Akers' Bid On School Is Lowest

Severance Monies Asked for Building; Vote Garbage Plan

The $593,775 bid offered by Akers & Akers, Dana contractors, was the lowest of three offered on the construction of the McDowell physical education lunchroom structure, and the Floyd fiscal court, acting as fiscal agent for the Floyd County Board of Education, last week voted its acceptance.

Subject to approval of the State Department of Education, the contract was awarded the low bidder.

Other bids opened at last Wednesday's court meeting were:

Cravens & Cravens, Lexington, $628,600. Tom O. McGuire, Prestonsburg, $614,663.50.

All bids submitted were below the architect's $664,714.60 estimate. Cost of the 15,500-square foot structure will be financed by sale of bonds.

The court session was one of the busiest in months. One item of business was the court's vote to submit an application asking permission to use the entire 1974 coal severance tax for construction of a juvenile detention facility at the rear of the courthouse here. (The building, as planned, also includes a juvenile courtroom, offices, recreation area and other facilities.)

The court's resolution pointed out that the law requires juveniles to be separated from sight and sound of adult prisoners; that county officials are violating the law each time a juvenile offender is imprisoned here, and that in the event its request for severance funds is denied it will be required to issue bonds to finance the construction. Next to roads, the court said, the detention center is the county's most pressing need, since severance tax monies may not be spent on construction or repair of roads.

The court authorized the county clerk to advertise for bids on franchise pickup and hauling of garbage to the county landfill, a franchise to be issued for each of the four magisterial districts at the Feb. 5 meeting.

County Judge Henry Stumbo later told The Times he opposes the franchise plan as unworkable this time when the county has only one landfill and that he will not sign a contract with any contractor granted a franchise. "I recommended that we wait till we get another landfill or two before asking bids. If it doesn't work, I will not be responsible."

Optimistic CC Head Sees Brighter 1975

The Prestonsburg-Floyd County Chamber of Commerce in its year-end economic statement described 1974 as a "boom year" for the county.

And Ronald Frasure, president of the Chamber, predicted that even though Floyd county has experienced the best year in its history, 1975 looks even better.

Mr. Frasure said that bank deposits in the county were up more than 50 percent due to the coal boom and new business coming into the area. Twenty new businesses were located in Prestonsburg in 1974 and many more in Floyd county.

Floyd county's unemployment rate is around 6 percent, as compared to over 7 percent nationwide. This is the lowest rate in many years.

Curtis Clark, Prestonsburg city manager, reports that Prestonsburg's budget was in excess of $430,000. He added that this means that the city is in the best financial shape in its history.

Car dealers have reported a good increase in sales, with the larger, higher priced autos making up most of the increase. Prestonsburg area merchants reported 1974 as the best year ever in sales.

The coal boom had a great influence, but area sales were improved by the fact that Prestonsburg has become a center for many agencies which serve the county, the report said. These include Social Security, Mountain Mental Health, Kentucky Department of Economic Security, the new 150-bed Highlands Regional Hospital and a Regional Health Department, along with Prestonsburg Community College, the U. S. Shoe Company, R & S Body Company, Reynolds Body Company, East Kentucky Mack, Elkhorn Industrial Products,

Report Says Schools Hit by Drug Problem

The Floyd circuit court's grand jury braved snow-covered streets and highways to return here Monday morning to hand Circuit Judge Hollie Conley the 40 indictments it had voted, including two alleging murder, and its final report which touched on county property, county offices and the drug problem.

The report, signed by Joseph G. Jacobs, foreman, said drug violations "has penetrated our elementary schools."

The jurors suggested—apparently in view of drug use in schools—that the county board of education give school principals authority to remove from school campuses any person who is without a definite reason for being there.

Judge Conley later commented that he doubted the legality of such an action. The jury suggested that all gym and school playgrounds remain open, afternoons and nights, and under supervision, for use by students. If these facilities are kept open after school hours, the report said, children and students "would have something to do to take care of extra time and energy" and thus help eliminate some juvenile delinquency problems.

The report described the parking lot at the rear of the courthouse as chaotic, needing entrance and exit signs and marking for official cars; the courthouse windows as needing cleaning, inside and outside; the ceilings of all courthouse rooms in need of repair; a downstairs men's restroom lavatory and a front door of the courthouse as "not working."

The jurors reported, however, that they found the jail well-kept, and they commended the jailer "for a fine job," pointing out that most prisoners had commented on the fine treatment they had received.

Reading the report, Judge Conley at this point commented: "You criticize conditions inside and outside the courthouse in one breath and in another commend the jailer. The jailer is responsible for all the courthouse."

The jury reported it had examined the sheriff's department at the request of the sheriff himself and added that if found that the sheriff "is doing a fine job under present conditions." After noting that many citizens have asked for increased police protection at night, the report added:

"The Floyd county sheriff's department is working under a budget provided prior to 1966. We feel an increase is long overdue. A minimum increase of 50 percent would be asked of the fiscal court."

The jury said it had not had time for an investigation of cars abandoned along roads, dumping of trash on public and private property and the housing of juveniles with hard-core prisoners, and added that these matters should be looked into.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, Columbia Gas and many others that contribute to the working force.

"Prestonsburg has a daytime population of about 10,000 and a night-time population of about 4,000," Mr. Clark commented. It has 19 eating establishments which are thriving.

The Chamber report said that while the coal boom is responsible for a large part of county prosperity, the Chamber is seeking other business and industries to locate on its industrial park "to provide jobs for our people when the coal is gone."

The Chamber president pointed out that Prestonsburg and Floyd county have the ingredients that make up a thriving community, such as modern medical facilities, educational facilities better than most areas in community college and five high schools; modern highways which make it an ideal location for commercial development—a location which is within a day's drive of 60 percent of the nation's population. "Our area," he said, excels those of the Appalachia Region in recreational facilities with 1,100-acre Jenny Wiley State Park furnishing boating, fishing, and camping, a summer theatre that attracts several thousand each summer and a day and night golf course Archer Park here cover 32 acres, has eight all-weather tennis courts, three lighted baseball fields, three swimming pools and a children's theater and modern camping and picnic areas.

The Chamber pointed out that the area has a need for an estimated 1,000 homes for medium income families.

This Town... That World

If "foot" could be substituted for "hand" obedience to the Biblical injunction not to let one know what the other is about would be no sweat for me, with the going underfoot such as this.

PREDICTION:

Thirty years or so from now, some of today's youngsters will be declaring "they don't have old-fashioned winters like when I was a kid."

I can hear those future oldtimers giving their grandchildren a quivering description of the rigors of the winter of '75—"man and boy, the snow was 15 inches deep," and so on, lying but having lied so often they'll never bat an eye. Only, I suppose, by that time they'll be measuring snow and everything else in terms.

"HIPPIES," NOT PROPHETS

Sunday's snow came just in time to keep me from teeing off on the woolly bears. While the skies were blue and the weather so balmy, I was tuning up making inquiries of associates as to what they thought now of the thick coats those critters donned last fall, looking toward a hard winter.

And there were those who stood ready to defend the woolly worms. One of my fellow-sufferers in the newspaper business, "Bud" Perry, informed me that he had been assured those long coats were not prophetic of bad weather a-comin' but showed up last fall only on a bunch of "hippy" worms.

They're suggesting at least $1 billion to get back into shape coal-county roads damaged or ruined by coal trucks. Now if the federal government will spend several more billions hiring men to carry

Jury Does Not Indict Trooper In Deaths of 2

Two men were named in murder indictments by the grand jury at its adjournment Monday, and two other persons were charged with being accessories after the fact in one of the slayings.

Bobby Workman, now a resident of Michigan, formerly of this county, was named in one of the murder slayings charged with the slaying five years ago on Arkansas Creek of James Chaffins. Gene Salisbury was accused in the other indictment of the slaying at his home on Left Beaver Creek, late last year, of Crit Butler.

Salisbury's common-law wife, Diana Rector, and Ed Wright, Jr. were charged with complicity in the Butler slaying as accessories after the fact. The separate indictments charged that they disposed of and concealed evidence in the murder of Butler.

Workman had been named in an earlier indictment alleging conspiracy to murder in the Chaffins slaying. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said arrangements had been made for Workman's extradition from Michigan. Chaffins was found shot to death at the roadside on Arkansas Creek. Long investigation failed to uncover definite clues but new evidence reportedly was gained a few months ago.

The grand jury did not indict in the slayings of Phillip Neely and Earl Vanderpool, Jr. in a fight with State Trooper Roy Boley, near Huysville.

Indictments in other cases involving violence were these:

Elmer A. Newsome, second degree assault by striking Tom Hunter with a deadly weapon; (F. B. Kidd, warrant endangerment by shooting at Glenda Damron; Norman Harold and Gary Damron, first degree assault by beating Simon Kidd with a deadly weapon, and

County Work Picture Remains Near Steady

While the current coal boom has undoubtedly lent a measure of prosperity to Floyd county's economy, figures provided by the state unemployment office here show little change from this time one year ago in the number of persons actively seeking employment. In January, 1974 the total unemployment caseload of the office, which covers Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties as well as Floyd, numbered 3,774. At present, the number of persons seeking employment through the office is 3,312, 462 fewer persons than last year.

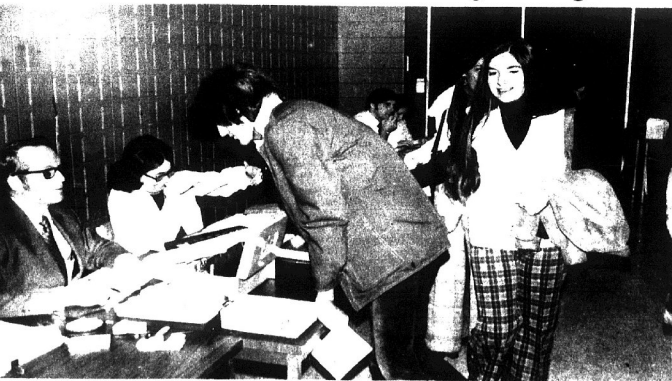

The number seeking work in this area would be even fewer apparently, were it not for native Kentuckians returning to their home counties after massive layoffs in northern and midwestern factories rendered them jobless. In the Detroit-Ypsilanti, Michigan area, for example, where hundreds of Floyd countians have moved to work in automobile plants, it was estimated last week that unemployment may reach 40 percent within the next month. The migrants eagerly return home and seek work, because, as Employment Counselor James Reed said of a group of Louisvillians who came to the office in search of work last week, "They said they heard the coal business was booming and they expected a job." Stockpiled coal, a reduced demand for coal from many industries, the fact that some coal companies have had layoffs of their own, all have resulted in a drastic reduction in coal-related jobs so that many of the returning migrants' expectations are not realized. And, as Reed pointed out, "In the coal business there seems to be a few people doing well."

During the first week of January, according to the unemployment office, 26 out-of-state claims were recorded. "Of course, this represents more than just 26 individuals when you consider that many of these have families," Counselor Thomas Hereford pointed out.

Jobs in other areas are getting fewer and the unemployment office reports a reduction in such areas as clerical work. Mr. Reed said that some of the area's larger employers such as C & O Railroad and Mountain Comprehensive Care Center had quit conducting interviews for job applicants as they had in the past. According to Reed, interviewers from a number of other states formerly came to the unemployment office here several times a year to recruit laborers for jobs ranging from assembly line work to pea picking, but he added that "we didn't have an out-of-state man here in 1974 that I know of."

Mr. Hereford summed up the situation, saying, "Aside from the coal business, things are as slow as they've ever been." (See Story No. 2, Page 2)

Sign-Up Time at Community College

College registration doesn't appear to be such a traumatic experience for this pretty girl, one of the Prestonsburg Community College students who registered Tuesday for the spring semester. Registration, which is scheduled for completion today (Wednesday), was delayed a day by road conditions created by Sunday's heavy snowfall.

MANY THANKS FOR THE BIGGEST AND BEST MAD, MAD, MAD SALE EVER HELD AT THE FEDERATED STORE LAST WEEK AT MARTIN

Reed and Hereford said some of the job applicants who have returned from outside the state are disadvantaged because they are actually over-skilled. "Firms in this area are reluctant to hire such people because they know that when the higher-paying job up north comes available again that they will more than likely go back to their former jobs," Reed explained.

Unemployment figures for the month of November showed Floyd county with a rate of 5.4 per cent; Johnson, 3.6; Martin, 0.8, and Magoffin, 1.8.

"These figures can be quite misleading, however," cautioned Hereford, "because a lot of people simply don't file and there are those whose benefits have expired." He also pointed out that federal funds for hiring the unemployed in public works were based on unemployment figures and that those who failed to file were, in effect, helping deplete their home county of much needed money. Hereford said the low rate recorded for Martin county resulted from the fact that many Martin county residents live in the Williamson, West Virginia office, thus "splitting" the figure.

Although unemployment figures continue to be high, Reed pointed out that "it's not been nearly as bad as it was in the early '60's." He said stripmining had been holding up the local economy and emphasized that "we're not hurting too bad yet."

Repeating action taken prior to Jan. 1, the court directed that all county funds be transferred from the First National Bank to the Bank Josephine, the new county depository. The two banks were asked to early stages of the meeting, to offer bids on interest to be paid on county revenue sharing funds placed in savings account. The Bank Josephine bid of 10 per cent was high, and County Treasurer W. J. May was directed to deposit $200,000 of these funds for a 90-day period.

The low bid of Music-Carter-Hughes of $5,997.50 on a three-quarter Chevrolet truck, with an $1,809.53 trade-in allowance on the county's 1971 truck, was accepted.

Claude Swiney, county planner, was authorized to inquire into the possibility of federal and state aid in establishing a sewer system for the entire county. In other actions the court voted:

To authorize the county clerk to issue a $1,000 check to Sid Case for road right-of-way on the Big Branch of Mud Creek; to close a portion of the Allen-Dwale road which has been used as an illegal dumping area; to authorize the county judge and county attorney to negotiate with Elmer F. Fields to dismantle the old county bridge at Printer.

NEEDS HIS GLASSES FILED

I have already spoken to our favorite optometrist for an appointment soon for Delmas Saunders. I do not want to sound alarms and dire warnings, but I am worried about the aforesaid Saunders. His eyeglasses seem to have failed him, all of a sudden.

If this isn't his predicament, how can he explain his taking my hat from church—my hat!—and leaving behind a new and respectable fedora of his own?

CANDIDATE STEPHENSON

As a rule, we are rather stingy about giving candidates free space, but when John Stephenson, of Boone county, came visiting last week as a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture, he impressed. For one thing, Mr. Stephenson had his whole family—two children and perhaps an in-law or two—along, all loaded into a refurbished Greyhound bus. A music-making family, they had their musical instruments with them and were ready at the slightest provocation to favor with a hymn. Mr. Stephenson has served Congressman John Breckinridge as his field representative in northern Kentucky.

Ewell Gibbons and all those smiling TV families to the contrary, I maintain there has never been a cereal concocted that comes within a mile of plain milk and cornbread.

OF THINGS TO COME

Again we got "scooped" on Woodrow Burchett's annual "predicaments" made around year's end at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club here. But the tag end of the Ashland Daily Independent's report of it said he had said so well that I pass it on to you:

Burchett reminded us that we are worry warts, worrying about the wrong things today, because our concentration is on the wrong things. Shortages of energy and food supplies and transportation and ecology concern us. Burchett remembers the time when we "raised what we ate and ate what we raised." We used mules for energy and rewarded them with some of what they had helped produce, and traded what we produced for things we couldn't make ourselves.

"Shortages of natural gas didn't affect us," Burchett said. "We cut our own wood and it warmed us twice."

Calumet, Vick's Salve and castor oil were cure-alls, and now we take children to doctor's offices "where he will contract a half dozen other diseases from other children waiting to see the doctor."

Now we have television, radio and movies, whereas in the past people amused themselves at bean stringings and country dances.

Burchett also points out we had our toilets outside and cooked in the house. "Now we have our toilets in the house and cook outside."

Once, walking to school was a normal practice, but now, "We are bused to school in a $20,000 bus and get our exercise in a million-dollar gym."

We jog and exercise but get in the car to drive around the corner. We spend more on our car than we do a child's education. We worry about the future of our government, but we don't go vote.

We worry about our deodorant failing, but fill our streams and rivers with garbage.

Burchett finished his forecast for the future and conclusions of where we are with a dark picture and plea for continued hope.

"Things aren't working out. The machine is out of kilter. People aren't buying, men are out of work, we have shortages, strikes, surpluses of food, prices are too high and girls with pretty legs are wearing pant suits.

"But tomorrow morning the sun will come up over the same hill, robins will come in the spring and, suddenly, we sense that despite all our worries we will survive, and everything will somehow be all right."

One of his predictions—a heavy snow in January—has already been fulfilled. And he predicted another for February.

As a former "country correspondent" for The Licking Valley Courier used to advise, "Stick close to the shore, children."

The U. S. Labor Department placed 142,000 welfare recipients in unsubsidized jobs during the 1973 fiscal year under the WIN II program, which stresses direct employment for persons on public aid.

Highway Dept. Alert To Weather Reports

FRANKFORT, Ky.—It's 7 o'clock Monday morning. You have just fought your way to your car through six inches of snow and wonder how you will drive to work in it. To your surprise, when you reach the main route, you find it is clear and traffic is moving at a close-to-normal rate. The State Highway garage in your county has been at work since the snow started accumulating.

George Asbury, director of the Division of Maintenance of the Department of Transportation, has had his office open since the first warning of a storm flashed across the division's National Weather Service teletype. Asbury proceeds to send alerts to all the district offices in the immediate path of the storm. The district offices, in turn, relay reports on the local conditions to Asbury's office as the storm advances.

Experience has shown Asbury several routes the storms take upon entering Kentucky. The heaviest storms arrive in the southwest section of the state from the Memphis, Tennessee area. The storms usually advance along Kentucky's southern border and then turn north into the central section or the mountain regions of the state. A number of ice storms enter from the northwest direction along the Ohio River, then sweep across the state.

When there is a chance of snowfall in Kentucky, a "night watchman" is sometimes placed on duty at each of the county garages that may receive some accumulation. He is kept informed of the condition of the county's highways by the local police departments and, when possible, by Bureau of Highways toll road centers. If there is no night shift at the county garage, police will notify the foreman at his residence.

According to Asbury, the road crews have a definite pattern in their cleanup procedures. Steep hills with major traffic, dangerous intersections, parkways and interstates are attended to first. The work then shifts to U. S. highways, such as routes 60 and 27. The crews will work overtime if necessary in these areas. After the major arteries are cleared, cleanup crews begin work on other roads in regular work shifts.

The bidding is spirited as John Pitts "sells" books at Clark School auction.

The Reading is Fundamental Program, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club, is off and running at Clark Elementary School this year. Just before Christmas, a book sale auction was held at the school for the 150 children involved in the program at that time. Children could "buy" a book with stars they had earned through reading other books at the school or at home over the two-month period just ending. Each

RIF book was priced at 20 stars each, and children could make their own selections when buying, or could bid for books they wanted at the auction.

Children involved in the program came from grades 4-8 who are enrolled in remedial reading classes at the school. They read, in order to be prepared for the auction and sale, a total of 1777 books. John Pitts, the school principal, indicates that enthusiasm for reading is even greater after the sale and auction than before. "We hope to hold at least two more sales before the close of school," he said.

Opinions From Office Of Attorney General

Tommy Lee, Harlan county clerk, asked recently if a county clerk can legally transfer the registration of a vehicle and leave a five-year-old lien off the new registration receipt, especially when no "continuation statement" has been filed. The office of the Attorney General holds the opinion that this cannot be done. The clerk has a duty to include the noting of a lien until the termination statement is filed—even if the lien has lapsed.

Richard L. Elam, city attorney for Versailles, requested an opinion as to whether or not a police judge pro tem could, at the same time, hold the position of county judge pro tem when neither position pays a salary. Since both positions incorporate all the powers of the regular officials and since one is a city office and the other a county office, it is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that one person may not fulfill both posts simultaneously, whether or not salary is included.

A. R. Oliver, Allen county judge, asked if a magistrate on a fiscal court could authorize the spreading of gravel on a private road if the owner pays for the gravel and the county furnishes the truck and driver. This is a road travelled by a school bus and a mailman. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that county road money is to be spent and equipment used only on county roads. Furthermore, the fiscal court can act only as a body when it is in session. Individual magistrates have no authority to bind the county.

Heart Fund Drive Leaders Appointed

The appointments of Mrs. Pauline Sparks, Prestonsburg, to serve as county advisory chairman and Mrs. Jeanne Brown, Prestonsburg, as county Heart Fund chairman and Business Gifts chairman in the 1975 Floyd county Heart Fund drive have been announced by the state campaign chairman, poet-novelist Jesse Stuart, of Greensburg.

The month-long Heart Fund appeal will be launched Tuesday, February 4, with Coffee Day. The house-to-house solicitation will be conducted on Heart Sunday, February 22.

Jesse Stuart, himself a heart attack victim, urges full support of the 1975 Appeal, noting that 485,000 Kentuckians suffer from heart disease and that 38 percent of all known causes of death in the Commonwealth are due to heart and blood vessel diseases.

He also announced that Woodrow Allen, Prestonsburg, will continue to serve as the year-round Memorial Gifts chairman in Floyd County.

Ten Years Ago

(January 14, 1965)
The additional $7,000 needed by the city of Prestonsburg to complete its urban renewal projects have been made available by the Community Facilities Administration, Congressman Carl D. Perkins wired The Times last week. Ernest Gene Marshall, 36, formerly of West Prestonsburg, was killed Sunday afternoon by a bullet from a .38-caliber revolver at the home of his father at Fritz, Magoffin county. Registration for the spring semester of the Prestonsburg Community College, which began Tuesday, indicates little if any drop in the number of students enrolling for work. The 24 indictments returned by the Floyd circuit court grand jury last week represents the lowest output of true bills to be voted by a grand jury here within the memory of officials, it was said this week. Married: Miss Pamela Elizabeth Nicholson, and William Holiday Harkins, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg, December 30 at St. John's Church, Middletown, Ohio; Miss Ruth Helene Fiegel, of Van Lue, Ohio, and Dwayne Lee Kelsey, of Findlay, Ohio, formerly of Prestonsburg. There died: Mrs. Ollie Hall King, 44, formerly of the Grethel section of this county, Friday at Lutheran hospital, Cleveland, from accidental carbon monoxide poisoning; Adrian Collins, 46, of Prestonsburg, Monday at the home of a son in South Shore, Ky.; Mrs. Hettie Howell, 65, of East McDowell, Friday at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Clifford Wilburn, 53, of Amba, Dec. 30 at the Pikeville Appalachian Regional hospital; Mrs. Bureta T. Yates, 36, Floyd county native, last Wednesday at Ann Arbor, Michigan; Lawrence L. Lynch, 72, of Martin, Sunday at Our Lady of the Way hospital there; Mrs. Minnie Amburgey Smith, 77, of Bypro, Tuesday at the Pikeville Appalachian Regional hospital; Lee Wallen, 65, of Wheelwright, last Thursday at McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital; Mrs. John E. Felty, Jr., 49, of Tucson, Arizona, formerly of Allen, January 3 in Arizona.

Twenty Years Ago

(January 13, 1955)
Judge Bert T. Combs, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, Tuesday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Estimates made by biologists of the State Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources place the number of Kentucky and largemouth bass in Dewey Lake at between 7,000 to 8,000 eight inches or more in length. Prestonsburg has lost its popular and highly successful football coach, D. T. (Doc) Ferrell, to Owensboro high school, it was learned Thursday night. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johns Archer, son William Thomas, January 10 at Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cottrell, a son, Fred, January 5 at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Mr. and Mrs. Yancy Lion Clark, of Montgomery, W. Va., a daughter, Lynn, January 11 at a Long-Memory hospital; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lloyd Gaddles, a daughter, January 11 at the Paintsville hospital. There died: Will Onley, 85, Wednesday at West Garrett; Mrs. Phoebe Alice Scalf, 90, Thursday, at the home of a daughter on Mare Creek; Alice Mae Mosley, three years old, of Wheelwright, Tuesday at Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington.

Thirty Years Ago

(January 11, 1945)
A step toward relief of the acute housing shortage in Prestonsburg was taken with the announcement this week by Harry Malkin, of the Capitol Lumber Company here, that he had gained government agency approval of construction of 10 houses. The following Floyd servicemen were reported this week as casualties: Killed in action—Sgt. Carl P. Castle, of Martin; Pvt. Alvin Nelson, 20, of Dwayne, missing—Pfc. Arbie L. Hunt, of Prestonsburg; captured—Pvt. Donald S. Griffith, of Bevinville, and Francis M. Lilly, Jr., of East Point; wounded—Pfc. John H. Spurlock, of Printer, and Pvt. John B. Thornbury, of Pyramid. Prestonsburg remained this week without free express delivery after C. L. Hyden, denied a raise by the American Express Company, made deliveries only at the expense of the consignee. Mrs. Ben Norris resigned, effective January 1, as Floyd county registrar of vital statistics. Mrs. Marvin Ransdell has been named to succeed her. "Mother" Geddes, who accompanied her daughter, Alice Geddes Lloyd, to Knott county 30 years ago to found the Coney Creek Community Center at Pippa Passes, is dead at the age of 90. She was buried at Pippa Passes, in accordance with her request: "Let me settle where my shoulders dropped their load." Married: Miss Shirley DeKossett, formerly of Emma, and S-Sgt. Frank A. Wosnick, Rochester, New York, December 9 at Rochester. There died: Henry Blackburn, formerly of Prestonsburg, last Thursday at Veterans' hospital, Breckville, O. W. M. (Bud) Compton, 70, Saturday at Firebrick, Kentucky.

Forty Years Ago

(January 11, 1935)
The grand jury Tuesday voted murder indictments against four Floyd men. Hailey Hughes, 28, was shot and killed at Hueysville Sunday. Identity of the hit run driver whose auto struck and killed five-year-old Joe Edd Gummell at Tram last Friday is being sought. A delegation of officials and citizens was promised Tuesday that grade and drain construction of about 10 miles of the Left Beaver Creek road will be advertised for bids within two weeks. The home of Dr. Charles Bond at Fallsburg was destroyed by fire last week. There died: Sherman Nunney, 61, Friday night at his home here; Mrs. Margaret Austin, 72, Sunday night at her home in Prestonsburg; Larce Burchett, 43, of Sugar Loaf, Sunday at a Paintsville hospital; A. L. Stephens, 74, Floyd native, December 23 at Clayton, Oklahoma, 46 years after his removal to that state; Terry Gene Branhram, 11 months, of Boldman, December 20 at a Pikeville hospital.

To Appear in Floyd Churches

"God's Looking Glass," a quartet from Morehead State University, will present two programs in the county Sunday, January 19 at 10:45 a.m. The group will sing at the Allen Baptist Church and the quartet will present a program at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist church here at 5 p.m.

Since its beginning, "God's Looking Glass" has traveled in five different states, cut one album entitled, "The Greatest Love," and has sung for the Ford Philpot television program, "The Story."

Rhonda Cooper, a graduate student this year at Morehead, is the only original member of the quartet who is still with the group. She is the pianist and soprano of the group. She is from Cynthia.

Donna Clark, a native of Allen, is the alto and guitarist. Miss Clark is also a graduate student at Morehead and has been with the group for almost three years.

In August of 1974 the group added a new bass and a new tenor—Steve Jones, a transfer from Asbury College, bass, and Chuck Cooper, brother Rhonda, tenor, also a transfer student from Asbury.

School Board Tells Budget Deficit Causes

Skyrocketing operational costs have been cited by representatives of 17 Kentucky school systems, including Floyd county's, as the main reason for their deficit budgets during the 1973-74 school year.

Fifteen of the 17 school systems explained their situations in a special meeting last Wednesday with the State Board of Education, Floyd and Leslie counties were not heard and will attend a special February meeting.

Floyd Superintendent Charles Clark explained that the Floyd County Board of Education was not represented at last week's meeting because the meeting date fell on Wednesday, the same day bids were opened here at a joint meeting of the Floyd school board and fiscal court on construction of the McDowell physical education-lunchroom building.

"We simply could not be in two places at the same time," he said. The Floyd board's deficit for the school year was $26,142.19. Higher costs of coal, gasoline and other materials and loss of per capita funds because of fewer pupils were listed among the factors contributing to the deficit.

It also was pointed out that, although the sheriff had a high 92 per cent of tax collections, $49,448 in school taxes remain delinquent and that this amount would have left the school board with a surplus despite the inroads of inflation.

In his Jan. 8 meeting with other school boards James Melton, director of the state Bureau of Administration and Finance, state Department of Education, acknowledged the inflationary damage, adding, "I'm surprised that we don't have more than 17 deficit boards due to the rate of inflation." The state board cannot approve the red budgets, since they are illegal.

Carroll county's $285,786 debt was the largest, although the amount is over $16,000 less than the previous year.

Pike county's debt was the second largest at $223,326, up more than $74,900 from last year and the largest deficit increase. William Hickman, Jr., treasurer of the Pike County Board of Education, said his county's low rate (about 75 per cent) of general property tax collection had contributed to the indebtedness.

State Board members suggested the possibility of implementation of the utility tax for those counties not already using that means of additional revenue. However, the consensus of those appearing was that local voters would not support the tax.

Superintendents were told that perhaps they should consider dropping popular sports events to dramatize the plight of their budget, thereby increasing local support for school funding.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, superintendent of public instruction, warned the gathering that "drastic circumstances call for drastic actions. Two often schools are held responsible for something they cannot control. You the superintendents should urge more local funding."

Many of those superintendents appearing before the board said they have already cut their staff to a minimum and had begun programs to economize on such expensive necessities as gas, coal and electricity. They also said they were concerned about the future quality of their curriculum due to these measures.

Officials Hear Allen Citizens Protest Litter

County Judge Henry Stumbo, Assistant County Attorney Don Goble and Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis met last Thursday with an Allen citizens' group and members of the Allen Woman's Club who came here to register a protest against the current garbage dumping situation in the Allen vicinity.

The meeting was opened with a statement by Judge Stumbo on the new sanitary landfill located on Turkey Creek. This landfill, according to the judge, is the only legal dumping area for county residents and they may use it for only a nominal fee. Education of the public on the location, cost and health aspects of the landfill is sorely needed at the time, he said.

Judge Stumbo warned that the dumps in the county are not only unsightly but also create a definite health hazard by polluting water supplies, increasing the population, and originating a smog crisis whenever the dumps are burning and weather conditions are such that smoke and ash stay near ground level.

Assistant County Attorney Goble told the group that in years past it was extremely difficult to enforce dumping laws because of no legal dumping areas in the county, but said that his office would cooperate fully with the Sheriff's office in prosecuting violators, now that residents have a legal alternative in the landfill.

Judge Stumbo said that the old county road between Allen and Dwayne was closed by the court, with barricades set, and no one is even to drive on that road. This road-closing is believed to be the major cause of increased dumping on Shortwood road, between Allen and Banner. The judge ordered "No Dumping" signs posted and urged the group to report any license numbers of cars dumping there to the sheriff's office.

In a separate meeting with Sheriff Lewis, the group was assured by him that warrants would be executed on any and all violators. He also affirmed that he and his deputies would patrol the area at every possible opportunity, and urged persons seeing violators to obtain warrants after copying car license numbers.

Judge Stumbo and Assistant County Attorney Goble pointed out that owners of land on which these dumps are located could be prosecuted just as if they were dumping themselves, and urged all property-owners to cooperate with his office and citizens' groups to get the situation under control.

At the conclusion of the meeting a citizens' committee from Allen was formed and it offered a $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of any violators. Conviction carries a maximum fine of $300.

Cooperation from Allen citizens has been outstanding, a spokesman for the group said.

At least two warrants were to be issued Saturday.

The head of Kentucky's energy office, John Stapleton, said the state's energy outlook this winter will depend on the weather and the current coal strike. "If we have a mild winter like last year, and we can get the coal strike taken care of, we will get through in better shape than last year. But if the weather is severe and the coal strike continues, we could have a crisis situation," Stapleton said. The major problem in Kentucky is the curtailment of natural gas to the state's gas companies by their out-of-state suppliers.

Court Backing Recreation Area On Left Beaver

The non-profit Left Beaver Community Development Association won fiscal court support here last week in its planning for the founding of a recreation area at Minnie which would serve all of Magisterial District 4 and perhaps be the first of such facilities planned for each of the four magisterial districts of the county.

The court responded to the petition of association representatives for cooperation and assistance in the project by authorizing County Judge Henry Stumbo and members of the county Parks and Recreation Board to negotiate with Palestine Vanderpool toward the acquisition of approximately eight acres of land and with adjoining property owners for additional space which, in all, will represent 15 to 20 acres of land.

Once the site is acquired, financing of the project will be undertaken, James Reed, of Deft, one of the leaders in the move, said. Revenue sharing and coal severance funds are two sources of funds, and assistance also is thought available from the Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Mr. Reed described the recreation plans as intended to serve the population, all the way from Martin to Weebury. Preliminary plans call for a playground for younger children, softball and Little League fields, tennis courts, picnic areas, basketball courts and an area for field and track events.

Long-range plans look toward the possible construction of a community center structure and perhaps a swimming pool. Involved in the recreation center move for the district are, in addition to Mr. Reed, Ruby Akers, W. M. Hoffman, W. D. Lawson, and B. F. Reed, all of Deft, Leonard Ciesla, Pete Grigsby, Jr., Dr. Mary Hall, Julius Martin, Klein Stumbo, and Macy Ward, all of McDowell; Glenn Frazier, and Ted Lawson, of Price; Franklin Salyers, Minnie; Eugene Crisp, Printer; Bob Hall, of Hite, and Paul Bailey, of Wheelwright.

RC&D Council Reviews Plan

The Executive committee of the Big Sandy Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Project Council reviews and discusses the project plan, assisted by the project coordinator and clerk. From left, front row, Mrs. Roslyn H. Burcheff, USDA SCS project clerk, and Ollie J. Arnett, chairman; standing, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., secretary; Bill Dempsey, USDA SCS project coordinator, and Dr. W. C. Hambley, treasurer.

The Project Council of the Big Sandy Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) met at Jenny Wiley State Park, on January 9, 1975, to review the project plan which was 18 months in the making.

In arriving at a definite plan members of various committees, assisted by agency personnel, studied the natural resources of the area, described conditions and developed a plan of action to protect and develop the natural resources for the benefit of the people in the upper Big Sandy and Licking River valleys. The plan covers the project area, which consists of the counties of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike. The plan of action calls for starting at least one high priority measure in each county this year. Coal Tax Fund Denial Irks Pulaski Co. Official

Bridging at the rejection of a severance tax application, Pulaski County Judge Jacob Garner told an advisory committee in Frankfort last week:

"If you don't give us the money, as far as I'm concerned you can keep it."

Shortly afterwards the judge left the meeting at which the committee of six legislators decide which county projects are worthy of receiving surplus severance tax money from the state.

Garner had returned to plead for $13,709—his county's share of the proceeds to date—to help finance a $2 million courthouse and jail renovation project.

When some committee members told him that the legislative act on such tax returns specify mainly industrial development and recreation, Garner snapped, "We know what we need our money for." He said Pulaski county soon would send representatives to Frankfort to demand it be allowed to get its own coal money for what it deems necessary.

The only legislator calling for approval was Rep. Hoover Dawahare, D-Whitesburg, who said that "since it's only $13,000" he had no objection.

But the committee majority indicated it intended to follow the legislative guidelines.

Earlier, it rejected an application by Union county for $6,000 to continue operation of St. Agnes, a parochial school at Uniontown, so that the school could avoid closure because of financial troubles.

The committee chairman, Rep. W. J. Reynolds (D-Allen), said the Supreme Court has ruled a state cannot spend tax money on private schools. "And I don't think this is a constitutional even if we voted for it."

The vote was 4-0 against, with Dawahare passing after the Union county delegation asked for an attorney general's opinion before the vote.

Reynolds also spoke out against the Pulaski request, declaring that the severance tax surplus amendment was "a one-shot deal" and that if the money were not used in strict accordance with legislative guidelines, the entire operation might be shelved in the 1976 session.

"And courthouses is the first thing the legislators mention (when they object to certain types of spending)," Reynolds said.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband, James L. Ousley, who passed away one year ago today, January 14, 1974.

Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness I recall.
You had a kind word for everyone
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved me well and true;
Oh, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you!
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
I will remember thee.
I miss you now—my heart is sore,
As time goes by I miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Letters to The Editor

A Call for Help For Larger Lakes

Editor, The Times:
All across the face of the earth "gill nets" are regarded as criminal devices. The Fish and Wildlife Department licenses these devices. In doing so they have opened the door to the use of all other criminal devices.

Here on Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake land values are depressed, fishermen and tourists are staying away in droves, businesses are closing, and crappie, bass and strippers are almost extinct. We recognize that there are "cycles" and particularly so with crappie. However, when all species vanish at the same time you may be certain that "gill nets" and other criminal devices are the cause.

People of Kentucky united once before and got the criminal devices eliminated and the slab crappie came back and fishing was excellent. Then the Fish & Wildlife people sold out again. Never has there been as much illegal netting as is going on at the present time. Kuttawa Bay, surrounded by nice homes, has been thoroughly cleaned of fish by commercial fishermen using two-inch mesh "gill nets." Houseboats from Tennessee with several small boats are working all bays on both lakes. Although these waters will produce, with proper management and sensible catch limits, plenty of fish for constant sports fishing, they cannot and will not produce enough to satisfy the greed of the fish-hogs from Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois and Kentucky.

Kentucky is indeed fortunate to have its great water resources and such natural fish hatcheries as Barkley and Kentucky Lakes, among others, and we do not believe the Fish and Wildlife people should be allowed to continue their absurd policies.

We are hopeful that the people of Kentucky will write the Governor, Hon. Julian Carroll, Commonwealth of Kentucky, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, and join in the effort to protect one of Kentucky's great treasures.

Kenneth C. DeVille
Rt. 2, Kuttawa, Ky.

(Editor's note: We hope those interested in Barkley and Kentucky lakes have more luck with "the powers that be" than we who have pleaded for the protection of Dewey Lake from pollution, siltation and eventual destruction.)

Jan. 16 Meeting To Take Look At Needs Here

The Prestonsburg Planning Commission has filed with the City Council a report of its findings during weekly meetings held since May, 1974 in a study of city needs, and the public will have an opportunity at the Council's Jan. 16 meeting to consider these conclusions and voice opinions of city needs.

The meeting will be a prelude to the filing of an application by the city for community development funds.

The late meeting will be held in the enviable position of having granted to them under the 1974 Housing and Urban Development Act specific amounts to continue and maintain urban renewal efforts already under way. Prestonsburg, which was one of the area pioneers in urban renewal, is not in that group, however, since its original projects were completed prior to that time, and must compete with the 21 other communities for a share of the $8.7 million remaining.

The 1974 Act is a special revenue sharing-block grant type of program, which replaced several programs formerly funded by HUD. The new act consolidates these programs and calls for one single yearly application for funds designed to eliminate neighborhood blight and provide low- and moderate-income housing.

The late meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall. "What we are trying to do at this point," H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., chairman of the Planning Commission, said, "is to get Prestonsburg in compliance with the 1974 Act so that the city can benefit from remaining funds."

He expressed the opinion that it may be three years before any significant amount of money is received.

Working in the development of a comprehensive program and toward its implementation are Steve Mooney as planner and Vol. Sage and Plun, consultants, as expeditors.

Long-range plans which have been discussed include flood insurance, bikeways, updating of utilities service, new streets connecting the high school and college, and an ordinance requiring all utilities lines to be underground, new facilities for city government, parking, housing, strict zoning laws encompassing the area in a five-mile radius of the city limits.

Types of activities currently being given strong consideration include construction of a parking garage in the downtown area, construction of midrise housing near the downtown area for the elderly, providing of water and sewerage service to the top of Abbott mountain, and improvement of Archer Park.

In addition to Mr. Fitzpatrick, the housing commission is composed of Rebecca H. DeLoach, Leo Weddell, Edward Naim, Cloyd Johnson Gene Wright, H. C. Francis.

Bluegrass Music Stars To Appear Thursday Night at Betsy Layne

Probably the two most prominent names in bluegrass-mountain music as well as a third popular group will appear in live concert, Thursday night at 8 p.m. at the Betsy Layne Fieldhouse.

Ralph Stanley and his Clinch Mountain Boys, Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys and the Marshall Family will present one show each for country music fans from the Eastern Kentucky area.

Ralph Stanley is best known for his traditional, mountain sound and is recognized as one of the founders of the modern bluegrass banjo style. Stanley is always a crowd pleaser, especially in the mountains, because of his mixed repertoire of lively, "toe-tapping" numbers and old, "lonesome" religious tunes.

Bill Monroe, recognized as "The Father of Bluegrass Music" originated the bluegrass music style in the 1930's and continues perhaps more popular today than ever. Some of this Grand Old Opry star's best known hits include "Blue Moon of Kentucky," "Trace the Little Footprints in the Snow," "Uncle Pen," "Molly and Tenbrooks," and dozens of others.

Along with the Marshall Family, a widely known and respected singing group, the show promises to be one of the best of its type ever to play the Floyd county area.

Carroll Stops Chairlift Pay

Gov. Julian Carroll last Wednesday stopped payment of $12,000 to Camberland Falls Chair Lift, Inc., and thus revived an issue which had been believed settled when by agreement of the parties involved the firm's suit was dismissed by Circuit Judge Henry O. Meigs.

The $12,000 was agreed upon to reimburse the firm and its president, Ed Meigs, of Prestonsburg, for the cost of machinery not used and other expenses incurred in the abortive attempt to install the chairlift at the state park.

Mr. Meigs told The Times last week the amount agreed upon covered the expenses except for approximately $3,500 spent on a feasibility study.

Stopping the payment, Governor Carroll said, "If I can find a way not to pay it, I'm not going to pay it, and I'm not going to pay it until a court orders me to pay it."

C. Kilmer Combs, Pikeville, attorney for the chair lift firm, later announced he will institute court action to collect the amount agreed upon in settlement of the suit which was filed after Former Governor Ford had stopped the chairlift on the grounds that it violated a portion of the Wild Rivers legislation.

Robert J. Penn, attorney for the Department of Parks and for Ewart Johnson, parks commissioner at the time the chairlift lease was executed, said when asked why the case was settled rather than taken to trial.

"For the same reason you settle any lawsuit—because there was a definite chance on both sides that they could come out a lot worse. There was a very real chance that we could get hit with a much greater amount, plus the interest the longer the thing goes on."

Thirteen men and women spent a part or all of the Thanksgiving holiday with their family and friends as a result of a new furlough program begun during the holiday week by state correctional officials. Charles E. Stinson, corrections commissioner, stated that all of the prisoners returned to their respective prisons at the end of their visits. Furlough applications for upcoming holiday now are being considered.

Kentucky Afield
By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Kentucky's sportsmen know that the ultimate reward of any outdoor trip should be the delicious meals provided by fish and game, although some are discouraged because their fish always taste strong or their birds or animals "gamey."

The experienced outdoorsman knows that unpleasant tastes in wild meat or fish are often caused by improper handling. With proper care, both game and fish can provide some excellent eating, but handled improperly, they can taste terrible.

The first rule for proper handling is to clean and dress both fish and game as soon as possible. If there is no time for a complete cleaning, game should be eviscerated and kept as cool as possible until it can be dressed out completely. Fish should be kept alive until they are cleaned but any dead fish should have the intestines and gills removed at once. A fish with uncleaned eyes, red gills and firm flesh is still suitable for the table. Small pan fish, such as bluegill and crappie, are usually prepared by scaling and removing the head and intestines. Be sure to remove completely the kidneys.

Larger fish, such as bass, are best if they are filleted, since this process removes both the skin and bones, leaving only strips of fine white meat. The skin is often the source of strong flavors, and it should be removed from any large fish.

A good trick in dressing squirrels and rabbits is to soak the animals in cold water before skinning. This will keep loose hair from sticking to the meat. If any hairs get on the meat, they should be removed at once, since this is another source of objectionable flavor. Also, the meat should be inspected carefully and any bloody areas removed.

After the fish, birds or animals are cleaned, they should be cooked as soon as possible. If they are to be stored for more than a day or so, they should be frozen. An excellent way to freeze both fish and small game is to cover the meat completely in a container of water and put the container in the freezer. This protects against both freezer burn and against the meat picking up objectionable tastes or odors during storage.

Larger cuts such as large filets or cuts of venison should be wrapped in strong plastic or freezer paper and sealed tightly. In freezing any meat, it is important that the wrap be airtight.

Yearly subscription rates are: $6.30 in Floyd County; $7.35 elsewhere in Kentucky; $8.50 outside Kentucky.

FINANCIAL MANUAL AVAILABLE TO COUNTY OFFICIALS

A new manual to guide county officials in the handling of public funds, including those received through federal revenue sharing, is being distributed by the Office for Local Government of the Executive Department of Finance and Administration. The manual explains and analyzes the requirements of the state's revised statutes as well as other regulations that govern the accounting and budgeting of county funds.

Floyd Man Involved in Move To Ship Coal via Ky. River

A Floyd county native and the Lexington-based firm which he heads have boats barging coal down the Kentucky River for the first time in half a century. The first trip, from Beattyville, Lee county, to Madison, Ind., was completed Jan. 7.

Arnold N. "Nat" Cooley, formerly of Wayland, is chairman of the board of the Simron Corp., the firm which has taken to the river to deliver the products of its mines to market.

The first 1,500 tons of coal from mines from the Lee county area were bound for Madison, Ind., on the Ohio River, where most of it will be loaded into larger barges bound eventually for Brazil.

Simron turned to the river because of other transportation problems.

"The Kentucky River is very treacherous; everybody has been afraid of it," Board Chairman Cooley said.

But Cooley said railroad cars for shipping coal are harder and harder to get. "We can get cars two days a week and usually it's just one day a week," he said.

But Sims said the river shipping still will be about the same as by railroad. The firm plans to expand the practice. "We have two tugs on the river now, plan to have four within three months and eight three months later," Sims said. Each tug now is pushing two barges, but future plans call for three or four.

Jerry's RESTAURANT

Today more and more eating places specialize in only one kind of food. That's what makes Jerry's so special - especially at dinner time. It doesn't matter if you're hungry for steak or chicken, or savor tips in mushroom gravy, or maybe even shrimp creole or a juicy ham steak. Sometimes there is even saucy lasagna on the menu and sometimes roast turkey with all the trimmings. And always there are those green garden vegetables. You get a selection. Jerry's Restaurant specializes in making everybody happy with a different selection each evening. Choose from four entrees and select two vegetables. And for the same price, pick a soup or appetizer. Jerry's offers more than one kind of food - something for everybody.

"The railroad companies are three to five years behind in production of cars," he added.

Simron, in the coal business only since last August, was in an unusual position with its mine, however. "We're on the eastern edge of navigable waterways and the western edge of the coal field," Bob Sims, president of the firm, said.

"If we were any place else, we couldn't do it," he added.

To take advantage of the mode of transportation used almost a generation ago on the Kentucky, the company rounded up crews for two tugs, each to make half the trip from Beattyville to Madison.

"We decided to split the trip in half so each crew only has to learn half of the river," Sims said. "It also means boats won't be meeting each other in the locks or on those narrow bends."

The Kentucky River has locks every 15 to 20 miles while larger rivers, like the Ohio or Mississippi, have them every 200 to 400 miles.

Because it takes about two hours to pass through each lock, Sims says, river shipping on the Kentucky is more expensive. That's why it was cut out about 50 years ago.

Manpower No Bar To Coal Industry

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Manpower for Kentucky's coal industry will not be an obstacle in increased coal production, according to a recently completed study.

From 1973 to 1985, projected manpower requirements are only 10 per cent of the total manpower supply in Eastern Kentucky and only nine per cent of the available manpower in Western Kentucky.

The manpower assessment project was undertaken by Spindletop Research in Lexington in response to a proposal for coal manpower evaluation by Dr. Charles F. Haywood, secretary of the Kentucky Development Cabinet. The study is designed to provide a basis for coal manpower development under Kentucky's Energy Resource Utilization Program.

According to the study, increased foreign oil prices and the national goal to achieve energy self-sufficiency will, in the near future, mean market absorption of total coal production except for high sulfur coal. The impact on the state's coal industry could mean a 1985 production figure of more than twice the production of 1970.

Such expansion will require an additional 20,387 workers in Kentucky's coal industry.

To meet the manpower requirements the study recommends creating a task force to the Kentucky Energy Council to coordinate activities of state and private agencies in predicting mining forces and needs, developing training programs and technical curricula, monitoring job opportunities and placing workers in coal industry jobs.

Also suggested in the study is the creation of a multi-agency communications program relating to the coal mining industry.

Med Center Adds New Equipment

Highlands Regional Medical Center here has installed for evaluation on a trial basis a sophisticated new instrument which automatically analyzes blood serum and other body fluids.

The Automatic Clinical Analyzer (ACA), developed by the Du Pont Company, performs rapid and accurate chemical analyses that were formerly done manually. According to Jean Gable, chief technologist and manager of the clinical laboratory at the Medical Center, "the instrument represents an investment of about $75,000 and gives our laboratory the added capacity to respond to the growing need for quick and accurate diagnostic tests."

Chemical analyses represent the largest single group of clinical tests performed in the laboratory. The ACA will enable the existing clinical laboratory to accept increasing workloads without compromising efficiency. A test result can be obtained from the instrument in less than seven minutes, making it extremely beneficial in emergency cases.

The Du Pont instrument has a basic capacity of performing 30 separate diagnostic tests, and is expandable to 62 tests. Twenty-five are presently programmed on the Highlands Medical Center unit, and others are expected to be added over the next several months.

Tests performed on the ACA range from the simple analysis of glucose level in the blood to more sophisticated analyses such as liver-lactic dehydrogenase, used in suspected cases of liver disease.

Larry Daniels and Donald Hicks, medical technologists, recently completed a week-long training session on the operation and maintenance of the ACA. The training program, conducted at Du Pont's headquarters in Wilmington, Del., was performed with the same instrument that was subsequently shipped to Highlands.

Miss Gable added that the utility of the ACA for routine and emergency use makes it a valuable asset to the laboratory. "Consistently accurate test result to eliminate the possibility of human error," she said.

Fertilizer Shortage Seen If Gas Supply Not Made Available

Unless supplies of natural gas are made available soon, there will be an acute shortage of fertilizer this spring with resulting higher food prices, says John J. Feland, general manager of Southern States Cooperative Southern States supplies about 23 percent of the fertilizer tonnage used in Kentucky.

The warning came on the heels of an announcement that Farmers Chemical Company's large nitrogen manufacturing facility in Tunis, N. C. had been shut down due to a shortage of natural gas. Southern States is part-owner of the complex and receives 55 per cent of its nitrogen requirements from it.

"Natural gas is essential to the manufacture of nitrogen which, in turn, is an indispensable ingredient in practically all fertilizers used for food production. Making all the nitrogen products used in agriculture requires about 2 percent of total U. S. natural gas supplies."

Besides having an adverse effect on food costs, a shortage of fertilizer will mean worsening food shortages and a further deterioration in the nation's balance of payments situation, Feland said.

"What is needed is immediate action by Congress and the Federal Power Commission to make good on government pledges made earlier to the effect that farmers should have the fuel and fertilizer they need to produce the food that's needed," the co-op official declared.

He cited Senate Resolution No. 89 which directed that "the Federal Power Commission and appropriate state regulatory agencies do everything within their power, in the establishment of priorities for the allocation of natural gas to insure producers with supplies of natural gas sufficient to maintain maximum production levels."

In addition, Feland said, President Ford on October 15 promised "every farmer the fuel and fertilizer he needs to do the job."

Community Services Program At PCC Offers Varied Studies

Everything from string music to Old Testament learning to pottery, weaving and other vocations, crafts and interests are covered in the Community Services Program of Prestonsburg Community College.

One of the most interesting and successful new activities in the Program are the classes in violin, viola, cello and string bass. During this semester there will be two sections, both of which will meet on Thursday nights, beginning January 16, in Room 155 of the Johnson Administration Building. Class A will meet from 8 to 9:15 p.m. and will be for those who have never had lessons before. Class B will meet from 8:30 to 7:45 p.m. and will be comprised of those who have had a semester of strings. Buddy Ratcliff, talented Martin musician, is the instructor for these classes. For those who desire individual lessons, arrangements may be made through the Office of Community Services.

Beginning guitar classes will be taught on Tuesday evenings by Troy Calhoun in Room 159 of the Johnson Administration Building. Section A will meet from 6 to 7 p.m.; Section B, from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. Enrollment is limited to 12 in each section.

Intermediate guitar class, Section A, will be taught by Bill Frazier on Tuesdays, Room 159 of the Johnson Administration Building, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Section B will be taught by Troy Calhoun on Thursdays, Room 159, Johnson Administration Building, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. The sections will begin Jan. 21 and 23, respectively.

An introductory course to the Old Testament will be taught by the Rev. W. D. Jagers, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. Mr. Jagers is a graduate of Georgetown College with a major in history. He received the bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, where his major emphasis was in Old Testament studies.

Taught as an introduction to the Old Testament, this class will meet in Room 114 of the Pike Technology Building, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Mondays, January 20 through April 14. A text will be required. Tuesday, January 21, at 7 p.m. in Room 113 of the Pike Technology Building, there will be an organizational meeting for the following non-credit, secretarial courses: Legal Terminology, Medical Terminology, Intermediate Shorthand, and Secretarial Procedures. Each class will be scheduled to meet the convenience of instructor and student. provided there are enough students to justify the class. Legal Terminology will be taught by Richard E. Fitzpatrick, Prestonsburg attorney and county juvenile judge. The other classes will be taught by members of the college staff.

Sewing, which has always been a popular class, will be scheduled beginning the week of January 20. Interested parties should call Alice Buchanan, Phone 886-6431.

A new dimension is offered this year in the area of arts and crafts. Two guilds will be formed this spring, one for persons interested in pottery-making, the other for those interested in textile crafts such as weaving and macramé. The guilds are educational in nature and have as their primary purpose developing craftsmen, including hobbyists, and stimulating their artistic achievements. Open house will be held January 21 for those who think they might be interested in joining either or both of these guilds. The event will take place in the Magoffin Complex Building A from 6:30 p.m. Some craft work will be on display and information concerning the guilds will be available.

Chairman of the textile or weavers guild is Gurney Bolster, currently of the Quicksand Craft Center at Vest, Ky. Naomi Powell, also of the Quicksand Craft Center, is chairman of the potters' guild.

Community Chorus Meet Scheduled January 20

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will meet Monday, January 20, at Prestonsburg Community College, at 7 p.m., and at that time will begin work on the Carmina Burana, by Carl Orff, which it will perform in April.

The chorus, which has been in existence 10 years, is composed of lay musicians. Anyone interested in singing good choral literature is eligible and is invited to join the group. According to Gus M. Kalos, director of the group, the chorus will need to add many new voices this semester. Persons interested in joining the group should attend the first meeting.

A home that is too dry must be kept warmer than one with the proper humidity level in order to give the same comfort. So a humidifying device is a good investment, whether it is installed with your heating plant or is a free-standing electric humidifier.

BURNIS MARTIN THANKS the PEOPLE

Last October in an "OPEN LETTER" I asked the County Judge for help in getting a drunken driver off our highways where school buses and church buses run twice daily.

Since that time hundreds of good people have gone out of their way to congratulate me on my OPEN STAND, including some of my past severest political critics, and many have wondered whatever happened to the case.

Please be advised that on Dec. 12th I personally appeared in County Court and cooperated and assisted in every way possible, as did the County Attorney, the County Judge and the Sheriff. The driver was fined $100 and costs and he handed the court his driver's license and he has since moved from my community.

I would like to think that my community and the school bus and church bus drivers now have a safer highway to travel and that I have made a small contribution; yet, I must confess that I feel a good bit of COMPASSION for those of us who succumb to the frailties of mankind and need a helping hand.

Therefore, I do not propose to follow this driver into his new community and usurp the duties of the elected officials; however, I shall always promptly honor any request authorized by the County Attorney, signed by the County Judge and executed by the Sheriff.

Again, I publicly thank the people, the County Judge, County Attorney and the Sheriff for their cooperation and promise that I shall try to avoid any "Political Sniping" at any of the officials, for, if elected to the office of Commonwealth's Attorney, I would have to work with them and I sincerely hope that they feel the same way toward me.

Very Sincerely,
BURNIS MARTIN

The Old Clabe Jones Place

By GEORGE L. MOORE

It has always been a custom in the hill-country for one to achieve a certain notoriety in order to be designated as Old So-and-So. Most certainly Old Clabe Jones gained such notoriety very early in life.

Most of the writers who wrote about him referred to him as in certain sections of Eastern Kentucky when feuding was at its height. Many stories have been told about his feud with Talt Hall and other mountain clans. According to his own account, most of his life had been spent outside the law. It seems that he was elected jailer of Knott county while still confined in jail. They called him the jailed jailer.

Long before the turn of the century, he migrated to Carter county and purchased a farm that was located between Arab Fork and Clay Fork of Sinking Creek. It has since become a part of Elliott county and is located about three miles from the Carter county line.

Just why Old Clabe came to these parts to purchase land is not known but the farm did have some features that must have appealed to him. The farm was surrounded almost entirely by a continuous cliff well over a hundred feet high. It could be approached only from the west side. It provided a sort of a natural fortress for one who had made a lot of enemies—and, according to Old Clabe, he had accumulated more than his share of them down through the years.

He seemed to have assembled a number of horses here of assorted kinds and colors. Just where and how he acquired these animals was a secret that only he knew and he was not one to divulge secrets. He disposed of these animals, as he put it, further down in the settlements. One irate man discovered a horse in the corral which he claimed had been taken from his place at night without due compensation. It was also without his knowledge or consent. The man must have been correct as he was able to convince the court that Old Clabe did not have legal title to the animal in question. At any rate, the result was a sentence in the state penitentiary.

He had not finished paying for the place when he was sent to prison and so it was sold and he lost possession.

The first thing he did when he returned from prison was to retrieve his ancient weapon that he had left with a friend. It was a 44-calibre pinfire revolver that he called "Old Phoebe" (pronounced feeble). At the present time it is owned by Newton May, of Prestonsburg. With his ancient weapon he headed toward his beloved farm. He arrived late in the afternoon and found that his cabin was now occupied by a Dutchman and his wife.

Without being invited, he poked his head through the door and inquired, "Who owns this place now?"

"I do," was the reply.

Old Clabe stepped inside and pressed the Dutchman harder. "Now are you shore that you have the proper title to this place?" The angry Dutchman exploded. "Lissen mister, this place use to belong to a damn hoss thief but it is mine now."

That did it. "I'll give you five minutes to get yore things together and leave here for good," said Old Clabe as he unleashed Old Phoebe. As the Dutchman and his wife made a hasty retreat, Old Clabe sat down and consumed a warm meal that was left on the table.

For several years following, although he did not own the place or have any title to it, he controlled the place completely. Anyone who was bold enough to try to live here soon found himself in trouble. His stock would be killed; his rail fences would be burned to the ground, and sometimes a bullet would tear through the door from the nearby woods.

When my father moved here around 1890, it was not long before Old Clabe paid him a visit. He told my father that he would never be bothered by fear, that he would never be bothered by him. My father had known him for many years in Floyd county. Like Old Clabe, my father had been on both sides of the law and the two of them had been friends for years. My father probably knew him as well as any man. When discussing him with someone else, he would preface his remarks by saying, "Old Clabe was a holler." Each year for many years he would come down from the mountains in the autumn and spend several weeks at the farm. On such occasions he would often help with the work about the farm.

Once, they were harvesting corn and my mother took them some water. She said that Uncle Clabe was relating to the others how he was surprised one time by three men on a heavily wooded trail. He said that they forced him to get down on his knees and beg for his life. My mother said, "That must have made you very angry, Uncle Clabe." "Well, Sarah, it did make me mad but just remember this, them three fellows have long since been resting at the bottom of a sinkhole, covered over with a few rotten chunks of wood, while Old Clabe is still here cuttin' up corn."

He told my mother that he would sometimes look them some water. She said that he would hate them so that he would get out of the bed and sit up for hours just to hate them. There is one thing that still remains on the farm just as Old Clabe left it, almost a century ago. It is called Old Clabe Jones' Meat House. It consists of a triangular-shaped rock cave that extends some 60 feet under the hill. As it extends under the hill, there is a sharp elevation about midway. After hogs were fattened on mast in the woods, they were rounded up and penned at the mouth of the cave to be finished on corn. After the hogs were slaughtered, the dressed meat was suspended from the ceiling in the back of the cave. This provided a natural cooling system as well as a protection from the wild animals that prowled the forest.

In later life, so I have been told, Old Clabe became quite religious. He joined the church and became an ardent church-goer. He spent his last days in

Maytown Teacher Honored

By EDNA CLICK

Academic Therapy Publications of California announces that Mrs. Wilma May, of Maytown, has been accepted for inclusion in the first edition of "Outstanding Teachers in Exceptional Education," the international biographical index of recognized teachers in the field. Admission is based upon one's record in the sphere, and community endeavors.

Mrs. May assumes she was nominated by Dr. Roger P. Elser, state director of special education in West Virginia, because he once named her the most outstanding teacher of retardates in that state. Mrs. May taught the retarded in West Virginia, lectured there and in Virginia, in colleges, universities, workshops, seminars, schools, P.T.A.'s, Women's Clubs, statewide meetings of AFRC, nurses' associations and other groups concerned with retardates. Her articles on this work were published in magazines and by the West Virginia Department of Education. Her plans and ideas were used in various states and Canada. She appeared on television and radio in behalf of the little folks, raised funds for them before assistance was received from state and federal government. She taught special education one semester in this county.

Mrs. May's lectures, recorded by Madison College in Virginia, are still in wide use. She received two scholarship offers for her doctorate. Willis Knight, director of special education for Madison, asked her to head its summer workshop, in his absence. Dr. Al Blumberg, then director of special education for Marshall University, offered Mrs. May a position on his staff, though both he and Knight knew she had only an A.B. She graduated magna cum laude from Morehead University in 1959, and received an offer of a science scholarship through the late Dr. Fenton West. These offers were declined by the recipient, who prefers the role of wife and grandmother.

Writing has been a favorite hobby with her. She sold her first articles to Better Homes & Gardens, has sold to leading U.S. elementary publications and to Christian magazines. When her book, "A Teacher Views the School Crisis," came off the press in 1967, she gave a series of lectures at Mississippi Southern, her alma mater.

Mrs. May has served as governor of the Seventh district of Kentucky Federated Women's Clubs, for two years was its chairman of Spiritual Values. Some remember her as founder of the Floyd County Speakers' Bureau, the Mountain Pageant in Norton, the Floyd County Hall of Fame, the Maytown Flower Show, and other projects.

More recently, she and her husband, Edgar R. May, president of Columbia Gas Company, have been busy helping start the Maytown Baptist Chapel, and build the Maytown First Baptist Church, whose progress astounds many. As a result of their work, Dr. Wendell Belew, of Atlanta, director of missions for the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, has been trying to persuade the Mays to make the chapel feature them in his next book. As a girl and young woman, Mrs. May had a standing invitation from Auber J. Wilds, head of state B.T.U. work, to address the Mississippi Baptist Sunday School and B.T.U. convention annually. She cherishes the memory of appearing on its 1924 program with the renowned late Dr. George W. Truett. She spoke in county and district meetings, taught study courses, taught in statewide Baptist assemblies, organized B.T.U.'s for blacks and whites in the South, founded the first Baptist Sunday School in Hardy county West Virginia, in 1950 during residence there.

What To Do in January

By NEVILLE SHACKLEFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Along about this time of year, gardeners, who spend much of their time during spring and summer down on their knees along rows of small plants and shoots in positions of worship, begin to sense an indescribable urge deep within them.

This, no doubt, as psychologists hint, is because that, in their long and intimate relationship, the gardeners take on certain characteristics of the seeds and plants they nurture. Thus in January, when deep in the ground some subtle force of nature begins to stir the sap in trees, trouble the roots of dandelions, and warn the seeds of last fall's sowing to start awakening, this same force creates a faint stir in the gardener's blood also.

Then in January come the seed catalogs. Although the wind outside may be roaring like fury in the bare treetops and snow may be piling up on the window sill, these catalogs indicate sure as certain that spring is once again on its way around the bend.

To help weather out the balance of the winter—the "winter of our discontent"—gardeners can pass off the time by thoroughly perusing and making selections from these marvelous and reliable periodicals sent out by commercial seed companies.

Organ Donor Card

On Driver's License

All licensed drivers throughout Kentucky will be given a new opportunity when they receive their new driver's license beginning January 1. An opportunity to save someone's life will be extended to each driver by merely signing the uniform organ donor card on the back of the newly designed Commonwealth driver's license.

Legislation recently passed has resulted in the donor form on the license. The form must be signed by the driver and two witnesses of legal age, according to Mrs. Bruce Spradlin, Floyd County Chairman for the Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky. Mrs. Spradlin says the form then becomes a legal document under the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act. The driver has the opportunity of donating specified organs or any needed organs. Also, he may donate his entire body for anatomical research.

In a state-wide effort to publicize the new donor form, the Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky has united with the Kidney Foundation of Kentucky, the Kidney Foundation of Greater Cincinnati, the Regional Kidney Sharing Network funded by the Ohio Valley Regional Medical Program, and the Kidney Disease Institute. Working together with AIDE (Associated in Donor Enlistment) the group has already outlined and begun working on a two-year enlistment campaign.

Approximately 1,000 Kentuckians die each year from kidney disease. Increased availability of kidneys would significantly reduce this number.

Further information regarding the new driver's license and donor card may be obtained by contacting the Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky, 366 Waller Avenue, Suite 106, Lexington, Kentucky 40504, 277-2196.

There is something heartening and inspirational in the pages of these books. They show pea pods that dwarf bananas, beans that grow high as privet hedges, corn that rears its golden tasseled tops to heights associated only with the giant Sequoias of California; and beans that are worthy of being lineal descendants of that ancient seed of kind that figured so prominently in the horticultural feat performed by that fairy tale character known as Jack.

With the catalogs, gardeners can compare their assortment of seeds saved from favorite varieties and make out orders for new varieties that have recently been developed by horticultural specialists. When the time of this they can go down into the basement and repair seed boxes and examine, clean, sharpen, and repair garden tools.

They can look over the stored tubers to see that they are not suffering from too much moisture or the lack of it. They can mix up some potting soil for propagating seeds indoors and if the soil has not frozen or wet, can go out and spade up the flower bed. This action, whether in a garden or flower bed, will expose the soil to beneficial effects, UK Extension specialists say.

The freezing which will most astutely come in January and February will break apart the heavy clods and expose the eggs of many injurious insects to the effects of sun, wind, cold, and food-hunting resident birds. All of these factors will make for better gardening. January is also a month in which garden planting can best be planned. During the "bad days," when basking in the warmth of the baseburner, visualize your garden and figure out where you will later plant your peas, potatoes, stickbeans, tomatoes, gladioli, and snapdragons. This will help a lot later in the year.

Traditionally, at least in Kentucky, the official planting season begins in February. Sallet peas should be planted on February 14 and Irish potatoes put in the ground during the "dark nights of March," according to old-time gardeners. Deciding in advance just where these two crops will be planted will save time later on.

January will also be a good month in which to contact your county Extension agent. He will have all the latest information on new vegetable varieties, methods of cultivation, and recommended insecticides to help control garden pests and diseases. A short visit to his office will be most beneficial and contribute materially to the success of the coming garden season.

Something else to do in January is to have patience. Settle down, browse through the seed catalogs, reread garden bulletins, prune apple trees, and keep the bird feeder stocked. Enjoy what leisure time there is and know that the sun has reached the end of its tether and is on its way back with the busy hours of springtime in tow.

USDA Plans Increase

In Food Stamp Cost

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Food stamp recipients would pay a standard 30 percent of net income for their food stamp allotment, effective March 1, under an amendment to food stamp regulations proposed today by the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The intention to propose this increase was announced in President Ford's Budget Message of Nov. 26.

The proposal would mean an increased purchase requirement for all households except (1) certain households of eight or more persons, which have been paying 30 percent of income and (2) those entitled to free food stamps under the law (one and two persons households with net monthly income of less than $20 and all other households with income less than $30).

For example, a four person household with a monthly net income of $150 after allowable deductions (e.g. taxes withheld, shelter cost over 30 percent of income, medical expense over $10.00 and child care expense) now pays $41 for $50 in food stamps. Under the proposed formula, that household would pay $46 for its food stamp allotment.

The proposal is in line with the provision of the Food Stamp Act specifying that the amount a household pays for its food stamps should represent a reasonable investment on the part of the household, not to exceed 30 percent of the household's income. Current purchase requirements vary widely in percentage of income. Today's proposal is designed to remove the differentials in percentage of income paid for the food stamp allotment by providing that every household with the same income pays the same purchase requirement.

The proposed amendment will be published in the Federal Register of Friday, Dec. 6, 1974. Written comments should be mailed or delivered to P. Royal Shipp, Director, Food Stamp Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250 so as to be received not later than Dec. 27, 1974. Comments received will be open to public inspection.

1,290,000 REGISTERED FOR WELFARE
The WIN II program, which stresses jobs for welfare recipients, registered about 1,280,000 persons on public aid during the 1973 fiscal year, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

Three P'burg Students On Transy Dean's List

Three students from Prestonsburg—Elizabeth Ann Burchett, John Woodford Howard, and Marilyn Rose—have been named to the dean's list at Transylvania University in Lexington for the recently completed fall quarter.

Miss Burchett, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burchett, is a sophomore history student. Mr. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris S. Howard, is a sophomore pre-med student at Transylvania. Miss Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rose, is a senior student majoring in music and theater arts.

The participation of single men in the labor force has advanced from 61 to 66 percent since 1970, according to the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In January Project

Miss Brawnie Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Astor Hall, of Harold, is a participant in the Kentucky January Project, an educational program of the University of Kentucky College of Allied Health Professions.

Each January, students and faculty from various departments in the College of Allied Health Professions, along with students from the Colleges of Pharmacy, Nursing, Dentistry, Social Professions, and Education and Lexington Technical Institute are formed into interdisciplinary teams and are assigned to health care settings throughout the state. Approximately 170 students representing 12 academic disciplines are participating in this year's program. They are working in 28 teams in 20 Kentucky communities. More than 100 health agencies are participating in the project.

Miss Hall, a student in radiologic technology, is a member of the Kentucky Baptist team.

Valley Air Commuter Service Talked But Air Field Lacking

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The possibility of increased air commuter service for several eastern Kentucky cities was recently announced by Secretary of Transportation Billy Paxton.

Paxton said a study into the feasibility of increasing intrastate air service had indicated a potential demand for air commuter service in Kentucky is high enough to operate a system with a reasonable amount of subsidy.

Presently, the Ashland area is provided limited commuter service by Piedmont and Allegheny Airlines at the Tri-State Airport in Huntington, West Virginia.

The initiation of a state subsidized service would connect the area with central Kentucky cities such as Frankfort and Lexington, and provide more convenient flying schedules for area businessmen.

The study researched 21 communities throughout the state to be able to recommend the most service to the largest passenger markets while minimizing state subsidies.

Pikeville was found to be able to support a commuter service with relatively slight subsidy, due to the limited access provided by the highway system in the area. But the facilities at Pikeville's existing airport cannot support regular operations of these routes on a recommended schedule.

Proposed for consideration are three routes with two round trips per day.

Paducah to Hopkinsville to Bowling Green to Louisville; Somerset to Frankfort to Cincinnati; Ashland to Frankfort to Louisville; Glasgow to Louisville; Somerset to Lexington, and a Somerset to Danville to Louisville route.

Over 200 Prove ADP Is Success

Lexington, Ky.—It had all the appearances of a gala college homecoming: men greeting each other with hearty handshakes and slaps on the back, women chirping and blushing, demure kisses on each other's cheeks, exclamations of delight resounding through the corridors and cups raised in salute to each new arrival entering the hall.

It was a homecoming, but not of the usual variety. The celebrants were indeed graduates but unlike institutions for higher learning, this was a homecoming for recovered alcoholics. These had graduated from the Alcohol Demonstration Project (ADP) located on the grounds of Eastern State Hospital in Lexington.

The more than 200 persons gathered to celebrate the second anniversary of the ADP were conscious of the fact that since its inception in November, 1972, 705 individuals have been processed through the project—401 in 1974 as compared to 304 in its first year of operation.

A majority of these gathered for the homecoming had undergone a 30-day, voluntary in-house residence program for alcoholics. They had been serious about obtaining sobriety and gaining insight into their personal problems, of which alcohol was only a symptom.

They had been given opportunities for self-learning, participated in group discussions and been educated about alcoholism and alcohol. They had come to the realization that the ultimate victory over alcoholism rested in the awareness that there was something about themselves that would have to change.

They had persevered throughout the duration of the 30-day program. They had come to understand that the goals they had set for themselves would not come easily. They were to wage a battle against outside forces and even more insidious elements within themselves. With the assistance from fellow residents and the responsiveness of staff personnel and backed by their individual determination to succeed, they had all earned a precious degree—a degree of self-esteem.

Dr. Dale H. Farabee, speaking before the assembled graduates and guests, recalled the time when he, as commissioner of the Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Health Services, had first toured the proposed facility. It had appeared to him, then, that a street battle had lately taken place and the building selected for the ADP had borne the brunt of a frontal assault. He remembered wondering why anyone in his right mind would visit such a place, much less desire to live in it.

It was the determination and dedication of the project planners that had persuaded him to assist through the Bureau for Health Services. Said Farabee, "Here, two years later, we are standing on a firm foundation. The demonstration project has been so successful that I wonder if the name should not be shortened to a simple 'Alcohol Project'."

Farabee added, "There is no longer any need to demonstrate that this program can do what it does. It is a success and every one here tonight is proof positive of that fact."

Nat Sullivan, ADP coordinator, Region IV, and Ken Hayford, projects director, were in agreement with the Farabee sentiments, while Mike Townsend, director, Community Alcoholism Services Projects, added that the use of non-degree professionals, backed by degree-bearing professionals, provided a program that cost considerably less than the traditional hospitalization methods. "We are curing the causes," said Townsend, "not just the symptoms."

Making Colds Uncommon Is Researchers Goal

Red noses and hacking coughs are mid-winter staples. Won't we ever cure the common cold?

Trouble is, the common cold is not a single disease that can be tracked down and wiped out. Colds are caused by viruses, which are slippery characters with a genius for surviving. Antimicrobial drugs that fight off some infections don't phase most viruses one bit. Cold vaccines are pretty hopeless, too. Vaccines only work against specific, targeted types; untargeted viruses pop up like ants at a picnic.

But there is a hesitant hope on the cold research horizon. Researchers are exploring the way our bodies naturally try to protect themselves against viruses and other infections. For example, the cells of our bodies produce a chemical called interferon which is an infection fighting antibody.

In a research study sponsored by the American Thoracic Society, the medical section of the American Lung Association, Dr. J. E. Rodriguez of the University of Iowa is attempting to determine just how interferon functions. He wants to find out if the chemical can be spotted in people who have respiratory infections. He wants to discover whether or not different levels of interferon are related to different virus attacks. And he hopes to see if different levels have any effect on how long the infection lasts.

Findings from studies such as this may offer a new line of attack against virus invaders. Investigators at the University of Iowa have successfully used an experimental drug that increases the body's production of interferon and prevents infection.

To join the fight against cold viruses and lung diseases, answer the Christmas Seal letter from the Kentucky Lung Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

14,000-Acre Mine To Be Opened In Martin Co. by Oklahoma Firm

The Norfolk & Western Railway announced last week that Mapco, Inc., of Tulsa, Okla., has exercised an option to acquire coal mining rights on 14,000 acres of undeveloped coal lands in Martin county.

The property is held by a wholly owned subsidiary of the N. & W. Pocahontas Land Corp.

Lawrence T. Forbes, N&W vice president for coal and ore traffic, said Mapco has indicated the new Puhki mine and preparation plant will be producing 1.4 million tons of coal a year by late 1978.

Initial production of about 100,000 tons is expected in the fourth quarter of this year, with about 600,000 tons in 1977 and more than 1 million tons in 1978, Forbes said.

Since it acquired the option 10 months ago, Mapco has conducted a coring program to provide the engineering data necessary for the completion of detailed mining plans.

Additional coring remains to be done, but indications are that recoverable reserves total more than 30 million tons of low-sulfur coal, Forbes said, and probable reserves to be determined by additional coring may exceed 15 million tons.

N&W opened a 24-mile, $22.4 million rail line to serve the area early in 1972.

Mapco's Puhki mine and cleaning plant will be its second operation in the area and the sixth facility to locate along the N&W's Martin county branch line since it opened.

Forbes said when both Mapco facilities reach full production in 1978, their combined annual output will be about 4.5 million tons.

By then, he said, the N&W expects to transport nearly 13 million tons annually from mining operation on its Martin county branch.

MANPOWER NO OBSTACLE IN COAL INDUSTRY

A recently completed study has determined that, with increased foreign oil prices and the national goal to achieve energy self-sufficiency, there will be a market absorption of total coal production, except for high-sulfur coal. Such expansion will require an additional 20,387 workers in Kentucky's coal industry.

Upon approval by Kentucky Public Service Commission we will offer the following optional calling plan hereafter called "OCP," to any customer of Harold Telephone Company, including Harold, Grethel and Wheelwright exchanges.

1. A customer desiring "OCP" must contract with Harold Telephone Company for such service and select the option desired.

2. Any customer who selects an option (either one-way or two-way) must make DDD station to station calls under any plan contracted for.

3. Charges for Business or Residence all hours service would be $5.35 for the first hour (per month) for one-way service and $5.85 per month (per month) for two-way service. After hours residence only service would be $3.35 for the first hour of one-way service.

4. One-way service means calls originating in Harold or Grethel and terminating in Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, Wayland, McDowell or Wheelwright, also calls originating in Wheelwright and terminating in Harold or Grethel.

5. Two-way service means all of 4 above plus calls originating in Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, Wayland, McDowell or Wheelwright and chargeable to a customer in Harold or Grethel or calls originating in Harold or Grethel and terminating in Wheelwright and chargeable to a customer in Wheelwright.

6. All hours is defined as 24 hour per day seven days per week.

7. After hours means the time from 5:00 P.M. thru but not including 7:00 A.M. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

8. After the first hour under OCP is used, the rate is broken into tenths, or six minute increments or fraction thereof.

9. The flat rate charge for the selected option will be added to the regular monthly rental rate. The additional tenths or fraction thereof will be charged in exact proportion to the OCP flat rate. Example: Residence option uses 68 minutes OCP time during a given month. The first $3.35 will show on the monthly bill as flat rate. An additional two tenths (one 6 minute plus 2 minute fraction thereof) would cost $3.66 extra.

10. Calls under OCP will not appear on the usual monthly itemized statement. Upon the completion of the upgrading program as proposed by the Company, only one-party telephone service will be offered to all customers.

A public hearing has been scheduled on the Company's application before the Public Service Commission of Kentucky in the Commission's offices at the Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Kentucky, on the 27th day of January, 1975, at 11:00 A.M., Eastern Standard Time.
