authorized a new temporary certificate for teachers with only two years of college work.

But it was soon apparent that one effect of this regulation would be to limit the usefulness of the many junior college graduates in Kentucky, which now offer two-year teacher-training programs in preparation for college.

Partly the teacher's support is short at present, there are about 2,000 emergency teachers in the public-school system.

The state board proposed that it should not give a certificate to a teacher until he has completed his college work.

1. To approve as teacher-training institutions 13 Kentucky junior colleges, which now offer two-year teacher-training programs in preparation for college.

2. To create a "temporary certificate" for junior-college graduates who have completed only two years of college work.

The 13 junior colleges are Ashland, Campbellsville, Midway, Pikeville, Berea, Wm. S. Duggins, Hopkinsville, Caney at Pippinsburg, Cumberland at Williamsburg, Lindsey, Wilson at Columbia, Blue Bell at Louisville, Berea, Mount St. Joseph, and Nazareth at Lexington.

In addition, the board approved the "Conservation Teacher" training program of the state colleges. Eastern Kentucky University, Murray State University, and the University of Louisville.

The state board also set up regulations governing the use of emergency teachers by the public-school districts. The board will require one of the following conditions to be met before the hiring of emergency teachers will be approved.

1. One qualified supervisor holding teacher's certificate is employed in as many as 10 emergency teachers are to be hired.

2. Not less than one qualified supervisor or helping teacher shall be employed for approximately every 20 emergency teachers.

3. A continuous program of inservice training, designed to improve instruction, shall be provided for the emergency teachers.

Teachers are to be employed. The program must meet approval of the state superintendent and the Division of Teacher Education and Certification.

TOWN'S ONLY PHARMACIST IS ALSO COUNTY'S OLDEST

(By PAT CAMPBELL, Martin Journalism Student)

"Hey, Doc, I've got a sick baby at home with a bad cold. How about giving her up something for it?" So Dr. W. H. Mahood, pharmacist, goes into his small prescription room and studies "Gripe" with a bottle of medicine.

"Give her a dose every three hours for cold and cough," he writes on the bottle. "Thanks," says the customer. "I'll be back soon."

Think you see many events of a day in the life of Dr. W. H. Mahood, Martin's only pharmacist? Well, Mahood has spent half of his life in the service of the people of Kentucky. Not of the age of 80 he still puts in a full day's work in his small store. The son of a chemist, Dr. Mahood was born in Fayetteville, W. Va., in 1870.

He attended Fayetteville school, but due to financial circumstances he was forced to leave school at the eighth grade. As a young boy working in a wholesale drug house, Dr. Mahood decided he would like to be a pharmacist.

With the help of Carl Keller, a druggist in Callettsburg, Ky., and some home study courses, he became a licensed pharmacist in 1911.

While working for a hardware company Mr. Mahood met his wife, Grace B. Latham, who was working for the same company. After a long courtship they were married on Easter Sunday, 1917, in a small Methodist Church in Callettsburg.

Dr. Mahood says the most exciting thing that has happened to him occurred after he had just started to practice his profession in Callettsburg. Late one evening, a young woman came into the store and asked for a bottle of Lysol.

Noticed the girl walked to the front counter and removed the wrapper and scooped from the bottle. Drinking Lysol from the bottle, she walked out to the sidewalk where she collapsed. She was carried back into the store and Mr. Mahood, smelling all in the little community of Martin, guessed what had happened.

PRASE FOR MARTIN

Our worthy and outstanding community's Attorney has sent another noble and honest article that would be good for the other county officials to follow.

Mr. Martin, who has been with us only a short time, had a sworn financial statement published in the Floyd County Times showing how much money he has received from the county and state as his salary for the past two years. How many of these officials who have been with us for a long time will follow this example?

As a voter in the next election, I shall watch very carefully to see which officials follow Mr. Martin's example.

AND OHIO FELL WITHOUT FIRING OF A SHOT

Editor, The Times:

Have read with interest and agreement the letter of Mrs. Perry, in 25 Feb. issue of The Times. The Kentuckians have taken the state of Ohio without firing a shot, but they are happy about it.

Our jobs and our families are here, but our hearts will ever be in Kentucky. I am much encouraged by the reports I have been reading about the fact that our people are finally awakening to the fact that something needs to be done. My prayer and hope is that our leaders in Kentucky will look to God for leadership and help in solving the problems of the hills. Money doesn't always solve a problem, and many evils often attend prosperity, as most of us who live here in Ohio well know. But anxiety or the thought of necessity has caused many of Kentucky's best citizens to leave and come here to Ohio. I don't include myself in the above statement. That is beside the point.

It is of utmost importance that the people of the hills hold fast to the old ways, mostly as worship of God is concerned. They can and are taking an up-to-date outlook on the present needs, and if they will, look to God for guidance they are sure to succeed. No plan can ignore or leave out God and hope to be successful in the full sense of the meaning of the word.

MORE ABOUT THE EXPATRIOTS

Editor, The Times:

I guess you are surprised to receive so many letters from us, but the letter the Red Cross had published that I wrote started it off and I wrote once more and all my friends were there. I don't know if they wanted me to keep writing.

If I don't I will make people back home more conscious of what it means for boys and men to have to leave home for work and live in strange places. I'm not saying I'll be there. I'm not saying I'll be there. I'm not saying I'll be there. I'm not saying I'll be there.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

is young—only 18, but has served two years in the armed services, ending up as a corporal. He had had his taste satisfied of living away from home.

But as they want didn't work for him back there in Kentucky and West Virginia, where he is from, he came out here.

Last Sunday morning, early early, he phoned home. When I answered, a voice said: "This is Jimmie Lee. I'll be back to see the boys."

I asked him where he was. He said it was a little station, about four blocks away. He had passed our street, only a few miles, and it took him hours to drive here. He was real tired and hungry. So we went after him and brought him on home.

Well, on Monday he got his job and started work on Tuesday. But it was the same old story—home-sickness started on Monday. Friday, he was on his way back home. I tried to talk to him about staying. That is where my letter to you back here. You see he had read it.

He said, "You know that article you wrote for The Floyd County Times? Well, that sums up the whole thing. That's the way with me. No work much at home. So I had to come out here and find a job. I'm so darned homesick for my mom, gal and home I could die. So I'm going back. I don't want but a few dollars a week back there but it's where I belong. We may have to get around and turning pretty soon."

So he's homebound bound.

To the Taxpayers of Floyd County:

I am proud that this people of Floyd county over three years ago had such confidence in my ability and integrity as to elect me Sheriff of Floyd county by an overwhelming vote. The feeling of pride and responsibility I experienced in gaining this show of confidence from you people has during my term of office guided and compelled my innermost consciousness to remain fair and honest in my dealings with you and other officers elected by you. I have always attempted to maintain the high office of sheriff to the best of my ability in a manner which would reflect credit not only upon me but upon Floyd county as well.

Yet, in fulfilling my duties and in dealing with all the people as do one cannot satisfy everyone and there are those that will criticize in the face of one's best efforts, and those that see no praiseworthy accomplishments, but look only for fault. In this last group we find those with such frustrated ambitions and bitterness at all mankind that they will go to the extreme of airing their full-fledged grievances on every street corner, encouraging or disparaging for elected officials and taking every opportunity to create false rumors and malicious smear campaigns.

And so it is that on March 9th of this year certain Directors of the Good Government Taxpayers League saw fit to bring suit against me in my official capacity as Sheriff and against your Fiscal Court to recover all of the money which has been lawfully paid to me for the performance of my duties.

This lawsuit attacks every vital capacity of me in my official capacity as Sheriff.

Can every item of expense for which I have claimed reimbursement from the Fiscal Court be unlawful and unauthorized? Surely when the people elected me they did not expect me to perform such expensive duties as are required of a sheriff and pay some out of my own pocket. On the contrary, I feel assured that you expected me to do as I have honestly tried to do—to fully perform my duties and receive lawful compensation for them.

Let us look at this lawsuit and every item of expense alleged by me to be the Fiscal Court's has been authorized by law.

The lawsuit, in effect, accuses the Fiscal Court of paying, and me of receiving, a number of warrants in 1904, 1905, and 1907, which paid me "money not authorized by law." The warrants covered in part reimbursement of expenses paid out of my own pocket.

The lawsuit states that I was not authorized by law to be paid for conveying juveniles to the State Reformatory, but Kentucky Revised Statutes 190.060 says: "The expense for conveying a boy not indicted under a felony charge to the house of reform shall be paid by the county from which he was received."

The lawsuit also states that I was not authorized to reimburse for conveying incompetents, or insane and feebleminded persons to state hospitals. Yet, KRS 202.260 says in part, with reference to conveying these unfortunate: "If the court which holds an inquest orders an additional guard, his expenses shall be paid by the county."

It should also be pointed out that with reference to conveying these juveniles and incompetents that in some cases the institutions themselves will send guards to convey these persons, but in most cases many days elapse before one of the limited number of guards attempting to handle many counties can perform their duty. In the meantime, unless the sheriff conveys these persons, the county is out the cost of feeding and housing them while waiting for an institution guard. Thus by paying the Sheriff to perform this duty, a saving is effected for the county. However, this saving is not by any means the most important consideration in the case of the insane and feebleminded. Our county jail is not equipped to handle these poor unfortunate, many of whom are old, infirm, and helpless, and others require two guards or caretakers. I have seen these persons in such a condition that they are almost impossible to be committed we have thought it advisable not even to take them out of the jail. The primary thought of these officials charged with the responsibility is to get these persons to a proper institution as soon as possible so that they can receive the expert care their condition requires. Certainly, no sensible person would suggest that we attempt to care for these people here in Floyd county when we have absolutely no facilities available for doing so.

This lawsuit alleges that I was not authorized to reimburse for the county for conveying prisoners to the penitentiary. This is an obvious example of the same charge which is the basis of the foundation of this entire action. The fact is I have never made any claim against the county for conveying prisoners to the penitentiary, as the expense of their conveyance is paid to me by the State. See KRS 64.070. Other claims paid in these warrants received by me from the Fiscal Court cover my duties performed in serving as Election Commissioner, serving election notices, notices in condemnation proceedings, and waiting on the County Court, the authority for which is so obvious as to require no comment.

The lawsuit also falsely charges that I was not entitled to collect $700 monthly from the county for use of my automobile in performing the duties required of me by law. During each of the three years mentioned in the petition my depreciation and have traveled at the very minimum at least 150,000 miles in patrolling the highways and keeping down crime in Floyd county. I can say without fear of contradiction that this accomplishment has not been equalled in the past by any sheriff. The effectiveness of such vigilance on the part of the Sheriff's force is reflected in the record-setting decrease in crime and highway accidents in our county. An inquiry from any court official or a look at the criminal docket, should convince anyone of the truth of this statement. I do not believe law-abiding citizens will look critically at the action of the Fiscal Court in partially reimbursing me for such expense when the results have been so gratifying.

Finally, I should like to mention that the lawsuit accuses me of collecting fees and salary in my office which, when reduced by lawful operating expenses, is still over and above the constitutional limit. This is absolutely false, and the truth of the matter is that in 1907 I did not even make my constitutional limit. It can be easily verified that the expense of my operation of the Sheriff's office for Floyd county, with its population of over 55,000, is far less than the operating expense of the city police force in many of our Kentucky cities of 8,000 or 10,000 population. The recent audit made of the county's fiscal affairs shows that in 1909 my income, less expenses, was $6,002.82, in 1901, $3,592.15, and for 1902, $5,972 and some few cents.

I have many times in the past conferred with officials in the League with reference to the conduct of my office. I have offered to accept advice to do and go over my books and show them the accounts of money taken in and what it was expended for. I have invited anyone having an interest in the financial conduct of the sheriff's office in come and make a thorough examination of my records as desired. The Directors of the League have not availed themselves of my offer. Why? Because while I was offering to do the right thing, the decent thing, they were not nearly so interested in learning the right way to do it as they were in creating me with false rumors of dishonesty and publicizing their maliciously false and unfounded accusations in a lawsuit.

I ask you, the people, to judge me as your Sheriff and neither for or not law enforcement has been accomplished. I have done my best, as God is my judge, and in accordance with the law as I understand it to be. If I have erred, which I do not believe I did, so unjustly. Therefore, I humbly request that you do not pre-judge me on the basis of this malicious and malicious lawsuit.

Class of life saving equipment. And when they actually fight fires they earn additional money, most of which goes into the same fund.

Vernon Blackburn, chief of the fire department, said the department members went into debt to the tune of $10 through the purchase of a truck, a retractor and other items of equipment. Through their own contributions, their earning of money by putting on Christmas lights here last December and some contributions from local citizens and business firms, they have reduced the debt to $13.98.

Their equipment is largely improvised, but it works. The truck and other items are donated items. The oxygen tank is an Air Corp. piece of salvage. The oxygen mask was fashioned from a wartime gas mask, and the first-aid kit is a fishing tackle box. The drugs used for searching for drowning victims are home-made but highly effective, as in the case of the recovery last year of a victim from Dewey Lake.

Still needed are an emergency cutting torch, flares and other minor items but as the equipment now stands it is highly efficient. One Prestonsburg man probably owes his life to the life-saving squad and its truck. He had been overcome by gas fumes. The squad is equipped to meet such emergencies as drowning, heart attack, electric shock and suffocation, and the equipment includes facilities for pumping the stomach of a poison-victim.

some technicalities of composition and make-up in this booklet which brand it the Big Lie is.

First of all, in the foreword, it is stated:
"All the statements have been printed in the exact form in which they were written. Nothing has been added, nothing has been changed or deleted. The grammatical expressions and the spelling are in all cases those of the originals."
Bear that statement in mind—nothing added, nothing changed, the spelling as written by the American soldiers who purportedly wrote the "confessions."

Then in each "confession" the American prisoners spell the word "defendants," exactly as the red propagandist wrote it on the cover and the title page—"defenceless."

Would you say these soldiers, prisoners and corpses, would to a man spell the word exactly as the Communist author of the foreword spelled it, every man-jack of them following the American spelling with an "e"?

And here we find an American corporal spelling "jail" in good old English style "jail." This soldier, incidentally, had an excellent command of English and the intricacies of composition, if we are to believe what he wrote the piece. He refers to "sheer exhaustion," in his punctuation uses the colon effectively, puts quotes around "chose" and corrects the apostrophe to pluralize the abbreviation, "G.I.s." It's a wonder a guy with that command of the language didn't go farther than corporal. Still, he couldn't spell "defenceless" as Americans write it.

On page 32 another corporal tells about a mass slaughter of civilians by Americans. "We just left them lying there after we had shot them," he memorably writes. "Then, a page later somebody started and had him writing like a madman, telling about a sergeant shooting a Korean as he started to 'clamber up the tank' and leaving him lying there." And what touches in spelling he successfully negotiated without a bobble—"guerrillas," among others.

Another "confession" has the soldier describing a place in which he "has experienced" run "barracks" without periods in the right spots, but read his eloquent attack on the Wall Streeters, the capitalists, of old, and see how correctly he spells "barracks," "interpreter," "population" and other words which sometimes among the well-educated they see him using, right after that, the word, "holered."

Bobs up another "confession," that of a private who satiates, without a bobble words like "imperialism" and "collaboration," and adds to the bombardment with this: "The dead odor of human flesh laid heavy on the morning breeze."

The booklet uses pictures—horrendous pictures—but not one of these proves anything except that civilians have been killed in Korea, just as they have been killed wherever war has spread. If you believe what the caption-writer says, our boys killed these "defenceless" people, the old and the young, but the fury in those confessions is too obvious.

It may be that our government in permitting such not to reach the people thinks we should by this time be weary of any statement made by the organizers of the "Big Lie," but if strikes as they're forgetting the truth that a lie told often enough will find believers.

General doesn't know, then are expected to know? A compromise order was sought by which the claim could be passed around by and outside of the nation's spotlights. A future determination through pending litigation by Judge Stanton. This nation received no support from the majority.

Since a like expense item was in all of the audits, Judge Stanton used "Pass one" as a way out. We don't pass on this, we just let it go.

Judge Stanton then asked the court to instruct Francis Stanton, W. W. Barnett to write the 1938, any General about the benefits of such claims, said it an answer is received sent the court and received April 2 to continue consideration.

TEACHES MEN TO TEACH BOYS

The main objective of the Longsime Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, during 1953 will be to train boy leaders and unit leaders, according to R. F. Reed, Council president. ### Two from Floyd Board Attend Annual Meeting

LONDON, Ky., March 18.—Members of the Floyd County Board of Education who attended the convention of the Kentucky School Boards Association, held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, March 18, were Dr. J. H. Allen and John M. Stumbo.

While attending the meeting the 400 board members were assigned to small groups where they discussed their district plans for promoting a program of education in Kentucky.

A resolution passed unanimously at the 10th annual meeting of the association stated that the organization feels that Kentucky cannot fail to provide for her children the opportunity of an adequate program of public education.

Dealing with Section 18 of Kentucky's Constitution the resolution declared that "this section makes almost prohibitive in cost to adequately support the education opportunity for every child in the state under the present method of taxation of the per capita funds on a census basis."

No other light trucks have all this

You don't expect polo-pony agility from a truck in traffic — but the new GMC's have it. You'd like to have passenger-car pace and economy on the highway — and you'll get it from the 1953 GMC's.

For there are two tremendous advances that step the new GMC's far ahead of all previous truck performance:

One: Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive* — the fully automatic shift with 3 speeds for traffic, 4 for the open road — available on 19 models throughout the 1½, 2, 3, and 4-ton capacity range.

Two: a new line of engines of progressive design, with compression ratios of 7.5 to 1 and 8.0 to 1 — the highest of any gasoline truck engine ever built. Here's pile-driver power behind every piston stroke — flashing response and better mileage squeezed from regular fuel.

A number of chassis advances too, add to the extra-value features that make GMC's point for point, the biggest dollar's worth in the light-truck field as well as in the heavier lines.

We confidently tell you — these great new GMC's will do your job better, easier, and at the lowest overall cost. They have stamina beyond their size, because they're "built like the big ones" — the heavy-duty GMC's that lead the world in sales.

That's saying a lot. But just come in — and we'll prove it.

LEGENDS OF SWIFT'S SILVER SURVIVE FOR TWO CENTURIES

By HENRY P. SCALF

The legend of Jonathan Swift's activities in the Appalachian in the 1700s, it seems, will never die. Decades after decades, generation after generation, and now, near to century after century, these are old stories, about him and his area.

The latest, we are informed by The Lexington Valley Courier (West Liberty), is not out. But when given to the world by a prominent historian it will corroborate the surmise of Dr. Willard Rouse Jilison, the former Prestonsburg historian, that Swift was an agent for pirates upon the high seas and used the use of silver smelting in the Appalachian to cover up his activities. He it will be stated, took the golden look of the Spanish Main from ships at Alexandria into the western woods and smelted it into bars for importation into England.

It is possible the historian will come up with a confirmation of the surmise that Swift was an agent for pirates. There will be manuscripts, perhaps yellow with age, diaries and journals. There have been manuscripts before. The Alley manuscript for instance. It had the property to turn up in the hands of William Elsey Connelley's book-peddler to speak, when it was unearthed in Johnson county. It was the latest on Swift's adventures and Connelley gives it credence, at least, by inference.

To the sordid searcher for gold it offers lure. To the historian the proving or disproving, the establishment or the disputation of a legend it offers a challenge. To all people it offers something, but to everyone a date there has been nothing tangible except discredited or unverifiable manuscripts, and a new twist to an old legend.

A tale to live must be believed. To be believed it must offer an excuse for acceptance whether it be the nakedness of delineated evidence or the end of the rainbow where dreams come true. In this case, a heaped up cache of silver in heavy bars. As to the former excuse there is none. Of the latter the heart of a man is repulsed.

We believe in the legend of Jonathan Swift. Believe in it because it offers escape from the mundane, because of the challenge it flouts our spirits in the tedium of the day. Upon the legend a spirit rises. The historian who takes it away with indisputable evidence of Swift's non-existence or a carefully and acceptable documentation of his activities that leave nothing for our imaginations to tap to a disservice. There will be left no shavings, no avensons of escape, until in defense of the day's legend, the people create a new legend with a new rainbow, dipping into the earth.

BERGRADE — Yugoslavia's Brit sent a "thank-you" note to Britain's Queen Elizabeth expressing appreciation with the "great success" of his recent visit to London.

Child Care Load Heavy For Eastern Kentucky; Floyd-co. Not Studied

Needy children in 14 Eastern Kentucky counties received aid from the state to the extent of 35% of the total amount expended in Kentucky, was noted recently by statisticians. Floyd county was not considered when the list was compiled.

At the same time, needy aged in the same 14 counties received only 12 per cent of the funds distributed to people to all the 120 counties in the old-age assistance program.

The big reasons for the heavy payments to needy children in Eastern Kentucky were relatively more children and worse-than-average health of parents.

That is shown by a special study of the situation by the Department of Economic Security.

In the department's original summary comparing the county costs for the calendar year 1952 showed:

Aid to dependent children cost $120,796 in the 120 counties. But in 14 counties, it cost $3,804,818, or 35 per cent of the total.

Aid to the needy aged cost $22,888,929, or 13 per cent of the total. Ten of these counties constitute the major concentrated area of East Kentucky. The four exceptions are Breathitt, Elliott, Martin and Wayne.

There are six qualifying factors in aid for dependent children:

1. Death of one or both parents.
2. Mother unmarried.
3. Mother unmarried.
4. One or both parents not physically able to earn a living.
5. Desertion by one of both parents.
6. Absence of one or both parents in institutions, such as mental hospitals or prisons.

To ascertain the combination of factors that caused A.D.C. to exceed C.A.A. field workers in these 14 counties analyzed a 61 per cent sampling of their A.D.C. case load for 1952.

In 14 of 14 counties they found: Compensatively fewer parents are dead or confined in institutions.

The decisive factor, however, was found to be the bad health of parents. In the 14 counties, 47.1 per cent of A.D.C. cases are from this cause, while in the state at large it is 34.1 per cent.

While the average of desertions in 14 counties is below the 120-county average, the rate of desertions in four counties is higher than the state-wide average.

In contrast to 9.1 per cent in the state at large, the rate is 14.2 per cent in Letcher county, 12.5 per cent in Clay county, 11 per cent in Perry county, and 9.7 in Knott county.

Before paying out money in A.D.C. cases caused by desertion, the Department of Economic Security is required by law to report offenders to enforcement officers of the county involved. But the department is not required to appear in court on the prosecuting party.

The heavy concentration of children in this 14-county area is shown by the following comparison. In the state at large, the average case of dependent children consists of one adult and 2.5 children. In the 14 counties, the average case is one adult and 2.3 children.

In turn, the heavier case is reflected in average payments. In February, A.D.C. averaged $64 per case in the state at large, in the 14 counties, it averaged $67.50.

HEARING DISMISSED

The State Department of Motor Transportation dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence its own hearing into the question of whether it should prescribe uniform rates for the hauling of oil products within the state.

Representatives of a number of trucking companies supported the plea, while it was opposed generally by tobacco warehousemen, another segment of truck lines, and farm organizations which protested on the ground that the law exempts the hauling of agricultural products from state regulation.

HEALTH NOTES

By DR. MARVIN HANDELL

Heart Diseases

A diagnosis of heart trouble is frequently associated in people's minds with death. Heart disease, however, does not necessarily mean "death" or "disability." Thousands of people with damaged hearts are, with the guidance of their physicians, leading normal, useful lives.

There are many kinds of heart ailments, affecting infants and young people as well as older people. A few infants are born with congenital heart defects, but modern methods are now able to correct many of these conditions.

Rheumatic fever, mainly a disease of childhood and youth, leads to the development of heart disease, which frequently damages the heart. Other diseases which can damage young hearts are diphtheria, pneumonia, scarlet fever, and influenza. The child who gets any of these diseases needs prompt medical care during the acute stage.

Medical supervision during recuperation, and periodic check-ups afterwards to give him his best chance of warding off permanent heart trouble.

The two most common forms of heart ailment during middle and old age are hypertensive heart disease and coronary heart disease, a disease of the arteries which carry the blood to the heart muscle. In most cases, prompt medical care is necessary to bring the blood pressure back to a normal range and thus decrease the possibility of hypertensive heart disease.

Although it may occur earlier, coronary heart disease, a disease of the arteries which carry the blood to the heart muscle, is most common after 50. Most people who suffer from coronary heart disease can live long, useful lives if they carefully follow the doctor's directions. Among warnings which may mean heart trouble are shortness of breath, palpitation or irregular heart action, swelling of feet and ankles, and chronic fatigue. The person who suspects he has heart disease should see his doctor without delay. If the heart is sound, the doctor can reassure the patient. But if there is something wrong, it is best to have it discovered as soon as possible, for then a person is in a position to learn how to "live with" the injured heart and perhaps ward off sudden or untimely death.

STATE REGULATION APPLIES

The Court of Appeals held that city-owned utilities are exempt from regulation by the Public Service Commission, insofar as operations within the cities themselves are concerned, but are subject to state regulation on rates and services offered outside the cities. The decision was rendered in a case originating from Louisville involving water sales outside the city.

HEALTH FOR ALL

WHO NEEDS CHEST X-RAYS?

For centuries tuberculosis was known as the "white plague" or "consumption." It killed at will. And for those it struck there seemed to be little hope, and practically no help.

Today, more a layman about tuberculosis than ever before, possibly more than about any other infectious disease. Not only is the specific cause known, but the ways in which the bacilli pass from person to person, from the sick to the well, are known. The factors which lower the body's resistance to the bacilli are known. Prevention is possible. Diagnosis is possible at an early stage, when recovery is the rule. Cure is possible.

In spite of this increased knowledge, tuberculosis is still the No. 1 killer among infectious diseases. An estimated 40,000 Americans have active tuberculosis. Of these, there are 150,000 persons with active TB for whom health authorities have no records. Most of these persons do not know they have the disease, do not know they are spreading it to others. And in this country TB is spreading at the rate of 15,000 persons a year.

What can be done about it? The chest X-ray is an important part of the answer. For TB often strikes without obvious symptoms, and signs of obvious damage it has started in the lung will show up on the X-ray film. The chest X-ray is the first step toward early diagnosis. It can detect signs of the disease early, when it is easiest to cure. Of course, a diagnosis of tuberculosis is never made on evidence of a chest X-ray alone. When X-rays show suspicious shadows, the doctor makes additional tests to determine whether a person has tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis can strike anyone at any age, in any walk of life. It is not just a war-torn nation's obvious symptoms. Everyone has his best chance of fighting TB early when it is easiest to cure, by getting chest X-rays regularly, every year.

The mobile X-ray unit will visit this county under sponsorship of Floyd County's Club, next month. This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by the Floyd County Tuberculosis Association.

Cows and heifers kept for milk numbered 68,000 head the first of this year compared to 655,000 a year ago and a 10-year average of 640,000 head. The average value was estimated at $152, compared to $133 on January 1, 1932, and a 10-year average of $137.

If You Remember...

They lived in a little house on the head of the branch and bore no resemblance to the world when they were made about the infancy and the isolation of their home. One thing they did not like to hear. If you said it was a holiday, they disapproved. It was a branch that joined a larger stream to flow into the river. It was not a house. The cabin of logs that housed an ancestor had long since decayed and had been replaced by a "house" out of rough lumber.

The family was large and the eldest, as soon as he was old enough, ran away and joined the army. He came back from Korea in a flag-draped casket, covered with flowers and graced by a sergeant who was understanding and helpful. The mountain folk buried him near the house on the head of the branch. There was martial music, sudden volleys of guns and the last call of the bugle in the tight confines of the hills. Never before had the wooded slopes echoed to such a thing.

Heretofore the home had been a glamor bathing suit photo.

Lament for the Highlands

A FEW weeks ago, THE TIMES published a letter from an ex-patriated Floyd citizen, Mrs. Sylvia Ferrell, of Lorain, O., which attracted wide interest among Floyd citizens and a heavy response in the mails.

It is no wonder that the letter hit home. For Mrs. Ferrell wrote feelingly of a subject with which we of this section have a bitter acquaintance; of the necessity of leaving home to find employment in other states, of an exile imposed by economic conditions over which we have no control, and of the homesickness for which science has found no preventive or cure. We suspect that the writer of that letter herself is suffering from an acute case of nostalgia for Kentucky in the Springtime.

Out of the Great Depression came John Steinbeck's greatest novel, "The Grapes of Wrath"—a story of the Okies, poor, ignorant wanderers caught in the wilderness of circumstance, human being with no ambition but to keep body and soul together.

We are not Okies, we Kentuckians who migrate to Ohio, Michigan and other states, where employment may be found. We are not an ignorant, shiftless lot, although we are different from the natives of these states. But we are caught in an economic vise as cruel as any ever suffered, fictionally or otherwise.

Here we have a great coal field, one of the greatest in the country, we consider the greatest on earth. Our underground waters are suitable to industrial purposes. We have timber and natural gas, clay, even germanium-rich coal. Other resources, some of which are perhaps known to a few, have not been explored, much less tapped.

And yet we are caught in it as if we were far up a cul-de-sac, dead-ended, with only one way to travel—and that out.

One Floyd county village has 15 tenantless homes. Others are hanging on there, hoping for a break, dreading the break with home ties. This is only one example of the outward trek.

We of the Big Sandy region have long maintained that this section with all its potential would be developed industrially, and employment for its people found at home. The river, were made navigable, supplying a means of cheap transportation and an artery of traffic to complement the inadequate facilities now provided by a one railway and its highways.

But will the federal government recognize our needs and the strength this section has to add to the power the nation needs in the face of a concerted enemy? Or will it spend its millions on unemployment benefits and outright relief appropriations?

What of the human resources of this section? Shall it simply waste its youth for service in other states, and only those stay at home who have neither hope nor chance to improve their economic condition by leaving? Shall it become an economically independent class?

And what will it benefit the railway interests to hold this section in thrall, in long-term fashion, by defeating its efforts to gain water transportation if the region's industry dies and its people leave?

So runs the story. Truly a lament for the highlands.
