This Town... That World

I thought that, once this election campaign was over, I would be able to turn out a column. Well, the campaign is past (thank goodness) and still the old idea buzzes in my empty.

THE UNVARNISHED TRUTH.
I return to a matter on which I have heretofore touched. That is the barefaced fiction that paper people are experts on politics. You know the line, "finger on the pulse of the people." I know the grass-roots opinion - close to the man on the street. I do not propose to babble the point, I simply point to friends and foes and try to tell you of our joint and diverse predictions as to what would happen on Tuesday.

"Watch for a close race here... an easy winner there..." More chit-chatting, gazing ceilingward and doing out the political wisdom in measured tones.

Then came the voting and the counting and the checking of the vote against what we had said. The score indicates that you can use our opinions to advantage only in one way: Take our predictions and confidently expect the opposite to happen, govern your actions accordingly - and you'll seldom go wrong.

It has its advantages. It makes the game grow. It makes the game so wet it can't be cut. It also keeps you from going fishing.

This newspaper has lost considerable weight since last week, as gender reader may observe. The same loss, however, has kept some folks from losing their tempers.

CALCULATED RISK.
This day of mine has been one of the paper so long he was thinking of hiring a press-agent. But, the state of his finances being what they are, he decided "twice" to pick himself a slow-moving car and have a go at it. The result was a deeply cut loss and a plus amount of attention that might have been avoided.

TWO-IN-ONE REPORT.
The second George... questioning, down in Lawrence county, about the election results... say in so many words that she voted for, but this was her answer:

"Who, that other fellow won by a landslide."

RESCUE SQUAD FINDS BODY

Man, Who Parachuted From Plane, Recovered In River At Portsmouth

For the second time in its five-year history the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad Sunday recovered a body from the Ohio River at Portsmouth, Ohio, which had defied the efforts of other searchers to find.

A 24-year-old man parachuted from a rented plane piloted by Fred Hickman, of the Portsmouth police force, last Wednesday at about 5 p.m. He landed in the Ohio, and subsequent search failed to recover the body. The Floyd group was called Friday night, and the rescue began the search at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. At 4:15 a.m. Sunday afternoon the body was recovered from the river.

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad was the only group of its kind in the recovery operation.

On the squad's first answer to a call from Portsmouth it recovered the body of a man who was recovered from Westbury and who fell into the river from a boat.

"Our squad is an well-known in other states as Breathitt is in Kentucky," remarked one of the members who participated in last year's recovery work.

Breathitt Is Winner Over Chandler

BIG RACES, TIGHT RACES HIGHLIGHTS OF POLLING

FIVE BALLOTS DECIDE RACE FOR CLERK

Conley Defeats Hill, Stumbo over Allen As Heavy Vote Cast

Edward T. (Ned) Breathitt, 4,697-vote majority in Floyd county over A. B. Chandler, decided the 1959 local Governor Bert T. Conley, 3,828 votes over Harry Lee Waterfield by 1380 votes.

In the 59 primary Contests, 8,145 votes to Waterfield's 4,828. But Breathitt bettered that mark Tuesday with 5,238 votes to 3,541 cast for Chandler. He carried every precinct in the county but Abbott Creek.

Smashing as Breathitt's victory in the county was, the race for Circuit Clerk, which was far behind the gubernatorial campaign in the matter of interest, was the most spine-tingest as Frank DeRossett, a newcomer to Floyd politics, edged out David Herndon by only five votes. The winner was not known till the absentee ballots were tallied. Both DeRossett and Herndon ran ahead of incumbent Henry Stephens and four other candidates for the office.

Intelligent rains Tuesday evening and threatening rains through most of the day are believed to have reduced the total vote, but at that the total exceeded 12,000. Feet of the campaign did not carry over onto the election Tuesday, with the result that the voting was orderly, with only minor disturbances reported.

Commonwealth's Attorney Helle Conley moved up to the circuit court bench by virtue of his 1973-vote defeat of Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill, who was seeking his fourth term. Meanwhile, Harold J. Stumbo defeated Jarvis Allen by 1808 votes for the Commonwealth's Attorney post.

Floyd county elected a new State Representative—W. J. Reynolds, Jr., in Legislative District 65, and Fred Gearheart in District 66. Reynolds won over a field of four opponents, and will succeed Allen Stone, who lost to his reelection. But Gearheart and Martin battled it out in a two-man race which was tight. The total vote polled in this district and county over the State Representative vote.

AWARD FLOYD 3 ROAD JOBS

Concrete Surfacing Work Near Here, New Highway To Mud Creek Are Listed

Contractors' bids totaling $700,280 on three Floyd county road construction and improvement projects have been accepted and contracts awarded by the State Highway Department.

Contract for the underlating is the grade, drain and bituminous concrete surfacing to correct slides on 1.16 miles of the Prestonsburg, Ky., to the Kentucky Road Office Co., Frankfort, was awarded the contract on the low bid of $546,071.

The M. Johnson Construction Company, of Garrett, offered the bid of $200,000 on grade, drain and traffic-bound surfacing of the East McDowell-Mud Creek road, beginning at Rural Highway 1028A at the intersection of the road with the road, a total of 3.06 miles.

The third contract, awarded to Adams Construction Co., Pikeville, was for the construction of three sections of highway in the Deerp Lake vicinity. One of these is the Brandy Gap-Johns Creek road, .66 mile, and two others are on the Johns Creek-Station Branch road, a total of 1.74 miles.

All of the projects are being financed entirely out of the state road fund.

BERRY DROP HITS PLANT

Inclement Weather Hurts Production; Deliveries Lower Than Last Year

A series of natural causes, dry weather, frost, then rain has delayed delivery of strawberries to the processing plant here to as low as 10 crates per day for several days. The well-reliant of the plant here were 141 crates Tuesday. The top was 400 crates a few days ago.

The plant, now in its second year of operation, opened May 17. It is owned by Carl Abbott, Bedford, Kentucky. The plant is a building built at present J. C. McCormack plant manager, notes that the capacity of the plant would handle 1,000 crates per day.

He added that "this is the first year in all my experience I ever saw a freeze so seriously damage a crop of strawberries as this." He said that the berry crop in his home area of Northern Tennessee is the best in 35 years. Dry weather which prevents ripening, and rain which will cause decay, are the two worst enemies of strawberries.

McCormack and Jack Perry, Floyd County agent, noted that independent purchases of strawberries are cutting deliveries to the plant here.

A drive was initiated late last year to increase strawberry yields by 300 acres in this and adjacent counties but it fell short of the goal. However, Abbott decided to try operation again, trusting that future production would increase.

Perkins said that Anderson would discuss the possibility of a Peace Corps legislation in a luncheon meeting sponsored jointly by the Hazard Junior Chamber of Commerce, Hazard, Lines and the Nautilus Club, to be held at 12 noon at the Veterans Club in Hazard.

It was said that Anderson would be the first of a series of visits to the district as a result of Perkins' continuing and expanding program of bringing out of the federal government, the Eastern Kentucky to acquaint them with the needs and problems of the area.

WOUNDED MAN HOSPITALIZED

Gun Duel Is Staged At Sugar Loaf Cave; No Charges Are Made

Curt Bartley, of Lanes, was discharged Tuesday from the Portsmouth hospital following treatment for an abdominal wound, said to have been inflicted Saturday afternoon at the Sugar Loaf Cave by T. J. Pittenger, alias of Lanes. It was the only instance of serious pre-election trouble in the county but exact cause of the shooting attack was not learned.

The Prestonsburg structure will be an air-conditioned, one-story building of some 3,000 square feet, its exterior facing of brick and translucent fiberglass panels will give the building a modern appearance. Bids will be opened on the project June 21.

To the People of Floyd County:

Mrs. Mollie Woods, 70, Of Allen, Is Claimed: Rites Conducted Sunday

Mrs. Mollie Woods, 70, of Allen, died Thursday last week at home. Death was sudden and unexpected.

Mrs. Woods was the wife of Joe Woods, who survives, and a daughter of the late Byron and Sarah Justice Smith. She was a member of the United Baptist Church for 10 years.

Surviving sons and a daughter are: Dr. Carl Woods, Richmond, Ky.; Jimmy Woods, and Mrs. Gordon Fields, both of Allen. Surviving brothers and sisters are: Winice Smith, of Allen; Mrs. Joe Tackett, of Grayson; Walker Jones, Hannibal, West Virginia; Oliver Jones, Detroit, Michigan; Frank Jones, Rutland, Ohio; and Robert Jones, of Jumbel.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday at 1:30 p.m. from the Allen Baptist Church, the Rev. Robert Martin and James Stratton officiating. Burial was made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at 2 p.m. under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

THE TIMES WANT ADS PAY!

Later, I will give you more details as to just what happened. I know the names of most of those who participated in the BIG DEAL, and I will give you the names in a later issue of the Floyd County Times.

There was approximately $50,000 that went out on Monday after I had already organized each precinct as far as I was concerned.

"There is no doubt in my mind that DeRose and Herford participated in the large sum spent, each claiming they were being carried, and no doubt the fact was kept secret from each other that each contributed to this large fund. I thought I was being carried by both candidates for Governor, but as it developed I received very little assistance from either. So it goes.

If I am ever a candidate again, it will be for either County Judge or County Attorney. In closing, I want to state that I have no ill-will toward either of my opponents and hope for their future success.

Sincerely yours, HENRY STEPHENS

Mrs. Kitty Swiger, 38, Of Printer, Succumbs

Mrs. Kitty Swiger, 38, of Printer, died Thursday of last week at the Pikeville Methodist hospital following an illness of only three days.

Mrs. Swiger was the wife of Herbert Swiger, who survives, and the daughter of Kenas Spurlock, of Printer, and the late Mrs. Sallie Maude Spurlock. She was a member of the Regular Baptist Church.

Surviving sons and daughters are: Herbert Keith, Anthony Quisenberry, Arthur, Linda Gaylin, Amelia Davis and Sally Light, all at home. Surviving brothers are: Kenneth Spurlock, of Printer, and Clinton Spurlock, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday from the Spurlock Regular Baptist Church, the Revs. Hershel Huff, Luther Comp. Mack McCloud and Bert Conn officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Southern Bell Observes Telephone Milestone

Pretty Linda Dye, of Louisville, looks up a number before using Southern Bell's 600,000th telephone in Kentucky. It's a coin telephone located in front of Louisville's City Hall in a special "golden" booth. A plaque on the phone also commemorates the event.

"Southern Bell in Kentucky reached another milestone in May with the installation of its 600,000th telephone in the state," it was announced this week by A. Guy Hiale, local manager.

A coin telephone located in front of Louisville's City Hall, the honored phone is in a special gold-anodized booth. It bears a plaque commemorating the installation.

"We feel this phone reflects the continuing growth and progress in our state," said C. Hunter Green, the company's vice president and general manager.

Southern Bell has added 100,000 phones in just a little over four years, Green pointed out. The 600,000th phone was installed in the kitchen of an Owensboro home in April of 1959.

"The installation also means that we have almost doubled our number of phones in the state since 1950," Green said.

At the end of 1959, the company had 310,610 phones and in 1940, it had 137,719.

In addition to the Southern Bell phones, some 21,000 telephones are operated by 23 other telephone companies in Kentucky.

SOIL CONSERVATION By L. R. JOHNSON Soil Conservationist

Last week, May 19 to May 20, was observed across the nation as Soil Stewardship Week. It was a time to reflect on daily blessings we enjoy from the good earth and the water that helps to make it productive.

"We Turn Our Eyes to the Future" was the theme for this year's observance.

Today we are demanding more and more from our soil and water resources.

To assure that they will continue to meet our needs, 2900 soil and water conservation districts are carrying forward active programs in proper land use.

To learn more about what they do and how you can help, contact your local soil conservation district office.

Lexington, Ky. — Setting-out time will be here soon for many Kentucky burley producers. In Massie, U. K. At Extension Service tobacco specialist, says some Kentucky producer probably will start setting out this week while others will not be finished before June 20.

If you don't plan to use sour cream in a cooked dish, you can make it smoother and stiffer by whipping. Take care not to over-whip the sour cream, however, or it will turn to butter. To hasten whipping, keep the cream cold while it's being whipped by using chilled bowls and beaters.

WE DELIVER

Kentucky fishermen continue to have one of the best seasons in a number of years and one of the reasons for this is the prolific white bass in the various major lakes. Right now fishermen, night fishermen that is, are having a wonderful time on at least three of the large impoundments by fishing with minnows for these tough little fighters. They are being taken on given nights in large numbers from Herrington, Cumberland and Dale Hollow lakes and the season has just started for this type fishing at night.

After the spawning run of the white bass is over this fish will move back into deep waters in droves and the location of these droves is the only requisite for harvesting great numbers of them. Some nights they'll be found off muddy shores at depths of 15 to 20 feet and on the third night they'll likely be found in the channels of the lake or its tributaries and will be anxious and ready for a fight.

Until a few years ago this night fishing for white bass in Kentucky was limited to but a few localities. But that was at a time when it was more difficult to obtain the necessary equipment for night fishing. Now it is possible to fish at night in comfort and the lighting facilities are more readily obtainable.

So, with these comforts more night while bass fishermen were born. This night fishing, which, of course, is at its best with large minnows, will continue for a few weeks in full force, but will then slacken off. However, throughout the summer they will be caught in the "right" places and it's up to the fisherman to find that "right" place.

So the white bass has offered to Kentuckians a new method of

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

DISASTROUS FLOODS: THEIR CAUSES AND PREVENTION

Nature's laws are inexorable and when we violate them we have to pay the penalty in suffering, and the best part is, the innocent have to suffer for the mistakes of the guilty.

The root causes of the disastrous floods of our day began something like 80 years ago. Prior to that time, all the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia were covered with dense stands of virgin timber, from valley to hilltop—oak, walnut, beech, yellow poplar, birch, wild cherry, linden, ash and others. These are deciduous trees—those that drop their leaves every fall to form a leaf mold on the forest floor. In those days, before any of the great trees were removed, there was a thick leaf mold, about eight inches deep, in all the crevices and on the mountainsides. This thick leaf mold was like a sponge that soaked up the rainfall and prevented a swift run-off of water; it kept the forest floor moist at all times and conserved the moisture. This thick leaf mold could absorb and hold over an inch of rain without any serious run-off of water.

Our forefathers were often in dire need and so they sought markets for their virgin timber, and found eager markets at Chattanooga, Frankfort and other cities. They went to work then and built large splash dams across the larger creeks and smaller ones on all their tributaries; then they began to cut down the virgin yellow poplars, the oaks, the walnuts, any timber that would float; with ox teams they hauled these great logs to the dams and filled them up. You can still find old ox shoes lying along some of the old logging trails, and can also still see dam signs where some of the big splash dams stood, which often held over a thousand logs at one time. The splash dams were opened as soon as filled with logs, and these were floated down the creeks to the rivers; there they were caught and held by heavy chains called a "boom." Men came to the boom and placed the logs together in large rafts of fifty to a hundred, and then floated them down the rivers to the lumber markets. This method of logging the virgin timber went on from about the year of 1880 to the year of 1908, after which other methods of timbering came around. This was after the railroads had penetrated into the region and the settlers could ship out their lumber or logs by rail. So sawmills and the kind of mills were moved into the region, to accelerate the devastation of the forests. These big headmills would establish a location near a large boundary of timber and they would remain there in the same place, sawing day after day, for as long as twenty-five years before they finally finished up. The big headmills could saw into lumber the heavy timber which couldn't be moved in the rafts, such as chestnut oak, sugar maple and others.

By the time the headmills had finished their work and moved out, there was little timber left on these mountains, except small, inferior grades of trees. The small timber soon matured a second and a third crop. In those methods of logging came into use; even the small trees were cut and saved into props to be sold to the mining companies. Soon, instead of using oxen and ox teams to haul the timber out of the mountains, tractors and bulldozers were moved in. These made roads all up and down and along the mountainsides; they skinned the timber out by long wire cables. To speed up these more modern timber operations, there appeared the power, or chain saw, the old way of cutting the timber by crosscut and double-bit saw was too slow and laborious, but the gas-driven chain saw could slaughter the trees in a hurry, without any mercy or waste of time. Then the big log trucks moved in to help supply the sawmills; they made roads to the heads of all the creeks and tributaries; they bulldozed out the valleys, formed deep trenches along the hills, and loaded down with big logs, they wore out deep ruts in the earth and left tens of thousands of runways down which the water shoots with great force during heavy rains.

The sawmills, the power saws, the tractors and the big log trucks have been moving ever farther and farther back into the heads of the creeks and branches—there is scarcely any boundary of timber anywhere today in Eastern Kentucky. By that has escaped. The hillsides have been scarred and ditched and filled with pits and trenches from top to bottom, and the rainfall has thousands of runways to pour down into the streams.

Today all the virgin timber is gone, and the second, third and even the fourth growth of timber have been removed from these hills and ridges. We no longer hold and absorb the rainfall, mountainsides full of ditches and roads, and trenches and runways for water to rush pell-mell out of the mountain in torrents as they race madly to the creeks and rivers.

To add to our flood trouble, some mining came into the hills of Pike, Mingo, Buchanan and many other counties, as a quick way to get out the coal. The bulldozers loosened multiplied millions of tons of earth and rock and left these heaped upon the slopes, calling them by the dignified name of "spoil banks." The loose earth and rocks washed down into the rivers and clogged up the river beds filling them up several feet deep in places. This added seriously to the flood menace; on top of this, the hundreds of coal mines throughout the mountains of Kentucky and West Virginia have let loose millions of tons of loose rock, shale and lumps of coal—all kinds of refuse which has gradually found its way into the river beds and helped to clog the channels and fill them up. There is so much waste coal today in the bed of the River, I know of one outfit that makes big money by setting the loose coal out of the river bed and selling it on the market.

Our river beds have become clogged up and filled with the waste materials of our modern industrial progress; we have used our rivers as dumping grounds for refuse and trash, until today the streams are so clogged they soon spread out over their banks when heavy rains come. We have no system of flood control whatever; we have danced to the music of the pipe of modern industry and now we have to pay the price!

Our farmers have also helped to add to our flood woes by clearing away the forests from thousands of acres of mountain lands, then tending this land in corn and beans and other crops, and was carried away to the rivers, to help fill up the river beds; deep gullies have formed in all these old fields and they get deeper every year—every time a heavy rain comes.

While farmers of today have almost stopped clearing up the mountainside to grow crops, the harm has been done in the past, and the old fields will still there until they are left to nature. While they do prevent soil washing, they are not effective in flood control and prevention.

We started a reforestation program a few years ago but it has proved wholly inadequate to cope with the dire situation. It is proceeding in the wrong direction, by sticking to setting out pine only—loblolly and white pines, good trees indeed as they go, but they do not go far enough. Pines bear no leaves, only needles, and they put no leaf mold on the forest floor. While they do prevent soil washing, they are not effective in flood control and prevention.

Mrs. C. L. Gray was hostess to the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church in her home, Tuesday night. The president, Mrs. Palmer Cripp, presided over the meeting which was opened with prayer by Mrs. James Thomas. A candlelight pledge service was presented by Mrs. Rhina Laven, who was in charge of the worship service. Tackling part were Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Cripp.

The society is now having a study course, the fourth of the year. The first one, THE OP OF EAST ASIA, was presented recently, and the society received recognition from the southern jurisdiction of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Gray, assisted by Mrs. Cripp, and grandson, Franklin Gray, served a dessert course to Mesdames Euna Laven, Janice Thomas, Maude Shogren, Jewell Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Delano Gray, Mrs. Lucy Kinser who was hostess for the June meeting, with Miss May in charge of the program.

William Hicks (1882-1963)

William Hicks, agricultural and conservation leader, was born in 1882, a son of James Hicks and Alice Onstley Hicks. His wife, Mary Ann Coburn Hicks, like his parents, was a member of a pioneer Floyd county family.

Hicks, who is shown here on the farm in 1900, contributed much to the development of the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation program in Floyd county, serving as county committee man with one leave of absence from 1915 to March 1963, when he retired. He became interested in the development of the rural electric power program and for many years served as director of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation.

The First National Bank salutes the memory of the late William Hicks and all of the many dedicated persons of our area who have contributed so much to the conservation of our soil.
