Beating the summer heat with bare tops and four-wheel transportation recently were the children of Georgette Stanley of Prestonsburg. They are James Anthony, 4; Tiffany Eva Marie, 3; and Mark, 1.

Supt. Brock To Attend School Board Meeting

John Brock, state superintendent of public instruction, will attend tonight's Floyd County School Board meeting to discuss alleged politicking in schools during work hours by E.P. "Pete" Grigsby, administrative assistant, who is a former superintendent of the Floyd school system.

Brock and other state officials, including four who recently came to Floyd County to investigate the allegations, are expected to address the board in executive session.

The meeting will be held at 6 p.m. tonight (Wednesday) at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

Grigsby reportedly sought support for incumbent County Attorney David Barber during the May primary, and is alleged to have intimidated at least one district employee.

Jimmy Hall, a maintenance worker at McDowell Elementary, has said Grigsby discussed the race with him. Hall, who supported Barber's opponent, said Grigsby told him a list of Barber's supporters was being compiled, and would be used in hiring decisions for the coming year.

According to state officials, Brock is also expected to discuss the state's six-month-old takeover of the local district under the academic bankruptcy law.

The board will also consider Superintendent Ron Hager's recommendations to hire certified teachers, principals and central office personnel for the coming year.

State officials, in one of 17 recommendations to the local board, have urged that the central office staff be reduced by three positions. In hearings earlier this year, the local board opted not to demote three central office staff.

In early May, following the local district's failure to reduce central office staff, Brock sent a letter to Hager and board members citing the academic bankruptcy law, and warning that state officials expect the local district to present a balanced budget for the coming fiscal year.

The law includes a provision for removing board members and the superintendent from office as a last resort.

Action may also be taken on: — Considering the superintendent's recommendation to hire Chapter I certified and non-certified personnel, other non-certified personnel, maintenance personnel, transportation personnel, youth program personnel, summer cooks and janitors.

— To appoint a board attorney for 1989-90; — To award bids for transportation and maintenance supplies for the coming year.

Arson: Increasingly Common, But Hard To Prove

by Pam Shingler, Assistant Editor

The ashes are cold. Amid the charred, exposed beams lie remnants of a television, a couch, beds and chests, kitchen appliances and the outline of a child's melted Big Wheel.

Oddly, when the fire inspector steps into where the closets once were, he can find no evidence of shoes or clothing, no simmering leather or singed clothes hangers.

Were the residents able to grab the clothing before the flames overtook the house? Or was this a planned fire where the occupants carefully gathered up their personal belongings and keepsakes before the "accident" actually began?

The planned fire has become common enough in some parts of Floyd County that several major inurance carriers will not sell policies in those areas, according to local agents.

Fire losses in the county during 1987, the last year for which the state fire marshal's office has completed records, totaled more than $2 million. The average loss per fire was more than $36,000.

For Henderson County in western Kentucky, with a similar population, losses amounted to about half of those locally, according to state figures.

Barry McKenzie, arson investigator for the Kentucky State Police, Pikeville post, estimates that 90 percent of the fires he investigates in a five-county area that includes Floyd are intentionally set. He emphasizes that the figure comes only from fires local authorities ask him to investigate, not all fires.

Roy Ramey and Denzil Allen, two area insurance agents, estimate that more than 20 percent of fire insurance claims they pay result from arson.

The rub lies in proving that arson occurred and getting a conviction from a jury. McKenzie figures that of 10 cases he might investigate, only about three are ever brought to trial. Of cases tried, he sees convictions in about half; meaning about one of every 10 arson suspects is actually penalized.

"Juries, in general, hunt for reasons to say not guilty," said McKenzie, who has worked with arson cases for 12 years. "You have to have a really good case. Arson is like sex abuse, it's almost impossible to try."

McKenzie recounted examples of finding the remnants of gas cans inside burned out houses. "A five-gallon gas can in the living room is not normal," the investigator said. Yet, even with that kind of evidence, a guilty verdict is difficult to obtain.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton concurred. "Arson is not like assault or murder. There are generally no witnesses and no victims to testify," Patton said. "To get a conviction, you ordinarily need a confession or someone who witnessed the crime and will tell."

Patton said that since he took office in 1988, only two indictments on charges of arson have been brought by the grand jury, and both of those are awaiting trial.

McKenzie, who said arson plays a "major part" in the total number of fire losses in Eastern Kentucky, described arson as a crime that has become "tolerated" in this area. But it is still a crime, he emphasized.

The court, once a conviction is made, takes arson seriously, said Patton. First degree arson, in which a

Don't Lose The Umbrella...

Today holds a slight chance of showers, according to the US Weather Service at Jackson, with the temperature near 80, dropping to the 50s tonight. A 30 percent chance of showers is on tap for Thursday with the high around 80.

Thunderstorms are forecast for Friday and Saturday, with highs both days in the mid-to-upper 80s.

Sun-day promises to be just that, according to the weather service, although some clouds will be spotted. The good news for the end of the weekend promises less humidity, with temperatures ranging from the 60s at night to upper 70s or mid-80s during the day.

Graduations...

Three sets of Floyd County seniors continue to look forward to commencement exercises.

On Thursday, June 8, at 8 p.m., Betsy Layne High School seniors will receive their diplomas, while on Friday, June 9, at 7 p.m., graduation exercises will be held at Wheelwright High School. On Saturday, June 10, at 7 p.m., Allen Central High School seniors will graduate.

Census Begins...

Census workers are traveling throughout the region to collect mailing addresses of all residents in preparation for the official 1990 census. Coordinator Frank DeRossett says the workers wear tags for identification, and he asks citizens to cooperate, especially by "leashing their dogs."

Arrest Made, Bond Set In Betsy Layne Death

A Betsy Layne man remained in the Floyd County jail late Tuesday, unable to post bond on a charge of second degree manslaughter.

Harbit Hall of Betsy Layne was arrested Saturday, after a Floyd County grand jury indicted him for his alleged contribution to the April 29 death of Christine McKinney.

Indictments do not indicate innocence or guilt, but only that sufficient evidence exists to proceed with a case.

Hall allegedly chased the 17-year-old woman onto US 23 at Betsy Layne and into the path of a tractor trailer truck. McKinney died at the scene.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton said an eyewitness reportedly saw Hall chase the woman "for some distance."

Bond was set at $25,000 on the manslaughter charge.

Hall was also indicted on a separate charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended or revoked for driving under the influence on a third or subsequent offense. Bond on that charge was set at $10,000.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Lynn Cross is investigating the case.

'Break A Leg'

Two cast members of the classic musical "Camelot" rehearse a fight scene in preparation for Friday night's opening of Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. About 25,000 playgoers are expected for the theatre's 25th season at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Also in the summer's repertory are "Funny Girl," "The Jenny Wiley Story" and "Drood."

'Camelot' Opens JWT's 25th Season On Friday

The demise of King Arthur's peaceful, magical kingdom of Camelot will be on public view Friday evening as Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre opens its 25th season at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

Cast, crew and administrators, working since mid-May on the season's first of four productions, anticipate a record-breaking summer. Advanced sales of tickets have already surpassed last year, according to manager Jim Deaton.

With a gate of more than 21,000 last season, Deaton is hoping this year for 25,000 playgoers through Aug. 26, when the season ends. The figure, he said, will help herald the theatre's quarter-century.

Directing Friday's opening performance of "Camelot" will be Joe Conger, who directed last year's surprise hit, "The 1940s Radio Hour." "Camelot," an award-winning theatre classic, was written by Alan Jay Lerner, with music by Frederick Loewe. Among its most notable songs are "If Ever I Would Leave You," "What Do the Simple Folk Do?" and the title song.

The second musical, "Funny Girl," also a classic, opens on June 21. Its director is Homer Tracy, a professor at Eastern Kentucky University who directed last year's productions of "Jenny Wiley Story" and "West Side Story."

The show includes such tunes as "People" and "Don't Rain On My Parade." The production, set just after World War I, focuses on the life of comedienne Fannie Brice and the Ziegfeld Follies.

A local favorite, "The Jenny Wiley Story," begins its run on June 28. Also See CAMELOT, Page 2

Knocking Wayland's Lights Out: Short Funds May Cause Cutbacks

A financial crisis that is expected to be temporary and concern over the government clean up of a slate dump were the focus of Saturday's meeting of the Wayland Town Board.

Board members learned from clerk Carol Stapleton that town workers did not get paid last week because of the lack of money in the town treasury.

The deficit is the result primarily, Stapleton said, of the town paying for police protection while Chief Mack Stuart was in training during the winter. Stuart was paid while in school and payment for his replacement had not been budgeted.

Also not budgeted was money for a replacement cage for the police cruiser. The cage was heavily damaged by a prisoner and had to be scrapped.

Mayor Pat Murphy suggested having some of the town's street lights shut off and letting a half-time police officer go.

Stapleton reported that the town's electric bill, which runs about $300 a month, could possibly be cut by a third by taking out selected lights. Board members Gene Mullins and Gene DeCoursey agreed to check on the lights and make recommendations. The board also agreed to file suits in small claims court against delinquent taxpayers whose assessments remain in arrears after June 15.

"We shouldn't let them get away, especially when several older people who are legally exempt (from taxes) continue to pay," said Mullins. "We have to generate money. We can't run on empty."

Stapleton said checks from the Department of Mines and Minerals and other sources are expected in July. She also said she expects tax

Sunday Shooting Results In Death of Wayland Man

An argument apparently led to the shooting death Sunday evening of a Wayland man and the arrest of another on charges of first degree manslaughter.

Carl Ray "Rady" Martin, 39, was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson at a residence on Stamper Branch, just outside Wayland corporate limits, shortly before 9 p.m., according to Kentucky State Police reports.

Darling Newsome, 40, also of Wayland, was charged with the shooting and taken into custody Monday. Bond had not been set Tuesday afternoon and Newsome remained at the Floyd County jail.

Martin reportedly was shot once in the right side with a shotgun outside the residence of Will Bryant.

Tpr. Joel Newsome of KSP is investigating the shooting. An employee of National Mines Corp. at Raven, Martin is survived by his wife Deborah Webb Martin and two sons, Cary Ray and Jason Alvin. Funeral services are set for Thursday at 11 a.m. at Hall Funeral Home at Martin. Burial is to follow in the Martin Cemetery at Wayland.

Scare(?)crows

If one doesn't work, the other one probably will. This pair of scarecrows, standing guard in the same garden on Spurlock, could be seen by area residents earlier this week — the scarecrow at right, however, melted with rains that began Monday afternoon.

directed by Tracy, this year's production will include more new music, "to keep it fresh so the audience won't get bored," said Deaton.

The fourth production, which opens July 12, is expected to be this year's sleeper. "Drood (The Mystery of Edwin Drood)" won the Tony Award as Broadway's best musical of 1986.

The play centers on the book 19th century novelist Charles Dickens was writing when he died. Several different endings with many variables of plot and character were scripted, and the audience votes each evening to determine which ending will be played out, Deaton said.

The director of "Drood..." is Michael Wainstein, new to Jenny Wiley but with varied theatre experience, the manager said.

A special attraction for the season is the 25th anniversary production on Aug. 14. Cast and crew members from throughout the theatre's history have been invited back to participate in a cabaret-style revue, Deaton said.

The production will be used as a fundraising evening with patrons paying $50 for the show and a reception or $25 for the show only.

Of the current season's cast and crew, about 20 persons are from the local area. Others were hired after auditions in Richmond, Cincinnati and Louisville, where local theatre personnel saw about 800 hopefuls during the Southeast Theatre Conference.

The biggest challenge of the season, said Deaton, has been to get the theatre in physical condition for the productions. As late as Tuesday, theatre carpenters, local volunteers and Job Corps students were rebuilding the stage floor, which was damaged by flooding in February.

Deaton said water backed up in the theatre hollow four times as a result of a drainage problem. The water ruined the stage floor and damaged the costume and scene shops, as well as some supplies and equipment.

Deaton estimates the flooding caused about $10,000 in damages.

Lumber for the stage, alone, cost $4,000, he said. But to protect against future water damage, the new stage floor is being covered with runway paint. Rosin and pumice are being added to keep the performers from sliding.

In addition to the money theatre patrons spend in the area, Deaton said most of the theatre's roughly $250,000 budget goes back into the local community. Of that amount, about $28,000 is paid to area landlords for housing for the theatre company.

Of the money spent outside the area, a sizable chunk, about $20,000, is paid in royalties for permission to produce the musicals. Deaton also advertises outside the area to attract tourists.

Besides ticket sales and individual donations, the theatre relies heavily on corporate grants. This year's corporate sponsors include Pikeville National Bank, Martin County Coal, HBK Corp., Citizens National Bank, WYMT-TV, First Commonwealth Bank, The Bank Josephine, Floyd County Chamber of Commerce and Philip Morris USA.

Shows start at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday.

payments from some corporations this month.

"We can see down the road when we'll be in good shape, but not now," Murphy said.

The mayor reported that work is "supposed" to start on June 28 to clean up a slate dump that has plagued the town for several years. The project money was allocated by the US Office of Surface Mining in early spring, and the Wayland site was reportedly given high priority among other abandoned land projects in the county.

Murphy, however, did not appear optimistic that the project would get underway. "I have worked on this for six years," she said, "and I'm tired."

The mayor promised she would "do everything in my power" to draw public attention to the slate dump problem if the cleanup work is not begun soon.

The dump has been not only an eyesore for the town, but also an environmental hazard because of fires and smoke, she indicated.

In other business, the board amended the animal ordinance passed last month to include only those animals "found on public property." The ordinance, passed after months of discussion, requires all pet owners to have their animals vaccinated for rabies and registered with the town.

Paintsville Herald Sold, Perry Named Publisher

The Paintsville Herald and its companion free circulation publication, The Eastern Kentucky Shopper, went under new ownership this week with Scott Perry becoming publisher and editor.

No changes are anticipated in staff or general operations.

A newly-formed company, Johnson County Newspapers, Inc., acquired the Herald and Shopper from Sandy Valley Press, Inc., which continues in business with its other publication, The Big Sandy News, in Louisa. Allen "Bud" Perry and Scott Perry are principals in the Sandy Valley Press.

Principals in the new firm are associated with Smith Newspapers, Inc., of Fort Payne, Ala., the Appalachian News-Express in Pikeville, the Floyd County Times in Prestonsburg, and the Martin County Mercury in Inez, all of which have had close working relationships with the Herald for an extended period.

Smith Newspapers, Inc., has interests in a number of weekly and daily newspapers in the southeast, and in other sections of the country.

Bud Perry, editor and publisher of the Herald for nearly a quarter of a century, will no longer be directly involved in the Paintsville operation, but will serve as a consultant to the new company for an interim period.

The senior Perry, who acquired the Herald in 1964 from Douglas Galbraith, has focused primarily on business operations for the past several years, after turning editorial direction over to Scott Perry.

"The Paintsville newspaper has been an innovator and an award-winner in the weekly newspaper field for a long time," he said, "and I have every expectation it will continue to be in the future."

The Herald is among the larger weekly newspapers in Kentucky, with a circulation of approximately 6,000. Bud Perry originally acquired it in partnership with Scotty Patrick and D.H. Howard, at a time when all three were employed by Ashland Oil. Perry left the oil company to run the Herald, and later bought out his partners.

Scott Perry, who also is president of Project 2000, a development organization focusing on opportunities for Johnson County, said he was "enthused about the potential" of the new company.

"It gives us the double advantage of a strong local operation, coupled with access to new resources for growth, at a time when Paintsville and Johnson County are gaining new industry and new business. The results should be to everyone's advantage."

burned building is occupied, carries a prison sentence of 20 years to life, he said. Second degree arson, where intent to defraud an insurance company is proved, is punishable by a sentence of 10-20 years.

"People who wouldn't cheat you and me out of a dime wouldn't hesitate to cheat a company," said Ramey, owner of Ramey Insurance in Prestonsburg. The problem is so severe in some parts of the county, the independent agent said, that many insurance carriers have "x'ed out" those areas.

Poor quality roads and the lack of a sustained water supply that would support fire hydrants and allow easy access by fire trucks contribute to the high cost of insurance, Ramey admitted. But arson is also a major contributor to the setting of rates.

McKenzie pointed to the economy as one reason for arson rates. "The coal booms cause people to buy, buy, buy — homes, cars, boats, motorcycles. When the boom flops, the owner finds he can't make the payments," he said.

That's when owners think of the insurance coverage and "accidents" happen, the investigator said.

Insurance policies have to pay up even if arson is suspected, insurance agent Allen said. "If you drag your feet in settling a claim, the courts go after the company," Allen said, adding that companies must pay claims to mortgage holders, such as banks, even if a policy owner is convicted of deliberately setting a home fire.

McKenzie said he has seen a dramatic increase in insured value of property. When he began his job, the average home insurance policy was for $45,000 to $50,000. Now he said, the insured value is likely, on average, to be between $100,000 and $150,000.

The same is true for household insurance. The investigator said he has seen many instances of owners claiming losses of $30,000 on goods housed in a $10,000 mobile home.

McKenzie, as well as Ramey and Allen, lay some of the blame at the doorstep of banks, which, according to McKenzie, "happily loan money."

"Insurance is the key," said the investigator. "If you have insurance you can get a loan."

Billy Justice, a Pikeville insurance agent, said when property values decline, arson becomes more attractive. "We may have a $180,000 policy on a house that wouldn't sell for $100,000," he said. "We (insurance industry) want to insure property fairly, but we don't want to over-insure."

The insurance agents, investigator and attorney all agreed that neighbors who have evidence that arson has occurred should report it. To make insurance rates more affordable, or even make coverage available in some areas, arson must be treated as a crime, they said.

Justice encourages community action groups in neighborhoods to watch out for fires and to report any evidence of arson they may know of. "People who know something should report it," Ramey echoed.

The key to addressing a solution to the arson problem, said McKenzie, is the attitude of people in the community. "When people decide they want to stop it (arson), it stops. When you tolerate it, it continues."

He pointed out that in a community with a high fire rate, many of a suspicious nature, all property owners pay. "If the insurance company pays, then everyone who has insurance pays," he said.

Hampering the insurance industry in its attempt to cut down on premiums for arson-related claims is the absence of a network that would warn policy writers about persons with a history of suspicious fire losses.

One agent said he found out too late about one of his clients who had already collected handsomely on three separate fire policies — a higher than normal incidence of claims for the same reason. Only after he had written a policy and the man claimed on a fourth fire did the agent find out about the client's history.

McKenzie said he had investigated as many as three separate fires at the same location, which led him to believe the homeowner set the fires to collect the insurance.

The KSP investigator is not optimistic about lowering arson rates unless more cooperation is forthcoming from law officials and neighbors of arsonists who refuse to testify.

"We can't totally eliminate arson," McKenzie said, "but we can control it if people will get involved in trying to stop it."

McDowell's Dye Wins $10 Grand

A McDowell woman won $10,000 Monday by playing the Kentucky Lottery.

Housewife Maggie Dye, 38, said she will use the money to "fix my home." The mother of six purchased the winning game ticket at McDowell Stop and Shop. She is the wife of coal miner Phinas Dye.

Lottery officials announced recently that total ticket sales have topped $100 million in the first eight weeks of sales.

"Following strong sales over the Memorial Day weekend, it became apparent on Tuesday that we would pass this important point sometime late that evening," said Frank Keener, president of the Kentucky Lottery Corporation. "On Wednesday (May 31) morning, sales totaled $100,725,000."

Keener said 50 percent of the sales have already been returned to lottery players in prizes. In addition, state government will receive on a quarterly basis about 35 percent of the gross sales. The first of those checks will be presented July 10.

"The money will be deposited into an interest-bearing escrow account until the General Assembly appropriates the funds in January," he said.

The Lottery's new $1 game, "Cash in a Flash", began Monday, June 5. Players can win up to $500 by matching three of the seven cash prize amounts.

The third "Two for the Money" preliminary drawing for the Kentucky Lottery's second $1 million grand prize, to be awarded on July 4, was held June 6. The final four drawings will be June 9 in Ashland; June 16 in Lexington; June 23 in Harlan; and June 30 at a site to be determined.

Governor To Visit Hazard, Attend Dinner At Betsy Layne

State government goes on the road again this month as Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson brings "Capitol to the Counties" to the 7th Congressional District.

Gov. Wilkinson and the cabinet will be in Hazard on Monday, June 12 and in Morehead on Tuesday, June 13.

"Anyone can come to office hours during Capitol to the Counties and talk to the governor or a member of the cabinet without an appointment," says Gov. Wilkinson. "The idea is to give citizens the opportunity to talk with us about issues that face the commonwealth."

"I want to break down the image of state government as something that goes on only in Frankfort. State government is for all the people. It is easier for us to bring the Capitol to the Counties than it is for many people to get to Frankfort."

Mrs. Wilkinson and the GED Army will also be there. The governor will conduct regional issues forums in Hazard and Ashland.

On Monday, June 12, the governor will hold a regional issues forum at the National Guard Armory, 200 Campbell Drive, in Hazard. From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. he will be at Sherman Neace Athletic Center, Rt. 476, in Hazard, and from 6 to 7:30 p.m., will attend Martha's Supper, honoring state government employees and friends in the 7th congressional District at the Betsy Layne High School gym.

On Tuesday, June 13, from 10 to 11:30 a.m., the governor will participate in a regional issues forum at Summit Junior High School Theater, 1226 Summit Road, Ashland. From 1 to 5 p.m. he will be at Rowan County High School's gym on Rt. 5, Flemingsburg Road, Morehead.

Residents Protest Youth Center Closing

Dear Editor,
We, the young people of Wheelwright and the surrounding areas, would like to let you know what the Wheelwright Youth Center has meant to us.

It is a great place to go after school because we know we are welcome there and we always enjoy being there. There are many activities we enjoy taking part in while there. These include: pool, ping-pong, hopscotch, Nintendo, ball games, puzzles, baking, playground activities, field trips, help with school work and many, many more.

During the past three years we have come to love Katie and Sandi, they do all they can for us during work hours and give much of their own time in field trips and other activities.

The Wheelwright Youth Center will be greatly missed by all of us. We would like to express our deepest appreciation for the short time the center was open. We would also like you to consider, anytime you feel it possible to reopen the center, you will certainly be welcomed.

Thank you for your time.

Bring Back Town, Says Former Resident

Dear Editor,
I wanted to express my view and feelings about Prestonsburg. It is a very pretty and unique little city—or was.

I won't come back to live there again; they are killing Prestonsburg with the bypass roads.

West Prestonsburg should have a walking bridge for people to get out of there and over to town. Make Prestonsburg like it was, even if you have to widen the main trail through there and put up taller buildings, especially close to the main trail. Make it inviting to people. If need be, put a parking lot close enough to let people walk around and see everything and go shopping. Make it no charge so people don't have to worry; they don't mind walking a little if they don't have to pay to park. Try to bring back the town. If not, it dies, and that I would hate to see happen.

Dear Editor,
I am writing about the supplement to the Floyd County Times May 10 issue. I really enjoyed looking at all the old pictures. The picture on page seven of the young soldier and his friend is my brother, Bill McGuire, and Grover (Peno) Patrick.

Bill is now retired from the Army and living in Hopkinsville.

Bridge Unsafe, Says FC Visitor

Dear Editor,
My family and I paid a visit recently to Floyd County, and in going over the Hunter Bridge, were in doubt of making it across.

I remember reading in the paper some years ago that Hunter should get a new bridge in 1987. This promise was obviously not kept, and there is a definite need for this to be done, as this bridge is very dangerous. Please don't make the same mistake that many towns make of waiting until a tragedy happens before something is done.

I have learned from the people who live there that they have been trying to get help from the representative and county judge, and all they are getting is the run-around. If you want people to visit Kentucky you should make it a safer place to do so.

Thank you,

Race Assistance Is Appreciated, Says Coordinator

Dear Editor,
As race coordinator of the FACES

5K Run held in conjunction with the FACES Festival, I would like to thank those who supported this event. We are truly grateful to the Festival Board, which gave us permission to create a race for the festival, and Cawood's Catfish & Hoagie Shop and the Rotary Club for sponsoring the race. Also, I would like to thank Officer Roy Roberts and the other patrolmen who blocked traffic for the course to protect the runners.

The race was a success as 75 runners were registered, making the race the second biggest in Eastern Kentucky. Only Pikeville, which had 86 entrants in their Hillbilly Days Festival, is bigger. The Paintsville Apple Run was the second leading race in Eastern Kentucky.

Thanks to all those who came out to the course to cheer the runners on and offer them water over the 3.1 miles. With the support of the community we can be the number one race in Eastern Kentucky.

Sincerely,
Rick Roberts

U.S. SENATOR FOR KENTUCKY

LEGISLATION WILL HELP SPUR GROWTH IN KENTUCKY'S RURAL AREAS

One of the greatest problems facing Kentucky is the crisis in our rural areas. The continuing slump in coal production combined with decreases in certain sectors of the agricultural industry have combined to throw rural areas into economic stagnation. Today, we see too many of our children, relatives and friends leaving family farms and small towns and moving to cities in search of work. If Kentucky is to grow and prosper, I believe we must make a concentrated effort to invest in the development of rural areas. To accomplish this goal, I have introduced a major piece of legislation that will stimulate growth and expand America's rural industrial base.

This bill, titled the Rural Development Partnership Act of 1989, will refocus and combine the efforts of the federal government to act as a catalyst for rural growth and development. The legislation takes a broad-brush approach by including 17 sections that cover all aspects of the rural development equation.

Included in the bill are provisions that range from banking and education, to the improved collection of data on rural areas that can be used to track the progress of development policies. Other sections of the legislation will:

—Help banks substantially increase their investments in new or expanding businesses in rural areas by providing seed money to local development funds;

—Set up a rural economic development board within the Rural Electrification Administration to promote new industries through business incubators and the dissemination of technical information;

—Provide better health care for rural residents by improving telecommunications lines between hospitals;

—Provide programs to help rural schools improve their curriculum; and —Improve the coordination of agencies that handle rural development efforts within the US Department of Agriculture.

One of the keys to unlocking the potential of our rural areas lies in helping communities build and maintain their infrastructure. This means providing good roads and the necessary water and sewer lines that industries will need to grow and expand. One of the features of this bill will allow banks to loan money to cooperatives within the Farm Credit System to help small towns upgrade and build water processing and waste-water treatment facilities.

The Rural Partnership Act has broad bipartisan support. Over 38 of my colleagues have cosponsored this bill and hearings in the Agriculture Committee will be coming up within the next 30 days. Passage of this legislation could not come at a more critical time. Rural Americans have always been the bedrock strength of our country. The faster Congress acts on this legislation, the quicker we can provide local and state officials with the policy tools they need to help these areas reach their full potential.

Grants To Boost Child Support Collections

Kentucky is providing $500,000 to local prosecutors across the state, including $6,656 to Floyd County, to increase staff directly working on delinquent support cases, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson announced recently.

The grants are being funded from Kentucky's higher-than-expected collection of overdue child support, the governor said. The money is that which is repaid to state and federal governments for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

"This action is significant," Wilkinson said, "because it continues this administration's notice to child support cheaters that Kentucky will do whatever it takes to put investigators in the field and on their trails to collect that which is rightfully due the children and the taxpayers of this state."

"This marks the first time that Kentucky has had state dollars available to help county attorneys, commonwealth attorneys and friend-of-the-court contractors to increase child support collection personnel.

"These agencies will in turn be able to use this money to draw down additional federal funds available for child support collection efforts, in effect, tripling the impact of the grants."

"Currently, staff of local prosecutors who handle child support collections are funded solely with federal reimbursement which matches the financial resources budgeted by county attorneys, commonwealth attorneys and contractors. The state grants will be covered by the same federal two-to-one matching formula."

The governor said that the Cabinet for Human Resources expects child support collections for this fiscal year to return to the state approximately $600,000 over what had been anticipated, allowing for the issuance of the grants.

"Our tax intercept program, the decisions to increase state enforcement staff and upgrade computer search systems and a growing public awareness of the importance of a tougher stance toward delinquent parents have all contributed to this rise in collections," Wilkinson said.

"Earlier this year, the cabinet surveyed prosecutors on what they needed to increase collections, and then sought proposals for possible state funding. These grants represent the final step in that process," he said.

Wilkinson said the Cabinet for Human Resources is to closely evaluate the use of the grants, which run through June 1990 or until each grant is used up. A recommendation on continuation of the funding will be made prior to submission of the governor's biennial budget plan to the 1990 General Assembly.

Education Forum Held; Local District Discussed

by Tess Whitmer
Staff Writer

About 150 teachers, parents, concerned citizens and students attended an education forum recently, hoping to gain some insight to the state department's take over of the Floyd County schools.

The forum, held at Allen Central High School, included a panel discussion between State Rep. Greg Stumbo, Dr. Robert Sexton, a representative from the Pritchard Committee for Academic Excellence; Betty Steffy, deputy superintendent of instruction for the state Department of Education; Ron Hager, superintendent of Floyd County Schools; and Carol Stumbo, one of five Ashland Oil Co. "Outstanding Teachers" named this year.

Sexton questioned whether strong local control of education would solve the district's problem, adding that determining "who is in charge" is pertinent to making changes in the system.

All panelists agreed that improvements are on the way, and changes are required to make the local system more productive. They also agreed that Floyd County has students, administrators, parents, teachers and community members who are dedicated to their profession and students.

"Teachers really want to teach and students really want to learn, we must get that message out," said Rep. Stumbo.

"The public has seen a six to seven year period of unprecedented change, and it is a frustrating and unsettling time," Sexton said. "The country is faced with a challenge to its historical dominance in the world, and we really must get hold of our education, because that is the only thing that will make this country great again. Kentucky has one of the most poorly educated adult populations in the country."

He added that the Kentuckians are looking for ways to improve and change schools, but the change "has to take place in the people's minds and hearts first."

Steffy agreed that the local school board should be responsible for changing the system. Steffy noted the state currently assists and makes recommendations to the district, but warned, "If there is evidence that this system does not want to help correct itself, we will rethink our position."

Steffy said state officials recently made 17 recommendations dealing with personnel that would reduce the local district's budget by $800,000;

however, the Floyd board voted not to demote the administrators.

"This was a disappointment to the state department. We thought they would," said the deputy superintendent.

"Floyd County should not be seen as a community that could not produce the school system it needs," Steffy said, saying she felt the presence of the state department should not stigmatize the local district.

Hager expressed his appreciation for the state department working in the district.

Poor student attendance contributes to the local deficit, said Hager, explaining that every day a child is absent, the system loses $10 to $12. He said the county has an 8 percent absence figure, or 730 students daily.

"Kentucky is one of the poorest states in the country, and Floyd County is one of the poorest counties in the state because of a low tax base," said Hager. "What we generate in local funds would not run our school system for 15 days if it were not for federal funds. If the citizens wanted the same tax base behind their children as in Fayette County, your taxes would have to be raised 300 times what you pay now."

Carol Stumbo told the audience that the teachers in Floyd County are doing their jobs, but feel uninformed. "I want people to start listening to me as a teacher, because I know things that can make education in this county better. They (teachers) are a resource that are not being used — teachers are not asked," she said.

Rep. Stumbo said he supported local control, and he spoke of the many changes which occurred in education in the 1980s to include the proposed $350 million package of education reform bills. He said he "believed the people of Kentucky will pay for the reforms to provide their children with a quality education, but I don't believe they'll pay more for their education system as it currently exists."

He said that 75 cents of every state tax dollar is sent to the educational system, making Kentucky the fourth highest in the country in percentage of state government dollars sent to education.

He said one of the problems of investing dollars in education is "you don't really see the impact in the first couple of years."

Congratulations

Fires, Truck Wreck Reported In County

Two fires occurred in Floyd County recently, as did a peculiar truck accident, according to officials with local fire departments.

In Martin, Yogi's Pizza Shop lost its kitchen equipment and part of its work area in an electrical fire about 2:30 p.m. on Memorial Day, according to William Pelfrey, Martin volunteer firefighter. He said that Rodney Hutchinson, volunteer firefighter, was driving by the establishment and saw smoke, and called in. Firefighters were able to extinguish the fire in about 10 minutes. Pelfrey estimated that 40 percent of the shop was destroyed, along with all of the wiring.

In Ligon, on Reynolds Branch, a double wide trailer owned by Geraldine Bentley was destroyed by a fire at about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday, June 6, according to Doyle Mead, Tolers Creek volunteer firefighter. Bentley was not home, and a neighbor reported the fire. When the fire department arrived, the trailer was engulfed in flames, and firefighters concentrated on keeping the fire from spreading, said Mead.

In Garrett, on Friday, June 2, at about 2 p.m., a coal truck and a Biz-zack Brothers Construction truck, driven by Harold Nickles, collided on Route 80 atop the hill outside Garrett, according to Terry Triplett, Martin firefighter. "Apparently the driver of the coal truck hit his head and was added," said Triplett. "because he drove about five miles into Maytown before we could get him stopped."

Completes Pump School

Prestonsburg firefighter Thomas M. Hereford recently received certification in pump maintenance from the Hale Fire Pump Training School at Conshohocken, Penn. At the end of a 20-hour course, Hereford earned certificates from the Pump Service Academy, Pennsylvania Fire Academy and Montgomery County Fire Academy. According to fire chief Thomas Blackburn, Hereford and a Johnson County man are the only firefighters in the area with pump maintenance certification. Hereford is also certified as a firefighter, fire instructor and pump and diesel mechanic. He served as a volunteer firefighter for six years before joining the fire department staff three years ago.

Rabies Clinics Set Throughout County

Estill veterinarian Dr. Carol D. Howard has scheduled rabies clinics, offering animal vaccinations at reduced rates, at 35 locations in Floyd County Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Howard will spend between 20 and 30 minutes at each location.

Program For Children Starts June 19 At PCC

Prestonsburg Community College's Summer Kids College will begin on Monday, June 19, on the PCC campus, according to John Herald, dean of student affairs.

The mini-course will run from 9 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday, from June 19 until July 21.

Participating children will study science, math puzzles, learn about sound and music and make a musical instrument which they will play, learn to clog and have the opportunity to work in a drama workshop, said Herald.

Five arts and crafts classes, taught by Martha Risner, will be offered, including working with clay, fiber art, mask making, puppets, and sand casting. The program will conclude with a display of the work the children have produced over the summer, Herald added.

Registration options range from signing up for the full five week, 10 mini-course program, to taking just one class once a week for the five weeks Summer Kids College meets.

The program is open to children 6-12 years old. Enrollment is limited and preregistration is required.

For information, call PCC's Office of Continuing Education and Community Services at 886-3863, ext. 215 or 278.

Religious Viewpoint

by Mrs. Edgar R. May

History records many kinds of Baptists: United, Freewill, American, Independent, Regular, Primitive, Landmark, Northern, Southern, and Anabaptist in early days. In colonial times, all at first were just plain Baptists until slavery caused some to "secede" in 1845 and 1846.

With their churches in the south only, soon they became known as Southern Baptists. Though classified as Protestants, in reality we are not, having been in existence long before the Protestant Reformation. Many church historians of countless faiths trace the Baptist origin to the apostolic period. They include Alexander Campbell, Cardinal Hosius, John Ridpath, Methodist; Y' Peig and Dermout, Dutch Reform, etc. Perhaps they were influenced by Luke 1:17 in which God foretold that John the Baptist would prepare a people for the Jesus himself.

Today, Southern Baptist work in all 50 states in addition to thousands of home and foreign missionaries, hospitals, children's and nursing homes, as well in schools on all levels from kindergarten through seminaries.

Aside from our Catholic friends, Southern Baptists constitute the largest denomination in the U.S., with more than 14 million members.

The name of a faith is less important than the doctrines it espouses. Most outstanding beliefs have more in common than otherwise. Seventy years of membership in any faith familiarizes one with its tenets more or less, but I speak for myself only.

Southern Baptists believe in the priesthood of believers, the autonomy of the local church, separation of church and state, that the Bible is divinely inspired by God who told scribes what to write, that its central figure is Christ, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, was crucified by religious zealots, and paid the sin debt of all mankind by substitutionary atonement on Calvary, was entombed three days, rose from the dead triumphantly, and is coming again. He lives!

Southern Baptists maintain that salvation is a gift obtained by faith through grace. Ephesians 2:8-10 says

"it not of works." We strongly endorse good works, but never as a means of salvation. Works and righteous living will determine the rewards of each believer at the judgment seat of Christ. No one can work his way to heaven or give enough to buy a ticket there. In Luke 18:10-24, the wicked publican was saved because he believed in Jesus and asked for mercy. But the self-righteous man was doomed, since he thought he was so good he had no need of help. He was like most Pharisees.

Sometimes Southern Baptist are rated narrow since we practice immersion as the only mode of baptism. The New Testament was written chiefly in Greek, whose work for baptize is "baptizo", which means to dip under or bury. Colossians 2:12. John 3:23 reads: "For John was baptizing in the river Aeon because there was much water there." Every case of baptism in scripture was by immersion, which may help explain why many faiths are installing baptisteries. Southern Baptists, traditionally, do not consider baptism by water essential to salvation. The plan of salvation in the Old and New Testament is identical. The Old Testament saints were saved by faith in the Lamb of God yet to come. The New Testament saints are saved by believing and accepting the Lamb, the Lord Jesus Christ. The Bible gives many incidents of persons saved without baptism. The thief on the cross, the woman who touched the hem of his garment (Mark 5:25-34, Matthew 14:36, and Luke 20:42-43). To many Jesus said, "Thy faith hath made thee whole." The word "hath" is past tense. Southern Baptists firmly believe in baptism and church membership, but not that either saves or is necessary to salvation.

Southern Baptists undergo criticism for believing in eternal security, rejecting any idea that a genuinely-saved person can ever be lost again. Some words have several meanings, but the word eternal has only one definition: "forever." Hundreds of Biblical passages say born-again people have eternal life. Rejecting

John 3:16 would make Jesus a liar. Nothing born "physically" or "spiritually" can be unborn. Ties between God and His children are stronger than those of human parents and their offspring. Even adopted children belong to their parents permanently (John 10:28-29, 5:24, 17:11-12; Psalms 37:17, 23-24, 145:14).

There is a big difference between falling from grace, or losing your salvation, and backsliding. Galatians 5:4 says "those justified by the law are fallen from grace." Galatians 2:16 reads, "By the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." David sinned horribly, but he did not lose his salvation, only the joy of it (Psalms 51:12). He repented, got forgiveness, and God called him "a man after His own heart."

Some who profess Jesus change their lifestyles a while, and then revert to their old ways and cause others to wonder if Baptists think one can do as he pleases and remain saved. No! Salvation changes our "want to's" and some professing Christ are described in I John 2:19: "they went out from us for they were not of us, they would have continued with us." One must study all that scripture says on a given subject to interpret it.

Like other prominent faiths, Southern Baptists today have several leaders who have strayed from the Bible. A few have even scraped the barrel by denying the Virgin Birth. Yet many eminent men of other great faiths have left them to unite with Baptists, including Spurgeon of London; Adoniram Judson, first foreign missionary from America; Dr. M.R. DeHaan of the Radio Bible Class in Michigan, and Dr. Billy Graham. Despite our strict doctrines, Southern Baptists believe the church Jesus founded, Christianity, is composed of all saved persons from any Biblical faith, and a small percentage who never unite with any denomination, but profess Christ to others, and commit their lives to Him, not as a means of salvation, but as recognizing that he is the only door to eternal life. Up yonder he will be ashamed of any who are ashamed of him down here (Mark 8:38; Matthew 10:32-33).

THE FAMILY

In Loving Memory of Our Father, John W. Goble, Allen, Ky.

Our father and grandfather, who God called to his eternal home, June 13, 1988. He is sadly missed by his family and friends.

We wanted, so much to keep you. We watched you day by day, until at last with breaking hearts, we watched you slip away.

God knew you were suffering, he knew that you had had your share so gently he closed your weary eyes and took you in his care. Your memory is our keepsake with that we will never part. God has you in his keeping, we have you still within our heart.

To the cemetery we go so often, pretty flowers we place with care, its only a silent grave that needs our care because our loved one is buried there. God only knows our heartaches, when we turn and leave your grave.

Ed Moore Defines Little League Coach

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Webster's dictionary describes "coach" as an instructor or trainer. Webster gives the meaning of "Little League" as a "baseball team for youngsters through 12 years old."

A Little League coach, then, is an instructor of youngsters on a baseball team up to 12 years old.

But the simple definition falls short of describing a man who has spent his last 20 years coaching Little Leaguers, instructing them in the game of baseball. Such is Ed Moore of Drift, who this year begins his 20th year as coach of the Drift Giants, part of the Beaver Creek Little League program.

"I started the Drift Little League team," Moore recalls. "When McDowell and Doty Creek had their teams, Drift did not have any, so we started one in Drift in 1969 and I have been coaching them ever since."

In 1970 Moore started the Drift Babe Ruth team and also coached the Pee Wee team, as well as his own Little Leaguers.

"I had a lot of my players go on and play in high school," Moore says with great satisfaction. "There have been some who even played college ball."

Mike McQuate, Jonathan Stumbo, Keith Shelton, Bret Rose, and Jamie Lawson are some of the many Little League players who went on to play in high school baseball. Jackie Lawson and Kip Kidd played college baseball at Morehead.

Moore's team captured the pre-season tournament, league title, and won the Beaver Creek Little League tournament last year. Moore has also been named to coach many of the league's all-star games.

Two years ago after a trip to Lexington, Moore came back to initiate the four-man outfield in Little League play.

"I saw the Lexington teams using it and thought it would be good for our league to initiate it into our program, giving some of the players who normally would sit on the bench a chance to play."

"Dad always brings his players up to be dedicated to the game," Ernie Moore, the coach's son, says. "He always has a good team, because he is dedicated to the kids."

"You've got to pick up the at the pitcher's release," Moore says, coaching at first base. "Come on, you can hit it!" He is always instructing during a game. If a youngster makes a mistake, he takes him aside and explains what he did wrong.

Moore has enjoyed coaching baseball for all the 20 years he has put into it.

"I still love it," he says. "Win or lose I enjoy it. I try to instill into my players sportsmanship. If we lose, we lose. If they go out and give 110 percent, they're winners." With Moore there is no "win at any cost" attitude.

In his years of coaching Little League, Moore never had one of his family members play for him—until this year. Now his 10-year-old grandson Christopher is playing second base for the team.

"We practice every chance we get," Moore explains. "The Minnie Park like all other ball parks is constantly being used by someone. There are just not enough ball fields for all the teams in Floyd County to use."

The coach says he misses the old Drift ball park.

Moore remembers a certain player who played for him in 1977. It wasn't a boy, but a girl. In fact, Moore had three girls playing on his team then, when girls rarely played on Little League teams. Kim Horne was rated as one of the league's top pitchers.

"Many of the boy players hated to bat against Kim," Moore says, laughing. "She could pitch and throw as hard as any boy in our league."

The Little League coach realizes that he couldn't have been as successful as he has been without some people backing him.

"I want to take these means to thank Ricky Hamilton for helping me coach, and all the parents who have donated all the things we have needed and their time. Without their help there would have been no team."

One who has stood by him all 20 years is his wife Thelma. "I thank my wife for putting up with me all these years," Moore says.

"It's not been easy," Mrs. Moore says. "Ed is dedicated to the game and dedicated to those kids. He lives for it. There have been times I wanted to go somewhere and we couldn't go because there was a ball game."

"I kidded with him one time and told him he ought to get him a camper and live there, and when the season was over come on back home. I believe Little League and the kids keeps him going."

"I sort of got away from it a little bit until Christopher (her grandson) started playing and I got interested again," she explains. "When he is not playing he goes down to the ball park to watch the other teams play."

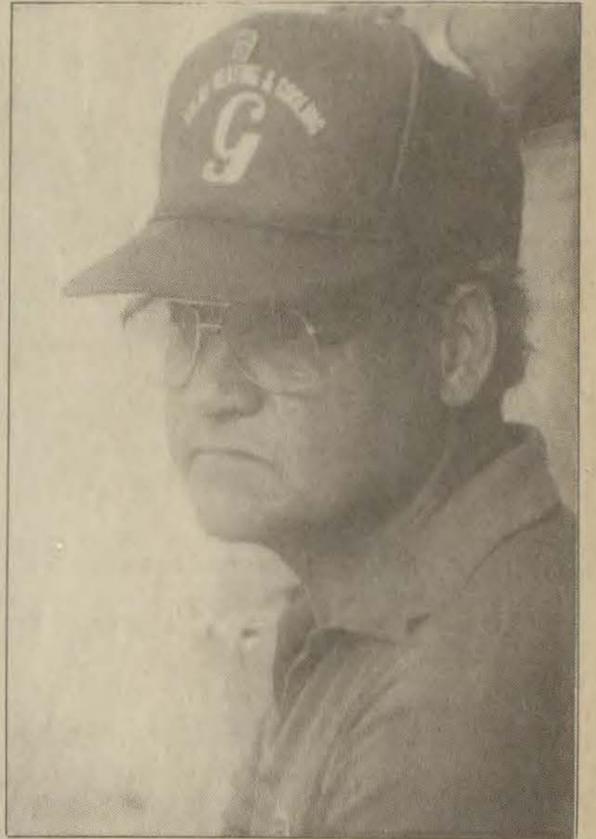

"Ed gets nothing out of coaching except the satisfaction of helping teach kids baseball. He feels if he can get them on the ball field he can keep them off the road," she relates.

"You know kids remember him, and they talk to him about the years they played for him, and that is a great satisfaction to him," she says. "Kip Kidd (who went on to play baseball for Morehead) says if it hadn't been for Ed he would have never gotten the chance to play ball. If other coaches were like Ed he could have gone farther."

Big League ball players had to start somewhere and chances are they started in Little League, and they to had a Little League coach like an Ed Moore, who has given many years of his life to "instruct and train youngsters in the game of baseball".

20 Years

Ed Moore is beginning his 20th year as coach of the Drift Giants Little League team. Moore began coaching in 1969, and has been with the same team throughout his career.

Conn Undergoes Surgery To Reconstruct Ligament

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Jo Ann Conn, leading scorer for last season's Allen Central Lady Rebels, underwent surgery to correct a torn Inter-Cruciate ligament behind her left knee.

"They had to put two screws in my knee," Conn says, laughing. "The doctors want me to walk a lot on it, ride bikes, and lift weights. Then in August I should be able to run on it and do 'jags' and get ready for basketball."

The surgery took three and half hours and Conn spent five days in a Lexington hospital. She believes strongly that she will be 100 percent by basketball time this fall.

The Lady Rebs should have college coaches taking a good look in the fall as one of Floyd County's best will be at her best. Conn was averaging 22 points per game and hauling down 14 rebounds before she hurt her knee in a game against Wheelwright three weeks before the district tournament.

"Just how good our team will be this fall will depend a lot on Jo Ann's ability to come back after having surgery," Allen Central mentor Bonita Compton explained. "She's going to make us a better team."

Conn was forced to sit out the district tournament, although she tried to come back before the regular season ended. She was named as the WYMT-TV and Long John Silver's "player of the week" for the week of Dec. 26, 1988. She was also named to the Floyd County All-Conference team.

Swing and a Miss

John Paul Sexton of the McDowell Stars seems to have lost his bat in this swing against the Drift Giants at Minnie last week. Drift won the game, 6-2, over McDowell.

Martin Liquor Sweeps ARA Hospital 16-6, 9-2

Martin Liquors swept a double-header from ARA Hospital this past weekend 16-6 and 9-2 to remain on top in the Minnie Softball League with a 15-1 record.

Doug Derossett secured both wins on the mound for the Martin team as it won the first game 16-6. Robbie Fraley and Brian Turner had home runs in the first game for the winners. Fraley and Turner also had two doubles for Martin.

Stevie Ward, Greg Ison, and Derossett had triples. Thomas Meade had a perfect day at the plate in the first game, going four-for-four.

Glenn Moore took the loss for ARA.

In the second game Martin took a 9-2 victory over the hospital team. Jerry Boyd homered and tripled for the winners, and Charles Collins had a double and triple in the winning effort. Julian Slone also tripled for the Martin squad, while Thomas Meade had a double. Doug Derossett was the winner and Glen Moore took the loss.

fense, as three Giant runners were cut down at the plate in the first four frames.

Brent Osborne led off the fifth inning with a triple for Drift, and scored the Giants' first run on a wild pitch. Patrick Bryant and Teddy Pack homered for the Giants, giving them a 3-1 lead.

ACHS Lady Rebels

Bonita Compton's Lady Rebels held their annual team cook out at the Allen Park last week. Compton is looking forward to a good season this fall at Allen Central. Much will depend on how player Jo Ann Conn comes along after knee surgery, said Compton.

Free Fishing This Weekend

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife has proclaimed June 10-11 as "free" fishing days across the state of Kentucky.

No license for residents or non-residents will be required. All other laws will still be in effect. A fishing derby will be conducted for kids 16 and under.

Children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. To preregister, call the Corps of Engineers at 886-6709 or 789-4521 or register on the day of the derby.

Cubs Whitewash Tigers, Go To 7-0

The first place Mud Creek Cubs threw nothing but "goose eggs" at the third place Tigers in shutting out the Tigers 4-0. The Cubs are perfect for the season with a 7-0 record.

Brent Newsome was the winning pitcher. Kevin Tackett took the loss for the Tigers who fell to 3-4.

Kenneth Johnson and Brent Newsome each had doubles for the winning Cubs.

Fishing Report

Fishing activity over the June 3-4 weekend was reported moderate on most of the major lakes. Water temperatures ranged from 73-83 degrees. Largemouth bass, bluegill and white bass were the most consistently active species. The lake-by-lake report:

Open Junior Tennis Classic Scheduled Week Of July 31

The Open Junior Tennis Classic begins the week of July 31 at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Entry deadline is July 17.

Four age brackets for boys and girls 18 and under in singles and doubles are offered. A singles feed-in consolation allows every youngster to get in at least two games.

"We take pride that the tournament has contributed to tennis in Kentucky," says tournament director Brent Clay. "We don't get all that many ranked players but that really isn't the point. Our goal is to bring together youngsters at various skill levels for fun and tournament experience."

Clay added that the tournament has a good reputation in tennis circles, attracting players from throughout Kentucky and neighboring states.

The tournament is run by Erwin Jones, who is active at state and national levels as a referee. Ranking points are awarded because it is sanctioned by the US Tennis Association.

Entries may be obtained from Brent Clay, 798 Glendover Road, Lexington, KY 40502.

Landscaping with Laurel Farms

WHEN TO WATER

Do not assume that because the mulch on top of the soil is dry that your plants need water. The easiest method to determine when to water is to dig a hole into the root zone from 2 to 6 inches deep depending on the size of the plant (flower vs. shrub). Dig a new hole each time you check.

Plants that cannot tolerate drought—water when soil in foot zone is moist, but not still wet. When you touch it, it makes your finger damp but not muddy.

Average plants—Water when the soil in the root zone is just barely moist. When you touch it, it feels cool and moist, but doesn't dampen your finger. Most soils are crumbly at this stage but not dusty.

Plants that cannot tolerate wet soil—Water only when soil in root zone feels completely dry. It is not cool to the touch and it is probably dusty.

Cincinnati Reds Tryouts At Johnson Central June 10

The Cincinnati Reds will conducting a tryout camp at Johnson Central High School baseball field June 10. The camp is open to all boys 16-22 years old, and high school sophomores and juniors are urged to attend. Reds scouting supervisor George Bennett will be in charge of the workout, which begins at 10 a.m. Registration will begin at 9 a.m., and all players participating in the workouts must be registered prior to the 10 a.m. starting time.

Bennett will be assisted by Reds scouts Don Moyer, Fred Hayes, Jack Bick, Steve Kring, Dave Bennett and Bob Kouns. Players are asked to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes. The Reds will furnish all other equipment.

In addition, each player will be responsible for his traveling and living expense, if any, unless signed to a contract with the Cincinnati Reds organization. Players must be 16 years of age to be eligible to participate, and all American Legion players must bring written permission from their post commander or their Legion coach in order to try out.

"Several of the players now playing baseball in the Major Leagues were first seen at tryout camps such as this one, and any boy seriously interested in playing professional baseball should make every effort to attend this camp," said Bennett.

Garrett Pirates Fall To Martin Braves, 4-1

The fourth place Martin Braves (4-5) captured a 4-1 victory over the Northern Division league leaders Garrett Pirates (6-2), last week at Garrett in the Beaver Creek Little League.

The loss dropped the Pirates into second place in their division.

Jason Bevins had a home run for the Braves and was the winning pitcher. Bevins had four strike outs, gave up only three hits to the league leaders, and improved his record to 3-0.

J.P. Skeens and Chris Cornette had two hits in three plate appearances for the Braves.

Tongue Biter

The game was anything but a tongue biter as the Betsy Layne A's defeated Harold 23-6 in Babe Ruth play last week. The A's remain undefeated in the regular season standings.

Risner's Homer Lifts Rangers To 13-8 Win

Rob Risner, Prestonsburg Rangers, pitched and batted his Little League team to a 13-8 victory over the Prestonsburg Cubs last week at Archer Park in the Prestonsburg Little League program.

Risner went four-for-four at the plate and belted a two-run homer in picking up the win for the Rangers. Jerry Lafferty had a big day at the plate with two doubles. Rick Lemaster relieved Risner in the fourth and he also had six strike outs. Lemaster went three-for-four for the Rangers at the plate.

Jeremy Osborne was the losing pitcher in striking out five. Jason Osborne got five strike outs in a relief role for the Cubs. Osborne had a double in the game for the Cubs.

The Rangers held a 6-3 lead going into the bottom of the fourth inning.

The Cubs scored four times in the inning to claim a 7-6 lead. Three runs in the fifth and four in the sixth gave the Rangers a 13-8 victory over the Cubs.

McDowell Stars Edge Maytown

The McDowell Stars scored three third inning runs to tie the game at 3-3, and plated two in the fifth to take a 5-4 victory over Jim Moore's Maytown Mets in the Beaver Creek Little League last week.

"We left 13 runners on base," Moore said. "It's hard to win games like that."

Terance Mullins had a triple for the Stars, and Bryan Adams doubled. Pete Dawson recorded the win in striking out eight. Nick Hagans pitched a strong game in the losing cause, in fanning 14 Stars batters and yielding only three hits to the McDowell squad.

Mullins and Adams each had two RBIs for the winners.

FAMILY REUNION

The annual family reunion of the relatives and descendants of Nan and Henry Moore, Sr., will be held at Allen Community Park, on July 1st and 2nd, 1989. If you have any questions, please call Henry Moore (606-376-8119), or Nancy Moore (606-376-3293). Hope to see you there!

Two Students Win PEP Essay Contest

Students from Spruce Pine and Prestonsburg elementary schools are winners of an essay contest, sponsored recently by The Bank Josephine and First Commonwealth Bank.

Jackie Collins, a student at Spruce Pine, and Kyle Bellamy of Prestonsburg received $100 gift certificates to the business of their choice for their essays on "The Bank: How Does It Benefit My Community?"

The local banks cooperated on the model project for the Personal Economics Program (PEP), a statewide volunteer effort of bankers working with educators to present programs on the financial system. Because of the success of the Floyd County project, the essay contest will be incorporated statewide next year, according to Frances Aicklen of the Kentucky Bankers Association.

Essays were judged on content, organization and grammar. Prior to the contest, PEP representatives visited the schools and spoke on the business of banking.

Collins, 12, is the daughter of Jerry and Debbie Collins of Honaker. A fifth grader, Bellamy is the son of Sandra and Jerry Bellamy of Prestonsburg.

The students accepted their awards at a ceremony last week at the Board of Education building. PEP representatives attending the presentation were Pamela Herrick, Debbie Hoskins, Janie King, Linda Lennox, Brian Ousley, Cathy Frater, Donna Roope and group coordinator Phillip Elliott.

The Winning Essays "The Bank: How Does It Benefit My Community?"

Kyle Bellamy

There are many ways banks benefit our community and I think the most important are helping new businesses and employment.

Most people do not have enough money to start a new business on their own and they need financial help from a bank. If a person wants to start a new business in our community he will go to the bank and apply for a loan. If the loan is approved, construction can start soon and employ other workers. When the construction is finished and the business opens, more people are given permanent jobs. This would help the unemployment rate and also mean more taxes being paid to local, state and federal governments. The business man will make monthly payments to pay back his loan. The bank will take the interest he pays and use that money to make loans to other people. This helps our community to continue to grow.

The bank will also open a checking account for the business man. He can use this account to pay all his bills.

The bank has a night deposit to make it convenient for him to make his deposits after work.

The bank is also interested in helping families with their needs. They loan money for homes, cars and other things. One important loan they make is a school loan. If a student needs money to continue his education, he can get it at the bank. This will make it possible for him to graduate from college and come back to his community as a professional. He may even come back and become president of a bank.

Jackie Collins

My name is Jackie Collins. I live at Honaker, KY. I'm 12 years old and a sixth grade student at Spruce Pine Elementary. My parents are Jerry and Debbie Collins. We live in a very small community, which consists of a post office, four grocery stores and a population of about 800 people. We do not have a bank in our community, but about five miles from my home is the First Commonwealth Branch Bank, which is located at Betsy Layne. I have always been taught the many advantages of banking at home and school. My dad is a coal miner and it is very hard for him to support a family of seven without some kind of banking.

My mom had worked at a nearby bank and started a savings account for medical bills and emergencies. My parents decided to buy a car and now, with only a few dollars a month for the car payment, we can have a nice car to drive.

The bank has helped my school too. They needed a copier, but they didn't have enough money to buy one. So Spruce Pine paid a down payment and the Board of Education financed the rest of the payment. Without banking, our school would never have had a copier and the copier has been one of the most helpful teaching aids for the teachers.

Some employees from the First Commonwealth Bank came to visit our school today and taught us some important facts about banking. Now after I learned some of the importance of banking I plan to have a checking and savings account when I become 18 years old.

Essays Garner Prizes

Prestonsburg Rotary Scholars

A senior in each Floyd County high school was recently awarded a $300 scholarship by the Prestonsburg Rotary Club. The competitive awards were based on academics, need and community service. The five winners were feted at last week's club meeting, along with their guests. The students, seated from left with their guest standing behind, are Vicki Renee Clark of Allen Central, with her mother, Anita Clark; Roy H. Kidd Jr., Betsy Layne, teacher Jackie Dillon; David Wayne Newman, McDowell, teacher Sally Miller; Erich Blackburn, Prestonsburg, teacher Ron Robinson, and Malissa Mae Hall, Wheelwright, teacher Doris Osborne.

Local Students Get Degrees From EKU

Five Floyd County students were among the 1,888 graduates and degree candidates honored at Eastern Kentucky University's 82nd annual spring commencement, Saturday, May 13, at Hanger Field in Richmond.

Local graduates and their degrees are: David Brent Horn of Prestonsburg, agriculture, livestock production; Kimberly Kay Marcum of Grethel, journalism; Michelle Lee Rister of Garrett, finance/investment; James R. Turner of Hueysville, accounting; and Jamie Lynn Wallen of McDowell, geography/travel and tourism.

Following the 1:30 p.m. ceremonies, receptions sponsored by EKU's nine colleges were held for graduates and their guests at various locations across the campus.

Spiggle Honored

Transylvania University recognized the accomplishments of David Spiggle of Prestonsburg during the recent annual awards day ceremony. He was presented with the Stephen Austin Award for maintaining a 4.0 grade point average during his freshman year.

Spiggle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Spiggle Jr. and a graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

Two Receive MSU Scholarships

Two Floyd County residents will receive transfer student awards from Morehead State University for the fall semester.

Receiving awards will be Sandra Lee Scalf and Nathan Lee Dale.

Scalf, of Beaver, is the daughter of Bessie Scalf, and has taken classes at Pikeville College. A National Merit Scholar, she received the Air Force Award in math and science and the Gloria Marshall Math Award. She is a graduate of McDowell High School; Nathan Lee Dale of Prestonsburg, son of Mike and Patty Dale, has taken classes at Prestonsburg Community College. A dean's list student, he graduated from Prestonsburg High School.

To be eligible for the transfer student award, applicants must be admitted to MSU, have completed at least 12 hours of college work, have a cumulative 2.75 college grade point average and have submitted a completed scholarship application and a copy of their transcripts.

The scholarship is renewable for three years if the student maintains a cumulative 2.50 GPA.

Malissa Hall: A View On The Environment

By Malissa Hall

I was writing an essay for the third time when I was interrupted by a hysterical journalism teacher with a print in her hand. She pushed it in my face and said, "I want you to read this comment."

The more I read, the angrier I got. I muttered nasty things out loud to this paper that was written by an American living in Peru. He was giving his comment about the environment, and may I say it wasn't nice. As I recall, the comment went something like this:

"I mean, what with that short story I have due in my English class, and that test tomorrow in calculus, I really don't have time to worry about trivial things like the fish dying in Alaska or the dolphins perishing out there by the millions at the hands of hardworking Japanese fishermen."

This is just a sample, and by the time I came to the end of the article, I was seeing nothing but red. This letter is from an American living in Peru who, in my opinion, can stay in Peru, because this nation doesn't need negativity like the kind he is generating.

As far as the environment is concerned, everyone may have a right to his opinion, but cruelty can only be taken so far and then it turns into being cold, heartless and hateful — three words I despise, along with this guy from Peru.

In the past few weeks I have been extremely busy with writing comments, essays and answering questions over the computer through Breadnet at Wheelwright High School. A conference called "World Class," which concerns the environment, is being held on Breadnet. My journalism class had to write an essay about the way the environment is being destroyed. I discovered some very interesting things.

Did you know that there was a road called BR-364 that was built straight through the rain forest in Brazil? Did you know that hairspray, air conditioners, refrigerators and burning coal adds to destroying the ozone layer? I didn't. I also didn't know that millions and millions of acres of land, in this nation alone, are being destroyed every second.

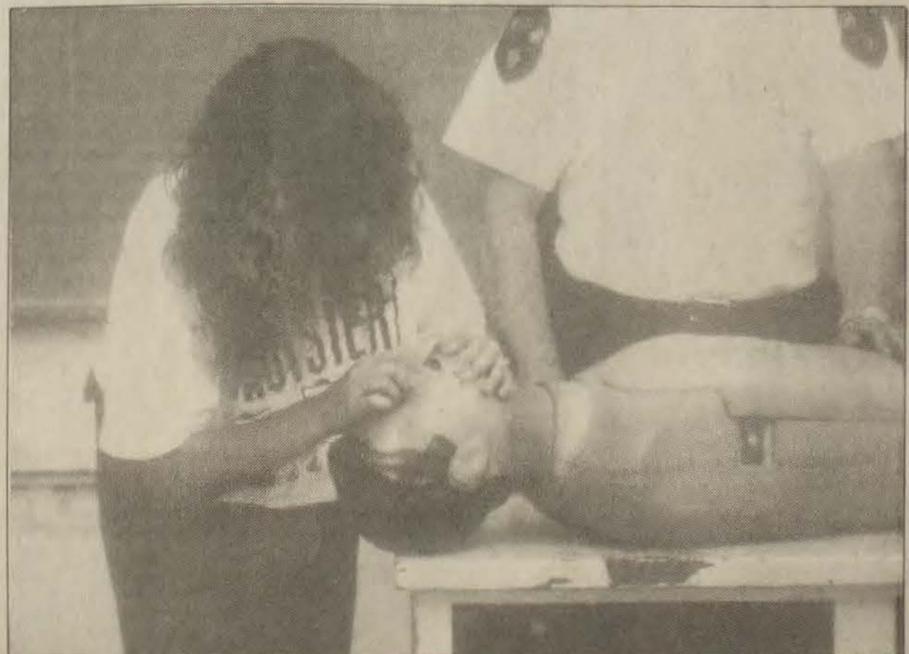

By the time I got through with reading practically the entire December, 1988, issue of National Geographic, I realized that the environment affects me in more ways than just breathing. I learned that soil, trees, plants and the sky created more than just a pretty picture. If we are not careful, we may not survive or we may end up having to live indoors.

In Brazil, people have immigrated, not only from the slums of Brazil, but also from other places around the world to this one area in the rain forest. The soil there lacks nutrients and is bad for farming. The ozone layer is being destroyed and the heat is unbearable. The rain forest helps to determine the weather in the area (the rain forest is like a greenhouse, trapping all the moisture in it), but it is doubtful that the rain forest will be able to do this for very long.

Many dangers in destroying our environment have developed, including the destruction of endangered plants, animals and insects. For example, the Madagascar periwinkle contains an ingredient contributing to the cure of leukemia; extracts from yams are a main ingredient in birth control pills; and a material in certain shells of crustaceans and insects makes up a gauze that contributes to the healing of wounds. If medicine like this can be found in Mother Nature's environment, then why do we destroy our own miracle cures?

I love the environment and would like to see it cleaned up in every way possible. Instead of just saying it, though, isn't it about time we, the people of Kentucky, or the nation, did something?

Fire Safety and Education

Jessica Gadberry, a seventh grade student at Prestonsburg Elementary School, learns how to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. As part of a special project, seventh and eighth grade students at the school learned about fire safety, resuscitation, and visited the fire department in Prestonsburg. More than 225 students took part, according to Onda Hunt, teacher at the school.

Ligon Slate Dump Clean Up May Be Finished In 2 Months

by Stefanie Henson
 McDowell High School

In two months, the Ligon slate dump will no longer exist. In the 1930s, Blue River Coal Company stopped dumping slate in Stone Branch and began dumping it in Ligon. For almost 30 years, slate was dumped at the site until the company went bankrupt in the late 1950s.

Today, the slate is on fire. In the fall of 1987 a forest fire burned near the dump and ignited the slate. Weeks later, the slate dump was producing clouds of smoke. Residents of the Ligon community made phone calls and tried to find a way to get the fire put out. No one was successful.

Almost a year later, in April 1988, the Office of Surface Mining was again contacted about the burning of the slate dump. By this time the fire had spread throughout the whole dump and was causing an environmental hazard. OSM inspected the dump and said that emergency funding was needed for reclamation. A plan was to dispose of the dump was drawn up.

First, the temperature of the slate had to be reduced to under 110 degrees Fahrenheit. Water was pumped out of nearby creeks into a pond, then to a holding tank above the dump. A high pressure hose attached to the tank spread water onto the burning slate.

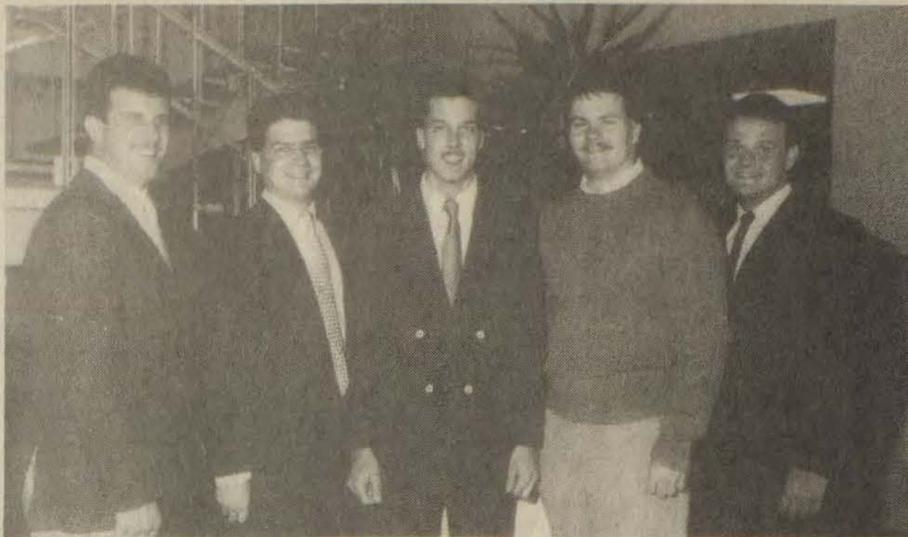

Next, OSM needed land to put the refuse on. Turner Elkhorn gave OSM permission to dump the refuse on its land, which is located in Ligon. A private contractor came in and started the clean up. Using bull dozers, end loaders and a coal truck, the contractor has almost finished, and by the middle of July all the slate should be removed.

Later, the land will be hydro-seeded.

Removing Burning Slate

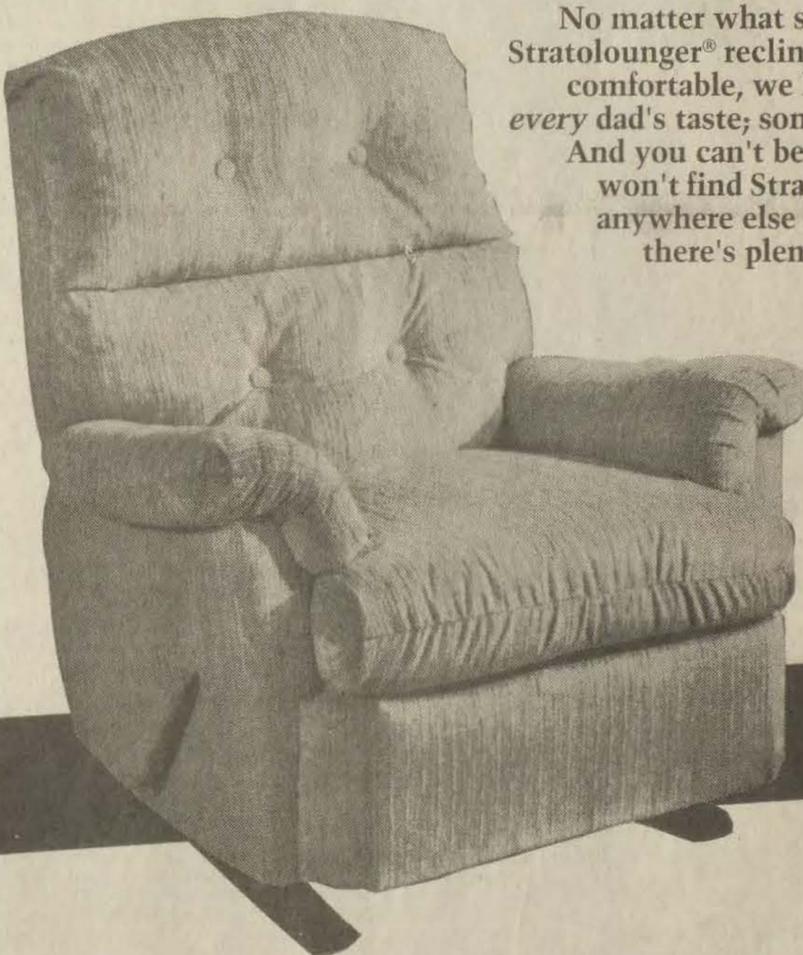

Cleanup for a burning slate dump in Ligon has begun. The slate, which has been on fire for over a year, is expected to be removed, and the land reclaimed, by mid-summer.

National Guard Program Presented At Betsy Layne

As Betsy Layne High School students watched on a recent Wednesday afternoon, the Kentucky National Guard UH-60 "Blackhawk" helicopter circled overhead, then turned sharply and began its descent toward the school's football field.

With the helicopter hovering 75 feet above the ground, two soldiers in full camouflage combat gear descended from four ropes thrown from the aircraft's doors. As the soldiers reached the ground, two more prepared themselves, then repelled down the ropes. All four took M-16 rifles off their backs and made a mock assault toward the crowd, which took cover some 15 meters away.

The demonstration was one of more than 30 put on by the Kentucky National Guard in high schools across the state in the last 45 days, according to the Guard's SFC Chuck Toler. The program, part of an overall awareness campaign, shows students and faculty part of the combat capabilities of the Guard. In addition, representatives explain the educational and employment opportunities available through the Guard.

After a 30-minute ground display of the equipment, and brief discussions with students, the Guard members and the helicopter took to the air again to repeat the exercise at another Kentucky high school.

Helicopter Demonstration

Members of the Kentucky National Guard recently demonstrated the UH-60 "Blackhawk" helicopter and Guard ground maneuvers at Betsy Layne High School. The demonstration was one of more than 30 put on by the Kentucky National Guard in high schools across the state in the last 45 days, according to the Guard's SFC Chuck Toler.

Teaching Youth To 'Just Say No' Is Not Enough, Counselor Warns

Simply educating young people about alcohol will not prevent them from abusing it, a spokesman for the National Council on Alcoholism told Floyd County teachers at an inservice meeting recently.

"One of the main barriers to effective prevention (of alcohol abuse) is the assumption that education is the same as prevention," said Mark Nason, a coordinator of the state NCA operation.

Nason told the teachers that an effective prevention program includes not only education, but also the adoption of a rational policy on alcohol use, creation of alternative programming for young people and the establishment of support groups.

Trying to educate youngsters about the evils of alcohol often results in "mixing up the steps," Nason said. The standard practice of bringing recovering alcoholics or drug addicts into class to speak "doesn't help," he said.

"The kids in the back row," he said, "see someone who's looking good, who's in good shape, who's had an exciting life. They tell themselves they can have all the fun and then quit and look great."

Students who have already decided to abstain will have their decision confirmed by what they see and hear, Nason said. The others will think only of the excitement.

Nason said he has seen well meaning educators attempt to prevent substance abuse by bringing in drugs to help students identify and learn the names or by showing films on bad drug "trips."

Studies, he said, show that those so called education programs actually increase experimentation. "Sometimes, those methods make the substance only sound more glamorous and interesting," he said.

Prevention of both alcohol and drug abuse depends on effective use of persuasion techniques, he said. "We have to meet people where they are, help them overcome barriers they don't know they have and help them change behaviors they don't want to," the expert said.

Nason outlined what he called five "conditions" for effective prevention. First, he said, young people have to be convinced that "it can happen to them," referring to their potential for becoming alcoholics or drug addicts.

Next, educators need to be specific in helping young people learn their biological risk and develop behaviors that prevent abuse.

The third condition, Nason said, is the creation of a "supportive environment that will help them say no."

Tied closely with that condition is the need to strengthen the young person's self-esteem, "to help them feel good about themselves," Nason said.

Last, he said, teachers and parents need to teach skills that can help youngsters make rational decisions and follow them. "For instance, when a friend offers a young person a beer, he needs the skill to turn down the beer without turning the friend off."

Nason said the prevention of drug abuse is not as complicated as prevention of alcohol abuse. "With drugs the message is simple: Don't use them," he said. "Alcohol is more complicated because its use will be legal when the person turns 21. Our only message is: Abstain until you're 21."

Adults need to "teach kids information about alcohol that will last a lifetime so they will know what to do after 21."

Nason said he has problems with the educational method which teaches people to have a designated driver when they go out to drink alcohol. While agreeing with the caution not to drive drunk, "we should not give the impression that getting drunk is okay as long as you don't drive," he said. "It is not okay whether driving or not."

Preventing alcohol and drug abuse "is not an easy task," the counselor said, "but it is not impossible."

Restaurant Raises Funds For UK's Pediatric Ward

Cooks, waitresses and busboys gave up wages. Vendors donated meal ingredients and drinks. Patrons purchased advance tickets for dinner and parents busied tables in what seemed a restaurant owner's dream. The "dream" was really part of the Children's Miracle Network Telethon at Sam an Tonio's restaurants in Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne in May.

The Children's Miracle Network Telethon is a national effort to help regional communities equip hospital pediatric wards for seriously and critically ill children. With the help of their employees, suppliers, patrons and parents, owners Jack and Nora Absher have raised $4,100 for the University of Kentucky Medical Center's pediatric ward.

The fundraising began with special dinners at the two restaurants. A tax deductible donation of $25 entitled patrons to appetizers, entrees ranging from ribs to tacos, drinks, and live entertainment provided by a Mexican band.

She said both restaurants overflowed with donors, and she admitted it was embarrassing to ask those who had purchased tickets in advance to wait at the door. "We just couldn't get any more people in," she said.

Advance ticket sales totaled $2,200 and another $1,800 were collected at the door, she added.

The fundraisers' overhead was less than one percent of the collected amount because of the donations of labor and products. Items not donated by suppliers were donated by the Abschers. Balloons, table tents, advertising and the band fee were their only costs, Nora said.

Fundraising efforts continued throughout May. Sam an Tonio's donated a dollar to the Children's Miracle Network Telethon for each Mexican dinner purchased, and many of their customers did the same, according to Nora.

"We're doing this in memory of our son, and to help other children," she explained, "and we tell those who are helping this effort, 'If you give, you will receive.' Last year at this time we only had one restaurant. A week after the telethon there was a write-up in the Lexington Herald Leader that put us on the map. Our business was so phenomenal that we had to open a second restaurant. Because of that, we are able to raise so much more this year."

Last year the Abschers raised $1,217 for the UK Medical Center's pediatric ward where their son, Michael James, spent most of his seven-week life in 1987, according to Jack.

"When our son, Michael, was in the hospital, we were really moved by the people who tried to help our child, even people we didn't know," he said. "We really appreciate the donations because it's not the amount of the donation, it's just people stopping to think about children they don't know, who are seriously ill, and trying to help them out by aiding the hospital in getting needed equipment. This whole thing is to make miracles happen in the pediatric ward of the UK hospital."

Persons interested in learning more about the Children's Miracle Network Telethon can call Sam an Tonio's at 886-3600 or 478-3600. Donations can be made at the restaurant or mailed to Children's Miracle Network Telethon, c/o Sam an Tonio's P.O. Box 130, Betsy Layne, Ky 41605.

"We will except donations and send them on to the hospital anytime, not just during the telethon season," Jack said.

The telethon was televised on Saturday and Sunday, June 3 and 4 on Lexington's WLEX-TV, Channel 18.

Ole!

A band from Mexico entertained patrons recently during a fundraising party, sponsored by Sam an Tonio's restaurants, for the UK Medical Center.

Summer is the time for fishing, but once they're caught, the fish must be dealt with.

For some reason, many cooks are intimidated by fish — is it fresh, and how should it be prepared? Fish, however, is a light, healthful, delicious and very versatile food that is easy to work with, once you learn how.

Of course, the best way to ensure eating the freshest fish possible is to catch it yourself. But, in between fishing trips, you can buy good fish. It is a simple matter of knowing what to look for. Fish is fresh if:

- The eyes are clear.
- The gills are red and not sticky.
- The scales and skin are shiny and the meat is firm.
- Fillets are firm and not sticky.
- There is no odor. Don't be ashamed to ask to smell the fish.

As for versatility, fish can be served at breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and as appetizers and hors d'oeuvres. It can be broiled, baked, grilled, poached, roasted stewed, sauteed, stuffed, made into soups and salads and microwaved.

Fish prepared in a microwave oven is extremely moist and tender. To prevent overcooking, follow this method:

In a flat, shallow, microwave-safe dish, place the fish with the thicker portions to the outside of the pan. Thin fillets can be overlapped or folded to provide for uniform thickness. The pan should be covered with plastic wrap with one edge folded over to let steam out. Depending on the particular microwave, cooking time should be about three minutes on high power per pound of fish.

Here's a recipe idea for the microwave from "Fish Steaks and Fillets." It's hard to believe that anything that tastes this good can be so easy to make.

STRIPED BASS WITH FENNEL

(3-4 servings)

1 large fennel bulb, about 1 pound
3 tsp. butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 pound striped bass, snapper, or sole fillets
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut fennel in half lengthwise; discard tough stems. Cut into very thin crosswise slices.

Place butter in an 8x12-inch microwave-safe dish. Cover with plastic wrap, turning up one corner to vent. Microwave on high for 30 seconds. Stir in fennel onion, and orange peel. Cover, and microwave on high for 6 minutes. Let stand three minutes.

Arrange fillets over fennel in dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste. Spoon some of the fennel over the fillets, cover, and microwave on high for three minutes. Serve immediately.

Of course, even in a regular oven delicious fish dishes are a snap. Just try this one for Bluefish with Rosemary Potatoes.

BLUEFISH WITH ROSEMARY POTATOES

(8 servings)
1 1/2 pounds all-purpose potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1/3 cup olive oil
3 large garlic cloves, minced
1 1/2 tps. dried rosemary, crumbled
1/2 tsp salt
1/4 tsp black pepper
2 pounds bluefish, mackerel, or mullet fillets
3 tsp fresh lemon juice
2 tsp chopped fresh parsley
Preheat the oven to 450 degrees. Oil a 10x15-inch jelly roll pan.

Combine the potatoes with half the olive oil, garlic, rosemary, salt and pepper. Spread the potatoes evenly in the pan. Bake for 20 minutes, or until the potatoes begin to brown.

Remove the pan from the oven. With a metal spatula, turn the potatoes over. Bake for 10 minutes. Arrange the fish on top of the potatoes. Sprinkle with the remaining ingredients and bake for 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

When fly fishermen are successful at rivers and streams, they'll be amazed at how good their catch will taste "in jail." This recipe comes from "The Joy of Seafood," and gets its name because the fish is wrapped in tin foil.

STUFFED FRESH TROUT IN JAIL

(Makes 4 servings)
6 tsp. unsalted butter
1 lb. mushrooms, finely chopped
Juice of one lemon
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
4 whole 1/2 pound trout
1 small carrot, peeled and minced
1 small onion, minced
1 stalk celery, minced
2 tsp. water
4 sprigs fresh rosemary (or 1/2 tsp dried)
Juice of two lemons

To make the stuffing, melt two tsp. butter in a large skillet. Add mushrooms, juice of one lemon, salt and pepper, and cook over medium heat for about 10 minutes, or until all the mushroom liquid has evaporated. Remove from skillet and set aside.

Wash trout and pat dry; season with salt and pepper. Place each trout on a square of aluminum foil.

In a skillet, melt one tsp. butter; add the carrot, onion, celery, water and salt and pepper to taste. Cook over medium heat for seven minutes. Drain and set aside.

Spoon the mushroom mixture into the cavities of the fish. Place the reserved vegetables over each fish and top with a rosemary sprig. Enclose tightly in foil.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Place foil-wrapped fish on a baking sheet and bake for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, heat the juice of two lemons in a small, non-aluminum saucepan over high heat. Whisk in remaining three tsp. butter, one tsp. at a time. Adjust seasoning and serve the fish.

Cancer Prevention Information Aimed At SE Kentucky Women

Trying to reverse some alarming statistics, Kentucky public and private health concerns have begun a joint project aimed at the high incidence of cervical cancer in southeastern Kentucky, according to Janet Williams Hoover, Communications and Council Affairs officer for the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Hoover said the effort is fueled by numbers such as these: Cervical cancer deaths occur in Kentucky at a higher rate than the nation. However, in a 36-county area of southeastern Kentucky (including Floyd County), the 1986-87 cervical cancer death rate for white females was 23 percent greater than for the rest of the state and almost twice that reported in recent national studies.

In fact, one-quarter of Kentucky's cervical cancer deaths in 1986 and 1987, the latest figures available, occurred in the 36-county area.

In hopes of reducing this mortality rate, the Department of Health Services has implemented, in this area, a public education program to encourage women to have regular Pap tests, the best defense in preventing cervical cancer deaths.

"Women should not die of cervical cancer," said Health Commissioner Carlos Hernandez, M.D., "because if caught early enough, it is almost always curable."

"The test that detects cervical cancer in its early stages is the Pap test, which is easy to perform and has been proven to save lives," he said. "But women should have this test periodically throughout their lives."

Health officials recommend that a woman have a Pap test annually from the age of 18, or the time sexual activity begins, whichever is first. After three or more consecutive normal annual examinations, a woman's doctor may decide tests are needed less frequently.

However, no woman should be considered too old for a Pap test, say health officials. Even a woman who has had her uterus removed may still need regular tests. The cervix is the opening to the uterus or womb.

"The effort in the 36-county area will attempt to make women aware of the high mortality rate and the importance of having periodic Pap tests," said Micheal Moser, M.D., state epidemiologist, "and will involve health departments, private physicians and community groups."

For example, all female health department patients will be given brochures on Pap tests and asked to pass the information along to friends and relatives in hopes of getting more women to come in for the tests, says Hoover.

In conjunction with the Lucille Parker Markey Cancer Center at the University of Kentucky, the Department for Health Services is recruiting health departments and private physicians to send patients reminders that they are due for a Pap test. Health providers will be encouraged to mark medical records so that tests can be performed while patients are being seen for other problems.

Women belonging to homemaker, civic and church groups will be asked to refer friends and family members to health departments, or personal physicians, for the examination.

"The important thing in all of this is for women to realize that a simple test could save their lives," Moser said. "We need to reach young women and older women as well because all females can benefit from this."

While health officials know that Pap tests can save lives, they are trying to learn more about why women in southeastern Kentucky are dying of cervical cancer. The Department for Health Services, the Markey Cancer Center and the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta have joined forces in an on-going study.

"Once we have collected and analyzed data from the area, we will be in a better position to know how to prevent deaths from cervical cancer," said Hernandez. "But, right now, we know the best thing to do is encourage women to have periodic exams."

First Meeting Of Action Group Successful; Another Slated June 8

by Tess Whitmer, Staff Writer

A county action group, in cooperation with Champions Against Drugs, held its first meeting recently at the Fitzpatrick First Baptist Church on Middlecreek Road.

According to Michael Vance, Mountain Comprehensive Care official, about 40 people attended. They were introduced to the history and philosophy of Champions Against Drugs.

Also attending were Patricia Tackett and Kristina Bevins, McDowell High School students, who explained what they learned at the Teen Leadership Conference they recently attended.

Vance said the group was divided into three subgroups to discuss education, teen leadership and public awareness. Plans were made to sponsor a local workshop on "talking with kids about alcohol," and the teens decided to sponsor a dance, promoting non-drug use, sometime early this summer. Plans have yet to be finalized.

It was also proposed that a one-day teen leadership conference be given just for Floyd County high school students, said Vance. The parents attending agreed to contact others in their career fields and friends and neighbors to ask them to become involved in this program, Vance added.

He said the next meeting would be on Thursday, June 8, at 6:30 p.m. at the Fitzpatrick First Baptist Church. There will be a presentation on drug recognition and how parents can handle problem situations. Vance stressed that non-drug use is a county-wide concern and requires participation from everyone.

Store Served McDowell For 35 Years Before Closing

by Kelly Vana

For 35 years, the Clark-Moore Store has served the small community of McDowell.

Throughout those years, the business has experienced varying degrees of success.

In an interview with Vonnie June Moore, the wife of the late Bennie Moore, I learned that Stallard Clark also invested in the store. Together, Moore and Clark reopened the business in 1952.

Before Moore and Clark managed the store, there were several other proprietors. Some of these include Charlie Moore, Milford Hall and Henry Moore.

In earlier days, the Clark-Moore Store was considered a general merchandise store. The shelves were stocked with hardware, groceries and novelty items.

According to Ann Tackett, a resident of the McDowell area, the store was started in 1933. It was considered the largest store in the county.

Tackett said that almost everyone came to the Clark-Moore Store and the Sam T. Meade Store, another community store located nearby.

Tackett, who shopped at the business, noted, "... it was a big store. It sold clothes, shoes, groceries — anything you needed."

Moore and Clark ran the business together until approximately 1975, when Clark left the business. From this point on, Mrs. Moore helped her husband with the store.

The store remained open until early 1987, when Mr. Moore became ill, and passed away shortly thereafter.

When asked about the fate of the building, she said, "I'll tear it down when the time comes."

SPRING FEVER

Ah, spring! The garden is full of flowers, the leaves are on the trees, and those with pollen allergies are suffering. Although the common name for the problem is hay fever, hay and other grasses are only partly to blame. Pollen is produced by most plants, and once airborne, invades the noses and throats of the susceptible, triggering the release of histamines. The result: runny noses, weepy eyes, wheezing, and occasionally itchy skin. Antihistamines, as the name suggests, block the release of histamine and thus relieve symptoms. Some are available over the counter, but the more potent antihistamines require a doctor's prescription. Persons taking antihistamines should not drive a car or engage in any activity that requires alertness.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store, including a full line of antihistamines. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs including health and convalescent aids. Our records are fully maintained so that they can be readily available to both you and your physician. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HINT: One antihistamine, terfenadine, has been shown not to cause drowsiness. It is ineffective, however, when symptoms are severe.

Dewey Lake Retirees No Fish Out Of Water

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Neither Dean Murray nor Waid Diddle plan to spend much time fishing and hunting now that they've retired after a collective half-century of watching fishermen and hunters around Dewey Lake.

Murray retired last week as top administrator for the US Army Corps of Engineers at the local facility, and Diddle retired in early May as chief maintenance person on Murray's staff.

"I've seen enough fishing and hunting to last me for awhile," said Murray, who served with the Corps for 34 years, more than 28 of them locally.

Diddle was also with the Corps for 34 years, 14 of them at Dewey Lake. "I don't like to fish, but I'm going to buy a boat and give it a try," he said.

The two men, whose relationship Diddle describes as "like brothers," were neighbors for a time. The building that houses the Corps office is a former residence where Murray lived for almost 20 years. The maintenance man's house was nearby, but was torn down for the parking lot that now serves the office.

"You used to be required to live on the grounds," said Murray, a native of nearby Van Lear. "There was no quitting time. You were on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Murray's two children, Sheri and Greg, now grown, grew up at the park and attended Prestonsburg High School. When the Corps dropped its requirement that the resource manager live on the property, Murray and his wife Shirley moved to a family farm in northern Johnson County.

Diddle, a native of Racine, Ohio, settled in Auxier when he moved off the park land. "I love Auxier. The location between Prestonsburg and Paintsville makes it convenient for us to eat out a lot," he said.

He and his wife Betty, a Pike County native, have two sons, Ron, a student at the University of Kentucky, and Timothy, a Prestonsburg High School senior.

Diddle plans to spend much of his retirement time working on the house which predates Auxier's mining camp houses. He and his wife have brought the structure from what he refers to as an abandoned "shell" to a remodeled, comfortable home. "There's still plenty to do," he said. "I've been working on it since I retired."

Both Diddle and Murray have won numerous awards during their years with the Corps. Both have chalked up several superior performance awards.

Murray joined the Corps in the 1950s after a stint in the military. Stationed first near Marietta, Ohio, he requested a transfer and was sent to Dewey Lake. "I wasn't satisfied there, so I came home," he said.

The park Murray returned to was a far cry from what it is now. "When I transferred to Dewey the only thing was Brandy Keg Boat Dock, Terry Dock, a small beach area at Stratton Branch and German Campground.

"The road ended at Goble Branch on the lower end and at Stratton Branch on the upper end. In order to get to Brandy Keg from the dam, you had to go through Van Lear to Hager Hill, then US 23 across Abbott Mountain into Prestonsburg, on to Lancer, then to Brandy Keg," he said.

The development of the area by the Corps and the Kentucky Parks Department "certainly has been a great asset to the local area and has helped promote tourism," he said.

Usage of the park, when Murray arrived, was limited mostly to fishing, he said. He estimates that the number of people using the lake area in 1960 at around 65,000 per year. The number has risen today to about a million and a half visitors, he said, adding that park usage is "reaching close to capacity."

The element Murray will miss most in retiring, he said, is the "daily contact with the local people and working with them."

What he won't miss is the occasional disaster that the Corps has to deal with. "A drowning is something you never get used to," he said. The 10 local employees of the Corps have also assisted during floods and forest fires.

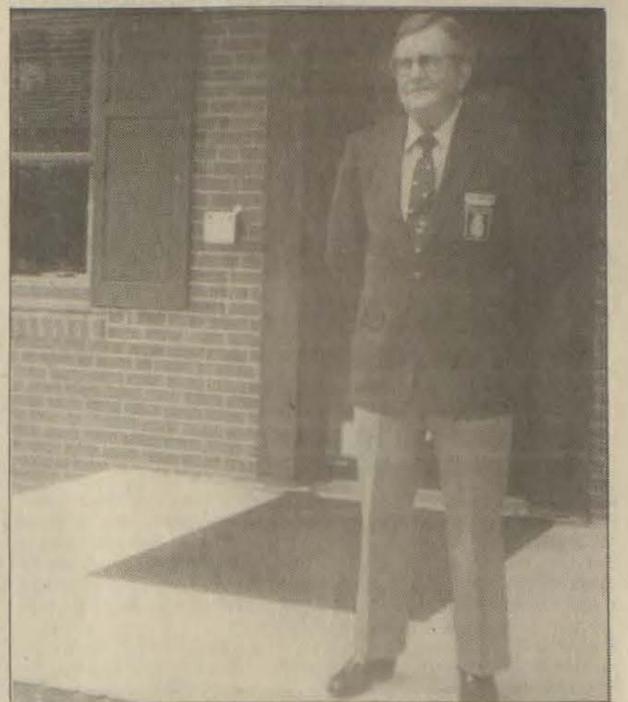

Diddle worked for the Corps at two lock and dam sites on the Ohio River and at Fishtrap Lake in Pike County before coming to Dewey. As head of the work crew here, he oversaw mowing, road building, care of equipment and general maintenance of all Corps property throughout the park.

While Diddle said he liked his job, the mounting paper work helped him make the decision to retire. "It was getting so aggravating. It became all paper work and contract work," he said.

Both Diddle and Murray have won numerous awards during their years with the Corps. Both have chalked up several superior performance awards. Murray has received three special achievement awards and several letters of commendation. Diddle has also garnered awards, including cash awards, for his service and suggestions.

One award neither retiree expects to win is for "biggest fish."

Like Leaving Home

Dewey Lake resource manager Dean Murray posed in front of the US Army Corps of Engineers office, which once served as his family's living quarters. Murray headed the local Corps operation for 28 years, until his retirement last week.

Maintenance Continues

Waid Diddle recently traded his chief maintenance job at Dewey Lake for a similar position at his Auxier home. He retired in May after 34 years with the US Army Corps of Engineers.

Grethel Team Wins Bible Quiz Competition

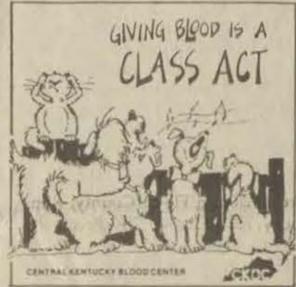

The final bible quiz of the season was held in conjunction with a picnic recently at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Participants were congregation members from Grethel Baptist Church, Bethana Baptist Church of Cornettsville, Parkway Independent Baptist Church, Ivyton and Bledsoe Baptist Church.

The quizmaster was Pastor Reeves Clark of Cornettsville. Coaches were Glenna Evans, of Grethel Baptist Church, Joe Crouse of Cornettsville, Nancy Taylor of Parkway Independent Church and Evelyn Everett of Bledsoe.

Taking first place was the Grethel team, consisting of Stephanie Billiter, Angela Hodge, and Michelle Hall. Grethel also had two other teams consisting of Patrick Hall, Mike Hodge, Greg Frasure, Davis Evans Jr., Petrina Newsome and Kevin Evans.

Individual trophies were given, and Rhonda Pratt of Cornettsville won the free senior week at Kentucky Baptist Youth Haven Bible Camp, Beattyville. Rene Tussey won the free junior week at the camp.

A sudden windfall seems like a dream come true. Be wary of spending it all in one place. A close friend needs your support in a community effort. Watch your health closely.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Keep important gossip to yourself. This information will be quite useful later on. A member of the opposite sex is more interested in you than you think.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Let your imagination loose at work and the results will surprise you. A friend from the past will come back into your life in the next few weeks. Check utility bills closely.

Take time to let those close to you know you care. An exciting job opportunity is just around the corner. A former adversary could prove useful in solving domestic problems.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Corbin Bernsen, at one time a law student in real life, has become well-known as rakish attorney Arnie Becker in NBC's L.A. Law, on Thursdays.

Bernsen lured to acting by naked pair of limbs

By Linda Sparkman
 "Naked limbs thrashing in the back seat of a Rolls Royce..." Those words in a script of the feature film Three the Hard Way lured young entertainment law student Corbin Bernsen to accept a small part in the movie produced by his father, Harry Bernsen.
 "I became one pair of those naked limbs," said Bernsen. "My father said, 'You'll get $900 for this,' and I thought, 'I think I like this business.'"
 In 1973, he transferred to UCLA, got his B.A. in theater and taught there as an assistant while working on his master's degree in play writing.
 Now the one-time law student has become well-known as rakish attorney Arnie Becker on NBC's L.A. Law, a role he relishes. Matter of fact, the image of the character doesn't even really bother Bernsen. "I don't see him as a rat or a sleazebag," he said, "just someone who does his job. He's a smart beach guy from L.A., maybe the brightest one in the firm. He's an overachiever who gets into some tight situations and loves women. But he's a good guy; you can't help but like him."

 Becker isn't the only role on Bernsen's agenda, however. Now well established in his television career, he's branching out into movies. During his L.A. Law hiatus last year, Bernsen starred in Hello, Again with Shelley Long. Earlier this year, he had a cameo in Carl Reiner's Bert Rigby, You're a Fool. He starred in two new movies which were released in April.
Major League cast him as a preening Cleveland Indian third baseman who is more interested in not getting hurt than in fielding the baseball. In Disorganized Crime, he plays a New Jersey bank robber who becomes helpless when he escapes in a Montana woods.
 Bernsen is also developing screenplays at his own Team Cherokee Productions, and has plans for a soundstage/theater/actor's workshop.

Proposed Flood Elevation Determinations

AGENCY: Federal Emergency Management Agency.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY:

Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed modified base (100-year) flood elevations shown on your community's preliminary Revised Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM). These base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. The proposed base flood elevations modify the base flood elevations shown on your community's presently effective FIRM. DATES:

The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in the community.

ADDRESSES:

Preliminary Revised FIRMs showing the proposed modified base flood elevations and their delineation are available for review at the City Hall, P.O. Box 510, Main Street, Allen City, Kentucky.

Send comments to The Honorable Vernon Porter, Mayor, Pro-Tem, City of Allen City, City Hall, P.O. Box 510, Main Street, Allen City, Kentucky 41601. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Mr. John L. Matticks
 Chief, Risk Studies Division
 Federal Insurance Administration
 Federal Emergency Management Agency
 Washington, D.C. 20472
 (202) 646-2767

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

The Federal Emergency Management Agency gives notice of the proposed determinations of modified base (100-year) flood elevations, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR 65.4(a).

These elevations, together with the floodplain management measures required by Section 60.3 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their floodplain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and their contents.

Pursuant to the provisions of 5 USC 605(b), the Administrator, to whom authority has been designated by the Director, Federal Emergency Management Agency, hereby certifies that the proposed flood elevation determinations, if promulgated, will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A flood elevation determination under section 1363 forms the basis for new local ordinances, which, if adopted by a local community, will govern future construction within the floodplain area. The elevation determinations, however, impose no restriction unless and until the local community voluntarily adopts floodplain ordinances in accord with these elevations. Even if ordinances are adopted in compliance with Federal standards, the elevations prescribe how high to build in the floodplain and do not prohibit development. Thus, this action only forms the basis for future local actions. It imposes no new requirement, of itself it has no economic impact.

Proposed base flood elevations along flood sources studied in detail are shown on the Preliminary Revised FIRM. Lessees and owners of real property in the City of Allen City, Floyd County, Kentucky are encouraged to review these maps and related materials at the address cited above. The flood sources studied in detail are:

Source of Flooding	Location	#Depth in feet above ground
		Existing	Modified
Levisa Fork	Just upstream of State Highway 23 About 1200 feet upstream of State Highway 80	*650	*651
		*651	*652
Beaver Creek	Within community	*650	*651
