RUMOR HATH IT

How does the "rumor" operate in Floyd county and how doth it become so varied at times?

The rumor-monger, it is said, is a busy man and it would make him a most interesting study to know how he gets his facts. A recent story that reached this desk in the "rumor" way, was that a man in a suit and tie had been taken to the hospital and it was said that he had been taken to the hospital.

For Jan. 20, 1947, the rumor-monger had been taken to the hospital and it was said that he had been taken to the hospital.

fully to do something at the War Department about the "freeze" order.

He added that May, then head of the House Military Affairs Committee, also obtained an appointment for him with former Senator Mead (D-N.Y.), who was the chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee.

Garrison told the jury at his war fraud trial that the army held back the $1,200,000 after Mead's committee began investigating Garrison operations. He said he thought the inquiry was the "real reason" for the army's action.

Asked why he chose May to help him on the "freeze" order, Garrison replied:

"Well, he was chairman of the Military Affairs Committee. I thought he would probably have had charge of any legislation or renegotiation of any contracts."

When May took him to see Senator Mead, Garrison said, Mead told them he knew nothing about the matter.

Osborne's Wife, Babe Arrive from England

It was hot in Coventry, England during the days and nights of the late war but it was a different kind of heat to that which Mrs. Gladys Hollingsworth Osborne found in Kentucky upon her arrival here Saturday. She missed the cooling breezes of Merrie England.

Mrs. Osborne and eight-month-old daughter Christine arrived from Coventry to join her husband, Charles Osborne, of Prestonsburg. They made the Atlantic crossing aboard the USS Jarrett M. Hutchinson, army transport.

The English girl became the Prestonsburg man's bride in 1946 in a ceremony in one of the few churches in much-bombed Coventry that had escaped Nazi wrath from the skies. He arrived home, a few weeks ago and immediately prepared for Mrs. Osborne and daughter to join him here.

Sgt. Osborne, who served in the air corps during the war, will return June 22 to Ft. Belvoir, Va. for further army service, and hopes to have his family with him there.

"Resuming our annual tour following the war, we have chosen to visit the Mountain and Blue Grass sections because there are no places more popular with Louisville business men. Safety Improvements At Mine Commended But Others Asked

Although commending a score of recent safety improvements in the Ligon mine at Ligon, a federal coal mine inspector recommends better rock-dusting and further haulage safeguards in a report released by the Bureau of Mines.

Operated by the Ligon Company, the mine employed 29 men and averaged 230 tons of coal daily when inspected in April by Matthew I. Duncan.

Rock-dusting in the face rooms was inadequate, and the inspector advocated additional rock-dusting where needed to minimize dust explosion dangers. To increase haulage safety, Duncan proposed unobstructed clearance along haulage ways, proper routing of cables for each locomotive, and the prohibition of coupling moving cars by hand.

Noteworthy recent beneficial changes included the adoption of a systematic timbering plan, setting of safety posts at each working face except one, discontinuance of transporting explosives and dynamite on man-trips, safer underground storage of explosives, an enclosed switch box, pump installation, and new grounds for ripple meters, sagable underground fire-fighting equipment, use only of permethane electric cap lamps, and the wearing of hard hats and safety shoes.

For further conformance with the code, Inspector Duncan recommended added safeguards for the dynamite and explosive-storage magazines, separation of explosives and detonators when transported underground in the same container, added safety devices for the main fan, maintenance of at least two retrievable mine safety lamps, readily accessible fire extinguishers, frame-grounds for mining machines and hand-held electric drills, wearing of approved clothing for on-the-job work, and for conformance with Bureau standards, a ban on underground smoking.

P'BURG COPS TWIN BILL

First Game Is Gift, 14-13;
Butcher Hits 3 Homers;
Pikeville Still in Lead

Fans who like to see a baseball do like a bird and who like a column-filling statistics had themselves a time here Sunday.

Wheelwright and Prestonsburg of the Eastern Kentucky League provided this type of fan big moments a plenty.

The first game was a thriller-diller, with Wheelwright's Manager Benedict opening the door to Prestonsburg and the local lads walking right through in splendid style. Up to the eighth inning the visitors' Wheelwright had Prestonsburg beaten, 12 to 4. Paul Butcher's long drive over the right field fence in the seventh had given Prestonsburg its only lead of the game as Wheelwright had almost certain victory in its 1940.

though there is much hesitation and regret, I leave with that pleasant feeling that the patrons far and wide have been friendly toward my administration of the school program of the Prestonsburg city schools.

"In retrospect, I take pride in the fact that one may point to many directions where progress has been made during the past three years in this school system. In prospect, many plans have been made to meet the vital needs of Prestonsburg's youth, but time, hard work, patience, and a liberal sprinkling of money would be needed to bring these plans to a full realization of completeness.

"May I express my sincere thanks to you for the trust you have reposed in me and for the many kindnesses shown in our relationships with each other? I have tried to perform my duties with the best interests of the school always at heart. If my work here may help others to serve their fellowman better, then, that shall be my greatest reward.

"It is my hope that you find the best expedient possible to succeed me. You can count on me to stand ready to advise or acquaint you with the conditions and needs of the school at any time."

MAY THEY SEE IT ALL!

WHEN national and state park service officials make their reconnaissance of the Johns Creek reservoir area June 17, we devoutly trust they will see it all—that is and all that should be.

The Great Smoky Mountains, Norris Park and Norris Lake, Dale Hollow, Harrington—these names of distant places have an allure that is irresistible as well as expensive for an estimated half-million persons living within a hundred miles of this lake of the future and this area here at home that could conceivably bring all the recreation and healthful relaxation of the outdoors that could be found anywhere in America.

All this is merely in the realm of possibility, however. There is work to be done to make it a reality. The lake to be formed by the lower flood control dam on Johns Creek and the hill-topped valley that could be a vacation dreamland would remain merely a hidden valley, devastated by water, unless work of this section can cause federal and state park officials to catch our vision of what the area could be re-ignited and what it could mean to so many recreationally.

THE TIMES is not interested here in pointing out to its readers the financial benefits that would accrue to this section through development of the area's recreation possibilities—camping, boating, fishing, swimming, horseback riding through wooded mountain trails. It has Misses Marian, Mary's daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hatcher and Mrs. G. Hatcher. Mary's daughter, Marie Grace of Huntington, is from Lexington, where she is a law student. The other three are from the University of Kentucky, where they are studying for their degrees in education, agriculture and business.

live's enough of this angle is known to cause citizens of Eastern Kentucky and surrounding areas to be interested in the undertaking.

Those to whom we would appeal are the individuals who can help through federal and state funds in developing the Johns Creek reservoir into what it should be.

Johns Creek, impounded waters of which will form the lake, has for years been termed potentially Kentucky's finest bass stream. The stream is unpolluted by mine waters, oil or the refuse of industrial communities. This is truly virgin territory where there is not even a trout worthy of the name. Heavily wooded hills, deep, glenlike hollows that will become arms of the lake, sheltering mountains that will make boating and fishing blissfully safe in contrast to wider lakes in wind exposed country, every knoll and hilltop offering a view that holds even the eyes of the native, not to mention the visitor new to the section—where could a more ideal spot be found for work and game and fish officials to spend money for the complete enjoyment of thousands?

The forests of the region should and must be preserved. Wherever they are now depleted, they should be restored. Erosion must be stopped if the dam is to serve, in any degree, the purpose of flood control. Every vestige of primal beauty must be saved to this and future generations. And, added to all this, should be the convenience, expert planning and supervision could provide.

Yes, the Dewey dam and the lake it will form, set in a picture-frame of wooded beauty, could be "something," indeed.

THE TIMES would remind "the powers that be" that the lake will ruin the Johns Creek valley as a productive section. Only full development of the area as a vacation land for sportsmen's mecca will compensate for that.

Moreover, all the thousands who are tied to jobs, with a day or two on weekends for their only leisure, should be given consideration. They cannot drive to Norris or Dale Hollow or anywhere else distant spot and gain either pleasure or relaxation, meantime. Their leisure hours are too few.

And they do deserve pleasurable outings, made possible by the good roads, cabins, and other conveniences, national and state park services could with complete justification provide.

SUGAR NOW RATION FREE

To American Homes; Industrial Users Must Have Stamps

The nation's housewives reached the end of a five-year coupon ordeal Wednesday night when the government ended rationing of sugar for households, hotels and restaurants, effective at midnight.

Sack of a multitude of things that once could not be bought with ration controls became larger quantities are available.

However, price controls remain. So does rationing of industrial sugar. All sugar controls are due to end Oct. 31 unless Congress says otherwise.

Meanwhile, a Senate-House conference committee agreed on legislation extending modified ration controls through next Feb. 28 but permitting 15 per cent increases where landlord and tenant sign leases carrying through 1948.

The sugar amendment came from Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. His action ended all rationing of articles for ultimate consumers for the first time since April 29, 1942. Sugar, last food to be removed from rationing, was the first to be rationed.

The move could Congress by surprise. The House was prepared to consider a bill to end rationing of Thursday's session. Similar legislation has been called for in the Senate, but no action has resulted there.

The agriculture secretary announced the end of sugar rationing at a news conference. When a reporter asked whether pending congressional action had anything to do with the step, he said:

"It better be to put it that way. Did Congress hurry it because it knew this action was coming?" He gave three reasons for the move:

1. The International Emergency Food Council said today the United States will get 350,000 extra tons of sugar from Cuba.

2. Cuba has still some surplus sugar which is expected to help cut down demands from other parts of the world.

3. Some 200,000 tons of Java sugar—availability of which was in doubt—will definitely be offered to world users now.

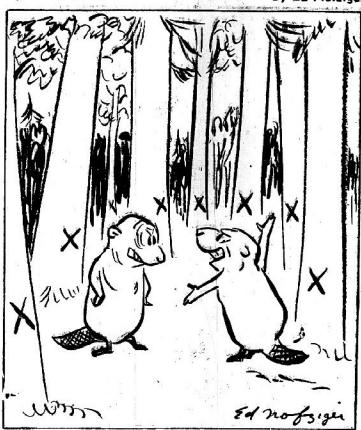

Anderson warned industrial users that they will need ration checks to get sugar from wholesalers or retailers.

In addition, he said, retailers will be required to keep records of the name and address of each industrial buyer, the address to which the sugar is delivered, and other information.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Francis entertained as their houseguests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hopkins and daughter, Carol, and Billy Parker, all of Carlisle, Ky.

Only 6 Weeks Remain For War II Veterans To Renew Insurance

Only six weeks remain in which veterans of World War II may re-instate lapsed National Service Life (G.I.) Insurance without a physical examination, it is announced by the Veterans Administration. After Aug. 1, 1947 a physical examination will be required.

Harry W. Farmer, regional manager, pointed out that NSLI may be reinstated in amounts ranging from $1,000 to $10,000. Veterans need pay only two monthly premiums to re-instate term plan insurance if health is as good as when the insurance lapsed.

NSLI offers such features as lump sum settlement, unrestricted choice of beneficiaries and a wide selection of permanent plans of insurance. Manager Farmer said.

Expert advice and assistance regarding G.I. insurance is available at all VA offices in Kentucky.

gun, but I'm not sure." Chief of Police Gus Little, testified of events following the shooting. He quoted Policeman Blackburn as saying, "Bill drew a gun on me."

Recalled to the stand, Judge Moscrip stated he did not see Blackburn pick up a gun.

Reggie Cantrell:
Saw the shooting from where he stood on the porch of the Fountain building. Heard a tin box fall and saw Blackburn and Bryant wrestling. "I couldn't tell which had the gun when they separated. Bryant started to stoop over to pick up something and Earl said, 'Stick 'em up, put 'em up,' or something."

Then the shooting started. Eight or 10 shots were fired before and after Bryant fell, he testified, "I believe he (Bryant) was on the ground when Hall fired." He saw no gun in Bryant's possession or on the ground after the shooting.

Edward "Red" Marrs:
First saw the two men scuffling and saw Bryant with a pocket pistol in his hand. Bryant leveled the weapon on Blackburn and later stuck the gun under his belt at his right side. He could not hear the conversation between the two men but saw Bryant stoop over to pick up something. Blackburn smashed the gun from Bryant's hand and told Bryant to put up his hands.

The shooting followed, Albert Hall firing, he said, after Bryant was on the ground, and from a distance of four or five feet.

Clifford Pittman:
Told of the scuffle of Bryant backing off with the revolver and ordering the policeman to "Stick 'em up." "Don't do this, Bill," he said he heard Blackburn say. Hall walked up and Bryant in turn ordered him to stick up his hands. Bryant then began picking up coins that had fallen from the cash box and Blackburn snatched the gun, ordering Bryant to "get 'em up." Bryant moved nearer Blackburn and the latter fired. He said Hall fired three shots after Blackburn said something he could not understand. On cross-examination he said he saw both of Bryant's hands go down as he stooped.

Other witnesses contributed nothing to the story produced by these and at least one of these summoned by the defense had no first-hand knowledge of the shooting.

The defense did not attempt to produce testimony from its key witnesses.

THE PACING MARE

UNCLE BILL CLARK was the biggest natural-born liar I ever knew. He had never been to school and could not have acquired any of his lying from books. He had traveled a little, that is, as a Confederate soldier, and killed hundreds of Yankees, but after the war he stayed pretty close to his little farm over on Panther Creek, except for his Saturday-afternoon trips to fidelity. Because of his advanced age, he occupied one of the chains of the loaves' pit and was a sort of a charter member of the Hays' bench. Nobody dared contradict his yarns, for it was feared a little bit of skepticism might break the old fellow's heart or at least cause him to quit his inimitable entertainment. Since Uncle Bill was such a brave man, it did not pay to doubt his stories; why, doubting would cast a cloud on his army record, and all of us were true-blue Rebels, glorying in the bloody deeds of the old fellows who somehow lived through the four long years of the Civil War.

Uncle Bill did not have much of this world's goods, beyond a wife and several children. But his mare Daisy was the one member of his family that we always heard of. She was the pacing animal that ever ate corn or fodder. She really was a trim animal, pretty small and easy to keep. Uncle Bill was himself a small man, probably not weighing over a hundred and twenty pounds, and all of that was sheer muscle. When he came riding into Fidelity on Saturday afternoon, he assumed, all the dignity and civil war dandy that had made him a brave cavalierman so long ago. We would look up from our whittling and envy him, but no word of ours would let out what we really felt. We probably made some catty remark about Uncle Bill and his Daisy that would not look pretty or decent in this essay. When he had tied Daisy to the hitching rack (which happened to be Ed Jones' fence), he came bounding along like a mule, younger man and jounced the perennial waiters.

Some of us would soon spin some monstrous yarn and declare by all that was holy that it was God's truth. That was just a trick to get Uncle Bill started. It was not especially hard, however, to get him to recount some of his war experiences on his mighty mare. As he grew older, he loved most of all this yarn.

Once he had been up into Henry county to Swer's Distillery to get a jug of apple brandy, for Uncle Bill took a little wine for the stomach's sake in the Biblical fashion, and sometimes took even a little more. Now Swer always gave his customers good measure in their jugs and also treated them to a free drink of his best. Uncle Bill got his jug filled and then put his skin with Swer's Best. These attentions to the lower man were getting in their best work by the time Uncle Bill got back to the Big Hill just south of Fidelity. Daisy pranced along the dusty road as if she, too, had had a swig of Swer's best. Uncle Bill rode along, feeling gay and proud of having the best horse-flesh on the east side of the county. Just as he was giving Daisy her fastest trot on a pace, he looked from the top of the hill and saw seven covered wagons going down the hill, on their way west. Now Daisy was a spirited animal, according to Uncle Bill, and resented any interference. Uncle Bill pulled hard on the reins when they approached the first wagon, but Daisy was going at too rapid a pace to stop. The road was too narrow for her to go around. Seeing that something drastic had to be done, Uncle Bill kicked her in her flanks. She snarled right over the seven wagons and landed, none the worse for her marvellous experience, right in the dusty road ahead of the last one, still pacing for dear life. "And she never missed a lick, I guarantee," concluded Uncle Bill.

Of Group for Year

Betsy Layne, Ky. June 9 (Sp.) It's always fair weather when old as well as good friends get together. This was in evidence last Saturday night at the Betsy Layne alumni banquet. Teachers and graduates from almost every class since 1927 were on hand for the reunion.

This year's banquet, preceded by many others, was held in the school gymnasium which was decorated in harmonious pastels. Harmony after that, that of good fellowship was rendered by Mrs. Gene Kelly's singing "Somewhere Over the Rainbow." Jesse Elliott's playing of trombone numbers, and a piano solo by Mrs. Sally Maggard, of Lexington. The whole group sang their school song, and a recitation of it was made to commence the celebration. Officers elected for another year include: Jack Branham, president; Mrs. James Merrill, vice-president, and Miss Anne Ruth Layne, secretary-treasurer.

The next alumni banquet will be held on the first Saturday night of June, 1948.

Miss Bertha Weddington, of Emma, was here Monday on business.

LOUISVILLE MAKES VISIT HERE

There is no part of Kentucky with more compelling lure for Louisville business men than the Blue Grass and Mountain areas of the eastern half of the state.

Here is one of the most beautiful scenic sections in America and one of the richest in natural resources.

So when the Louisville Board of Trade plans its annual Spring Outing it is always occasion for jubilation when it is announced—as for the 1947 tour—It's the Blue Grass and Mountains this year.

The Louisville party of 125 comes to see the growth and progress of twenty-six Eastern Kentucky cities, to talk over problems of good roads, transportation, reciprocal trade relations and similar subjects.

They will be mighty glad to meet business and professional men, civic leaders and the ladies and the children when their special train arrives in—

KENTUCKY ON THE MARCH

By EWING GALLOWAY

In our Commonwealth we have two kinds of people—those who have in the state's colorful past, and those who are striving to make history.

Or, one might say, the contented and the discontented, the satisfied and the dissatisfied.

To the latter kind belong the hundreds of thousands who have hitched themselves to the Committee for Kentucky's movement for a better state.

At my elbow is a fine non-fiction volume I finished reading less than an hour ago. It is a compilation of letters by the late William Allen White, famous Kansas county editor, which was passed along to me by Louis Ruthenberg, refrigerator tycoon and fellow farmer. As I read the last page it occurred to me that few books have been written about the divine, the educational and the spiritual growth of a small community. Most novels of country-town life have been political or devoted to unusual characters. A novel about the awakening of a country town would be a vital contribution to American literature. And I believe Jesse Stuart, the Greenup author, could write it. What about it, Jesse?

Your correspondent is looking forward to the day when President Harry W. Schacter and a group of the Committee for Kentucky's leaders from all the main walks of life, makes for us what Mr. Schacter calls a blueprint for progress. That document should be a declaration written with Jeffersonian skill and should ring in a soul-stirring tone the Liberty Bell might have sounded if it hadn't been cracked.

The blueprint of progress should be a one-page Bible for all our history makers, all the contented, and all the dissatisfied.

Material for the document is abundant. And assembling it will not be an overwhelming task. But making every word sparkle like a four-carat blue-white diamond calls for sheer genius.

Maybe Mr. Schacter can find the right person for the job. If he does, we'll insist that Kentucky build itself a Hall of Fame and put busts of dead Mr. Schacter and his writer in the middle niche.

Approximately 155 acres of Ky. 31 issue grass in Warren county will be harvested for seed this year. Smith D. Broadbent, Jr., contributed hybrid seed corn for Christian county 4-H club entrants in the corn derby.

The Williamsport 4-H club in Johnson county set out 4,000 pine trees on land unsuited for crops. Kentucky 163 hybrid corn was distributed among 18 4-H club members by the Lurie County Seed Growers Association.

H. M. SHEVYAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Henry Clay Hotel, Ashland, Ky., Sunday and Monday only June 22 and 23.

Mr. Shevyan says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly, but alter the size or location, but it will increase the circulation, strengthen the weakened parts, and thereby close the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume. A nationally known scientific method. No under-traps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevyan will be glad to demonstrate without charge.

There Are Definite Reasons Why Waterfield Should Be Elected

Again the people of Kentucky face the by no means unimportant task of selecting a Governor.

Some "organization men" over the state advise the voters that there are no issues in this campaign between Harry Lee Waterfield and Earle C. Clements. They would play the angle down, adopt the hush-hush policy—in the interest, they say, of harmony in the Democratic party. Those without an issue would call any frank statement of fact, any effort to produce the record for the benefit of the people, "muddling." It is always so with the group that would depend upon organization and money to dictate the course of politics. The less said, the better for them.

But we feel that the people should know the facts, and so we set down here our reasons for supporting Harry Lee Waterfield for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky.

1. Waterfield is a man of action, as witness his fight against the power interests when Rural Electrification throughout Kentucky was imperiled by the TVA Ripper bill sponsored by Senator Moss—a bill which Mr. Clements voted for in 1944.

(Now a candidate for Governor, Mr. Clements, a Congressman, speaks in Washington for Rural Electrification. Circumstances alter cases and he seeks, by lip service, to prove that Rural Electrification, lights and power for the fellow out of town, up the creek and out on the farm, is no longer an issue. But next year another Moss Bill will be back in the hopper at Frankfort, and the Governor of Kentucky will have a lot to say about whether the vested interests or the interests of the common, ordinary citizen win out.)

2. Waterfield has definite plans for Kentucky and he is not afraid to state them:

(a) He FIRST called on Governor Willis for a special Legislature session to appropriate more for teachers' pay. Later, Mr. Clements fell in line.

(b) He FIRST set forth the idea that the Fiscal Courts of Kentucky, with proper qualification, should handle Rural Highway funds in the construction and maintenance of their own roads, rather than leave these funds "in the pot" to be handled by the state and Frankfort officials pretty much as they please. Waterfield believes in Home Rule and is not afraid to be its champion.

(c) He FIRST of the candidates assured teachers of the state that, if elected Governor, he would surrender the power of hiring and firing state college and university presidents at will. This power threatens the standing of every state institution of higher learning. Later, Mr. Clements in effect said, "Me, too."

(d) He FIRST proposed a pari-mutuel tax, a luxury tax on those who follow the "sport of Kings." The millions in taxes that would thus accrue would provide funds for needed state work, reduce other taxes and attract industries to Kentucky.

Every other state in the Union where horse racing takes place already collects such a tax, and the racing business is flourishing in them all.

3. Harry Lee Waterfield is not carrying favors from any "big" group. He is carrying his fight to the people where his interest lies, as his record shows beyond dispute.

4. He combines youth with experience gained in fighting at Frankfort as Speaker of the House of Representatives for principles.

5. He does not seek to damage any certain group. He simply stands for Kentucky and all its people against special interests.

This is the People's fight. The People always get what they want—if they only will fight and vote for it.

No issues in this campaign? The issues are many and they all add up to the general picture of what the common voter hopes to find in the Governor of Kentucky.

Now and every day till August 2 is the time for us all to be busy. Let us not wait till the election is over, then spend four years lamenting our misfortune.

DEPARTMENT CITES RULING

Foodhandlers Required To Procure Permits; Standards Listed

The deadline for the securing of permits by food handlers serving food and drinks, and in operation at the time the foodhandling regulation was adopted Jan. 1, 1946 has been pushed up until July 1, this year. It was announced last week by the Food County Health Department after this date all places operating without a permit will be committing a violation making them subject to a fine of $10 to $100 and each day's operation after they have been given legal notice to close will be considered a separate offense.

Dr. Marvin Randall, health department director, declared that M. V. Clark, inspector with the department, reports that there will be a very small number that are not ready with their permits by that time and that most of these are planning on closing their business July 1. All places not complying will be visited by an inspector and given a 30-day notice to close out their businesses. After this, they will be prosecuted according to law.

The foodhandling establishment regulation was suggested by the State Bureau of Foods and Drugs. It provides that all places preparing and serving food or drink to the public must have a written permit signed by the county health officer, and that all places shall be in grades of A, B, and C and that placards showing these grades shall be kept by the operators in a conspicuous place so that they may be seen by all customers.

Before any permits can be issued a minimum requirement has been provided that must be met. They must have suitable housing facilities, approved toilet facilities for workers, a safe and protected water supply, both hot and cold under pressure, lavatory facilities with both hot and cold water connections convenient to the kitchen, a three-compartment sink with both hot and cold water connections to each compartment, and all workers must have health certificates.

All new places going into business after the effective date of this new regulation are required to have a permit before they can open their places for business.

Milk Used in Diet Keeps Eyes Younger, And Hearing Keener

Eyes that stay young longer and the keen hearing associated with youth is being retained for a longer time when an ample supply of milk is a part of the daily diet. It was stated by Dr. Stalle Erickson, head of the Department of Home Economics at the U-K College of Agriculture and Home Economics, in calling attention to the observance of June as Dairy Month.

"People who have plenty of milk won't have to wear bi-focals so early," said the foods authority, as she pointed out that milk and milk products are excellent sources of riboflavin, one of the B-vitamins, important in keeping nerves stable and senses sensitive. Riboflavin, she said, is essential in keeping the corner of the eye healthy.

Because riboflavin is quickly destroyed in the presence of light, Dr. Erickson urged that bottles of milk not be left on porches, but be refrigerated immediately after delivery, if possible.

On the other hand, the home economist explained, riboflavin is not destroyed when milk is processed for later use in products, such as cheese, dried and skim milk and ice cream.

Dr. Erickson, who has studied widely in the fields of foods and nutrition, recommended that one quart of milk be used daily by mothers during lactation, and by children. For other adults, a pint is the minimum amount recommended, while three cups are desirable, she said.

"Men students who were in the service brought back a surprising taste for fresh fluid milk," she noted, adding that in the University Student Cafeteria, it is not unusual to see them take from two to four half-pints of milk on a tray with their food. More men than women students drink milk, she stated.

NEWS FOR THE VETERANDISABLED STUDENT VETS
MAY GET MEDICAL CARE

The Veterans Administration will provide necessary medical treatment or hospitalization to enable disabled veterans to continue their education or on-job training.

Officials at the VA's Columbus, O., Branch Office said disabled veterans who are in schools or job-training courses under provisions of Public Law 16 (Vocational Rehabilitation Act) are entitled to necessary medical care at government expense, regardless of whether the disease or injury is a result of their military or naval service.

Veterans enrolled under the G.I. Bill are entitled to medical care at government expense only for service-connected disabilities.

If a disabled veteran-trainee is injured, suffers a relapse, or if his disability is further aggravated during his period of training and is not the result of his own willful misconduct, he may be granted an increase in the rate of his disability compensation, VA officials said.

1,824 AMPUTEES ELIGIBLE
FOR AUTOS IN 3 STATES

The Veterans Administration has authorized 1,824 disabled veterans in Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky to purchase at government expense the "autos for amputees" program. It was announced this week the VA's tri-state Branch Office in Columbus, Ohio.

The total includes 732 in Ohio, 701 in Michigan and 391 in Kentucky. VA said such claims should be filed not later than June 15, inasmuch as June 30 is the deadline for authorizing purchase of vehicles by amputees.

The program to furnish automobiles or other conveyances to World War II veterans who lost, or lost the use of, one or both legs became effective last September. The cost of each vehicle is limited to $1,500, including any special equipment or attachments necessary to enable the veteran to operate it.

WAR DEPT. SEEKS CURRENT ADDRESS OF NEXT-OF-KIN

The War Department has informed the Veterans Administration that survivors of men and women who died while serving in the army during World War II should make certain that two of its agencies have their present address.

Many instances have been found where addresses of next-of-kin in the files of the casualty section of the adjutant general's office and the memorial division of Office of Quartermaster General are incorrect. Letters sent to these next-of-kin by the two offices have been returned, marked: "Moved. Left no forwarding address."

Next-of-kin who have moved since last notifying these offices of their addresses are asked to mail a postcard or letter to each office, stating in effect:

"I am next-of-kin to (name) (grade) (serial number). My former address was (street, city, state). My present address is (street, city, state). The communication should be mailed to:

The War Department, Adjutant General's Office, attention: Personnel Actions Branch, Casualty Section, The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C.

Memorial Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington 25, D. C.

MAJORITY OF U.S. VETS
SERVED DURING WW II

Seven out of every 10 living veterans of the nation's last five wars served in World War II, according to the latest tabulation released by the Veterans Administration.

The table reported an estimated total of 18,188,000 living veterans in May. Of this number, 14,267,000 served in World War II, and the remainder, 3,921,000, in the four prior wars and in the peacetime forces.

Many veterans live outside the United States. More than 100,000 live in Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. Some 50,000 live in foreign countries, exclusive of the Philippines, where 18,000 are reported.

FIVE COUNTRIES POPULAR FOR VET STUDY ABROAD

Eight out of every 10 students studying abroad under the G.I. Bill are enrolled in institutions in five countries, according to the Veterans Administration.

VA said the five countries are Canada, Mexico, Switzerland, France and England.

Recent VA statistics show 1,368 U. S. veterans enrolled in 219 foreign schools in 24 different countries.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Are any of the cemeteries operated by Veterans Administration leased from private owners?

A. VA has no such leases.

Q. Can I specify in my G.I. insurance policy that in event my wife re-married after my death, payment of the balance of insurance benefit shall be made to my mother?

A. No.

A. No. Benefits of the act are for World War II veterans only.

Q. I was discharged from the army in May, 1945. Are readjustment allowances still available to me?

A. Yes, readjustment allowances are available to any eligible veteran until two years after the date of his discharge or release, or until two years after the official end of the war, whichever is later.

Q. I am a World War II veteran and have been ill for five months. At the end of my sixth month of total disability, will I have to continue paying my G. I. insurance premium or is a waiver granted automatically?
