Flood Insurance May Be Revised

Non-Compliance May Not Mean Loss of Funds

If legislation amending the National Flood Insurance Act is voted by the Congress—and there is no apparent major opposition to it—communities in flood-prone areas will not lose any federal funds for failure to join the federal flood insurance program, a Washington report says.

Floyd county has not entered the flood insurance program as the present law provides, but the towns of Prestonsburg and Wheelwright have. So has Paintsville, but Pikeville and Coal River in Pike county are two which have not. Hazard in Perry county and Wallins Creek in Harlan joined the program but have been suspended because they did not comply with the prescribed federal guidelines.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins is among the 75 co-sponsors of the House bill amending the law.

Under the law as it now stands residents and business firms in flood-prone areas which have not complied with the insurance program will not be eligible for any federal loans or commercial loans from financial institutions that are under federal supervision, and communities themselves would not be eligible for federal grants or other aid.

The new legislation has been introduced in the House by Congressman Robert Mollahan, of West Virginia, would allow voluntary community participation.

Court To Help Protect Firm In Waste Job

Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, of Magisterial District 2, said Saturday that the fiscal court will take necessary steps to protect the franchise of Floyd County Sanitation, Inc. from competition of unauthorized garbage collectors as the company was set to begin its work in Magisterial District 1 and 2 this week.

Commenting on the investment the holders of the franchise have made in trucks and other equipment, Roberts said they must be assured they will have all the solid waste collection business in their franchise areas if they are to make their work worthwhile and worth continuing.

"If necessary, persons hauling garbage without a franchise will be prosecuted," he added.

The magistrate said the collection program is being begun with house-to-house collections and businesses permitted to participate on a voluntary basis. But, he added, "If our attempt to clean up the county doesn't work on a voluntary plan, we'll have to make it mandatory."

In preparation for the beginning of work, Floyd Sanitation has been contacting residents to establish a list of customers.

The contractor is required under terms of the court's franchise to make waste collections at homes once a week and from business places as negotiated. The Turkey Creek landfill in District 2 will be used for disposition of wastes.

The company will begin collection of wastes from Magisterial Districts 3 and 4 later. Okie Lawson, of Harold, who was granted the collection franchise for District 4, is expected to begin the service by July 1.

Days Out of School Legal—But Where Do You Find 'Em?

Kentucky has its share of calamity in the form of tornado, flood and snow, and the General Assembly in 1972 allowed the state's schools by law five "calamity days" per year—and yet there's no such thing possible, according to a State Board of Education regulation.

Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools this week discussed the anomalous situation which has created considerable confusion among teachers and school authorities.

Despite the 1972 action of the state's lawmakers providing for time off from school without the loss-time being charged against them, the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has a regulation to the effect that 175 days of actual classroom work is required for accreditation. FAIR WARNING

Having received from Homer Neeley a cordial invitation to visit his Lawrence county fish ponds "when they start biting," I hereby warn my host-to-be to arrange with the fisheries boys a complete restocking program.

STATISTICALLY SPEAKING

This fellow who signs his contributions, "Mumpsimus," gets down to brass tacks with this one. He writes of all the billions Congress is throwing around and asks if I have any idea what a billion dollars amounts to, which I do not. Then he adds: "If a billion one-dollar bills were laid end to end, they would reach 79,000 miles, or four times around the world."

Ask Mumpsimus about 30 billions and he mumbles in his beard.

HANG ON!

Don't let this sunshine and a few stray April breezes get you down with that vaporous condition more generally known as spring fever. I may decide, any minute now, to take a fishing trip, in which case relief in the form of rain, or blustery winds or perhaps a few inches of snow, or all three, will inevitably come.

Labor Trouble Hits Magoffin, Martin Counties

Floyd county apparently had no labor tensions this week, but neighboring Magoffin and Martin were embroiled in strikes which had resulted in the arrest of more than 100 mine pickets in the two counties.

The older of the labor situations is at the Martin County Coal Company's operations on Wolf Creek where picketing has been going on for a month or longer. Fifty-two pickets were arrested recently but charges against them were later dropped. Monday of last week, 48 more were arrested. They are under bond, with no hearing date set. Some of those arrested were taken to the Johnson county jail when the county jail at Inez became overcrowded.

The coal company has petitioned the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) for an election to determine if UMW representation is to be recognized. The company alleged that the UMW has been engaged in recognition picketing for more than 30 days without a petition to the NLRB.

In Magoffin county the situation has been tense. There the Joyce-Western Coal Company's strip-mining operation near Rovalton is strikebound, and approximately 30 were jailed last week on disorderly conduct charges. At issue is the alleged blocking of a road leading to the mine site and obedience to orders to open it.

Although most workers in both counties say UMW representation is desired, the Magoffin county workers had not petitioned an NLRB election as of last week.

Arnold Miller, UMW president, at an Inez rally last Saturday said union strike benefits for the workers there will continue.

Prater Cr. Boy Spelling Champ For Second Time

For the second time in his young school career 12-year-old Jackie Jarrell, seventh-grade pupil of the Prater Creek school is Floyd county's spelling champion.

He first won at the 1973 county spelling bee. Last year, he failed in a marathon spell-down, but he won again last Saturday. The youngster, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Jarrell, of Dana, won this year's bee when the runner-up, Eva Jean Ousley, 12, Clark school seventh-grader, missed "recommend."

When he spelled that one correctly, he had clear sailing with the next word, which was "recommendation."

Both the winner and the runner-up will represent the county in the Tri-State bee to be held in Huntington, W. Va., where a regional spelling champion will be named to compete in the national finals in Washington, D. C.

Other contestants in the spelling bee here Saturday, in the order in which they were spelled down, and the word missed by each follow:

Paul Halbert, 14, McDowell, "desert," Sherry Waddles, 9, Maytown, "maple,"

C. of C. Banquet Records "Best Ever" Attendance

Addressing a group of some 200 area citizens who last Friday evening crowded the dining room of May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg, Floyd County Area Chamber of Commerce President Ted Nairn concluded the Chamber's 1975 annual banquet by saying, "We have set one objective—that Floyd county will not participate in a recession."

Nairn's speech followed an address by Virgil Kinnaird, director of Housing and Urban Development in Kentucky and a prearranged speaker for the banquet. Kinnaird, a resident of Louisville, invited to the banquet at the same time that a prearranged speaker for $300,025 in federal funds for various improvements here was presented to his office by a group of Prestonsburg representatives. Kinnaird's talk carefully avoided mention of the grant application which has been criticized by Joseph R. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District and a letter from Kinnaird's office in reference to the prearrangement which was received here recently is considered "unfavorable."

The HUD executive spoke instead of the generalized problems facing the United States and told the group, "I have faith in the good sense of the American people and I hope you share that faith." Kinnaird was introduced by Prestonsburg Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. Harold Cooley presented a plaque to Kinnaird naming him an honorary citizen of Prestonsburg.

Past President Ronald Frause outlined the chamber's projects and accomplishments over the past year and pointed to the fact that Prestonsburg had an increase of 1,000 new jobs during the past year. Frause, who stressed the need for continuing and strengthened county-city relationships, also recognized various individuals present and introduced speakers, including City Manager Curtis Clark, Mayor Goebel and Prestonsburg store manager, Mike Blankenship.

Martin Meetings Set On $162,000 Program

The city of Martin has requested $162,000 in its pre-application for first-year Community Development block grant funds, and two 5:30 p.m. meetings have been scheduled at City Hall there for the public explanation of the Community Development Program and the improvements sought.

The first meeting will be held Thursday, April 10; the second, on the following Saturday.

The application for funds proposes three activities:

1. The acquisition of four dilapidated structures adjacent to the Beaver Creek bank, in coordination with the Corps of Engineers' flood channelization program and to provide additional parking in the downtown area after the stream improvement program is completed. This work would involve the relocation of four families who would not otherwise receive relocation assistance.
2. Development of an area adjacent to the new public housing project for the elderly as a "passive" park for residents of the housing project. This work would include construction of steps from the park to the housing project and also to the downtown area.

3. A progressive effort on the part of the City Council in the development of an overall housing program for the city by reviewing potential sites for moderate-income housing and exploring the possibility of establishing a rehabilitation program.

The first-year efforts admittedly are in a concentrated area but second- and third-year efforts will be discussed at the meetings, so that the community may participate in the program. Those interested in improvement of their neighborhoods are encouraged to attend, to present problems and suggestions toward their solution.

The city of Martin has submitted its pre-application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and has been invited by HUD to file its final application for the proposed development.

Wilbur J. Linder, of Vogt, Sage and Plum Consultants, Frankfort, will attend the scheduled meetings to assist toward the solution of problems which may arise.

Workman Found But His Return May Take Time

Four of the 82 cases docketed for trial at the circuit court term which will convene here next Monday are marked for trial on the charge of murder, but it is doubtful that more than two will be heard during the session.

Bobby Workman is slated for trial April 10, but Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said Saturday that he was located in Michigan only recently by FBI agents and that extradition proceedings were begun only last week. How quickly the governor of Michigan responds to Governor Carroll's request for extradition will decide if Workman, who is accused of the slaying on Arkansas Creek five years ago of James Chaffins, will be brought to trial.

Another murder case which is on the doubtful list is that of Robert Sykes, whose trial on a charge of murdering Mrs. Boone Deskins in Pike county has been shifted to the Floyd circuit court on change of venue from Pike county. The trial was stalled last fall by the demand of Sykes' attorney that witnesses who are serving terms in wisely scattered federal prisons be returned here to testify. Their depositions may suffice but it is not

Other Officials Received Raises, Squires Report

At least two of the county's four magistrates have complained, following the recent publication of their salary raises, that raises for other county officials were not published.

A check of the fiscal court records shows that at the Feb. 10 meeting the county entered an order setting the maximum compensation for the county judge, county attorney, county clerk, circuit clerk and jailer "not to exceed $15,667.20 per annum."

The order states that the maximum each of the five officials may receive a year was in compliance with KRS 64.527, was retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975 and was based on the change in the Consumers' Price Index applied to the 1949 base of $7,200 a year.

A county official pointed out that the maximum of $15,667.20 that is permissible for these officials annually does not mean that they must be paid this amount; rather, that that maximum is allowed if the fees of their offices amount to that figure.

The pay voted the magistrates is a flat salary and is not dependent upon fees, it was said. The magistrates' salaries were set at $500 a month, retroactive to Jan. 1—up $200 a month. Their per diem pay was eliminated.

Former Floyd Teacher And Daughter Injured

Last week ended badly for the Norman Creek family, of Abbott Creek, with two of its members being hospitalized on two consecutive days.

Grade schooler Reeva Gay Crider sustained cracked ribs and lacerations Thursday when the school bus in which she was riding ran into a ditch on the Abbott road. None of the children on the bus were seriously injured in the mishap.

Early the following morning, Mr. Crider was struck by an automobile

Idle Rolls Rise in State For Fifth Month in Row

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The number of jobless persons in Kentucky increased for the fifth consecutive month during February, with an additional 3,500 listed as unemployed.

Following federal guidelines approved by the U. S. Department of Labor (DOL), Kentucky's February unemployment rate is estimated at 7.4 per cent of the labor force, according to Bob MacDonald, labor market analyst, Bureau for Administration and Operations, Department for Human Resources.

During the month, several factors used in calculating the state's unemployment rate were changed, resulting in a lower rate of unemployment for the state than reported in previous months.

According to MacDonald, using the new method of calculating the rate and assessing the employment and unemployment in the state results in a more accurate look at the state's labor picture.

"This is something we have wanted to do for some time," he explained, "but until now, we could not gain federal approval."

He went on to say that the approval was granted after the DOL decided to adopt the new method in the future. When this occurs, all states will have to make the transition.

January figures show that an estimated 118,000 were unemployed during the first month of the year, representing a rate of 8.4 per cent. The new calculations revise those figures to 102,200 unemployed, or an unemployment rate of 7.2 for January.

According to MacDonald, 90 percent of the drop is the result of using a monthly total of unemployment insurance claims rather than an estimate based on one particular week. For example, the unemployment claims for the base week in January were over $100,000, but using a monthly figure, this decreased to $80,000, a drop of more than 11,000.

"This single factor made the greatest difference in the rate," said MacDonald, "and dropped the 118,000 to 106,000."

A further reduction in the 106,000 occurred when current population survey (CPS) figures were used. That CPS was conducted in Kentucky during January.

These factors, plus a change in estimating new unemployed and reentrants into the work force, has resulted in the reduced rate.

Changes which have been made will have little effect on the unemployment rates of the counties, MacDonald said. They have always used an average of monthly claims rather than estimates based on one week. Therefore, the new method will bring the state and county rates into conformity—they both will be based on the same formula.

But despite all of these changes, MacDonald cautions, "this does not change the trend of unemployment in Kentucky or the fact that unemployment is rising."

Rural Development, Full Use of Coal Urged by Senators

A stronger commitment to rural development and the full utilization of this nation's coal and other energy resources are necessary if this country is to prevent an era of migration to the large cities and metropolitan areas, according to U. S. Senator Walter Dee Huddleston.

The Kentucky senator said he is encouraged by the fact that since 1970 the small towns of America have grown at a 4.2 percent rate while metropolitan areas have increased at a 2.9 percent rate.

"To maintain this trend—which I believe is in the best interests of the nation—we must have a full commitment to rural development and programs that will enable these areas to develop the resources that they have," Huddleston added.

He cited the fact that the out-migration from Eastern Kentucky has been halted, and even reversed, in large part due to development of the region's coal resources.

Huddleston said the administration has never fully supported the Rural Development Act, "which could provide a great number of tools needed by rural communities to provide a sound economic base."

He also urged continuation of the Appalachian Regional Commission with emphasis on helping the Appalachian counties develop their coal resources while also insuring that some of the wealth created be returned to the coal-producing counties.

Another "Ski Resort"?

Towns along the Big Sandy rest securely, these days, while heavy rains which in other years would have meant disastrous flooding fall over a period of days. Last we forget, let's credit those flood control dams upstream for the new and happier situation.

Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Pikeville and all other communities in the valley should be more than thankful for these man-made reservoirs which hold back the floods. They should insist that steps be taken without further delay to guarantee the normal life and functioning of these dams.

Fishtrap Dam has been dramatically threatened with siltation "death." With that reservoir out of the protective chain of headwaters impoundments, communities downstream would return to days and nights of dread and annual loss of property as a result of flood. Dewey Lake is suffering from the same malady, and the watch state officials and the Corps of Engineers say they are maintaining there is little more than a death-watch unless something more than diagnosis is done to save the "sufferer."

At Fishtrap some $200,000 is scheduled to be spent this year to remove some of the heavy silt accumulation. But the record does not show what has been done, or will be done, there to keep more silt out of the lake.

At Dewey the state of Kentucky has had earmarked for more than a year now $750,000 for various improvements, mostly in Brandy Keg Cove where the state dock is located. Now, it is reported, a joint state-Corps of Engineers undertaking costing around $400,000 will center upon the same arm of the lake. Dredging of the harbor is one of the main items in the improvement program.

But not one cent has been marked for small dams in Johns Creek, above the lake itself, to slow the flow of coal dust and the daily load of lake life. Nothing has been done to keep the lake alive. The state has even refused to stock it with fish.

Apparently, Dewey Lake is to be no more than another "ski resort"—as long as it lasts.

known if their testimony in this form can be had in time for trial of the case during the term.

Two murder trials which stand a good chance of trial during the month are those of Richard Tackett whose first trial on a charge of slaying Claude Hamilton resulted in a "hung jury." Tackett and Gene Salisbury, who is charged with the slaying of Crit Butler.

The grand jury is expected to vote an indictment in the Jarrett Creek slaying of Vernon Hopkins, but trial during the April term is not expected.

Trials of Ed Wright, Jr. and Diana Rector as accessories after the fact in the slaying of Butler also are on the April trial docket.

Seventeen defendants booked for trial this month are accused of breaking and entering or grand larceny. Four are charged with the sale or possession of drugs and 10 with possessing, selling or transporting intoxicating beverages in dry territory.

Forestry Day, April 5 at Quicksand

The third annual Forestry Field Day that has attracted so much attention throughout Eastern Kentucky in the past will be held again Saturday, April 5, at the University of Kentucky's Wood Center at Quicksand. The festivities will begin at 9 a.m. and will continue throughout the day.

Although there may be some minor changes in the program for the day, Douglas McLaren, instructor, said the activities would consist mainly of contests in such forest related activities as firebredding, log rolling, cross cut sawing, bowsawing, pulp throwing, chain throwing, pole and rope climbing, tree felling, log chopping, and a tug of war.

These events, McLaren said, will feature contestants from students of the Forestry Program on the main campus of the University of Kentucky at Lexington, and a like number of students of the Forestry and Wood Technician School at Quicksand.

One of the featured events of the day's program will be a log sawing contest at Lexington, and a like number of students of the Forestry and Wood Technician School at Quicksand.

There will be valuable prizes awarded winners in each contest and as door prizes solely for visitors, there will be a solid oak gun cabinet and several other items manufactured at the Wood Center which contains some of the most modern furniture-making and handicraft machinery in the world.

Prizes for the contests will be awarded by forestry related industries in Kentucky and other states.

As the law now stands, to join the flood insurance program, a community must adopt building and zoning standards designed to protect buildings from future floods. Congress attached strings to the flood insurance program in 1973 after the government lost billions of dollars because Tropical Storm Agnes destroyed property which was financed by the government but not insured against flooding.

For the past year, HUD has been notifying those communities it finds are situated in flood-risk areas. The communities must enter the program by July 1 of this year or one year after notification, whichever date is later.

There is growing concern in Congress that many of these communities will not meet the deadlines and will therefore become ineligible for federal aid programs.

To date, about 6,000 or 15,000 flood-prone communities across the country have joined the program. Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., has introduced legislation in the Senate which is similar to Mollohan's House bill.

No hearings have been scheduled yet on either the House or Senate bills, but aides to Eagleton and Mollohan were confident that hearings would soon be put on the congressional calendars because of the approaching July 1 deadline facing many of the communities.

Mollohan's aide, C. S. Freed, said one of the problems encountered has been HUD's definition of a flood plain—an area likely to be flooded at least once in 100 years. This forces many low-flood-risk communities to join the program when they don't believe it is necessary, Freed said.

"There are some homes that have stood on flood plains two, three or four generations and have never been flooded. We can't sit here in Washington and say a house that gets flooded once every 100 years needs flood insurance or else it can't get federal loans," Freed said.

A HUD official, who did not wish to be identified, rejected Freed's argument, saying, "People have the attitude that it will never happen here, but it does."

Eagleton said there are also legal obstacles to participation. "Unincorporated communities have no authority to adopt zoning and building standards on their own," the Missouri senator said. "They must win approval through a county-wide referendum vote and, given the political volatility of the issue, that has not been easy."

Freed acknowledged that one of the main arguments against making the program voluntary is that if federal governments would lose money if buildings financed by government loans are destroyed by floods and not insured.

He countered this argument by saying that the various federal agencies granting federal loans and other financial aid should make a case-by-case analysis to determine if a home is located in a genuine flood-risk area. And, if so, the federal agencies should require flood insurance before awarding federal funds.

USDA Approves 5-County Group Work Program

The Big Sandy Resource, Conservation and Development Project (RC&D) headquartered here to serve five area counties has been approved by Department of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, it was announced in Washington last week by Kenneth Grant, head of the nation's Soil Conservation Service.

This means that both financial and technical help is on its way to develop resources in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, Grant said. The Big Sandy project is the third in Kentucky to win approval. The other two are headquartered at Somerset and Madisonville.

Kentucky SCS state conservationist, Glen Murray, said the persons involved in the states easternmost counties were well prepared for Grant's announcement.

"Citizens of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike, the counties served by the Big Sandy RC&D project, have more than 100 proposed project measures ready for activation," he said.

William Dempsey, of Prestonsburg, coordinator of the Big Sandy project, said the project is sponsored by the five county governments, the county conservation districts and four city governments. He said project measures are instituted by the RC&D Council, made up of three representatives for each county. Ollie J. Arnett, of Salyersville, heads the council.

The council's proposed projects involve agriculture, water control, improved housing, industrial expansion, waste disposal, fish and wildlife habitat development and other soil and water conservation measures. The Big Sandy RC&D Project is one of 158 in the U. S. coordinated by SCS.

Kentucky Afield

By MIKE SMITH
Guest Writer

"Are the crappie running yet?" "What's the water temperature at Hertington?" "Is Grayson Lake rising or stable?" These are just a few of the hundreds of questions anglers ask about Kentucky's major lakes. And it's because of this great interest on the part of the fishermen that the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources compiles and issues a special fishing report twice each week from early spring through late fall.

The statewide fishing report that appears in this paper is the result of teamwork, time and a lot of telephone calls. The report gets its start out on the 15 major lakes (lakes of more than 1,000 acres) where Department of Fish and Wildlife Conservation Officers make regular checks on fishing activity and water conditions. The officers pay particular attention to where and how the anglers made their catches. For example, the information provided by the officers may show that fishermen were catching crappie by still fishing minnows near drop-offs, or black bass at the heads of tributaries on live night-crawlers.

The fishing report also tries to let fishermen know how productive the fishing is. The terms most often used are "slow," for only scattered catches; "fair," for a few good catches but none in limit numbers; "good," for consistent fishing when several limits or near-limits are reported; and "excellent," when limit catches are numerous.

The fishing reports are compiled from the conservation officers every Monday and Thursday morning at the Frankfort office of Fish and Wildlife. The fishing report mornings start early, usually before six o'clock, because more than two dozen phone calls must be placed to officers around the Commonwealth.

When all the fishing information is put together and typed up, it is sent immediately to news wire services in Frankfort for distribution to wire outlets around Kentucky and into neighboring states. And on Thursdays the Department of Fish and Wildlife also mails copies of the report to more than 250 newspapers and radio and television stations.

The radio and TV stations also can receive a bonus service, a special tape-recorded fishing report every day. Each spring, broadcasting stations across the state receive the new unlisted "Code-a-phone" number they can call for updated fishing information. This service has become tremendously popular with stations over the past few years and many radio stations now make it a regular part of their broadcasting schedule.

Bass fishermen are especially interested in the water conditions. The angler who knows bass and knows the water they like can count on the fishing report to provide some very helpful information. In fact, some anglers have found that by clipping and saving the weekly reports from their local paper, they can build a "scrapbook" about their favorite lake. This provides a fairly accurate profile of the lake's fishing and water conditions throughout the seasons.

The fishing report is designed to be a help for the anglers, but obviously it can't answer all their questions or be 100 percent correct all the time. The annual white bass runs are especially tough to report on since the temperamental "stripes" can seemingly vanish from a river in less than a day's time. Despite occasional frustrations like this, the fishing report is one of the most dependable and reliable aids for the big lake fisherman—and a service your Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is happy to provide.

Finance Picture Brighter, Board Hears at Meet

The District 11 Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board was told at its March 24 meeting here that Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's financial situation is improved and that the squeeze on the agency's budget has lightened.

Ernest Brookhart, business administrator, pointed out that the financial report for February indicated significant progress was being made in the agency's efforts to restore a fiscal balance. A serious deficit resulted a few weeks ago in retrenchment and the layoff of approximately one-fourth MCCC's staff. Commenting on the report, Richard T. Stal, executive director, said he is optimistic that the end of the fiscal year in June will see a favorable balance restored. The report received by the IV-16 funds, which had been held up for months longer than anticipated at the state level, provided immediate relief from the squeeze on the agency's budget. It was the delay of these funds that forced retrenchment.

Terry Jackson, MCCC's district coordinator of information, screening, and referral services, presented the recently completed 1974 HELP Center annual report and briefly summarized its more significant aspects. The report shows that MCCC has made noticeable progress in developing and delivering the much-needed 24-hour emergency and crisis needs services for the people in District 11. These services consist of three units—an around-the-clock hot line service, the HELP line, manned by a trained staff; a 24-hour Walk-In Center, HELP Center; and a 24-hour drug and alcohol abuse crisis intervention unit, Layne House.

The report revealed a 52 per cent increase for the year 1974 over that of '73 in the number of calls coming through the hot-line service which required some type of crisis intervention and for which MCCC delivered services. There was a total of 2,261 contact for the year.

It presented a breakdown of the total number into categories according to the kind of help requested or needed, revealing that the HELP Line service had been utilized most by persons seeking help for general "problems of living," such as marital, family, dating and interpersonal. The second most highly requested category was for persons seeking help with the abuse of alcohol or other drugs, and the third—those seeking help for either themselves or someone close to them who suffered some form of disability.

Commenting upon the HELP Center, report, Mr. Stal pointed out that the recent remarks which have been much publicized concerning the general inefficiencies of HELP Centers around the state could not apply, in the light of such statistical evidence as the report, to a specific center such as that of District 11's and the services it is providing.

He commended the District 11 ISR team for a high level of professional performance in the actual delivery of services to people as well as for the outstanding job done in preparing the report. (The report was prepared by two of the District 11 staff—Bonnie Crisp and Robert Castle. Any interested person can acquire a copy of it by calling the toll free HELP-Line number—(1-800-422-1060).)

Other business included a report by Mr. Stal to the Board on the progress the MCCC staff is making on the preparation of the annual plan and budget and the continuation grant, both of which are to be completed in April. He asked the board to become actively involved in the process through an evaluation and approval process which would require additional meetings within the next few weeks. The Board set a meeting date for Monday, April 7.

Floyd county board member, Jane R. Combs, of Prestonsburg, suggested to the group that the board needs to become more actively involved in agency affairs in general and asked that state mental health regulations and guidelines for mental health board members, as well as the local guidelines, be reviewed during the next regular session. It was established as an agenda item for the next meeting.

The District 11 Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board Meeting is held monthly on the fourth Monday at the MCCC district office in Prestonsburg. The regular meeting time is 7 p.m. It is an open meeting to which all interested persons are welcome.

The March 24 meeting was held at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's district office here. Eight of the 20-member board were present. They were Willis Hays, president (Martin county); A. B. Conley, Patricia Rudd, Emma Jean Adams and Kelly Ranser (Magoffin county); Rev. J. I. Meyer (Fike county); Jane Combs and Cecil Sturgill (Floyd county); Eva Allen Horn, of Floyd county, was present by proxy. Also attending were 17 Mountain Comprehensive Care Center (MCCC) staff members.

COUNCIL TO MEET

The Area 4 Association meeting of Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council will be held April 9 at 10 a.m., at the Community Center building in Paintsville. All adult girl scouts, 14 or older, are urged to attend. Mrs. Charlie VanHose, chairman, will preside.

Tonics and Vitamins From Nature

YELLOW ROOT, OR GOLDEN SEAL. I strongly recommend this fine plant as a stomach medicine and for irritation of the bowels and mucous membranes. The powder snuffed up the nose relieves catarrh and nasal congestion. Dr. Myers says: "Yellow root is a powerful tonic; also, when used as a tea, it has a mild laxative effect." Oldtimers used to carry yellow root in the pocket to nibble occasionally for its soothing effect on the stomach. The root is bright yellow and has been used to impart a brilliant color to fine linens.

Golden Seal is a member of the Buttercup family. The plants produce two large leaves with five lobes. It often forms patches in rich, open woodlands. A teaspoonful of powder in a pint of boiling water makes a soothing lotion and a highly effective douche.

OKRA. Need more calcium in the body? Then eat plenty of okra pods. Calcium is highly necessary to build strong bones and sound teeth. A government bulletin states: "Okra is a natural source of calcium, phosphorus and has a fair amount of iron. It also contains Vitamin A and is valuable in the diet, as it provides bulk in the digestive tract."

I urge my readers to grow some okra in the garden this year. Sow a row of seeds 25 feet long: thin out as desired, and the plants will provide all the okra pods you need for your diet. Okra is a member of the Mallow family and you will be delighted with its lovely dark-purple blossoms.

SLIPPERY ELM, OR "RED ELM." This is one of the most important medicinal trees of North America. Unfortunately, the bark vandals have taken a heavy toll, and as I ramble through the woods I often find many naked, bleached trunks of slippery elm lying prone, stripped of all the bark. If you have a valuable slippery elm on the farm, by all means guard it well. The inner bark is soft, sweet and fragrant and may be eaten like candy. The Indians ate the bark for food, so did the pioneers. The bark used as a medicine soothes the mucous membranes and the stomach. It has the power to neutralize stomach acids, and is also considered the finest demulcent (soothing) medicine found in nature. The slippery quality of the bark soothes and lubricates the bowels. A poultice made of slippery elm bark is an oldtime remedy for sores and carbuncles. The powdered bark is often mixed with milk and fed to babies, especially when they are convalescing. The slippery bark is also used to make lozenges for sore throat.

The leaves of slippery elm are larger than those of other elms and are roughish-hairy to the touch. The flatish, rounded seeds, called "wafers," appear in early spring, before the leaves burst out. The tree grows in rich, rocky soils throughout the Tri-State, but unhappily it gets scarcer every year, due to raids by the bark peddlers. The tree is known to botanists as ulmus rubra, (red elm).

HOPS. I hope you will grow some old-fashioned hop vines this year. Hops are pretty and fragrant and as a cure for insomnia, have no equal. Gather two or three handfuls of the hops, place in a bag and sprinkle with alcohol, which brings out the aromatic and narcotic principles. Place the bag under your pillow and you will soon drift away into peaceful slumber.

The hops are the drooping pistillate clusters of the vines and are bitter and aromatic; they are used in flavoring beer.

When you start that diet, be sure that your meals, although reduced in size, remain well-balanced with the necessary amounts of the four basic food groups, recommend Extension nutritionists at the University of Kentucky. For information on planning well-balanced low-calorie meals, contact your county Extension agent for home economics.

Miss Hunt, Mr. Hale Wed

The marriage of Miss Ruth Carol Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hunt, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Rickert Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hale, of Harold, Ky., was solemnized Friday, November 8, 1974 at 3 p.m. The Rev. Dr. United Methodist Church in Prestonsburg.

Candlelight set the mood for the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Howard Cooper.
Brass candlesticks holding white tapers and decorated with magnolia sprays and flanked by palms completed the background. Tall brass candle standards holding white tapers marked the family pews. Small baskets, holding white tapers, magnolia leaves and wheat graced the windows of the church.

Mrs. Kathryn S. Frazier, organist, provided the music. For the prelude she played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and "Meditation." Elizabeth F. Sutherland, soloist, sang "The Greatest of These is Love," and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a designer gown of satin peau, enhanced with re-embroidered alemon lace, self ruffles and pearls. The high neckline, long, slim sleeves, empire waist and A-line silhouette complemented the attached chapel train. Her mantilla headpiece was floor length and she carried a harvest cascade bouquet of dried cordone puffs, eucalyptus, straw flowers and China flowers.

The bride wore her mother's pearls and her great-grandmother's wedding ring, carrying on the tradition of her mother and grandmother.

Mrs. Susan Roberts, Lexington, was matron of honor, and Miss Sharon Blandford, Lexington, was maid of honor. Both wore floor-length gowns of mint-green satin back crepe, featuring a V-neckline with long full sleeves. Both honor attendants wore headpieces of dried flowers and carried bouquets of dried artichoke, wheat and rabbits' feet tied with mint and forest green velvet ribbon.

The bridesmaids included Mrs. Carolyn Scherer, Lexington, Miss Janet Hale, Harold, sister of the groom, and Miss Linda Baldrige, Prestonsburg, cousin of the bride. They wore identical dresses, headpieces and bouquets to those of the honor attendants in forest green.

Michael Blackburn, of Harold, served as best man. Groomsman included Mr. Jerry Edmonds, Mr. Harry Sowards and Mr. Kane Hale, cousin of the groom, Harold, and Mr. Michael Moore, Pikeville. Mr. Moore and Mr. Sowards served as taper lighters.

Mr. Hunt attended her daughter's wedding wearing a coat and dress ensemble of pink and gray double knit. Mrs. Hale wore a mint-green double knit dress featuring a high neckline with sheer, long sleeves. Both wore white cymidium orchid corsages.

The reception was held immediately following the wedding in the church parlour. Mrs. Edna Carol Greenwald, of Prestonsburg, was in charge of the reception. Miss Pamela Goble, Prestonsburg, served the wedding cake, assisted by Mrs. Rhonda Hale, of Harold. Miss Mary Nunnery, Prestonsburg, served the punch. Mrs. Sharon Watkins, East Point, cousin of the bride, presided at the bride's register.

Mr. Hale is employed by the American Finance Company. Mr. and Mrs. Hale are now residing in Whitesville, West Virginia.

Danny Stephens

State Representative

My maternal grandparents: Bee Wicker and Rosa Belle Hicks; paternal grandparents: Eli Stephens and Fanny Patton Stephens.

Hughes Announces For State Senate

Lowell T. Hughes, Ashland attorney and former Prestonsburg resident, last week announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for State Senator from the 25th district which includes the counties of Boyd, Lawrence and Johnson and two precincts in Floyd.

The 37-year-old Hughes has practiced law in Ashland for the past 11 years. He is a native of Prestonsburg, and after graduating from Prestonsburg High School in 1966 received a B.S. degree from the University of Kentucky, College of Commerce in 1969 and an L.L.B. degree from the University of Kentucky College of Law in 1973. He currently is a member of the law firm of Caldwell, VanAntwerp, Welch and Hughes. He served for eight years as Master Commissioner of the Boyd Circuit Court and is presently a member of the Character and Fitness Screening Committee of the Kentucky State Bar Association.

This will be Hughes' first venture in politics, but his name will be familiar to many who followed his athletic career at Prestonsburg High School and at the University of Kentucky. Hughes was the first athlete at the University to earn varsity letters in football, basketball and baseball after Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones, and no athlete has done so since his graduation.

He has been active in Democratic precinct politics for years, formerly served as Boyd county Democratic chairman for the 100th Legislative district and has worked actively in past campaigns for Bert T. Combs, Wendell Ford, Julian Carroll, Carl Perkins and others. Auxier and Abbott voting precincts of this county are in the 25th Senatorial district.

EKCEP Gets Added Funds

The Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, Inc. (EKCEP), headquartered at Hazard, has been notified by the U.S. Department of Labor that it will receive $579,595 in additional funds under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1974.

The additional funds bring the total federal obligation to EKCEP under Title VI to $1,417,746, according to EKCEP Executive Director Virgil F. Osborne, who made the announcement about the grant increase. The $579,595 is actually a restoration of funds, bringing the total allocation close to the original grant ($1,500,000) the Department of Labor reported for the EKCEP area in early January.

With these additional funds, Osborne said, "we will be able to increase the duration of covered public service employment positions from the present six to seven months to a period of ten to eleven months. The funds also will create openings for 18 new public service jobs."

Title VI funds are to be used for public service employment activities through Feb. 10, 1976, in 22 Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd. Plans call for 92.4 percent of the funds to be used for wages of present public service employees and for 18 additional persons to be employed this month.

In Remembrance of Vertie Slater

Our community has lost a loving neighbor and a Christian lady.

But Mrs. Slater had to give away to ill health, which will come to all of us. She bore it with patience because of her very strong personality.

She was sick for several years, and would often mention to me about the lonely hours she spent during her confinement and how she desired so much to have some of the church members to come in, visit her and talk on the scriptures of which she was truly a scholar. If, as it seems, today everyone is as busy they don't find time to visit the sick.

It is such a pity to be stricken down after having been as active. All of a sudden all of that is taken from you. I'm sure so many times Mrs. Slater would have been so pleased to have seen some of the church members to stop by and talk to her.

I know her life. I grew up next door to her. Only wish God would let me be half the woman that she was.

When she was well, the night was not too dark to go to a neighbor in distress. If she knew children were hungry she went to their aid. Her mind was clear and her heart was pure, her door was always open to her neighbor, her table was always set, her counsel was good.

It is very easy to eulogize a lady like Vertie Slater. She loved to help the Stone Coal Church which she joined in 1935. As I look back I see how the building inspired.

In 1951 it seemed her mission there was completed with great improvement in our church, she led with the help of the Lord to return to the place of her birth to improve the Church in Coburn, Virginia, the place where her mother and father had worshipped. Having had a great hand in building a new building, she moved her letter to that beautiful place, only because she felt like she was going home.

I know, with no doubt in my mind, that Mrs. Slater is at rest and on that great day she will be raised with the saints, because she was a sister of Zion.

She leaves here in this troubled world a daughter and son-in-law, Bob and Tessie Campbell, who will miss her as much, they were so very good to her during her illness. But it pleased the Lord of Heaven to take her home on March 18, 1975. She was blessed to stay here with us for 81 years.

I think of her I have Paul's writing to Timothy in my mind:

"For I am now ready to be offered, the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me on that day."

Tessie, I know your heart is heavy, but being the virtuous, christian lady that you are, the Lord of Heaven will help you bear your burden of the loss of your dear mother. Hold up, take care of Bob who has helped you to bear your grief. Also think of Mike, Patty and Crystal and the rest of your lovely family and thank God for giving a lady like your mother to all of us.

As I have in my mind a quote from Proverbs: "Her children arise up and call her blessed."

She was taken to the Mullins cemetery, Coburn, Va., and laid to rest beside her husband, (he Slater, and son, Ike, Jr.). She leaves to miss her Tessie Campbell, her daughter; a sister, Mattie Gallion, of Jenkins, Ky.; a brother, Troy Mullins, of Wayland, and several nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

New Spoil Testing Program Cuts Reclamation Guesswork

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Some of the guesswork that has plagued strip mine reclamation.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service are now prepared to analyze spoil samples taken from strip mines and to make lime and fertilizer recommendations based on those samples.

According to Larry Springle, assistant director of the division of reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the new service will be valuable to proper strip mine reclamation.

"Spoil testing," said Springle, "will not insure successful reclamation because other factors, such as site preparation, are involved. But it will greatly improve the chance that the land will be productive and useful in the future."

State regulations specify reclaimed land must reach a pH level of at least 5.5 before any portion of the reclamation bond will be released. Regulations require one spoil acidity reading per acre. If the area is chemically uniform, a maximum of ten samples may be mixed together to obtain a composite sample, provided no more than ten acres is represented by the sample.

According to Springle, at pH levels below 5.5 the spoil is too toxic to sustain most plants and some of the desired plant nutrients, such as phosphorus, are not available. Many different species will not tolerate extremely acid conditions.

Springle said that since spoil testing is now available from the extension service, the reclamation division will expect surface mine operators to obtain the tests from the county agents or from other qualified laboratories which offer a similar service. However, Springle cautioned, a carefully taken representative sample of the spoil is absolutely necessary for best possible recommendations.

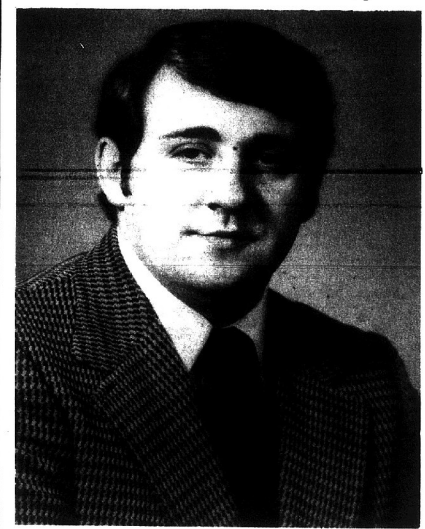

Representatives of a coal company will sample the spoil and take it to a cooperative extension service county agent. After the analysis has been completed, the agent will recommend rates of lime and fertilizer to the company representative. Springle said the agent's recommendations are based on information and research from the Department of Agronomy at the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Richard Barnhisel, a UK agronomy instructor, is working on a technique for determining the lime requirements of extremely acid spoils. Dr. Barnhisel recently finished two publications, one on sampling spoil and the other on interpreting the results, which are available from the Department of Agronomy, Agricultural Science Center North, University of Kentucky, Lexington, or from a local county agent's office.

More than 1300 handicapped Kentuckians attended resident camping sessions at Camp Kyoso, in 1974. Easter Seal gifts help the Kentucky Easter Seal Society operate this outstanding camp for crippled children, at Carrollton.

This Board has planned a major recreation park at the Old Allen Golf Course; has planned and recommended to the Floyd Fiscal Court Mini Parks for Magisterial Districts 2, 3 and 4 and plans to assist further in the development of recreation facilities in Magisterial District 1.

As most of you are aware I am presently County Attorney, having been appointed to the office and then elected without opposition.

My entire interest has been in the development and promotion of the welfare of Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky and the preservation of law and order in Floyd County.

I have diligently investigated all major crimes and have attempted to act in such way to protect the law abiding citizens of Floyd County without persecuting any person.

If elected Commonwealth's Attorney I will continue to investigate all crimes committed within Floyd County. I will prosecute all those who are brought before the Court for committing crimes, but I will never persecute any person. I firmly believe in justice tempered with mercy.

Frankfort, Ky.—During its March meeting, the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board denied an application from the Hazard Appalachian Regional Hospital to convert skilled nursing beds to acute care hospital beds and approved four applications from other Eastern Kentucky facilities.

The basis for denying the hospital's application was that there are sufficient acute care beds in the facility.

The applications which were approved are:

—Elliottville, Caudill Family Care Home, to establish a three-bed family care home.

—Hazard, Kentucky River Emergency Medical Services, Inc., to establish an emergency medical service for the eight counties in the Area Development District.

—Olive Hill, Erke Family Care Home, to establish a three-bed family care home.

Congressmen Explain Votes on Strip Bill

By WARD SINCLAIR
(The Courier-Journal)

Washington—The congressmen from Kentucky's two major coal districts think the federal strip mine control bill passed this week by the House will not materially impair coal production in the state.

Kentucky, the country's leading strip-coal producer, already has a reclamation law but the House version—if it becomes law—will put new and tougher restrictions on strip operators there.

Both the House and Senate have passed similar measures. They will work out their differences sometime next month and send a final version to President Ford for approval or veto.

The President last year vetoed similar legislation and objected to the new bill on the ground that it would severely cut strip-mine coal production at a time when the country could least afford it.

But Reps. Carl Perkins, D-7th District, and Carroll Hubbard, Jr., D-1st District, representing the major strip-mine areas of the state, took strong exception to Mr. Ford's position. They and the other five Kentucky congressmen all voted for final passage.

"I can't see how this bill will do anything but help Kentucky coal interests," said Hubbard, whose Western Kentucky district includes some of the country's largest strip operations.

"By putting some regulation on other states that are not as stringent as Kentucky, this bill could even enhance production in Kentucky because we won't have any more of this interstate black-mail," Hubbard said.

He was referring to coal companies' moving operations to areas with less severe reclamation requirements in order to mine their coal with less trouble and expense.

Hubbard's vote this week, incidentally, contrasted with negative votes cast by his predecessor, Frank A. Stubblefield. One environmental group made Stubblefield a member of its congressional "Dirty Dozen," in part because of his position on strip-mining.

Perkins, whose mountainous district in Eastern Kentucky is often cited as a textbook example of the need for stricter reclamation requirements, said, "This legislation would be the salvation of the coal mining industry and not—as some mistakenly believe—a detriment to it."

"It would save Appalachia, while allowing responsible mining to continue there, and in the other areas of the East," Perkins said. "And it will prevent the wholesale destruction of the Great Plains area of the West, preserving a tremendous source of badly needed food."

The Hindman Democrat said, "I don't feel the Kentucky coal industry will be hurt and I think a great majority of the operators want to be responsible. This bill will affect those who don't care—and it should."

"I said no one could stop this stripmine bill. It was inevitable," he continued, "and I don't think the President can stop it."

This week's legislative action also produced another reversal—by Rep. Gene Snyder, from the 4th District along the Ohio River, which has no strip mines.

Last year Republican Snyder voted against the bill. This week he voted for it, conceding frankly that he changed his position because he got "a lot of flak" from constituents after the 1974 vote.

"It is not a good bill and the reasons for being against it are just as good now as they were last year," Snyder said. "If my vote meant anything and if I had any assurance the President would veto the bill, I would have voted against it again."

Snyder said he believes one certain result of the legislation will be higher electricity bills. About 60 per cent of the country's electricity is generated from coal—much of it from strip mines.

"This doesn't hurt the utilities. They have this cozy arrangement with the public service commission—they just pass through their higher fuel costs to the consumer," Snyder said.

GOP Rep. Tim Lee Carter, whose 5th District in southeast Kentucky includes numerous strip mines, voted for the bill this time, as he did in 1974. And, he said, he'll be for the bill if a veto override is required.

"I don't believe the vast majority of people in my area would want me to change my position on a veto override," Carter said. "Eastern Kentucky has been ravaged by strip-mining and I have made my position clear—even in Harlan County. If it can't be reclaimed, it should be mined."

Carter said he envisions some administrative problems if the bill becomes law, problems that could impede coal production. He said one problem could be in issuance of permits, with the length requirements that strip-miners would have to meet.

Rep. William Natcher, the Bowling Green Democrat whose 2nd District includes a few strip operation, said the "major reason" he voted for the bill was that federal-state cooperation is "imperative at this time."

"Complete banning of strip-mining cannot be justified at this time, since one of the major problems confronting our people is the energy shortage," Natcher said.

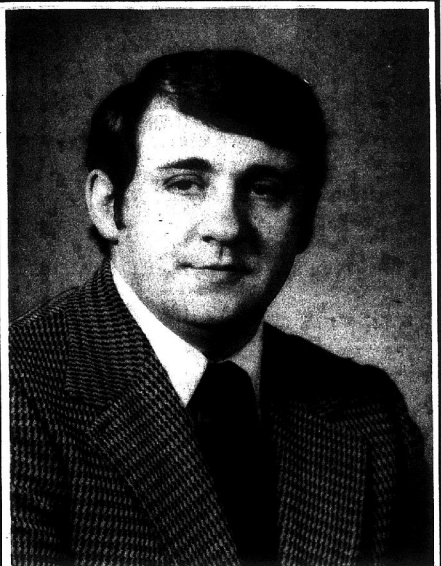

But, he added, "we must insist upon reclamation of mined lands and in order to protect the states producing coal, lands that can not be reclaimed should not be mined."

Southern Indiana Reps. Lee Hamilton, D-9th, and Philip Hayes, D-8th, also voted for final passage of the bill. Rep. John Myers, R-7th, was against final passage.

The five safety hazards found most frequently at construction sites by the U. S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration are: lack of standard railings; debris in work areas; failure to secure compressed gas cylinders upright; no fire extinguisher within 100 feet of building area, and failure to use protective headgear.

Old House in Magoffin Gives Way to a Church

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Writing about old houses is a joy, for there isn't a sagging log, frame or crumbling brick structure that doesn't have a story to tell.

Near the edge of Salyersville was a log house, parts of which dated to the 1790s. Imagine the shock, a year or so ago, while traveling the Mountain Parkway, when I looked toward the old house to feast, as usual, on the sight of the silver patina of weatherboarding, rock chimney pulling away from the side and sky reflections in hand-blown window glass—to find the house gone and in its place rows of concrete blocks!

My thought was—they just can't do that! But they did, and on the site of a house built by Archibald Prater and his companions, the first non-Indian home in the Meadows of the Licking River.

The redeeming feature in this block foundation was that it would hold a new church. The Misses Fanny and Alma Prater—owners of the old house, its former occupants and great-granddaughters of the builder—finally decided to relieve themselves of the burden and responsibility of protecting it and its contents. They made a gift of 1 1/4 acres to the Methodist Church to replace the church at nearby Burning Fork.

When Misses Fanny, 24, and Alma, 26, moved from the old house several years ago a smaller but modern house across the road, they could not use all the furnishings. So they locked the doors, leaving some rooms furnished with items placed there by Archibald and his wife, Sarah.

They continued to keep the grounds neat. Apples fell in mounds beside the fence and flowers bloomed as though a family were inside.

In a side yard, near a log wash house, stood a stone wash basin, made and put there by the pioneer.

On one visit to the house, Miss Fanny, always with her sense of humor, pointed to the basin. "You might like it as a souvenir to take home." It would require four men even to budge it! Prater had hollowed and smoothed the basin stone to perfection, then had bored an opening near the bottom, fitting it with a drain plug.

Prater was a soldier with the Virginia Militia during the Revolutionary War. The sisters thought he had come from England, but Eastern Kentucky historian Henry Seale stated that Archibald and a brother, Jonathan, were natives of Pennsylvania County, Va.

Archibald married Sarah Fugate, daughter of Josiah and Elizabeth Fugate, in Montgomery County in about 1783, and in 1791 Prater, his brother Jonathan, Clayton Cook, Ebenezer Hanna and a few others explored the upper reaches of the Licking River. Turned back by Indians, they returned a few years later to build a log house.

The house could write a book. Though the years it entertained men of political importance, historians, writers, poets and artists, but most often it entertained circuit riding Methodist preachers.

The Prater sisters moved within sight of their old home and on frequent visits noticed that the house had been entered and things taken. The responsibility was too much. What better use for the land than to make it the site of a new church. The handsome red brick church stands proudly on its block foundation.

Even logs from the old house continue to serve. David Prater, descendant of Archibald Prater, acquired enough logs to add a wing to his stately log home in Lexington's Westmoreland Subdivision.

Everything considered, Misses Fanny and Alma Prater feel joyful in their decision. They love their Lord and are confident the new church will attract many to its doors.

"After all, it's built on hallowed ground," said Miss Fanny, with a twinkle in her eyes. "Remember all those circuit riding preachers."

Mental Health Group Plans Membership Drive

The monthly meeting of the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Association was held at the Floyd County Library at noon Monday, March 17.

The president Brenda Roberts, presided. Plans for a membership drive were discussed and a target date of May which is National Mental Health month, was set.

The association also voted to contribute to the center for Developmental Disabilities at Maytown. The money is to be used for the purchase of hand tools used in woodworking. The purpose of the woodworking shop is to provide training to enable these young handicapped people to acquire skills to use toward self support.

Two other contributions were voted: One, a $15 donation to educational T.V. and the other money to buy a rocking chair for two young boys with cerebral palsy who attend the special school at Dwayne operated by the Floyd County Board of Education. The school is affiliated with Mountain Comprehensive Care.

The goal of the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Association this year is to aid the DDS centers in their attempt to develop all the potential the handicapped have to help them live happy, productive lives.

The next meeting will be held on the second Monday in April at 12 o'clock at the library.

Engagement Announced

Mr. Huffman is a graduate of Mullins High School and has attended Western Kentucky University. He is currently employed by Dow Chemical Co., Explosives Division, in Pikeville.

Wedding vows will be exchanged May 24, at 1 p.m., at the Vogel Day Methodist Church in Boldman. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

Thirty-seven state and professional employee associations that are engaged in collective bargaining activities responded to a questionnaire from the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics in connection with the latest edition of the Bureau's Directory of National Unions and Employee Associations.

Grow Kentucky Green Program Stressing Growing of Gardens

By JAN MANNIS
FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Department for Human Resources (DHR) new "Grow Kentucky Green" campaign urges everyone to plant a garden this spring.

The home gardener can harvest over $30 worth of fresh vegetables from a 10-foot square piece of land. The initial investment is under $5 for seed and $1 for fertilizer.

For the food stamp recipient, this year's garden will cost the price of fertilizer alone. "Recipients can purchase garden seeds and vegetable plants with their stamps," said Lucille Brislan, nutritionist for the Food Stamp Program in the Bureau for Social Insurance, DHR.

DHR's campaign for gardening began with Mrs. Brislan. She has contacted the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Kentucky (UK) to find out what gardening services they can offer.

"To find out how, when, where and what to plant, contact the service, which has an agricultural agent and a homemaker in each county," said Mrs. Brislan. The local telephone number is listed in the phone directory under each county's name.

The vegetables from a well-tended, 10-foot square garden will provide a substantial food supplement for a four-member family, said Dean Knaevel, Ph.D., professor for the Department of Horticulture, UK.

"A garden can be kept going throughout the summer with two and three plantings for many vegetables," said Knaevel. It could include green peppers, tomatoes, beans, onions, squash, cucumbers, radishes and spinach.

One way to decide if soil is fertile is to look at what is growing in the spot before tilling. "If things are growing poorly—including weeds—some extra nutrients may be necessary. The best way to tell is by having the Cooperative Extension Service run a soil test to find out the phosphorus, potassium and "pH" (acid/alkaline content) of the soil," said Knaevel. The testing usually cost $1.

"Some people, though, may not have the time or the space for gardening. When an outdoor space is simply not available, a window sill will do," Mrs. Brislan said.

"People can grow a tomato, pepper plant or other vegetable in a pot indoors. It can serve the same decorative purpose as a floral plant, being fruitful as well," she added.

Stai Announces Magoffin Plant For District 11

Construction of a food processing plant to be located on a six-acre site off Route 114 in Magoffin county is scheduled to begin next July. Richard T. Stai, executive director of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center (MCCC) here, announced this week.

The site, valued at $35,000, was donated to MCCC by the Magoffin county fiscal court through the Magoffin Chamber of Commerce. It will be used for the development of a District 11 (a five-county area including Magoffin, Johnson, Floyd, Martin, and Pike counties) program to be called the Integrated Food Processing Program—a therapeutic and rehabilitative training and employment program for the handicapped.

In addition to the plant, the program will include a complex of greenhouses and outdoor gardens, and, in the more distant future, a residential facility for participants in the program, according to Robert Stetson, a Lawrence county resident who has recently been named director of the Integrated Food Processing Program.

Funds for the construction of the plant and the initial staffing necessary to get the program under way have been earmarked for MCCC by the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) and the Developmental Disabilities Administration (DDA).

Local support has come in the form of a $5,000 Jaycee "Project Mainstream" grant which launched the effort to get the program under way last spring and the $35,000 site donation from Magoffin county as well as a $15,000 site preparation donation also from Magoffin county. The Jaycees grant was acquired through the efforts of the Floyd County Area Jaycees.

The small portion of the remaining necessary local funds that must be appropriated in order for MCCC to be able to tap the ARC monies is still being sought by the agency, according to MCCC's development director, David Bell. Bell adds that he is optimistic about the remaining portion being appropriated, since "the feasibility of such a program has been well established, and it could easily become independent of the need for any further support within the first year of operation."

The plant, as it is now planned, will be a 12,000-square-foot metal structure which will house grading, sorting, washing, cooling, packaging, and marketing facilities as well as a cannery. The cannery will have a canning capacity of as much as 150,000 quarts per season or 400 quarts per hour.

The program is expected to be operational as early as October of this year if the construction starts and is completed on schedule. It will initially have a staff of six consisting of a program director (Bob Stetson), a program coordinator (Linda Bell, of Johnson county), two instructors, and two marketing agents—one to coordinate the marketing of fresh produce and canned goods for local markets, the other for contracting and coordinating a cooperative growing-marketing effort for a broader market outside the District.

The program will open with a minimum number of trainees (from five to ten) because of the off-seasonal time (October) and the amount of community work the staff will initially need to engage in so that the actual program operation can be fully coordinated with the needs of the community. When fully developed, the program will employ as many as 30 handicapped individuals.

CARROLL SEEKS CALIFORNIA INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS

Gov. Julian Carroll, along with 65 Kentucky business leaders and industrial development professionals, visited California April 2 and 3 as part of an economic development effort to recruit new industry to the state. Carroll will urge California businesses and industries to consider Kentucky's resources and advantages when planning eastward expansion. Among those resources and advantages, Carroll lists Kentucky's vast coal reserves and energy research programs, its central location, good transportation system, productive labor force and equitable tax structure.

Red Cross Assists March Flood Victims

Since the floods hit Kentucky in mid-March, Kentucky division Red Cross staff and volunteers have been providing aid to disaster victims in inundated areas of the state.

Ron Taylor, Disaster Director for the Kentucky division, said that the Red Cross has already committed over $100,000 to meet the immediate needs of disaster victims, thus enabling them to return to normal living.

In addition to housing hundreds of people in Red Cross shelters and feeding disaster victims and emergency workers, the Red Cross has provided immediate individual assistance to over 500 families.

This assistance included funds for food, clothing, rent, transportation, some basic furnishings and household needs. Help is given by the Red Cross on a standardized basis, varying solely in relationship to the size of a family and the ages of the persons involved.

Families seeking assistance from the Red Cross must provide some form of identification to indicate that they lived in the disaster affected area.

The hardest hit areas and Red Cross involvement included these sections of the commonwealth:
Bell County, 150 victims sought refuge in a Red Cross shelter opened at the courthouse in Pineville during the peak flooding period. Red Cross carried out a mobile feeding operation and sent food by boat to those isolated by the flood.

Knox County, a Red Cross shelter was opened at the roadside Baptist Church and 65 of the over 100 people evacuated were sheltered there.
Shelters were also opened by Red Cross in Hopkinsville, Bowling Green, and Williamsburg.

The Red Cross is not conducting a separate fund campaign for the disaster victims, but is urging added emphasis be placed on the Red Cross drive now under way in many counties throughout Kentucky.

Grave Myrtle Warded Off Mad Dogs And Evil Eyes

(From The Mountain Eagle)

Winding over ancient grave mounds in many an old back country graveyard is a trailing evergreen plant that bears white and blue blossoms. To country people, this intriguing little specimen is "grave myrtle," and to them it once served as a symbol of immortality. Time was, when a child died, grieving parents planted a sprig of myrtle on its grave, not only to keep memory green but also to indicate hope for a happy reunion someday, somewhere, beyond the skies.

Introduced into North America from Europe, grave myrtle is known by several names. Some know it as periwinkle; others as vinca and a few call it "sorcerer's violet." This last name stems from an old idea some folks entertained that an amulet made from the plant and worn around the wrist would make one safe in the presence of someone possessed with an "evil eye."

To be effective, though, the amulet had to be woven from myrtle that had been gathered on the first, ninth, eleventh, and thirteenth nights of the month and by a person with a "sweet breath."

A native of the Mediterranean area, myrtle came to the new world already smothered in legend. In addition to warding off the evil eye, a sprig of myrtle worn in the hatband insured the wearer of grace and prosperity. When worn attached to the shoes, it protected the wearer against poisonous snake and mad dog bites.

Among the ancient Greeks, the myrtle was sacred to Aphrodite, goddess of love, and they frequently used it in their festivals and marriage rites. Unfortunately, the method of using myrtle for this purpose has been lost, but ancient herbals tell that, used in the right way, it assured conjugal bliss.

One old herbal does provide a hint as to the preparation of myrtle as a cure for lovelessness. The recipe is as follows: "Dry fresh new myrtle leaves and grind into a fine powder. Wrap a pinch of powder in a new picked houseleek with worms and take at meals." The variety of worms is unspecified, but even so it is doubtful any modern maiden would use this kind of remedy.

Old herbals also say that myrtle tea is a fine springtime tonic and that the crushed leaves make a good poultice for boils and other adverse skin conditions. The advice is, however, don't depend on it—see your doctor instead.

But it won't hurt a bit in the world to use myrtle as a love charm or wear it on the hat as a means of securing grace and prosperity. There's only one thing to remember: in gathering myrtle for these purposes, don't pick it directly from a grave. If you do, the person buried in the grave will appear at night and haunt you for a year. At least, that's what an old superstition holds.

To Discuss Proposed Changes In Environmental Regulations

By MARVAGAY

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The public is going to have a chance to discuss the already confusing and controversial changes in the state's environmental protection regulations.

The Environmental Quality Commission, a citizen's advisory group attached to the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, is planning a series of public discussions of that department's proposed regulation changes.

The commission's first discussion, scheduled for 9:30 a.m., April 4, in room G-2 of the Capital Plaza Tower in Frankfort will cover proposed changes in the state's air pollution regulations. The department then will hold a public hearing on both the regulations and proposed changes at 10 a.m., April 15, in the Health Services Building in Frankfort.

A second discussion will cover proposed changes in regulations of the division of water quality and the division of water resources at 9:30 a.m., May 1, in the Capital Plaza Tower in Frankfort. A 1974 state law designed to update regulations requires reevaluation of every regulation of Kentucky state government agencies by July. According to Jackie Swigart, chairperson of the Environmental Quality Commission, the discussions will help people understand the review process and will enable them to make more informed comments at public hearings.

Dates for other discussions will be announced at the next Environmental Quality Commission meeting, 1 p.m., April 16, at the Dolphin Room in the Executive Inn.

Parks Help Economy, Study Shows

By ELIZABETH SMITH

Results of three Eastern Kentucky state resort parks show that the parks have definite, beneficial effects on both local and state economies, according to Gov. Julian M. Carroll.

The six-month project, recently completed by the Kentucky Development Cabinet, covered Greenbo Lake, near Greenup; Carter Caves, Olive Hill; and Natural Bridge, near Slade.

The governor noted that this was a pilot project, leading to a statewide analysis of the parks' primary impacts on the economy.

"The project was undertaken to answer pertinent questions about the economic benefits and detriments derived from Kentucky's state park system," he said.

"It had been previously established that our parks offer the finest in outdoor recreational facilities and have a substantial effect on the state's tourism industry.

"With this study," he continued, "what we were asking was 'In what way do state parks affect indirect revenues in regard to taxation, employment, business trade and other economic concerns?'"

The parks' economic impacts were found to be most significant in three main subject areas, the governor noted. These are:

—Employment—The study reveals that each year the three parks provide sizeable employment opportunities in operations and maintenance.

"For example," Carroll said, "in 1973, the parks created either full-time or seasonal jobs for approximately 445 different people. Ninety-six per cent of these people were from the areas local to the parks."

In comparison, the study says, the present park lands provided only about seven per cent as many employment opportunities for farming and woodland harvesting) before the parks were established.

Also, park development and improvement projects completed since the parks' openings created about 341 "man-years" of employment through 1973. (One "man-year" equals 12 months of full-time employment.) About half of these employees lived in the counties that include the parks, and most of the other half were from nearby counties.

—Trade for Kentucky businesses—The study shows that, in 1973, trade generated with Kentucky businesses from the three parks' operations and from their visitors amounted to approximately $1.5 million, Carroll said.

"Net profits from this trade were estimated at $182,000 with 71 per cent of this profit going to businesses in the local areas."

He added that these net profits to businesses operating near the parks were 11 times greater than the total average annual net income (in terms of 1973) for the areas before the parks were established.

—Out-of-state tourist dollars—"These parks have a significant impact on the influx of out-of-state visitors and their expenditures in Kentucky," the governor noted. The study reveals that, in 1973, a total of $544,000 was spent in Kentucky by out-of-state visitors to these parks.

The parks' impacts on environmental protection and their use of land also were included in the study, Carroll said, "and the study shows that the parks place no noticeable burdens on either the local areas or the environment."

The study concludes that no significant environmental impacts, either favorable or detrimental, could be attributed to the parks, he explained.

Although there are a few problem spots where soil erosion is taking place, no great amounts of sediment pollution are flowing into streams outside the parks. Also, there is no evidence of pollution directly caused by park visitors, as all three parks have adequate sanitation and waste disposal facilities, the study says.

The project focuses on a comparison of conditions through 1973 existing before and after each park's establishment. It determines net balance in other subject areas, including:

—Taxation—Impacts of the parks on local (county) tax levels are very small, the study concludes. The impacts result from land being removed from tax rolls with state acquisition (state land is tax-exempt), thereby causing a loss in assessed valuations. This loss, however, was found to be only one-tenth of one per cent of the total tax roll assessments of 1973. Also, this loss is partially offset by assessments added as a result of park influences.

—County services—The parks had very little effect on such services as road maintenance, law enforcement and busing of school children.

The study also notes that many acres in the parks are currently underused and could be ideal for primitive camping and woodland hiking trails. A finding such as this is one of the many side benefits gained from the impact study, Kentucky Parks Commissioner Bruce Montgomery said.

"For example, this information regarding unused park land will no doubt generate ideas and help us plan for expanding the parks' wilderness trail systems," Montgomery said.

Noting that this study was a pilot project, Dr. Dee Ashley Akers, secretary of the Development Cabinet, said that he and his staff are anxious to continue with statewide research.

"The importance of the information derived from this type of study goes beyond just the knowledge we receive regarding parks' economic impacts," Akers said.

"With this information, we then can plan park development more accurately and effectively and also relate it to economic development plans for the entire state."

Coordinator of the project is William D. Oakley, executive assistant for management and budget in the Development Cabinet.

Project director is Melville H. Cohee, formerly a recreation research specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources. Assistant directors are D. Richard Garda and John W. Hunt, research associates with the Development Cabinet.

State planning funds, obtained through the office of the secretary of development and supplemented by the Appalachian Regional Commission, were used for the study.

Hammond Files for Senator

Jim Hammond, Eastern Kentucky attorney, with offices in Prestonsburg, filed with the Secretary of State's Office in Frankfort, on March 28th, his nomination and declaration papers for the Democratic nomination for State Senator of the 29th District, which consists of the counties of Floyd, Martin, Knott and Perry.

Jim Hammond is the 30 year old son of Martin Hammond and Lillie Hamilton Hammond. He grew up at Maytown and Martin on Beaver Creek and graduated from Martin High School. His father, Martin Hammond, who is from Bull Creek, was a teacher in the Floyd County school system for 14 years, a coal miner for 15 years, and is presently a merchant in Martin. His mother, Lillie Hamilton Hammond, is the daughter of the late Evan and Della Hamilton of the Big Mud Creek section of Floyd County. Evan Hamilton was a Regional Baptist Minister in the Eastern Kentucky area for 44 years.

Jim Hammond was an honor graduate of Martin High School, where he was the editor of the school paper and an all-district basketball performer. While in high school, he was elected state treasurer in the YMCA Kentucky Youth Assembly's model state government. He was also elected senator from the American Legion's Boys State and served as one of two Kentucky Boys Nation Senators in Washington, D. C.

Jim Hammond received a Bachelor of Science degree in Commerce from the University of Kentucky. As an undergraduate at the University, he was a dean's list member, belonged to the University of Kentucky Lances (academic honorary society), and was a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity. He received his Juris Doctor of Law from the University of Kentucky College of Law. He was a participant in the College of Law's legal aid program for indigents and served in the legal intern program. The Lexington Fayette County Legal Aid Society, Inc. honored him for his service in the programs. He is a member of the Kentucky Bar Association, American Bar Association, and the Floyd County Bar Association. He has completed his military obligation, having been honorably discharged from the United States Army Reserves as a staff sergeant.

Jim Hammond is trustee of the Thirty-First Judicial District Public Defender Corporation, a member of the Cooperative Vocational Education Advisory Board of the Prestonsburg Community College, the Floyd County Area Jaycees, the East Floyd Kiwanis Club, as associate member of the Kentucky Education Association, Eastern Kentucky Education Association, and American Education Association, and an elected member of the Floyd County Democratic Executive Committee. He was honored as an "Outstanding Democrat" by the Kentucky Democratic Executive Committee for his service as the Floyd County Democratic Party's youth chairman.

Jim Hammond, in announcing his candidacy, outlined seven goals which he will work toward as State Senator and which he feels are important and vital to the people of the 29th District and the Eastern Kentucky area. These goals are:

1. Return of 50 percent of the severance tax to the counties from which the coal was mined, so that county roads can be built and maintained.

2. Increase in teachers' and school administrators' salaries and increase in all secondary and elementary school program budgets.

3. Reconstruction of Kentucky Highway 80 through Perry, Knott and Floyd Counties to Highway U.S. 26 and 450.

4. Construction of a new highway system through Martin County connecting Highway U.S. 23 with U.S. 119.

5. More budgeted spending on rural highway roads.

6. Creation of a special commission financed by state and federal funds to purchase and develop industrial plant sites.

7. Increase in health and medical research facilities and health care.

Jim Hammond, during the past four years, has been engaged in the practice of law in Eastern Kentucky.

NOVA To Casts a Glance At Declining Fish Supply

Kentucky Education Television (KET) casts a glance at America's declining fish supply on NOVA in "Will the Fishing Have to Stop?" which airs Sunday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

The program deals with the law of marine supply and demand; there is a limit to the amount of fish the ocean can supply and it is uncertain whether this supply will continue to meet our current demand.

NOVA plumbs the depths of the immense waters its origins of productivity and the possible utilization of its protein resources. Questions raised include: "Are we over-fishing?" "Has technology brought us to the point of diminishing returns?" "Are we guilty of polluting some of the more productive areas of the ocean?" "Could the shortage be a whim of capricious Mother Nature?" "How can fisheries be more effectively and efficiently managed?"

Other KET highlights this week include the Governor's Executive Cabinet Meeting, Monday, April 7 at 10 p.m. EDT. Monday, April 7 at 8 p.m. EDT COMMONWEALTH CALL'S features:

"Burn Care and Prevention." The program includes a segment on flammable clothing; the Burn Unit at Norton-Children's Hospital in Louisville and a slide presentation on how to get out of a burning building. Viewers are invited to phone KET during the program. A panel of experts on burn care and prevention will answer viewer questions during the program.

Johns Suggests Improvement Of Region 11 Inservice Work

Discussing the evaluation report which he submitted at the November regional inservice conference, Ree Johns, executive director of ROPES Region 11, recommended at the March 26 meeting of the board of directors and the advisory council of the organization three steps for the improvement of regionwide inservice.

His recommendations included:

1. Dividing the region into two sections for inservice to eliminate overcrowding and excessive travel time;
2. Use of consultants for all areas of elementary and secondary education;
3. Broader scope of instructional materials.

These recommendations were incorporated into a motion approving regionwide inservice for school year 1975-76, and the motion was unanimously approved by the board. The board authorized Johns to set the date for the inservice in early October.

Other ROPES Region Eleven staff members appearing before the Board were Bronelle Skaggs, assistant director; Audrey Pratt, Special Education supervisor; Shirley Beard, administrative assistant; and Larry Jervis, curriculum consultant.

Also heard were presentations by the following Division of Guidance Services staff members:

Dr. Bill Braden, director of field services, stressed that his division is attempting to work more effectively with available resources rather than asking for more. Braden said that the division's focus is on student needs and that the division will work with all school districts, including those which have no guidance counselors. In discussing counselor functions, Braden pointed out the value of an effective public relations program to explain the services and needs of the guidance counselor in order to help counselors to help more students more effectively.

Don Burchett, area consultant-supervisor, discussed the division's Career Guide and gave a slide presentation explaining the content and use of the guide. Burchett told the group that career guidance combined with career education will make successful career development possible. Burchett also announced that April 6-12 has been designated as "Career Week."

Ben Hicks, state consultant-supervisor, reviewed the statewide testing program and the free scoring services in grades 4, 6, 8 and 11 available through his division. Hicks also told the group that the division furnishes averages to enable a school to compare its performance with the same grade averages on district, regional, state and national levels. Pointing out that test data is valuable in curriculum development, Hicks told the group that analysis information on test achievement is available to help the schools to determine areas of strength or weakness in their curriculums.

In addition to approving regionwide inservice and conducting routine business, the Board endorsed project applications filed by the Department for Finance and Administration, Governor Julian Carroll, and the Bureau of Vocational Education.

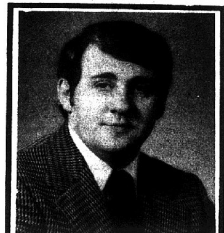

The next board meeting will be held in May and the Council meeting will meet next in June.

At the March 26 meeting, which was held at May Lodge, Floyd Supt. Charles Clark presided as chairman of the board, and W. R. Conley as chairman of the council.

To Do Medical Work At Hospital in Scotland

Scott Seutchfield, son of Dr. and Mrs. B. L. Seutchfield, of Martin, will leave April 5 for Glasgow, Scotland for a clerkship at the Royal Infirmary Hospital. His wife, Margaret, will accompany him. They will return to the United States the last week in May for his graduation from the University of Kentucky Medical School on June 7. He then will go to the University of South Carolina Medical School in Charleston for a residency in general surgery.

MORAL: Buy Easter Seals

A Topmost man languishes in jail here, largely because he scorned an Easter Seal roadblock established last week by the Boyd county sheriff's department and Catlettsburg police on US 23 at Catlettsburg.

The prisoner, Eugene Smead, 26, refused to contribute, "smarted off" to those conducting the roadblock and drove off rather erratically, Boyd Deputy Sheriff Ray Stanley said. Stanley said he also observed that the departing car bore 1974 plates, so he gave chase.

Landscape Meeting Led By Dr. Hartman

The third in a series of landscape meetings was held recently with Dr. John Hartman, specialist from the University of Kentucky, presenting information on diseases and their control. Numerous disease problems occur on turf grass in Kentucky, and these frequently cause extensive damage, however, in many cases diseases are blamed for poor quality turf. Frequently dead and dying grass is caused by improper fertilization, chemical burn, mower problems, dog or insect injury, dry or wet spots and thatch.

Most infection diseases of turf are caused by fungi, nematodes or virus. In lawns if the following practices are followed, lawn diseases are less likely to cause extensive damage:

Do not clip turf grasses such as Kentucky bluegrass (or fescue) too closely - clipping at two inches is recommended.

Prevent thatch build-up. Thatch is a layer of partially decomposed leaves, stems and roots at the soil surface.

Provide proper fertilization - recent research shows late fall fertilization applications are given better performance.

Provide adequate moisture during stress periods but need to avoid keeping the grass wet for prolonged periods.

Control weed and insect problems - check particularly to see if grubs or sod webworms are present.

If necessary use chemicals for control of disease after appropriate identification.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Sammons, Mary Sue Moore, Carol Lee Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Elton McGary, Lillie M. Prater, Phyllis Price, Garnett Fairchild, Robert Valentine, John K. Pitts, Joe Isbell, Frances Pitts, John Sparks.

Bluegrass Musicians To Appear In Area

A number of first-rate bluegrass groups are scheduled to appear in the area during the coming weeks including Grand Old Opry stars Jim and Jesse and the Virginia Boys, Jimmy Martin and the Goins Brothers.

Jim and Jesse will headline the show scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday, April 10, at the Betsy Layne Fieldhouse with the well-known Goins Brothers, of Prestonsburg and the Outdoor Plumbing Company, of Pike county also appearing as part of the same program. The show is sponsored by the Betsy Layne band boosters.

Friday night at the Salyersville Community Center at 8 p.m., Jimmy Martin and the Sunny Mountain Boys along with the Goins Brothers, will present a bluegrass show. Martin is famed for such bluegrass standards as "Sunny Side of the Mountain," "Frederick Man," and "Tennessee." The Goins Brothers, Melvin and Ray, both members of the original Lonesome Pine Fiddlers group, are well-known for their hard-driving renditions of traditional as well as original material. On Saturday night, Martin and the Goins Brothers will appear at the Cave Run Jamboree in Menifee county.

CENTRAL CLEANING

Nutone Central Vacuum
Cleaning—the easier, quieter, more powerful way to clean your home.

Power Unit Only $187

What's the worst part of vacuuming? The noise? Lugging a heavy sweeper up and down stairs? Tripping over the cord or having to plug it in over and over again?
Constantly changing soil bags?
A centralized cleaning system eliminates all these annoyances. It's quiet, lightweight, convenient, clean... AND more powerful.
Centralized simply means that rather than hauling around a lot of noise and weight, the power is centralized in a heavy duty motor unit that hides neatly away in a closet, garage, utility room or basement.
This large unit gives much more suction and cleaning power than most ordinary sweepers. The 8 gallon soil bag needs replacing only two or three times a year!
Automatic inlets (about 3 or 4 in an average sized home) are located around the house above the baseboards for easy reach. Insert a lightweight flexible hose and reach yourself to silent, efficient cleaning.
The exhaust is filtered twice. When dirt is swept up it's gone, not recirculated. No more dusty smell, and no need to touch up the furniture after you've just finished cleaning!
Plus, imagine the cleaning convenience with inlets placed in the garage, basement porch or patio!

Warren Wolfe Is Unofficial 'East Kentucky Ambassador'

HAMILTON, Ohio—He has been called the "Pistol-Packing Poet," the "Singing Sheriff," a loner, a dropout, a man to himself.

Warren Wolfe is all of these and none of these. He is a man apart.

He plays Bach on a classical guitar and he sings with a clarity and passion that stirs his audiences to standing ovations. But, he will not play just anything and he will not sing unless he feels it.

So he is always broke; broke because he will not compromise even a little bit. He sings where the people call and where the spirit moves him—before small groups, large groups, coffee houses, anywhere.

He is an unofficial ambassador for eastern Kentucky, singing praise for the people of the area.

Wolfe, a Lexington, Ky., native, adopted eastern Kentucky as his own while serving as a state trooper. Traveling the twisting miles in Leslie and Perry counties, he got to know the hills and the people of the hills.

"Whatever time of day or night—on Hurricane Creek, Cuthin, Devil's Jump Branch, Poll's Creek, Beech Fork, Coon Creek, Viper or Saul—I found a people whose heritage, worth, wit, way of life is yet the same as that which makes a nation great, that honest simplicity which may well be the only salvation for our own nation," said Wolfe, during a recent visit to Hamilton.

"I have neither the space nor ability to share with you the gentle nobility of my beloved people here in the highlands," Wolfe said he left the state police because he "needed to get down to serious studying."

He taught himself to play classical guitar. He reads, he writes and he draws in elegant fashion fine scroll work to adorn some of his writings.

At 37, Wolfe has a lot of experience behind him. He has worked in the tobacco and hay fields of Kentucky. He spent several years in the Navy and five years as a Lexington fireman.

Now, still based in Lexington, Wolfe is a teacher of music and recently has been involved in a proposed Kentucky Educational Television program featuring his music.

"I continually commit financial suicide," he said. "I'm aware of that. But, I won't sing what they want to hear and I won't play what they want me to play."

"I play and sing what is dear to me."

SERIOUSLY INJURED

James Haynes, of Matesan, W. Va., a half-brother of Mrs. John Rodebaugh, of Prestonsburg, is in serious condition at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, as a result of injuries sustained Saturday night when his auto struck a rockslide on the highway, near the Breaks.

Most handicapped adults need vocational rehabilitation in order to qualify for almost any kind of job. This often requires the combined talents of doctors, social workers, therapists, and others. Call your local Easter Seal Society for help.

THE CENTRAL Kentucky Blood Center's mobile blood drawing unit was in Prestonsburg recently in a continuing effort to meet the collection quota set for Floyd county. Blood collected by the unit will be used to meet the needs of Floyd countians.

Ford Calls for Federal Funding To Redeem 'Orphan Banks'

Senator Wendell H. Ford has urged three federal agencies to approve an orphan bank reclamation program in Kentucky.

Basing his position on Kentucky's own initiatives since 1972, Ford said the state's effort "would dovetail perfectly" with the federal concept.

In letters to the Departments of Commerce and Labor, and the Federal Energy Administration, Ford endorsed a plan which could bring $4 million into Kentucky for reclamation on property around Fishtrap Reservoir in Eastern Kentucky.

Noting that a plan has been advanced in all three agencies, he called it a positive measure. "If it would provide employment on a productive scale and clean up old areas of surface mining activities, the results appear obvious," he wrote.

The program could be funded under Title III of the Emergency and Job Unemployment Assistance Act.

Known as the Surface Mine Land Enhancement Program (SMILE), Ford said his understanding is that an immediate decision can be expected.

In his letters, The Senator outlined Kentucky's own orphan bank reclamation program through a $1.5 million revolving fund approved in 1972 and 1974 legislative sessions. "Because of the acreage left spoiled before Kentucky's reclamation laws were enacted, our program is a concept deserving impetus," he wrote.

Ford cited two particular advantages Kentucky offered.

—State government has been willing to improve conditions on its own.

—State government has experience in managing this type operation.

It is expected that if approved, this program would be administered by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Attorney General Opinions

D. A. Hancock, of Louisville, recently stated that among the proposed bills to license marriage and family relations counselors, there is one which doesn't contain a "grandfather clause," qualifying by experience those already practicing in the field. Hancock asked whether or not the proposed bill would be constitutional without such a clause. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that the absence of a "grandfather clause" does not necessarily render a statute unconstitutional. Furthermore, the mere fact that a person has been engaging in a profession does not give him the right to continue to do so free of any restriction or license requirement.

Victor Hubert Logan, Edmonson county attorney, wrote that his county's fiscal court has employed a former sheriff as a detective after the county judge refused to make the appointment. Logan asked whether such an appointment were legal, since the county has no county police force. It is the office of the Attorney General's opinion that such action by the fiscal court is illegal, since only the county judge has the authority to establish a county police force and create a detective's position out of the county police ranks. Also, the salary of a nonexistent office is an illegal claim against the county treasury. If the county funds cannot be recovered, the members of the fiscal court will be held liable, jointly and severally.

Ted L. Crosthwait, executive secretary of the Teachers' Retirement System (TRS), asked whether the children of deceased parents, both teachers covered under TRS, must be paid survivor benefits from the retirement accounts of both parents. The Office of the Attorney General held that there is no limitation which would keep a child from receiving the benefits from each of his parents' retirement accounts.
