Martin council seeks way out of sewer problems

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

With a demand for a $15,000 penalty for non-compliance facing the city, the Martin City Council met in special session Tuesday to head off further problems.

Mayor Allen Whicker told the council that the state Department of Environmental Protection was upset because the city had not complied with an agreement to repair a lift station, which pumps sewage from the tank behind McDonald's Restaurant to the sewage plant at Cracker Bottom.

"We don't have the money, but they're going to hold our feet to the fire," Whicker said.

The letter dated October 1, 1998, said that the city would be fined $15,000 for not meeting with several points of the agreement.

One part of the agreement that the city has not met is the replacement or repair of the lift station on KY 80.

The order also agreed that by October 1, 1998, all residences

Trees shade dispute

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

An odd-shaped boundary line, "big square rock," and a barbed-wire fence were central points to a three-way tree-cutting dispute that played out in Floyd Circuit Court this week.

Land owner Edna Harris of Corn Fork in the Brandy Keg community brought suit against tree harvesters Stony Newsome of Hi Hat and Forrest Hall of Topmost for cutting timber on her property without permission.

Newsome and Hall, in turn, filed suit against Tom Reynolds who lives next door to Harris for failing to point out definite boundary lines between his property and the property of Harris.

Harris said that the two loggers cut up to 39 trees on her property without permission. Hall and Newsome had asked Harris about selling them the trees, but she said, "My husband told me 'don't ever sell the trees.'" Harris sought restitution for the value of the trees.

Hall and Newsome were cutting trees on the land owned by Reynolds. According to Reynolds and two of his sons, CD and Tom, the loggers were told not to go beyond a certain point that they marked by cutting down a tree as a marker.

It was Reynolds' contention that the loggers did go beyond this point and harvested the timber belonging to Harris.

Hall and Newsome's attorney kept referring to a "big square rock" that was mentioned in a document signed by Reynolds and three of his sons. According to the document, the big rock was the focal point for determining boundary lines.

Even though the three signed the document, the Reynoldses claimed it had little or no bearing on the issue. The document was written by Hall.

Tom Reynolds accepted the money for all trees that were cut, and said he would not consider giving Harris the amount of money made from the sale of her trees.

Flag celebrates festival

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

In conjunction with the Red, White and Blue Day celebration in Martin this week, Opportunities Unlimited, Floyd County's public alternative school, conducted a flag pole dedication on Wednesday.

Student Justin Jones introduced invited speakers who spoke on the flag and what freedom means. The list of speakers included Harold Bayes, Rev. Russ Taylor and Shular Herd.

Arnold Carter, state manager of the Floyd County Board of Education, was on the agenda but could not attend. Carter is a retired Army colonel.

Bayes, a veteran and teacher's aide from Paintsville, told the group, "When I took the oath to enter the US Navy, I swore I would give up my life for my country."

He referred to the flag as the cross of freedom and said we could find the cross of freedom buried in the ground with those veterans who gave their lives so Americans could have freedom.

Herd, a disabled American veteran from Ivel, told the students, "If it were not for veterans, we might be speaking German or Japanese."

Taylor talked about three important events in his military career. The first he said was taking the oath to defend the country, and the second event was the receiving of a folded flag upon retirement. The third one is the use of the flag on the death of a veteran when the flag is draped over the casket during

Mine violations bring home incarceration

by Kim Hefling
Associated Press

A coal operator in Floyd County has been sentenced to four months of home incarceration for allowing safety violations at a mine where a miner died, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Muncie Meade Jr., 51, of Demia, also must serve two years of supervised probation. He was sentenced Monday by Judge Joseph M. Hood in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

Tracy Bryant, 20, of Honaker, was shoveling loose coal from the mine ribs at the M&D Coal Company No. 3 Mine in Floyd County when the roof collapsed in August 1996, killing him. Officials believe Bryant was dead for nearly a day before the accident was noticed and reported. It was only his second day on the job.

Meade previously pleaded guilty to two mine safety violations. They included sending newly employed miners directly to work in the mine without providing required mine-specific training and for not doing

Just as the passing of community leaders Kathryn and Chalmer Frazier left a void in this region, so will the passing of their landmark home leave a void in downtown Prestonsburg. With the heirs unable to maintain the structure and no buyers willing to take on the responsibility, the house will be leveled this fall for a much-needed parking lot. An auction of the house's contents — from antique dolls to door knobs — will be tomorrow and Sunday and continuing next weekend. The Times next week plans to run historic pictures of the structure and information about its place in the heart of the county seat. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Groundbreaking Wednesday

Times staff report

The gold shovel brigade will be out in full force next Wednesday for the official groundbreaking ceremony for the Prestonsburg Recreational and Economic Development Project, commonly called the Mountain Top Project.

Gov. Paul Patton, US Congressman Hal Rogers and State Rep. Greg Stumbo are among dignitaries who will speak at the event which starts at 11 a.m.

Access to the site is from KY

321, about one mile north of Prestonsburg Community College.

The project began as an 18-hole golf course and recreational complex on a 1,000-acre plot adjacent to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. The state contributed $400,740 for the design of the project last year.

Since the original concept was envisioned, project plans have grown to include an industrial park and residential subdivisions.

Also projected is a new access road from KY 302 near the entrance to the state park.

Book 'em

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

What would you do if you had a beautiful new library, but not enough usable, up-to-date books to stock it?

That's the situation Friends of the Library at Prestonsburg High School (PHS) faced when they met Monday to plan their strategies for obtaining new books.

Peggy Hereford noted that when the class of 1958 held its reunion, the alumni noticed that the library in the newly renovated building was a wonderful facility. But when they looked at the shelves, they made a startling observation: The library needs books.

According to librarian Jamie

Adams, a good library should have 10 books per student. At that rate, PHS would need about 7,200 books. The library now houses about 6,000 volumes of which only 2,000 to 3,000 are usable, said Adams. The books have accumulated over the years, and many contain out-of-date information.

One plan was to have people donate books, but Paul Hughes said a better idea would be to collect money so the specific books that are needed can be purchased.

The goal is to collect $10,000 for this school year. Hughes said he is confident that amount can easily be raised. He suggested as much as $20,000 could possibly be raised.

The librarian will have discretion in buying books as the need arises, the group decided.

Jamie Adams, Fred James and Peggy Hereford introduce the video that will explain the plans and objectives of Friends of the Library of Prestonsburg High School during recent meeting.

within the city would be connected to the city's sewage system and would eliminate all illegal discharge of untreated or partially treated sanitary waste water.

Whicker said the city did not do the necessary repairs because it did not have the money in the general fund. He also said that the city had anticipated some grants to help with these problems, but they have not been forthcoming.

Sonny Fletcher, project manager with Haworth, Meyer & Boleyn Inc. of Frankfort, gave the council a rough estimate of $30,000 to $50,000 for correcting the problem. He noted that the cost would be greater if the work were put off until winter.

He said the lift station should last as much as 20 years if given proper maintenance.

Whicker surmised that the state might be lenient if the council shows good faith and starts immediately on plans to correct the problems.

A motion was made and passed to take the money from the general fund to start the project.

Whicker said he would declare an emergency and avoid the need for bidding for services. Whicker said, "Bidding can take as much as 60 days and we don't have 60 days."

Betsy Carroll and Bob Lewandowski from the Big Sandy Area Development District were on hand to assist. Fletcher said he would send a more detailed report and get started on the project shortly.

He said he would write to the state Environmental Protection Department and explain to them what steps were being taken to correct the problem.

The council went into executive session to discuss pending litigation—the case of Burke vs. City of Martin.

Trees

talking about a barbed-wire fence that marked the boundary between the Reynolds and Harris properties. Both Hall and Newsome said they were not aware of any such fences.

Peter Kovalic, a consultant forester from Winchester, testified on the results of a study he did on the harvesting. Included in his report were these findings about the trees harvested on Harris' property:

- three acres of harvested land
- 35 trees cut and completed processed
- 13,329 board feet footage
- $4,936.59 total value of tree harvest

Kovalic also alleged that Hall and Newsome were not responsible loggers because they left about 4,150 broad feet of trees in the forest that had value and should have been marketed.

After about four hours of deliberations, the jury awarded a split settlement to Harris. Newsome and Hall were responsible for 85 percent while Reynolds was liable for 15 percent.

In a timber dispute of this kind, the law states that the value of the timber is three times the standing timber. The judgment came to $14,809.77. Harris will receive 85 percent of this amount from Newsome and Hall.

The Friends organization is now making a list of all graduating classes. A letter will be sent to graduates asking that books be donated in their name. Randy Burchett wrote two letters for the group to read and consider.

A separate list will be mailed to local businesses and individuals who are not PHS graduates.

The group made a film which will cover the main points of the meeting and will be aired on local access cable television (CableVision Channel 7).

In the introduction to the film, Fred James quotes Mark Twain: "A man who does not read good books has no advantage over the man who cannot read."

Peggy Hereford suggested that a name plate be placed in each book that is bought with this donated money.

Students at PHS will enter the data collected from graduates and the list will be made available to other groups such as reunion committees.

Hereford said the group feels this project is one way that graduates can give back to the school and community for all the things PHS gave to them.

If you have a list of a particular class and have not been contacted, call Hereford at 886-3057 with that information.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ME

GOD'S FAVOR IS OUR GREATEST BLESSING

In the spring of 1984, I was nearly at my wit's end.

I'd returned several years earlier to the University of Kentucky to learn to be a writer, as I mentioned last week.

By 1984, I was finishing a master's degree in English, my second degree. But I was still dead broke. I had an infant to feed and a wife who was working only part-time. I had few contacts and no prospects for finding a full-time writing position that would support my family.

So I thought about going to law school, but didn't know how I'd pay my way through. I considered selling insurance. I even talked with the army.

I thought about earning yet another master's degree, in journalism, to gain the kind of hands-on experience that might enable me to get a job with a newspaper.

In fact, I considered almost everything, including jumping off a bridge.

One heartsick night I was flipping through the Bible. I spied a verse in Proverbs that said something like this: "A man flips a coin, but God decides which side comes up."

And I recalled that when the 11 remaining disciples were looking for a 12th man to replace Judas Iscariot, they had cast lots to identify the guy God had chosen.

Figuring I had nothing to lose, I prayed, then wrote down on slips of paper each of the eight or 10 options I was considering. After folding the slips I dropped them into a hat, shook the hat vigorously and tossed the papers onto the carpet.

I picked up a piece of paper and unfolded it. "M.A. in communications," it said.

The College of Communications at UK included, among other programs, the university of Journalism. I'd written "M.A. in communications" to indicate the option of pursuing a master's degree there with an emphasis on journalism.

The next day, I made an appointment to talk with the director of graduate studies in communications, who I'd never met. I arrived at his office feeling sheepish.

I said I knew I'd missed the college's application deadlines, but that I wanted to study journalism that fall and needed a job to pay my tuition and support my family.

"Well," he said, "we'll waive the deadlines. And the director of the journalism school has an opening for a graduate assistant. It's the only position we have left. He's interviewed people but hasn't picked anybody. Do you have time to talk with him?"

"You bet," I said.

Within minutes I was sitting before a nationally recognized scholar and former Washington D.C. reporter named Ed Lambeth.

He hired me on the spot as his assistant instructor. Thus began a mentoring relationship with him that lasted for years.

Soon I also learned, to my astonishment, that I'd won an unrelated, high-paying internship at IBM.

By that fall I had not one but three jobs -- as Lambeth's assistant, as an IBM technical writer and as a weekend pastor. Suddenly I was earning more than $700 a week, a considerable sum for a graduate student in 1984. I was busy, but euphoric.

Still, the greater thing was what happened to me in the journalism school: the friendships I formed with the director and other professors there changed my life.

I discovered from experience that Lambeth, for instance, could make one call and land me a prestigious fellowship or a reporter's job at a large daily newspaper.

Indeed, everything good that's since happened to me as a writer grew out of that one fateful night, when I threw a few slips of paper on the carpet of our cramped apartment. I think God guided my selection.

There's a term for that kind of blessing. It's called grace.

Grace means that, if we're making any serious attempt to obey

God, we can expect His undeserved favor. From time to time He simply gives us gifts, because He loves us and that's His nature.

We're to labor and do the best we can, of course -- but often our best isn't enough.

And that's when His grace takes over. He's not limited by our inability.

searches of miners for smoking materials.

As a condition of probation, Meade must surrender all foreman and other mining certifications he holds from the state and the Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Eastern Kentucky mines "don't need supervisors like you," Hood said.

Meade must soon undergo heart surgery and that was kept in mind by Hood at the time of sentencing, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Meade's son-in-law, Bill Jones of Dema, who worked as the mine superintendent at the mine, was sentenced in January to two years of probation with the first two months of the period in home detention.

Jones had pleaded guilty to allowing miners to work under an unsupported roof and failing to make them mark where the last row of roof bolts ended at the mine. He also admitted that he smoked underground, which could ignite explosive methane gas and coal dust.

Homemakers honored with a special week of their own

Floyd County Judge Executive Ben Hale proclaimed the week of October 12 through 18 as Floyd County Extension Homemakers Week.

The proclamation is part of a statewide effort to get the word out about the various programs offered through the extension program.

The service is a partnership between the University of Kentucky and the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the local Floyd County government.

Extension homemakers meet through local clubs or ongoing events. The local clubs are part of one of the largest volunteer educational organizations, according to the extension service's Holiday Breads Program.

For more information about the Floyd County Home Extension Program, call Theresa Scott at 886-2668.

The local homemakers program is in the middle of a membership drive to recruit new members, home economist Theresa Scott said last week.

Clubs meet on a regular basis and various topics are discussed at those meetings. This year, topics include a mini lesson breast cancer, updating the home, finding inner beauty, and dealing with depression.

Homemakers are making folk art ornaments from felt that will be used to decorate a Christmas tree at the May Lodge in Jenny Wiley State Park.

Also for the holiday season, homemaker James Shepherd will demonstrate how to make a Russian Tea Loaf as part of the extension service's Holiday Breads Program.

A few days ago a young man in Wyoming died because two other young men apparently needed to prove their manhood. They, no doubt, wanted to show how superior they were in their fine masculine selves to the boy who has been described euphemistically as "effeminate."

The incident is a good example of a way of thinking that says anyone who is unlike us is fair game for hating. Anyone who is different can be harassed, can be run off, can be made to feel inferior — yes, can even be killed.

Charles Edward Hall claimed last spring to agree with that philosophy. The Floyd County man said he was the commander of the White Aryan Legion. (Remember the Aryans, Hitler's elite, the pure race that would annihilate or subordinate those not so pure — most of us would not have made the cut.)

Hall and his cohorts believed they were right to harass people who were different from them, who did not share the same beliefs and behaviors. Here, their furor seemed directed to blacks and mixed race couples, but there's little doubt that the young man in Wyoming would have likewise met with their disapproval.

But, hey, we're probably making more of this than we should. After all, a federal judge in Lexington says we shouldn't be taking Hall so seriously. He only sent some threatening letters, passed out hate literature, collected Nazi flags and shot into a closed post office.

No big deal; hold out your wrists.

The judge sentenced Hall last Friday to one year and a "Tsk! Tsk!" reaction.

White Aryan Legion as merely a "social club or something."

It's all reminiscent of how a teacher might deal with the class bully who pulls a classmate's pigtails. Stop that or you'll have to stay after school.

We hope Hall truly understands that it's not hate and harassment and the need to feel superior that defines a man. We hope someone will work with him, teach him, pray with him, guide him to see that love, tolerance, inclusiveness and peacefulness will help him to grow into a strong, admirable person.

We also have to hope that the judge and the folks in the federal prosecutor's office have a greater insight into this case than we do. From this vantage point, the charges were serious, despicable and downright scary, worth more than one year and a day.

We've got enough problems around here. We really don't need anyone to whom hatred is a positive attribute. We don't need good ol' boy bullies, paunchy Peter Pans hanging out in the clubhouse plotting to change the world, relying on a "Tsk! Tsk!" reaction.

Editor:

I would like to thank Floyd County judge-executive Ben Hale for the quick repair of the road and ditch tile a few months back. Previously there had been a small drainage tile in the stream alongside Hopson Street in Auxier and during severe storms flooding occurred.

One Sunday morning in late June, flooding was so severe that water actually covered the main road half way up a person's knee. The water also shoved the blacktop on the main road up a foot creating a huge speed bump.

Thanks to Judge Hale the problem has been corrected. This month I also noticed roads that had never been resurfaced in years now have blacktop and are certainly nicer to drive on. My wife and I are glad to have cast our vote for you and we certainly hope you run for another office. You have been an asset to Floyd County.

MICHIGAN READER THINKS OF HOME

Editor:

I'm a native of Kentucky, Floyd County, graduated from Martin High School, Class of 1951, and have been in Michigan since I was a very young lady, but will always call Kentucky my home.

I receive the Floyd County Times, but it always arrives late. I still love it.

I saw in the paper about Heritage Days in the Valley. I sure wished I could have been there for that soup bean supper. I know that's the best food going.

Please tell me how I can get one of the cookbooks, "What's Cooking in the Valley," and how much. If you'll send me one and tell me how much they are, I'll be glad to send you the money.

My trip to Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, Va., was an experience never to be forgotten. My niece and her husband, along with my "special" daughter, Barbara Allen of Martin, who served in the Desert Storm, were able to join me for the experience. We flew US Air both ways and the service and the flight were great.

On Sunday, September 14, we checked in at the Hilton Hotel. The interment for my husband, Major Bernard O. Williams, (US Army Ret.) was on Monday, September 15. He was given the highest mili-

Annual sessions would offer Kentuckians more efficient, responsive government

by State Senate President Larry Saunders

This November, Kentucky voters can claim a more efficient, responsive government as their own. By voting "yes" for a constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to meet annually instead of every two years, our Commonwealth can decisively meet the challenges of the 21st century.

With a short 25-day session in odd-numbered years, Kentucky legislators can more effectively address the rapid changes of the modern era, coping with problems as they arise, shifts in the economy and new federal mandates and initiatives demanding quick action.

Citizens are not hungry for more government, but more effective government. Annual sessions will accomplish that. At last count, 43 states have adopted this modern approach. It's past time we discard the biennial sessions of the 19th Century, as well.

Annual sessions will cut down on the number of special sessions that are called to address "crisis" situations. In fact, if we meet each year—and mind the store as a Legislature properly should—fewer problem issues will ever reach the boiling point.

True, the governor will still have the power to

A hastily called special session between annual sessions would raise an immediate red flag with the public—why can't this issue await action for just a few weeks or months?

That pressure to reduce special sessions would save money. But it would also preserve something just as precious: the democratic notion of a "citizen Legislature."

Like many of you, I've always been an animal lover, with strong opinions about people who abuse, mistreat and neglect their pets and who place no value on wildlife.

Now, I'm not a fanatic, though. I once knew a couple who cooked dinner every evening for their over-sexed Chihuahua — scrambled eggs or tuna with cheese sauce or such. A little too much, I'd say.

My aunt in Indianapolis maintains a shrine of sorts for her cherished dog who died a few years ago; she has a little monument on his grave at the side of the house and she decorates it with the seasons, a wreath and cheerful Santa Claus at Christmas, a bunny get-up at Easter, a pumpkin for Halloween. Umm, I don't know ...

I can't go that far. I don't believe in feeding pets at the table and I get peeved at friends and family who try to feed mine when they're at my house. I don't think you should let your pets get all over guests and make nuisances of themselves.

I have a couple of cousins who used to chide me for taking my animals in the car with me, letting them sleep on the bed, and other such indulgences. I always replied that no other creatures were as glad to see me at the end of the day as my dogs, and no person could give me such unconditional, overwhelming and undeserved love.

A couple of years ago, the male cousin got a part-terrier, part-something else mix from another relative, and he's been gaga ever since. Now, he and his sister, who share a house, mark the days of their lives by this little dog. They take him with them wherever they go, they get down on the floor to beg him to eat, and they have accumulated a boxful of squeaky toys just for him.

I want so badly to go "Nah, nah, nah, nah," but I resist.

One thing I really liked about Mountain Manor Nursing Home in Paintsville where my mother spent her last few months was that the management allowed you to bring pets to visit the residents. I tried to bring one of the dogs to visit her at least once a week. On those days, I would swear that she was as happy to see the dog as to see me.

I appreciate the look of full stock dogs, but my preference is for the animals of mixed heritage, especially those who've had some tough times and seem so very grateful that someone would love them.

My little multi-breed Daisy, for instance, was found under a dumpster when she was only six or seven weeks old, reeking of mange and worms and near starvation. Now, a healthy three-year-old, she is one of the sweetest, most loving dogs anyone could hope for.

Proud, affectionate Dudley was picked up while walking along a road in southern Ohio by a woman who gave him to another of my many cousins who gave him to me. Upon meeting him, everyone asks, "What kind of dog is he?" I have to answer that it's hard to tell, but he looks to be mainly dachshund and cocker spaniel. What a fine find!

I still maintain that I do not overindulge my dogs, but last Sunday I was feeling especially generous. As is our routine, they rode into town with me to get a Sunday paper. My favorite place to go is the Shell station near the high school in Prestonsburg for two reasons: One, they have newspapers on a stand so you don't have to have a pocketful of quarters.

rubble is an improvement. Forget about the trees, wildlife, aquatic life—and people!

A great portion of Martin, Pike, Perry and other counties have been turned into moonscapes. The perpetrators, driven by greed, are now after Black Mountain, the highest point in Kentucky.

We citizens must put pressure on our officials to stop this madness. Eastern Kentucky again needs your help. Perly Ayers, a former Berea College teacher, said it best: "If we see something that needs to be done is not being done, then you and I are among those not doing it."

and, two, they have delicious pork tenderloin biscuits.

I got the paper and, instead of getting one biscuit, I picked up two, one for me and one for the dogs. Back at home, I took the top biscuit onto the porch and tore it in two, one-half for each dog and a tiny snippet of meat for the cat (who often thinks she's a dog).

Inside the house, I refilled my coffee cup, spread out the newspaper and unwrapped my biscuit, feeling warm, cozy and snug. I bit into the sandwich without looking at it and realized immediately that something was wrong.

Whereas I had expected some action between the meat and my teeth, I cut straight through the meat with no resistance. Plus, the taste was more tangy and salty. I held the biscuit in front of me and saw that I was eating not pork tenderloin but baloney.

Obviously, I had picked up two different biscuits without noticing.

Don't get me wrong. I like baloney. I've eaten it all my life, fried or not, with eggs and biscuits, on sandwiches with lots of mayo and many other variations.

But I really like pork tenderloin, and here I was, having watched my dogs eat the tenderloin when they would just as soon have had the baloney — maybe would have preferred the baloney.

No, I'm not a fanatic about my dogs, but they would probably agree, if you could get them to talk, that they've got it pretty good.

shame—and a perversion of democracy—if only the independently wealthy could afford the "luxury" of serving in the people's branch of government.

With annual sessions, too, the Kentucky General Assembly and its research staff can operate with more certainty and preparation.

The Kentucky General Assembly must now deal with hundreds of legislative proposals in just 60 days every two years. By providing for a more orderly introduction of legislative issues in a shortened session during the off years, we can decrease the last-minute logjam so common in the final days of our current system.

Annual sessions also make good business sense for the state. No one would expect a Fortune 500 company to meet once every two years to develop a spending plan, and yet Kentucky's overall budget of $31.2 million is figured in just this way. By the end of the second year of the biennium, the state is operating on projections made up to three years prior to their ultimate expenditure. By calculating a two-year budget, there are limited opportunities to adjust expenditures for high priority programs that may be suffering from a budget shortfall or to subtract from lower priority programs left with too much cash in their coffers.

With annual sessions, Kentucky will benefit from more precise revenue projections tallied at the end of each budget year. In the same way a family figures its income tax, some tax increases can be avoided if we are able to study the revenue picture annually.

"I think the business of the state has become very complex, and there are so many issues that need constant attention," Dr. Clark said. "We are in the midst of constant change. I think it's good business to attend to those issues with more time than has been allowed in the past."

With the lessons of the past serving as a guide, and with a hopeful eye to the future, I heartily agree.

Don Wimberly

Bishop to visit St. James

Submitted by Kay Ross
The Right Reverend Don A. Wimberly, Bishop of Lexington, will make his annual visitation to the Episcopal Church of Saint James the Apostle on Sunday, October 18.

The church adult Sunday School class has been studying the Apostle's Creed and will discuss, with the bishop, the creed's statement "we believe in... the holy catholic Church."

Bishop Wimberly will offer his thoughts on the creed, focusing on what we mean when the Church proclaims itself to be "holy, catholic, and apostolic." What are the implications of such a statement and how should such a belief impact our lives individually and collectively as the Body of Christ in a sinful and broken world.

Following Sunday School, the bishop will be the principal celebrant for Services of Confirmation and the Celebration of the Holy Eucharist. As is the custom in the Episcopal Church, everyone is welcome to our Lord's Table to receive the sacrament of Holy Communion and the community of the faithful is invited to join us in worship.

Afterward, the Reverend and Mrs. Johnnie E. Ross, invite everyone to their residence on South Arnold Avenue where they will host a reception for the bishop of Lexington. Father Ross is the rector at Saint James, Prestonsburg, and also served as priest-in-charge at Saint David's Episcopal Church, Pikeville.

An open invitation is extended to all those interested in attending the worship celebration and/or the reception. Following the reception, Bishop Wimberly will travel to Calvary Episcopal Church, Ashland, where he will address a regional gathering of Episcopalian and report on the Lambeth Conference.

Worship services locally begin at 11 a.m. and Sunday School at 9:45 a.m.

Allen Elementary truly is "a great place to learn"

This year many new students have arrived to a fresh start at Allen Elementary. Some have come because of their school being closed, and others by their families moving to our area. New students in grades one through four are Twanna Jones, Brionna Jones, Justin Akers, Lonnie Blair, Heather Miller, Ian Conn, Anthony Hall, Adam Crum, Lisa McKinney, Kendra Hall, Tilda Wakeland, Bryant Tibbs, Ricky Charles Stanley, Thomas Samons, Destiny Morgan, Kristy Hyden, Max Davis, Zachery Sanders, Ethan Wallen, Megan Shepherd, Corey Walker, Brandon Blair, Brandon Woods, Tabitha Jarvis, Tiffany Bevins, Martha Sword, Amanda Blair, Chris Wireman, Makayla May, Brenda Carroll, Thomas Bevins, David McKinney, Doug Boyd, Shane Miller, and Brent Poe.

Betsy Layne Elementary introduces students to the fifth/sixth grade

This year, the combined staff of Prater, Harold, and Betsy Layne Elementary came together to form a single unique faculty.

The consolidation has given everyone the opportunity to meet and make new friends and created a blending of professional knowledge and expertise that can only benefit the children that we teach.

For the fifth and sixth grade this year, Gaye Barker and Katherine Bailey will teach social studies. Mathematics is being taught by Jim Frasure and Marilyn Barnes. Science will be taught by Karen Conn and Monty Frazier. Stephanie Stamper will be teaching language arts.

Title I teachers will assist with technology and collaborate with classroom teachers. George Ann Case, Garlene Layne, Sandy Tackett, Dewey Jamerson, and Rick Jones will teach art, music, physical education, and library, respectively.

Fifth and sixth grade classes are being held in the original Betsy Layne Elementary School building.

Betsy Layne Title I Program

Betsy Layne Elementary Title I is a program that serves millions of children in elementary and secondary schools each year. Title I is the largest federal aid program for the nation's schools. The Betsy Layne Elementary School functions as a school wide Title I Program.

The Betsy Layne Elementary Title I Program is growing. The school is growing, not only in the number of staff members, but also levels of experience and areas of expertise. The Title I staff will be responsible for operating computer labs, collaborating with classroom teachers, assisting with portfolios, curriculum alignment, and arts and humanities. The Title I program will be a vital part of the education of the children at Betsy Layne Elementary.

The Title I Program also will develop a parent involvement program. The staff hopes to increase the number of parents involved by offering extra meeting times at night.

The Title I staff at Betsy Layne Elementary includes Jim Roberts, Coranne Estep, Lela Daniel, Tammy Jarrell, Dwight Newsome, Wendy Poe, Lois Tackett, Sheila Calhoun, Glenna Childers and Trish Adkins.

Mike Wagner and son, Zachary, enjoyed eating ice cream at the Betsy Layne Elementary School ice cream social.

Our Eagles of tomorrow!

There has to be a beginning before there can be an end. These head start students are getting a good start enjoying their first school experience of the 1998 school year. Learning is great fun when you're with your friends. The Allen Head Start Program has openings, and is still taking applications for the school year 1998-1999.

Youth Service

The staff of Allen Elementary Family Resource Youth Service provides students with programs, workshops, and classroom presentations throughout the year. They are, from left, Sharon Sparr, after-school child care director; Cathy Campbell, Allen Elementary FRYSC coordinator; Katherine Garrett, office clerk; and Michael Peters, FRYSC after-school aide. Call 874-0621, Monday-Friday, 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m., for information about upcoming events at Allen Elementary Family Resource Youth Service Center.

LEAD STORIES

—World's Greatest Athletes: According to Pacific Dunlop, the company supplying condoms for the 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney, Australia, Olympic officials have requested 51 condoms per participant for the 17-day event. Said one athlete interviewed by the London Daily Telegraph, "Three a day sounds too many."

—According to a Chicago Tribune report in September, some parents in Oak Park, Ill., are objecting to what they believe is an implicit anti-Americanism in a "Pledge to the Planet" that some Hatch Elementary School teachers require students to recite along with the "Pledge of Allegiance." (The controversial oath: "I pledge allegiance to the Earth, this unique blue-water planet, agreed by life, our only home. I promise to respect all living things, and to protect to the best of my abilities all parts of our planet's environment, and to promote peace among the human family, with liberty and justice for all.")

—Five people were indicted in Brenham, Texas, in August for a scheme to kidnap a pig, which had just lost a livestock show judging in Houston, and spirit it away to another show in San Angelo, Texas

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

(where, by the way, it won first place, worth $4,000). The pig had belonged to one of the five people accused, but under the rules of the Houston contest, all losing pigs automatically became the property of a slaughterhouse.

NO SPIN DOCTORS IN ALBERTA

In May, a judge in Red Deer, Alberta, sentenced Nelson Dicks, 32, to 21 days in jail for making a false claim on an unemployment insurance form. Jail time is not usually given on first offenses, but Dicks got in additional trouble by volunteering that life was tough for him and that he might be forced to apply for benefits again even though he was working, provoking the judge to ask him, point-blank, "So you'll lie again?" Responded Dicks, "You're damn right."

MORE PUNISHMENT NEEDED

In August, Douglas Illingsworth, 83, had his driver's license suspended for a year by a court in Barnsley, South Yorks, England, after several incidents in which he tied up traffic by driving less than 15 mph on thoroughfares, including a stint at about 1 mph. And in Dale City, Va., in June, a 30-year-old motorist was beaten with a steering-wheel-locking device (which was apparently the closest available weapon) at a traffic light by a 33-year-old woman who was incensed that he had been driving too slowly.

DON'T STEP IN THE FENG SHUI

In May, residents of Qiongshan village in Guangdong province, China, blew up a brand-new bridge on a main artery because they believed it had been constructed in a violation of the principles of feng shui (spiritual beliefs about the arrangements of objects in a space). And New York feng shui authority Eliza Arekelian told The Independent of London that the July scaffolding collapse in Times Square was caused in part by the Concorde jet's nose on a nearby billboard, pointing the wrong way. And Newsweek reported in May that business was booming for New York City "smudger" Eleni Santoro, who charges real estate agents $200 an hour to erase the negative energy from a property.

GESUNDEHEIT!

Just before an April angling tournament in Appling, Ga., as Verdell James, 70, was tying his line, he sneezed his $300 false teeth into Thurmond Lake and had to flush them out before getting down to business. And in July, near Calgary, Alberta, a 19-year-old man being pursued by police after he hijacked a car dumped the car and hid out in the tall grass in a field but blew his cover when he couldn't suppress a sneeze.

WEIRD SCIENCE

—Nissan's quality-assurance director at its plant in Sunderland, England, announced in July that the company had developed a substance based on the most destructive forms of bird poop they had found throughout the world, for the purpose of rigorously testing its automobiles' paint jobs. Added the director, John Burke, "It looks like the real thing: It's white, it's viscous and it smells horrible."

—In July in the remote Australian town of Ravensthorpe, newly arrived family doctor Steve Hindley saved the life of 23-year-old football player Hayden McGinn, who suffered a rapidly hemorrhaging head injury and would not have survived an airlift to surgery. Dr. Hindley cleaned off a rusting brace-and-bit drill from a woodshed and made a hole in McGinn's temple to relieve the life-threatening pressure, which allowed time for him to be sent to a hospital in August.

EPILOGUE

For a country girl, I learned a lot last week when I got the opportunity to travel to the Cayman Islands with Dan and Cinder Salyers, and their daughter, Devon. Never having been outside of the continental United States, I was surprised to learn that you had to have proof of your birth (or some other documentation) before you could leave the country.

South of the Border asked for my next of kin.

"Why?!" I said, panicked.

"We have to ask that information on all international flights since that plane blew up and killed everyone on board," she replied.

"Oh, my Lord! I can't go," I said, as I rubbed my hands. "I can't do it."

"Sara, we'll be there before supper," Dan argued.

"Dan, food isn't even an incentive over crashing," I replied drolly. "But since you brought it up, where are we going for supper?"

During the flight, I clenched my teeth together so tightly I developed a headache and had to take aspirin. But as the plane landed roughly, I heaved a sigh of relief.

"Boy, that was a rough landing don't you think?!" Cinder asked, as I excitedly unfastened my seatbelt.

"There's no such thing as a rough landing to me. We hit something and we're still here. That's all I care about. You were right, it sure is pretty here," I said as I looked out my window.

"Oh, I thought you'd been to Atlanta before," Cinder stated.

"Atlanta! You mean we have to get on another plane?!"

"Yeah, we're just halfway there, Sara," Dan laughed.

"And we haven't even flown over water yet," Devon offered, devilishly.

"This isn't fair," I whined. "I was supposed to enjoy myself."

(Stay tuned next week when Devon says, "When we fly over Cuba do you think they'll aim a missile at us?")

Practice opens, countdown begins

The high school basketball practices officially opened yesterday when schools could begin basketball practice. While everyone else in the county will take to the floor, Allen Central coach Johnny Martin says that could not be the case with the Rebels.

"I have four of my starters on the football team," he said. "We have some other players playing football. I had planned to go to New Orleans and see UK/LSU play and maybe look in on Jeremy (Hall)."

Allen Central could be a surprise team in the 15th Region this year. While the Rebels will be small, they should be very quick and run the treys.

Coach Henry Webb at South Floyd said his team is ready to begin.

"We're excited about the upcoming season," he said. "We'll be out here when it all starts."

The Raiders will be a

Sports around Floyd County

I received a phone call on Tuesday advising me that Cameron Mills, former UK standout, was going to be at South Floyd High School (and later learned he was at Allen Central) on Wednesday.

Well, I have been wanting to get up with Cameron for a while and I thought this was a good chance to do so. So up Left Beaver I journeyed after stopping to eat some lunch.

Upon arriving at the high school, I went to the gymnasium where a pep rally was being held. But this pep rally was a little different than most you normally see.

School principals Zenith Hall, middle school, and Debbie Daniels, high school, decided to jointly hold a middle school and high school rally.

The kids were enthusiastic and the pep band was playing as the cheerleaders were on the floor (from both schools) and it was just an electrifying moment.

How often do you see a grade school and high school holding a pep rally together. The middle school was readying for the big girls basketball game against Allen Central, and the football team was getting up for arch rival Allen Central in the Red, White and Blue bowl (played Thursday night).

The kids were getting along great and you could not have asked for a better group of students. They were just enjoying the afternoon before taking a few days for intercession. They will be off next week.

I enjoyed the two hours I spent there Wednesday and enjoyed listening to Cameron Mills speaking to the students.

The high school basketball season is just around the corner and will be here before you have time to stop and think. The season will begin with all the panoramas. I enjoy the panorama games, but sometimes when you stay for the whole day, it gets tiring. Still, I enjoy it.

I am one of those Sports Editors who thrives on the basketball season. Nothing pleases me more than to write a story or take a picture of our kids in the county. I enjoy being around them. Keeps me young, I guess!

It affords me a chance to get to see people and fans that you normally don't see during a football season. I have a lot of friends, and I never take them for granted.

Mark Martin, a former Allen Central player under Howard Wallen, is doing a great job coaching cross-country at Pikeville High School. Mark's squad is very competitive this year, and he told me the numbers are up this year with about 34 runners.

It is good to see young men like Mark come in and give back to athletics what they got from it, although

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Adams Middle School guard Erin Majakey scored a game-high 17 points, but it wasn't enough to offset the combined 27 points of Amber Scott and Terri Mullins as Allen Central Middle School posted a 56-27 win over the Lady Blackcats Monday night at the Duff gym.

Scott scored 16 points and Mullins added 11 as the Lady Rebels improved to 7-2 on the season. It was the second win of the year over Adams.

Stephens and Jennifer Curnutt added four points each for Adams with Caudill finishing with two.

Tiffany Turner, Jaelyn Martin and Jessica

Isaac had eight points apiece for Allen Central. Jeni Spurlock scored three and Becki Thomas two.

Allen Central led 9-6 after the first quarter. Two baskets by Scott gave Allen Central a 4-0 lead, but Curnutt scored on a long jumper for a 4-2 game. The game was tied once at 4-4.

Scott drained a three-pointer and scored a layup to give the Lady Rebels a three-point lead after the first quarter. Caudill hit a 15-foot jumper for Adams just before the horn.

Majakey, who did not score in the first quarter, scored all five points for Adams in the second period, but the Lady Blackcats trailed 35-11 at the half. Mullins had five points in the period for Allen Central and Scott tossed in eight.

Majakey scored eight third-quarter points, but

Allen Central's Jessica Isaac scored on two long jumpers from the corner to keep the Lady Rebels in front by 20 points, 41-21. Allen Central led 44-23 after three quarters. Stephens and Curnutt had a field goal in the third for the Lady Blackcats.

Majakey opened the fourth quarter for Adams with a short jumper but Allen Central went on an 8-0 run that netted them a 52-25 lead. Isaac and Scott led an Allen Central charge that gave the Lady Rebels 27-point advantage. Mullins scored four in the fourth period.

Spurlock pulled down 12 rebounds in the game for Allen Central. Martin had eight caroms. Adams will host Inez this Monday night, while Allen Central plays at Johnson Central Middle School.

This Week In Football

Battle of the Beavers

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Only three weeks remain in the high school football season and as far as district races go, there are no big games this week that are imperative to the Floyd County teams.

As of now, only Prestonsburg appears to be headed for a state playoff berth with South Floyd holding to just a glimmer of a hope.

"Mathematically, we're still in it, but it is going to be very hard," said Raider coach Donnie Daniels.

Of course, Allen Central is playing only for pride this season and Betsy Layne is still trying to establish the program as a district contender.

While there are no "pressing" district matchups, there is a big bowl game that leaves the winner with some bragging rights in the county. In what has become one of the most heated rivalries over the past eight years, South Floyd and Allen Central mix it up when they meet on the gridiron.

Tonight, the two schools will meet at Brackett Field in a game that helps kick off the Red, White and Blue Days in Martin. So, the game has been appropriately named the Red, White and Blue Bowl. Each year the game is alternated between the two schools home field.

It will be a game of contrasts tonight. Allen Central has had trouble stopping the rushing game while South Floyd cannot contain the passing routes.

South Floyd likes to run the football and Allen Central likes to take to the airwaves. So this one figures to be in the high numbers when the final score is tallied. But the Rebels found out last Friday night what numbers are when 91 points light up the scoreboard in a 49-42 loss to Bethlehem.

South Floyd is coming off a 26-6 setback to Hazard and dropped to 1-4 in the district race. Allen Central has dropped out of district competition for the next three seasons.

The Raiders' running game could be a threat to the Rebel line led by sophomores B.J. Bryant and Matt Tackett. But senior Darren Newsome has been on a roll of late and with the trio in the backfield, they will be a real challenge for the Rebels defense.

But Allen Central is not without its own weapons with a dynamic runner in Mark Dunfee, who had his best game since he transferred to Allen Central two seasons ago. Dunfee ran for 213 yards last Friday night. Jesse Hall passed for 128 yards against Bethlehem in his favorite targets in Gary Hunter and Brian Jones.

Containing the two receivers could be a problem for the Raiders secondary, who has similar problems against teams who like to pass. This will be a good one. So good, it will be hard to call. Maybe the home field will give the edge.

BOBCATS LOOKING FOR ELUSIVE SECOND WIN

Beavers

While the Bobcats are not in contention for a playoff berth, they would love to pick up that second win having won once in the first six games.

Shelby Valley is 3-3 on the year, already a good season for a team that hasn't seen too many victories. This season has seen the Wildcats record the most wins since they went 4-7 and a playoff berth in 1994.

After the '94 season, Shelby Valley went 1-9 over the next three seasons. Their lone win last year was a homecoming victory over these same Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Like Betsy Layne, the Wildcats lost a key player in the very first game of the season when Dusty Hall went down and out for the rest of the season. Senior quarterback Tyler Puckett hasn't played since the first game of the season for Betsy Layne.

With Hall out, Casey Newsome has been the man in the Shelby Valley backfield. He had carried the football 143 times for 779 yards. He has scored five touchdowns.

The Wildcats will have Cory Robinson in the backfield with Newsome. He has rushed for 274 yards on 48 carries. Brandon Stephens settles behind center in his first year as the signal caller. He has passed for six touchdowns in completing 26 passes for 375 yards.

Kendall Fleming is the Wildcats top receiver with seven catches for 187 yards and three touchdowns.

Betsy Layne's hopes ride on the running game, as they haven't gone to the air too many times this season. That running game will hinge on the ability of Chad Bryant, Anthony Tackett, and Nick West as well as Bradley Brooks in penetrating or going around the Wildcats front line.

Coach Ted George will have his team focused as the season heads into the final weeks. While it has been a seemingly quick football season, maybe it has been too long for some teams. Betsy Layne will be in contention here but the Wildcats seniors may be just a bit too much for them.

PRESTONSBURG NOT RELAXING

Coach John Derossett and the Prestonsburg Blackcats are in the playoff picture, but after last Friday's demolishing of Morgan County, it seems that Coach Derossett is not taking anyone for granted.

In fact, some teams, once in the big show, has a tendency to relax, but not at Prestonsburg.

The Cats abandoned their running game from the onset against Morgan County and senior quarterback Adam Hall reaped the fruits from it with over 300 yards passing.

Leslie County picked up their first win of the '98 season with a 49-8 win over Betsy Layne. Leslie will not be any match for the Blackcats and a Morgan County final could result.

John Ortega needs to be handling the football more out of the backfield as the playoffs near. Grant Castle just goes out game after game and puts in a good night's work. Hank Mullins is the unsung hero here and he will be a key to the playoff picture.

Defensively, the Cats will face the passing game in the playoffs and need to shore up the secondary. I look for Coach Derossett to try something new tonight at Leslie County, and the Cats will prevail by a big margin. After all, it is playoff time.

CAT FIGHT IN BATON ROUGE

I know that no one wants to think of their beloved Wildcats falling at Baton Rouge, but that is what is going to happen as they Tigers will be a two-touchdown favorite over Hal Mumme's team.

Tim Couch hasn't had the game or numbers like he put up against Louisville in the opening game of the '98 season. He is averaging 156 yards per outing on a team that is dead last in team defense. But then again, he will be going against a team that is dead last in passing

Kentucky leads the SEC in total offense with 533 yards per game. Mumme tried to show a more potent running game against South Carolina last Saturday, after the Wildcats got virtually nothing on the ground against Arkansas two weeks ago.

Anthony White and Derek Horner will have to find some holes in the Tigers' line if the Cats are to move the ball up the field.

Remember last year's blowout? Here's hoping it doesn't repeat itself.

Courtside

much-improved team with Justin Paige, Ryan Shannon, Byron Hall and others returning.

Speaking of Justin Paige, he, along with Eddie Shelton, took in the Winston Cup race last weekend at Talladega.

"It was fun," said Paige. "The cars went by so fast you had to look up the track to see them."

Everyone remembers Eddie Shelton, quarterback for the old Wheelwright Trojans.

Shelby Valley head basketball coach Rodney Rowe is putting together the Shelby Valley Hall of Fame and the names of nomination are being accepted. Three players from years 1928-1950, years 1950-1970 and 1971-1989 are being accepted.

Players have to be graduated 10 years.

The list will include the schools of Virgie and Dorton. What a list they can compile out of that, especially Todd May and Rowe himself.

If you have a nominee, contact Coach Rowe at Shelby Valley High School.

The Pikeville College Bears and Lady Bears will hold a Basketball Blastoff on Friday, Oct. 23, and the community is invited to join both squads, faculty and staff in launching the 1998-99 season.

Admission is free to all at the Pikeville College gymnasium. A children's mini-carnival will be held on the adjacent tennis courts at 7:30 p.m. Kids will be able to play Hula Hoop Horseshoes, putt-putt Hole In One and balloon burst.

At 9 p.m. the teams will be unveiled to the public with the Lady Bears taking to the court first in an intrasquad game. The Lady Bears are the defending KIAC champions. After the game, Coach Bill Watson and his team will be presented with their championship rings.

Coach Roy Cutwright will then lead his team onto the court for warmups and an intrasquad game. All the festivities will be finished by 10:45 p.m.

Rick Bentley, Sports

Information Director at Pikeville College, has been instrumental in planning Basketball Blastoff, which replaces the Midnight Madness celebration of years past.

"Basketball Blastoff is an opportunity for students and the community to come out and get a glimpse of our men's and women's basketball teams. We are starting earlier than we have in previous years, so we can be more accommodating to our friends in the community," said Bentley.

The Allen Central Rebels will host their first annual panorama, better known as the Pete Grigsby Jr. Hoop-A-Rama Classic. The event will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 25. All four county high schools will be going against four outside teams.

At 5:45, coach Tim Rice will lead his Betsy Layne Bobcats on court to face a very good Perry Central team. That game will be followed by Henry Webb and the South Floyd Raiders matching up against Raymond Justice and the Bellfry Pirates.

At 7:45, coach Jackie Pack and the Prestonsburg Blackcats face Cawood while host Allen Central will meet coach Johnny Ray Turner and the Johnson Central Eagles at 8:45. The Classic will be officiated by a three-man crew.

they did not have cross-country when Mark was at Allen Central.

Cross-country is a great sport and only one of our high schools has it, although Ryan Hardy is representing Prestonsburg High School at the meets. Mark spoke of Ryan and what a tremendous runner he is.

He had high praise for Jake Karn of Paintsville, as well. Seems that on Jake's birthday, the Pikeville cross-country team baked him a cake.

"That's the way these kids are," said Mark. And who says that all our kids have gone bad?

I hope that during the basketball season, fans, moms, dads and the student body will get out and support their schools. Really get behind them and cheer them on.

I like what Zenith Hall did at South Floyd Middle School. He took a game off the schedule and passed free passes for students. There was a great crowd of kids there and they bought out the concession stand. There's an angle that all schools should consider.

Well, October is fastly leaving us. It will be November and we will be thinking of Turkey Day and all the football that will take place at that time of season.

The regular football season ends the last of this month and then the playoffs begin. The grade school football championships will be this week at Johnson Central High School.

The grade school basketball season (for boys) will begin the first week in November. So we leave one sport and go into another.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports! Take the kids to Sunday School and church this Sunday.

Allen Central edges South Floyd Middle

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was as good as it was billed to be.

The Allen Central Middle School Lady Rebels edged a very good South Floyd Middle School team, 48-46, in girl's basketball play Wednesday night at South Floyd.

"It was a good game," said Allen Central coach John Martin. "They went up on us in the third quarter about eight or nine points and we had to make some adjustments."

Amber Scott led Allen Central with 12 points while Jaclyn Martin netted 10. Martin also pulled down nine rebounds in the game with Jeni Spurlock hauling in seven.

Three players scored in double figures for South Floyd. Stephanie Skeans and Megan Ousley scored 12 points each to share game scoring honors with Scott. Ashley Johnson totaled 11 points. Johnson buried two three-point baskets in the first quarter.

"They hit some early three's on us," said Coach Martin. "They are a good bandy club."

Bradly Anderson had two treys, as well, in the game for the Lady Raiders. She finished with six points.

Allen Central held the lead early, nursing a one-point advantage after the first quarter. Jessica Isaac scored four first quarter points and Scott had four to lead the Lady Rebels to a 14-13 lead at the first stop.

Martin, Spurlock and Terri Mullins had two points each for the Lady Rebels. Johnson drilled two treys and Ousley scored four points for South Floyd. Skeans had three first-quarter points.

The game was close all the way as the two teams battled to a 30-30 tie at the end of the first half. Scott had six second-quarter points with Mullins scoring five.

Ousley tossed in six for the Lady Raiders with Anderson draining her first trey to keep South Floyd close. Skeans had five second period points.

Allen Central struggled at the free throw line throughout the game, hitting only 12 of 27 free throws.

"I don't know what our problem is," said Coach Martin. "We shoot them in practice."

South Floyd built an early lead in the third period and held a slim 39-37 lead after three quarters when Allen Central came back. Anderson nailed three-pointer number two in the quarter and Skeans scored four points for South Floyd. Martin had three points in the period with Spurlock scoring four.

In the fourth period, Martin led a comeback for the Lady Rebels scoring five points. South Floyd could only manage three field goals in the final quarter.

Allen Central improved to 8-2 on the season and holds second place in the Middle School Conference.

Montgomery places well at Buffalo Creek Kartway

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Under ideal weather conditions and a good track, 31 karts showed up at the Buffalo Creek Kartway last Sunday with racing taking place in eight classes.

Brandon Montgomery captured a feature win and placed second in another one in a successful day of kart track racing.

Josh Stumbo took the checker flag in winning the Briggs Jr. Purple Plate class. Stumbo finished in front of Justin Adkins and third place finisher Justin Cool.

Montgomery won the Stock Light division in his M7 kart. Chris Hall ran a strong second with Keenis Burchett finishing third.

Montgomery came back in the Stock Medium but had to settle for a second place finish behind Eulis Combs. Kevin Huff finished in third position.

In the Stock Heavy, Combs finished second behind first-place finisher Damen Runyon. Nick Hall finished third.

David Setser took the checker flag ahead of Mike Stephens in the Open Class.

Tim Carr in kart No. 5 crossed the finish line ahead of Chuck Caudill with Gary Harris taking third place.

Drivers in each class received a 100 percent payback in all classes. Due to the World 100 Dirt Track Championship at Thunder Ridge this weekend, Buffalo Creek Kartway will not race but will return to the track on Sunday, Oct. 25.

Buckshot Setser wins at Riverside Raceway

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

NASCAR's Buckshot Jones has made a name for himself in the Winston Cup Series, but look out, because there may be another "Buckshot" on the horizon in Seth "Buckshot" Setser.

Setser captured the Rookie's Class at Riverside Raceway this past Saturday afternoon in a trophy race. Setser crossed the finish line in his 00 kart.

Justin "Coolwhip" Cool took second place in kart No. 12, while Michael "Thunder" Setser rolled in at third place in kart No. 51.

Jason Setser captured the Briggs, Jr. Class in his No. 44 kart. He took the checker flag ahead of Patrick Porter in kart No. 64.

Thirteen stock medium karts entered the feature race that saw James Sturgill take the checker flag in winning the 10 lap feature.

Sturgill drove his No. B4 kart to the winners circle ahead of Wendall Riddle who managed second place. Third place went to Michael Stephens in kart No. 22.

Stephens came back and captured the Open Class in kart No. 22. David Setser crossed the finish line for a second place finish with Tim Carr running in third position.

Sturgill picked up his second feature win by taking the checker flag in his B4 kart. He won the Stock Heavy Class ahead of Steve Caudill, second place, and Keith Gray, third place.

Racing continues this Saturday afternoon in the final points race of the season. The winner will be announced, with the top five of the six points races counting.

The local track, located at Dwale, will close out the race season with the East Kentucky Dirt Championship Awards on Saturday, Oct. 24. Trophies, money and prizes will be awarded during the day. There will be a 100 percent pay back with additional sponsor money awarded.

It will be a big day at Riverside

FROM LAST WEEKWINSTON CUP SERIES

TALLADEGA, Ala. — No one, at least not in the current generation of Winston Cup drivers, plays chess on the high banks better than Dale Jarrett.

Jarrett, twice a Daytona 500 winner, proved his strategic mettle for the first time at Talladega Superspeedway Sunday, winning the Winston 500 and claiming a $1 million bonus from the tobacco company.

In his red, white and blue Ford Taurus, Jarrett waited coyly for a chance to take the lead, and when that opportunity arose with 13 laps to go, he seized it and took off like a frightened jackrabbit.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES

Boris Said drove a Ford to victory in the truck race at Sears Point Raceway in Sonoma, Calif. It was his first career victory in the fourth-year series and came after several near-wins. Said held off Mike Bliss, also in a Ford F-150.

FEUD OF THE WEEKMike Skinner vs. fellow drivers

Skinner thought he had the best car at Talladega. "I think the problem with showing how strong a car we had all day was when it got down to the end, there wasn't a soul who would run with me."

NASCAR This Week writer Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "On the restrictor-plate tracks, every unfamiliar face at the front of the pack knows what Skinner went through. Aerodynamics has such an impact on the outcome that no one can pass anyone without help, and drivers work best with their colleagues whom they feel they can trust."

FROM THE ARCHIVES:By Monte Dutton

The rich history of NASCAR Sam McQuagg, a folksy Georgian, had his date with destiny on July 4, 1966, when he piloted a Dodge Charger to victory in what was then known as the Firecracker 400. McQuagg, who would never win again, held off Darel Dieringer in Bud Moore's Mercury. Jim Paschal and Curtis Turner were third and fourth, a lap back.

The linchpin was Ward Burton, who contrary to the best efforts of John Hendrick, will not be moving into Team Hendrick's third car. That's because Burton has another year on his contract with Bill Davis, and Davis is not going to let him

YOUR TURN

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
Ban Jeff Gordon? No way. ... I really like all the drivers. They're great and 90 percent of the time they all run a good, clean race. ... I think only people like Jack Roush, who owes Jeff and his crew an apology, give NASCAR a bad name. Go ahead, Jack, put 10 Fords in competition, and I hope Jeff Gordon — and if not him, another driver — beats yours.

Pat Ludwig
Ephrata, Pa.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
Please, please settle a dispute for me. What exactly is the status of Greg Sacks? Is he injured, or has he been released from his contract?

Donald Scott
Pittsburgh

Dear Donald,
Sacks' injuries were more extensive than originally thought, and he was unable to fulfill his commitment to car owner Cale Yarborough. So Yarborough settled on Rich Bickle as Sacks' successor at least for the remainder of this season. Sacks' future remains uncertain.

CREW OF THE WEEK

■ Dave Marcis' race team has only eight employees, and all came through like champs for the struggling independent, who had a season-best finish of 12th at the Winston 500. Marcis' previous best had been a 26th at Martinsville's second race.

Fan Tips

Make arrangements to leave Daytona at an unusual time if you want to avoid traffic jams. The night running of the Pepsi 400 means few fans will leave after the race. Most will sleep late the next morning and hit I-95 the same time as thousands of others. It would be a good idea to stay an extra day, especially with many nearby attractions.

TRIVIA

1. Who was the last driver to drive an Oldsmobile to the Winston Cup championship?
2. Who was the last driver to drive a Dodge and a Plymouth to the Winston Cup championship?

ANSWERS

1. Cale Yarborough
2. Richard Petty

AROUND THE GARAGEDallenbach Jr. signed to take third car for Team Hendrick out of it.

As a result, Wally Dallenbach Jr. has now been signed to drive the car, which will revert to No. 25 and probably keep Budweiser's reluctant sponsorship for the remaining year on the contract.

Caterpillar, meanwhile, is the likely new sponsor for Davis and Burton in the No. 22 Pontiac. WE'RE COMING BACK: The International Race of Champions, the all-star series that last visited Talladega Superspeedway in 1996, will return in '99 with an April 24 race prior to the DieHard 500 Winston Cup race.

ON THE HORIZON: Tall-

adega's expansion program will result in a new garage area, infield care center, motor-home compound (for owners and drivers), main entrance, a 5,000-seat grandstand in turn one, and an infield media center.

The track has added approximately 45,000 seats in the past decade, and the latest plans envision more than 200,000 seats — and back-stretch grandstand that seats 90,000 itself — by the early years of the next decade.

BACK FOR ANOTHER: YEAR: Dave Marcis said he will return to Winston Cup for at least another year.

"My plans are for 1999 to run in the Winston Cup Series again," said the 57-year-old from Wausau, Wis. "We are a small team, but I really enjoy the sport. It's been my whole life. I'd like to be a team owner one day, but I can't afford to put anyone else in the car right now. My plan right now is to spend another year as a driver. I would like to be in Daytona 500 in year 2000. Then I'd make a decision about putting someone else in the car."

Marcis has been ironing out details of a new sponsorship agreement with Realtree and hopes to be able to make a renewal announcement soon.

Low Point: This site is not for the Internet novice. All your navigation expertise will likely come into play finding your way around this site, which utterly fails at navigation. Had the content not been good, I would have left immediately.

The Cat Walk...

UK Coach Hal Mumme believes in the value of walk-ons - non-scholarship players - on his team.

Not only does Mumme give walk-ons the chance to play in varsity and junior varsity games, he also believes in rewarding walk-ons with scholarships. Although he has coached only one full season at Kentucky, Mumme already has placed 10 players on full scholarships.

"It's just something I believe in," Mumme says about his policy of opportunity for walk-ons. "I've always had walk-on players be able to make the team and contribute on the field. It's one of the joys of coaching to be able to reward those players with scholarships."

A player doesn't have to be a star to win a grant-in-aid. Eight players on the 1998 team are walk-ons who have been awarded scholarships; but only three of them - punter Jimmy Carter, defensive end Robert Jones, and strong safety Jeff Zurcher - are projected starters.

TAILGATING RECIPE OF THE WEEK

"GROUND IT OUT" SAUSAGE CHILI

Yummy for this week's tailgate party — you will need: 1 pound ground beef 1 pound bulk pork sausage 1 large onion, chopped (1cup) 1 cup chopped green pepper 1 cup sliced celery 2 15'-ounce cans red kidney beans 1 1-pound 12-ounce can tomatoes, cut up 1 6-ounce can tomato paste 2 cloves garlic, minced 2 teaspoons chili powder 2 teaspoons salt

Preparation:

In skillet, cook ground beef and bulk port sausage till browned; drain off excess fat. Transfer meat mixture to a slow electric crockery cooker. Add onion, green pepper, and celery. Stir in undrained kidney beans, undrained tomatoes, tomato paste, garlic, chili powder, and salt. Cover and cook on low-heat setting for 8 to 10 hours. Makes 10-12 servings.

GAME REVIEW

"Kentucky Rushes Back Into Win Column"

Anthony White rushes for 108 yards and has eight catches for 117 yards.

The Kentucky Wildcats returned to Commonwealth Stadium for Homecoming '98 and also into the win column - as they hold off the Gamecocks of South Carolina 33-28. The Cats now 4 and 2 for the season pick up their first SEC win at 1-2. The win was not a thing of beauty and the UK offense again seemed to be off step, but the steps taken by the Wildcat running game helped to make the difference.

"Kat" Keys to Victory:

Rediscovering the running game ... the Cats rushed for a total of 211 yards.

The Cats defense still making enough big plays to keep them in the ball game.

ALLEN CENTRAL MIDDLE SCHOOL REBEL YELL

October 16, 1998

Groups Galore

By Letha Carroll

At Allen Central Middle School "groups" are an important part of the learning process. For instance, in Mrs. Handshoe's 8th grade Math class, all four eighth grades completed detailed circle graph. The theme of the circle graph was "We Like, What We Like." Several titles the groups came up with were Favorite Wrestlers, Favorite Basketball players, and Favorite Types of Chips.

In this lesson, we learned how to change results to percents and percents to degrees. Mrs. Handshoe helped refresh our memories on making circle graphs. We learned how to use a safety compass and protractor in order to make an accurate graph.

Mrs. Handshoe commented on this group project, "I was extremely pleased with how all the projects turned out. The students worked hard on them incorporating many mathematics concepts."

All students participate by either drawing the graph, coloring, or writing information on the posters. Each 8th grade student was also responsible for doing an individual write-up on the project including how the poster was completed. In my opinion, this was a good experience on circle graph making and working in groups.

Dance, Rebels, Dance

By Brittany Napier

It's a new school year and already the dancing has begun. Twenty-eight girls are a part of the fabulous new Allen Central Middle School team.

One team member was quoted: "The work is hard, but I assume it will get easier."

Coach Beverly Scott has complete control of her girls. During one practice, I watched the girls practice very hard. In my opinion, the dance team will be very successful.

Through plenty of hard work and dancing, the dancers make the routine look so easy. I wish the best of luck to the dance team!!

Open house held on October 1st

By Nikita Thornsberry

On October 1, 1998 Allen Central Middle School held its first open house. Open House is an opportunity for teachers and parents to meet and discuss the students' curriculum, goals to be achieved, and progress.

During parent and teacher conferences the teachers introduced themselves, and what subject they teach. Teachers informed parents of the subject matter being taught. Each teacher discussed student grades as well. Teachers informed parents of what improvements needed to be made by the student.

Students' work was displayed to view in the sixth and eighth grade hallways. Also, science projects were available for viewing in the Science Lab.

Our first open house was very successful. Allen Central Middle School's faculty and students would like to thank all of the parents who were able to attend.

ACMS First Fun Friday

By Whitney Boyd

On September 25th the students that had not missed any school that week was rewarded with a trip to "Stickweed Stadium" (the cleared parking area on the hill behind the school).

Up a stickweed stadium, students jammed to the music and socialized with their friends. Teachers wore their special ACMS tee shirts and blue jeans for this special day.

Students would like to thank all of our teachers, Mrs. Bickford and Ms. Compton for this event.

My Worries Are Over

By Jess Staggs

Before the summer ended, I heard that Martin Middle School was moving! They were going to consolidate with Duff Elementary sixth through eighth to form a new school.

I was scared that they would treat Duff students badly because of contests that had been won or lost. I talked with my friends and they had the same worries. We had no idea how wrong we were!

I have more friends now than I ever thought possible. All the children from Martin Middle that are in my class are not my friends.

Should I ever have a problem, I feel I could go to either of my new teachers and find the comfort of a friend as well, the kind of friend that would be there to listen and give advice to me in the right way to handle my situation.

With new teachers and a new student body made up of the two schools, Allen Central Middle School is a place where "The Cool Go To School" and possibilities are unlimited. To see success in action, come check us out.

Mad About Shoes

By Sarah Tackett

Hey! Are you getting taller or am I getting shorter? A lot of kids at Allen Central Middle School ask this question every day because of new shoe styles. Shoes, shoes, and more wacky shoes are in style this season.

Girls leave school on Monday and return on Tuesday three or four inches taller with new platform shoes. Bright green, orange, and glow in the dark colors are the most popular. Amy Combs, an eighth grader loves the "cork" style. I guess the time pendulum really does swing back and forth as we sure are grooving to the 70's style again!

Our New School

By Nikki Hackworth

This past summer our school board consolidated Martin Middle and Duff Elementary (6-8) to form Allen Central Middle School.

The consolidation has brought many new changes. Now, the second level of Duff Elementary is now ACMS and the lower level remains Duff Elementary.

Our principal is Ms. Bonita Compton and assistant principal, Mrs. Davida Bickford. Like Allen Central High School, our school colors are blue, gray, and a touch of red. Our mascot is the Rebel, also.

Mr. Coley Martin, Science teacher, along with seventh grade students, Paul David Francis and Austin Francis, raise new flag at ACMS.

BIG SANDY BRIEFS

Cops back off but crash ends pursuit

A Johnson County man led police on a high-speed chase last Wednesday morning after they were tipped off shortly after midnight by a motorist who saw a red Mustang driving on the wrong side of the road.

According to the police, the driver of the Mustang was Paul Fairchild of Staffordsville.

Police located the driver, but he fled. The driver reportedly passed Police Chief Tom Haney at more than 100 mph. Police were in pursuit, but Haney ordered his officers to back off due to the excessive speed.

The chase ended near Riceville when Fairchild lost control, hit a guard-rail and wrecked. Fairchild was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital's surgical intensive care unit. — The Paintsville Herald

Most local schools showing progress

Results of CTBS scores released Friday show for the most part that Paintsville's and Johnson County's third, sixth and ninth graders met or exceeded the national average last year, sometimes by wide margins.

But while administrators in both the city and county school districts are focusing on the strong showing made by most schools, other schools didn't fare so well.

Paintsville Independent Schools showed the highest level of success. — The Paintsville Herald

Drug case concludes two years after 'buy'

November is a month that Paintsville resident Anita Castle probably will never forget.

It was just before Thanksgiving 1995 that Castle, an unemployed mother of two met Bill Stacy at St. Michael's Catholic Church in Paintsville where turkeys were being given to the needy.

That meeting, according to state police, led to another encounter a few weeks before Christmas in which police say Castle and Stacy were involved in a drug deal near the city's park and playground.

Unknown to Castle, Stacy was being paid by the state police to sniff out suspected drug dealers as part of an undercover investigation.

On November 20, 1997, Castle was arrested and charged with selling marijuana to Stacy some two years earlier. On November 20 of this year, she is scheduled to be sentenced for the crime. — The Paintsville Herald

Man puts out fire in laundromat

When the call went out that an Inez laundromat was on fire at around noon last Wednesday, many people were surprised when fire trucks were not dispatched to the scene. Quick action by a painter who was working at Junior Horn's Laundromat eliminated the blaze before the fire had a chance to spread.

Reportedly, a dryer containing cleaning cloths and gloves from a local convenience store burst into flames. Sue Fannin, who was in the laundromat at the time the fire broke out, said she smelled something funny and thought it might have been fumes from the painting going on outside.

Clarence Luster was working outside the establishment, painting.

"I put the fire out," said Luster. "They hollered and said the dryer was burning. They started pulling out clothes and I put it out. The funny thing is that the dryer wasn't on when it caught fire. It had been off all morning." — The Mountain Citizen

Chamberlin's daughter upset with father's burial

Jan Diane Chamberlin, the daughter of murder victim Fred Chamberlin, is upset with her father's funeral arrangements and burial. She questions the "speediness" of these arrangements, apparently made shortly after her father's bullet-riddled body was discovered by Faye Chamberlin, Fred's wife, at 10:30 p.m. March 20.

Church pleads guilty to murder

A Webbville area man charged in a New Year's Day murder dodged a possible death penalty sentence Friday by pleading guilty to charges against him.

James Matthew Church, 19, pleaded guilty to murder and theft of a firearm in connection with the death of 31-year-old Brenda Kay Burchette following a new Year's Eve party at a mobile home on Diamond Ridge.

As part of the plea agreement, Church will serve a 25-year prison sentence for the murder. Also, he accepted a five-year sentence on the theft charge that will run concurrent with the other prison term.

The plea takes away the possibility of a death penalty ... The case qualified for the death penalty because the indictment alleged that Church committed the murder while "engaging in the commission of rape." — The Big Sandy News

State wants to make Main Street three lanes as part of road relocation

The state Department of Highways last Thursday evening unveiled plans for relocation of the narrow, winding sector of Ky. 7 from West Liberty north to the intersection of the modern New Ky. 519. construction is scheduled for 2001.

Fifty-nine local residents, most of them property owners who will be affected by the project, attended a public meeting in the circuit courtroom of the Morgan County Courthouse to learn how they would be impacted and to register their comments and opinions about the project.

Nearly all the residents attending voiced surprise and displeasure with a proposed 12-foot-widening of the city street to create three traffic lanes.

Expert speaks to local crafters

Rebecca Anderson of HandMade in America explained to Knott Countians Monday how arts and crafts could be at the center of a successful economy and how working together can accomplish great things.

Over 50 Knott residents, many of them crafters, attended the presentation at 1 p.m. Monday. Anderson also explained her organization to the CDI Steering Committee later in the evening. — Troublesome Creek Times

Eleven Knott indictments

The Knott County Grand Jury handed down 11 indictments on September 21, including five for instances of flagrant non-support.

An Allen resident was among those indicted.

Diamond Harris, 41, of Allen, was indicted for alleged flagrant nonsupport for the period of 1992 and

Ex-county workers sue insurance carrier

Sixteen former county workers who collected $250,000 in a settlement against the Lawrence County Fiscal Court have now turned their sights on collecting the remainder of the settlement from the Kentucky Association of Counties.

In a suit filed October 2 in Lawrence Circuit Court, the ex-workers are seeking the remainder of the $450,000 judgment against the fiscal court in August of last year.

The workers sued the county in January of 1994, shortly after Roger Jordan took office as county judge-executive, claiming they were fired for political reasons. On May 26, 1995, a federal jury agreed and ordered the county to pay out $370,000 to the ex-workers. The case was appealed and the county became involved in a battle with their insurance carrier, the Kentucky All Lines Fund (KALF) over who should pay for the damages. — The Big Sandy News

Engineers said three-laning of the street will probably require state acquisition of only one unoccupied business building. — The Licking Valley Courier

Bounty to be paid on junk tires

Morgan County government, in cooperation with the National Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet (NREPC), will be conducting a waste tire amnesty program for citizens of the county Thursday through Saturday, October 29, 30, and 31.

The operation will be based at the Kentucky Highway Maintenance Garage on KY. 191.

The junk tire project provides a one-time opportunity for private citizens, farmers, and some businesses to drop off their unwanted waste tires and receive a bounty of 25 cents per tire. — The Licking Valley Courier

Two Knott school groups fare poorly in state test

According to scores for the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills released last week, two Knott County schools are ranked in the bottom ten in the state in their respective divisions.

Tests are given to third, sixth, and ninth grade students. Last year's third grade class at Beaver Creek Elementary and ninth grade class at Cordia High School were included in the bottom ten lists reported in the Courier-Journal on October 10. — Troublesome Creek Times
