LOCAL MERCHANTS DESIGNATE JUNE 5 AS BIG FREE DAY

Plan for 30-Car Motorcade
Welcome Through County
May 31

FREE SHOWS

The merchants of Prestonsburg are planning a thirty-car motorcade and grand parade to various points in Floyd county Monday, May 31, to extend a personal invitation to all Floyd countians to come to Floyd's county seat for "Free Day" on June 5.

The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the plan and has the cooperation of Woman's Club in soliciting ads in a merchants' invitation circular, of which 10,000 are being printed, to reach Floyd county's 50,000 residents.

The motorcade, with cars displaying banners of welcome, will travel both right and left Beaver sections and lower portion of Floyd county.

The merchants, business men and women of the county seat are spending every effort to make "Free Day" one of the grandest occasions of all events. For all the time and expense expended, the business and professional people merely want Floyd countians to come to Prestonsburg on "Free Day" and get acquainted. Come to town in crowds and be present all day in thousands.

On June 5, will feature addresses at the courthouse by J. M. McCreary, shows all day at the Unique Theatre, free music in the streets and free ice water in easy access all over town.

A free day for Floyd countians! Watch for further details.

EDGAR STEPHENS INJURED FATALLY; CAR LEAVES ROAD

One Companion Near Death;
Tragedy Occurs Wednesday Night

Edgar Stephens, 43 years old, Prestonsburg attorney and member of the Floyd county bar, was instantly killed Wednesday night at 10:30 when his car left the highway to the eastward and ran into a tree, according to reports here. Mrs. Agnes Goble, who was driving Stephens' car, lost control of it and failed to negotiate a curve.

Stephens, Mrs. Goble and two McCourt girls (first names of McCourt girls were unobtainable as we go to press) were motoring from the Paintsville business section when the mishap occurred. The impact against the tree practically demolished the car, tearing the cab from the framework.

Mrs. Goble, age 21, of Van Lear, who was thrown clear of the car, was taken, badly injured, to the Paintsville hospital where attendants stated that "she hasn't got one chance in a thousand to live." She had not regained consciousness. Continued on page four

AGED ASSISTANCE ON INCREASE HERE

$2,722 Paid in 282 Checks
to Floyd Residents, Says
April Report

Frankfort, Ky., May 21—During the month of April 282 recipients of old age assistance in Floyd county received a total of $2,722, according to the records of Dr. A. Y. Lloyd, Director of Public Assistance in the State Department of Welfare.

These monthly assistance checks not only aid the old people in each county, but also have a beneficial effect upon business in general. All of this money is immediately used to pay the merchant for food and clothing, the doctor for medicine and professional service, the landlord for rent, and for other necessities of old age assistance, thereby increasing the amount of money circulating in the community.

Over the entire state, 24,827 eligible, needy, aged Kentuckians received $248,465.30 during the month of April, making the average grant approximately $10.00 per recipient. At the present time Kentucky ranks thirty-first among the states in number of recipients of old age assistance in proportion to the population over 65 years of age. This shows remarkable progress when it is considered that in both August and September of 1936, Kentucky ranked at the bottom of the list of states.

New Wheelchair Is Needed; 11,000 Miles on Old Model

The few surviving "Model T's" of the day might eye the record of Tom Scalf's wheelchair, and in fact, "Old Ball Bearing" (Scalf's own name for his vehicle) has gone better. Tom has gone rubber hunting in his wheelchair.

Scalf estimated conservatively that his 11-year-old model Sears vehicle has at least 11,000 miles on it, and 6,000 of these miles were obtained in country road travel in Floyd county through Mud, water, and over rock boulders.

that time but has bagged several on similar trips. And his longest jaunt was 12 miles in one day on Right Beaver Creek during the last county political campaign.

He named his vehicle "Old Ball Bearing," he says, "because it's always bearing down on the road when I'm out getting around (dragging through mudholes and ruts) and bawls for grease when I get home." The wheelchair gets its "horsepower" from one of Scalf's friends pulling by rope in front while another is in the rear pushing.

Scalf and his chair are frequent visitors to the county seat. On his last trip this week he announced that he was going to get a new wheelchair and he is accepting contributions for that purpose. "Old Ball" was purchased thru Continued on page eight

TO OUR GRADUATES

In the life of the average boy and girl few occasions stand out in memory to compare with the thrill of graduation from high school.

In Floyd county the schools will soon celebrate the graduation of another class by the stage of commencement exercises during which the students will receive diplomas attesting to their proficiency and intelligence. For many boys and girls this will mark the end of their opportunity to attend school but they should realize that it does not end their opportunity to learn.

The graduates of our schools and colleges today go into a world that is much improved when compared with conditions several years ago but nevertheless they face problems which some older citizens escaped. Many of them face the obvious search for employment and the opportunity to make their way in life and, unfortunately, there is little certainty that all those who deserve the opportunity to work will be lucky enough to find it.

The Times hopes that the boys and girls who graduate in this county will continue their studies if it be possible for them to do so. They will find their time well spent and reap an appropriate reward later in life.

At the same time, we trust that those who must immediately seek their economic fortune will not forget the days of study or come to the conclusion that they have learned all that they need.

We take this opportunity of congratulating all students in this county who have completed their school courses and therefore receive appropriate diplomas at this time. It is really an epoch in life and the occasion marks the end of an era that will live long in memory but will never return.

Prestonsburg, whether you believe it or not, is just as good, and no better than hundreds of other places in the United States. However, Prestonsburg is your home and you can make it what you want it to be.

Most communities wait for surplus money to plan improvements when, as a matter of fact, the time of individuals is all that is necessary, and every citizen could afford to donate some time.

Citizens of Floyd county might remember, just as they start out on automobile journeys, that the death rate on the highways is going up.

CLUB BANQUETS

The hospital grounds Thursday afternoon when Japanese cherry trees were dedicated to Mrs. Heyser, of Pikeville, chairman of American Citizenship until her death in April. This was one of the most impressive part of the convention program. The state chairman of the convention, Mrs. J. W. Campbell, expressed an open regret that pictures were not made of the scene. Both resolutions sponsored by Mrs. Campbell in connection with the work of her department, were adopted with enthusiasm, also that submitted by the Prestonsburg Club.

One of the most attractive features of the entire program was the Wild Flower Breakfast honoring Past Presidents and Governors. Mrs. J. D. Mayo, of Prestonsburg, decorated the tables with wild flowers planted in small lanterns which delegates were presented on request. Mrs. W. P. Mayo contributed hand-painted place cards with Kentucky wild flowers on them.

As a result of this breakfast and the motif carried out, the club women were asked to send wild flowers from their section to the Banquet Hall.

dona at the University of Kentucky. Mrs. W. T. Lafferty, of Lexington, announced. Mrs. H. F. King presented a clever comical skit, appearing as an aged mountain woman selling produce to the safe owner after which she read several of her own poems which received such an ovation she was asked to appear again on the program the night of the banquet, at which time she gave a reading in Convention Hats, inspired by the headgear worn by convention celebrities. The editor of the Kentucky Club Woman will use some of Mrs. King's poems in the next issue.

The lovely hand-made badges, work of the Lackey Garrett Club, worn as hostess insignia by the entire district evoked much admiration. Ribbons and badges for delegates, officers and committees constitute cherished keepsakes as to the many memos presented by Pikeville ladies and individuals. The Garrett-Lackey Club, of which Mrs. Ruth Sturgill is the splendid president, was well represented at every session.

One of the high lights of Seventh's participation in the program was the selection of Mrs. E. B. Browning, of Ashland, Meadames Rule and Cottrell, accompanying and assisting her. Eastern Kentucky has long been proud to claim Mrs. Browning as her own. Her voice was her lovely voice more beautiful or more enthusiastically received on the opening night of the convention. The district was again honored when Mrs. Edna James, who delighted last year's convention in Harrodsburg, appeared on the program the closing night.

With two numbers which showed the range of Mrs. James' voice, one of the best blue net and standing to the left of Mrs. Wickliffe, thus embodying the floor scheme. Those who missed the banquet missed the best part of all, for it was beautiful beyond description, featuring Constitution Day, with decorations in patriotic colors, miniature flags, and menus as follows:

The Seventh District presented corsages to Mrs. P. Mayo, Mrs. Stanley Combs and Mrs. E. R. May, presentation being made by Mrs. Ed Stephens. In the center of the official table the American flag rose from a stand, ribbons extending from it to each end of the table. The table was surrounded with carnations in red, white and blue, and red and white peonies midst rhododendron leaves ran the length of the table on the red ribbon. CONTRACT LET by Levi J. Dean, architect, the same architect who drew the plans for the Garrett high school now under construction at Garrett. Latest school architecture incorporated in the plans will assure a modern school plant for Bettendorf. When interviewed, Mr. Hall, county superintendent, said: "I am delighted to see Betsy Layne's school going along with the fine building. Both communities are much alive and school construction. Both communities have a wonderful school spirit and atmosphere and both towns deserve the finest buildings we can construct with available funds. The new building at Garrett will make pace one of the best school plants this side of Ashland. The Bettendorf building is a great improvement over the structure that was recently destroyed by fire, and will be one of the finest school plants in the county."

Other business transacted at the short session of the county board Saturday was: The date for the beginning of all one, two and three teacher schools next school year was set at July 6, 1937. All four teacher schools and above, including high schools, were set to begin Aug. 23. Bettendorf schools early, Mr. Hall said, will make it possible for many children to attend school longer. Many children are prevented from attending school in the winter season because of a deficiency in clothes and shoes. These children there will be a dedica-same children, however, will find little difficulty in attending school during the early days of July. Besides, high schools will close two weeks earlier next year because they are being started two weeks earlier. This will greatly facilitate work on the farm and in the yards next spring. In addition, every school will greatly reduce the cost of fuel bills by starting early.

Work on the Garrett building is progressing nicely, it is reported. All the foundation and footers have been completed, and the back are on the ground ready for laying. The board of education authorized at its Saturday meeting for the construction of a 10-room brick high school building near Wheelwright Junction between the towns of Melvin and Wheelwright and Burton. Contract is to be let June 5, 1937.

The people of Dwayne petitioned the superintendent for an election to vote on the question of whether they continue to pay the graded school tax of 25c to 100c. The election was held Saturday between 1 and 3 p.m., and 45 citizens voted to keep the tax on, while 18 voted to take it off and revert to a seven months school. Hence the tax by a vote of the people at Dwayne themselves stays on. Dwayne has a two-teacher grade school with 100 pupils in its census. It has just closed a nine-months school term.

Why Do Institutions Pass?

"The earth does move," said Galileo, and he was right. Just about the time we think everything is settled, Columbus, or some other dreamer, comes along and unsettles everything. Sometimes the change is for the better, sometimes it is not. Usually it is merely different. There always comes a time of adjustment after every change, when some thing to the old, some accept the new, and the rest of us halt between the old and the new. At all ages of the world, reluctant to change. Memory attaches to what we knew and did when we were young and probably this causes most of the ache we feel at giving up the old for the new. At all ages of the world, because of the reactions to change, there have been left-overs from time long past. No new idea takes the world by storm; the world is too much accustomed to spellbinders of all sorts to accept all they say. Suppose, to borrow a logical figure, we could be living in a world where saurians were roaming the prairies, where saber-toothed tigers and mammoths were fighting for supremacy, where cave men abounded and, at the same time, where aeroplanes were flying over the ocean, where scientific expeditions were setting out to hunt saurians and photograph them instead of merely finding their petrified bones, and where kings of the Cannibal Islands were voyaging to distant lands in submarines. Though these things may not happen in a normal world, something similar is forever going on. There the living fossils in our language that were supposedly dead before William the Conqueror, crossed the English Channel. Ours are customs so much older than recorded history that all of men's records look recent.

In spite of the numerous left-overs, we all can see that the years between the Civil War and our time brought more changes than any similar period of history. The break-up of the old plantation system had much to do with this; the westward movement was another disturbing cause. The industrial revolution, though older than Civil War times, did not make itself felt in every section, until the end of the century, along about 1890. Popular education is also responsible for the rapid standardization of our lives. From the one-room school, with a teacher barely an eight-year-old child, to the modern four-year high school and a college or university graduate, we have progressed in a quarter of a century. Then transportation has wiped out old lines, so that it is not at all unusual for the remotest country people to have traveled entirely across the continent, people, too, whose immediate ancestors did well to know places 50 or 60 miles away. Wherever people have gone, they have acquired new ideas and have thus loosened their hold on their old ways. Standardization of vehicles, of speech, of customs, and almost of thought has made it rather hard on customs that were peculiar to a certain locality or to a certain family. The remotest places of the world are closer now by radio than the county seat used to be. It would be hard to find a neighborhood where formerly one could not tell you the latest news, American or foreign. All of these tendencies to a different set of habits, from wearing clothes like all the rest of the world to setting your clock with the time announced over the radio rather than by a shadow cast on the kitchen floor.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Dr. Sophia Brunson

Fighting Infantile Paralysis
Infantile paralysis has not been conquered like smallpox, diphtheria and so many other scourges of mankind. However, it seems that a beginning has been made which may prove of inestimable service in combating this disabling and crippling illness. Paul de Kruif is secretary of the commission that has charge of the research work on infantile paralysis. I shall make use in this article of statements for which Dr. De Kruif is authority.

The microbe of this strange malady is probably everywhere, yet for every child it maims or kills, it makes hundreds of boys and girls, and even babies immune-resistant. Permanently, for life.

Every child that has the disease develops within his blood a substance that makes it practically impossible for him to have the disease again. You naturally inquire if the blood of those who have acquired immunity from this sinister plague cannot be injected into children who are not immune and thus protect them against the dread polio.

No, the blood of those who have had the disease has no power to protect or guard other children from an attack. Serum holds no hope of prevention or cure of the malady. It is the nerve cells of the brain and spinal cord that are attacked by the small, invisible microbes of infantile paralysis. No one can find safety in quarantine for himself or his children; the disease is apt to be spread by the sick.

The outlook for prevention is now much more hopeful than formerly, because we are reasonably certain that the microbes find entrance into the body thru the nose. Infantile paralysis, as we have said, attacks the nerves of the body. Inside the noses of monkeys and children they have spied a curious little doorway by which and thru which alone, this death can enter. Up in the roof, the very vault of monkeys' and children's noses, they have spied the ending of the nerve fibers. They are the only nerves in all the body that are completely naked to the outside world. They pass from the nose, thru the bottom of the skull direct to the brain. This and this alone is the one pathway by which it is surely known that the dreadful paralytic death can force entry.

When it was found out by what portal the deadly microbes entered the body of Charles Armstrong, a research worker, set to work to discover how the port of entry could be blocked against them. For three years he experimented on monkeys.

"One after day he washes the insides of monkeys' noses with a weak solution of peric acid and alum. That way he coats, he galvanizes, you might say, those delicate nerve endings. Then he waits six days, lets those galvanized monkeys rest. Then day after day, he pours into their nostrils, terrifically deadly doses of the infantile paralysis virus.

"And this absolute simple, harmless, preventive saves 21 out of 25 monkeys from a hot, dangerous virus that kills 20 out of 26 monkeys whose noses have not been washed out with the solution of peric acid plus alum."

The change from monkeys to children was made in the epidemic that raged in Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi in the summer of 1936.
