Two communities are up in arms

Residents are riled by illegal dumping

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Residents of the Salisbury area are tired of trash being dumped in their community and they're fighting back.

Spearheaded by Roy Spurlock, neighbors on Spurlock Fork of Left Beaver at Salisbury are organizing a community watch to stop illegal dumping in the area.

"It's getting bad up here. It's pitiful. There's old mattresses and everything else," Spurlock said recently. Garbage is strewn along about a quarter mile of area on both sides of Route 2030, he said.

"It doesn't make sense for us to pay garbage bills and everyone else is dumping their garbage here," he added.

For about two or three years, residents in the area kept the community clean by repeatedly having clean-up drives. The neighbors picked up trash from the roadway and from the creek, but "things have been getting out of hand," Spurlock said.

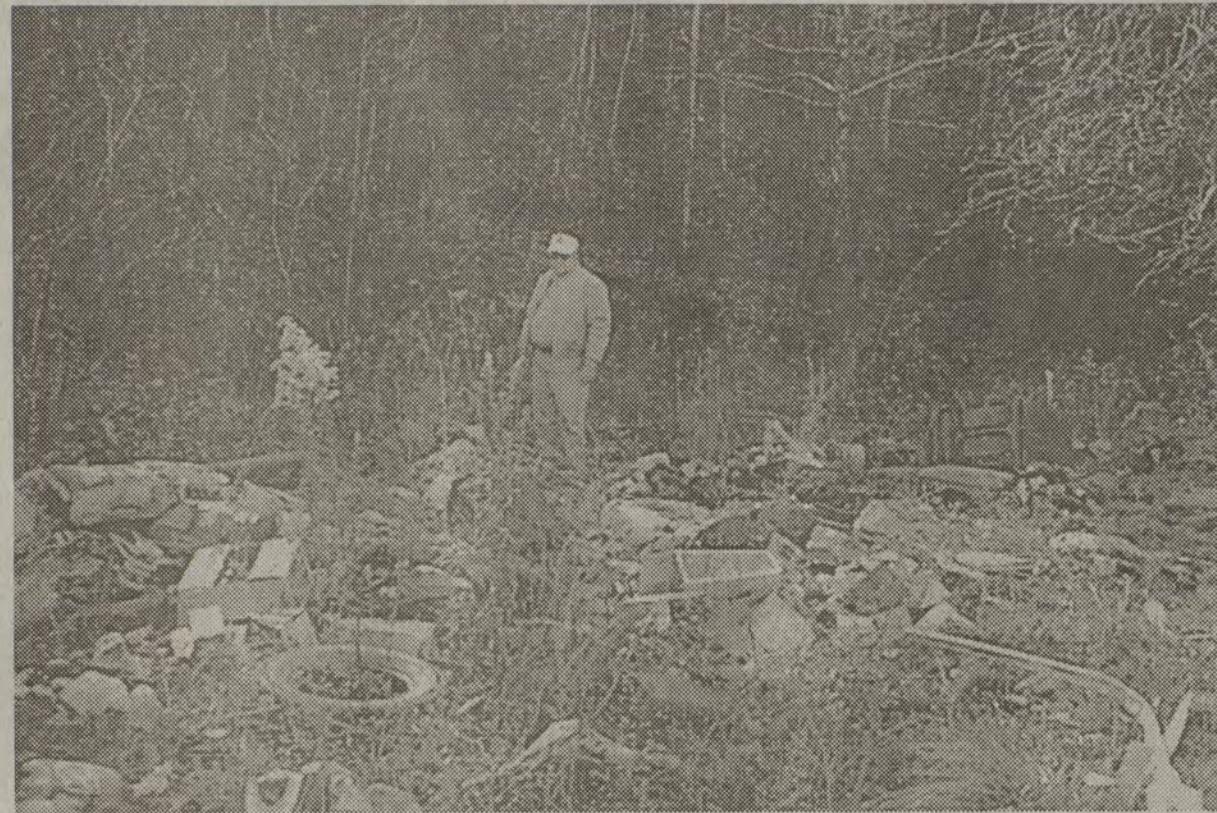

"It's not the people here dumping. It's outsiders, outside the community. There's a strip mine on the hill. We think it's the people there bringing it in from out of the county."

Spurlock said he talked to magistrates with the fiscal court and Lon May, Floyd County ecology officer. He suggested that the magistrates cover the garbage by dumping dirt on it. The county can't do that, according to May, who explained that the garbage must be cleared from the property and taken to a transfer station at Martin, Apple Valley Sanitation in Johnson County, or the Pike County landfill.

"If this was on my property, they'd make me clean it up. They should make them clean it up. If I catch somebody dumping, I'll get the law on them. It'll be stopped one way or another," Spurlock said.

"Ultimately the property owner is responsible," May said. "I don't always agree with that, but that's the way it is."

Sodomy charges atop list of grand jury indictments

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

A Harold man was indicted Monday on eight counts of second-degree sodomy.

The charges against Tolvey Abshire Jr., 26, came in connection with Abshire's alleged sexual relationship with a male who was 13 when the events reportedly occurred between June and September of this year.

Abshire was among 23 people who were indicted by the Floyd Grand Jury Monday, including a West Virginia minister charged with perjury and four people arrested during a drug raid on October 25 in the Weeksburg, Wheelwright, and Tram areas.

Three indictments were sealed, pending the arrests of the individuals indicted.

The grand jury members were impaneled in late October and those indicted were the first to be named by the group.

Also indicted were:

- Malcolm Scarberry, 35, Langley; on one count of first-degree criminal mischief for allegedly damaging a mobile home owned by Lathe Dawn Salisbury on May 26.

- David Webb, Ivel; on one count of second-degree burglary for entering the home of William Higginbotham on May 23.

- Peter Martin, 35, Prestonsburg; for one count of unemployment fraud for receiving $609 in unlawful benefits.

- Richard Grace, 25, Davella; for one count of unemployment fraud for receiving $516 in unlawful benefits.

- Edward Lee Turner, 38, Garrett; on one count of flagrant non-support.

- James E. Goble, 44, Nicholasville; on one count of flagrant non-support.

- Luther Keens, 35, McDowell; on one count of flagrant non-support.

Leon Hood, and Kenny Johnson.

Hood, 25, was indicted on one count of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance for a second time. On October 3, he reportedly sold two rocks of crack cocaine for $40 to a confidential informant of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Hood is free on bond.

The Wheelwright man has been convicted previously of the same charge and is on parole.

McCauley, 31, was also charged with first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance. On October City's mountaintop annexation advances

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg City Council members took the next step Monday night toward expanding the city limits by more than 3,600 acres.

The first reading on two annexation ordinances was held Monday night during the regular meeting of the council. The second reading is scheduled for a special meeting today, Wednesday.

Council members are hoping to approve the ordinances which bring into the city limits property on top of the mountain north of the city where a championship golf course and athletic complex are planned; and the ThunderRidge Racetrack on Route 3. The venture is expected to increase tourism dollars in the city.

The Corps of Engineers has donated some land to the cause and the city has purchased an additional 40 acres. The city plans to develop about 600 acres of the land. The annexation plan takes in property from the 800-foot elevation level to the top of the mountain.

Also expected to get approval Wednesday is an intent-to-annex ordinance for more than 100 acres south of the Route 23 and Route 80 junction. The first reading of that ordinance was also held Monday night.

The property to be taken into the city is owned by Archer Music Enterprises; Betty Lou Branham, Jack T. and Sharon B. Howard, Ernest and Opel Branham, John C. Hall, John C. Hall Jr., Thomas N. Hall, and Thomas N. and Edna B. Kuss, and encompasses the Wickes property at Dwale.

All but one property owner has asked to be annexed into the city.

Repeat performance

Fire officials were at Prestonsburg High School Tuesday morning after a bomb threat was called in. The threat was the second in less than a week. Officials searched the building for about two hours, but discovered nothing. A group of parents was expected to attend the Floyd County Board of Education's meeting Tuesday evening to voice their concerns over the threats and other issues relating to the renovation project at the school. Bomb threats, renovation irk PHS parents

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Parents of students at Prestonsburg High School are fed up.

They want the bomb threats to stop. They want the false fire alarms to stop. They want the bathrooms and the exits repaired.

They want a safer, more conducive environment in which their children can learn.

And they're willing to stage a protest if they have to, Jerome Greathouse, president of the PTA at Prestonsburg, said Tuesday afternoon. "We want our school to be safe and clean. We just want to be heard."

And listened to.

Greathouse was gathering support from other parents and was expected to be at the regular meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education Tuesday night.

A second bomb threat in less than a week Tuesday morning and other problems have fueled parent concerns that the education of their children is taking a back seat to the renovation project at the high school.

Students were taken into the gym because of low temperatures Tuesday morning while the fire department searched the rest of the building for a bomb, and Greathouse said he was a little concerned about that move.

"It may have been false, but it's still a bomb threat," Greathouse said. "They've still got to take it seriously."

Some parents apparently are keeping their kids at home or picking them up when the news of the threats and repeated fire alarms reach them. There have been two bomb threats this year at the high school, but there have been 31 fire alarms, Prestonsburg Fire Marshall Larry Adams said.

It takes about two hours to search the building after a bomb threat and about 20 minutes to get students back into school after a false fire alarm. Many students

Man gets two DUI charges on same day

by Chris McDavid

As if once wasn't enough for one day, a Goble-Roberts man received a second driving-under-the-influence charge shortly after he was released from jail for the first charge.

Ronnie Hicks, 40, was arrested, the first time, Friday after patrolmen William Petry and Morey Mills responded to an accident where a truck ran off the road into a ditch at Goble-Roberts.

The caller, who notified the Prestonsburg Police Department of the accident, said Hicks told her that he was on medication and "out of it," Petry said Monday.

"He was obviously under the influence of something," Petry said.

He said Hicks was taken to the hospital for a blood test, and then transported to the Floyd County Adult Detention Center, where he was released after bond was posted.

Shortly thereafter, Petry responded to another scene where a vehicle was in the ditch on Hillside Street, near Greer Meade Company, the officer said.

"I knew the truck as soon as we got there," Petry said, adding that Hicks was not at the scene when

Pair accused of theft and kidnapping

by Chris McDavid

An investigation into numerous thefts of stereo equipment from vehicles last week in Prestonsburg led to the arrests of two subjects who not only allegedly stole some of the equipment, but also allegedly kidnapped and robbed a Job Corps student at gun point.

Donnie Kazee, 19, of London, and Freddie Blackburn, 18, of Prestonsburg, were arrested Saturday morning and charged with first-degree kidnapping, first-degree armed robbery, and theft by unlawful taking.

According to patrolman Darrell Preston, Job Corps security notified the police department at 7:30 p.m. Monday that an 18-year-old student had been held against his will and robbed.

E-911 contract signing delayed

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Two months after Floyd County emergency responders objected to a fiscal court delay in the awarding of a bid to remap the county for E-911, the 911 advisory board tabled signing the contract because only a few of the members were present.

"I want the full board to have copies of this contract. I want the full board to make the decision," Floyd County Judge-Executive Ben Hale said.

Absent from the regular meeting Friday morning were Martin Mayor Alan Whicker, Wheelwright Mayor David M. Sammons, Magistrate Gerald DeRossett, and Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson. DeRossett was in the courthouse annex a few minutes before the meeting began, but said he was leaving to get to work early so he could attend the Prestonsburg High School football game Friday evening.

Threats

"Why is our attendance declining?" Greathouse asked. "Is it because we don't have a good environment for learning? Is it because we don't have a safe environment for learning? What about discipline?"

Interim superintendent Louie Martin said about 150 students were absent Tuesday after the bomb threat. "We are monitoring it," he said. "As long as these bomb threats continue, it's going to be a problem. But 80 percent attendance, that hurts. We can't live with that."

For each day a student is absent, the school system loses state attendance funds. The lower the attendance rate, the fewer state dollars the system will receive.

Martin said he anticipates that students will be back at school today, Wednesday, and added that the system, and local fire officials are doing everything they can to find out who is calling in the bomb threats and pulling the fire alarms.

"And when we catch these people, we're going to prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law," Martin said.

Adams said five people suspected of pulling fire alarms have been charged with terroristic threatening and he does have a line on the people who are calling in the bomb threats. A juvenile was arrested last year for calling in bomb threats.

"These are a terrible disruption for the school," he said.

As for the safety issues, both Martin and Adams said the school would not be open if it wasn't safe. They both said there are problems, but the school is safe for students.

"If I thought it wasn't safe, I wouldn't let it be open," Adams said.

One of the biggest safety issues was a closed exit. The exit was closed shortly before school was dismissed in June so the contractor could get it rebuilt and opened back up before school started in August.

Doors had not arrived at that time, however, and Prestonsburg fire chief Tom Blackburn agreed to let the exit remain closed with the stipulation that it be reopened within two to six weeks. Nearly three months after the first day of school, however, the doors still had not arrived.

Blackburn ordered that the exit be opened for safety reasons. Contractors did not put plastic over the openings until Tuesday afternoon, however, making the hallways in the school cold. Greathouse said his wife took his daughter a jacket to school Monday because the temperatures were so low.

"I went over there this morning," Martin said. "We looked at the condition and we decided there would be nothing wrong with putting up plastic to cut down on the wind."

The exit should be complete by later this week. The doors are expected by November 22.

"The halls were cold," Martin said. "I believe things will be better, but I don't think the school is unsafe at all. If there is a danger, we don't want the kids there."

Adams said he has tried to handle other safety issues as they have arisen.

"We had some leaky roofs and they wouldn't fix them," he said. "Finally I told them that if they weren't fixed, there would be no kids in the school. Someone was in there the next day."

He said a chunk of concrete fell in the hallway Tuesday and he instructed the contractor to reblock the area to handle the problem.

Greathouse said one student was Wayland Mayor Gene Mullins gave his proxy to deputy judge-executive Chris Waugh. Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin gave his proxy to Prestonsburg dispatch supervisor Gary Dotson. Kentucky State Police Captain Roy Sturgill gave his proxy to Lt. Paul Maynard.

Present at the meeting were Hale, Jim Caldwell, and Allen Mayor Sharon Woods.

The contract with Network Design Engineering of Arkansas includes a complete remapping of Floyd County and could include renumbering of homes in some areas. Bell South suspended collection of the 89-cent surcharge for 911 services until the county straightens out the system and gets it ready to go online.

The remapping is expected to take about 12 months to complete and will cost about $150,000. The Big Sandy Area Development District worked on the county's mapping project, but Bill Dotson, 911 coordinator, said there are some major problems with that work. The county paid about $53,000 for the service and Magistrate Jackie Owens has expressed interest in attempting to recoup that cost.

Hale said he expects to call a special meeting, probably Thursday, to allow the board to vote on the remapping contract, which is necessary before the county's 911 service can be up and running. "We can't begin work until the contract is signed," Hale said. "I want the full board to look this over and if there's no problems we'll sign it."

Additional tests have begun on the pager system that will service emergency responders. Paul Delong with Delong's Paging said Friday he has installed additional transmitters at Garrett and Harold and will add another one at Endicott when the weather clears.

"Coverage should be perfect when we get that one in," Delong said.

He said there may be some problems, however, with responders who live in mobile homes or those who work at Highlands Regional Medical Center or McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital. Special antennas will be added at the hospitals and responders can get antennas for their homes to increase coverage areas.

Tests will continue, according to Dotson, until coverage is up to the county's bid specifications. Delong's received the bid for providing pagers and pager service to emergency responders at the October fiscal court meeting despite the fact that Appalachian Paging had a better accuracy rate for signals. Delong's was about $6,000 cheaper on their bid for the package.

almost injured when the debris fell. "We've made that kind of stuff a high priority," Adams said.

Greathouse also said he and other parents are concerned about a bathroom in the upstairs portion of the building that has been closed since school started.

Adams said there is no safety hazard with the bathroom being closed and that additional facilities in the gymnasium have been opened to comply with state requirements. He said the holdup on the bathroom has been the tile.

"It is an inconvenience, but it's not a safety hazard," Adams said.

Greathouse also said two mice had been found dead in the middle of a room causing some concern about poison or some other chemical in the school. He said the PTO has sent the animal to UK for an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

"We're concerned because we've had kids that are sick, kids that have headaches," he said.

Adams said, however, that there is nothing in the school that would cause a mouse to die and that there is no asbestos left in the building of which the contractors are aware.

"There are no electrical hazards, no fire hazards and the only way the students are in danger from construction hazards is if they walk into the site," he said.

But he did not dismiss parents' concerns about their children.

"Naturally they are concerned. I'm a parent and I'd be concerned too," he said. "We're not just trying to get the renovation done and say 'heck' with the children. We're there. We're looking and we're seeing."

He said the building is safe even though it doesn't look pretty.

"But one day it will look pretty," he said. "And we're doing everything we can to see that it is safe in the meantime."

Greathouse said, however, that he and other parents want results now.

"Before this started they told us this wouldn't hamper the education of our children," he said. "It is. It is hampering the education of the children of this community. Something must be done."

Blackburn ordered that the exit be opened for safety reasons. Contractors did not put plastic over the openings until Tuesday afternoon, however, making the hallways in the school cold. Greathouse said his wife took his daughter a jacket to school Monday because the temperatures were so low.

"I went over there this morning," Martin said. "We looked at the condition and we decided there would be nothing wrong with putting up plastic to cut down on the wind."

Workers' Comp, part II: think small

by Scott Perry

A group known as the Economic Progress Initiative Council (EPIC), a branch of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, has developed a five-point plan for reforming Workers' Compensation that merits careful review.

Governor Paul Patton is expected to convene the state's General Assembly into special session next month to deal with Worker's Comp reform, and EPIC's five points are likely to play a major role in the debates.

Here they are, for your deliberation:

(1.) Reform should include clear definitions of work-related injury.

(2.) Reform should include clear, measurable criteria for disability.

(3.) Reform should include measures to reduce litigation costs.

(4.) Reform should set reasonable time limits for re-opening claims.

(5.) Reform should establish impairment-based criteria for Black Lung benefits.

We endorse those points and encourage lawmakers to address them when they meet in December. And, we'd like to add one for consideration.

Small businesses ought to have their premiums for Workers' Comp insurance adjusted to reflect actual claims history.

If you operate a small business, for instance, that has had no major claims for work-related injuries, we think you deserve a break on insurance costs.

As we understand the law now, though, claims history adjustments are available only to large employers.

Our company currently pays premiums based on certain multipliers which increase in proportion to statistical risk factors associated with certain job categories.

If we have a work-related injury, we face the probability of an increase in our premiums.

If we have a clean slate, on the other hand, we get nothing.

Reducing the number of claims is an obvious goal for reforming Workers' Comp in Kentucky.

Companies that are helping to do that deserve to be rewarded, through lower rates.

Then they can reward their employees for putting safety first.

Small businesses account for the majority of jobs in Kentucky. It's time they earned a little respect and a lot of attention.

This may not sound like news to you, but we figure it's almost historic.

There are no elections scheduled for the year 1997.

Our memory may be a little faulty, but we cannot recall a time when there wasn't a ballot of some sort in November. As of this moment, though, there will be none next year.

Don't know yet whether we'll suffer withdrawal or enjoy the one-year hiatus, but we do know that next fall isn't likely to be as crisp as those before it.

Speaking of crisp, there's a saying in Kentucky that if you don't like the weather, just wait five minutes and it will change.

Don't know about the time frame, but that idiom certainly held true in Kentucky last week.

One minute it was 84 degrees, and the next it was 48.

The turn for the worst didn't stop there, either. The rain turned to snow and the short sleeves were traded in for the mackinaws.

If that was Indian Summer, it sure was a short one.

If you are keeping a scorecard at home, spring arrives in just 18 weeks.

Caught the Platters last Thursday at the Mountain Arts Center, where the house was sold out to a pretty diverse crowd...age-wise.

Contrary to popular belief, the Platters were "oldies" even when we were young, but their music is as timeless as any you'll ever hear.

The original group helped pioneer the Rock 'n Roll era and it is appropriate that their modern day heirs helped pioneer the new arts center, which promises to have a major impact on entertainment, the arts and tourism in Eastern Kentucky.

The hills are alive with the sound of music...

We couldn't talk about musical pioneers without mentioning that Charlie Gearheart and his Goose Creek Symphony will be performing this month at The Mountain Arts Center.

We can identify more closely with Goose Creek, having been a "goosehead" since the group first appeared on the scene in the 1970s with its unique style of music...a combination of Bluegrass, country, folk and rock 'n roll...and we're still a fan today.

Matter of fact, we consider ourselves to be in on the group's comeback...after a 20-year layoff...since their first "reunion" concert was an impromptu performance in our newspaper office about seven years ago.

Thoughts supporting two citizens

Editor:

Now that the election is over and verbal attacks have subsided, I wish to speak up in behalf of two citizens. I understand that an elected official is subject to criticism and negative press. However, in the case of Jackie Owens and his wife Hattie, she was a private citizen doing a job that she was hired to do. If anyone had been interested enough to follow this lady around on a typical day, they would see a full day's work. Also, her work goes on during flooding, snow storms, and sub-zero weather, until the job is completed, no matter what time. This lady is also a full-time mother to her boys. We have worked side by side over the years as our children played sports together. After work, she can always be found giving full support to her children and their teammates at all school events. She and Mr. Owens have always supported many other worthy causes also. Mr. Owens is also present whenever his work schedule will allow him. Hattie donates time and money to all clubs that her boys are involved with. These two people are always there to lend a hand to friends and family in a time of need. Many times, when tragedy strikes, they are there offering condolences and helping with money or food. That is the way they were raised, to offer a helping hand to others in need. They have had their share of tragedy, but, they just accept it and keep going. A few years ago, this couple were busy building their dream house. The boys were happily planning how they would arrange their bedrooms and were excited about having parties to show their new home to all their friends, but before it was completed, the dream

To Ricky, a new Christian, we'd like to say that we love you and have more faith in you than ever. You made a mistake (something we've all been guilty of) and apologized in brotherly love to Quentin after openly admitting your guilt. Those of us closest to you know of your remorse. We understand what you were going through and we know how your heart was burdened, even as you were digging Papaw's grave. I, Suzi, can understand all too well what you were thinking (and what you were not), about as you drove to be with your family that day. Two years ago, my father was killed in a car accident. I'm very sorry to admit that I remember very little of the drive from Paintsville to McDowell that morning. I still thank God as I know you do, that no one was injured on that morning.

To Quentin and Debbie, we'd like to say that we love you and your daughters as well. It is our most sincere desire that our speaking out on Ricky's behalf will not affect our fellowship with you. We'd also like to say that we continue to pray for Quentin's health.

We are compelled to say that it house was destroyed by fire. No one in the neighborhood saw the flames, and Hattie received the devastating news from her carpenter that her new home no longer existed. Like any of us, they had scraped and saved and invested every spare cent into the house. Insurance did not cover all of the extras that they had put into the building, it only covered the loan. Yet, this couple just put the pain behind them and went forward. They say that someday they will try again.

Everyone talks about salt-of-the-earth people and God-fearing people, these titles truly fit the description of both families. Both of their fathers were coal miners and worked hard to support the family. Mr. Owens' father died a young man as a result of a mining accident, and Hattie's father suffered the tortuous death of Black Lung. Their mothers are humble, hard working women who instilled in their children the virtues of hard work and compassion for their fellowmen. This couple has worked hard for what they have, and they also work hard for the people he was elected to represent. For many years before Hattie accepted the job with the county, she worked side by side with her husband, with no income, just the satisfaction of doing the best for the community that they love.

Jackie stands up for what he believes in, and he holds firm to what he thinks is right. He has always stood up for his family and friends, and he has always stood up for the citizens that he was elected to represent. Being strong in what one believes in is not a negative point. I would much rather know that my representative is one who will not buckle under pressure instead of one who is a yes man. I hope that Mr. Owens will accept the challenge and run for the office of commissioner. I haven't heard any discussion on this matter, it is only my thoughts.

This may not sound like news to you, but we figure it's almost historic.

There are no elections scheduled for the year 1997.

Our memory may be a little faulty, but we cannot recall a time when there wasn't a ballot of some sort in November. As of this moment, though, there will be none next year.

Don't know yet whether we'll suffer withdrawal or enjoy the one-year hiatus, but we do know that next fall isn't likely to be as crisp as those before it.

Speaking of crisp, there's a saying in Kentucky that if you don't like the weather, just wait five minutes and it will change.

Don't know about the time frame, but that idiom certainly held true in Kentucky last week.

One minute it was 84 degrees, and the next it was 48.

The turn for the worst didn't stop there, either. The rain turned to snow and the short sleeves were traded in for the mackinaws.

If that was Indian Summer, it sure was a short one.

If you are keeping a scorecard at home, spring arrives in just 18 weeks.

and around the Prestonsburg area for the past 25 years. I am one among you that has made a good living from the people of Prestonsburg and the surrounding county areas. I am thankful for that.

Six thousand nine hundred sixty-two people have said to the magistrate system of government, we do not want you any more. Last Tuesday the people tore down the wall between them and their government, asking the government to share with all the people of Floyd County.

The politic in power will attempt to rebuild their political power base over the next 18 months. Some will be successful and some will go by the wayside in the elections of 1998. After the election of 2000, reform will have pretty much taken place. It's my understanding the magistrate system may get personal with the people of Floyd County trying to hang on to the control and rebuild the wall they have just torn down. I accept that's the way a democracy works.

On a personal note, I have spent a year of my life to help the people's voice be heard, my job is done. I want to go back to being just a businessman and go about my life. The rumors say the magistrate system is going to punish the political leaders of this movement. They say the magistrate system is going to tax the flea markets, allow Prestonsburg to annex most of the county, and take our family graveyards. My first encounter with the magistrate system was July 21, 1995. Everything got personal. I just hope they don't get personal with me and my family. Let's concentrate on the future together, because we are no longer divided into individual magistrate districts. We vote together under this new system, and we need to work together. There is definitely an organization keeping an eye on the Many say that when you turn 50, it's all downhill. But for Cheryl Shepherd, her 50th birthday was celebrated as the end of her youth. Shepherd's cousin, Barbara Allen, of Michigan, and several friends and family members helped celebrate the occasion by bringing a replica of a casket into her office at the Floyd County courthouse. "For the first time, I'm speechless," Shepherd said. "This is the best birthday I've ever had." (photo by Chris McDavid)

Working people of Kentucky

Editor:

If Governor Pattons' special legislative session on workers' compensation reform becomes a reality on December 2, you can bet it will not be with the interest of the working people in mind.

One of the Governor's reform intentions is to cut out our right to an attorney of our choice, if we get injured at work.

The man we elected to look out for our interest, now wants to tell us we don't have a right to have an attorney.

The Governor's office throws numbers at us, as to what our attorneys were paid, and I think that is great, we have a right to know. But why don't they give us numbers so we can really understand the whole system, like how much profit did the insurance companies make for the same period of time? How much did the insurance companies' attorneys get paid? I bet the numbers would be twice as much as what our attorneys were paid.

Who's interest does Governor Patton have in mind? Probably his own, since he is a coal operator and a businessman.

We need to remember this when he asks us to re-elect him, when election time comes around. And anyone in Frankfort who would let this happen does not have the working people's interest in mind.

Doesn't it make you wonder who those so-called arbitrators will be? Probably the same defense attorneys that fight against you now. Only they will call themselves arbitrators instead of attorneys and get paid the same big dollars as they always did.

If Governor Patton wants to do something for the working people in this great state, why doesn't he put some energy into making the workplace safer, therefore cutting injuries and compensation cases being filed?

I think Governor Patton owes us the overall picture of the Workers' Compensation System. Not just his ideas of what's best for him.

The words, 'well done' ring loud and true

Editor:

On behalf of the organization, "United We're Strong," I wish to thank the approximately 14,500 citizens of Floyd County who went to the polls on November 5 and voted. You probably set a county record for a general election; but more important, you made history in a very real sense.

Of the total vote cast that day, 11,430 voters worked their way down the long list of candidates and expressed their opinion on the Magistrate-Commissioner issue. Almost 7,000 of these voters agreed with our campaign to replace the magistrate form of county government with the commissioner form, thus giving us a majority of almost 2,500 votes.

In a larger sense, we not only made history, we changed history. We ended a political era stretching back 146 years; and changed a county government increasingly unresponsive and ill-suited to the present era. In doing so, we, together, have triumphed over seemingly impossible odds.

To the voters of Floyd County, there is no praise that rings as loud and as true as the simple words, "well done!" We have completed the first leg of our journey to a responsible and capable government. Please stay the course with us; we have a long way to go.

MAGISTRATE—DIST. 2

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

I want to thank all the people who came out and voted "AGAINST" the commissioner form of government. Although we never won, I really do appreciate every person that stuck with me on this issue. People, I believed then that the Magistrates would better serve the people of Floyd County and I still believe that, now.

Now that the majority of the people of Floyd County have voted to have the commissioner form of government, the county will be remapped into 3 districts by Judge Hale. The rest will be a "wait and see" process.

KET telecourses connect students with higher education; pre-registration underway for 1997

At first, it may seem impossible to think about adding college courses to already busy schedules, but KET's college credit course, broadcast statewide to homes each spring, summer and fall semester, allow students to attend college from their "home classroom" and earn credit toward a degree. KET telecourses provide lifelong learning opportunities to students statewide, allowing them to study at home even though distance and available time separate them from a higher education institution.

"Taking a fully accredited college-level telecourse from home is a practical way to earn credit toward a degree," says KET Higher Education Manager Mary Olson. "Most colleges require class attendance a few times throughout the semester for class discussions and tests. Textbooks and telecourse study guides can be purchased at campus bookstores. Many students even record the programs and view them at a time convenient for them," Olson adds.

Pre-registration for the 1997 spring semester is now underway at many of the 25 participating Kentucky colleges and universities. The schedule includes one graduate level course and nine undergraduate courses which begin airing Sunday, January 19.

In addition, five community colleges in the University of Kentucky Community College System (Ashland, Madisonville, Paducah, Prestonsburg and Southeast) are offering an Associate in Arts degree via KET telecourses and other distance learning technologies in a pilot partnership with KET called "Going the Distance." KET and the Kentucky Telecommunications Consortium, which includes Kentucky colleges and universities and the Council on Higher Education, are pilot participants in "Going the Distance," a national collaborative educational effort involving 36 public television stations, 140 colleges and universities across the nation and the Public Broadcasting Service.

The following colleges and universities are offering credit for some or all of the KET telecourses in the 1997 spring semester. Eastern Kentucky University, Kentucky State University, Morehead State University, Murray State University, Northern Kentucky University, University of Kentucky, University of Louisville, Western Kentucky University, Ashland Community College, Elizabethtown Community College, Hazard Community College, Henderson Community College, Hopkinsville Community College, Jefferson Community College, Lexington Community College, Madisonville Community College, Owensboro Community College, Paducah Community College, Prestonsburg Community College, Somerset Community College, Southeast Community College, Cumberland College, Lindsey Wilson College, Saint

Kentucky will receive increase in GRH funds

Kentucky will receive an increase in Guaranteed Rural Housing (GRH) Funds during Fiscal Year 1997. The increase will make financing available for many low and moderate income families in Floyd County who have no means of owning a home.

Allocations for the Guaranteed Rural Housing Loan program will increase from $41,412,000 to $61,488,000.

The Guaranteed Loan Program provides guarantees to lenders who make 100 percent loans to families with incomes not exceeding 115 percent of an area's median income for the purchase of new and existing homes.

The Guaranteed Rural Housing (GRH) Program targets families who do not have a down payment and makes financing available for purchasing a home at a fixed rate of interest with a repayment period of 30 years.

Fern indicated the increase in allocations will make financing available for approximately 1,025 families to realize the dream of home ownership during the 1997 fiscal year.

Further information on the above program may be obtained from the local Rural Housing Service Office located at Prestonsburg. The telephone number is 606/886-9545.

Catharine College and Union College.

KET's 1997 spring lineup includes courses in teacher education, history, business, archaeology, sociology and family studies. The Effective Teacher, the graduate education telecourse, provides a fresh approach to basic concepts and principles in critical areas of teacher education.

In American history and government, the telecourse offerings include America in Perspective, which focuses on the lives of Americans and the consequences of political and social conflict in our nation's history since 1877; Government by Consent, which marries political science instruction with examples of how students can involve themselves in American government at different levels; and The Western Tradition II, which begins with the post-Renaissance wars of religion and continues through industrial modernization to the present.

Students interested in business courses can choose among Business and the Law, a course emphasizing contracts and the legal system in a comprehensive overview of law and the world of business; Marketing, which uses practical examples and case studies to solve modern marketing problems and to identify consumer needs; and Taking the Lead, a course emphasizing the competencies needed for successful business management with the culturally and socially diverse workforce of the '90s.

In archaeology and anthropology studies, Out of the Past uses location footage to enable students to explore how archaeologists reconstruct ancient societies and explain how and why they evolved. Sociology and family studies telecourses include Portrait of a Family, which explores the different living patterns of families today and the decisions people face in their personal lives, and The Sociological Imagination, a course which advances students from the experimental to the intellectual, provoking them to think creatively and critically about themselves and their social worlds.

Telecourse schedule guides, including each institution's registration information, are available from KET by calling (800) 432-0970.

Prospective telecourse students can also find out more about the telecourses by visiting KET's Internet Web Site at <http://www.ket.org>.

Drift resident to serve as member of Campbellsville student foundation

Olivia Coleman

by Joan C. McKinney
Assistant director of Public relations and marketing

Campbellsville University junior Olivia Coleman of Drift, is one of 16 students who have been selected to serve as a member of the Campbellsville University Student Foundation.

Student Foundation's mission is to serve as a link between students, administration, faculty, alumni and friends, according to John Paul Blair, Student Foundation advisor.

Blair said, "Student Foundation was organized for the purpose of enlisting outstanding students to promote the general welfare of the school, foster academic excellence and tradition as well as pride and loyalty in Campbellsville University."

Coleman, daughter of Dulcina and Fritz Phipps of Drift, is a 1994 graduate of South Floyd High School.

This is Coleman's second year to serve on the Student Foundation. Her responsibilities include membership on the scholarship committee and phonathon participation.

After gaining experience through Student Foundation and earning a degree, Coleman is working towards a master of business administration.

In addition to her membership in Student Foundation, Coleman is involved in the Student Government Association, Students in Free Enterprise and Baptist Student Union.

Campbellsville University, founded in 1906, is a private, comprehensive institution located in South Central Kentucky. Affiliated with the Kentucky Baptist Convention, Campbellsville has grown 131 percent during the past nine years to an enrollment of 1,530, making it one of the fastest-growing institutions in the Southeast United States. The university is listed in U.S. News and World Report's "America's Best Colleges" as one of the top Southern liberal arts colleges, is one of the elite 124 institutions named to the Templeton Foundation's Honor Roll for Character Building Colleges, and has been named to The Student's Guide to America's 100 Best College Buys 1997-98. Dr. Kenneth W. Winters is in his ninth year as president.

Electronic field trip shows what it takes to publish a newspaper

How does a newspaper decide which stories go on the front page? Is a reporter's job ever dangerous? How do you prepare for a career as a reporter? What happens if incorrect information is published? How do you determine what to charge for the newspaper?

Students all across Kentucky heard answers to these questions and dozens of others Tuesday, October 22 during KET's Electronic Field Trip to a Newspaper. The live one-hour program visited the Lexington Herald-Leader where students—watching from their classrooms—explored the many facets of newspaper publishing and picked up some advice on preparing for journalism careers. Over 380 Kentucky teachers registered approximately 9,600 students for Electronic Field Trip to a Newspaper, which aired over KET's regular broadcast channel and its Star Channels Satellite System.

The students sat in on an editorial planning meeting, learned how a reporter researches and writes a story, watched a graphic artist illustrate a story and followed along as a finished page was transferred to plates, then printed. Along the way, students saw how advertising determines the number of news stories in the paper and how computers have changed newspaper publishing. Herald-Leader publisher Tim Kelly gave students some advice on classes and experiences helpful for those interested in newspaper careers.

Both KET and the Lexington Herald-Leader are providing resources for further research into newspaper publishing on their Internet Web Sites (<http://www.ket.org> and <http://kentuckyconnect.com>), and other newspapers are being encouraged to participate. KET Director of Education Liz Hobson says that classrooms whose questions were not covered during the program will receive personal responses on KET's Web Site.

The questions answered during Electronic Field Trip to a Newspaper, selected from more than 1,000 received, came from these Kentucky schools: Allen Central High School; Beechwood Elementary (Ft. Mitchell); Bloomfield Middle School; Burgin High School; Caverna High School; Cumberland County Middle School; Danville High School; Dawson Springs High School; Edmonson County High School; Eminence High School; Gallatin County Upper Elementary; Garrett Elementary (Casey County); George Rogers Clark High School (Clark County); Hillsboro Elementary (Fleming County); John G. Carlisle Elementary and Sixth District Elementary (Covington); Lacey Elementary (Christian County); Madison Southern High School; McNabb Middle (Montgomery County); Montgomery County High School; Moyer Elementary and Woodfill Elementary (Ft. Thomas); Muhlenberg North High School; Newport High School; Nox Middle School (Louisville); Somerset High School; Owen County Elementary; Pikeville Elementary; Russellville High School; Southern Elementary

The trash was dumped mostly on property belonging to Elkhorn Coal Company, May said. He contacted the business and they plan to have the area cleaned up and a barrier placed around the site.

He praised the coal company for assisting with past clean-up efforts. May said the illegal dump was cleaned up a couple of years ago when he utilized prison labor to clear the site but people began dumping trash again.

May plans to sift through the trash this week, looking for names and addresses of individuals. He plans to take those individuals to court and, if they're found guilty, recommend that the judge sentence them to pay a $500 fine and serve 90 days in jail or a probated sentence if they reimburse Elkhorn Coal for the expense of removing the trash.

department informant.

A second indictment was returned against Meade on the same charge for making a similar sale on October 8. Meade was released from jail on bond.

Three indictments of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance were returned against Johnson of Weeksbury.

He allegedly made three $50 sales of a half gram of cocaine each time to a sheriff's department informant, one on October 8 and two on October 24. Johnson was released from jail on bond.

According to Detective James Rederick, the raid, conducted by Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and himself, led to the confiscation of more than a half pound of marijuana, a quantity of cocaine, several firearms, an undisclosed amount of cash, and various other drug paraphilia.

he arrived.

Petry said after conferring with the county attorney's office, he was advised to take Hicks back to the hospital for an additional blood test and arrest him again.

Hicks' second bond was posted Friday and he was released from the jail.

During his arraignment Tuesday in Floyd District Court, Hicks pleaded not guilty to both charges. A court trial will be held at 9:30 a.m. December 17.

"Anytime people are under medication that could impair their ability to drive, they can be arrested the same as if they were under the influence of alcohol," Petry said. "They think if a doctor prescribes the medicine, then it is alright, but they don't think about the danger they place themselves and others in."

according to city attorney Paul Burchett. He said he expects that owner to sign the petition requesting the land be annexed within a few days.

"After that, there shouldn't be a problem," he said. Burchett added that the property owners want city services, such as water and sewerage, which they cannot receive until the land is within the city limits.

The annexation, including the mountaintop property and ThunderRidge area, will not become effective until the ordinances have been published.

The mountaintop project has met with opposition from property owners almost from day one.

About 100 residents whose property surrounds the proposed annexation area filed a petition September 6 to keep the land from being taken into the city limits. The petition asked that the annexation question be placed on last week's ballot for residents to decide.

But the city sued several of the property owners whose land was not within the annexation area.

The city has agreed to waive all property taxes on the annexed land until at least the year 2,000. Insurance rates for property in the area are also expected to decrease as the land comes into the city limits. Property owners will also no longer pay the ten-cent per $100 of assessed value fire tax imposed by the fire tax districts in the area.

45th Anniversary, November 8th

A death has occurred and everything has changed by this event. We are painfully aware that life can never be the same again.

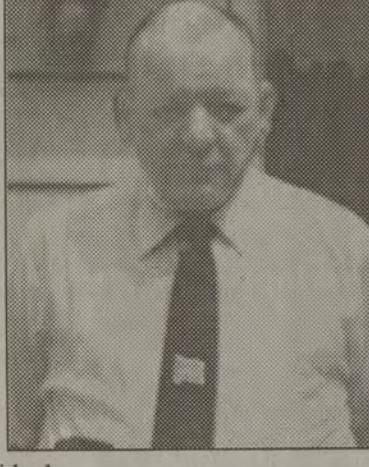

That yesterday is over, that relationships once rich have ended. But there is another way to look upon this truth.

If life went on the same, without the presence of the one who has died, we could only conclude that the life we here remember, made no contribution, filled no space, meant nothing.

The fact that this individual left behind a place that cannot be filled, is a high tribute to this individual.

Life can be the same after a trinket has been lost, but never after the loss of a treasure.

Adams' teacher's treat students on Halloween

Halloween was a treat for students at Adams Middle School.

The Halloween treat was developed by parent volunteer Rita Brock, who encouraged teachers to let students know they were "human."

So, she asked teachers and faculty at the school to come to school dressed in costumes.

Teachers and staff came to school in costumes ranging from clowns to wizards to phantoms.

Participating in the treat were Brock; Principal Janice Allen; Assistant Principal Ralph Dingus; staff members Barb Hatfield, Gaye Hatfield, Nellie Music, Joyce Collins; sixth grade teachers Kay Halbert, Carroll

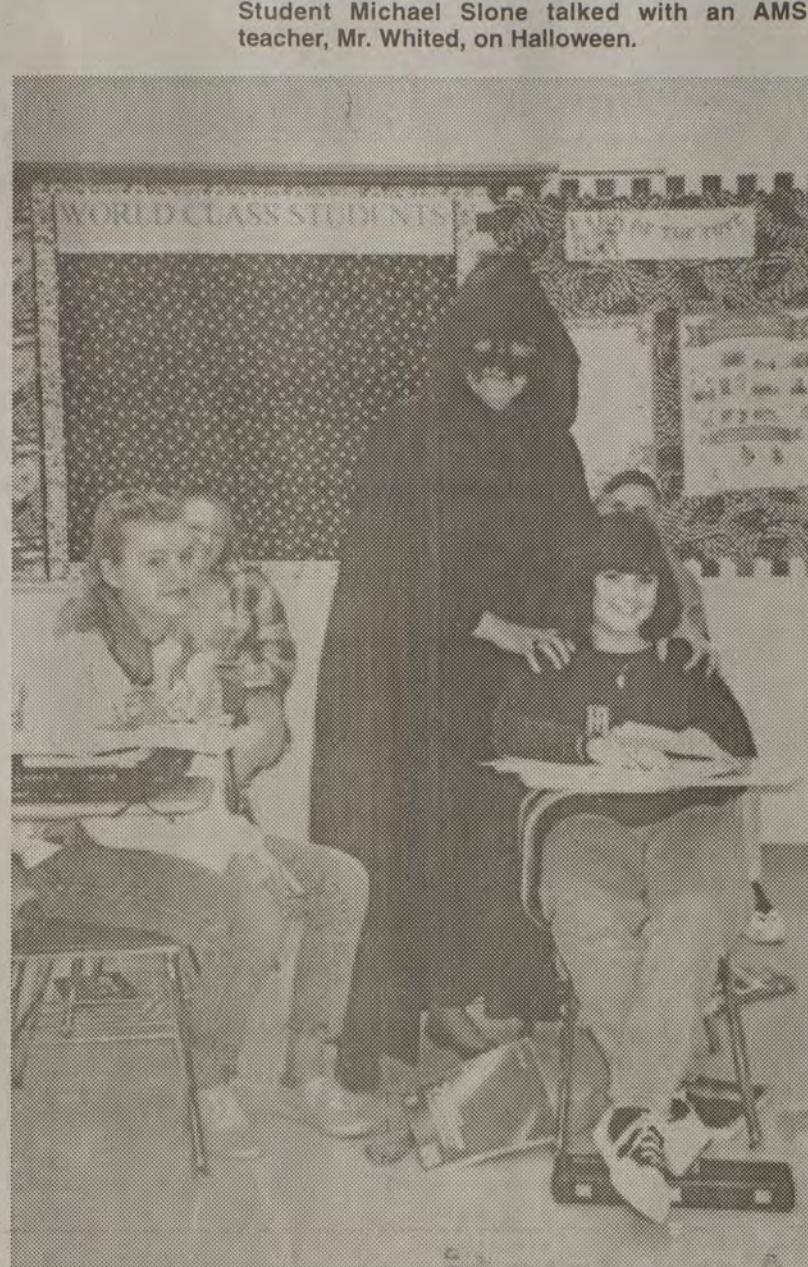

Bentley, Tonya Mullins, Janet Pack, Brenda Minix, Paula Collins, and Brenda Williams.

Also, seventh grade teachers, Cecilia Hall, Sheila Ortega, Evonne Woods, Pat Dye, Jane Spurlock, and Anna Kidd; eighth grade teachers Gwen Hammonds, Jennifer West, Les Howard, Alberta Slone, and Johnnene Ison.

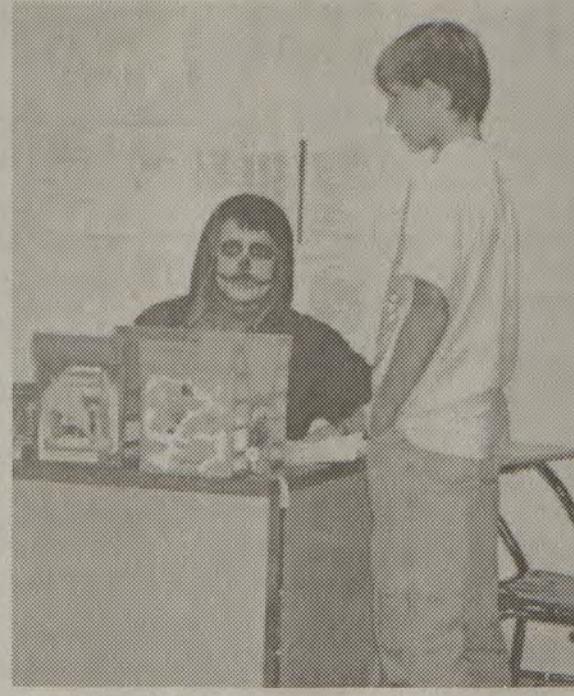

Also, encore teachers Michelle Roth, Kim Reynolds, Edith Jones, Greg Creech, Mack Martin, Kathi Caudill, and coach Charles Collins; and lunchroom personnel Ruby Ratliff, Malvia Robinson, Darlene Campbell, Kathy Clark, Charlene Hamilton, and Loretta Thornsburg; and youth service center staff members Connie Estep, Sheila Allen, and Karen Vaughn.

Principal Janice Allen came to school as "Enchantra, Sorceress of the Dark." Allen was also honored by her staff with a birthday celebration. She recently celebrated her 53rd birthday.

Kentucky health officials are warning people not to handle wild animals

Kentucky health officials are reminding people to avoid contact with wildlife and stray domestic animals following a recent case of rabies involving a bat in Paducah.

The Purchase District Health Department determined that four students in Paducah were exposed to the rabid bat and they are being treated for rabies. Two students were exposed to rabies when a female student at Tilghman High School brought the bat to school October 31. She and her younger sister were exposed to the bat October 30 when they captured it that evening.

The high school student contacted the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to find out what to feed the bat. The Fish and Wildlife employee realized that the bat could have rabies and asked the teen to bring the bat to him. He saw that the bat was sick and took it to a laboratory in Hopkinsville where it was determined that the bat had rabies.

"Local and state public health officials responded promptly to the situation and the four young people who were exposed are being treated," said Mike Auslander, state public health veterinarian with the division of epidemiology in the Department of Public Health.

"The bottom line is never pick up a wild animal, especially if it appears to be injured or sick. In the case of bats, if a bat is found outside during the day, it is probably sick or injured. In about half of those cases, the bat probably has rabies."

"If you find a wild animal that is injured or sick, contact Fish and Wildlife or local animal control officials. If you come into direct contact with the animal, you should wash the area with soap and water and contact your local health department immediately for further instructions," he said. "It is especially important for parents to teach their children about rabies."

As of November 1, 40 cases of rabies have been confirmed in 24

'Holiday goodies'

For anyone who wants to make that perfect dip or cheese ball or for the person who always wanted to know how to make easy, delicious candy, the Office of Continuing Education at PCC has just the class.

Beginning Monday, November 18 at 4:00 p.m. at St. Martha's Catholic Church Public Meeting Room, holiday entertaining will be less of a mystery. For four Mondays, the instructors will lead participants through the mysteries of easy holiday treats.

The class will concentrate on the type of foods everyone enjoys during the holiday season but often don't have time or expertise to make. Special dips and cheese balls for that open house the family always wanted to plan. Candies to share with friends and family members. Cookies and easy breads that seem too difficult to tackle. All of these things will be created by the students during the class time.

To learn more about the class and to register, call PCC at 886-3863, ext. 240. The office is open Monday through Friday, 8:00-4:30 p.m.

Wildlife Society recognizes 1950 PHS graduate

At its annual business meeting on October 6, at Hot Springs, Arkansas, the Wildlife Society SE Sect, presented a Special Recognition Award to Dr. Edward P. Hill for his outstanding research, service, and leadership in the conservation of furbearer resources.

A 1950 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, excerpts from Hill's diary as a stream guard in Alaska appeared in the Floyd County Times in 1952. During his long career, Dr. Hill's work covered pesticide contamination, beaver, river otter, red and gray foxes, wood ducks, double-crested cormorants, blackbirds, cottontail rabbits, raccoons, and coyotes. Many of the 96 scientific papers and reports published by Dr. Hill and his graduate students dealt with coyote activity and behavior, their food habits, and their impact on domestic animals, wildlife populations, and deer fawns in Kentucky and other southeastern states.

Now retired, Dr. and Mrs. Hill are building a log home near Breakneck Pass, south of Fairplay, Colorado, where they plan to move in the spring.

Kentucky counties compared to 28 cases in 1995 and 29 in 1994. Of those 40, five were bats. Thirty-one of the 40 were wildlife—skunks and bats, according to the division of epidemiology.

Rabies is an acute viral disease that attacks the central nervous system. The disease is most often passed from animal to animal or animal to human through bites.

"People should not keep wild animals as pets," said Auslander. "No rabies vaccines are currently approved for use in wildlife, including wolf-hybrids or other types of wild crossbred animals."

Since pets can come into contact with wild animals, it's important for dogs and cats to have rabies shots. Vaccinations for dogs and cats are available through private veterinarians or at many local health departments sponsored rabies clinics.

Human treatment for rabies no longer consists of 14 shots in the stomach. Now treatment is five injections in the arm and one in the hip over a 28-day period. Once rabies exposure has been determined, treatment should start as soon as possible.

If the animal is dead, save the body for examination. If you have to handle it, wear gloves. If the animal is alive, note its description and location for later identification because the animal is needed for observation.

A Look At Sports

Forgiving and forgetting: the time is now
for Blackcats

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISH TO...

Tiffany Victoria Owens, who will turn eight November 17. Tiffany is a cheerleader for the Duff Lady Bulldogs. She also is a majorette for the Duff Twirlers.

A big happy birthday goes to my good buddy Ryan Owens of the Allen Central Rebels. Ryan will turn 16 on November 19. He played football for the Rebels and will be on the basketball court this year. He is also a member of the Allen Central golf team.

Do you have an athlete, coach, or cheerleader you want to wish a happy birthday to? Send the info in or just give me a call.

BIG WIN, BUT...

The Prestonsburg Blackcats rolled up 40 points against Fleming County this past Friday night, but it was in front of almost empty bleachers on the Prestonsburg side of the stands. If the band had not been seated in their location, the side would have been almost bare.

It is a shame that folks stayed away (some blamed the weather), when these kids were on the field trying their best and representing their school.

I know they have had a drastic week with 10 players walking off and then not being allowed to return by vote of the staying players. With the first-round victory history and looking toward this Friday night at round two, the question being asked is, will the suspended players be allowed to return and play?

Now is the time for the healing process to begin with this football program, and the coaching staff must lead the way for the rest. Any hard feelings on the part of the coaching staff and players (both those who stayed on the team and those who left) must be put aside.

The coaching staff must remember their players are kids. Right now, they don't need any negative influence in their lives, they get enough of that from other sources. They need someone to show them compassion and to really care for them.

The players who stayed on the team must remember these are their fellow classmates, teammates and, more importantly, friends. This is but a brief moment in each of the players' lives. All have many years ahead of them and friendship is far more important than a football season.

As for the players who 700 SERIES BOWLER Gail Campbell points out the lettered sign noting her achievement at Evergreen Bowling Center.

Postmaster puts stamp on local bowling record

West Van Lear Postmaster Gail Campbell, a resident of Prestonsburg, put a stamp of approval on the Evergreen Bowling Center when she became the first woman to bowl a 700 series at the Center. It was the first 700 plus series bowled by a woman in sanctioned competition in Floyd County.

Revving up a Ninja RPM bowling ball with 15 pounds of overall weight, Campbell got the line on lanes seven and eight for her record-setting performance. Her previous high three-game series was a 687 posted at Classic Lanes in Pikeville.

Rolling in the Friday evening Mixed Nuts League, Campbell put together games of 235, 228 and 242 for a 705 total. She has bowled a "number of years" and currently maintains a 194 per game bowling average.

Campbell bowls in three different leagues including: the Mixed Nuts League at the Evergreen Bowling Center, Eight Ball and Pinafore leagues at Classic Lanes in Pikeville.

Campbell partners with her husband, Jim, on the Hit & Miss team in the Mixed Nuts League. The Campbells have two children and one grandchild.

Shorthanded Prestonsburg rips Fleming County

Castle, Ortega lead Blackcat offense with 3 TDs each

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Fleming County Panthers may have had visions of upset dancing in their heads when they scored on the opening play of their playoff game against the Prestonsburg Blackcats this past Friday night.

But the "vision" was lost to reality after the turnover-prone Panthers saw Prestonsburg post a 40-6 decision in the opening round game that was played at Prestonsburg in front of a sparse home crowd.

Senior quarterback Mike Castle had his best game of the year with three touchdowns. He showed his ability to run the football, something he didn't do much this year. He finished with 34 yards on eight carries.

Sophomore John Ortega also scored three times and ran two conversions in gaining 124 yards on the ground.

The muddy Prestonsburg stadium field proved to be more of a hindrance to Fleming County than it was to the Blackcats. The Panthers had problems holding onto the muddy football.

After the Panthers took their only lead of the game on a 74-yard kickoff return by speedster Aaron McKee, it was all Prestonsburg. McKee's return gave the Panthers a 6-0 lead with only 13 seconds off the clock.

On Fleming County's next three possessions, they fumbled the football away and Prestonsburg turned each mistake in scoring opportunities. Fleming County's starting quarterback Kevin Beiland was hit hard from behind by Jarrod Newsome, jarring the ball loose. Gavin Hale pounced on the football. Two plays later, Castle went in from 3-yards out and Ortega ran the conversion to give Prestonsburg an 8-6 lead with 6:22 to play in the first half.

Slipping at the Panther 24-yard line, Fleming County could not get around the Prestonsburg front line, and Beiland fumbled for the second time with Hale once again coming up with the loose ball. Castle, on a 1-yard plunge, scored again and Ortega added the two-point conversion for a 16-6 Prestonsburg lead.

On a third-and-six from their own 39-yard line, Beiland was hit hard on the blitz by Castle and the ball rolled loose on the gridiron. Castle came up with the football at the Panthers' 24-yard line. With 33 seconds to play in the quarter, Castle ran into the end zone from 3-yards out for a 22-6 first quarter score.

Things didn't get any better for Fleming County at the onset of the second period. On a third-and-five situation, Matt Lafferty picked off a Beiland pass.

Fleming County moved into Prestonsburg territory once in the second half. That came in the third period when, with the help of a Blackcat penalty, the Panthers' got Brooke Coleman scored 11 of her game high 18 points in the third quarter to lead the Allen Lady Eagles to a 55-20 win over the Prater Creek Lady Cougars Monday night in the first game of the Shag Campbell Invitational basketball tournament at Allen.

Coleman, Rachel Mitchell and Ramanda Music scored in double figures for Allen. Mitchell finished with 14 points while Music tossed in 10.

Amber Roberts scored 11 points to lead Prater Creek. Stephanie Hall had six points, Angela Akers two and Tiffany Meade one.

Roberts' three-point basket in the first quarter accounted for Prater's three points as they trailed Allen 20-3 at the first stop. Mitchell had six points for Allen in the quarter. Allen led 31-9 at the half.

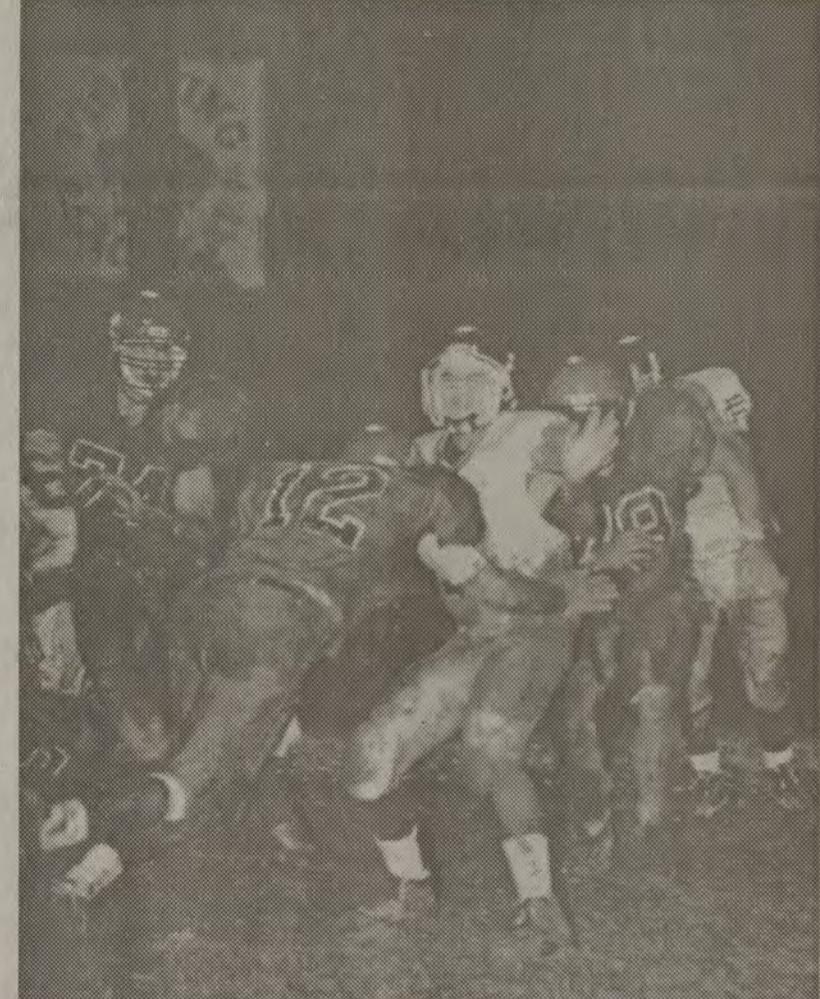

Coleman went to work in the third quarter with 11 points for a 49-18 Allen lead.

Amelia Conley scored six points and Bethany Joseph scored five for Allen. Chrissy Nelson had two points.

Right Beaver Boys' Classic...

Daugherty directs second-half rally in 67-63 win over Martin

Brad Daugherty hit four three-point baskets and scored a game-high 18 points to help lead the Betsy Layne Bobcats to the championship of the Right Beaver Classic last Saturday night at Allen Central.

Daugherty teamed with Chase Gibson to lead a second-half charge that saw the Bobcats come from a seven-point halftime deficit to pull out a 67-63 win over a very good Martin team.

"They are the best shooting team we have faced so far," said Betsy Layne coach Dwight Newsome, whose Bobcats repeated as tournament champions. "They have a real good team."

Gibson finished with 14 points for the Bobcats while Eddie Tibbs added 17. Betsy Layne, as a team, hit six three-point baskets.

Martin, who struggled in the third period, got some strong play off the bench out of Henry Napier, who finished with 10 for Martin. Napier was especially helpful in the fourth period, when he hit consecutive three-pointers from deep in the corner and then scored underneath to keep the Purple Flash close.

Patrick Martin had three, three-point baskets for Martin and hit two in the fourth quarter. Martin hit his second three-pointer to start the fourth quarter and gave Martin a 48-47 lead. But back-to-back three-pointers by Daugherty sent the Bobcats out to a 53-48 lead that went to seven points, 55-48, on a lay-in by Gibson.

Martin trailed 59-50 with just over three minutes to play when Napier entered the game. He hit a trey at the 2:49 mark and then his second one seconds later to bring Martin to within five points, 61-56. Timmy Davis scored with 1:46 to play and, at the 1:14 mark, Napier scored on a rebound basket to pull his team to within one point, 61-60.

Betsy Layne connected on four consecutive free throws in the final 47 seconds and Brad Bevins put the game away with a solo basket following a steal. Bevins scored eight points in the game and six came in the final period.

Martin trailed 15-13 after the first quarter, but the inspired play of Davis in the second quarter gave Martin a 34-27 halftime lead. Davis scored 10 points in the second quarter by hitting seven straight free throws. Larry Mullins, who led Martin with 16 points, scored six in the second quarter.

Gibson, who was held to one point in the first quarter and a three-point basket in the second, scored six points in the fourth as Betsy Layne outscored Martin 20-11 to climb back in contention.

Martin's biggest lead came at 38-29 on a bank shot by Mullins and Chad Samons' lay-in. But Betsy Layne scored the next seven points on a short jumper by Gibson and Daugherty's three-point basket. Martin led by six twice before Betsy Layne went on 11-3 run that netted them a 47-45 lead after three

by Ed Taylor

The Martin Lady Flashes held Adams Middle School to just two field goals in the third period and one in the fourth to overcome a 17-14 half-time deficit in posting a 48-28 win over the Lady Blackcats. In so doing, the Lady Flashes captured the title game of the Right Beaver Classic Saturday night at Allen Central.

Barb Prater and Shannon Sizemore each scored 11 points and Jennifer Risner added nine to lead Martin.

Brittany Hites led all scorers with her 13 points. Angela Howell netted eight and Stephanie Adams scored six.

Martin turned up their defense to start the second half as Adams could not get a good look at the basket in a 18-4 Martin run. Hites scored the only field goal for Adams in the fourth quarter.

The two teams played to a 7-7

BASKETBALL

The basketball panoramas will get underway this weekend in high school basketball.

One of the top girls' events will be the Border States Shootout held at Belfry November 30.

Both Allen Central and Prestonsburg will play at Belfry High School, with the first game between Sheldon Clark and Sissonville beginning at 11 a.m.

Belfry, who is favored to repeat this year in the 15th Region, will face Huntington High at 12:30, while Feds Creek and Williamson tip off at 2 p.m.

Allen Central and Tolsia will meet at 3:30, while Phelps and Tug Valley play at 5 p.m. Prestonsburg meets Burch in a 6:30 start, while Millard and Mateway close out the panorama at 8 p.m.

Belfry, Allen Central and Prestonsburg are all solid contenders for a regional title this year.

Allen Central's Runnin' Rebels will play at Perry Central this Friday night.

Martin held a first-quarter lead of 13-8, but a layup by Bevins, two free throws and a three-pointer by Daugherty at the buzzer gave Betsy Layne a two-point lead at the first stop.

After Mullins hit a basket to start the second quarter to tie the game at 15, Davis seemed to live at the free throw line. He hit seven straight and nine of 11 to send Martin in front 23-17. A free throw by Martin and a Davis basket gave Martin a 34-27 halftime advantage.

David Johnson and Jeremy Clark finished with four points each for Betsy Layne. Gibson had six blocked shots in the game and pulled in 16 rebounds.

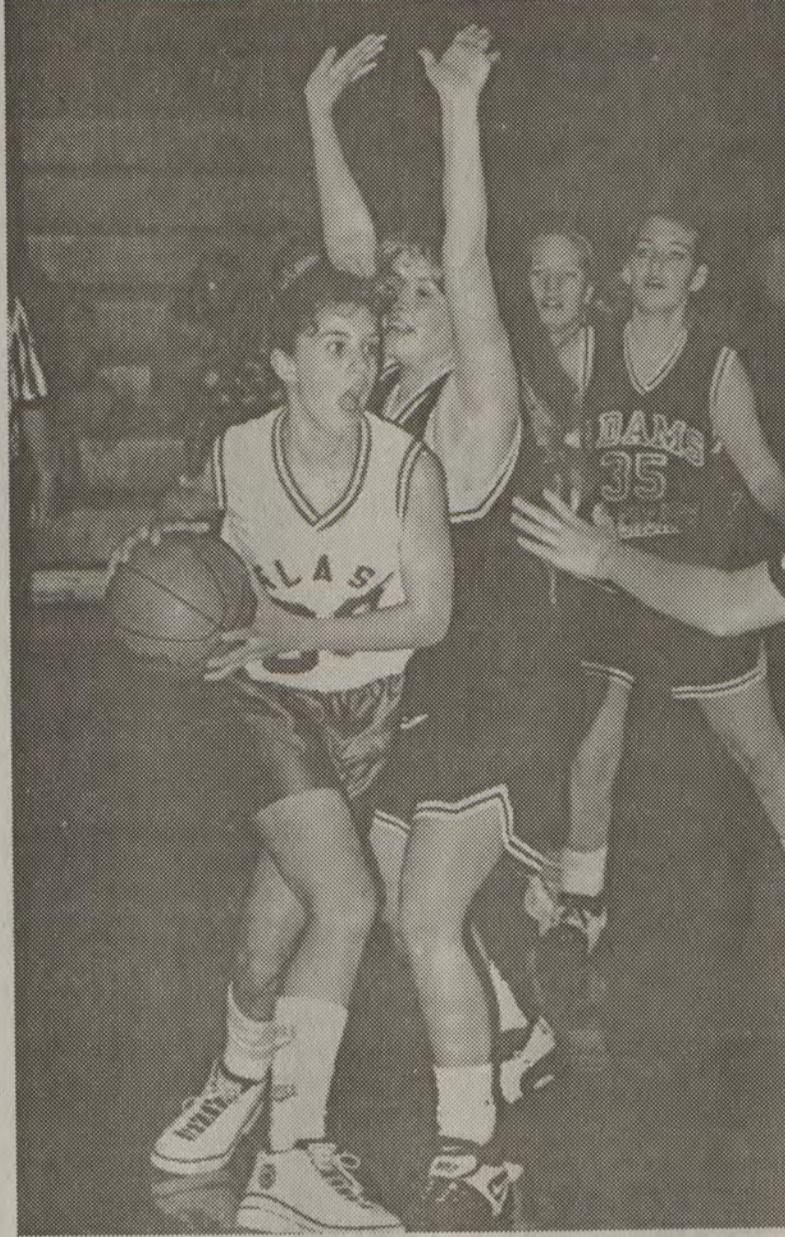

Martin scored 15 points and Davis had 12 for the Purple Flash. Keith Crum tossed in four points with Samons and Dwight McKinney scoring two points apiece.

Jeremy Hayes, who started for Martin, was injured in the opening minutes of the game and did not play afterwards.

Betsy Layne improved to 3-0 on the young season while Martin dropped to 3-1.

Adams wins over Harold for first win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Adams Middle School Blackcats saw their modest two-game losing streak come to an end this past Monday night in the first round of the Shag Campbell Invitational basketball tournament with a 51-37 win over the Harold Red Devils.

Shawn Newsome scored 15 points to lead Adams, with Matt Clay adding nine points.

Anthony Tackett led Harold with 13 points and Brock Keathley scored 12.

The Red Devils held the initial lead 8-6 after the first stanza. Tackett scored four first-quarter points for Harold. Adams was able to maintain a lead in the second quarter by hitting their free throws. Adams connected on eight of 10 attempts to lead 24-18 at the half.

A 15-9 run by Harold in the third period caught the Blackcats at 33-33 as Keathley hit a three-pointer and scored nine points in the third period for Harold.

The bottom fell out for Harold in the final period as they managed only one field goal, by Ralph King. Matt Clay scored all nine of his points in the period to propel Adams to victory. Newsome had five fourth-quarter points and Donnie Stephens scored four for Adams.

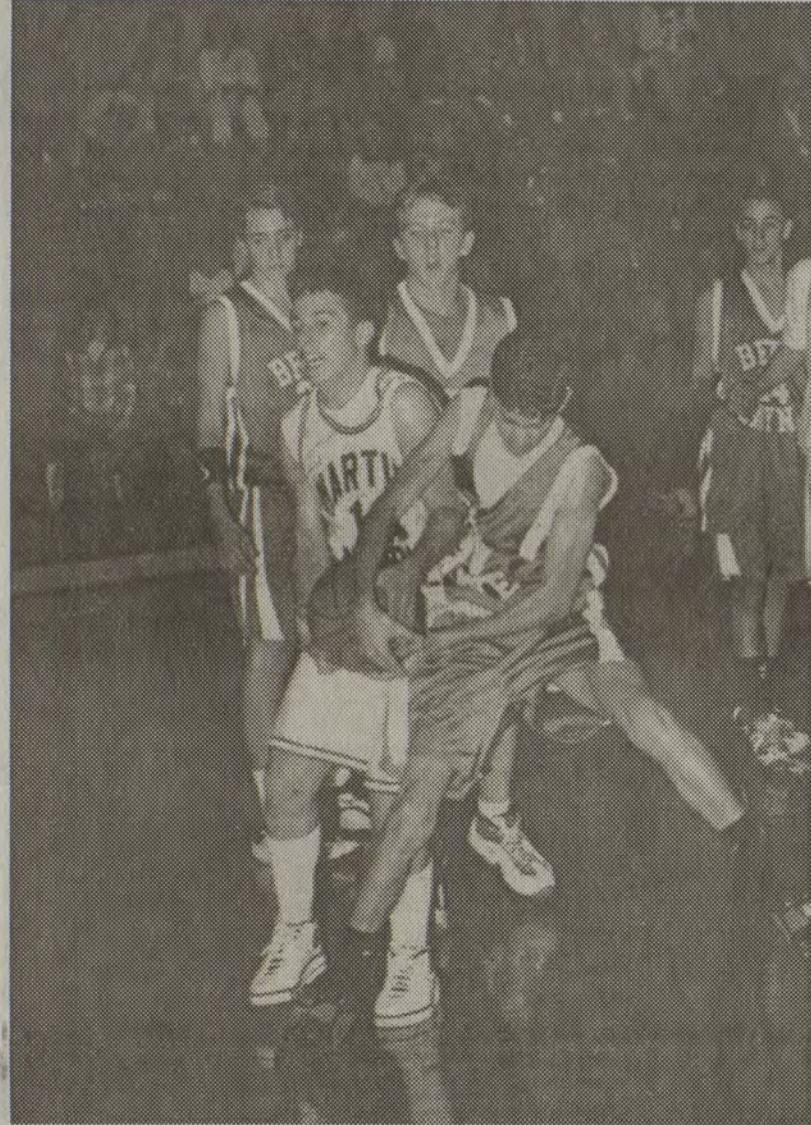

Chad Conway tossed in six points for Harold with King and Casey Brown scoring two apiece.

Brooke Stinnett and Ryan Martin netted eight points for Adams with Stephens finishing with seven points. Aaron Neely and Matt Turner scored two points each.

Giant killer Hornets slay McDowell 55-49

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

No longer the doormat of grade school basketball, the Auxier Hornets pulled off yet another shocker by defeating a tall, good McDowell team 55-49 this past Monday night at home. Earlier, Auxier defeated the Adams Blackcats on the road.

The Hornets' balanced scoring attack gave them their second win of the young season with Jonathan Gillispie scoring 15 points to lead the way. Ricky Powers tossed in 14 points and Ralph Mullett scored 13.

Joe Plackus led McDowell with 12 points. Jason Moore added nine points and Mike Colley scored nine points. Colley had a three-point basket in the first quarter.

The two teams played to a 10-10 first quarter tie with Moore scoring seven of McDowell's points. Powers had six first-quarter points apiece.

the onset of the fourth quarter. Auxier went to their half-court trap and caused the Daredevils to get called for two 10-second violations. Some key steals in the fourth period sent the Hornets out to a 14-point lead.

It was from the free throw line the Hornets put the game in the win column. Auxier hit 14 free throws down the stretch to hold off a late McDowell rally.

Dustin Music finished with seven points for the Hornets with Jody Harris scoring six points.

Steve Ward scored four for McDowell, James Goins netted five points, including a three-point basket. Joe Skeans totaled four, all in the second period, while Scotty Bradley, Jeremy Lafferty and Wesley Hyden had two points each.

The Hornets' balanced scoring attack gave them their second win of the young season with Jonathan Gillispie scoring 15 points to lead the way. Ricky Powers tossed in 14 points and Ralph Mullett scored 13.

Sports in Kentucky

Sports scene 'gone right' for a weekend is a refreshing thing

Ah, the rejuvenating power of sports gone right (for a weekend) can be a refreshing thing. Wait long enough and good things do happen to good people.

✓ Bill Curry can coach ... when Jimmy Carter doesn't play so much ... when Billy Jack Haskins isn't running for his life ... when Derick Logan does his Moe Show ... when Craig Yeast, Norman Mason and UK's offensive line dance in tune. And when Chris Ward and UK's defense show up.

✓ Billy Jack Haskins is one tough hombre. A young man with the staying power of Holyfield and smarts enough to endure boorish fans and anticipate the attention span of sports writers.

Say, didn't you used to be the columnist who got caught up in 'turn the Deuce loose'? And all those who put the word savior in front of Tim Couch's name last summer please stand up (and join USA Today's Harry Blauvelt).

✓ Shaun Alexander, Kentucky's 1995 Mr. Football, became Mr. Crimson Tide at LSU Saturday night.

✓ Memphis. Memphis?

And out there someplace there...

✓ Evander Holyfield. "...is now a symbol for the power of prayer and the power of heart," New York Times' columnist Dave Anderson wrote, jumping in line first on what will be a long queue of sports writers-turned-preachers, including Dave Kindred and all the other sports analysts who, a week ago, would not have given Holyfield a snowball chance against Mike Tyson.

UK 'WAKE UP CALL?'

With two games still to go, C.M. Newton's deadline for hiring a football coach to replace Bill Curry is not so pressing, right? Wrong. Not pressing that is, if UK is willing to write off the 1996 high school football recruiting campaign.

When 6-5, 270-pound defensive lineman Art Steinmetz at Covington Catholic committed to Wisconsin and coach Barry Alvarez last week, it sounded a clear warning that Newton's deadline is 'as soon as possible' if Kentucky is to have a chance to sign any of the handful of in-state Div. I prospects.

UK 30 WINS? LAUGH'S ON ME

It has been said: One mark of a man's character is his ability to laugh at himself. If that be so, then today ... ha, ha, ha, ho, ho, ho, hee, hee, ohhhhhh, (my sides are killin' me!). Ha, ha, ha. On me.

You see, I said '30' when a writer from a sports weekly publication telephoned to ask how many wins I believed this year's Kentucky Wildcats would have. Since UK could play as many as 40 games by next spring, 30 did not seem outrageous. But after watching the Wildcats against Athletes In Action last week, well, ha, ha, ho, ho, ho, ohhhhhh, (my sides are killin' me!).

Confession is supposed to be good for (one) man's character.

Rick Pitino has a good enough collection of talent, but from what I witnessed, it is that, a collection. And the likelihood of this team winning 30 games seems as remote as Washington attorney Kenneth Starr joining the Clinton administration.

Some observations from Kentucky's street ball against AIA...

✓ Before the first exhibition's opening tip, Pitino reversed himself and made his first major gamble of the season. "I'm 99 percent sure we will not redshirt Jeff Sheppard," he had said. This week Sheppard is officially a red-shirt and it creates a curious void in team chemistry. Yes, UK is backcourt-heavy and Sheppard deserves more playing time than he would have gotten this season. But this is a gamble we will watch with a skeptic's eye to see how it unfolds.

We can be certain of one thing, Da Coach will spin it well, no matter what impact on the team.

✓ Pitino seems to have red-shirted the wrong man. The center position in UK's offense is a black hole. To be kind, this team's middle is as soft and innocent as a baby's bottom.

First, Jamaal Magloire (bless his rookie heart), is lost at both ends of Rupp Arena as we expected. But the unexpected is that the 6-10 freshman has no shot. Outside of a rather awkward dunk put-back, there is nada. We knew Nazr Mohammed was/is limited, but this...?

Magloire needs time in a red shirt just to learn what time zone he's in.

Jared Prickett will be UK's center at crunch time by default. Still slow and not especially comfortable with his back to the basket, Prickett can aspire to being to this team what Mark Pope was to last year's.

✓ Pitino should gamble that Scott Padgett will 'arrive' to push Prickett to the center spot where the latter could platoon with Mohammed and Oliver Simmons, while Magloire comes back to earth and realizes this ain't Canada.

✓ UK's interior defense and rebounding. The charitable ways to describe these are — weak, inconsistent and help! Time and Pitino's determination will tell if maturity is forthcoming in this area, but it has the appearance of being an arduous task.

✓ Perimeter offense? "Where have you gone, Tony Delk?" Certainly with soft inside offense, enemy defenses are going to do what they have done for ions, step out and not worry about Kentucky's inside game.

Anthony Epps and Cameron Mills, Ron Mercer and Derek Anderson have shown at times they can shoot outside. But Wayne Turner has not, and try as he might, Pitino is still unable to unseat Epps at point guard in favor of Turner because Epps remains the team's most consistent player.

So, the Top 10-rated Wildcats (snicker) got a reality check against AIA last week. If Pitino and his staff are going to whip this collection into an effective team, burning lots of midnight oil is in the offing.

UK'S MYSTERIOUS 'GOLDEN SOMBRERO'

University of Kentucky basketball fans can put 6-7 Myron Anthony and 6-3 Ryan Hogan in the successfully recruited column, but we are mystified with Rick Pitino's recruiting foray for the November half of the campaign. Looks as if UK has itself a golden sombrero. All strikeouts ... to rivals on Tobacco Road.

Kentucky courted 6-8 Shane Battier and 6-8 Elton Brand, and 6-2 guard William Avery and lost them all to Duke.

Another guest at Big Blue Madness, 6-11 Brian Bersticker, committed to North Carolina last week, joining 6-5 Max Owens who, at one time, was thought to be odds-on headed to Kentucky.

Chris Burgess, the California prize, apparently was not swayed much by Big Blue Madness either. The 6-10 center is headed to Brigham Young, Duke or UCLA.

How is it that defending NCAA champion Kentucky is not doing well this recruiting season ... again?

1. The old argument is UK's 3-point emphasis program relies on its big men to rebound and play defense. And the waiting line for playing time is long. The argument still works for some rival recruiters.

2. UK basketball still endures the label Uppity U. in some quarters, while in others some high school stars are persuaded they "can't cut it at Kentucky, especially in Rick Pitino's high intensity and high-demand system," a talent scout told Sports In Kentucky.

3. Glare of the spotlight at UK is so intense it intimidates some youngsters.

All may not be lost however. There is reason for some optimism in UK's recruiting campaign. If he makes his grades, Tracy McGrady, a 6-9 forward at Auburndale, Fla., is projected by some to be a better prospect than all the aforementioned. And 6-9 James Felton of Bayonne, N.J. and 7-1 Kareem Shabazz of Lawrence, N.Y. are still on Pitino's shopping list.

Meanwhile, when Avery, compared to Tony Delk, announced for Duke last week, Pitino moved to try and save something for next season by reversing himself and redshirting Sheppard.

Next year Sheppard, a steady leader, will bolster the shooting guard position and be joined by newcomer Hogan. At small forward, signed Myron Anthony will arrive along with 6-5 Heshimu Evans, transfer from Manhattan College.

UK still needs major help at power forward and center.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS (PSEUDO) TRENDS...

Strange that sports media spent last week lauding officials at Boston College and UCLA who called press conferences to proclaim they had ferreted out rascals and wrongdoing in their athletics departments.

Why should BC officials be praised for dismissing football players involved in gambling, some betting against their own team? Why should UCLA officials be praised for firing a basketball coach Jim Harrick, who admitted breaking rules, lying about it, then whined that the punishment did not fit the crime?

Do these events mean college sports is on a revolutionary road to right doing? Hardly.

UK athletics sold out to Nike two weeks ago. Several Virginia Tech football players were arrested for assault, likewise five Rhode Island athletes, and Bill Curry dismissed promising running back Anthony White for breaking team rules.

When some of us in the media are moved to command Boston College and UCLA administrators for doing the corrective things instead of preventive ones, seems to me it amounts to no more than praising lowered expectations.

What happened at BC and UCLA are simply two instances where black and white, right and wrong were clearly discernable and therefore easy to manage. In fact, the status quo remains — 10 of 12 SEC schools have been caught cheating in the last five years, schools still fire a coach or force him to resign if the team does not win enough games (Bill Curry at UK, Bill Mallory at IU, Jim Colletto at Purdue).

There is still much to do before we praise college officials for right doing.

DIS 'N DATA

✓ "Sherman Lewis would take the UK job in a minute if they offered it," a source told Sports In Kentucky last week. A Green Bay assistant coach, Sherman Lewis could be the right man at the right time for UK's football future.

✓ Major League baseball owners voted 18-12 last week to shoot themselves in the foot again, turn down a labor agreement with the players union. Psst! Hire a commish quick. Make his name Mario Cuomo.

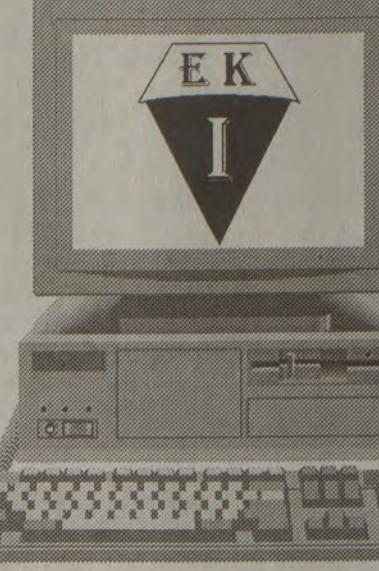

✓ Yo, Evander, you don't need the dough. And you don't need Mike Tyson either. And neither does the (ugh) sport of boxing.

And so it goes.

Fitzpatrick's late free throws help hold off Prater Creek, 46-42

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Jacob Fitzpatrick went to the free throw line often in the fourth quarter, hitting eight of 15 attempts to help the Allen Eagles hold off a good Prater Creek Cougar team while posting a 46-42 win in the Shag Campbell Invitational basketball tournament at Allen Monday night.

Fitzpatrick led all scorers with 17 points while Daniel Knausz finished with nine.

Nick Spears led Prater Creek with his 16 points and Adam Collins finished with 16. Wes Senter had nine points and Jason Skeans two for Prater.

Prater Creek mounted a fourth-quarter rally that saw them narrow a nine-point deficit to three behind the play of Spears. He hit a three-point basket and scored eight points in the final quarter. Collins, who had four points in the final stanza, fouled out mid-way in the fourth.

Adams kept the ball in the hands of Fitzpatrick and Prater sent him to the line often in the fourth in hopes of pulling out the victory.

Knausz scored seven points in the third period, hitting a three-point basket as Allen led 32-23 after three quarters.

Josh Justice netted eight points for Allen in the win. Brandon Branham and Stephen Bobo had four each while Matt Tackett and Chris Combs scored two apiece.

Roberts' 14 points sends Prater past Auxier, 33-16

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Amber Roberts went scoreless in the fourth quarter, but she scored 14 points in the game to lead the Prater Creek Lady Cougars to a 33-16 win over the Lady Hornets of Auxier. Brendeanne Conn added eight points and Stephanie Hall scored six.

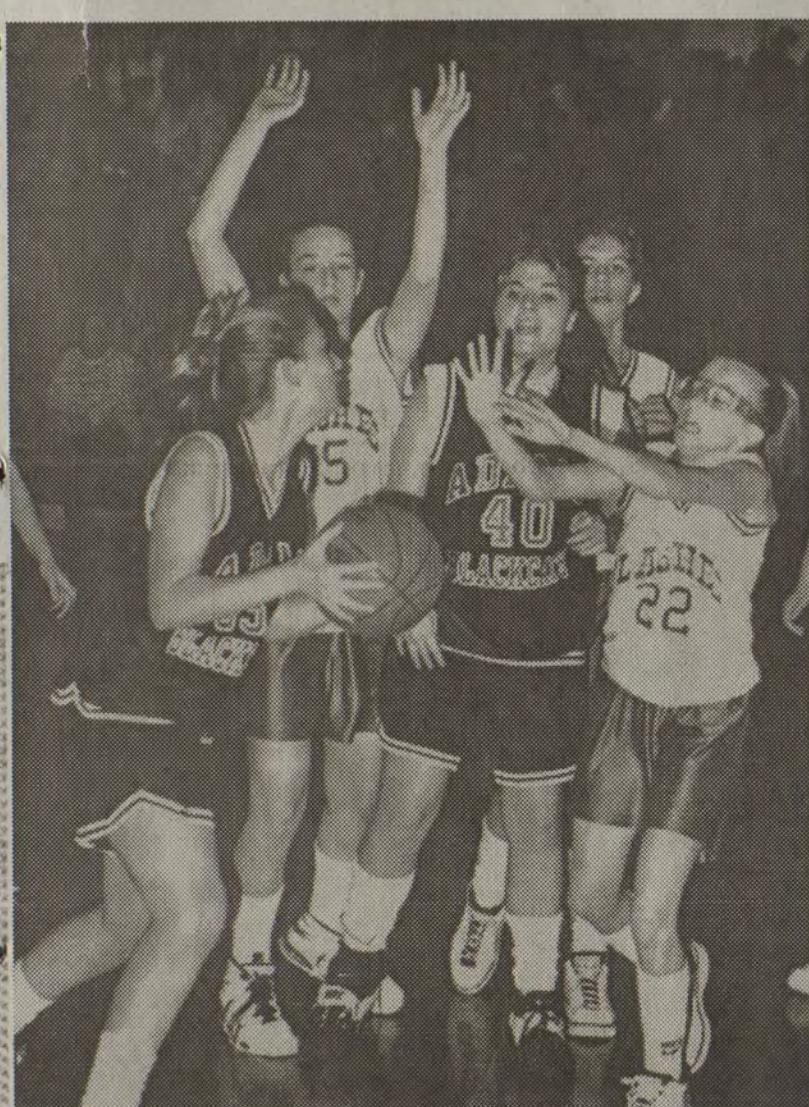

Sarah Goble and Curnutt led Auxier with four points each.

Prater led 9-2 after the first quarter and took a 17-6 halftime lead to the locker room. Auxier was cold from the free throw line, missing all nine attempts in the third period. Auxier attempted 12 shots from the stripe and missed on all 12 attempts.

Angela Akers and Hanna Blackburn had two points apiece for Prater. Nina Boyette scored one point.

Newsome, Garrett, Collins and Vanover had two points apiece for Auxier.

Adams surprises Duff in 54-40 win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Beth Combs scored 26 points but got little help as the Duff Lady Bulldogs fell hard to the Adams Middle School Lady Blackcats 54-40 in the semifinals of the Right Beaver Girls' Classic. The game was played last Friday night at Allen Central.

Brittany Hites scored 18 points while Angela Howell and Stephanie Adams added 10 apiece to lead Adams in scoring. Tara Ortega scored six points and Andrea Fleming scored four for Adams. Ashley Ousley had six points. Hites hit two three-point baskets for the Lady Blackcats.

Kari Osborne had four points in the first quarter and finished with six for Duff. Amber Scott, Kari Brown, Stephanie Baker and Victoria Wells each had two points.

Adams held a 15-12 first quarter lead with the play of Hites and Howell. Hites hit a three-point basket and Howell scored four in the initial period. Combs, who scored six points in the first period, got eight in the second as the Lady Bulldogs were down just one point, 27-26, at the half.

The second half proved to be drastic for Duff as Combs scored all but two points for the Lady Bulldogs. Stephanie Baker had two points in the fourth quarter.

Brittany Hites scored 18 points while Angela Howell and Stephanie Adams added 10 apiece to lead Adams in scoring. Tara Ortega scored six points and Andrea Fleming scored four for Adams. Ashley Ousley had six points. Hites hit two three-point baskets for the Lady Blackcats.

Collins scores 23 as Prater rolls past Auxier, 51-37

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Adam Collins pumped in 23 points to lead the Prater Creek Cougars to a 51-37 win over the Auxier Hornets in elementary basketball last week at the Allen gym.

Ricky Powers led the Hornets with 17 points in the Hornets' first loss of the season.

The Cougars jumped in front 13-11 after the first quarter behind Collins' eight points. Nick Spears and Justin Hughes had two points each for Prater in the first period. Ralph Mullet, who finished with nine points for Auxier, scored six first-quarter points with Powers tossing in five.

Prater Crean outscored Auxier in the second period 11-5 to lead 24-16 at the half. Collins continued his scoring spree with seven second-quarter points. Powers had both field goals for Auxier in the period with Mullet scoring one point.

Spears and Wes Senters scored eight points each for Prater in the victory. Ben Davis, Justin Hughes, Wes Meade, Billy Flashes 40-18.

Parsons had to be a one-person gang for the Lady Mustangs, but even she couldn't do it alone. Stumbo fell hard to the Martin Middle School Lady Flashes 40-18.

Parsons scored all 18 points for Stumbo, getting little support from the rest of the cast. Barbara Prater scored 13 points to lead Martin and Shannon Sizemore added 11. Angie Green and Brandi Moore had four apiece for Martin. Rebecca Smith, Sarah Adkins and Megan Hyden scored two points each.

It was Martin, six, and Parsons, four, after the first quarter with the Lady Flashes holding a 20-8 halftime lead.

Loper, Jason Skeans and Craig Keathley each scored two points.

Jonathan Gillispie netted four points for Auxier. Jody Harris scored two while Eric Jarrell and Dusty Scott had two points each.

In the "B" team game, Craig Keathley scored 12 points to lead Prater Creek to a 35-14 win over Auxier. Roy Conn added six points with Jason Skeans and Billy Loper adding five each. Nathan Slone scored two points.

Just call him champ, again

Several months ago in the bone-chilling cold of February to be exact, I penned a column which included my picks for your 1996 Winston Cup champion. I listed three drivers that would make a bid for the title.

Those three drivers? Well, they were Jeff Gordon, Dale Earnhardt and Terry Labonte. However, I must admit that out of those three, I least expected Terry Labonte to be the man at the point when Doyle Ford dropped the checkered flag for the last time in 1996.

Heading into last Sunday's season-ending NAPA 500, all Labonte had to do was finish eighth or better, and the title was his. Labonte, broken hand and all, ran among the front all day and drove his Kellogg's Chevy home to a fifth-place showing to clinch the 1.5 million-dollar purse and claim the title of champion.

Texas Terry...The Iceman... Whatever you choose to call him, one must now add "champ" to his list of names. But please remember, this is the second time Labonte has won this highly coveted motorsports honor. For some reason, Labonte's 1984 Winston Cup championship is overlooked by many.

His '84 title came during the infant stages of NASCAR's boom in popularity. Labonte had been in the mix for five seasons at that time, but he was overshadowed by the likes of Darrell Waltrip, Bobby Allison, and a new kid on the block by the name of Dale Earnhardt. In fact, the decade of the 1980s saw Darrell Waltrip and Dale Earnhardt account for six of the 10 championships handed out during that span.

Brad Daugherty and Eddie Tibbs combined for 34 points to lead the Besty Layne Bobcats past the Duff Bulldogs 69-34 in the semifinals of the Right Beaver Boys' Classic at Allen Central Friday night.

Daugherty scored 18 points with Tibbs totaling 16. Chase Gibson added 13 for the winners.

David Watkins scored 10 points to lead Duff's scoring. Rodney Scott was held to only five points.

Betsy Layne used its quickness and outside shooting to take a 20-7 first-quarter lead over Ronnie Patton's ballclub. Daugherty scored eight of his 18 in the opening quarter. Tibbs hit a three-pointer and had six first-quarter points.

Betsy Layne led 39-18 at the half. Duff held Gibson scoreless in the first quarter but he scored seven points in the second quarter.

Burrett Blankenship had eight points for the Bobcats with Brad Bevins tossing in seven points. Jeremy Clark had four points and Chase Yonts added two. Clayton Case scored once.

Travis Francis, Robert Fitzpatrick and Jonathan Ellis scored three points apiece for Duff. Josh Bailey added two points as did John Bailey. Josh Bentley had four points.

one season was three, that says a lot for his ability to remain consistent.

A huge load of congratulations go out to Terry Labonte, Rick Hendrick, Gary DeHart, and the entire Kellogg's Racing team for a championship well deserved.

And so the sun has set upon yet another NASCAR Winston Cup season. In the coming weeks, I'll take time to reflect upon the season past and we'll begin looking ahead to 1997. Don't forget that next week, I'll reveal your choices for the 1996 Readers' Choice Awards, and more importantly, I'll give the winner of the racing collectable package.

LABONTE WEEKEND IN ATLANTA; TERRY IS STILL THE 1996 WINSTON CUP CHAMPION, BOBBY WINS NAPA 500

Terry and Bobby Labonte both came home winners this past Sunday in the Winston Cup NAPA 500 at the Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Bobby Labonte got his first win of the '96 season, while older brother Terry won the Winston Cup Championship. Both drivers celebrated their respective wins by taking a victory lap side-by-side around the 1.5-mile oval.

Bobby started from the pole and led the most laps. "Man, this was something wasn't it," he said. "Who got the biggest win?"

For Terry, it was the end of a long dry spell. He won the championship in 1984, but since then, he has experienced a lot of ups and downs in his racing career. Driving with a broken hand Sunday, that hurt him during the latter part of the race, Terry was exhausted but very humble after the race ended.

"It's just a great day," said Terry. "I want to thank all those people who didn't give up and retained faith in me. It took me 12 years to come back. You just can't give up."

Labonte did what he had to do, he finished. Teammate Jeff Gordon came in third, but Labonte's winning margin for finishing fifth was 37 points.

NOVEMBER IS GUN SAFETY MONTH

In grade schools around the state, children are finding out about Eddie Eagle. He's the mascot for gun safety and the star of a program taught by Kentucky State Police (KSP) Public Affairs officers, according to Lieutenant Jerry Nauert of the KSP in Frankfort.

November is Gun Safety Month and the Kentucky State Police, along with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR), have joined together to promote it. They will be in the schools teaching gun safety through the conservation education classes and Eddie Eagle programs.

"The Eddie Eagle program focuses on gun-proofing your child rather than merely childproofing your gun," says Mac Lang, KDFWR Hunter Education Administrator. It is a program that reaches over one million kids each year.

The Eddie Eagle program is taught in schools and civic organizations to make children aware of the dangers of firearms and what to do in real situations where guns are involved. It is geared toward first through sixth graders. Teachers and police officers can receive free NRA Eddie Eagle teaching material by calling 1-800-336-7402. These gun safety programs do not promote or discourage guns in general.

Fifth and sixth graders will also learn about gun safety through the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife's Conservation Education program. The program is taught by Conservation Education Program leaders and reaches Kentucky schools with fifth and sixth grade classes. In November, leaders will focus on gun safety.

Children interested in outdoor sports can learn further valuable gun safety lessons by taking the Hunter Education course that is offered free around the state. In this course, safe and ethical use of firearms is taught. For information about a class near you, call (502) 564-4762.

As an added effort for awareness during gun safety month, volunteers will make appearances at community locations, promoting gun safety and handing out materials on the subject.

1997 DRIVER AND TEAM CHANGES

• Mike Skinner, the 1995 Craftsman Truck Series Champion, will drive the second Richard Childress Winston Cup car. Replacing Skinner in the truck series will be Jay Sauter.

Sauter, son of veteran driver Jim Sauter, drove a limited truck schedule for Felix Sabates' Team Sabco in 1996.

• Gary Cogswell, team manager of Rypien Motorsports, will leave and become crew chief of a second entry in the 1997 Busch Series by Team 34 Racing.

It is rumored that Todd Bodine will be the driver for the new team, and Stanley tools will be the sponsor.

PETTY LOSES IN BID FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

Richard Petty has had a lot of success on the track, including seven Winston Cup driving titles, plus 200 victories on the track. His latest victory on the track was October 27, when his STP Pontiac driven by Bobby Hamilton won the Dura-Lube 500 at Phoenix. But the "King" lost out in his bid to become North Carolina's Secretary of State.

On November 5, North Carolina voters went with Democrat Elaine Marshall.

Petty, a Republican, had served 16 years as a County Commissioner in Randolph County, North Carolina from 1978 until 1994, at which time he did not seek re-election.

Political observers say Petty had better name recognition, but two factors that may have contributed to his defeat were: his duties as a Winston Cup team owner, because of its time consuming duties, and his fund-raising activities outside the state.

Wrestling is fake; so's politics

When I was about ten years old, television moved into our neighborhood.

The two or three families who owned one, some of whom didn't even have kids of their own, somehow seemed to be able to cope with the constant traffic kids who popped in and out at all hours of the day and night just to glimpse the little snowy screen. You'd be surprised, though, just how interesting Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, Meet the Press, and Marlin Perkins can be to brand-smacking new TV viewers.

It was Saturday late night, however, that was the favorite TV time for little brother Joe and me. We'd practically count the hours all week long until it was time to go down to Bill Hampton's and watch live wrestling.

We believed with all our hearts that wrestling was real. We were too young, of course, to realize that such an important event could be fake. When Big Bill Miller would kick Nich Robert's sore knee while he writhed in pain and referee Arch Turner looked somewhere else, it was, beyond doubt, real. We'd get all worked up when the dirty wrestler beat the clean wrestler and the dirty wrestler would strut around and act briggy when we knew he'd cheated.

It was a long time coming, but the realization finally came that...even now I hate to say it...wrestling was fake.

It was show business, plain and simple. Just a choreographed piece of entertainment.

Just like politics is today.

The only difference is, I figured it out about wrestling 40 or 50 years ago. I'm just now coming to that conclusion about politics.

Take President Clinton, for instance.

In his acceptance speech last week, he praised Dole for a fine campaign, for all the contributions he's made to society and his long and illustrious career.

Less than 24 hours earlier, as he approached the end of his 96-hour to victory, Dole was telling everybody who'd listen that Clinton wasn't fit to marry your cousin, let alone be your president. To the cheers of loyal supporters, Dole lambasted Clinton until a fly wouldn't light on him.

Since the election, I've even heard talk that when Clinton restructures his new administration, he might even ask Dole — the man he claimed wanted to build a bridge to the past — to serve in some important capacity.

Now why would he do that? Why doesn't he ask Newt to be his Secretary of State? And, while he's at it, since every old wrestling card featured midget wrestling (just for the sake of novelty, of course) why not stick Ross Perot in there, too. And let's not forget to make David Brinkley his press secretary.

The only way something like this makes a lick of sense is if it's all a made-up deal in the first place; if they're only dancing to a tune that's been rehearsed weeks in advance; if, like Roy and Gene and the Durango Kid, they're just shooting blanks.

Let's face it. We voters get all worked up and the big-time politicians play games.

Wrestling is fake.
So's politics.

Editor's Note: The following article about the Steven Segal movie filmed in Hazard and Jackson appeared in a recent edition of the Morehead News and is reprinted with their permission. Jeff Frazier, who is named in the article, is the son of Gary and Kitty Frazier, co-owners of Country at Heart in Prestonsburg. Gary Frazier, also a realtor for Century 21, said that he showed movie star Steven Segal property in Floyd County where Segal could reside during the filming of "Fire Down Below."

"Segal came swooping in a big helicopter. He was very professional, very courteous, yet all business.

He lives his role. He was dressed in black. He had his martial arts look. He was wearing a Nehru jacket — long sleeved, heavy, and black. Segal is very huge, a big man. He had star presence, but he couldn't have been nicer to everybody."

Frazier said.

Frazier told Segal about his son Jeff, who is a big Steven Segal fan. Jeff auditioned for a role in the movie and got the part and, as they say, the rest is history.

"He seemed disappointed," Frazier said.

Staff Writer
Morehead News

Morehead resident Jeff Frazier is no Steven Segal.
But with his long black hair which he keeps pulled back in a ponytail, Frazier could be mistaken for the famous film actor.

Just ask the crew of "Fire Down Below," Segal's latest project now being filmed in Hazard and Jackson in Eastern Kentucky.

Frazier and two co-workers followed the casting call to Perry County to audition for the movie. All three were given non-speaking roles.

"He wasn't allowed to wear his hair outside his clothes," said Keith McCane. "They (the crew) said it looked too much like Segal's."

Talk about your Hollywood egos.

However, Frazier says that Segal is very down-to-earth but takes his work seriously.

"He was extremely professional. He's very, very meticulous about all aspects of the production," Frazier said.

On Frazier's first trip to Hazard, he took along co-worker Dana Grossman who was more than willing to catch a glimpse of Hollywood. Later, Frazier's connections to the film would land a part for another co-worker, Keith McCane.

All are employed by Agape Community Services in Morehead.

"I'm a humongous fan. I've seen (Segal's) movies a dozen times,"

Frazier said.

"It was amazing. He looks exactly like he does in the movies, the way he talks, the way he carries himself."

Segal, with his soft-spoken 'tough guy' attitude, large build, and trademark black clothing, is co-producing "Fire Down Below."

Some of his other films include "The Glimmer Man," "Under Siege," and "Hard To Kill."

In "Fire Down Below," Segal stars as FBI agent John Taggart who investigates illegal toxic waste dumping in the coal mines of Eastern Kentucky.

Other cast members include county singer Mark Collie and Alex Harvey.

Frazier and Grossman were cast as coal miners and McCane was cast as an employee of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Frazier's dad, Gary, a realtor in Floyd County, had met the film's location manager, Alan Forbes, while showing him a house for Segal to rent.

"He mentioned to (Forbes) that I was a big (Segal) fan and gave me the dates to come down to audition," Frazier said.

Frazier and Grossman's audition, which included filling out an information sheet and having a photograph taken, took about 20 minutes, Frazier said. They got to the audition about three hours early so they were first in line.

They were among about 700 others to audition.

In Frazier's first encounter with Segal, Frazier was in costume as part of a bio-hazard team.

"The first time I spoke to him I bumped into him," said Frazier who stood behind Segal in a scene. "The glass in my bio-hazard suit steamed up...and I saw this big wall of black, praying it was his body double."

Another of Frazier's scenes, filmed at night, featured his character receiving a pay-off for allowing toxic waste to be brought into the mine.

Counterfeit money was used, except for $10,000 for a bit of authenticity, Frazier said. "They told us they counted it at first and would count it again when we got

SENIOR CITIZENS, IT'S REVIEW TIME.

As you know, this series of articles has been dealing with the fact that changes have taken place in our federal Medicare program. The past five weeks you have been reading in your Sunshine Lines article that serious changes in today's Medicare are sweeping across Kentucky.

For the most part these articles have included direct quotations from the booklet, "Your Guide To Understanding—An Important Message From Medicare." In actuality, this booklet is an explanation of patient rights—your rights when you are confronted with these changes. Unfortunately, not every holder of the Medicare insurance card has this booklet of other available information that details these changes.

I strongly urge you to call the Medicare Beneficiary Hotline to request copies of booklets and pamphlets that are available, free of charge, so you will know exactly what these changes are before you are in a medical situation where you are required to deal with them.

As a review, in regard to your rights when faced with these changes, it is important that you know the following.

1:12 p.m. — EMS run to Archer Clinic. Caller could not advise any further information.

4:02 p.m. — Caller reported vandalism at Indian Hills. Caller advised that a car had been parked for several days and the windshield was broken out. Concerned that it could be a hazard.

7:13 p.m. — Caller advised that five subjects were throwing rocks at his car at Jenny Wiley Village.

Explanation of Benefits from Medicare. This notice is an official Medicare determination."

You can request a reconsideration of the PRO decision as well as a Hospital-Issue Notice of Noncoverage. If the reconsideration still does not meet with your approval you have the right to appeal, in some cases even to the federal court level.

Remember, if you find it necessary to request a reconsideration, "Your opinion is vitally important in the reconsideration process."

Next week, in the continuation of this booklet review, we will discuss Post-Hospital Care to include Medigap coverage. I will diverge from the booklet a bit, at that time, to go in to some detail about additional or supplemental coverage. Medigap insurance is important to have but so many senior citizens in Eastern Kentucky who are totally dependent on fixed incomes simply cannot afford it.

Sunshine Lines is brought to you as an outreach effort of the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens. For more information about this program, call Carol Napier at 886-3876 or toll-free at 1-800-556-3876. Pike County senior citizens, call Anna Cassady at 432-2181.

• It is vitally important for all Medicare recipients to know that you have rights and what those rights are;

• Know before admission that there are very important papers that require your signature;

• It is important that you talk to your doctor(s) about your stay in the hospital;

• Know what a PRO is; what a DRG is; and know the three basic types of HINNs or Hospital-Issued Notices of Non-coverage;

• Know what to do if you feel you are being asked to leave the hospital too soon;

• Know about reconsiderations; deadlines and appeals;

• Know what the changes are, as well as your rights as a patient; and,

• Know what is considered "medically necessary" and what is considered "custodial care." Medicare will pay for services only as long as they are "medically necessary" ... Medicare cannot pay for "custodial care."

• Know that you can call the Medicare Hotline at 1-800-288-1499 and request booklets and other free literature that will explain the changes in Medicare and your rights as a Medicare beneficiary (card holder).

Remember, last week I said that we would discuss further the importance of requesting a reconsideration. The booklet says, "The Notices of Noncoverage...are not official Medicare determinations. These are hospital-issued notices explaining why they believe Medicare may not pay your claim."

"You have the right to request a reconsideration for any and all decisions regarding Medicare services and claim payments."

Ask for a Medicare determination. "You will receive an

M*A*S*H party to benefit Lifeline Emergency Response program

On Saturday, November 16, community members can dress up like their favorite characters from the hit television series M*A*S*H and step into a re-creation of the mobile surgical hospital unit at the National Guard Armory. Proceeds benefit the Lifeline Emergency Response system, a "safety net" which enables the elderly or disabled to remain independently in their homes rather than live in nursing homes.

The gala event will begin at 7 p.m. at the Armory, located on Lexington Avenue, Ashland. Recommended attire for the evening is fatigues, camouflage or utilities (with Hawaiian shirts and bathrobes optional). Tickets to the event are $75 for one, or $125 for two. Admission includes dinner, dancing to classic rock performed by The Return, specially designed M*A*S*H shirts and dog tags. A silent basket auction; caricatures created by Dan Shute, a professional artist with Morehead State University; a M*A*S*H trivia contest; a M*A*S*H character look-alike competition; a putting green and the auction of an original Sandy Perrine pastel are planned. Co-chairs for the event are Cheryl Spriggs and Melissa Behnke.

The Lifeline Emergency Response system is a unique program supported by the King's Daughters' Medical Center Auxiliary. Participants wear a device around their neck or wrist that, when pushed, sends a signal to the operator monitoring the system. The operator attempts to notify individuals on a list provided by the participant, and if unsuccessful in reaching them, notifies 911 to activate an emergency response team.

The program is so well-received and needed in the community that there currently is a waiting list. The King's Daughters' Health Foundation hopes to raise $25,000 from the gala to purchase additional units and expand the Lifeline program to serve more people. In addition to the M*A*S*H event, the Health Foundation also is conducting a raffle of a 1997 Ford Explorer 4 x 4. Raffle tickets are $100 each (only 500 tickets will be sold). The winner may choose the vehicle or $20,000 cash. The raffle drawing will take place at 10 p.m. during the M*A*S*H party.

For more information or to purchase raffle or event tickets, or to make a contribution to the Lifeline Emergency Response Program, call Chuck Charles, executive director, Health Foundation, at (606) 327-4424.

done," he said with a laugh.

McCane was cast simply because of the way he dressed, according to Frazier.

The casting director was having trouble finding residents to fill the part of the EPA employee, who would be wearing casual business attire, he explained.

When Frazier described McCane, the director said he would fit the part perfectly and McCane was eventually cast in the role.

McCane, with clipboard and badge, interviews a coal miner in the movie. But he's allowed only to mouth the words because he has no actual lines.

"It could be a two second pan or it couldn't be there at all," McCane said of his scene.

McCane, Agape executive director, has kept his movie badge as a souvenir.

Frazier, Agape residential coordinator, keeps a few mementos of his own.

"That's going under glass," said Frazier, extracting Segal's business card from his desk drawer. "It was a big treat to be in the same scene as he was."

Frazier keeps the card with his other keepsakes: a movie call sheet, pay stubs.

Would-be actors seeking to get rich at auditions like the one in Hazard should just stay at home. Speaking roles net an actor about $500 a day. Non-speaking roles bring in $5 an hour.

After each day of takes and re-takes, the Agape employees make about 40 bucks.

Will the weight loss drug help?

by Karen Collins, M.S., R.D.

American Institute for Cancer Research

With close to one-third of adult Americans overweight, the potential market for the newest obesity-fighting drug is huge. If you are among those whose weight has gone beyond its ideal level, how can you know whether the new drug is likely to help?

Dexfenfluramine, sold under the name Redux, is a non-addictive appetite suppressant that works by altering brain chemicals that tell the body it's had enough to eat. While some researchers believe it offers real hope to people who have been unable to lose weight through other methods, they emphasize that the pill itself does not burn fat, instead, it works to support healthy changes in eating habits that, together with increased physical activity, can result in weight loss.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval of dexfenfluramine offers several recommendations for those who can use the drug safely. The drug should be used only by people who are significantly overweight (by more than 25 pounds or so), and not by the segment of the population in need of minor weight loss (like "the last ten pounds"). Although a physician can write a prescription for anyone, the drug is meant to be used only by adults between the ages of 18 and 65.

Within these categories, there are also candidates for the drug who are advised against taking dexfenfluramine. It is not recommended for people taking certain antidepressants, or some types of migraine medication, due to potentially severe or even fatal drug interactions. In addition, because of the risk of side effects, such as sleepiness, dry mouth and gastrointestinal problems, experts also warn that the drug should only be used by those who are so overweight that the drug risks are less than the health risks caused by the excess weight.

Dieters who fit all of the criteria for taking Redux may be in for a disappointment. Since the new drug works by regulating hunger signals, it will be effective mainly for those who are eating large amounts in response to perceived hunger. Therefore, dexfenfluramine will not be effective for the large number of people who eat in response to boredom, stress, or social situations.

Even people for whom the drug does prove effective may experience weight loss that is not dramatic. Of those who show immediate response to dexfenfluramine, half will lose ten percent of their starting weight (perhaps 15 to 25 pounds) or more, while the other half will lose less than 10 percent or no weight. While such a weight reduction is enough to improve many health conditions, they may not satisfy those who are seeking to improve their self-image.

Other questions should also be asked when considering the possibility of taking the drug. Is it worth the cost of about $2.40 for a typical daily dose? Although this may not sound expensive, if the drug is taken for the full one-year cycle that is allowed by FDA approval the total bill would amount to $876.00 for a loss of ten to thirty pounds.

The drug is meant for people who have tried and failed to lose weight with lifestyle changes, including eating a healthier diet and engaging in regular exercise. Were those "failures" sabotaged by a perfectionistic approach to diet and exercise? A more balanced approach to weight loss, including moderate physical exercise, realistic goals, and occasional treats to avoid feeling deprived within a low-fat diet may provide the incentive you need to stick with a weight loss program without the use of drugs.

So, while this new drug may seem to offer new hope to many, it is only for those who are ready to work on permanent lifestyle changes and willing to face the risks involved. For others, a more sensible approach to weight loss may be given up "dieting" and follow balanced but realistic eating habits that emphasize fruits, vegetables and whole grains, as part of the American Institute for Cancer Research dietary guidelines which support weight control and aim at long-term good health.

income for the purchase of new and existing homes. The Guaranteed Rural Housing (GRH) Program targets families who do not have a down payment and makes financing available for purchasing a home at a fixed rate of interest with a repayment period of 30 years. Fern indicated the increase in allocations will make financing available for approximately 1,025 families to realize the dream of home ownership during the 1997 Fiscal year.

Further information on the above program may be obtained from the local Rural Housing Service Office located at Prestonsburg. The telephone number is 606/886-9545.

Health matters

EXERCISE IN THE COLD

Cold weather may deter many of us from exercising outside. This need not be the case. We can follow a few simple precautions and stay warm and enjoy our outside exercise.

These simple suggestions can keep us warm as we exercise.

- Cover your hands, feet, and head. You can lose up to 70 percent of your body heat through these.

- Try to avoid exercising against the wind. Exercise in areas sheltered from the wind or try to plan your walking or running route so that you avoid the wind as much as possible. Walk or run against the wind the first part of your exercise session return with the wind. Wind will remove the insulated layer of air your body has warmed around itself. Wind chill can make 20 degrees Fahrenheit feel like -5 degrees Fahrenheit when the wind is 15 miles per hour.

- Wet skin and clothing should be avoided. Moisture, including perspiration, increases the loss of body heat. Wet clothing can actually conduct heat from the body. Purchase exercise clothing that is designed to pull perspiration away from the skin or to prevent snow or rain from reaching your skin. These products can be found at sporting goods stores. They are expensive, but they will keep you warm.

- Avoid smoking and drinking prior to exercise. Smoking decreases blood flow to the extremities, causing the body to deliver less body warmth to the extremities. Alcohol expands the surface blood vessels, causing a loss of body warmth.

- Tight fitting clothing and boots should be avoided. Tight fitting clothing leaves no room for trapped warm air that acts as an insulator.

- Inactivity should be avoided. Exercise generates body heat. Running at 0 degrees Fahrenheit can keep you as warm as walking at 40 degrees Fahrenheit or standing still at 60 degrees Fahrenheit. So keep moving.

Try these tips to keep your warm during winter exercise. Most people can safely exercise outside year-round.

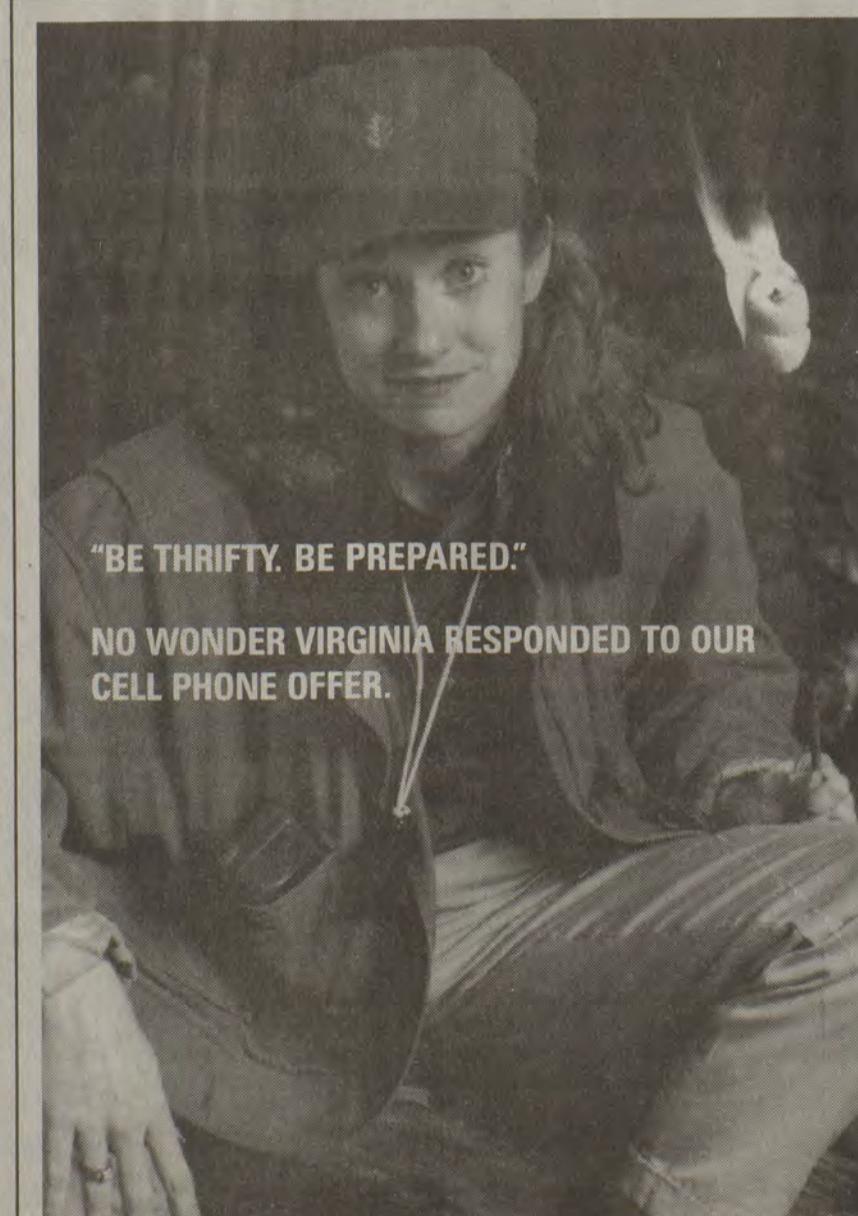

Tip of the Week: People have more colds in the winter, but the weather is not the culprit. Schools are in session in winter, and kids spend more time indoors together. They are exposed to more cold viruses, and then expose other family members.

Allen Central art students win in KFWC exhibit

In the recently held regional art exhibit of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, Allen Central High School had several winners.

The show was held at Jenny Wiley State Park along with a luncheon for the members of the club. Entries were from all clubs in this and neighboring counties. Allen Central's entries were sponsored by the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club.

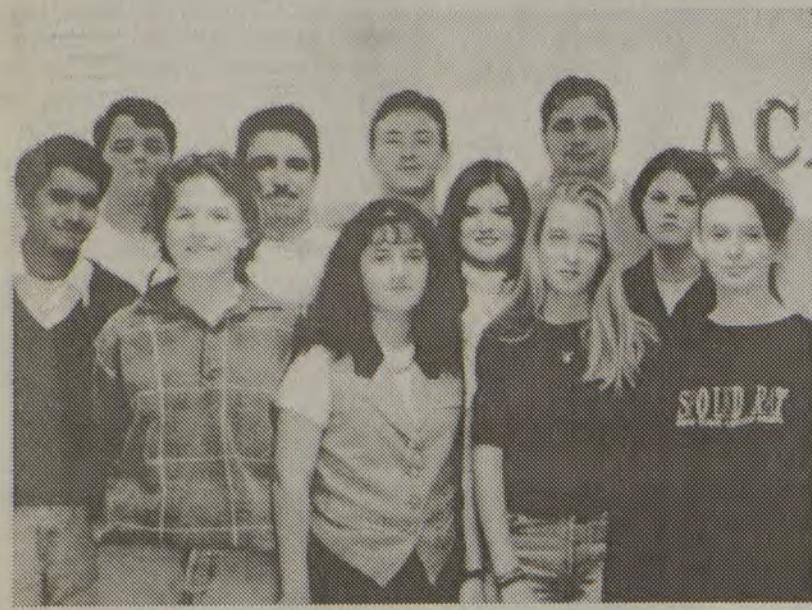

Xavier Scott placed first in the show in pencil drawing. He is the son of Mary Martin of Langley, Sherry Daniels of Pikeville, and Charles Scott of Prestonsburg.

Also winning first place was Kerrie Patton in the area of watercolor. She is the daughter of Kern and Linda Patton of McDowell.

Vanessa Shepherd won first place with her pastel drawing. Vanessa is the daughter of Lendon and Anna Shepherd of Hueysville.

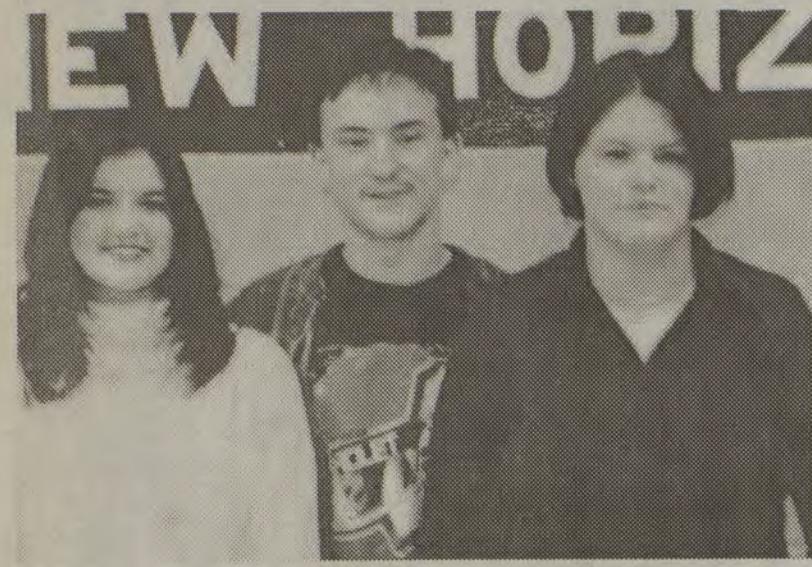

The first place winner in acrylic/oil painting was Nathan Muriel. He is the son of Robert and Vonda Muriel of Garrett.

All students are members of the Talented and Gifted Art Class at Allen Central High School taught by Mrs. Caralita O'Quinn.

Math club

Members of the Allen Central High School Math Club participated in problem-solving activities at Morehead State University.

Allen Central Math Club wins honors at MSU meet

Fourteen members of the ACHS Math Club attended Morehead State University's Mathematics, Physics, Advanced Technology Exploration Day (MPATE) on October 2. The 450 students from all attending schools were divided into teams of four to compete in several different problem-solving activities. These activities involved using mathematics, physics, and technology. The 20 top-scoring teams received prizes. Allen Central had three students in the top 20.

Kyle Turner took second place and won a TI-83 graphics calculator; Nerissa Sparkman, got fourth place and won a MSU sweatshirt;

Headstart students

learn fire safety

The Allen Headstart Class was one of the classes at Allen Elementary that was visited by the Allen Fire Department. They learned about fire safety at school and in the home. The children listened and later asked questions as Lt. Neil Rice explained different techniques to deal with fire, but the most exciting part of the visit was when they got to visit the fire truck outside. He kept their attention while he expressed the dangers of fire. Pictured seated in the fire truck is Jordan Ward, son of Rhonda Ward of Allen. Ward is also pictured wearing a face mask. Others in the photo are Erica Crace, McKenna Conley, Nathan (Na-Na) Jarrell, Felicia Keathley, Johnathan Jarrell, Tiffany Reed, and Amber Collins.

FOR BIDS
SCADA System
Software Upgrade

Sealed bids will be received by Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission on the modernization of a remote control system, which will require professional software services as indicated below.

The project will consist of a DOS/MS DOS based system with Windows application. The primary function will be to Monitor/Control all existing and future water, wastewater and gas MRU's and MRTU's or comparable field remote units. This upgrade must have in place all software needed to expand the existing system to 100 sites. The existing system must be operable during all phases of upgrade. The present system is: Motorola INTRAC 2000 system with a HP Workstation controller. The interface unit must be expandable to any future "In Plant" controllers.

EQUIPMENT includes, but is not limited to:

- Full function graphics package, Intellus or comparable; Wonderware or comparable; Motorola MDS CAD F.I.U./CPU Firmware and Port Configuration upgrades; Modbus (Modbus Plus); Protocol; Third Party Generic Intrac F.I.U. Application; Motorola Programming Tool Box for F.I.U.

Respondent/vendor shall be thoroughly familiar with all phases of the design and construction of the existing system. All work, design and software development of the new system will comply with all state and local codes in effect at the job site.

Specifications on the modernization project may be picked up at the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission office at 2103 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653-1458. Bids will be received at Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission office until 2:00 p.m., November 22, 1996, at which time they will be opened and read aloud.

Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission reserves the right to reject any and all bids, which bids shall not be withdrawn for 45 days subsequent to the opening of the bids without the consent of Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission. There will be a 5% bid bond required.

Bids and bid bonds shall be in a sealed envelope bearing the bidder's identification, addressed to Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission, 2103 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653-1458, labeled in the lower left-hand corner: "Bids for SCADA System Software Upgrade."
