Gertrude M. Haggard, pastor of the Prestonsburg Methodist Church; Mrs. Ray Howard and Mrs. Mary P. Johns, manager of the Thrift Shop operated here by the Federation.

Meetings will be held each second Monday at 7:30 p.m., at the Armory. Funeral home here, it was announced, and all who are interested in the program, or in learning more about it, are asked to attend.

It is explained that the Federation provides material aid and other services directly to individual children and large groups of school children in this country and overseas through the school and child sponsorship program. Based on case investigation by Federation representatives, the organization seeks to meet the most pressing needs of individual children.

The Federation also claims to inspire and assist local community effort for services to children by helping to organize county committees which plan and administer Federation services, thus making communities independent of outside aid, and eventually, becoming able to care adequately for the needs of their children themselves.

Floyd County Historical Notes

By HENRY P. SCAFF

EDWARD DORTON (1751-1850)

Edward Dorton, Revolutionary War soldier, was born in Powhatan County, Virginia, March 10, 1751. His second is from the family history of the Dorton family and was written by the father of Edward, whose name was Edward Dorton. Edward was living in Washington County, Va., when Edward at 25 years of age entered the Revolutionary service.

The Indians, in the spring of 1776, were beginning, under the encouragement of the British and the fugitive of their own inclination to murder and massacre, the devastation and horrors of savage warfare on the western border of Virginia. They were going, or attempting to go, over the mountains into Kentucky to do the same. It is not completely true that by the autumn of 1776, the British with all the dangers of war and massacre.

In the spring of 1778, the dreaded Shawnee came up out of the Ohio country, and began to harass the settlements on the Clinch River. For the third time it was necessary for Col. Campbell to raise a company of border volunteers. In March, 1778, Edward Dorton, who was certainly by this time a western Indian fighter, was enlisted for a period of one year. The men were divided into two and four for the purpose of scouting and spying. All through the summer of 1778, Edward Dorton, scout and soldier, was active in the Clinch River country, after their initial appearance on the Clinch, directed into the Clinch and then, with his own eyes, entered the scene of their scouting, beyond the Cumberland, toward the Kentucky and the Sandy river. These journeys into Big Sandy may have influenced him favorably to think of the Sandy country as a future home. His year of service having expired, he was again discharged, and although the Virginia Governor, Patrick Henry, had called the state to pay for this quasi-military service, the men were never paid.

The crisis of the Revolution was now approaching. The British, after their victory at Camden, were pushing to subjugate the entire Southern Colonies. Since the back-country of the Carolinas was now taking more and more interest in the patriot cause, Major Ferguson was ordered by Cornwallis to advance through the western part of the Carolinas, by way of the country and near the "rubber" land, that was the Cumberland, Clinch, Williams, Sevier, Shelby and McDowell were not leaders so easily won. They had always maintained a sort of loose contact and cooperation through the Revolution, and Isaac Shelby, who afterwards became the first Governor of Kentucky, was their acknowledged leader. He was at Kings Meadows (what now is Kings, Va.), and one day there came to him an emissary from the British Ferguson. This emissary identified himself as Samuel Phillips, and he was a prisoner of Ferguson's but was to be given his freedom for delivering the message, now impeded to Shelby. The message of Ferguson's was couched in the most threatening terms—demands for resistance or he handed the throat crossed Shelby and mounting his horse, he rode 40 miles to Mullhobby to see John Sevier. Sevier was at the time, according to the tales, here Shelby found him and the two sat upon a log and formulated plans. Sevier was to rally the Washington county, North Carolina; Shelby, Sullivan county, Tennessee; Campbell, Washington county, Virginia; Sevier, Ford on the Watauga was to be the place and Sept. 22, 1780, the day.

It has been said by one historian that this was the most remarkable gathering of backwoodsmen that has ever occurred on the western border. Another has said: "A moment of silence, white by blood, half-Indian in appearance and technique of war, carried their Deschett rifles and tomahawks to the Eyewitness. In five days they were across the divide at Roan's Knob, with eighty miles behind them."

After this larger view of the Revolution, what of Edward Dorton, the unpaid, unsung backwoodsman of Washington county, Virginia? For the fourth time he rallied to his country's cause, enlisting with another brother for no stated time, as Col. Campbell knew not how to name him.

In early April, 1777, the Indians burst into the Clinch and Powell valleys, murdering, plundering wherever their visitations occurred. The settlers, who had only the day before returned to their homes after a near complete absence the summer of 1776, now found it necessary to flee to the protection of the forts. It was, indeed, a time of crisis on the border. The year of the preceding year had been spent, due to the intermittent fighting, or return to their homes, and only after a short period of labor on the farm, fled again to the fort for days.

A new volunteer company was organized by Col. Campbell and Capt. John Roberson, of the year before, leaving Lieutenant Robinson. The subject of this sketch, Edward Dorton, volunteered for another six months. The company took the field under the immediate command of Capt. Sevier, for Col. William Campbell was addressing himself to the larger aspect of the military campaigns of the Revolution and delegated the field operation to his subordinate.

The company soon found itself marching to the mouth of the North Fork of the Holston. It moved towards the Powell valley settlements, evidently upon information of Indian movements. Here, at daybreak, on an August morning, in 1777, the Indians attacked, and after a running fight the whites continued to retreat. Edward Dorton's brother was killed. His name, like so many of the unsung guardians of the border, is unknown and his body was not retrieved by the retreating company. Another soldier, named Ligon, was killed, as were William Frost and Michael Axtier.

(This Michael Axtier was connected in some way with the early Axtiers of Virginia and Kentucky, the defendant, she, Bert Shepherd, Jake Hughes and Hughes' young daughter, Sylvia, were at the Hughes residence on Salt Lick Creek when Billie Hughes came into the house, armed with a shotgun and a revolver. At the time Shepherd was sprawled, asleep in a chair, Hughes walked up to Shepherd, kicked him, then shot him with the revolver, she testified.

Both the defendant and his son, Willard, who was jointly indicted with him in the Shepherd slaying claimed Willard fired the shot which killed Shepherd. This testimony contended that Shepherd attacked Billie Hughes with a knife and that the two men were scuffling on the floor. Young Hughes ordered Shepherd to turn his father free and when this order was not obeyed the youth fired a shot into the door. When Shepherd continued to grapple with Hughes, Willard Hughes fired a bullet into his body, the defense contended.

Testimony also was introduced to the effect that the bullet ranged from Shepherd's side upward to emerge at the shoulder, the defense thus attacking the Commonwealth's claim Shepherd was sitting in a chair when shot.

Commonwealth witnesses in the Smith case claimed the two men argued over a poker game and that Hall shoved Smith back. Thereupon Smith drew a revolver and shot Hall. This testimony claimed Hall was unarmed and that after one shot had been fired Hall begged Smith not to shoot him again. Three shots in all were fired, two taking effect in Hall's body. The Commonwealth also elicited from Smith the admission that he had shot a man in Alabama before coming to Kentucky.

Smith pleaded self-defense, claimed Hall knocked him down and then went for his pocket as if to draw a weapon. He testified he knew the other was a dangerous man and said Hall told him, "You're gonna have to use that big gun."

One witness produced by the defense claimed he went to the hospital as Hall's friend to give him blood and that Hall told him the trouble was his own fault.

Another jury this week did not act as decisively as the two murder juries. In the case of Russell Wallen, of Allen, the jury failed to agree after Wallen had testified the 38 half-pint of whiskey officers found hidden on his premises were for his own personal use. He claimed he secreted the liquor to keep it from his son.

YOUR GARDEN

The people that are lucky enough to have their gardens planted should be on the lookout for some damaging insects that come out early in the spring.

The first insect to come out will be the green worm on cabbage, also, some cabbage line and the small gray beetle that chews out the slip's leaf leaves may have come. Root-knot (or spray) stops all three, though for the lice, a coarse sulfate or stout "tobacco tea" is better, provided the air temperature is above 50 degrees. Cabbage plants should be inspected before they are set out to see if there are any cabbage lice on them. If lice are present it will be easier to treat them before setting. Don't worry about buying too much rotenone for the cabbage plants because what you have left will come in mighty handy when beetle bugs show up.

The next insect probably will be the black flea beetle which does much damage and usually is not noticed. The flea beetle rides potato leaves with many small holes. This damage is serious throughout the crop life and may be severe just as the plants break through the ground. A good way to tell if flea beetles are present is to break a potato leaf, hold it up toward the sky and look at the small holes in the leaf. If these holes were all together, a big part of the leaf would be gone. The flea beetle is a sucking insect. It sticks its bill into the potato leaf and sucks out the sap. For this reason a stomach poison such as paris green or lead arsenate would not be effective in controlling it. To control the flea beetle dust your potatoes with a 5% D.D.T. dust. If you want to use a wet spray use a 50% wettable D. D. T. two level tablespoons to a gallon of water. Three applications are necessary (1) when the potatoes are all up, (2) ten days later and (3) in ten days again.

Controlling the flea beetle is the easiest and cheapest way to increase your yield.

Mrs. Collinsworth Dies Here Wednesday, Victim Of Three-Year Illness

Mrs. Ellen May Collinsworth, 87 years old, member of a pioneer Prestonsburg family, died at the home here of her sister, Mrs. J. M. Porter, at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday following an illness of three years.

Mrs. Collinsworth was the widow of William Collinsworth, who died in 1908. A native of Prestonsburg, she was a daughter of William J. and Cynthia Powers May, and had spent most of her life here. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for many years and held the position of a wide circle of relatives and friends in this section.

Surviving are one step-son, Elmer Collinsworth, Pichard, W. Va., two brothers, Leo P. May and J. P. May, both of Prestonsburg, and three sisters, Mrs. Douglas Mayo, Naples, Ky., Mrs. Laura M. Davidson and Mrs. Cynthia Ann Porter, both of Prestonsburg.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday from the Methodist Church here, the pastor, Dr. Gertrude M. Haggard, officiating. Burial will be made in the Porter cemetery under direction of the Arnold Funeral Home.

COMPLETES BASIC TRAINING

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas — Pvt. Earl Kidd, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Roberts, of Harold, has completed his basic military training here along with some 600 new army men, and is now learning his job in Randolph's B-29 combat crew training school. Pvt. Kidd received the same basic military training that is taught Randolph's famous aviation cadets in their pre-flight schooling.

The group of aviators, of which Pvt. Kidd was a member, will be taught to be mechanics, clerks, medics, air policemen, cooks, drivers and many other jobs vital in keeping the huge B-29's flying and the 11-man a crew moving to the Strategic Air Command.

Many members of this "recruit" group will qualify for technical training, schools soon, and all will be given an opportunity to compete for aviation cadet and officer candidate schools if they have the proper background. Meanwhile, they will be helping to get the big job done in expanding the Air Force to meet current international threats. Although Randolph has been famous in aviation history as the training center for the Air Force's pilots, the basic pilot training program is drawing to a close to make way for the B-29 combat crew training.

SECRETARY OF STATE HATCHER DELIVERS PARK LANDS DEEDS TO FEDERAL OFFICIALS; URGES 'SKYLINE HIGHWAY' TO BREAKS AREA

Kentucky's Secretary of State, George Glenn Hatcher, has just returned from a mission to Washington, D. C., to make delivery to the Department of Interior and the U. S. Attorney General the final group of deeds for land purchased and acquired by the Kentucky National Park Commission. These deeds complete Kentucky's share of the acreage to comprise the Cumberland Gap Historical National Park.

Mr. Hatcher, as custodian of the deeds for all State owned real estate, in performing his duty, was interested in expediting the details involved in the transfer of the acreage to the National Park Service for examination and abstracting of titles by the federal authorities.

Several months ago he made available 139 other deeds involving a part of the proposed park area. Mr. Hatcher stated that when they are finally approved the Commonwealth of Kentucky will convey the entire acreage of the 154 deeds totaling around 12,000 acres (perhaps in one blanket deed) to the Department of Interior as Kentucky's contribution for the national park.

An Act of Congress in 1940 and other enabling legislation enacted in 1943 authorized the Cumberland Gap Historical Park and provided for a compact to be entered into by Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, and authorized the purchase by these states of the acreage with state money.

While in Washington, Mr. Hatcher proposed to officials that the federal government, from the "Wilderness Trail" and the "Skyline Highway" at the Cumberland Gap to the "Breaks of the Big Sandy" at the Pike county, Kentucky, and Virginia state line, and suggested that it bear the name, "The Trail of Freedom Memorial Trail." This highway would follow over 100 miles long and follow the state line of Kentucky and Virginia along the ridge of the Cumberland mountains. It would be similar to the Blue Ridge Parkway, and would traverse the famous "Trail of the Lowcountry Pine," the highest point in Kentucky, and pass through Pound Gap. This road, he argued, would open up and connect the most scenic area now unknown to the general touring public.

And the surprise is no less when you look to the every-day aspects of Cadillac's economy. Few could ask for greater mileage from a gallon of gasoline. And the car's freedom from the needs of service—beyond the routine—has long been traditional.

And finally, of course, is Cadillac's tremendous capacity to serve—the years and years of wonderful utility designed and built into it.

Yes—when you want a Cadillac, you want it for what it is, and does, and represents. But what an added satisfaction it is to reflect that it is also so eminently practical!

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

It is true, of course, that when men and women move up to Cadillac, their motivating thought is not economy. Their hearts are set on owning the "Standard of the World."

But if they needed another impulse to move them to Cadillac, it could certainly be found in the car's remarkable record for practicality.

Even on the basis of its initial cost, a Cadillac represents a surprisingly sound automotive investment. Indeed, some half million American motorists are driving other makes of cars which actually cost them more than they would have had to invest if they had purchased new Cadillacs!

Many War Veterans Lose Insurance Pay

Many World War II veterans are not eligible to receive the special National Service Life (GI) Insurance dividend scheduled for distribution this year.

VA officials pointed out that only those veterans who had GI insurance policies in force for three months or more after their policy's anniversary date in 1948 would be eligible to participate in the dividend.

No application is necessary for this year's dividend, which will be paid automatically to all eligible veterans. Writing to VA about the dividend, it was explained, may cause the veteran's check to be delayed, since answering inquiries would interrupt the work of getting the dividend payments ready.

Score of Game Played In Cold and Rain Here Ends in 14-13 Score

In weather as wet and otherwise miserable as ever glommed up a regular late fall grid contest, the alumni team of Prestonsburg high school defeated the 1951 edition of the Prestonsburg Black Cats by the scant margin of an extra point here last Friday night. The score was 14-13.

Despite the cold downpour, passing figured in at least two of the four touchdowns, though the Cats' Hughes and Porter, Morehead State College star passer and former Black Cat quarterback, were sorely hampered by cold hands and a slippery ball.

The alumni scored in the first quarter on a toss from Porter to Johnny Kline, who starred for the winners at end, Henry Louis Mayo ran across the extra point. The Cats came fighting back in the next quarter to even the count at 7-all at the half, with Jimmy Mayo getting off on the longest jaunt of the game for 65 yards and a touchdown. The extra point was made.

In the third quarter Porter took the ball across the alumni on a quarterback sneak, then passed to Henne again for the extra point and his team's victory margin. A pass from Hughes to Patton at end netted the second Black Cat touchdown, but the conversion attempt failed.

"Ford's fast gateway is a time and money saver in stop-and-go work like ours," says Economy Run operator Lester Riesenweber.

"My farm hauling costs me under 2¢ a mile!"

Lester Riesenweber drove his 1950 Ford F-3 Express, equipped with the PCWER PILOT, in the nationwide Ford Truck Economy Run. He and 50,000 others logged a total of 50 million miles!

"During the Economy Run," he says, "our day-by-day records show that we travelled 1,795 miles, with loads up to 2700 lbs. We had no repairs, paid a total of $54.98 for gas, oil and maintenance. That's only 1.95¢ a mile!"

Mr. Riesenweber's truck, of course, gets regular Ford Dealer service. AND—like all today's Ford Trucks—it has the POWER PILOT, which gives you the most power from the least gas! Only FORD in the low-price field has the Power Pilot!

THE SUGAR LOAF RESTAURANT AND 17 BEAUTIFUL BUILDING LOTS

Located at the mouth of Sugar Loaf, four miles from Prestonsburg and fronting on U.S. 23, this is, we believe, one of the most desirable sites for residence or business to be offered at auction in this county in many years.

The Sugar Loaf Restaurant building was built only two years ago, is two stories, upstairs has a five-room apartment, with complete, modern bath. The restaurant on the first floor has a Grade A rating, is fully equipped as a modern restaurant should be, and the entire building has free gas, running water and electricity. This building is 30 by 58 feet and a service station goes with it.

An established business, with a splendid future, only two miles from Dewey Lake.

The 17 lots offered at this sale are on the same beautiful, level, high and dry tract of bottom land on which the restaurant is located. These are ideal for home and somebody with initiative has a chance to establish here one of the Big Sandy valley's finest motel businesses.

Mrs. Bradis Goble has authorized us to make this sale because she with her brother owns the dock concession on Dewey Lake, and this business demands her full attention.

Liberal terms will be announced on the day of sale. Don't fail to see this property, and study its possibilities for pleasant living or for profitable business.

turn it, the consumption of coal by the end of 10 years will be only 40 per cent of that of last year, the survey showed, Mr. Francis said. In general, the coal business will not be so sorely beset as domestic coal may be, it was pointed out, but this area's production is primarily for the domestic market and whatever affects domestic use of coal will make itself felt in particular in this field.

Mr. Francis said the development of a new, low-cost stoker promises, however, to take up some of the slack in the market.

Franklin Delbert Conner, Prestonsburg high school orator, addressed the interest of the program by delivering the oration which has won him district honors and a chance at the Kentucky oratorical title.

Approximately 80 persons attended the banquet.

Department of Health, officials the position taken in each instance.

"The Department of Health, I was informed, acknowledging its desire to study the apparent differences of opinion within the county as to the most desirable and advantageous location of the hospital, will conduct a public hearing in Floyd county for the purpose of acquiring the fullest possible information and public sentiment on this important question."

Paul A. Hachey, director of the Division of Hospital Services, State Department of Health, had earlier rejected the Allen site for the hospital, and proponents of that location hailed this week's announcement by the Governor as a victory in that the community had regained State Department consideration.

A Green Kentucky Will Not Be a Dead Kentucky

It is encouraging to note that Floyd county has joined in the Green Pastures program which is designed to improve pastures already growing and to get into pasture those thousands of acres which now are being taken away by erosion.

From the experience of the eleven county men who have enrolled this year in the program many others should profit. Richer pastures, more livestock, particularly cattle, less wasteland in the forest products of the hope Floyd county has for a future which is uncertain at the best.

Then there is another program which should be the perfect complement to the Green Pastures work. This is the Green Kentucky Forests Green movement. The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, which is taking a farsighted interest in this work, supplies the information that the state of Kentucky last year lost a potential of $46,000,000 board feet of lumber as a result of 4,213 forest fires which devastated 255,000 acres of forest lands.

As an agricultural product in this state, timber is second only to tobacco. The value of forest products, says the Chamber of Commerce, is estimated at $81,000,000 a year. That is the value on the market. The greater value lies in the protection the forests afford the land, preventing erosion, helping maintain the water table and staying destructive flash floods.

Green pastures and green forests will mean more to Kentucky, over the generations, than all the state's present mines and manufacturing plants.

What are a few pine trees, for instance, worth? Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, tells the story:

A fellow came in to see me and before he had settled well he was telling me about his baby. It was a curious thing, he said, but this child of his was the most remarkable one he had ever seen. At three months the boy was smart as a whip and saying words which, while perhaps slightly unintelligible to illustrations, were perfectly clear to them with even a slight understanding of languages.

It was not until he said he had just finished planting the boy's entire estate on costs, prep school and college, including the price of a medical school degree, that I really gave him any attention.

"Planted?" I asked.

"Yes," he said, "planted it. You know that old back field of mine. Well, it is about 150 acres and there hasn't been anything on it since the boll weevil ate the cotton back in 1922. What with my own practice and the inability to get any help, I just let it go. Now, I have had it tractor plowed and I have had one of those machines set out pine trees. I am going to have a really tremendous forest there in about 12 years. By that time I can begin cutting it for pulp. By just thinking I can pay his prep school expenses, T. I. Replant, of course, and by the time he is ready for college and medical school I can pay all his bills by cutting down just some of the trees. This has got insurance beat a mile," he said, warming to his subject.

"There are no premiums to pay, policies to lapse if you get sick or run short of cash. They just keep growing. You can almost see pine trees grow."

"This boy of mine is so smart," he said, "that I am sure he will pick out a smart good girl to marry. I have got it all figured out. I will be able to give him a wedding trip and build him a house. The day his first child is born I will give the boy the land and, by replanting, that boy can educate himself and get married and we can keep generations going on 150 acres of pine trees."

He was right about those trees. If a man has enough idle land it can be planted in firs and, if properly managed, those trees will support a family for generations. Careful cutting and replanting will keep them in perpetuity.

Pew persons in the South realize the enormous use already being made of pine trees in the whole field of synthetics.

Miss Bussey Named
To May Queen Contest;
College Plans Pageant

Pikeville, Ky., April 17 (Sp.)—Wendell Bussey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Bussey, of David, will be a member of the May Queen's court at Pikeville Junior College here early next month.

Lacy Webb, of Mayking and Gene Davis, of Pikeville, will be crowned Queen and King of the Pikeville Junior College May Festival, May 19, at 8 p.m. Pageant president, announced this week.

The coronation of the two sophomores, recently chosen for the honor by the college student body, will climax the annual festival, in which students of all divisions of the school traditionally take part.

The swearing in at Pikeville in 1922 of Brigadier General, later President, James A. Garfield will be re-enacted as a highlight of the pageant, based on the history of this county. Pageant queen, Miss Webb, of Mayking and Gene Davis, of Pikeville, will be crowned Queen and King of the Pikeville Junior College May Festival, May 19, at 8 p.m. Pageant president, announced this week.

Attendees to the May Queen will be four runners-up to Miss Webb in the balloting. Miss Bussey and Peggy Hawkins, Grundy, Va., Almer Johnson, Williamson, W. Va., and Gayle Maxwell, Booneville, Ind., will form the queen's court.

Their escorts will be George K. K. Warfield, Arnold Harmon, Inez Hayne McCoy, Pikeville, and Spencer Singleton, Arto, who were among Davis, competitors.

Miss Bussey has been active in music and dramatics at Pikeville as she was at Prestonsburg high school before her 1949 graduation there. She is a member of the Pikeville College Glee Club, and starred recently in the title role of "Anne of Green Gables" with the College Players.

students who next year will attend
American colleges and universities.
The program will set under way in late July with the arrival of 40 students from Asiatic, European

During the six-week training pe-

Jest Among Us . . .

By Jack Wald

Basil Hubbard Pollitt, a retired Miami attorney, has something to say in the current issue of the Kentucky Law Journal, a quarterly publication edited by University of Kentucky students, on the subject of net getting along with one's mate.

Brave Sir Knight and Fair Mistress Lady wooed one another in an ivory tower and were wed in the Little Church on The Cape. The Sea Showers with ribs and trays by old shoes and tin cans, they boarded the Good Ship Domestic Felicity and set out to sail the sea of holy matrimony. For a period all was smooth sailing and they enjoyed conjugal bliss to the full. Shortly, however, there came a great storm at sea and the waves of temper, jealousy, selfishness, cruelty, thoughtlessness and misunderstanding drove them on to the rocky coast.

"By great good fortune the unlucky people were washed ashore alive though badly bruised and battered. Each blamed the other for the loss of the ship. They called one another odious names and even threw plates. They could endure each other no longer, and resolved to abandon the voyage to Sailor's Snug Harbor and to obtain a divorce."

Mr. Pollitt lists thirteen interesting ideas which he thinks would better the law of marriage and divorce. Here are half a dozen of them:

1. The home, not the institution, is the hope of society and here lies our salvation; 2. Marriage should be encouraged by levying a flat tax on all bachelors above the age of thirty; 3. All childless couples who have been married ten years and have a net income of $5,000 a year should be required to adopt one or more children; 4. In view of the modern economic independent status of women, alimony payments should be lessened; 5. No divorce should be allowed during the first five years of marriage; 6. No divorce should be allowed while the youngest child is under the age of ten.

Of today's Sir Knight and Mistress Lady about to set sail in the New Ship Domestic Felicity, the lawyer writes: "May they cling to one another in tempest and sunshine, in clear and stormy weather in joy and sorrow, in success and failure. May the storms subside, may the fog lift, may the rocks be washed away, may the Ship remain seaworthy, may they sail triumphantly in the end, into Sailor's Snug Harbor. And there may have rabbits and everything. May they live on the fat of the land. May they be the Victory forever and ever."

Why not give

Let's see what it means to own a Roadmaster.

It means, first of all, that you're a shrewd judge of fine manufacture. Nowhere will you find a mechanism more skillfully fitted part to part with scrupulous precision—engineered to stricter standards of fine-car quality—than the deep-framed and durable ROADMASTER chassis.

It means, also, that you possess keen appreciation of everything that makes for unsurpassed performance.

For there's more to this dazzling beauty than its thrilling take-off. There's the surplus of power that you need to make you the master of busy traffic or open road—plus the velvet magic of Dynaflo Drive (at no extra cost, mind you).

There's the level-going luxury of ample roadweight buoyantly balanced on coil springs on every wheel—and the security of brakes specifically engineered for firm control of this great-powered beauty.

But there's still another distinction to being a ROADMASTER owner.

It marks you as one who buys wisely and well. Size for size, pound for pound, feature for feature, few cars can even approach what your dollars will buy in this finest of Buicks.

There's much more to be discovered by a visit to any Buick dealer's showroom.

There's the sumptuous softness of cushions, the custom excellence of fabrics and interior trim, the grace and charm of every line and contour.

So if you've dreamed of sometime owning a car superbly fine, there's no time like the present—and no car like ROADMASTER for making dreams come true.

Equipment, accessories, price and models are subject to change without notice.
