BLADES OF BLUEGRASS

By ORRINE JOHNSON

Lansing, Ky. — Another week has been set aside for recognition. But unlike many others, its purpose is not for the collection of money, worthy as many such purposes are.

Instead, National Home Demonstration Week, May 2 to 9, will direct attention to the development and achievement of more than 35 million men and women in the United States and its possessions.

Kentucky, about 22,500 rural women in 142 home-makers clubs are a part of the home demonstration program. Of that number, 21,000 are volunteers who lead, trained in the various phases of home-making by University of Kentucky home economics specialists or home demonstration agents.

In each county, the program is planned by home-makers to meet their needs and interests. Through neighbor to neighbor influence and meetings, more than 20,000 changes in home-making practices took place in the state last year.

The development of leadership among rural women is one of the outstanding accomplishments of home demonstration work, said Miss Mary E. Weldon, state leader.

"It carries over into all walks of life, making the rural homemaker a person with greater power, self confidence and ability to participate in all community affairs. At the same time, it gives her a feeling of the joy of service and the satisfaction of playing part in a worthwhile program."

The first home demonstration in the United States was appointed in 1914, Kentucky by 1914, Kentucky had 19 home-makers in Christian: Dayton, Harlan, Henderson, Laurel, Logan, Madison, Mercer, Muhlenberg, Rockcastle and Shelby counties. Five home-makers were working during the summer of 1914. Now there are 142 home-makers and assistants in 142 counties of the state.

Last year, 1,823 home-makers club members served as leaders of 4,816 clubs and otherwise helped rural home people in different phases of their program.

The home demonstration program is another service made available to the people of Kentucky through the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Former Floyd Republican Seeks Witnesses to Show He Was Never a Democrat

Cline Burdett, formerly of this county, but now in Pike, and who has engaged in an intra-party struggle with factions in the Republican party in that county, is the subject of controversy again among his fellow Republicans. Burdett is a candidate for re-nomination from District Number 5, which covers upper John Creek. The district is heavily Republican. What more serious charges to launch against a man in such a district than that he is a Democrat? His opponents did just that.

Burdett, in order to defend himself, came to Floyd county this week seeking character witnesses to his party regularly. The state-wide of Floyd Republicans were gathered and printed as a handbill in an effort to disprove the charges.

Health Is Necessary to the Pursuit of Learning

FLOYD county should know and let sink deep into the public consciousness these facts which were published in a news-story in The Times last week:

Less than one-fourth of the schools in this county have a safe water supply.

Sewage and waste disposal systems in more than half the schools are unsafe.

Even toilet facilities are unsatisfactory in almost half the schools, and only 11% of them have adequate hand-washing facilities.

That is a part of the picture drawn from a study of all the consolidated schools and only 23 of the approximately 100 rural schools. What then must the overall picture be when it is this dark with the better schools included in the study and the more isolated schools yet to be inspected!

The Times hails the refreshing candor with which the Superintendent of Schools and the County Board of Education have met the situation, volunteering this information for the benefit of Floyd county parents and their children. They could have ignored the facts or played the cards close, concealing the facts from those most vitally affected, but they chose to let the truth be known.

And the truth, as is often the case, is unpleasant. Now we know that Floyd county children are forced by law to attend schools where drinking water is unsafe, where conditions are unsanitary, where even facilities for keeping the hands clean are lacking—where diseases may breed, unsuspected, and spread unhindered.

It should be emphasized here that these conditions are not new and that they are no worse than they have been over many years. But the fact remains unchanged: such conditions should not be permitted to exist. But for the efficient work of the Floyd County Health Department in its immunization program, what epidemics of typhoid might not rise from these school sources of water supply.

"We drill wells," one school leader said, explaining the difficulties under which authorities work, "and, isolated and unwatched as they are, they're soon contaminated—sticks and refuse thrown into them."

What is the remedy? There is no pat answer, but consolidation of schools is one solution. Larger schools, more qualified teachers, trained caretakers of school properties, schools located where they can and will be protected, with the bigger school plant justifying modern facilities—these will help greatly.

This matter of consolidation, we realize, has its political implications, since each community is sensitive about its own school. There are those who insist the small school should remain as a unit in the democratic scheme, but theory must be replaced by a look squarely into the face of the realities. It must be remembered that 38 of the rural schools cannot be visited at all seasons. Only 42 of them are on all-weather roads. Then it is small wonder that a large percentage of these isolated schools do not attract qualified teachers. The more highly trained woman or man naturally seeks and finds work in larger or more favorably located schools.

This is not to say there are not good teachers in many rural schools. There are men and women who have enough of the missionary spirit left to send them to the isolated spots to bear the lamp of knowledge where it is most needed, but there are not enough of them.

Still, for all the need, consolidation, under existing conditions, cannot be effected soon. Before schools can be eliminated and their pupils transported to larger centers there must be roads. Thirty-eight of the rural schools of this county, a recent report says, cannot be visited in all weathers. About 60 rural schools are not located on all-weather roads.

So there is Project No. 1—the job of getting all-weather roads into all parts of the county. Good roads are necessary before consolidation can be undertaken, and after such roads open up all sections, notices of the need for consolidation might decrease. So roads into such communities should have top priority.

Whatever the work to be done, whatever the steps as necessary, nothing of great effect will be done until the people themselves get in the frame of mind that demands this: that every child have an opportunity to work and learn under the best possible conditions and to do so in surroundings which offer no threat to the health or the life of the child.

They Gain—We Lose

BETWEEN April, 1950 and September of last year, 54,000 new jobs were distributed in Kentucky. Note that we say "in," not "over," Kentucky. For none of these new jobs went to any southeastern Kentucky county, and so the distribution was in the northern and western parts of the Commonwealth.

The cruel fact is, while more fortunate sections of Kentucky were adding heavily to their employment rolls, Floyd and the other counties of this part of the state were losing ground. Plenty of ground.

Padeuch and Louisville, Elizabethtown, C. I. A. again, Hopkinsville and Owensboro were centers of big employment gains over this 18-month period. Meanwhile the Prestonsburg area composed of Floyd, Magoffin and Martin counties had an employment drop of 11.1 per cent, or 1,030 wage-earners. Pike county had a loss of 14.4 per cent.

And still the C. & O. railroad, pointing with pride to the millions it has spent in what it calls the development of this section, opposes the people in their effort to revitalize the Big Sandy valley through canalization of its waterway, the Big Sandy river!

If the railroad is truly interested in development of the section, why does it fight development so bitterly?

By PAUL BRYANT
UK Football Coach

'Bear' Facts—

Lexington, Ky.—Athletes like so many phases of our everyday lives, has its share and ailing to football. One such ailing, but necessarily exclusive to sports, came to mind as we opened spring football practice at the University of Kentucky.

Looking over the statistics and operations under the new limited participation rule for the first time I heartily recalled a saying to the effect that "this impurities are having ones."

It got the impression that our players are going to have to improve tremendously to do an adequate job of winning football games this fall. Needless to say, we hope that the saying does not hold true. We hope that the impression was given only because of the boys' lack of familiarity of either the offense or defense phase of their position.

At any rate, our first impression was that Kentucky's success in 1953 depends to a large extent on the preferable solution to a number of big "ifs" currently plaguing the club. If senior linebacker Tommy Adkins, Gordin, can operate effectively as offensive center... if Bill Simpkins, our regular offensive center last year, will be able to go on defense... if Ray Correll, a real stand-out guard from Somerset, will be equally efficient when playing defensive guard... if sophomore Jerry Minnie, who succeeded as an offensive tackle...

If any one of these prospects—Dick Shatto, Paduchak, Big Hardy, or Dick Rushing—will come through to give us adequate quarterbacking, we will have a good chance to win. Note that we say "in," not "over," Kentucky. For none of these new jobs went to any southeastern Kentucky county, and so the distribution was in the northern and western parts of the Commonwealth.

The cruel fact is, while more fortunate sections of Kentucky were adding heavily to their employment rolls, Floyd and the other counties of this part of the state were losing ground. Plenty of ground.

SPORTS AFIELD

For those of you planning summer camping trips here are a few suggestions on food by Colonel Townsend Whelan, noted camping authority.

Meats—Fresh meats will keep several days without refrigeration if hung out at night where the cool air will chill it. Bacon, ham, dried beef will keep indefinitely without ice if you keep them wrapped in wax paper away from flies and bugs. There are several solutions of canned meat and fish on all grocery shelves everywhere. Fresh eggs will keep for weeks if each egg is dipped quickly in melted paraffin, or even wiped with a little lard and then wrapped in newspaper to keep them from breaking. Egg powder used alone is as satisfactory as the fresh article, but is a time when used in breads, puddings, or scrambled with cream dried beef.

Vegetables—By all means take all the fresh potatoes and onions you wish in an old gunny sack. Lettuce, cabbage, celery, radishes, etc., will keep fresh for weeks wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil and then in brown paper. Canned corn and tomatoes go fine in camp. A can of cold tomatoes make a fine drink in hot weather. Personally, I draw the line at dehydrated vegetables, which cannot compare with the fresh article if it is so easy to take.

Fruits—Fresh oranges, bananas, lemons and apples are always desirable. The first two will keep indefinitely for a couple of weeks and the last two almost indefinitely. Then there are all the dried fruits—apples, prunes, peaches and berries which need only to be stewed and sweetened with sugar.

Breads and Cereals—With a bag of flour and a can of baking powder you can always have fresh bread and biscuits. Self-rising panofloaf flour is convenient. Many bread and biscuit mixes will be improved with the addition of powdered milk, lard or butter for shortening, and corn meal. Don't hesitate to take along baker's yeast which will keep perfectly the first week. Cereals are quicker and easier to prepare than bread and very nutritious substitutes for it—rolled oats, corn meal, hominy grits, etc.

Condiments and Seasonings—Butter keeps all right for weeks if kept reasonably cool, or canned butter is just as good and keeps indefinitely. Salt and pepper, of course, and an ample amount if you are going to use salt to preserve skin or the pepper to keep flies from meats. Most campers use the frypan so much that a large can of lard or vegetable shortening is needed. Curry powder is fine for seasoning meat, and rice, if used sparingly, adds a lot of convenience. Sweet chocolate comes in fine for lunches.

HEALTH NOTES

By DR. MARVIN RANDSELL

SCHOOL IS OUT
Children all over the country have put away their school books, or are preparing to do so, to enjoy the summer vacation.

We adults see school days as necessary to the mental and educational growth of the child. Similarly, we can look on his vacation without loss in his healthy physical growth. Immediate benefits can be seen the first few days of a child's home-leisure.

In some cases, lagging appetites return and some children begin to sleep better because increased fresh air and exercise bring on a healthy change at the end of the day.

Although school days mean a certain amount of confinement and deprivation of outdoor exercise, they do tend to foster regular habits of eating, sleeping, and cleanliness among children. For example, most parents get their children to bed on time because they have to get up early or school. Children generally eat a better breakfast during the school year and many schools provide pupils with a nutritious, well-balanced lunch. There is less opportunity, too, during school days for children to nibble at sweets and spoil their appetites for good food at the main meals.

Just enough of the attention given to the child's health during school weeks should carry over into the summer vacation to assure that he returns to school happy and healthy in August or September.

This certainly does not mean that a child should be nagged about his health after an "earned" vacation following nine months of study and school routine. Nor does it mean that a few late nights or extra meals during the day will do harm.

But it does mean that parents should realize the understandable tendency to allow things to "slide" during the summer months and help make the child's summer vacation the relaxing, refreshing, and healthful experience it is meant to be.

APPOINTMENT MADE

Edison Foreman Watson Fowler is the president of the Edison Society in the May Project. Dr. Thomas A. Edison wrote in his notebook:

I am much interested in atomic energy. The force residing in such power is gigantic and limitless. It may come some day. As a nation we are already experimenting along the lines of harnessing atomic information in my laboratory here. The energy could be turned into electricity, continued Edison, and projected not only across the Atlantic, but from any part of the world to any other part. Neither the Atlantic nor anything could interfere as an obstacle.

LEGION PLANS 1953 BOYS STATE SESSION

By W. O. CARVER, JR.

Millersburg, Ky., May 4 — The 1953 session of the Boys State, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of the American Legion, will be conducted here at the Millersburg Military Institute, June 18 through 24.

An Americanism project of the Legion, the program will bring together high school boys from throughout Kentucky to study the "values, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship." An enrollment of more than 250 is expected.

President Paul L. Garfield, of Western State College, Bowling Green, again will direct the program. It is a position he has held continuously since the first Kentucky session of the youth assembly was held on Western College campus in 1940.

Other officers of the corporation include Harry H. Hambridge, Jr., of Louisville, Kentucky, Commander of the Legion; president, Thomas H. Hayden, department adjutant of the Legion, secretary-treasurer, superintendent, O. A. Adams, of Lexington, city schools, dean of councilors, and James H. Warren, Fulton; Honor Wrangler, Jr., Prestonsburg and Louis: Jacob H. Swapp, Newport; William M. Duffy, Louisville, and Thomas K. Shuff, Georgetown, directors.

At the state level, qualified junior high school pupils learn the responsibilities and duties of local, county and state officials. They are organized into two "political" parties. They nominate, elect officers, organize their government and perform its functions. Thus, the Legion seeks to develop more intelligent, more responsible and more capable leaders to assure the future of the American government, yet of life.

The individual boys are sponsored by Legion posts and their local groups and organizations, among them churches. The cost to the sponsor is $25 plus traveling expenses to and from the assembly place. Detailed information can be obtained from any Legion post office or by writing Forrest T. Newcom, executive officer of Bluegrass Boys State War Memorial Auditorium, Louisville.

To be eligible for enrollment a boy must have completed the ninth grade but must have at least one more month of high school study. The latter requirement safeguards benefits of the program since the boy will return to his school to put on to others the instruction he receives. However boys not in school but who meet other requirements for enrollment will be accepted.

GARDEN NOTES

By O. E. BOGGS,
County Agent

TOMATOES

There are two main reasons why Floyd county gardeners do not produce a bumper crop of tomatoes if the growing season is favorable. The first one is a disease known as wilt. This disease is a soil borne disease and the only way to control it is by using a will resistant variety such as: BREAK O' DAY, FISHARD, Rutgers or Marglobe.

The second is that very destructive disease known as blight. This disease is caused by five different kinds of fungi and all tomato plants are susceptible to blight. It can be controlled only by following a strict spray schedule beginning when the plants are first set in the garden.

The materials to use are: Manure. This material gives best control for both early and late blight. Other materials are: Copper A, C, O-C-S, Basic Copper Sulfate, and 2-78. If basic Copper Sulfate is used be sure and include a stickler material as recommended on the package.

To obtain good results ten or more applications should be applied. The first when tomatoes are set out and then one ever 7-10 days.

Wet sprays are especially recommended because by using a wet spray it is easier to cover the entire plant thus leaving no part of the plant untreated where spores might become attached. By using a wet spray less material is needed.

FORM DEWEY PARK GROUP

Newman Named Head
Of Ass'n; Meeting
Held Here, Apr. 30

Citizens representing Floyd John, Pike and Martin counties organized the Dewey Lake Park Association at a meeting held last Thursday at the Center Grill here. J. C. Newman, of Paintsville, was elected president of the Association, and County Attorney W. W. Burchett, of Prestonsburg, was named secretary-treasurer. Directors elected are Newman, representing John county; Burchett, this county; B. P. Bogardus, Pike county; Frank Crum, Martin county; R. W. May, Boone county; and Bill Johnson, Paintsville, directors-at-large.

The organization was suggested at a conference here in March between Conservation Commissioners Henry Ward, representatives of the U. S. Corps of Engineers and civil leaders. Mr. Ward suggested such a group as a step toward acquiring a state park at the lake.

A. Joe Asher, Jenkins, executive director of the Eastern Kentucky Industrial Foundation, acted as temporary chairman at last Thursday's meeting held. The organization's meeting was called by the Foundation.

An unexpected visitor at the meeting was Hugh Collett, Louisville, representing the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce. He discussed with the group the coming Governor's Tour which will include a visit to Dewey Lake.

Mr. Newman was chosen president of the Association. County Attorney Burchett told the members that here Thursday evening he had initiated the Dewey Lake park movement, and because his leadership gives the organization an area rather than a one-county complexion.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

"Flour by the Barrel"

In all the years that I have written this column I have often mentioned things that added distinction to the people of Kentucky, that made them appear as Somebody, spelled with a capital S. For some strange reason, however, I have failed to mention one of the best signs of being up in the world, that is, being flour by the barrel. Maybe my saying "up in the world" is a bit too strong, for after all, being flour by the barrel was a mark of plain decency, not necessarily of having more than the average man. It was money or of being especially socially inclined. People who bought flour in smaller amounts just did not rate, except among the very poor and insignificant. One of my best friends tells me that he and his family, after his father died, struggled every year to buy a barrel of flour, to keep the neighbors from thinking that there was no money to support the family.

And, he added, there was never a time when there was not a barrel of flour in his house, here times or not. An elderly gentleman in another state once told me that two eminent manufacturers of his home town were once so poor that they had to buy a 28-pound sack of flour by the barrel. When I knew the men in question they practically owned the town, their sons and daughters were college males, and wherever people used certain kinds of manufactured goods, the name of the two men was prominent. Their sons had ever entered politics, but would not have made a great appeal to the Kentucky voters. "Vote for Mr. Martin," said the gentleman, "for the son of the man who could not buy a barrel of flour until he was in the twenties."

Probably nothing amuses the average one so much as a faded barrel, a thing once expensive that now seems unnecessary. How many times I smile I could provoke on the faces of my students if I could tell how very important a rubber-tired bus was to be. And I matched pair of horses to pull the surrey—is there any word that could give the honor attached to "these belongings" "Vanitas vanitatis," says the Frencher, "nil in castrum."

A few days ago I sat down to a meal that reminded me of flour-by-the-barrel days. The number of things to eat, the invitation to eat, all you could hold, the constant memories of Friday days almost overwhelmed me. Was I actually in 1902 or away back in 1892 when flour was plentiful and other things to make? All I asked was for someone to say, "Just take what you help yourself to. That would have done his trick, all the intervening years would have vanished even more rapidly than they already have." That most reminded me of the days when families were still unknown, when vitamins were still unknown, when disease especially disease caused by overeating was a mysterious thing, not connected with stuffing and lack of exercise.

In the old days there were two barrels in just about every kitchen: one for the flour, the sign of decency, one for meat, the sign of plain decency to relieve hunger. For dinner and supper combined was a standard ration, but all self-respecting people had but biscuits for breakfast. One of my best friends says that she believes that but late for breakfast were foreordained and predestined, that the ancient prophets and saints ate them. Anyway, the hot biscuit became a sign of being Somebody, and biscuits require flour and lots of it, as biscuits have a way of satisfying appetites and arousing more at the same time. A few words said in Kentucky would count the biscuits on a table and sometimes refer to your gastroenteric tests days or years later. All the best people regarded this act as downright treacherous as well as being bad manners. As if a fellow would count the breaths of every air that he would breathe or the approving nods that he would give to an apt story-teller or a paragon who needed approval! And now a student wants to know what a flour barrel is and has never heard of one. Before long someone may ask what flour is, for it is barely a word that only a baker would know that.

Howard, Ky., was mined by Kentucky who had moved under Oliver Hazard Perry in the Battle of Lake Erie during the War of 1812.

EX-POW SAYS HARPER HELD

Mrs. Goldie Kendrick, Glo Woman, Is Aunt Of Red's Prisoner

House and imprisoned by years of work to the mine, the miner's brother, who Mayor Clark turned the human element into the hearing. His talk drew the praise of Senator and Mr. Music and one Senator volunteered to turn a sphere that he would do it all he could for Big Sandy.

Harry LaVern, the Pointville coal operator, said that he and in an effective talk had admitted he formerly had opposed cancellation but was now a convert to the cause. He followed up with concrete reasons for making the change.

"I thank God," said the Rev. Elump, "that Harry LaVern has been converted."

The statement made by an attorney representing rail interests claiming that water would have to be pumped from the Ohio river to Pointville City—in the Big Sandy watershed to maintain a proper pool stage if the river were canalized—under which the voters, who did not vote, according to Mayor Clark.

The Big Sandy delegation was further honored by the reception given them and their project at the meeting of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce which was in Washington for the U. S. Chamber convention. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and Senator Clements were among the speakers, and Big Sandy was the name heard most frequently during the dinner. Music and Clark said.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED

Albert Einstein was so slow to learn to talk that his parents thought he was abnormal, writes Joseph Phillips in the May Reader's Digest. He was an indifferent pupil in school and was considered "backward" by his teachers. He failed the entrance examination at the polytechnic college in Zurich. At the age of 20 he evolved the theory of relativity, which revolutionized the conception of the universe and was the theoretical basis for the atomic bomb.

News brought out of North Korea by a Virginian soldier, repatriated in the recent exchange of prisoners, last week gave Mrs. Goldie Kendrick, of Ohio, this county, the first word she had had from her nephew, Fred Harper, since last July.

Harper is a prisoner and he was one of 81 names of Americans reported by the Virginian as being held by the Reds.

One report given by a repatriated prisoner was that some American soldiers believed dead are prisoners, held by the Reds and their names unreported.

"I sure am glad to hear about him," said Mrs. Kendrick.

Harper, a 27-year-old private was left an orphan at 10 and was reared by his grandmother, Mrs. Omie Harper of Henry Clay, Pike county, new died.

He has an older brother, James Harper, said Mrs. Kendrick, "somewhere in Maryland."

Before enlisting in the army in April, 1949, Harper worked on a bakery truck route, but he was unemployed at the time he entered service.

Denver Caudill, a bakery official, described Harper as "a very likable boy." He said: "Fred called me from Texas about three years ago to tell me he was shipping out for Korea and wouldn't be back. I told him not to talk that way."

Harper, Caudill said, was turned down for military service during World War II when he failed a physical examination.

The young soldier was captured by the Chinese Communists December 1, 1950.

During the early settlement of Kentucky, the present city of Paducah, the name was Paducah.

HEALTH NOTES

By DR. MARVIN SPURLOCK

Twins often drop up with spring and particularly in rural areas. It's something to think about, since the preliminary vital statistics report of the Kentucky State Department of Health for 1949 shows seven deaths from tetanus.

There is a direct relationship between tetanus and moisture-soaked soil. The tetanus bacilli are widely distributed in the soil and are highly resistant. They cannot, however, grow in sunlight or with oxygen. Any wound is potentially dangerous but a deep wound is particularly dangerous for it is an ideal spot for the bacilli to produce powerful toxins (poison). Tetanus germs are active and lively and can be deadly to the individual. The toxin reaches the nerve cells, causing spasms and "lock-jaw."

There are three main precautions:

1. Practice safety. Watch for broken glass, bones of knives or sharp files that curiously cause stab wounds. Take care around barns or plowed fields, and if your youngsters must go barefoot, make sure they wear straw slippers.

2. Parents should take their children for triple antigen "shots"—that is, immunization for whooping cough, diphtheria and tetanus—at three months with booster shots at one year, three years and school age.

3. Tetanus antitoxin provides defenses to fight the poisons and should be given immediately after a wound. Tetanus develops shortly after infection is more severe and the anti-toxin lessens the time between infection and illness.

Eighth Grade Tests Being Held with New Exam Method Employed

Eight grade tests in the county consolidated schools will be given under a new set-up this year, according to Owen Martin and Otto D. Spurlock, of the county superintendent's office, who are in charge of the tests. The new arrangements are designed to administer more efficiently the test work and to insure a proper evaluation of the applicant's work in the eighth grade.

Six-hundred-fifty pupils will take the tests. Each consolidated school will hold its own examination. Friday, beginning at the final hour for opening school, four "four" tests will be required for the standardized test. In addition to the regular tests, additional questions on study skills will be asked. These will be on ability to use the dictionary and encyclopedia, knowledge of electrical marks and ability to read maps and charts.

The determining factors in passing the tests will be age, physical maturity, attendance and progress made in the eighth grade. The actual score made will not be the determining factor. It was emphasized by Spurlock.

No pupil will be allowed to take the test who has not had a full year's work in the seventh grade. Promotion will be unqualified, or conditional with a letter signed by the principal, teacher and the county superintendent. Pupils retained will be notified by a letter with the same joint signatures.

Spurlock and Martin advise that the standardized test will have only a number to identify it. The eighth grade applicant will sign another blank, giving his name and the number on his test form. Pupils doing the grade work will not have knowledge of the pupils' names.

Martin and Spurlock will visit four schools to school during the test work to see that the work is uniform and to offer any assistance that may be needed. It was said.

THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

Since announcing for the office in print the large number of people to whom I am related in this Democratic ticket some few weeks county and for the information of the voters I should like to state practically every precinct in the county. From what the voters have told me, I feel more and more confident that I can win this race.

Already my opposition has, by telling people that I am not an independent candidate but am here to run in this race by particular persons or special interest groups. The determining factors in passing the tests will be age, physical maturity, attendance and progress made in the eighth grade. The actual score made will not be the determining factor. It was emphasized by Spurlock.

No pupil will be allowed to take the test who has not had a full year's work in the seventh grade. Promotion will be unqualified, or conditional with a letter signed by the principal, teacher and the county superintendent. Pupils retained will be notified by a letter with the same joint signatures.

JURY INDICTS 36 UNION MEN

Federal Jury Names Roney in Conspiracy; $1,000 Bonds Fixed

A special federal grand jury in Lexington, Ind., Friday indicted 36 United Mine Workers' representatives—among them, Tom Roney, Pikeville UMW international board member—for conspiracy, charging they attempted to force Clay and Leslie county miners to join the union. The indictment ended the fight that the miners had a right under the Constitution to decline union membership.

Roney testified before the 18-man panel for a total of 2 hours and 6 minutes on March 15—the day the special jury went into session.

District Judge H. C. Churchford set bond at $1,000 each for the indicted. Besides Roney, they included C. C. Conley, Leitcher county; T. N. Y. Conley, Leitcher county; Farmer Naper, Leslie county; Edgar Reynolds, Perry county; Charles Vermillion, and Charlie Baker, each identified as special organizers in the union's District 36; Farmer Allen, Lawrence Asher, Sherman Boy, G. B. Rooker, Frank Culet, Ted Clark, Marcus Clouse, Matt Corral, Henry Couch, Merida Couch, George Dekey Davidson, Johnny Fields, Kelly Henley, Sam Hoskins, R. L. Lewis, Schmale Mitchell, Robert Newhouse, William S. Perkins, Charles Rice, Tommy Sizemore, Ed Sizemore, Louis Sizemore, Pearl Sizemore, Charley Stewart, Mildard L. Wagers, and Solie Smith.

The jury, which heard 157 witnesses in its four-week inquiry directed by the Department of Justice, was divided.

Clay and Leslie counties form the last holdout against unionization in the vast Eastern Kentucky coal field.

Violence frequently has marked the UMW, to organize the two counties. There have been reports of shootings, dynamiting, beatings and arrests.

Several union organizers and members have been wounded in ambush shootings.

All of the persons indicted represented the union in one capacity or another. No indictments were returned against coal-mine operators or anyone connected with a mine "simply because there was no direct evidence to support an indictment of anyone on that side of the fence in this case."

Specifically, the jury charged those indicted with responsibility for interfering with the civil rights of seven miners in an incident that occurred February 21, 1952, on KY 6 near the New Hyden mine in Leslie county.

The single indictment naming the 36 defendants stated that they "assembled" on the highway on that date and attempted to force the seven miners to join the union, all for the purpose of interfering with these citizens in the free exercise of their rights and privileges under the Constitution.

The miners were identified as Mason Bailey and Elmer Smith, employees of the New Hyden Coal Company; Ralph Lee Gregory, Eli Hicks, and Lester Gibson, employees of the Citation Coal Company; Ray Gregory and Clifford Jones, of the Thomas Coal Company, and others "unknown to the jury."

In a prepared report accompanying the indictments, the jury recommended that:

1. The General Assembly, at its next session, make available additional funds to the Kentucky State Police on a permanent annual basis to be used to increase appreciably the number of troopers that can be used to help keep the peace within the Commonwealth.

WOMAN'S CLUB IN MEETING

The Lockett-Garrett Woman's Club met in the home of Mrs. Edna Dale, Thursday, April 23, for the program meeting. Mrs. N. D. Howard, vice-president, was in charge.

Mrs. J. B. Price of the Youth Conservation committee, reported that the club-sponsored "Career Night" was a tremendous success. It was expected that he made an aerial trip to be held in the fall, to which all high school students of Garrett and Wayland would be invited.

Mrs. P. E. Harman will serve as a delegate to the state convention of the K.P.W.C. in Louisville, May 12-15.

Mrs. Howard announced that Dr. Children of the University of Kentucky will be here May 22 to address an open meeting on the results of his recent survey of Wayland. All organizations will be invited to attend.

The Wayland Junior Women's Club extended to the senior club an invitation to attend a lecture and film on cancer, May 4, at the Wayland Methodist Church.

Mrs. J. C. Wells reported that Mrs. Clara Shaw will install officers for the new club year at her home on Bull Hill, May 16, at 10:00 a.m.

It was unanimously decided to write Mrs. Jack Williams, governor of the 7th District, urging that all clubs of her district give Pikeville college their moral support in the attempt under way to establish a four-year college at Pikeville. The Lockett-Garrett Woman's Club seems to assume the initiative in getting this movement under way.

What we should know about cancer was discussed at some length by Mrs. Thomas Hatcher, program leader. Numerous articles on cancer in various current magazines were cited as important reading matter for all. "Cancer Facts," contributed by Jan Fraley, an eighth grade pupil at Wayland, were read and commended upon.

"Cancer and the Sexes," an article prepared by the American Cancer Society, states that more men than women are dying of cancer. In conclusion, Mrs. Hatcher listed the "three precision weapons, potential for preventing cancer's demise, in Breast-Self-Examination, Vaginal Smear Technique and X-ray screenings for lung cancer."

A dessert course was served to twelve members, two guests, Mrs. James Maynard Pully and Carlos Kinney, by Mrs. Dale and her co-hostess Mrs. Joan Peck.

BIBLE QUIZ

By A. F. BARKER
600 Euclid Ave.,Bristol, Va.-Tenn.

When the early settlers of our country established schools they laid the foundations with the open Bible and the church book.

The reason why the Bible is true is that it is a book of human experiences. The good and the bad have been recorded just like it happened. Therefore not one word can be disproved.

Unfortunately was the day and unfortunate was this generation of young people when the Bible, the greatest textbook on earth, was taken out of the public schools and relegated with the books of antiquity. It should not have been done. When Sir Walter Scott, the great poet and writer, was on his death bed, he said "Bring me the book." They said "What book?" He said "There is only one book, and that is the Bible."

Now it is greatly feared that this generation is getting a knowledge of the Bible, as evidenced by a great many educators in our country. Therefore, to test the knowledge of students in many of the schools, especially in our Southland, many carefully selected list of Bible questions have been placed in the hands of students. The tabulation of results points to a very great deficiency in Bible knowledge.

Therefore, some very simple questions are here given, hoping such list will inspire interest. It is such of service to our readers. I am sure many other such questions may be proposed to the readers of this newspaper.

Test your knowledge of the Bible by answering without help the following questions:

18. Who killed Goliath?
19. Who built an ark when warned of the flood?
20. Who built the temple in Jerusalem?
21. Name a prophet who foretold the birth of Christ.
22. Which prophet proved that Babel was not the true God?
23. Who was betrayed by Judas?
24. How did Absalom die?
25. Where were the twelve tribes in Israel?
26. Who was the brother of Esau?

John George Horns, Pike county 4-H club boy, sold two-pound frying chickens at the age of seven weeks. Use of the infra-red heat-bulb method of brooding helped him get rapid growth and feathering. He told UK County Agent Harold G. Dowsy. Two hundred birds brought more than $250 and returned a substantial profit. Dowsy said.

WHY I SEEK THE OFFICE OF COUNTY ATTORNEY

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY
INTERESTED IN GOOD GOVERNMENT.

When I decided to run for County Attorney I did so with a determination to render all the assistance I could in bringing about clean elections and good government. I had two main reasons for making my decision. FIRST: To bring about good government by honestly and efficiently performing the duties of the County Attorney's office for the next four years, and SECONDLY: To be able to properly support my wife and two small boys, and I am frank to admit the County Attorney's salary was an inducement in making this decision, and when I refer to the salary I MEAN THE LEGITIMATE SALARY ONLY.

I am determined to make an honest, clean and upright campaign, without stealing or buying a single vote in any way corrupting the election and I am confident that I am all other candidates, to do like-wise. I am convinced that the people are tired of CHICKENHEAD elections and that the time has come when an honest campaign can be successful in our county. It has been the custom in the past for some candidates to run on a platform of "GIVE US THE COUNTY" and to buy votes and to buy the will of the people. When such a candidate begins to look for votes, he begins to look for votes. I am willing to give the money he spent in corrupting the election without regard to his own salary. This is the best of all elections, and I am confident that it should be ABOLISHED by the people. I am a candidate who seeks to win by such methods.

I pledge you now that in my campaign there will be no such tactics resorted to, neither will I, after I am elected, accept one penny to the performance of my duties. If you want this kind of County Attorney, one who is completely honest, then you should actively support me with your vote and influence.

I am 25 years of age, born and raised in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and am one of five sons and one daughter of Joe P. Tackett and his wife, Hazel Wallen Tackett. I received my grade and high school training in Prestonsburg. I entered Georgetown College but World War I came upon us and I withdrew from college after one semester and worked in the machine shop at Wheelwright, Kentucky until I, together with three brothers, entered the military service. I served for nearly two years, and I realize that I have no cause to regret your support of me in this campaign.

Yours for HONEST ELECTIONS

EDMOND HERSHELL TACKETT

If You Remember...

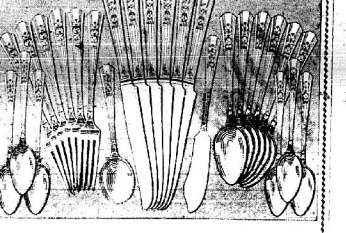

"They were the sons and daughters of a settler who came to an untimely end and whose estate was a large estate of land, mineral and timber. They lived out off from the railroad, some in modern stone life was full of work. They were almost non-existent. Churches were the timbered signs of the hills where the dead were buried. The events of life were turned into a dream. They were to be remembered, knowing only these things. Their names are the names of the hills. One book in the house, a small one, a book of names and dates.

The parents died and the sons lived on for years, some by agriculture, some by commerce. The daughters married and went away. Decades passed, isolation remained and they grew old and gray. A son of the hills was born, a son who survived by children of his own. They were grown and married. Sam rode out of the hills on a mule to the funeral of his sister. When the last rites were over, he discussed the purchase of the land. He said to his sons and daughters, Sam wanted the land for his son Tom. He said he was willing to offer a certain sum. The nephews and nieces demurred and to close the trade, for he would not. When the last rites were over, Sam agreed to pay much more than Tom had stipulated to be a fair price. He shook hands and rode away.

FOR COUNTY CLERK

I, Hazel Demmon George, want to be your County Clerk. Most of you Floyd citizens know me well, since I was born at Dowsle and lived there until I began my teaching career. For the past 15 years I have been a teacher at East Leane.
Three years ago, I decided I would run for the office this time, but later gave up the idea, thinking
I would go my husband's way and be stationed in Florida with the navy since then he has been sent to Hawaii and it seems impossible for the children and me to go to live with him now. Therefore my thoughts again turn to the office of Clerk.
I have my A.B. college degree and sincerely believe I can take care of the office effectively. I wish to serve you parents as I have served your boys and girls.
If, for some reason, I cannot see each of you personally, your support will be greatly appreciated.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

This is to announce my candidacy
on the Democratic ticket for County Clerk of Floyd county, and as I have worked hard to do a good job for the people. None of us should get in everything we attempt to do, there are some who do not make mistakes along the way. But I submit in all earnestness that I have succeeded in doing many needed things for our county, such as the improvement of roads, the paying off of much of the outstanding debt and reaching out to the ordinary citizen who needs help, and I also say that whatever mistakes I may have made, they have been errors of judgment, and not mistakes prompted by any intention at any time to do wrong.

Later, I will point out in detail
the work I have done since the things achieved. My record will be open to you.
Your support will be deeply appreciated.

Announcing Bill Hall
For SHERIFF
(Pol. adv.)

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:
Among the five candidates for sheriff, four years ago, 2,582 of you cast your vote for me, Bill Hall.
I ran second in that race four years ago, an honor for which I am deeply grateful to the people of Floyd County.
I repeated, and "honored"
the rank and file integrity of those who cast their vote for the other four candidates.

Since that race four years ago and especially during the last few weeks many of those who cast their vote for the other candidates have come to me, pledged their support, and urged that I announce myself as a candidate for sheriff in the coming Democratic primary.

I now earnestly solicit your vote and influence and when elected I pledge to the people of Floyd county
four years of HONEST ADMINI-STRATION. I pledge to the taxpayers—I will keep records—records of all my receipts and expenditures and at the end of each year as required by K.R.S. 61,290, I shall file a sworn statement of these records with the auditor as required by law. I shall also submit to the auditor a true and correct copy of the books and records of the office of sheriff.
I am fully confident to be When elected to the office of sheriff I will not be controlled by any clique or group of politicians.

All men and especially those young men of drift age will be pleased to know that I am a son to be treated, for every young man wherever he may be and whatever he has done has a mother who expects only the best treatment at the hands of the law.

For an HONEST ADMINI-STRATION, for decent treatment at the hands of the law, for STRICT and FAIR enforcement, vote for, nominate and elect BILL HALL.

FOR A BETTER FLOYD COUNTY
Your Friend,
BILL HALL

TIMES WANT ADS PAY—
TRY THEM TODAY!

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

I am in the race for COUNTY JUDGE to win and I intend to cover the county before the election. I hope I can talk to every voter and explain my plans and policy, giving each of you an honest, straightforward view of my intentions. I will not be making wild promises which I do not intend to try to fulfill. I realize that my position has been in the past, and will from now until election day, make you promises which are impossible to fulfill. I ask you to judge those promises from what has been done in the past. The county road machinery has suddenly quicken its pace and between now and the election will be over roads that it has not touched in four years. There will be promises that certain roads will be started just any day.

I feel certain that you, the people of this county, will not be misled by such action but will view the past four years to see what has been done for the people.

Sincerely,
JARVIS ALLEN

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

Sometimes ago we read a good book about our Appalachian Highlands and their people. Every word of it was true, no doubt, but it is describes only the lower class of citizens to be found in the hills. Persons unfamiliar with the mountains
would think, on reading this book, that no one in the hills is civilized. It is actually that bad, and makes special reference several times to Kentucky hillpeople. It is a true picture of some communities and of some people, but it is applying typical, while leaving the impression that it is.

When we read such we are amazed that anyone in the mountains finds heart to do a thing towards advancement, for, scarcely a writer ever gives this section justice. This book does not contain one word about people who acquire Ph. D. degrees here. (The late Dr.
Marion Zeno, an example.) It has no reference to natives with Phi Beta Kappa. Nothing is said of old families who belong to education to the extent that generations ago they sent their children down on college books and school clothes. No reference is made to prominent ones who stood for the highest in every field, worked faithfully for progress, in spite of the odds against them. No word is included about men and women who have struggled to bring Western Kentucky to the level of the East, and where in the state, four-year colleges, large hospitals, orphanages, etc.

One would assume from this book
that a majority here are little better than illiterate. Countless pages are devoted to the lowest class of people, with not a word for those who kept up the fight for improvement, against enormous obstacles, geographical and otherwise, and with such unswerving leadership in the state.

Everyone realizes that deplorable conditions exist. All of us know numerous evils are still prevalent on every hand. No one boasts of our present status. But most of us are confident the picture has a silver lining. The other side of the ledger is not red, (and seldom read), for it never gets into print. We grow weary of reading only the dark side, which in itself is a danger to our progress. We believe in fairness and can name scores of truly eminent men and women from our section who have made the top ranks in countless fields here and in other states. When we come nearly thirty years ago, Floyd county had students in Yale and Columbia Universities, and they did not flunk! Several colleges today are supplied with coaches from Floyd, among them Curtis Owens, and Monroe Wickes.

portrayals are largely responsible for the apathy often encountered when the rank and file leaders are asked for their progress. It is tragic. Sectional problems exist glaringly, and inter-

and superstitions are still rampant.

these defects. Many are gravely concerned with them and welcome constructive criticism. If unremedied

propriations made by the 1954 Gen-

I have filed declaration papers and made the announcement that I am a candidate, subject to the Democratic primary, for the office of State Representative, 66th Legislative District. Since in this short space of time I have not had an opportunity to see my many friends and relatives and other voters in this District, I should now like to present some facts about myself, and also express my motives in becoming a candidate for this office.

I am 26 years of age, the son of Sam and Martha Wells, of Prestonsburg, Ky., formerly of Ansonia, Ky. I father has lived all his life in Floyd county, and so have I, except for my absence during military service and attendance at college. I attended Ansonia grade school, and Prestonsburg high school, and was graduated in 1931 with a degree from Morehead State Teachers College. I am married and have one child. My home is in Prestonsburg, where I am employed as an automobile salesman. This is my first time to run for office.

During an election year such as this there are numerous candidates for all the county offices, and it is a matter of choosing a worthy

Assembly is often overlooked. It should not be. As our population increases, the needs of the ap-

DESKINS

FOR JAILER

Since my announcement for the office of Jailer of Floyd county I have received from this county an assurance of sympathy that is warm and genuine. These offers so early in the campaign, give me encouragement and hope.

It is with regret that I must so soon take notice of things which are being said in this campaign by some of my opponents. Some of them, a very few of the many that are running for this office, are saying that it will be impossible for me to take care of the office as I am a blind man.
As to that I would like to say I would not be a candidate for jailer if I were not blind. I have my right eye any normal person. I would attempt to make a living some other way for the office is not a lucrative one. No man has ever come from the office a rich man. Right now, with the low rate of crime in this county, and a few dollars confined to the jail, it is an office paying little if any.</

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ANOTHER WANDERER

Editor, The Times:

I read the letter of Mrs. Perrell in the Floyd County Times, and I was impressed. Although I am not from Kentucky, but West Virginia, my mother is from Kentucky and her relatives are living in Kentucky. They are Mrs. Colet Handaboe and Mrs. Kemel Handaboe, of Russellville.

So I was much interested in Mrs. Perrell's letter, as my story is similar to hers. Only I have three small children, 4 years, 2 years and 4 months old. I am here with my husband, but our children are back home with our parents, and we are trying to find a place to live, so we can have them with us. I am having the same trouble as others. I can't find an apartment where we can have one baby with us, let alone three.

And another problem is work. There isn't much work in West Virginia, either, so my husband came here to Ohio for work. What are we going to do? What is going to happen to us, the people who have to leave home to find work? We have a home back in Va. We have to pay more for two rooms than we could get for our home back there. But can we go back? No! Why? No work or no more than two or three days a week and that is mostly mining. So we are saying, as Mrs. Perrell, why don't our states do something about it, so that we can stay in our homes, and keep our families with us, instead of having to leave home? Good luck to all of you. Maybe we can be back home soon.

MRS. DOYLE ADKINS

SAVE FACTORIES ARE THERE—WHY NOT HERE?

Editor, The Times:

I was just reading The Floyd County Times here at my new home on the banks of the Wabash, in the city of Wabash, Indiana. I just finished reading a letter written to the editor by Sylvia Perrell, written about why so many people have to leave their homes in Floyd County, the homes they love, and go away to other states to find work.

Well, I have often thought of that. I have traveled over the largest part of Indiana and in almost every city that I passed through I noticed they all have a lot of factories and I've seen a few towns with only a few hundred population that had three to four big factories. Then I wonder why a city in Kentucky the size of Prestonburg can't have a few factories, too. The city of Wabash is not so much bigger than Prestonburg, yet it has 17 or 18 factories in and around the city. Most all of the factories are rock-wall, rubber and cabinet works. It would not cost any more to build factories like these in Prestonburg than it does to build them here.

If all the people in Prestonburg and Floyd County would organize a club to boost factories to be built in Prestonburg and Floyd County, then something wonderful could be done for Prestonburg and Floyd County. I would like for others to write the editor on this matter too. I hope to see the day when I and many other people like Sylvia Perrell can return to Kentucky and find a business and industrial Prestonburg, instead of just a dead town.

Maybe I am lazy, but my idea of heaven today is Kentucky, with its redoubt and dogwood in bloom; the hills all green and fresh looking; the birds singing, each one trying to out-sing the other, and me, well, I'd have on a pair of old blue jeans, a box or basket of food such as potato salad, pickles, soft drinks, a chicken or two ready to fry a sizzling brown. If we didn't catch any fish, what we probably wouldn't. I'd have a few real good friends with me. We would have our fishing poles, a big can of worms. Oh no! I am not afraid of those little wiggly worms. I have fished ever since I was knee high to a grasshopper and had to use a stick just for a hook and I have caught some nice ones in my life too. Most of the time not many, but what difference would it make? None. We would go together, old and young, good old Mother Nature. You see, I am one who believes in letting old Mother Nature have her way. But what her way to do is than to head for Dewey Lake, or to me, better still, over on Buffalo—the backwater of Dewey Lake. But till we are hungry and tired, then try the fish. No. We probably wouldn't have enough fish for one of us. But we would build a fire, then fry chicken, and all chip in gathering, wood and getting lunch ready. By the time it was ready would we be hungry? I'll say, and what a lunch! I wouldn't trade one of those meals for all the food the clubs and restaurants serve in the world. That is what makes Kentucky so near to me. It is home. A place to meet with friends and loved ones. A place and a people to whom money doesn't mean anything and who wouldn't leave there if necessity didn't cause them to. Maybe I have been more fortunate than some as to having friends there, but I am thankful from the bottom of my heart for them and old Kentucky. May they ever stand.

SYLVIA PERRELL

I read with interest Mrs. Perrell's letter of the last few weeks and I can say as she, it is a shame that we Floyd countians, because of circumstances beyond our control, have had to leave our homes and migrate to other states to live and work. For me to live here is almost impossible, because I have a wife and five children here at home. I have had to leave our home and migrate to other states to live and work. JOE H. COOLEY

Democratic Candidate
for SHERIFF of Floyd County

At the outset I shall give you a platform upon which I intend to conduct my term of office. I will then serve as a bond between me and the people.

1. My administration will be orderly and efficient. Efficient and honest operation of the office will mean the difference between a crime wave and isolated incidents of law violation.

2. I will select deputies that will be a credit to a great county, who will execute their duties impartially and efficiently.

3. I will cooperate in every possible way with the school authorities so as to promote a better school system.

4. I pledge cooperation with the city police forces of the Floyd county towns, the city councils and the citizens.

5. A statement of taxes collected, of expenses and disbursements will be made, sworn to and published.

6. No charge of 75 per mile will be made for the serving of court papers. No illegal collection of fees will be exacted but only the fees set out on the statute books as being legal.

In the cause of honesty in government I make this proposal:

I will, if the legal arrangements can be worked out, turn into the Fiscal Court or the County Treasurer (whichever may be designated) all fees, commissions or other earnings of the Sheriff's office, and let the County pay me the flat $7,000 constitutional salary allowed the Sheriff, plus deputies' salaries and legal expenses of the office.

Let's End Oppression of This Perpetual Fee System!

My intra-state travel program for this spring includes Kentucky University Agricultural College and the experiment station. A special invitation from Dean Frank J. Welch, who assures me the experiment farm will look much less like a shanty-cropper's place than it used to. To Dr. Welch and his family and student body have done half as much for the farm as it needed. When Dr. Welch took over, I may ask the Kentucky Press Association to give the farm as Kentucky's Man of the Year.

When I saw the experiment farm five years ago some of the buildings were in a bad state of repair. The roof of one of them was falling in. All of them were dilapidated-looking as if they hadn't been painted in 20 years. The wire fences were even worse than the buildings. If I had gone to the college with the intention of registering as a freshman and got a good look at the farm I would have cancelled my dormitory reservation and hurried to Purdue.

That is enough about the condition of the experiment farm five years ago. What concerns us most right now is what the place is in 1953, or what it is destined to look like, say, by 1964.

The farm should be a show place. Not a farm with fancy architecture, good husbandry, with plenty of things to make a visitor tell himself that here is a farm run by a faculty of practical farmers, not just a bunch of classroom theories. In other words, a symbol of good farming.

If I was a good public speaker I would ask Dean Welch to let me address the student body and the faculty on Johnson grass, the plague that is rapidly ruining the cream of Kentucky's land and which practically all the hired agricultural educators are ignoring while they dig out stereotyped platitudes about soil conservation. If I attempted a speech from polite notes, I probably would get mad, throw away my notes, and proceed to hurt a lot of people's feelings. My reaction to the difference of the college faculty, the experiment station field agents, and about 90 per cent of the county agents in the state to the spread of Johnson grass is not softened by time.

I am laying my bets that Dean Welch will wake up the college and the extension service about Johnson grass. He came from Mississippi where thousands of farmers have seen their land ruined by the plague.

GOOD SCHOOLS and GOOD ROADS GO HAND-IN-HAND

Floyd county has 94 schools, out of a total of 125 which have only one or two rooms.

Thirty-eight (38) schools are located on roads which are passable only during good weather.

A majority of our schools have unsafe drinking water, poor sewage disposal systems, and inadequate toilet facilities.

The children who attend these schools are handicapped before they start. Our children are as bright and intelligent as any children anywhere and they deserve, and have a right to expect, nothing less than the best in the way of educational opportunities.

Good roads and good schools go hand-in-hand. These are not merely local problems but are state-wide and corrective action should begin in the next Legislature in Frankfort.

For HONEST and ABLE representation of ALL the people in the 96th Legislative District, vote for one who is INTERESTED in these problems.

Legionnaires Observe Back To God Movement

By W. O. CARVER, JR.
Editor, The Kentucky Legionnaire

Kentucky American Legionnaires have designated May for special observance of the Back to God movement of the veterans' organization.

In keeping with the expressed conviction of the Legion that freedom of religion and the individual's sense of the War of God are fundamental in our system of government, Governor Lawrence Wetherby has been asked to proclaim the month a period of spiritual observance.

Inspiration for the inauguration of the nationwide observance was the sacrifice of the conscripted "Four Chaplains of World War II."

It was on February 3, 1943, that the four had given their lives to save their fellow-Americans.

The USS Dorchester had been torpedoed off Greenland. Aboard were the four chaplains of different faiths. They were: Chaplain John P. Washington, a Catholic, of Newark, N.J.; Clark V. Poling, Baptist, of Schenectady, N.Y.; George L. Cox, Methodist, of Cambridge, Va.; and Alexander D. Goode, a Jew, of York, Penna.

The four had life preservers but they also had shipmates with none. In the spirit of Him who laid down His life for others, they passed their life belts to four American soldiers. Tipton, with their arms about one another's shoulders and their heads bowed in prayer to a common Heavenly Father, they stood calmly on the deck of the sinking transport until the waves engulfed them in their unselfish sacrifice.

In their death, the four chaplains stood united in prayer that symbolized to all Americans and for all time the unity of our nation, which was founded upon the Patriehood of God.

In fitting recognition of their sacrifices, the American Legion inaugurated its Back to God movement. President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard Nixon paid tribute to that sacrifice on a nationwide television and radio broadcast from New York on Feb. 1, 1953.

In a radio broadcast, National Commander Lewis K. Gough, of the American Legion, spoke to millions of Americans.

"To some of this audience," he said, "it may seem strange that the American Legion—an organization torn of armed force—should concern itself so directly with spiritual force. And yet, nothing could be more natural for those of you who are also veterans know full well that experience with the one gives us a deeper appreciation of the other."
