The speaker scored Senator Allen W. Barkley, who is a candidate for re-election, on the claim that "he has sadly wandered away from the beaten path marked by the feet of illustrious Democrats from Thomas Jefferson to Woodrow Wilson," by voting for tariff items "that even that high priest of protection, Reed Smoot, had omitted from the Hoover-Grandy monetary."

"Duff on raw materials was unfair both to American industries and to American consumers who were forced to pay higher prices for finished goods."

control and a curve that had some of Prestonsburg's best cracking at the joint.

Then, in the sixth, Roberts' single pace third after two were out, Carle's error and Candill's Texas leaguer marked up another Pikeville score to tie the game at 2-2.

And so it remained on through the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth. Then the eleventh, Pikeville scored a run. McCowan tripped to right and scored on Roberts' fly to left. Candill followed with his second double of the game, but Mayhan, pluckily, by Edwards' struck out, and Candill was run down between third and home by Curran, Prestonsburg catcher.

Undismayed, Prestonsburg came back to score and tie the game up again, though it took three hits to get the necessary run this time. Collins led off with his only hit of the day, a single past third, stole second and scored on Curran's single to left. Castle hit, but Mosely and Miller were already gone and Harris could get no connect.

Stage the twenty—and, no, not the twenty—big mound bet—swung for Stapleton, slugging to center. But again Harris showed his worth in the center pasture, taking the ball speedily, catching it with feet to spare. Then, with Wells palpably weakening after staging a great pitching effort, Fisher hit him for a triple to right which scored Cyrus. It was Pikeville's time for the squeeze play, and "Manner" Prestonsburg manager, naturally, directed the play. Curran was ordered to signal for a pitch-out in order to trap Fisher, and he complied. But the pitch wasn't wide enough and Johnson laid one down in front of the plate, Fisher scoring easily.

That was all the end of a fine ball game. In the local hall of the twelfth, Harlowe, Woods and Wells went out in order. Then the second game, Kelly made a shaky start in the first and second, permitting two hits and a run in each inning, but thereafter righted up to the pitching ball and the seventh, Zimlager, Pikeville pitcher, started off in great shape, but fell before a four-hit barrage in the third and permitted two more runs in the seventh.

BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

TO CONTINUE IN FULL SWING

It is a mistake to believe, says the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, that the American people have let down in America are turning from personal their celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth, on the supposition that there if an instant to make Washington has been celebration enough. The Federal Commission is in daily touch with the United States. Old Time Hillsmen Live In The Past; Delight In Stories Of Escapes Of By-Gone Days

(By WILL ROGGS)

Buysville, Ky., July 2.—If you ask any aged Kentucky hillman of today with the intention of making a friend of him, there is one very essential step to be observed. You must not talk to him long without some mention of the past. If you do, your attempts to establish a friendship will be in vain. The aged men and women of the hills of today live mostly in a bygone time. They date upon past happenings, drawing real sustenance from recounting them.

One of the best—if not the one best—method of getting them to "take a hike" to you is to ask them, especially the menfolk, to relate some of their greatest fishing "serapes," or those of some of their friends or relatives. They all enjoy doing this. It is of the past. It also seems that fish stories and tales is every reason to believe that they are true are more plentiful than any other kind.

With a fair end of "honesty" in the super-gravity to display his skill. His jaw, and a group of eager-faced boys as listeners. The white-headed old hillman will lean contentedly back in his dark-bottomed chair and day after day fishing yarns by the hour. It is an intensely interesting sight, one of the most popular sports of the hill country. The greatest artists would undoubtedly profit from seeing it. That is, if horseless mules, whose heads were bent toward the romantic tale, they could be cured of which goes with it.

Before a hillman could expect to make from rowdied. The bows were the favor of the eyes of his fish-hole usually made from cedar, tough and smooth. He had to do his bit, no doubt.

It took real skill to fish with the bow and spike. Often the fisherman would sit patiently by a clear, cool pool of water for many hours, before the big and wary bass, that were known to live there, showed themselves. When they did, the bow and spike were carefully brought to shoot. The position, deflection was allowed for, and the arrow would hurtle thru the air and into the water so swiftly the eye could hardly follow it.

Usually the stricken fish would dart for his hiding place, find himself blocked by the arrow through his body and after a furious struggle, float to the surface dead. Sometimes, as if he in all things, the fisherman would make his mark and then it was he who suffered instead of the fish, from mortification. The early mountaineer had a passion for marksmanship equal to that of the Indian.

"Fingerin'" was unquestionably the most ticklish phase of fishing back then. This consisted of wading along the streams, hampered by little or no clothing, and making a thorough search (with the hands) under every rock and log that looked like the habitation of fish, or—S. W. H. Sometimes turtles—the hard-shelled sort that hides fingers off with ease—dozed under these. Water snakes, of eels, and the fish-shirter grampuses lived in such places, too.

Small boys, with fishing fever were kept from the creek banks by the fearful story of the grampuses, which is to the effect that if one of the mud-eaters ever gets in with anyone, it keeps hold until it hears thunder. Was he into its victims during the dry season?

Fishing by zigzagging and using "smart weed" usually came under the normal heading the "smart weed" method should have. The hapless thrower and the javelin hurler had little if anything on the old mountain zig-zagging in way of accuracy. With a helper wading along beside him, carrying a blazing pine torch, he could stop the speeding snickers, and hiss at 50 feet with remarkably, no miss. "Uncle" Wiley Patton, now deceased, and one of the greatest zig-zaggers of his time, once said: "A big search a-wiggle" on the prongs of a zig-zag the purliest sight I ever

The "smart weed" process required will power on the part of the fisherman and death by poisoning on the part of the fish. The fiery weed was hauled to a pulp and thrown into a pool of water; and within a few minutes dead fish would begin to float to the surface. Then came the crucial test—wading into the water to gather up the fish. It is aptly described as making the skin feel like "it was full of needles." The heaviest catches of fish were made in this way—a way as far from true sportsmanship as the demanding of today.

The attitude of the average young hillman of today toward the youth of his parents and grandparents is not what it should be. It appears to be a mixture of tolerance and contempt, mostly contempt. If it were possible to pick up one of our young men of today and sit him back in that period along with his cloisters and sailor pants, how would he fare?

But granting that we have men among us today who could fish like grandpa did, of what use is the ability? The fish are gone from all the smaller streams, at least. Poison water from the coal mines, salt water from the oil and gas wells, sawdust from the sawmills, dynamite, "smart weed" and people smart only in their own estimation, these things, have all contributed to the day when the old "fishin' hole" is a mere pond of water. Murder has been done and the Court of Nature has sentenced the hills folk to a diet of canned salmon.

SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of execution No. 48 directed to me, which issued from the clerk's office of the Pike circuit court in favor of Berger Taylor against W. J. Blackburn, I, or one of my deputies will, on Monday, the 25th day of July, 1932, between the hours of 1 o'clock p. m. and 2 o'clock p. m., at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Floyd county, Kentucky, expose to public sale, to the highest and best bidder, the following property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's debt, interest and cost to-wit:

One boundary of four lots in Ceel Addition, Besy Layne, Floyd county, Kentucky, bounded and described as follows: On the North by Tom Land Gearhart; West by Tom Layne; South by A. J. Caldwell, and East by Main street; two foot lot by 140 feet deep. For a more perfect description of said lots, records of the Floyd county court clerk's office are referred to and made a part hereof.

Levied on as the property of W. J. Blackburn. Terms: Sale will be made upon the credit of three months, bond with approved security required, bearing six per cent interest from day of sale, and having the force and effect of a receipt bond. Witness my hand this 9th day of July, 1932.

What is said to be the largest collection of newspapers in the world has been opened to the public in a new museum at Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany. Among its collection of 150,000 newspapers are curiosities from all over the world, including an Eskimo paper from the middle of last century.

America is counting cylinders and AMERICA PREFERS THE SIX

Since January 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

SIX CYLINDERS

NO MORE — NO LESS

For GREATEST ECONOMY and BUILT-IN SMOOTHNESS

With more than six cylinders you sacrifice economy—With less than six cylinders you sacrifice smoothness.

When buying a low-priced car, do as America is doing: Count cylinders! And you'll say, as America is saying: "SIX! No more. No less!" America is saying that in the most convincing way it could possibly be said! With SALES! Since January 1st, the public has purchased more Chevrolets than the combined total of all four-cylinder cars and all eights priced under $1000.

Why? America counted cylinders and came to this conclusion: six is the ideal number for a car of lowest price! No more, because an engine with extra cylinders is bound to cost more for gas, oil and upkeep. No less, because six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have in a car and avoid the undesirable effects of inherent vibration.

A six, as Chevrolet builds it, is the happy medium between two extremes. It gives unexcelled economy. No other motor car engine in America today costs so little for gas, oil and upkeep. It gives built-in smoothness. From 6 miles an hour to 65 or 70, Chevrolet is quietly, comfortably, enjoyably smooth. And because of this smoothness—plus the fact that the whole car is so solidly, ruggedly built—Chevrolet is a low-priced automobile that really stands up. It's a good, reliable, economical car the day you buy it... and it keeps on being good, reliable, economical after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles of driving.

In addition, Chevrolet is a modern car, with Free Wheeling, Synchro-Mesh gear-shifting, Fisher bodies—and many other advanced features. Be cylinder-wise! Follow America's lead and make your next low-priced car a six—a Chevrolet Six! Unless you do, you can't expect the smoothness, economy, and lasting satisfaction to which your money rightfully entitles you.

BEWARE THE POISON IVY!

This warning is more the less time. It is because the State Board of Health has been annually liberating and liberating it, at this season, for a number of years past. While it is especially applicable to vacationists, particularly those who go hiking through the woods, or camping in the hills, it is not without concern to an appreciable percentage of stay-at-homes.

Poison ivy is found in greater or less extent all over Kentucky. It grows along the roadsides and creek beds and in the woods, clinging to fences, walls, trees and shrubs. It is not infrequently found in the back yards of homes. The leaves, dark green in color, grow in groups of three, each leaf having five points. Two of the leaves grow opposite each other and have short stems; the third, or terminal leaf has a longer stem. Three leaves in a cluster spell danger!

To allow the naked hand, or any other part of the body to come in contact with these leaves, or stems, is always to invite and usually to insure a violent inflammation of the skin in burning, painful rash. In fact, some people are so sensitive to the poison of this species of ivy that even going near it may cause infection.

The poison ivy plant bears berries which at first are smooth and green, later turning to a yellowish white. Handling or picking these berries is practical assurance of becoming infected. So violent and noxious is the essential oil of the plant that even in winter, when the leaves have lost their vitality and the sap is at lowest ebb, persons highly susceptible are said to be liable to infection if only passing through the smoke of ivy only.

Many of the fans are wondering at the surprising change in Chick Hafey's style of hitting. Formerly, Hafey was considered a long hitter, especially proficient at bunting biter, and home runs. This year the veteran has concentrated more on place-hitting. If anything, the change has made him even more valuable. Before Hafey became ill, he was batting .287, with only one home run to his credit and only three triples in 51 hits.

As a precautionary measure of first aid treatment, wash the unbroken skin thoroughly in warm, strong soap suds or gasoline. Immediately after contact with poison ivy or as soon as possible, upon the first appearance of the burning, painful rash, consult your physician at once. See to it that there are no poison ivy vines in the vicinity of your home. If any are found, cut them down to the roots, which should then be burned. Do not touch the roots while doing this work and if one is particularly susceptible to ivy infection, the face, hands, especially the eyes, should be protected.

SPICE IN SPORT

By BILL LEACH

When adolescent Chick Hafey, batting cleanup for the National League in 1927, and the staff of the Cincinnati Reds, shipped to the place by the fourth inning of the Cincinnati-Brooklyn game of the clubhouse last week, he received one of the greatest ovations ever accorded a ball player on that field. It was Hafey's first appearance in the Redleg lineup since May 21 and the fans, certainly proved that they were glad to see him. Hafey, batting for Leo Durocher in the lineup and lined at first base, drove to left-center that ball almost to the wall but was taken by Frederick "Dodge" center-fielder after a hard run. That sock showed that Hafey, although weak and underweight from his recent illness, his hot home of his power at the bat.

With Hafey back in the game, as he expects to be sometime this week, the Cincinnati Reds should show a definite upward trend. Even the prospect of Hafey's return has spurred the players, as evidenced by their first of taking three straight from St. Louis and then battling Brooklyn right down to the finish. It is interesting to note that the Reds have recovered their famed batting punch at last. Five of the Red regulars are batting .300 or better. Lombard, Hafey, Herman, Grantham, and Crabtree. Red Lucas, the star twirler, is also well over the .300 mark. Wally Roettger and Harvey Hendrick are nearing that figure.

Bob Herman and Ernie Lombard, the giant Red catcher, are certainly providing a new attraction for Cincinnati fans in their home-run hitting. It's been a long time since any member of the Reds distinguished himself by circuit-climbing. Herman has hit 10 homers so far this year and Lombard has whacked nine. George Grantham has hit four, Roettger three, all in a single week. Harvey Hendrick has two to his credit and Ashbjornson, Crabtree and Hafey one each.

Many of the fans are wondering at the surprising change in Chick Hafey's style of hitting. Formerly, Hafey was considered a long hitter, especially proficient at bunting biter, and home runs. This year the veteran has concentrated more on place-hitting. If anything, the change has made him even more valuable. Before Hafey became ill, he was batting .287, with only one home run to his credit and only three triples in 51 hits.

The United States will enter the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles on July 30 in a much better position than did the team of 1928 which showed so poorly abroad. In that year the Americans won only one individual event, Ray Barboul capturing the 100 meter race. This time there may be a different story. The United States will be represented by a number of star performers, including Topping, the 100 meters dash, Frank Wykoff, Bob Kiesel, also sprinters; Ben Eckman in the quarter and half-mile events; Gene Veenke in the mile and Perry Beard in the hurdles. Les Sexton and Herman Jix will carry the Stars and Stripes into the short sprint competition and in the high jump. This aggregation should improve on the 1928 record of the American team.

It's an old tradition in major league baseball that the club which is in first place on July 4 will win the pennant. Pittsburgh and New York are hoping that this is so. The New York Yankees are leading the American league by six games and the Pirates are now well in front of Boston in the senior loop. The Pirates have continued to play amazing baseball, whupping the New York Giants three games out of four in their recent Gotham series. The team has won 13 of its last 15 games, scoring 85 runs to only 60 for the opposition and making 182 hits to 138 for the other clubs. Seven of the Pirates' 13 victories have been by a single run margin, three of them going extra innings. Steve Swenson is the team's leading hitter, with nine wins in 11 innings.

The Cincinnati Reds are now on the home leg for quite a stay, for which the players give thanks. They need the rest and quiet which comes after a long, tireless journey on the road. The Reds' schedule includes a double-header with the Boston Braves, second place, at Redland field, Sunday.

Cincinnati are sorely disappointed at the failure of the United States Golf Association to include Johnny Fischer, National Intercollegiate champion and second amateur in the 1932 National Open, on the American Walker Cup team which will compete for International Golf honors against England in the August September. The U. S. G. A. recognized the youthful Cincinnati as a candidate, but finally decided that Fischer is not quite ready for that brand of competition. With that reasoning, we cannot agree. The Walker Cup team includes four youngsters, George Dunlap, Jr., of Princeton; Billy Howell, Washington; and Lee Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles; and Jack Westland, Chicago. Fischer defeated Howell in the finals of the Intercollegiate at Hot Springs, Virginia, two weeks ago. That win certainly placed him above Howell; and his showing in the Open, in our opinion, definitely rates him as second amateur in the United States.

Does the depression make you want to fight? The reason we ask is to be certain, if possible, why there have been more uprisings on the major league baseball fields this year than in previous seasons. The latest of the pugilistic exhibitions was staged between Bill Dickey, star backstop of the New York Yankees and Carl Reynolds, outfielder of the Washington Senators. Dickey hit Reynolds on the jaw, dislodging a front-tooth that will keep Reynolds out of the game for at least six weeks. The American League subsequently dished out a sock on the jaw to Dickey, suspending him indefinitely. Conservative fans will say that this sort of brawling on the field isn't new for the reputation of the pastime; but we have a smacking suspicion that such episodes, if not carried too far, actually brighten up the sport and arouse added interest. Baseball and brotherly love simply don't go together. The combative spirit in baseball, typically American, is the prime factor in making it America's national pastime.

Walter Hoyt, whom even the oldest baseball fans will remember as a great pitcher, is back in the major league again, this time with the New York Giants. The veteran appears to be going strong for the New Yorkers, proving that a man may be down but not necessarily out. Hoyt fatted with the Detroit Tigers last year and moved on to the Athletics. He won for Connie Mack, even pitching one of the World Series games. Then Philadelphia released him and he showed up this spring in a Brooklyn uniform. For a time Hoyt did well, but was finally given his release. Now Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, has signed him.

Red Lucas, the Reds' track right-hander, has now whupped every club in the National league at least once, being the only pitcher on the team to do so. Lucas has won nine games, three from Chicago and one each from New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Philadelphia. Lucas has lost eight games, some of them by the toughest breaks. He has allowed a fraction over 7.9

hits a game, has passed 30 batters and struck out 42. He is batting .350, with 28 hits out of 80 trips to the plate. Any club in the league would be glad to have the Redhead pitching for it.

Four home runs in a game is something to hand down to your grandchildren, but at the rate Rube Arritt of the Baltimore Orioles is going, his grandchildren, if any, will become bored listening to Rube rectify his fence-busting exploits. Twice this year Rube has hit four homers in a single game, the second occasion surpassing the first when Arritt made five in a single day. The fifth came in the second game of a double-header. It never occurred to us before that slapping home runs became monotonous.

Is it possible that the Reds have finally broken away from the jinx that has beset them in all St. Louis games during the past few seasons? It's too early to predict that, but the recent series between the Reds and Cards was certainly a big one. The Reds won three in a row, and including a 13-inning tie in St. Louis that was called on account of darkness. The first game was played in Cincinnati, the Reds winning 6-3. In the second, in which both clubs bled, the final score was 4 to 2. Then the Reds hoped on the 4th of July in the first game of a day in St. Louis, and the following day and then the next. On the last day the Reds decided to do the job right, which they won about it, and annihilated the Cards for 13 runs, seven in the first inning.

BONANZA

The bonanza at Bonanza was held at the first of the "barrel" party given Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Badridge. This was a very small affair, the idea being to "cushion" the Badridge and G. L. Spradlin family throughout the night, leaving arrow signs on trees all over the place in which all the boys had gone. The party followed the leaders on top of the hill with a bonfire lighted. Several games were played. Fortunes were distributed by Misses Thelma and Della Badridge and later marshmallows were handed over the bonfire.

Among those enjoying this outdoor event were:

Mr. and Mrs. G. Lee Spradlin, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Badridge, Misses Marie Spradlin, Leona Harmon, Della and Thelma Badridge, Lucille Conley, Miss Mark Spradlin, Lucille Conley, Mrs. Zora Badridge, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Badridge, Messrs. Albert Spradlin, Tom Hill, Cecil Badridge, Woodrow Frazier, Leo Conley, Jim Spradlin, Scott Hill, Benjie and James Harmon.

Sunday afternoon a motor party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Conley. Among those going on the trip were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Conley, Mrs. J. P. Hill, J. A. Badridge, Misses Leona Harmon, Lucille Conley, Della and Thelma Badridge, Mildred Hill, Messrs. Albert Spradlin, Tom Hill, Woodrow Frazier, Benjie and James Harmon, Orlis Conley, Marvin Musie, Raymond Burke, Lawrence Conley and Bill Spradlin.
