"YET," HE ASKS

Carl Horn sank me last week with the question, "Have you caught a fish yet?"

That word, "yet," did it. Since then I've been angling around, and I've learned that Mr. Horn has been indulging in that vice known as golf. And I've decided to have him throw out of the lodge for good.

IS IT LITERATURE?

The passing strange that this nation of ours went almost 200 years before its Supreme Court got around to deciding the Bible and the Lord's Prayer must quit the public school rooms. Perhaps it's true that nobody questioned the constitutionality of school laws of the Supreme Court, but it is a commentary on the direction "Christian" America is taking, that only now does an atheist wage such successful attack?

Some of the world's most outspoken unbelievers have proclaimed the Bible to be literature in its simplest form. Wonder if the Book can legally be used as a text in the teaching of literature?

Or shall we use "Tropic of Cancer" or "Lady Chatterley's Lover" as a substitute? Sure we will!

Without them the situation would be desperate," Combs continued, "for since the coming of the miners hospitals many of the small medical facilities that formerly helped the region have closed."

RESCUE SQUAD FINDS BODY OF MISSING MAN

Allen Tent Revival Now in Progress

A tent revival supported by Christian Churches and the Church of Christ began at Allen Sunday, June 16, and is now in progress. Services are being held daily at 7:30 p.m., and the public is invited.

Featuring the music program are the Prophet's Quartet, Knoxville, Tennessee, nationally known as gospel singers over the television series, "Gospel Caravan," and the Filbert Quartet from Shelbyville. Dave Van Kovering, a versatile musician who plays 27 different instruments, is director of music for the revival.

The revival is being held at the site of the late Mr. Allen's home, which was destroyed by fire last week. The body of the missing man was found by the rescue squad.

The body of 18-year-old Hillard Gene Music, missing since Sunday, June 9, was removed last Sunday morning from Deep Lake, approximately 250 yards from The Boat Dock where he was last seen alive. But recovery of the body did not clear the circumstances surrounding his death. The body recovered by members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, was immediately taken to the Kilo-Coroller Funeral Home, Cadestown, where an autopsy was performed by Dr. Stewart, Ashland pathologist.

Until the pathologist's report is made authorities will be without conclusive evidence as to the manner of the youth's death. Officials said rumors heard locally are without foundation, that the rescue squad prevented their determining any of the circumstances of his death by physical examination.

The autopsy report is not expected until later in the week.

The body floated to the surface of the lake at 10:30 a.m. Sunday while Emergency & Rescue Squad divers were searching the lake bottom, a short distance from where recovery was made. The squad had dragged the lake two days without result.

Music had been missing since about June 4 when he leaped from a car driven by Fred McCoy, 19, near Hager Gap. He was last seen after he had waded across a shallow water area in the lake between Terry's dock and the shore, and had started walking down-lake, along the shore.

McCoy and Philip Dean Ray, 22, of Prestonsburg, were recognized for their grand jury appearance in September after they were charged with the death of Music. McCoy had been quizzed at a hearing conducted last Tuesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Sheriff Says Order Fixing Closing Hours Needs Clarification

Sheriff Henry C. Hale said Wednesday that he will ask County Judge Henry Stumbo to revoke a county court order adopted five years ago which provided that public or music machines may be played after 12 noon on Sundays in places of entertainment "so long as they do not create a public nuisance or disturb the public."

"This part of the closing-hour order just makes the enforcement of the order as a whole more difficult, if not nearly impossible," Hale said.

Except for that provision, which was added August 8, 1957, to the original court order, the closing-hour regulations are good, the Sheriff said. The original order provided that the county restaurants may remain open at all times but that all other restaurants and places of entertainment shall close at midnight.

ALL-OUT WAR WAGED ON TB

In Martin County Area; Floyd Health Department Seeks $18,000 Laboratory

If the all-out war begun this month on tuberculosis in Martin county is waged successfully, there is a strong possibility that the next tuberculosis in the county will be Floyd county.

This is Russell L. Hall, who doubles as head of the Floyd and Martin County Health Departments, and who is taking a leading part in the Martin county effort to kill off the disease, said Tuesday in a disarming way.

He said that as a result of the work undertaken in Martin county on $18,000 laboratory has been established in the Floyd County Health Department here.

The Martin county demonstration project as the first 4 is said to be initiated in the United States, and it will run until information from two to five years Dr. Hall estimates it will provide more than a million dollars worth of free medical services to residents of that county.

Earl Campbell, health educator, Floyd and Martin counties, and Dr. Felix area supervisor for the Division of Health Education, Kentucky Health Department, Louisville, reported that 92 per cent of all the students in Martin county schools have been seen tested in the county since the project.

They pointed out that, of those tested, 12 per cent were found to have tuberculosis. Dr. Campbell said that the national average is five per cent. Any figure over five per cent is considered high for a county.

The state eventually is to have all school children, their parents and other residents of Martin county tested. The county also will cooperate with the state and national Tuberculosis Association and the State Department of Health.

Dr. Campbell said that the Martin County Health Department here is the first in the state to have all school children, their parents and other residents of Martin county tested. The county also will cooperate with the state and national Tuberculosis Association and the State Department of Health.

AREA HOSPITAL HELP ASKED BY GOV. COMBS

Hearings began Tuesday before a joint General Assembly committee at Frankfort on the proposal for the state to assume a $700,000 share in the cost of the regional United Mine Workers hospitals being purchased by the Presbyterian church and slated to be operated by the Appalachian Hospital Association.

Governor Combs called the special session of the legislature Tuesday to discuss the proposal. The UMW hospitals are being bought with a $3,000,000 grant from the Area Redevelopment Administration.

Combs, in his speech to the lawmakers, reviewed the history of the medical institutions, said that they had "wired" medical facilities in an area traditionally short of such services. Even with these hospitals, the Governor said, only 60 per cent of the medical needs of the area could be met. None of the hospitals in the area are located in the area where the financial burden, he added.

"Without them the situation would be desperate," Combs continued, "for since the coming of the miners hospitals many of the small medical facilities that formerly helped the region have closed."

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 242 in a Series)

Typical Area Church in Log Cabin Development Days

The first churches of Eastern Kentucky were built of logs, as were the homes. Most of the churches also served as schools. Many of these early structures served area congregations until the turn of the century when they were replaced by frame construction.

Shown here is a church built at the end of the Civil War near Oil Springs, Johnson county, Kentucky. For decades it was a center for religious and community events.

The First National Bank salutes the dedicated men and women who founded our early churches and contributed so heavily to the religious development of the region.

PERKINS ASKS CONTROL JOBS

At hearings Wednesday before the Public Works Appropriation subcommittee, Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) made a plea for the appropriation of sizeable sums for the construction and planning of flood control and related water resource projects for Eastern Kentucky.

Perkins requested a total of $10,650,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1963, to hasten construction and complete the planning of reservoirs throughout the district, including in Perkins' plea was the Fish trap Reservoir, the John W. Flannagan Reservoir, North Fork of Pound Reservoir in the Upper Big Sandy, the Cave Run Reservoir on the Upper Licking River, the Grayson Reservoir on the Little Sandy, the Booneville Reservoir, Carr Park Reservoir and Red River Reservoir in the Upper Kentucky River basin.

Perkins also urged the planning of additional flood control measures for the Big Sandy, Kentucky River and Triunvirate, Kinnick Creek, the Upper Licking River, the Little Sandy and Tygart Creek.

Perkins emphasized that appropriations made now to construct reservoirs would return a substantial investment in terms of property losses and damages which would be averted by the flood control program.

The congressman told The Times Wednesday, he is certain a local flood protection project will be approved for the town of Martin and that dredging and other stream improvement work will be done on Beaver Creek.

No charge was filed against either of Ruston's three companions. Except for minor discrepancies, their versions of Ruston's disappearance coincided. It was agreed they had bought some whiskey here and been on the Austin road, that a disagreement arose while they were driving in the vicinity of Hager Gap and that Ruston leaped from the car while it was yet moving and ran down the rock-studded bank toward the arm of the lake in which the boat docked.

Ray said he got out of the car and begged Ruston to return so that they could all go home. He said he did not follow Ruston beyond a path where he could see him. Later, they went to Austin, bought some gasoline and made a search of the highways in the vicinity.

After they had returned home Ray and Oliver Ruston, father of the victim, went to the Hager Gap area by taxicab and toured lake roads, in a vain search for the youth.

The victim is survived by his parents, Oliver and Oeda Lafferty Ruston, of Water Gap, and the following brothers and sisters: Floyd Oliver, Minnie Lafferty, William Albert, Homer Lindsay, James Fred, Margie Dale and Barbara Ellen Ruston.

The body was returned to the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home here, Sunday night, and funeral rites were conducted from the chapel of the funeral home Monday afternoon by the Revs. Moses Kitchen, Henry Crider, Paul Prater and Ted Nelson. Burial was made in the Harris cemetery on Brandy Gap.

MODERN AIRPORT NETWORK SCHEDULED IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., May 6 (Sp.)—Kentucky is rushing toward completion of a modern network of airports offering today's mobile, expanding industrial community an added incentive to locate or expand in the Blue Grass state.

In the past three years, more than $6.8 million in state, federal and local funds has gone into the construction of 17 new airports and expansion of 14 more in Kentucky.

Of the total cost, 20 per cent—or $1,360,000—was provided by the state. Local communities contributed $2,340,000 in money and donated services and equipment for their own projects. The remainder $3,080,000 was provided by the federal government.

A total of 53 airports now serve Kentucky communities. Of this number, seven offer scheduled airline service, 22 are paved, and 24 provide lights for night operation.

In commenting on Kentucky's airport boom of the past three years, Aeronautics Commissioner Philip I. Swift said, "Airports today mean to a progressive community what rivers did in the early 1800's or the railroad in the 1850's. You just can't expect to interest new business without modern transportation facilities."

"Not only will these airports facilitate industrial development in their own areas," Swift said, "but the tourist potential of Kentucky's vacationland is bound to grow with the possibility of air travel available."

Some of the vacation spots in Kentucky served by airports are Kentucky Lake, Kentucky Dam Village, General Butler, Lake Cumberland and Rough River State Parks, and Cumberland Gap National Park.

Other Kentucky tourist areas served by airports are Lexington, Louisville, Dale Hollow Reservoir, the State Capitol at Frankfort, and the scenic mountain area around Harlan.

In the past three years, new airports have been built at Campbellsville, General Butler State Park, Cynthiana, Elizabethtown, Ellettsburg, Fulton, Glasgow, Greenville-Central City, Harlan, Hopkinsville, Murray, Olive Hill, Princeton, Rough River State Park, Whitesburg, Cumberland Falls State Park, and Morehead.

Among those which have been improved or modernized since 1950 are Bowling Green, Greater Cincinnati (Covington), Danville, Frankfort, Harrodsburg, Hazard, Henderson, Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Kentucky Lake State Park, Lexington, Louisville, Madisonville, Pikeville and Stanton.

New airports which have been improved or expanded since their completion are Campbellsville, Cynthiana, Glasgow, Greenville-Central City, Hopkinsville and Murray.

Besides building new airports and improving existing ones, the State Department of Aeronautics has spearheaded a successful campaign to have every municipal airport in Kentucky come to conform with Federal Aviation Agency requirements.

Swift explained that zoning of an airport involves the designation of an area above and adjacent to the runway as protected air space and banning erection of structures above a certain height which would penetrate into the air space.

(Continued from Page 1, Sec. 1) According to Dr. Hall, a school child who has a positive reaction in all probability has been infected either in the school, or, much more likely, at home. Although the test may be positive, he added, it does not necessarily mean that the child has tuberculosis but indicates further tests are necessary.

Those who are found to be positive will be visited at home by a team of health workers and a complete series of tests, including new tests, will be conducted to determine if TB is present.

"Tuberculosis is treatable, it's preventable, and eradicable, but it requires complete cooperation from all," Dr. Hall emphasized. "Permitting the medical team to enter your home will make it easier for your family to live a richer and fuller life and help in the eradication of tuberculosis in Martin county."

Dr. Kurt W. Deuschle, chairman of the steering committee which laid plans for the project, has previously stated that it is likely the case finding, treatment, prevention and surveillance methods which it is hoped to establish in Martin county, can be applied to other rural populations groups in Kentucky and similar areas of the Appalachian region.

Those involved in the project are stressing the home treatment feature. All persons found with the active disease will receive prophylactic treatment managed by a clinical team based at the Ashland Tuberculosis hospital. Active cases requiring hospitalization will be admitted to the hospital, it was stated. BCG vaccination will be given only to those individuals where home prophylactic drugs are not advisable, Dr. Deuschle said.

He said it is recognized that a certain number of families will be uncooperative, therefore, local scientists will be responsible for studying the problem and attempting to make recommendations to the medical team to enable them to obtain maximum cooperation in case finding and treatment.

It was revealed that patients being treated at the six state TB hospitals in Kentucky as of March 7, 1963, totaled 818. Patients with histoplasmosis or other pulmonary fungus diseases are now eligible for treatment in Kentucky's TB hospitals if facilities are not fully utilized in the treatment of TB patients.

During the past year, Dr. Hall pointed out, the Martin County Health Department has had one of 24 "field" outpatient clinics, viewed as one of the most significant recent developments in the fight against TB in Kentucky. Among the various advantages of such a system, he said, is the fact that medically indigent outpatients are heard drugs at the clinics instead of having to make a long trip to the tuberculosis hospital.

About the May Primary

The May primary has produced concrete and ample evidence that there is a powerful political machine now in operation in Floyd County which can easily thwart the free will and exercise of the good people. The primary was held to such an extent, illegally, as though the people, or at least some of the younger ones, had been wished as Khrushchev does in Russia.

It would and does seem to me the good people are a small minority and those who are interested in good government hesitate to stand up and take their part, but instead stand idly by and permit the crooked deals to go by with little or no thought. And, since many people care little or nothing about honesty or how the elections are conducted and held, and many of the best people when selected as election officers, decline office for some reason or other, the others take charge and when the two judges are for the same candidates, and as many people do not know how to vote on these voting machines, or maybe can't read or write, their votes are cast. The choices of the two judges, which to a large extent has already been agreed upon before the voting begins.

On Right Beaver Creek there are two small girls, one about five years of age and the other eight, the elder one being in school, and the other too young to attend. These girls are associates and playmates, and one day while these two girls were playing together, the older one began a conversation to find out who the little girl was for Governor—of course in an effort to find out how her mother and father were lined up in the race for Governor. The older one said to the little one, "If you are for Chandler, we will cause to be playmates and I will have nothing more to do with you." Evidently the older girl had heard something in school that brought about this condition. If this isn't brain-washing, then what would you call it? Such conditions should never be permitted, and such tactics should be condemned and at least never tolerated in the school room.

Several months ago, a state employee visited me here in the Clerk's office, who had been sent by someone higher up, and gave me a message that I should be and was the proper person to make the race for Circuit Clerk. However, I advised him, since my wife lacked four years having her retirement service, that I had decided to make the race for Circuit Clerk, and this conversation ended at this point.

About the time I announced for Circuit Clerk, there was another person who was strongly thinking of making the race for this office, which I was seeking and who had aligned me as anti-labor and against the union, notwithstanding I had mined coal and been also a small operator at one time. In order to dispel any anti-position of which I had been accused, a certain man approached me late one evening and advised me about this situation, and I got into his car and we went up Middle Creek and down Brush Creek and on to Garrett where a meeting of the pickets was being held, and I assume there were a thousand people there or perhaps more.

While I was there at this meeting I was called upon to state my position about certain temporary injunctions that had been issued and signed by me, which was my duty as Clerk to issue in the absence of the judge, Edward P. Hill, or upon his refusal to issue the same or upon his disqualification to hear, try and determine the case; however, I explained the matter as fully as I could. Thereafter some of the attorneys representing some operators sent out several hundred pickets, which were signed by the attorneys, but these pickets were accusing me of issuing them, which I had nothing to do with in any manner. I heard one of them say, that if he was a Clerk he would resign his office before he would comply with the law or issue such an order in which statement I had little or no faith.

Domestic Peace Corps Viewed by Con. Perkins As Depressed Area Aid

Washington, June 18 (Sp.)—Congressman Carl D. Perkins said today the proposed "Domestic Peace Corps" offers a means by which Kentucky talent now directed to foreign lands could be brought to bear on Kentucky's own development.

Testifying before a special House subcommittee considering legislation to set up a National Service Corps, Mr. Perkins said that it would not be "simply a welfare program."

"Rather," he said, "it is a basic effort to help people to help themselves in such areas as Eastern Kentucky, where limited education and unemployment have spawned classic deprivation, health deficiencies, sub-standard housing, inadequate educational opportunities and demoralization."

Service Corps members, Mr. Perkins explained, would live and work with the people of the areas where they were serving. In this connection he named Jim Fisher, Ashland, Kentucky, member of the Peace Corps now serving in Central Asia, as an example of the type of person who should be encouraged to work on developing Eastern Kentucky.

Young Fisher, writing in the Peace Corps Volunteer, said in an article quoted by Mr. Perkins: "The Nepals do the best they can with what they have, and with that kind of spirit there is no limit to what they can accomplish."

Mr. Perkins, commenting on Fisher's report declared: "This is a spirit of partnership. It is a program which fits in naturally with Kentucky's tradition."

Dorland Coates, associate dean of instruction for teacher education; a coffee in Walnut Hall, where the students met department heads; a tour of Model Laboratory School; a married couple's housing and other parts of the Eastern campus.

On Saturday they visited Berea and Lexington, Sunday morning various student hosts and hostesses accompanied the students to worship services in the local churches. During the afternoon the group visited

Former Pike Official Acquitted of Charges

Woodrow W. Runyon, former school bus supervisor for the Pike county school board, was acquitted Monday of charges he embezzled about $18,000 over a 10-year period.

No evidence was presented in the Pike circuit court trial, which was held over the objections of Commonwealth's Attorney K. E. Friend, who refused to prosecute.

The jury heard the indictment read, received routine instructions and returned a verdict of acquittal in five minutes.

Runyon was indicted in January on charges he embezzled the money beginning in 1950 through irregularities in buying school bus equipment. He also was charged with submitting a false claim in connection with the alleged taking of the funds. No trial date has been set on those charges.

Friend filed a motion at the opening of court asking that the indictment be dismissed or nipped away on grounds that the charges were improper.

Judge F. P. Kase overruled the motion and Friend refused to prosecute, saying he was not prepared. Kase said he was filing Friend's motion for contempt of court, but later with drew the fine.

COMMISSIONER DOUBTS HIGHWAY FEASIBILITY

Henry Ward, Kentucky commissioner of highways, gave members of the U. S. 23 118 Highway Association Wednesday an assurance that their dream of an Ashland-to-Middleboro highway will soon be realized.

"If you try for it as an extension of the interstate system, you're in for an argument," he told the group at its meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. As for the possibility of the route becoming a toll road, he said the Highway Department has not yet made a study "in depth" of the project.

He suggested that leaders decide which plan they want to adopt, then fight for it. Feasibility of a toll road to cover the 200-250 miles of the route is doubtful.

At this time, Mr. Ward pointed out, all but 80 miles of the 41,000 miles of interstate highway provided for in existing legislation have been contracted or committed to contract. Upwards of 5,000 miles elsewhere have high priority for the Interstate system, an extension of the system. He pointed out these facts to explain his statement that "you're in for an argument if the projected route is sought as a part of the interstate system."

He added that he would be perfectly happy to see the highway built as a part of that system—mainly because the state would be required to supply only $1 for every $8 spent by the federal government on its construction.

The sector of U. S. 23 expected to be most heavily travelled by 1980 is the 10 miles from Prestonsburg to Allen, the commissioner said, quoting engineers' projected figures. The daily average for that part of the road by that year is seen as 9,000 vehicles. This average use of other parts of the highway are projected: Allen to Pikeville, 4,500 vehicles; Prestonsburg to Paintsville, 5,600; Louisville to Ashland, 5,800.

Mr. Ward, a plain-spoken veteran in state service, emphasized his interest in road-building but pointed out that his interest goes beyond "to make this or any other administration the greatest."

"I am interested," he explained, "in continuous progress. In terms of building a highway system, you've got to look ahead so that when you spend any of the public's money you get the best possible return."

Asked by Lon B. Rogers, Pikeville, how the Big Sandy arm of the Mountain Parkway would be extended to Pikeville from Prestonsburg in accordance with the promise made by Edward T. Breathitt, Democratic nominee for Governor, Ward said his idea would be to improve existing U. S. 23. He also said that an engineers' report indicated improvement of the route from Cabbagetown to Prestonsburg would make it adequate.

Marvin Music, president of the Association, said the group at its last meeting went on record as favoring improvement of the highway rather than a toll-road or construction in a new location.

Ward gave this current report on highway projects in the area. Contract to be awarded on remainder of the Parkway arm, Prestonsburg to Salversville, during the fiscal year beginning July 1; completion of Parkway extension, Campbell to Salversville, set this winter; some sections of Parkway extension built in the Jackson area; next fiscal year to see grade and drain, Campbell to Jackson; new section of Parkway extension set to contract at Hazard, right-of-way work being done west of Whitesburg.

He predicted that final surfacing of the Prestonsburg-to-Salversville section of the Mountain Parkway extension will not be completed before the summer of 1965, although grade and drain construction completion is seen next summer.

THIS WILL CHILL YOU

Here's a chilling thought for a hot summer day. Refrigerated warehouse space is now over the one billion cubic-foot mark, according to USDA's Statistical Reporting Service. That's about half a home-size refrigerator for each man, woman and child in the United States. The space is used to store meat and poultry, dairy products, eggs, fruits, vegetables and juices.

STATE ROAD CONTRACTOR SETS PAVING RECORD

Frankfort, Ky., June 13—A paving contractor on the Western Kentucky Parkway has set a new world's record for laying concrete. Arcrole-Midwest Corp., of Evansville, Ind., in one work day in early June completed 9,132 linear feet (or almost two miles) of 36-foot wide, 8-inch-thick pavement in Hopkins county.

Wright Club Hears Stapleton, Dr. Wilson

The Beaver Valley Kiwanis Club held its regular meeting Monday evening, June 10, at the Inland clubhouse with 28 members and two guests in attendance.

Of the two guests, one was William Stapleton, of Paintsville, lieutenant-governor of Division 8, Kentucky-Tennessee District of Kiwanis International. Mr. Stapleton addressed the club briefly concerning the forthcoming Kiwanis convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The second guest, Dr. Charles Wilson, of Pikeville, delivered an interesting talk on his experiences in Haiti as one of the participants in FOCUS, a private philanthropic organization dedicated to the care of indigent people suffering from eye diseases. Dr. Wilson, who served with FOCUS for two seasons in Haiti, presented color slides which illustrated the need and usefulness of such an organization. Among other details, the appalling misère of American aid funds by the Haitian government was disclosed.

A question-and-answer period followed Dr. Wilson's presentation.
