Twelfth Year

APPROPRIATION OF $2,500 IS VOTED FOR HEALTH DEPT.

Fiscal Court Approves Retail Liquor License Fee of $100

AUDIT FOR COUNTY VOTED UNANIMOUSLY

Rider To Health Dept. Motion Stipulates Vincent Be Sanitary Inspector

A $2,500 appropriation for the health department, a county audit, license fees for retail liquor dealers and the recommendation of three road projects for construction were voted by the Floyd county fiscal court at its meeting here last Wednesday.

Passing the appropriation for the health department unanimously with the provision that it care for prisoners in the county jail throughout the coming fiscal year, a rider was added to the motion in the latter stages of the meeting, making the appropriation provided H. H. Vincent, Martin, be accepted for the position of sanitary inspector by the health department. The vote was three to one for the rider, Magistrate Will Willis voting nay.

A license fee of $100 for each retail liquor store in the county was unanimously voted by the magistrate, upon motion of Daniel Akers, seconded by Will Willis. The license is to be paid July 1 by certified check to the county treasurer, the check to accompany the dealer's application. Records show that the fee is to be used for expenses of the county, including office expenses, courthouses, and expenses for the poor. (Continued on page eight)

This Town— That World

(By JAMES B. GOBLE)

SUGGEST YOUR OWN TITLE

To those in this town who mourn the high rate of slayings in Floyd county each year and who lament the fact that of the hundreds tried for murder in circuit court here in the past few years none have received the death penalty and only a scant few have received sentences of more than 10 years imprisonment; to those who claim that justice is not as it should be, we point the finger of scorn and merrily at their ignorance.

If these Doubting Thomases, if these ignorant gossip-mongers would but attend one of the trials here and listen to the eloquent pleas of the defense lawyers and witnesses, they would soon learn that in this county it is always the righteous man who triumphs in a gun-battle.

Why, by the very testimony of the accused man's witnesses, it proved 99 times out of 100 that the poor accused was a peaceful man whose life was threatened by some desperate fiend, and that he slew the fiend only as a last resort to save his own life. Indeed, does not the fiend always fire the first shot at the righteous survivor?

But persons in this town refer to a ridiculous "law of averages," saying that it is unreasonable that in so many hundreds of murder cases the righteous man should always emerge the victor. Therein they are foolish in basing their deduction upon a gambling law of averages. The very idea of mentioning gambling and a court of justice in the same breath! Phooey, phooey!

If they would but attend these trials and listen to the continual proof of the poor defendant's righteousness, how he was forced to defend himself after begging his life in vain, then would they know that a mere law of averages is not infallible, that here in Floyd it has been proven false time after time.

Yet these persons rant and rave by saying that the grand jury continually indict men for murder on rape. (Continued on page eight)

CHAS. OPPENHEIMER, 73, HONORED WITH PARTY

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Essel Fielding and daughter, Louella; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Phillips; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Oppenheimer and family, all of Olive Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Oppenheimer and children, Marion Louise and Leo Davis, of Morehead; and the following, all of Prestonsburg: Mr. and Mrs. Ruth Worling, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ranier and son, Harry Ray, Mrs. Oppenheimer and son Carl, and youngsters, Norman and T. Y. Martin.

HERBERT SPRADLIN FREED UNDER BOND

Judge Hill Sets Bail at $5,000 in Convicted Man's Killing

Herbert Spradlin, 25, was released under $5,000 bail at his examining trial Saturday afternoon after County Judge E. P. Hill had ordered searched for weapons as he did Friday when the trial was called but postponed.

Howard, under a five-year prison sentence for the slaying of Earl Spradlin, Herbert's brother, was shot to death in front of Clark's Rexall Store here May 6 while an appeal on his sentence was pending.

Commonwealth witnesses testified that Howard's arms were flung upward as six bullets entered his body.

Defense witness Bill Spradlin, Jr., son of Police Lieut. Spradlin to whom the youthful defendant surrendered, testified that Howard thrust his right arm beneath his coat as he met Spradlin and that only one arm was flung upward.

A witness on each side testified that six bullets entered the outer side of Howard's right arm.

County Judge Hill, in setting bond, termed both slayings "a baby feud," adding that because Howard had killed Spradlin's brother, the emotional stress of the defendant was probably aggravated if Howard had thrust an arm beneath his coat, according to defense testimony.

He asked that the families and their difficulties peacefully, and that the killing be stopped. "The man who gets killed, and the man who kills—both are losers," he added.

FLOYD SLAYER IS HELD IN COLORADO

Matt Jones, Indicted in Slaying of McDowell Police Chief, Nabbed

Notified of the capture at Boulder, Colorado, of Matt Jones, 35, wanted here in connection with the slaying of McDowell's police chief, Levi Hall, Floyd county Sheriff Dial Salisbury was preparing to leave Wednesday and return here with the wanted man.

Reports here stated that Jones was identified through a photograph published in a national detective magazine. He is indicted for slaying the police chief, Hall, at McDowell August 19, 1937, while allegedly intoxicated. It was claimed that Hall attempted to send Jones home, that Jones cursed, went home and returned to fire a blast into Hall's abdomen. A search for Jones, who fled, was unsuccessful.

NINE GRANDPARENTS, GREAT-GRANDPARENTS, CLAIMED BY PATRICIA SUE GOBLE, 4-YEAR-OLD PRESTONBURG CHILD, FOR POSSIBLE RECORD

With nine grandparents and great-grandparents living, a possible record, four-year-old Patricia Sue Goble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Y. Goble, Prestonsburg, can claim far more than the average child, and she has one more great-grandparent than grandparents.

The little Miss has five maternal grandparents and great-grandparents. Mrs. Sally Stewart, H. E. Stewart and J. P. Spradlin, great-grandparents; Mrs. Cordelia Whittier and Sherd Spradlin, grandparents. Paternal, she has Mrs. Elizabeth Goble and "Aunt" Charity Beavers, great-grandparents; Mrs. Byrd Goble and W. C. Goble, grandparents. The age of the youngest, "Grandmother" Byrd Goble, is 46. "Grandmother" Sally Stewart, the oldest, is 83.

When a two-year-old the child lost another great-grandparent, in the death of N. Y. Beavers, husband of "Aunt" Charity Beavers, who would have brought the list to 10.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: If any Floyd county reader knows a child with more, or as many, grandparents and great-grandparents than Patricia Sue, THE TIMES will be glad to print the story.)

BEV

WONDERS CAN HE CUT HIS OWN HAIR WITHOUT LICENSE?

Rev Osborne, minister, brother of Dony, came here last week seeking an appeal in Floyd Circuit Court from his second time and jail sentence imposed by a magistrate for "barbering without a license."

His appeal petition filed, he came to THE TIMES office to have his picture taken while, with the aid of a mirror, he clipped his hair, a procedure, he said, he always followed. "Dyah reckon hit's against the law for a man to cut his own hair?" he wondered.

Rev is the gentleman who, while serving a jail sentence here recently for his "barbering" offense, asked THE TIMES that he be given publicity as a "jailbird" to warn others of the seriousness of "barbering without a license."

Now Bev, himself, is in the toils again.

NO-HITTER IS PITCHED AS PRESTONBURG WINS

The first no-hit softball game of the local season was won here Sunday by Pitcher Bill Davis, who almost singlehandedly enabled Prestonsburg to defeat Emma, 7-0.

Davis struck out seven Emma batters, allowing two walks, but no man passed second. Prestonsburg batted Emma pitchers for 10 hits. Prestonsburg, Thursday, plays Maytown here, and will tackle Emma again here at Gasco park Sunday.

44,000 VOLTS KILL LUTHER HARRIS, 29

Brandy Keg Man Instantly Killed in Tragedy Near Logan, W. Va.

Instantly electrocuted by 44,000 volts of electricity when a battery box cable he was using for blasting dynamite became charged with power from an overhead high-tension line, Luther Harris, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harris, Brandy Keg man, died near Logan, W. Va., last Saturday.

With electricity flowing through his body Harris was thrown into a deep pit, from which two workmen, witnesses of the tragedy, removed his body. He did not anchor the blasting cable to the ground with rocks, the usual procedure.

An employee of the Hoosier Engineering Company engaged in rebuilding a power line, Harris was operating the battery box to blast holes for new poles. Attempting to finish his work and return to his home, he contacted the high-tension line, carrying the current back to the battery box, which his right hand was still grasping.

This version of the tragedy continues that, when Harris shot, the cable was blown overhead, blasting the high-tension line, carrying the current back to the battery box, which his right hand was still grasping. (Continued on page 8)

W. VA. COP CHARGES P'BURG MEN AT FIGHTS

An accusation that men from the Prestonsburg, Ky., district had been charged to fight with a Virginia man, made Sunday by State Police Sergeant W. E. Moss, who led the raid on a game pit near Logan that nabbed 78 operators and 27 rocks.

The sergeant said that several men escaped from the pit after ripping a board from the back of the establishment when the troopers attacked the only entrance.

SCHOOL STRIKE IS ENDED AT AUXIER

Committee of Students Confronts Here With Superintendent Town Hall

Auxier high school students' brief strike, called when they learned the Board of Education had not rehired John Stewart as teacher, was ended last Thursday as they returned to school after a student committee had conferred here with Superintendent Town Hall.

Mr. Hall said that the committee was told a better qualified teacher had been hired to replace Stewart, and if the students persisted in their strike, teachers would follow orders "to keep the schoolhouse locked" until they changed their minds.

The committee appeared here following the appearance the previous day of approximately 100 Auxier junior and senior students, many of them wearing placards, "We Want Stewart!" In the absence of Superintendent Hall, they were heard by Attendance Officer Leonard Mann.

Mr. Mann, with Auxier Principal Gomer C. Swigley, persuaded the students to return to school and select a committee to call on the superintendent when he returned.

Loftie Hammond, student spokesman of the committee and delegation the previous day, said that Stewart had asked the students not to strike.

$2,000 BAIL SET FOR MOTORIST IN EXAMINING TRIAL

George, Charged in Confession With Death of Layne Girl at Tram

CONFESSION DENIED BY WOMEN SIGNERS

Taxi-Driver Without Counsel, Denies Auto Struck Girl; Willis Presides

Because of the hit-and-run death on the night of May 7, near East of Mott, Edna Layne, 22, a taxi driver Wednesday was placed under $2,000 bond for his grand jury appearance and because of the maze of conflicting testimony which they contributed to the case three young women may never reform school or penitentiary terms.

Irvine George, 25, of near Paintsville, is the taxi driver accused in the tragedy. Commonwealth's Attorney O. C. Hall and County Attorney Forrest D. Short, indicated that they would charge Julia B. Webb and Hattie Ramsey, sisters, Alphonso, with perjury after they had repudiated at the examining trial of George held here Wednesday before Magistrate W. T. Willis.

Willis, in the presence of Commonwealth's Attorney Hall, Deputy Sheriff W. M. Hagans and others, Mildred Keens, West Prestonsburg, faces the same charge for her part in the case.

George denied that his auto struck Miss Layne. He was not represented by counsel, testifying in his own behalf only briefly.

State's Coal Output Is 45,000,000 Tons

approximately 35,000, also a decrease as 58,494 were working in Kentucky mines during 1936. This loss was due in part to persons working elsewhere during the off-peak of production. State Department officials pointed out. There were 270 large mines (railroad mines) and approximately 400 wagon and truck mines operating during 1937.

The gross payroll for 1937 was in the neighborhood of $75,000,000—a decrease from 1936 due to a decrease in production and fewer men employed. The decrease in production was due to market conditions, it was said. The 1936 gross payroll was $90,000,000, statistics show.

Kentucky stands out as one of the leading states in which a variety of coal seams are mined and by a number of methods, including some of the best mechanized equipped mines in the nation. This is also true of many shales and during the year a large strip operation began in Hopkins county.

At this strip operation is one of the largest shales ever manufactured. The bucket is large enough to permit a five-passenger automobile to be driven into it with space to spare.

There are fewer mines in Kentucky than formerly because the mines have grown larger and are able to produce more tonnage. The state's mines could produce 100,000,000 tons of coal a year, if the demand for the product justified such an output.

The reason for the decreases is the Kentucky's coal output during 1937 was approximately 45,000,444 tons—a decrease of approximately 2,694,000 tons, according to statistics compiled by the State Department of Mines and Minerals.

The decrease pushed Kentucky into fourth place among coal-producing states, with Pennsylvania ranking first, West Virginia second, and Illinois, third. In 1936, Kentucky was third.

The number of persons employed in and about the mines during 1937 was not as good as in former years because of a large amount of tonnage being on hand at the "head of the Great Lakes."

The "late business" during 1937 was not as good as in former years because of a large amount of tonnage being on hand at the "head of the Great Lakes."

Coal business in Kentucky is decidedly "off" at the present time because business in general is decidedly "off." There is little demand for coal for industrial purposes because of the industrial slump.

In the northeastern section of the state all towns from the head of the Big Sandy river to its mouth at Catletburg are dependent, largely on the coal industry, which is Kentucky's second largest business, ranking next to agriculture.

In the Hazard field, all towns from the head of the Kentucky river valley from its head down through such towns as Harlan, Pineville, Middleboro, Barbourville, Corbin, Williamsburg, and those towns in Whitley county, as well as Somerset and a great deal of Pulaski county, also Laurel, Rockcastle, Jackson, Clay, Clinton and Wayne, derive a large share of their benefits from the coal industry. This also is true of Central Kentucky to a great extent, although indirectly.

In the eastern section of the state, Hanlan county is the largest coal producing county, the total tonnage being almost as great as the next three coal producing counties—Floyd, Letcher and Pike.

The counties of Floyd, Pike and Letcher for many years have been great producing centers and, as there is an abundance of unmined coal in the entire eastern section of the state, coal will continue to be mined on a large scale for years to come.

Union, Webster, Hopkins and Muhlenberg counties for years have been the largest coal producing counties in Western Kentucky, but coals of high quality have been mined in Ohio, McLean, Davies, Christian, Henderson, Butler and Hancock counties. Like the eastern section of the state, most of the coals and lignites in Western Kentucky depend wholly or in part on the coal industry. This extends to Louisville, which is headquarters of many of the Eastern and Western Kentucky coal companies.

The outlook for 1938 depends entirely on the price structure and the fall and winter coal business depends mainly on the weather.

Cold weather moves coal faster than anything else.

THE MOTHER'S FOOD

The mother stands between her baby and nutritional disaster. The nine months before a baby is born is often the most neglected period of his existence. The pregnant woman is likely to leave her diet largely to chance on the whims of appetite, although she may be most careful of her food during the nursing period. The pregnant woman as well as the nursing mother should find out from a physician how much of certain essential foods she must eat daily.

The food needs during pregnancy and the nursing period differ from those of any other time. The mother's food must maintain and repair her body and furnish fuel for warmth and work, and also provide for the growth of her baby and for maintaining his body temperature, muscular activities and body fat. Many of us eat too much, but few mothers get enough of the vitamins and mineral foods needed for health, growth, and the normal regulation of the body processes.

During the pregnant and nursing periods all women should have an abundance of the "protective foods"—milk, eggs, green leafy vegetables, and fruits. These essential growth foods, which safeguard the bones and teeth, brain and muscles of the baby, can be increased in the diet without necessarily increasing the total amount of food taken daily.

Milk is superior to any other single food in adequacy of protein, abundance of lime and variety of other minerals, and richness in vitamins. Milk is as much needed to build the baby during pregnancy as to promote breast milk.

The use of milk, in cooking soups, cereals, white sauce, custards, puddings, and cocoa, helps to put the desired quart in the daily food. MILK IS THE BEST BODY BUILDER.

Topsoil May Wash Away

In Few Years
Careless farming may waste in a few years the soil that nature took centuries to build.

At one erosion experiment station of the Soil Conservation Service, scientists estimated it took nature 400 years to make every inch of top soil, but in 16 years all the top soil would wash away if the land were planted to corn year after year.

Under a three-year rotation of corn, wheat, clover, and timothy, this same topsoil would last 99 years. Planted to a permanent cover of meadow grasses, the close-growing roots would protect the soil for nearly 4,000 years. This shows, says the scientist, the advantage of taking steep, erodible hillsides out of cultivation and retiring them to grass, trees, or some other soil-protecting crop. It also indicates why crop rotations help maintain soil and soil fertility.

Early Grazing

Tender young grass growing in permanent pastures early in spring looks mighty good but it's not quite good enough to eat.

The early growth contains only a small percentage of nutrients and cattle cannot eat enough to maintain their body weight and keep up a heavy flow of milk.

In her attempt to satisfy her hunger, the cow often eats weeds and buds in sufficient quantities to give her milk an unpalatable flavor. Such milk is not marketable.

Early grazing is bad for the pasture, too, when the first growth is grazed, the grass is damaged in two ways.

The grass needs the early leaves to manufacture plant food, make a vigorous growth, and develop good root systems. If the first growth is grazed off, the pasture will fail to produce good grazing through the summer.

Usually the soil is soft and damp in the early spring. When cattle trample over a soft, moist clay soil they cut it up into clods that will dry out hard, and at the same time they damage the grass roots with their hooves.

W. P. A. Here They Come

You'll soon meet them, W. P. A.
Within a few days the girls and boys composing the senior class of Prestonsburg high school will step to a platform to receive diplomas emblematic of four years study. Four years spent in the study of "facing life better qualified."

They'll be clad in white flannels and frothy frocks. Smiles will be on their young faces. And in their heads will be a smattering of the arts and sciences and the platitudes of the pedagogues: "Education conquers the world." "A graduate is fitted for industrial and business leadership."

Don't laugh, W. P. A. Don't laugh because you know that here in Prestonsburg there is no industry to receive these youths. Don't laugh because you know only one-fifth of them will be fortunate enough to go on to college or receive jobs at once-enclosed white collar jobs that pay less than a ditch-digger earns.

It is not their fault that they do not have lucrative positions waiting for them; that they cannot all go to college. The fault lies with the section in which they are reared; with the parents and their parents, whose offspring they are; in the lack of initiative that sees industry established in neighboring counties instead of at home. It's not their fault, W. P. A.

Oh, you won't see the majority of them—but you'll be the grim ogre in the back of their heads. A grim specter haunting their white—the cause of a few leaving home seeking jobs for which college graduates are better qualified; the cause of a few joining the C. C. C.—the cause of hundreds of men without jobs.

You see, W. P. A., here they receive no vocational training. Their heads have been trained but not their hands.

And not only this town, but many other towns, are demanding trained hands more than they are trained heads; are demanding more than a high school graduate for the job which requires a trained head.

Education is God's greatest gift, but it's a painful gift for one in a town of non-existent jobs. Don't treat them too harshly, W. P. A.

No Fairy Tale

Once upon a time there was an automobile driver who hailed a passing motorist and said, "Hey, mister, what about loanin' me a gallon of gas? I wanta drive down the road a ways and run over that kid of yours."

Not having a gun handy, the motorist merely returned a prompt and emphatic "No!"

Then there also was the occasion when probably the world's most warlike nation came to our shores, begging for helium gas. But, said this nation, this gas is to be used in the interest of science. We're not thinking of trouble; don't want to bomb your cities, kill your women and children. We're not like the motorist; we just want to fly back and forth across the Atlantic with passengers and commercial shipments.

And, being trusting souls, we haven't yet said, "No!"

Powerful lobbyists hovering around Washington would have us believe that we should sell helium to the Germans who must depend upon this for their future in the air with giant Zeppelins. They emphasize the dear cause of Science—not the science of wholesale murder but that which has a capital S. The United States has never had any success with its dirigibles. Let Germany, somebody who can operate them, have the helium, they argue.

But they breathe nothing of the facts. They fail to state that a Zeppelin can transport fifty or a hundred times more death-dealing substances, and can cruise over a far wider range, than can the largest airplane. They do not admit that Germany as a nation exists with the toast, "Der Tag," always in its consciousness.

Without helium, the German Zeppelin is a failure—as much a failure as our dirigibles have been made through sabotage. Carrying hydrogen, they are highly inflammable and vulnerable to attack; with helium, even machine gun bullets may cause them no great damage.

We have helium; Hitler does not. Let him otherwise do without. Can it be possible that Dr. Fuhner's scientists have found substitutes for foodstuffs and the materials from which clothing are made and yet cannot find a satisfactory substitute for a substance he needs for war?

Can we spare some gas? The Zeppelins are "clean out," and our children are playing peacefully in the streets. Can we?

Write or wire your Senator and your Congressman your answer—TODAY.

Lovely, But Rare

Here and there as one drives through the mountains of Southeastern Kentucky a patch of crimson clover—red clover is a different crop—blazes under the May sun, in full bloom.

Where crimson clover is planted soil, which, of course, may need additional renewal such as lime or phosphate provides, receives great refreshment if the clover, well grown, is turned under with plow or disc.

Corn planting on mountain declivities where a wagon cannot be used at gathering time because it would turn over and roll down hill, will never be less than ruinous to hills that should forever bear timber, unless terracing becomes a feature of tillage.

In valleys much of the land was highly fertile when farming began. But even in the richest coverlands soil renewal is needed after years of crop production. Patches of crimson clover are beautiful, and highly useful, but rare—Louisville Times.

up by the Re-Organization Act. Mr. King said the next session of the Kentucky Legislature will be asked to enact a law embracing the Kentucky system. Under the expert guidance of Commissioner Martin, Kentucky's taxation and financial set-up has gained national recognition. The states of Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Indiana, Ohio, and West Virginia have studied it, in an effort to model their own similar laws. Governor Frazier, considering it a brief visit at the capital last week, on his way to the Derby.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

AFRAID OF THE DARK

If darkness itself is no longer scary, I wonder what about noises of the night. Some are so much more obvious at night than many superstitions and fears have grown up around them. Owls hooting have frightened many a weak-nerved person, especially scream owls, with their quivering, descending notes. It used to be the custom to burn an old shoe to run away such purveyors of gloom. I do not know whether owls have a keen sense of smell or not; if they do, the old shoes are very effective. Lays of owls are seldom associated with bad luck except the barred owl when he gives his almost human shriek. Bad luck, even death in the family, is portended by owls. Probably no sound carries farther and sets more nerves tingling than the howling of dogs. It has been believed in all ages that dogs could see and hear things that our coarser ears and eyes could not take in. Hence it is feared that dogs sense the presence of invisible things, especially evil spirits. Aside from any superstitious fear associated with it, the howling of dogs awakes in many of us a primitive feeling that allies us with the most ancient of days. Some people I know would scold the dogs when they began to howl and would thus force them into silence; others feared to disturb them and let them howl on.

Indoors there are sounds that have made many a head of hair stand on end. Certain beetles in the walls have acquired the very unjust name of "death-watchers" because of their clicking sounds. On cold nights the furniture and the walls themselves pop and crack, making many a child and superstitious grown-up fear that spirits are talking abroad. The fire often makes a sound that is usually interpreted as treading or "tromping" snow. Some fearful ones read this as a bad omen, connected with sickness and death rather than snow.

Flying squirrels can create a weird impression when they scamper around in the "loft" and suddenly reappear in another place, as if they, too, were spirits. Squawking mice, on top of a bit of food, have many times frightened people who in daylight would have faced a panther.

In the night we seem to lose much of the fine bravery that civilization has built up. We revert to the days when primitive man feared, and rightly so, the woodland inhabitants that might devour him in the darkness. In spite of our increasing knowledge of our surroundings, we still shiver at the sound that ought to be enjoyed or ignored.

Louisville Editor Believes "Poor Mountaineer" Could Enlighten City Dwellers

(By TOM WALLACE)

I accepted an invitation from the University of Kentucky to visit Carcassonne Community Center in Letcher county, Southeast Kentucky, near the Virginia line, to discuss the problems of which being done there, seven miles, and two mountains, from the railroad and nearest improved road.

Elmer G. Sulzer, U. K. director of radio work at Carcassonne Community Center, was explaining the first annual Kentucky Listening Center Directors and piloting visitors. Listening centers serve families who do not own receiving sets, and whose members are willing to come to the radio till the radio comes to them.

Mr. Sulzer gave me typed directions as follows: "On State Road Fifteen, eight miles west of Whitesburg, turn south on Seven to a point a mile and a half beyond Blackey where the road turns up a creek."

"Gander is five miles up this road, from the state road. The road is passable for automobiles except in winter."

"Don't be discouraged if your car won't make it. The walk is delightful. Don't bring much luggage and you will not have much to carry."

It was raining softly, but steadily, when I reached Blackey. There I parked and set out afoot.

After leaving the creek bed the road to Gander climbs a mountain in hairpin, rather than serpentine or horseshoe, curves, descends to a valley higher than the Blackey level, climbs again and reaches Gander, near a ridge-top.

The rain continued. I had loaned my raincoat to a companion who had not brought hiking clothes, and who donned overalls bought at Blackey.

The walking was hot work, on an increasingly slippery earth road. The rain did not penetrate my leather jacket or my heavy khakis, but the sweat of honest toil during the skyward climb came through everything inside the jacket, including a sweater which I wore, instead of carrying it, hoping to get to Gander with something dry.

We passed on the muddy wagon road a few boys and girls who were walking up from Blackey to the conference, and over the forest trails which converge at Gander came more boys and girls, men and women than one would have believed would have traveled the rain to hear discussions of problems of communication and culture.

Older men and women were dressed conservatively. The girls and boys wore the sort of clothing one sees almost everywhere nowadays. Sheer silk, or maybe rayon stockings, rolled, were prevalent among the girls, some of whom used lipsticks and had tinted finger-nails.

A girl, 16 or 17, a flashing beauty, dark haired, with high natural color, sat with her head resting on the shoulder of a justly proud youth, while one man from the lowlands spoke under the title "University Programs for the Mountaineers," another under the title "Preservation of Mountain Culture," and a third under the title "Preservation of Mountain Wildlife Life."

Responses of highlanders, mainly young men and women who had gone to Berea, or elsewhere, to complete their education, were more interesting than addresses of visitors.

In admirable English, with admirable taste, one young man scored trash in radio programs and columns of newspapers. He was for less of the elements of radio broadcasts and feature pages that are addressed to the mentality which Shakespeare had in mind when he referred to barren spectators.

I advocated "more of the philosophy of life, not Kant or Hegel, but something which induces reflection," and less of supposed entertainment addressed to those who are believed unable to think. A young woman—introduced as "born at the head of the last hollow leading from the last creek," in one of the nearby watersheds—who had returned to her beloved highlands after equipping herself as a teacher, urged respect for, adherence to simplicity, retention of the best there is in mountain culture "even if some people do regard us as a zoo."

One mountain speaker almost duplicated the complaint of a metropolitan newspaper editor whose speech I heard at a convention breakfast in the new Willard Hotel in Washington a few days earlier when he cited success of "Time" as proving that many persons want less froth, more news, in alleged newspapers.

As I hoofed it down the trail—a shorter route to Blackey than the wagon road provides—to stream level and toward Blackey, where the Kentucky river is a shallow, crystal stream that skirts the highway, I wondered whether, since the lowlands had sent a mission to Gander, they might not be fair play.

Gander, or at least the mountain-born educators who were heard there, might send a mission to the lowlands.

If some of these clear-headed young people should come down from their plumbed hills, along trails which run by tinkling brooks bordered by flame azaleas, broadleaf magnolias, and fire-pinks, and give us the benefit of their opinions maybe they would benefit us more than a handful who will climb the mountain in the mud to air their views.

NAMES CHANGED

Superintendent of Johnson county schools, John Fred Williams, recently came into possession of a pair of fine fox bound pupes. He took them home and told his son their names were to be Hailo Selesie and Mahatma Gandhi, in honor of the deposed Ethiopian and Indian bigwigs. Later a friend questioned the right of one pup to bear the name of a gentleman. And now John Fred is having a time training his son to call the pups by their new names, Edward and Wally—Paintsville Herald.

HURT WHILE CHAINED

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Geo. Waters, chained to a wheelbarrow while at work with a city work house crew, was hurt in an accident here today. City officials expressed the opinion he walked into a car driven by Mrs. Mary Agnew, a railway employee, of Gracely. An X-ray was ordered. After return to the work house at the city work house, Waters was sent to the work house last Saturday to work out a $12.50 fine for drunkenness.

Writer For Prison Paper Tells Baddies Secrets of Abe Lincoln's Successes

To you gentlemen who live within the confines of the protective walls and three-barred cubical apartments of this magnificent structure known as the State University of Southern Michigan; to you men of few letters, and no letters at all, who are now paying heed to the knock knock of Educational Opportunity banging away at your door for admittance: Have you forgotten the magnificent words of the great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, who started whittling away at a fence rail in Illinois and kept right on hacking until he cut a path straight through to the presidential chair? a path along the way only long enough to burn a few hand-outs, sell groceries in a village store, unlock a lot of wind in the legislature and beat a few raps in the courts, winning acquittals based on the snagging of the moon was where it wasn't when it was supposed to be where it was but wasn't when it was there? Aye, have you forgotten that he said, "I will get myself ready, maybe, my day will come? If you haven't, then act on them! Take advantage of the educational opportunities offered by the great State University of Southern Michigan. Get yourself ready for your day—WHEN it comes!"

Remember, too, that Abe's success didn't come from parking his anatomy around the cracker barrel in the village store, along with the rest of the sod-busters, spitting streams of barabacy juice in the direction of the gobbler, trying to register five hits out of six tries. Nor did it come from parking his size 16 brogans under the bunk and his pants up on it, with the latest blood-curdling novel in his dukes, and now and then making a lightning-like draw with a couple of phony 45's in an attempt to shoot the drawers off some passing faculty member! Not Abe! Abe. What he did do was spend his time studying the three R's until he knew them frontwards, backwards, sideways, and up and down. He prepared himself for his day. And when it came—hell, you know the rest of the story: The nation chose him for their Big Shot, shot him into the Presidential chair—and then shot HIM!

But the fear of assassination shouldn't worry you any, gentlemen. The faculty of the State University of Southern Michigan looks out for its students' interests. In fact, the faculty, as well as the framers of the Constitution, have long since taken care of that little matter of assassination. No graduate of this temple of learning can become a president of the United States, hence you're safe from being bing-banged into oblivion. Anyway, who wants to be president nowadays?

Comments From The Capitol

The campaign took a definite turn last week when Governor Chandler attacked the President in a speech at Lawrenceburg. It has long been rumored that Dan Talbott and Bob Humphreys were spending many sleepless nights worrying over the effort to keep the Governor from taking this step. The Governor said in his speech at Lawrenceburg last week, "When Mr. Roosevelt was running for President, he told you the depression was caused by President Hoover allowing the country to get in debt to the extent of $5,000,000,000. If being in debt $5,000,000,000 caused the depression, then what about the $42,000,000,000 we have now?"

With the Lawrenceburg speech the battle lines are definitely drawn and the siege guns will start firing. The campaign seems to be Chandler and his state debt program against Barkley, Roosevelt and the federal spending program.

The farmers have been suffering from a shortage of farm labor because of the WPA spending program, which uses labor which the farmers need on projects, so Governor Chandler intimated. But in the same speech he denounced the fact that the WPA maximum wage in Kentucky is the minimum wage in surrounding states.

The special session of the General Assembly will be called about the last of this month, the reason for the delay being the extra time required to draft the bill on the proposed legislation that deals with the modernization of state institutions for the treatment of the insane inmates.

Senator Barkley appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee last week requesting additional funds be appropriated for use in the forestry service and for tobacco guiding administration. He asked that a total of $10,000,000 be provided for the forestry service and pointed out that this would enable the service to acquire 128,000 acres in the Eastern Kentucky region known as the "Breaks of Sandy" for the Jefferson National Forest Reserve. Rumors from Washington have it that Barkley will be busy in Washington until the early part of June and will have to confine his active part in his campaign with weekend visits to Kentucky. It is said that the House and Senate will not adjourn until the first week in June.

RANDOM SHOTS—A delegate from the N. Y. World's Fair called at the capitol last week, extending an invitation to the people of Kentucky to visit the fair. Kentucky has appropriated $35,000 for an exposition at the fair. Texas State Auditor King was in Frankfort last week, at the request of the Governor of his state. He came to study the Kentucky financial system net

64 Floyd Students Attend Annual Program

Richmond, Ky., May 12.—Floyd county was represented at Eastern State Teachers College's third annual High School Day program on Friday, May 6, by 64 students from Botetown, Lanes and Wheelwright schools. Approximately 150 persons, representing 88 schools, from 49 counties, attended the program, according to the official announcement by Sam Beck, local, assistant director of extension. The day's program began with registration of guests in the administration building, followed by a tour of the campus. Dr. H. L. Duncan, president of Eastern, addressed the visitors at 11:15 in the amphitheater. Immediately after this, the guests were served with lunch, followed by a concert by the Eastern band in the stadium.

LOOK OUT FOR JESSE JAMES!

Jesse James, who claims to be the original Missouri outlaw, who was supposed to have been shot by Bob Ford on April 3, 1882, has returned to the realm of the living after a hide-out of 51 years, and will be seen in person at the Martin Theater in Martin, Ky., Friday, May 27.

Explaining that the historical "picture on the wall" shooting was a frame-up, James says that he, his brother Frank and Bob Ford plotted to get rid of Charles Bigelow, an outlaw who had been committing crimes and leaving indications that it was the work of the James boys. When Ford shot Bigelow, Jesse immediately rushed into the room and changed guns and other marks of identification with the slain man, and escaped into the hiding that was destined to outdo Rip Van Winkle. During his seclusion, James earned a quiet living as a dealer in cattle and horses, spending most of the time in Colorado, and passing under the name of "Jim Williams."

When he decided to return to public life, Jesse James obtained assurances in Washington that charges once in effect against him were no longer in force because the men were living witnesses. Accompanied by a delegation of early settlers who had admired him, James also paid a visit to the Governor of Missouri and was told that when the $10,000 reward was paid to Bob Ford, the case was officially closed as far as the state of Missouri was concerned.

In his appearances at the Martin Theater, James will recount the highlights of his most interesting experiences and will describe his escape in detail. In addition to Jesse James in person, the Martin Theater will present Bank Farris and Ann Alexander, cowboy entertainers, in their famous Australian whip-cracking and fancy roping act. The screen attraction will be "Gun Smoke Trail," with Jack Randall. Shows at 3:30, at 6, at 8, and 10 o'clock.

Betsy Layne and Maytown Demonstration Teams Judged Best

Approximately 150 Floyd 4-H club members meeting here last Friday saw their representatives compete in Rally Day events judged by J. M. Feltner, assistant state club leader, and Miss Alice Harris, Prestonsburg high school home economics instructor. County Agent Isbell was in charge of the program.

In the first event, Betsy Layne's girls' team, Gliva Lee Martin and Reba Stratton, were judged best with their demonstration of the selection, care and use of shoes. Maytown's team, the only other one entered, was composed of Lucretia Turner and Virginia Osborne, who demonstrated "setting the breakfast table."

Mavis Gearheart, Betsy Layne, was winner in the style show, featuring clothing made by club members. Others in the style show were: Ruby Conn, Mary Alley, Eva Kidd, Bertha Miller, Reba Stratton, and Mavis Gearheart all of Betsy Layne.

In the boys' events, Maytown's boys with their demonstration of "pulling hens for egg production" were judged best over two Betsy Layne teams, which demonstrated bean spraying and culling hens.

WELL SPRAYED

Betsy Layne's 4-H lads who demonstrated the spraying of beans, also sprayed other things, among them two judges and a newspaperman, (who edits this), after the hose to the compressed liquid in the spraying tank had been blown off.

Maytown winners were Floyd Stephens and Herman Osborne. Betsy Layne's two teams were composed of Andrew Moore, George Clark, Shirley Rice and Fred Case.

Maytown's winners were coached by Mrs. Sid Bee. Betsy Layne's winners were coached by Mrs. James George.

Winners of the events here are eligible for the district contests to be held at Paintsville May 25, the winners of that contest being eligible to compete for state honors at Lexington.

Masquerader Is Arrested In Ohio, Returned To Lawrence-Co. For Trial

Masquerading as a woman, Glover Adkins, wanted at Louisa to stand trial in connection with a triple slaying, was captured Friday the thirtieth, near Columbus, O., and returned to Lawrence county.

Accompanied by the Lawrence county sheriff, Proctor Fyffe, six Columbus deputies went to the residence of a relative of the 23-year-old Louisa man. A "woman" told them Adkins had been there but had left the night before, Fyffe said. Glover inspection revealed the informant to be the wanted man.

Adkins wore a blue dress, three-quarter length coat and silk hose. His blond hair was combed in pompadour fashion.

Fyffe said he had sought Adkins there on three previous occasions since three youths were killed and one wounded in a roadside gun battle near Louisa in April, 1937. Those slain, he said, were Adkins' brother, Bill, Homer Sparks and Elmer Phillips. Paul Sparks, a brother of Homer, is still under hospital treatment for his wounds.

Adkins told reporters he was present when the shooting occurred but had no gun and did not participate. He was returned to Louisa.

THIS AND THAT

By NOBLE HOBBS

At the invitation of a prominent business man of Prestonsburg I write this column and let it be understood at the outset that the writer has no axe to grind, and so, with justice to all and malice toward none, here goes about — WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH PRESTONSBURG?

Why is it that the various million-dollar payrolls, of which in normal times there are several, in Floyd county, don't come to rest in the county where they are earned? The writer has for some time watched the efforts of the editor of THE TIMES to arouse some interest in the citizenry of Floyd county to get them to exert some effort to bring these people of Floyd county to their own seat of government to spend their money, and has been a silent rooter for his success.

And so for a little while let's study the people of the mining camps, of which I am one and find no reason to be ashamed of the fact.

First, let's travel down to the fountain and filling station and see a crowd of our citizens off. It is the first of the month and the salary people have a pay day and they are off for a new Easter outfit or something else. Somebody yells to somebody, "Where to?" and the answer is hardly ever "Prestonsburg." Why?

Next comes Saturday night and another crowd gathers to leave town for a night of pleasure. They are the intelligentsia of the mine; they have money, but have no desire to end up in a bar-room brawl and perhaps they will go some place, drink a few bottles of beer, go to a show, eat a good meal in some first-class restaurant, dance a little and come home. Again somebody yells, "Where to?" and again the answer is hardly ever "Prestonsburg." Why?

Third, let's take another look at another crowd, all leaving from the same town. This crowd is the one that it pleases some people to call the roughneck crowd, but I wonder if they are roughnecks or is somebody day dreaming? We might point to the fact that only one murder has been committed in Wayland for the past 11 years and it is a matter of record that the defendant came clear. But, again, somebody yells, "Where to?" and again the answer is hardly ever "Prestonsburg." Why?

I suppose there are department stores in Prestonsburg that will compare with surrounding towns. I take it for granted that we could get a meal that would compare favorably with any to be secured anywhere in the Sandy valley. If I had an itch to dance, that could be furnished, and so on down the line. Then why, oh, why, don't we be loyal Floyd countians and get these things in Floyd county?

First, I don't think the business men of Prestonsburg have made the proper effort to get acquainted with all classes of labor in Floyd county. I say this because of the fact that I can point with pride to the fact that I know one (count 'em) merchant in Prestonsburg and I met him through some church affairs. And I can't imagine the first class of people mentioned being any better acquainted with me than I am because of the fact I never see them when I am in town

And then let's look at the second class of people mentioned. Why don't they come to town? The answer is, they have no desire to do any business at the courthouse to the tune of twenty-five-cent sample. The writer has no desire to criticize any law officer unjustly, but it so happens that I know that a lot of our boys have been arrested and they paid off. And, yes, it is the class of fellows who keep their shoes shined and tied straight. I have every respect for the chief law enforcement officer of this county and some of his deputies that I am personally acquainted with, but it seems to me that some way could be found to eliminate this dastardly business.

And that goes for the third class mentioned, also. They don't like to see these walking arsenals in action any better than the rest of us and if they can go to other towns and drink up all their liquor and stay out of jail, surely they should be able to do so in their own home county.

The remedy I suggest is that the various trade associations of Floyd county put on a campaign to get acquainted with every one of us who work under a Union contract for a basic wage of $5.00 per day, our bosses and all our families, and for the various civic organizations to contact all the law enforcement officers hereabouts and tell them that it will pay and pay and pay to treat everybody with due respect and respect assured that none of us will ever raise a howl when they look up a real drunk man.

One class of people in Prestonsburg I feel like complimenting very much—and that is the politicians. They are all for us, God bless.

But, whoa! wait a minute! Why should I kick on behalf of myself or my fellow man? It doesn't cost us a thing to be graciously respected elsewhere. And so long till next time.

"Hello, Mom," Says Boy Thought Killed in State

Masontown, Pa., May 8.—This is a Mother's Day story that is odd to everyone but Mrs. Phoebe Fiore. To her, it is as simple as this: Her son has come back from the dead—the boy she thought she buried more than a year ago.

Donald Fiore, 15, walked into his stepfather's tailor shop on the eve of Mother's Day. He said, "Hello, Pop," and walked on into a rear apartment where the family lived. "Hello, Mom," Donald called. Mrs. Fiore looked up. Her face whitened and she fainted into his arms.

For Mrs. Fiore and Raymond Fiore buried a youth they thought was Donald a year ago. Mrs. Fiore had gone to Olive Hill, Ky., to bring back the body of a youth shot to death during a kissing game at a party there. She identified the body as that of Donald, who had run away, by scars on the leg and forehead.

Donald told of having gone out "to see the world" when he ran away in February, 1936, at the age of 13. He hitch-hiked to California, then worked in Florida orange groves and later on a South Carolina farm. He became homesick and planned a Mother's Day surprise for Mrs. Fiore, not knowing his parents thought him dead.

Now, the Fiore wonder whose young son is buried in a card-marked grave in Leckrone cemetery—whose boy was killed down in Kentucky.

The "postoffice game" death of a youth buried after his identification as Donald Fiore, of Masontown, Pa., occurred on the night of April 22, 1937, at the home of Drew Stevens, four miles east of Grayson, Ky. Before his identification by Mrs. Raymond Fiore as her son, he was known here as Jimmy Scott, no home.

The fatal shot was fired accidentally, it was testified by Stella Stevens, who was in a darkened room with the youth as several young people engaged in a gay kissing game at her father's home. Eddie Romans, a cousin of the girl, was questioned, but released after a coroner's jury gave a verdict that the youth known as Jimmy Scott met death by a bullet "fired by persons unknown."

possibly good proof, but sympathetic petit jurors assist the accused men or give them only two or three-year sentences.

That accusation has been proven false. Why, after listening to the defense witnesses tell of the wonderful character of the poor accused man, in trial after trial, it seems a shame that Floyd grand juries should even investigate a slaying case.

Why not just hunt out the men who did the deadly deed and pin a medal on him? Shouldn't everybody know without a trial that he is the most righteous of men and that he was forced to defend his life after some fiend had fired about sixty or seventy bullets at him?

Law-savignty, why make the state pay for a needless trial just because a few Daubing Thomases think it possible for the law of averages eventually to reveal a slayer in this county who actually overcame the righteous man? Why, it's been proven impossible time after time.

How can a cry of "injustice" be raised, when it's always proved that justice was meted by the righteous man long ago and that a trial in court is only an anti-climax? Fiddlesticks!

OH, DOCTOR

Discussing the merits of Floyd county physicians with a friend recently, a member of the TIMES staff was informed that a Martin citizen, when asked what he thought of Dr. . . . replied that the Doc couldn't be beat on "infantry" cases, but he wasn't sure about "adultery" cases.

CONTRIBUTED

Recently this column printed an item about the postmistress at Cliff who was ordered by Government officials to appoint a committee to celebrate Air Mail Week even if she had to appoint the mayor. This week the TIMES received a poem from an anonymous contributor referring to the plight of the poor postmistress in sorrowful language:

Oh, the P. M. G. of the U. S. A.
Pulled off a good one on that day
When "Air Mail Week" was just under way.
And the P. M. G. had this to say:

The great P. M. G., he said, said ho,

"You must celebrate wherever you be.
So be sure and send in a report to me
No matter whether on land or sea."

"We'll celebrate in every state,
(Whether the days be fair or mucky)
From the frozen North to the tropic isles,
And even so at Cliff, Kentucky."

Elsewhere the sun is shining,
Elsewhere the crowds are gay,
As officials meet in hall and street
To celebrate the Day.

But in the hamlet of Cliff, Kentucky,
The P. M. writes with a frown—
"There are no parades or committees,
I'm the only official in town."

SOUR GRAPES

And how we've been mighty proud of being the only weekly newspaper in Kentucky publishing a local newspaper in each issue, yet when we asked our subscribers if the expense of such a procedure was justified in reader interest, only one solitary reply, from down Lexington-way, was received. At least we thought we'd get a note from one or two whose pictures we took after they'd begged us to, but nary a line. Now that our newspaper has been discontinued—oh, skip it, you probably won't read this far anyhow. . . .

Appropriation of $2,500 is Voted

The court unanimously voted for an audit of the county's financial and fiscal affairs from December 31, 1936, to July 1, 1938, to be compiled by W. J. May and F. C. Hall. The motion was presented by Will Wills and seconded by Joe Prater.

Roads approved as projects for W. P. A. labor with the court co-operating and furnishing all rights-of-way are:

FRASER'S CREEK from its mouth to the head, then up Buckhorn fork and across the hill to intersect with Big Mud Creek road.

LOWER JOHNS CREEK from the forks of the road at the W. A. Clarke property to Brandy Keg bridge, a distance of 3.2 miles.

CORN FORK on Brandy Keg, thence up Johns Creek to the Pike county line.

Also approved by the court was the lease of the Pike-Floyd Coal Company bridge at Betsy Layne for an indefinite length of time with an option to purchase at $12,000. A similar order was approved by a previous court, but an oversight caused it to be unrecorded.

$2,000 Bail Set For Motorist

The state contended that George's car, a black Dodge sedan, struck the Layne girl, sped on, then turned back to Wheelwright where it was repaired. One Commonwealth witness, Bill Stewart, told of seeing a black Dodge sedan stop near the Banner bridge and of two men alighting to wipe the front bumper and walk around the car to examine it. He refused to identify George or his brother, Grant, Wheelwright miner, as the two.

The George brothers' perogations led from Prestonsburg to Boldman, including stops at the number of passengers in the car, their stopping places and the time when they left Alphoretta and visited various roadhouses were widely at variance.

Admitting that they signed, of their own accord, statements to the effect that the George car struck Miss Layne and "burst her brains out," Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Ramsey said, in the next breath, that they lied because it was the first time they were ever sworn and didn't know what to do. They were jailed Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Epp Leferty and W. M. Hagans, who had learned they had told Josephine Nolan, a neighbor, of the tragedy. They were released after swearing to statements naming George as the driver of the death car, but were re-jailed Wednesday when they repudiated their affidavits.

Goodwill Tourists To Stop In P'burg

their cities and counties and to offer them cooperation in all activities, which are in the interest of the advancement of our part of the state. We are interested in your good roads problems, in your artificial and natural resources, in the industries of your immediate communities, in the welfare of your people, and in tourist business, which all of us should work together to bring in greater volume to our section. Our second purpose in taking this trip is to bring together for closer acquaintanceship during the three-day period more than one hundred of Lexington's business and professional men whose civic interests are the same. We learn to know each other better on this train, and I feel that we make many friendships which last for life. This trip, too, is an outing and, in fact, a vacation for many of our business and professional men. We should like to have the business and professional men of every city which we visit on this trip to make up similar tours and include Lexington on their visit. You are always welcome in Lexington, but on this trip we wish to renew our invitation to come to Lexington, and enjoy those things which we have, and which we wish to share with you." Lexington's first tour was held last year when a number of Eastern Kentucky cities were visited and it was customary on this trip for members of the tour to greet the people of the cities visited, either at the courts or in the high school auditorium. The Goodwill Tour will have only one speaker in each city and it is the desire of the Lexington men that they be addressed by one or more speakers from the cities they will visit.

The Lexington tour is in charge of the Good Will Club, which is part of the Lexington Board of Commerce. A special committee of the Good Will Club composed of Winston L. Clark, chairman; C. H. Jett, vice-chairman; Robert Eyras, John Yellman, D. H. Lloyd, and Ed Wilder, secretary of the Lexington Board of Commerce, is making arrangements for the trip. The Lexington Board of Commerce has written to the majority of the presidents of the luncheon clubs and the newspaper editors in each city asking them to advise the Lexington Board of Commerce of the names of the speakers who will speak for the cities to be visited.

Cities to be visited are Paris, Millersburg, Carlisle, Flemingsburg, Maysville, Vanceburg and Ashland on May 26; Catlettsburg, Louisa, Paintsville, Prestonsburg, and Pikeville on May 29; Middleboro and Pineville on May 27. The Lexington Goodwill Tour will spend Friday, May 27, at the Mountain Laurel Festival in Pineville.

Another version of the sudden tragedy is that a rock, thrown into the air by the blast, crushed an insulator on the nearby pole of the high-power line, causing all, or part, of the 44-

600-volt current to jump to the pole's crossbar, thence down a guy-wire to damp cross-rod poles on the ground. The battery cable was strung over the poles.

Funeral services were held at the home of his parents Monday with the Revs. Leon Stratton, and C. F. Conn officiating. Burial was made nearby in the family cemetery—its first grave—under the direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

A large crowd of friends, augmented by a delegation of workmen from the company for which he worked, was present at the funeral.

Among those attending the funeral as representatives of their company were:

H. H. Rogers, safety director, Columbus, O.; J. C. Robbrock, Hoosier Engineering Company superintendent; and O. F. Arbuckle, company foreman.

The young man is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harris; by five brothers: Floyd, who also worked for the company; Cecil, Bascom, Irvin and Fred; by two sisters: Mrs. Ed Conn and Dicy Harris.
