retailer, unless the contract specifically states that the creditor "is subject to all claims and defenses which the debtor could assert against the seller of goods or services." Read the fine print.

Other Federal regulations protect credit card purchases. Under the fair credit billing law, consumers may withhold payments on defective merchandise provided that the consumer has made a "good faith effort" to return the goods or otherwise resolve the problem with the merchant.

If the credit card was not issued by the store selling the merchandise:

- The original amount of the transaction must exceed $50, and

- The sale must be transacted in the state or within 100 miles of the buyer's address.

Getting the Best Deal From Your Lawyer

By Gregory J. Stone

Justice is expensive. Remember the cartoon picturing a lawyer who had just completed a conversation with a potential client? The attorney stares at the troubled gentleman and somberly advises, "You have an interesting case, Mr. Joseph. How much justice can you afford?"

The truth is that you can probably afford more justice than you might believe. You can save a great deal of hard-earned money by following a few of these steps.

First, discuss your fee during your initial conference with the attorney.

Ask for a written estimate. (If the lawyer is unwilling to provide an exact figure, ask for an approximate amount). Also request an itemization of the bill and a statement of the probable time that will be spent on legal research, trial preparation and court costs. Negotiate the terms proposed. Think of the person sitting across that impressive mahogany desk as a professional who must depend upon you for his livelihood and treat him accordingly. If you are not satisfied with the suggested fee schedule, then politely inform the attorney that you will seek counsel elsewhere.

Methods of Billing

If you decide to hire a particular lawyer, be aware that he will probably bill you in one of three ways.

The first is the hourly rate. This method is generally preferred by clients for it often yields a reasonable fee. There are pitfalls, however. The meter is always running (think of the service as a taxi ride) and the fees can climb at an alarming rate if problems develop or if an unscrupulous attorney is conducting your case.

Be certain to determine who is doing the work on your case. A partner may command (and deserve) an hourly fee of $100 or more, but an associate may be worth only half as much, and student interns and paralegal assistants even less. Certain problems, such as the planning of a complicated estate or the resolution of a patent dispute, may require the expertise of a partner. On the other hand, routine matters, such as the preparation of a simple will, can be adequately handled by young associates. Thus your bill should reflect the complexity of your problem.

When you tell your attorney about recent developments in your case, write him a letter instead of phoning him. If you call, he will bill you both for the telephone time and for the time spent recording the conversation in his notes. If you write, he will read the letter and file it. Remember, your time is free of charge, but his costs you many dollars per hour, so the minor inconvenience of composing a letter will save you a lot of money in the long run. Letters are therefore preferable, unless you urgently need immediate advice.

If you are initiating a suit, your attorney might charge a fee on a contingent basis. This means that you will pay him a percentage of the final award if you win. If you lose you pay nothing. You may be responsible in either case for the lawyer's expenses (or disbursements as attorneys call them), but this will depend upon the terms of the contingency agreement which you and he draft. Again, do not hesitate to negotiate, particularly with regard to the percentage that he will receive.

In general, a contingency arrangement is desirable because it creates an incentive for the lawyer to win the case. If he fails, he will bear the often substantial costs of trial preparation.

A third form of payment is the "retainer." This is a means of establishing a relationship with an attorney. You pay him a certain amount of money in order to ensure that he will be available if and when you need him. Beware, though, because he may regard a retainer as a small down payment and his later fee might far exceed the initial amount. This is especially true if your case goes to trial.

No matter what billing procedure your attorney uses, if you think that his final fee is too high, say so. Contrary to popular belief, lawyers, even those from larger firms, may reduce their fees in order to restore circulation to a client who suffers cardiac arrest when he opens the bill. A loud complaint often produces results.

If you heed this simple advice, you may discover that you can stretch your legal dollar farther than you ever thought possible.

Know Your Rights to Privacy?

By Richard Lacayo

The spread of computer technology, the expanded concerns of the census taker, and the ever-increasing number of agencies, companies and bureaus collecting information about you has led to growing concern about how to limit the collection and possible misuse of personal information. By taking the following quiz, you can test your knowledge of your right to privacy.

1. How many states have legislation protecting individual privacy against excessive information gathering? (a) none (b) nine (c) twenty-four (d) fifty.

2. Various laws require certain institutions to adhere to guidelines in the collection and distribution of information on individuals. Which of the following are not yet covered by such legislation? (a) federally funded public schools (b) federally funded colleges (c) federal agencies (d) private businesses.

3. Courts have recognized the rights of an individual to recover damages in a number of privacy-related situations. Which of the following is not covered? (a) intrusion upon a person's solitude (b) disclosure of past conviction on criminal charges (c) information that places a person in a "false light" (d) the use of one's name or image for the profit of another person.

4. The Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1970 deals with the information gathering activities of credit investigating agencies. Which of the following does it require of the information collectors? (a) that they grant access to the information they have collected (b) that they provide a limited disclosure to others (c) both of these (d) neither of these.

5. Which of the following is the telephone company allowed to do? (a) charge you for an unlisted number (b) listen in on your phone conversation (c) give out a list of your toll calls (d) all the above.

6. Federal law prohibits government agents from reading first-class mail without a warrant. What do they need to open parcel-post and other non-first-class mail? (a) a federal warrant (b) consent from the addressee (c) it may be opened without permission (d) it may be opened by special federal agents.

7. The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution safeguards the right of people "to be secure in their persons, houses...against unreasonable searches and seizures." Searches by which of the following are not constitutional issues under the law? (a) hotel manager (b) local police officer (c) federal agent (d) landlord.

8. Under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (the Buckley Amendment) schools have the right to (a) disclose information regarding students to government agencies (b) limit disclosure of student records and allow student access to them (c) refuse disclosure of "directory information" like name, address, and major (d) be denied federal funds due to disclosure of records without student permission.

Answers:

1. (b) The nine are Minnesota, Utah, Arkansas, Massachusetts, Virginia, Ohio, Connecticut, Indiana, and California.

2. (d) Private businesses that collect personal data do not have to adhere to strict privacy guidelines, though in 1977 the Privacy Commission recommended legislation to regulate the health, commercial credit, insurance and banking industries.

3. (b) The Courts have recognized the right to protection of public disclosure of "private" facts, but a criminal conviction is a matter of public record.

4. (c) Both of these. The Act also requires that collectors provide notice of their intentions and that they make public the very existence of their data file. Secret files are not permitted.

5. (d) All the above. The charge for an unlisted number can range from 15¢ a month to over one dollar. Operators can listen in on calls for "verification" purposes. Lists of toll calls can be given away to any government agency that asks for them, most notably the F.B.I. and the I.R.S.

6. (c) Federal laws give mail openers the right to open anything they think suspicious within "reasonable cause". Of 270,000 pieces opened a year, 15,000 contain pornography, 5,000 contain marijuana and other drugs, and 28,000 are imports with duty owed on them. The rest, 222,000 pieces, are harmless.

7. (a) and (d) The Constitution and its Amendments are restrictions on actions by the government, not private parties.

8. (b) and (d) Before the law was passed, one student told his landlord that he only had money for half a semester's rent. The landlord called the school and was told of a forthcoming loan to the student. The student was then confronted by the landlord not only with the fact of the loan, but also with the name of the bank making it and the exact amount!

To find out more about your rights to privacy, you can contact The Privacy Journal at P.O. Box 8844, Washington, D.C. 20003.

By W. Brian Perry

In today's world of credit buying, installment plans, and hedges against inflation, it seems that no one actually owns anything. Many people are beginning to admit the obvious by leasing or renting—rather than "buying" on time—their cars, homes, and furniture.

As far as car leasing goes, the only thing financial observers seem to agree on is that it is getting bigger. General Motors, for example, predicts that half of its automobile production will be leased, not purchased, by 1982. Of all new cars in the United States today, 10% are leased or rented. That figure could reach 40% by 1987 according to some estimates.

Small businesses and individuals are providing most of the new growth for auto leasing. For companies, at least, there are some fairly clear advantages to leasing cars over buying them. Since businesses tend to need a constant supply of new cars, they find that leasing leads to simpler bookkeeping and less money tied up in downpayments.

But is leasing a prudent option for an individual driver? A closer look at the respective advantages and disadvantages of buying and leasing a car should put that still controversial question into better perspective.

Expense

The numbers can be interpreted in many different ways, and it is difficult to come up with a flat statement as to whether leasing is more or less expensive than buying a new car.

On the plus side for leasing, you pay a deposit of approximately 10%, rather than a hefty downpayment. You may not have to handle the insurance, maintenance, or repair costs if the lessor agrees to do so. You can deduct the costs of the car from your income tax if you use it primarily for business purposes, and you are not saddled with balancing depreciation costs against future plans to sell or trade the car.

Since depreciation is the single greatest expense of owning a new car, some people consider the latter feature the most compelling reason to lease rather than buy. After all, they argue, if you trade your car every few years, you never own it, anyway; and because of the high cost of maintaining a car, the benefits of owning a car do not outweigh the relative costs until after a few years.

On the other hand, if the value of the leased car has depreciated faster than anticipated in the original terms of the agreement, the lessee has to pay the difference. You can avoid the "balloon" payments risked in this value liability-type lease by requesting a "closed-end lease," but you have to pay higher monthly installments. Moreover, when you finish the payments on buying a new car, you own a somewhat valuable used car. When you finish the payments in your leasing agreement, you own nothing.

Cost Comparison

Conventional car wisdom holds that leasing is a definite, clear-cut advantage over buying only when entered into for business purposes.

Tax regulations can get complicated. On close examination, however, ownership may still have an edge over leasing in regard to legitimate deductions for business expense. If so, the advantage to business people in leasing cars rather than buying them would lie in convenience (for individuals) and simplified bookkeeping (for companies) rather than strictly in financial savings. To illustrate, consider the following point-by-point financial comparison:

• The down payment. Although there is no set down payment with leasing, you must pay a capital reduction cost. If you're not a good negotiator, that cost may be as high as a down payment—without yielding you any equity in the car.

• The monthly payments. The monthly leasing charges may be slightly less than loan payments (although there may be a mileage surcharge). The lease payments are deductible only if the car is used for business purposes; whereas the interest on a car loan is deductible whether or not you are self-employed.

• Depreciation. If you own a car used for business purposes, you can deduct not only interest payments, but also the car's depreciation costs.

Finally you should know that the Federal Consumer Leasing Act requires leasing companies to spell out the costs and terms of their contracts. If you have any questions or complaints about a bank-handled leasing contract, contact the nearest Federal Reserve Bank, or write to The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551. For complaints against leasing companies other than banks, contact the nearest Federal Trade Commission Regional Office.

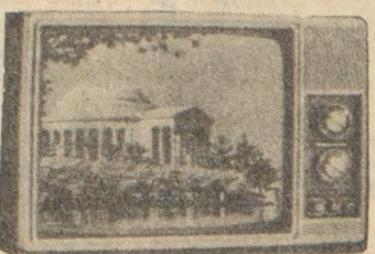

Contrary to popular belief, the Romans never used chariots in war. They used them for sport and transportation.

Approximately 20 students will have work on display. Exhibitors from Floyd county are Ora Bussey, Prestonsburg; Doug Hall, Prestonsburg; Peggy Rector, Martin; Lois Potter, Prestonsburg.

The first power-model dishwasher was developed by Mrs. W. A. Cockran of Shelbyville, Indiana, and completed in 1889.

Overcoming the Marriage Penalty

(Third in a series of five articles from the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants on preparing 1978 Federal Income Tax returns.)

Tax treatment that is fair for everyone continues to elude even the most determined tax reformers. Once again Congress has worked long and hard at reshuffling the tax laws, still no one would describe the results as a new deal, equitable to all.

An example of old inequities that persist is the "marriage penalty," which causes married couples to pay more taxes than two unmarried individuals with the same income, exemptions and deductions.

This was not an intended result. It was an inadvertent side effect of efforts to correct a previous imbalance resulting from still earlier adjustments in the tax code.

The chain of unsuccessful attempts at achieving fair treatment for married and unmarried alike began in 1948, when it was decided that families should be treated as single economic units, with family income taxed as though each spouse had earned half of it, thus sharply reducing the tax rate in cases where one spouse, in fact, earned the bulk of the income.

The income-splitting option gave such families an advantage over those in which both spouses earned roughly equal incomes, and an even bigger advantage over single individuals.

The latter protested this treatment and continued to do so until 1971, when Congress granted a more favorable rate for the single individual, thus putting the shoe on the other foot once more.

Since 1971 it has been working couples' turn to protest, and they have been doing so as successive administrations have wrestled with the problem, so far to no avail.

Congress has resisted various solutions that have been offered, partly because it feared they would lead to excessive loss of tax revenues, but chiefly because changing the rules would violate the principle of progressivity, which requires that taxes be levied according to the ability to pay.

With the issue unresolved, what can married couples who both have incomes do to minimize their taxes?

Forget about filing singly; the marriage penalty for that is even worse than with a joint return. Forget also getting a "quickie" divorce in December and then remarrying in January so that at year end you are "single." Internal Revenue Service has ruled such divorces, obtained solely for tax reasons, are a sham and has decided they do not alter a couple's tax status.

What, then, can working couples do?

First, they can be extra diligent in identifying business deductions. With two people employed in the family there is twice as much likelihood of job-related deductions, such as business travel and entertainment.

If you have young children or a disabled adult you have to hire someone to look after them so that both of you can hold jobs, look into the child-care credit. With two or more qualifying dependents this credit could be worth as much as $800, depending on your income level. If one of you began working again in just the past year or so, it's possible that your combined incomes have taken a big jump in 1978. If so, you may be eligible for income averaging. This permits you to calculate your tax bill for the current year by assuming that you earned the income over a five-year period; i.e., the current and preceding four years.

If one of you is self-employed, consider protecting part of your income from being taxed now by putting it in a Keogh-type pension fund. Or if either of you is not covered by a pension or profit-sharing plan, you might be able to defer until retirement the taxes on some income by setting up an Individual Retirement Account.

Give extra attention to the tax aspects of your investments. There is a world of difference among ways of financing your future. Many far-out investment schemes do not really shelter you from taxes; they simply push the taxes into another year, when your tax rate may be even higher than it is now. But there are tax shelters that are perfectly sound—real estate and petroleum development ventures, for example, that offer tax breaks because Congress intended that they should. Talk over investments with your financial advisor—in advance.

DIAMONDS

There is a difference in the quality of diamonds.

Are you buying diamond rings at what you think are wholesale or discount prices?

When economic times get tough, a number of predictable things happen. One very unpleasant fact is that too many retailers or so-called retailers or "wholesaler-retailers"—take advantage of consumers' genuine desire and/or need for a bargain to cheat them blind. This is politely called deceptive pricing. In fact, it's stealing.

What these so-called discounters are doing is taking very cheap quality diamonds and marking them up two or three times more than what they are worth. Then they put them on sale and usually you pay more than what the ring is worth to begin with.

If you want to buy diamonds at a fair price and be told the truth about what you are buying, come to Earl Castle's Jewelry in Prestonsburg, Ky.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in the chapel of Floyd Funeral Home for Mrs. Ida Crider Fraley, one of the oldest residents of this county, who died early Tuesday morning at Riverview Manor Nursing Home following a long illness. She was 99 years old. Officiating ministers will be the Rev. William H. Amburgey and Rev. Henry Crider.

Born January 25, 1880 at German, she was a daughter of Alex and Elsie Cline Crider and was a member of the Regular Baptist Church. Her husband, John D. Fraley, preceded her in death in 1948.

She is survived by two daughters, Norma Fraley, of Prestonsburg, and Mae Bottles, of Hollywood, Florida.

Burial will be made in the Wellington cemetery at Emma.

Scott Meade

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Ligon Community Baptist Church for Scott Meade, 58, of Ligon, who died Monday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack. Officiating ministers will be the Revs. Millard Adkins, Eugene Jarrell, Owen Marshall, Robert Owens and Elder Rush Meade.

Mr. Meade, who was retired, formerly was owner and director of a West Liberty funeral home. He was also a disabled miner and a veteran of service with the Navy during World War II.

Born February 25, 1921, he was a son of H. F. Meade, of Hi Hat, and the late Mrs. Laura Hall Meade. He was a graduate of the Kentucky School of Mortuary Science in Louisville and was a 32nd degree Mason.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lizzie Jones Meade; his stepmother, Mrs. Mada Gibson Meade; three sons, Scotty E. Meade, of Black Lick, O.; Gary Anthony Meade, in Texas, and Larry James Meade, of Whitehall, O.; seven brothers, Cecil, Earl, Thomas, Eugene, Don, and Rush Meade, all of Hi Hat, and Vernon Meade, of Melvin; one step-brother, Paul R. Pratt, of Houston, Texas; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Meade Hall, of Lincoln Park, Mich., and Mrs. Goldie Meade Johnson, of Bevinsville, and seven grandchildren.

Burial will be made in the Newman cemetery at Hi Hat under direction of Hall Funeral Home.

John Charles Clatworthy

John Charles Clatworthy, who at 94 was one of the oldest members of the United Mine Workers of America, died Saturday at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Clatworthy, who began working in the mines when he was 13 years old, was an active miner for 52 years, and was employed as a coal loader at Wayland. He was a member of Local No. 5897, and of the Martin Branch Free Will Baptist Church. He was a native of Boone, W. Va., born August 12, 1885, a son of Robert and Mary Jane Bennett Clatworthy.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ora Yates Clatworthy; three sons, Willard H. Clatworthy, of Buffalo, N. Y., Johnny Clatworthy, of Estill, and Bobby Clatworthy, of Mt. Olivet, Ky.; two daughters, Mrs. Betty Moore, of Hartville, O., and Mrs. Oria Lee Ratliff, of Canton, O.; 16 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Martin Branch Free Will Baptist Church at Estill by the Revs. Green Boyd, Brodie Amburgey and James Couch. Burial was made in the Lackey cemetery under direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Mrs. Sula Boyd, 63, of Dana, died Friday at the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville following a short illness.

Born September 1, 1916 in Flemingsburg, she was a daughter of the late Greenbury and Dolly Smith Watson and was the widow of Alex Boyd who died in 1968. She was a member of the Little Salem Old Regular Baptist Church.

Surviving are her three sons, Jackie and William Boyd, both of Dana, and Dillard Boyd, of Honaker; two daughters, Mrs. Arizona McKinney, of New London, O., and Miss Dellavene Boyd, of Wellington, O.; four brothers, Wilburn Watson, of Dana, Reenie, Johnny Lee, and Webster Watson, all of Ypsilanti, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Creda Boyd, of Betsy Layne, and Mrs. Olive Sanders, of Honaker; 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Monday at the Little Salem Old Regular Baptist Church at Dana by ministers of the church. Burial was made in the Kidd cemetery under direction of Hall Funeral Home.

SHORT ROWS

By Nevyle Shackelford

Colorful bittersweet (Celastrus scandens) with its attractive orange berries is ripening right now along back country roadsides and waste places in many areas of Eastern Kentucky. This woody vine and its pretty, bright fruit makes beautiful autumn decorations for the home, but in gathering it for such purposes it should be remembered that both its leaves and berries contain a deadly poison. According to James W. Herron, UK College of Agriculture botanist, the powerful alkaloid in this plant acts as a heart poison and purgative, producing nausea and prostration.

To this, medical authorities add that eating enough of this plant or its fruit can cause death.

Because of their bright color, bittersweet berries are attractive to small children as well as to adults. Small children, however, who are prone to put such things in their mouth, are likely to eat the berries with disastrous results.

Now this is by no means an attempt to deprive anyone of making a pretty autumnal flower pot. Rather it is to point out that in using it as such, caution should be exercised, especially if small children are around.

Bittersweet also goes by the name of "Wolfe Grape" and "Poison Berry," and while chipmunks, grouse and a few songbirds can eat the berries with impunity, they are decidedly poisonous to man and livestock.

In a bulletin, "Some Plants of Ky. Poisonous to Livestock," Dr. Herron also lists another common plant as being highly dangerous. This is the castor bean, also known as "mole bean" and "dog tick." The seed of this plant, often grown in gardens to inhibit the activities of moles, closely resembles a fat dog tick and contains a volatile ingredient called "ricin." The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently issued a circular which said that one or two castor beans constituted a near lethal dose for an adult. Strange as it may seem, while highly poisonous to man, plant authorities say chickens relish the seed and eat quantities of them without any harmful results. As to keeping moles away from the lawn or garden, these attractive treelike plants are of doubtful value.

Castor bean, or dog tick seed, grows four to a burr, in clumps around the main stem. When they ripen, as they are right now, the burrs suddenly burst open, throwing the seed in all directions. These seeds could possibly be picked up by small children and eaten. So if you have children and some of these plants out in the flower or vegetable garden, take care.

For more information on poison plants, contact your County Extension Agent. It may be possible that he has a publication in stock which lists most of these bad weeds common to Kentucky.
