Unemp up in e county

FRANKFORT — Unemployment rates rose in all 120 Kentucky counties between June 2008 and June 2009, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

Fayette County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the commonwealth at 8.5 percent. It was followed by Woodford and Ballard counties, 8.6 percent each; Oldham County, 8.9 percent; Calloway and McCracken counties, 9.2 percent each; Webster County, 9.4 percent; Boyd County, 9.5 percent; and Carlisle and Franklin counties, 9.8 percent each.

Mageoffin County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate — 18.8 percent. It was followed by Jackson County, 18 percent; Metcalfe County, 16.5 percent; Powell, Lewis and Bath counties, 16.3 percent each; Menifee County, 15.9 percent; Trigg County, 15.8 percent; Butler County, 15.6 percent; and Carter County, 15.5 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working. Civilian labor force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work.

Final hearing of smoke ban expected Monday

by SHELTON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — This upcoming weekend and Monday morning and afternoon could be the last time smokers in Prestonsburg will have the freedom to smoke in public places of any kind within the city limits.

That is unless an exemption goes through for Court Street Bingo, which has representatives asking that the building be spared from the city's newly drawn ordinance.

The Prestonsburg City Council will meet Monday at 6 p.m., when it is expected to hold final discussion of a smoking ban for all public buildings and then a second reading of the ordinance, which if passed would officially make smoking in public buildings punishable by individual fines of up to $50 and fines for businesses up to $500 for each violation.

The new law would ban smoking in all public buildings, barring an exemption for the bingo hall, with only a few exceptions such as retail tobacco stores, private clubs, and hotel or motel rooms already designated as smoking rooms.

Other points within the ordinance would require smokers to tend to their habit at a distance of at least 20 feet from any entrance to a public building and also ban smoking in some outdoor areas, such as arenas, stadiums and amphitheaters.

City leaders have spent the last month discussing the details of the ordinance, in particular as it pertains to the exemption for Court Street Bingo, with both parties as well as amongst themselves, and have said Monday's meeting will also be a place for final discussion on the topic before votes are cast.

PRESTONSBURG — "Inside every person that is my age, there is a young person wondering what happened," said Cherie Cook, as she waited for her husband, Paul, to address the Jenny Wiley Chapter of the AARP on the topic of health care reform on Tuesday.

Paul Cook, a health care reform volunteer from Lexington, gave a presentation relating stories from his own life and health problems to a full crowd of AARP members at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg.

"We're all in this together," Cook said. "This could be the most important time in history regarding health care."

Cook, a survivor of six heart attacks, has a great deal of experience with the problems in the current health care system, citing numerous health issues, including his diabetes.

"My insulin costs $150 for a vial, and I use 10 vials in 90 days. That's $1,500 on one type of drug," Cook said. "The same company makes the insulin in Europe, and it is $15 per vial."

While Cook admitted to the crowd that he didn't know the full reasons for the difference in price, he said that something definitely needed to change.

Those in attendance also learned

Representatives with the University of Virginia's College at Wise (UVCW) visited the Prestonsburg campus Wednesday morning to sign an agreement between the two schools that will enable students to transfer to the West Virginia school as easily as BSCTC students have transferred to UK in the past.

Students who choose to transfer under the terms of the new agreement will participate in what is called the Guaranteed Admissions

Dr. George Edwards, president of Big Sandy Community and Technical College and the college's provost Dr. Nancy Johnson joined the University of Virginia College at Wise's Chancellor David Prior and Gil Blackburn, that school's provost and senior vice chancellor, to sign an agreement between the two schools Wednesday. ### Remembering Frank McCourt

A lot of people dream of someday writing the great American novel. Frank McCourt, who died this week at age 78, finally got to live out his dream when, in 1996, he wrote what might be called the great Irish-American memoir, "Angela's Ashes."

His masterpiece is a story that is all the more interesting because, although McCourt was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., the tale unfolds in the slums of Limerick, Ireland. That's where McCourt's family relocated when he was a child during the hard-scrabble times of the Great Depression, only to fall deeper into poverty.

McCourt's father was often out of work, and he had a drinking problem that consumed what little money he earned. It fell to Frank's mother, Angela, to provide for her children. After quitting school at 13, Frank held odd jobs to help support his mother and brothers. As a teenager, McCourt returned to the United States, where he took odd jobs and was drafted into the U.S. Army. Later, he used the GI Bill to graduate from New York University. He taught English in New York City high schools for nearly 30 years before retiring.

Then came Act II. And what a splendid performance it turned out to be. Angela's Ashes, which chronicled McCourt's self-described "miserable Irish childhood," won the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Critics Circle Award. The book went on to sell more than 5 million copies, and it was made into a feature film. McCourt later wrote two other memoirs: "Tis," which focused on his life as a new immigrant in America, and "Teacher Man," which detailed his career as a teacher. Together, the three books sold more than 10 million copies. Then came lucrative speeches and public appearances.

Bear in mind, all this fame and fortune came to McCourt late in life. He was 66 years old before he ever published a book. For most of his life, he was too busy teaching students to appreciate the written word to put pen to paper.

Too many Americans give up on their dreams because they're afraid to take risks or, worse yet, to fail. Or they make excuses for why they're not living the life they always wanted for themselves. Or they let their setbacks defeat them.

American-born and Irish-raised McCourt would have none of that. But what he did have was the gift of storytelling. And, better late than never, he shared it with millions of readers around the world. Not bad for someone who had more than his share of hard knocks on both sides of the Atlantic and yet managed to spin them into literary gold.

We won't have Sarah to kick around anymore

by DONALD KAUL
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

Mother of Mercy, can this be the end of Sarah? Will we not have Ms. Palin to kick around anymore? Who can tell? That's the thing about our Sarah; she's full of surprises.

But none bigger than the one she delivered the other day when she called a press conference and told Alaskans, in effect, "I'm outta here. Adios, chumps." Or perhaps: "Stop me before I run again."

It is a mystery. Her explanation didn't help much. Apparently, having decided not to run for re-election, she thinks it would be unfair to continue in the office she was elected to less than three years ago. She said: "I thought about how much fun some governors have as lame ducks, travel around the state, to the Lower 48 (maybe), overseas on international trade...I'm not putting Alaska through that...That's not how I'm wired."

It didn't make much sense, but that's why we love her, isn't it? "My Little Margie" with a chainsaw.

Commentators have settled on three possible reasons for her resignation — the Good, the Bad and the Ugly.

The Good — In the past year and a half she has given birth to a child with special needs, had her teenage daughter become an unwed mother, and had been subjected to the cruel scrutiny that only a national political campaign can generate. I don't care how you're wired, that's a lot for a person to take on all at once. It could be that she's just worn out with it and needs some time out of the trenches.

The Bad — Some think she really does see herself as president and realizes that being governor of Alaska is a lousy springboard for her ambition. So she's quitting her day job to give herself time and space to write a book, make speeches and prepare for the 2012 presidential race.

Not a bad strategy, perhaps, but abandoning her state in a time of need does not speak well of her character.

The Ugly — Many commented on the strangeness of her resignation press conference. She seemed to be coming apart a little. It was as though there was a subtext there that we couldn't decipher.

Could there be a scandal waiting in the wings? (My personal hope is that she's been having an affair with Mark Sanford, governor of South Carolina. Not likely but what a story.)

If not a scandal...something. Could there be another shoe ready to drop?

I suppose I'm really hoping that she's getting ready to run for president. So she quit on Alaska, so what? Politicians drop out of one office to seek another all the time.

The fact is that Ms. Palin is easily the most entertaining Republican on the scene. She is more fun than a barrel of Bushes. It would be a shame to lose her and her "you betcha" charm in favor of a stiff like Mitt Romney or some governor to be named later.

In any case the Palin resignation was only the latest weird thing to happen in state government. In recent weeks we have seen California, our biggest progressive state with an economy the size of most countries, begin printing up IOUs to pay its bills. It had run out of money. (Wasn't that what the Confederate States of America did during the Civil War? How'd that work out anyway?)

We have seen New York, the second-biggest progressive state, have a nervous breakdown. The governor had to threaten the legislature with arrest just to get a quorum so that a state budget could be passed, except it wasn't. Then there's South Carolina, where the legislature wants the governor to resign because he was slipping off to Argentina to make whoopee, and Illinois, where the governor did resign after being found trying to sell a seat in the U.S. Senate on eBay (more or less).

You have to wonder what they're putting in the drinking water in the statehouses of America.

Booth program helps students prepare for college

PIKEVILLE — They travel to faraway places, study everything from chemistry to creative writing, sharpen their technology skills and prepare for college. These high school sophomores, juniors and seniors are among the best and brightest and part of an exciting social network known as Booth Scholars.

The Booth Scholars Program at Pikeville College, which began in the summer of 2001, recently welcomed scholars to campus for the two-week residential component of the program.

The Booth Scholars Program was developed to assist academically promising youth in specific regions of Appalachia as they prepare for college. Open to students from Pike County and Grundy, Va., scholars are selected during the spring of their eighth-grade year and take part in the program throughout high school and into college.

Scholars experience a diverse curriculum and a wide range of enrichment experiences, in addition to mentoring, scholarship assistance and technology-based educational opportunities. This summer, their time in the classroom is an inspiring mix of the best a liberal arts education has to offer, with classes in calculus, anatomy, leadership, creative writing, advanced computers, digital photography and dance.

Since its inception, the program has seen tremendous success. The average ACT composite score for high school senior scholars is consistently above local, state and national levels. All of the scholars who have completed the program have matriculated into colleges across the eastern United States. Additionally, 85% of the former scholars who are college seniors have successfully applied for graduate school admission.

The program was envisioned as a way of encouraging students to dream big, develop their talents and gain the skills and self-confidence to compete with students anywhere in the world.

In addition to Pikeville College, Booth Scholars are attending such schools as the University of Kentucky, Centre College, the University of Georgia, Vanderbilt University, Drexel University, Asbury College and Belmont University.

The Booth Scholars Program at Pikeville College is made possible by the vision and generosity of Alex L. Booth Jr., a native of Wayne County, W. Va., and a graduate of the University of Chicago. Booth, a successful businessman, has served as a member of the Board of Trustees at Pikeville College for more than a decade. The Booth Scholars Program enhances learning and helps students meet the challenges of an increasingly technological society.

College

Program, or GAP.

Under GAP, students graduating with an associate degree in arts, science or general studies will receive a number of benefits. Those benefits include transfer to UVCW with junior status, including a fulfillment of all general requirements, priority consideration for all academic merit and need-based financial aid program assistance, as well as a waiver of the $25 application for admission fee.

Dr. George Edwards, BSC/TC president, expressed gratitude for the partnership and stressed that the college has always sought out ways students could continue their education beyond the local campus.

"This is giving opportunity to our students here at Big Sandy," Edwards told those gathered for the signing Wednesday. "Transfer is one of our major areas of focus and we're more than pleased to enter into this agreement."

Also on hand was UVCW's chancellor David Prior, who said his college is eager to begin accepting students coming from Prestonsburg.

"We work week in and week out to create a very welcoming environment at our school, and feel this will be a real benefit to everyone," said Prior. "We think this is a natural match."

Among individual sets of terms for both schools drawn out in the agreement, there are also requirements that both schools will share as the two institutions embark on their new partnership.

Under the agreement, both will monitor the academic performance of students enrolling, identify problems and work together to adjust details of course content to ensure students can transfer without disruption. Also, both have agreed to arrange meetings to develop additional major course equivalencies between the two schools.

The agreement, signed 10 a.m. Wednesday in the BSC/TC student center, will be binding for four years and will be reviewed annually.

about the six priorities that AARP believes any health care reform bill should address.

"We need to guarantee access to affordable coverage for Americans age 50 to 64, closing the Medicare Part D coverage gap, lower the drug costs through generic biologics, reduce costly hospital readmissions through a Medicare follow-up, long-term care, and helping low-income Americans," Cook said.

According to statistics provided by AARP, nearly 80,000 residents in Kentucky from ages 50 to 64 are uninsured.

Drugs

120 hydrocodone tablets, but had numerous pills missing, police said.

When asked about the missing number of pills, police said Hoover suggested they could be in the console of her vehicle, which they then searched.

In the console of Hoover's vehicle, police say they then discovered a plastic bag of numerous hydrocodone tablets, along with alprazolam and phentermine tablets and a straw.

Other bottles containing prescription drugs were allegedly found later and statements were taken by police. During those statements, police said Hoover indicated that the plastic bag was "payment for the doctor visit to Dr. Hoover's office in Williamson, W. Va.," according to the police citation.

All prescription tablets and other evidence were seized at the scene and the Kentucky State Police now have an open case against Hoover.

She will appear in court on Aug. 26 to answer to a single charge of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance.

Unfortunately, some parents skip important step number three: Booster seats. Because their children have outgrown toddler seats, they mistakenly assume a safety belt is the next step. However, safety belts alone can be dangerous for kids who are under 4'9". Because safety belts don't fit these children properly, they can cause serious injuries to their face, neck and abdomen during a crash or sudden stop. In fact, kids 2-5 who wear

the four safety-belt steps are not magical safety belts alone are 4 times more likely to suffer head injuries than kids in car seats and booster seats. In addition, children 4-7 who use booster seats are a whopping 59% less likely to be injured in a crash than those only restrained by a safety belt. Booster seats raise your child up so that a safety belt (designed for adults) will fit and protect them properly. Remember, 4'9" is the magic number. Until then, kids really need to be in a booster seat. Booster seats work like...well, you know.
...they're critical.

Keep the family athlete fueled up for practice with a hearty Supreme Sandwich With Turkey, Ham & Roast Beef.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL'S IN THE BAG!

FAMILY FEATURES

Back-to-School brims with new beginnings even though the old routines are still valued, such as putting together the daily school lunch. Kids develop new tastes and interests as they grow and change during the summer months, so by the fall, something as favorite as a trusted PB&J combo seems downright boring.

It's time to brighten up those brown-bag goodies with some simple changes. Jazz up all your child's favorites by thinking through bread choices and complementary condiments. Slice some apples for that PB&J sandwich and put them between raisin bread or cranberry-walnut slices.

A plain turkey sandwich with plain mayo might also make eyes roll this season, so consider the wide range of interesting deli meats available today. Try combining maple glazed honey turkey or ham with Munster on a soft roll. Add a smear of cranberry jelly and a sprinkle of sunflower seeds for crunch. Deli meats are also flavored with hickory smoke, Cajun spices and even South-of-the-border peppers for the more adventurous young palates.

Here are more tips for peppering up lunches and snacks that travel to school or are enjoyed at home:

- Add color and texture — orange carrot sticks and green grapes brighten the meal while whole wheat pretzels and crackers add crunch. Slip green pepper slices inside a wrap or sandwich — kids will eat healthier without realizing it!
- Make brown bag lunch fun! Younger children love the do-it-yourself aspect of building their own pizza or cracker stack creations. Turn fun into healthy, too, with cubes of Boar's Head meats and cheeses packed in a lunch bag along with some low-salt crackers.
- Pack an extra half sandwich for the active athlete in the family. Before a workout, eating a ham, cheese and veggie combo on half a roll is a great way for your soccer or baseball player to keep fueled up during long afterschool practices.
- Kids often come home hungry. Be prepared with some rolled up Boar's Head meats and cheeses and condiment dips to hold them over until mealtime.
- Since kids will eat what's available in the cupboard or fridge, take charge when deciding which foods to stock in the house. Encourage healthy in-between snacks with a bowl of washed fruit on the kitchen counter, or keep cut up vegetables in the refrigerator along side a healthy dip.

MOVIES FROM THE BLACK LAGOON

'The Satan Bug'

by TOM DOTY
 TIMES COLUMNIST

Chemical warfare, terrorism and an unstable millionaire combine for taut thrills in this yarn from John Sturges ("The Magnificent Seven").

Sturges was fresh from the success of "The Great Escape" when he opted to make this smaller scale terror tale. If you ever wondered about what might happen when a chemical agent capable of destroying all life on the planet gets liberated from a secret lab and falls into the hands of a lunatic version of H. Ross Perot, then this is the flick for you.

The story begins with a look at "Station Three," near closing time before the weekend. Security measures appear tight, but that doesn't stop a crew from breaking in the old-fashioned way (by mailing themselves to the lab in crates of equipment). The thugs manage to steal six vials of botulism, and one flask of the titular menace.

The base turns to its ex-security chief, Lee Barrett, to investigate the break-in, as everyone who works there is a suspect. Barrett

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

Phase I...Phase II...Phase III...Phase IV...Phase out.

Postal card message from Tampa, Florida.

"Why can't we buy The Floyd County Times here?"

Our correspondent: County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson.

JOB APPLICANT

The thermometer was threatening to strike boil when "White, at the melting point, entered these air-conditioned precincts, the other afternoon, and paused. "Wouldn't mind havin' a job sleepin' in here."

DEFLATION

When a woman reader in another state informed us that The Floyd County Times is the finest newspaper that swims into her ken, the old husband began to get real tight. Then she explained why:

"Yours is the only newspaper I get that isn't full of Watergate."

I am well aware of the fact that a lot of news doesn't necessarily win friends.

FRETFUL HANDS

Fiddle, banjo, guitar, piano, organ, zither—you name it, and I can't play it. And don't spring that fiction on me that anybody can play a musical instrument, or draw, or do anything if they want to

PRESTONSBURG — For many locals, John Rosenberg's story of his flight from Jewish persecution in Nazi Germany to his work in Mississippi with the United States Justice Department as a civil rights attorney to founding AppalReD here in Floyd County is well known.

Now many others will know his story.

A newly released book, titled, "This Is Home Now: Kentucky's Holocaust Survivors Speak," by Arwen Donahue, has just been released through the University Press of Kentucky. The collection of survivor interviews includes one from Rosenberg in which he humbly recalls the dramatic path he made from his childhood in Germany to making Floyd County his home.

"There was a very heavy religious influence in my father's family. And my dad was very knowledgeable in Jewish law," Rosenberg says in an early section of the printed interview. "He knew the five books of Moses by heart. If you go into the synagogue, the five books of Moses are in the scroll and you could start my father anywhere and he could give you the rest of the passage."

And so starts Rosenberg's story, one which is included along with eight others in Donahue's book. He would later see the scrolls from his own church in Magdeburg, Germany, burned by Nazi Storm Troopers.

"When the Storm Troopers came to the house and roused us out that night and brought us into the courtyard, Mother asked somebody whether they're going to kill us, and he said they didn't know," Rosenberg said. "Then they dynamited the temple, and they brought all the religious scrolls and all the books out into the courtyard and burned them."

A 7-year-old Rosenberg says this end result stands out clearly in his mind from that night.

"That's what I remember very vividly," he said. "Just seeing all that stuff burn up."

Striking black-and-white photographs of the nine survivors taken by Rebecca Gayle Howell accompany the interviews, including one portraying a contemplative Rosenberg that also appears on the cover of the book.

In his forward to the book, John Ringelheim, former director of the Department of Oral History for the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, speaks of the rarity of such publications and its value to society.

"I believe that Donahue and Howell's work makes the lives of survivors closer in some ways than we have known before," Ringelheim writes. "There are relatively few books about postwar lives of Holocaust survivors in America."

A fixture in Floyd County, Rosenberg sat for the interview over a three-day period from his Prestonsburg office in 1999 and 2000. That office served as his helm for the AppalReD — the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund — which Rosenberg oversaw as director until his retirement in 2001.

DINNER DIVA

Breakfast for dinner

It's summer and as such, we've seen quite a few wildfires already—in Las Vegas, Southern California and up into British Columbia, too. Lots of evacuations, a few homes lost. It's a tragedy we witness on the news every summer. I have said continually (and will probably keep saying it) that dinner is important; that it is ministry and that it is something that everyone can have at least a few times a week at their dinner tables. How much more important in life do relationships become when tragedy can strike any minute?

You don't have to have the threat of an evacuation to know what and who are the most important things in your life. If I had the opportunity to give every woman on the planet a gift, it would be a vase of flowers for the middle of their dinner tables to remind them that this is a sacred place where their families are not only fed, but also nurtured and loved.

I invite you this week to make that sacred place pretty. If you use your dinner table as a catch-all for junk mail, book bags and everyone's stuff, lose that habit! Are you up to the challenge? I know you can do this! Get some pretty leaves (wash them first—you don't want bugs coming to dinner, too!) and acorns and pinecones—whatever you have around the yard. Or splurge on some flowers, or just a big bowl of apples in a basket you love. You could EVEN do candles if you wanted! As a matter of fact, why not have Breakfast for Dinner this week?

My teenaged children have many fond memories of sipping orange juice from a crystal wine glass and listening to Vivaldi by candlelight while diving into a stack of pancakes! It will take 5 minutes

Family Medicine

Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine

O I fell going down the stairs several months back. I was holding the railing, so I didn't fall, but by holding the railing, I twisted my finger. It still hurts. I did get an X-ray after it happened, and it wasn't broken, so I figured it would just get better. It has not. When will my finger stop hurting?

A Many people ignore injuries they assume that because the finger is small, it is relatively uncomplicated, and there isn't much you can do for it. With the exception of fractures or dislocations, most finger injuries are left to heal themselves. While this usually works, it has not in your case. Many professional athletes would tell you how significant a finger injury can be: it can be career-ending.

While most of us are not professional athletes, our fingers aren't any less important, and injuries to them can have a substantial impact on the activities of daily living.

When you twisted your finger, you probably caused a sprain of the ligaments of the finger joint. The finger has two interphalangeal joints, one near the end of the finger and one in the middle of the finger. It also has a metacarpophalangeal joint — commonly known as the knuckle — which connects the finger to the hand. These hinge-type joints have several ligaments that keep them aligned with each other when you are bending and straightening them.

A sprain is a general term for injury to a ligament. Ligaments can be stretched, which is considered a first degree sprain; partially torn, which is termed a second degree sprain; or completely torn, which is a third degree sprain.

Symptoms of a finger sprain are pain in the injured joint at rest and when bending the finger, possible swelling, and reduced mobility. If the injury is severe, there may be instability of the joint.

A first degree sprain of a finger can take two to six weeks to heal. A second degree sprain takes two to three months to resolve, and a third degree sprain can take up to six months, although swelling may last for up to a year.

The initial treatment of Rest, Ice, Compression, and Elevation (RICE), is the treatment for any sprain. Often, using a single cube to massage the injured finger will bring relief. Also, when a finger is injured, often it is buddy-taped to the finger next to it for support and to decrease motion.

You didn't mention which finger was injured. Typically, when buddy-taping fingers, the first finger is paired with the second finger, and the third finger is paired with the fourth finger.

After a week or two of RICE, gradual exercise and stretching should begin. Non-steroidal, anti-inflammatory medications like aspirin or ibuprofen will help with the pain. In third degree sprains, if there is also a joint dislocation, surgery may be necessary.

It would probably be helpful to see your family physician and get treatment advice and, possibly, a referral for physical therapy to help your finger recover.

GOOD HEALTH

There's no age limit on mammograms

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 81 and have been getting mammograms for as long as I can remember. My doctor insists I continue to get them. At my age, is it really necessary? — A.C.

ANSWER: I can offer you the recommendations coming from different respected sources. They don't all agree in all particulars. Did you know that half of all breast cancers are found in women 65 and older? A considerable number are diagnosed in women in their 80s.

The American Cancer Society says there are no age limits for mammograms, and women should continue to have them if they are in good health. The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force, a panel of experts, tells women to have a mammogram yearly or every other year if their life expectancy isn't limited by other diseases. The American Geriatrics Society recommends that women 75 and older get a mammogram every two to three years if they have a life expectancy of four or more years. Unless studies are done that show no benefit to continued mammograms, I go with those who favor a yearly mammogram for all women in relatively good health.

Breast cancer is a topic that frightens all women. The booklet on that cancer explains it and its detection. To obtain a copy, write to: Dr. Donohue — No. 1101 W. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My wife has been going through menopause for the past eight years. We have not been intimate through these years. When I bring up the subject of intimacy, she quickly states that she doesn't want to talk about it. She won't even hug me.

My wife is only 53 years old. It seems like she will be going through menopause for the rest of her life. I have been more than patient, but I would like to have my wife back. If you could give me some advice, it would be greatly appreciated. — J.T.

ANSWER: Menopause can lessen sexual drive, but it shouldn't completely eliminate it, and menopause doesn't usually drag on for eight years.

Sexual desire is a complex process that involves hormones, nerves, blood vessels, general health and the brain. The brain is, perhaps, the most important element. Your wife needs professional help. Her total lack of sexual desire at a young age and for so long could be a physical problem, so the family doctor is the place to start. If, as is more likely the case, it is a psychological problem, the doctor can start treatment for that, or can refer her to a specialist.

You have been more than patient.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I take a fish-oil supplement daily. Can you tell me if these tablets contain mercury, as some fish do? — P.C.

ANSWER: Take your fish-oil supplement without fear. Such supplements contain negligible, if any, amounts of mercury. They won't make you sick. They could make you well.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

It was right funny, watching them with this serpent (Sir Pent, they named him), telling us silly oldsters have pretty good pretty it was, and I suspect, purposely letting the critter drop onto the grass to inspire a certain sedate lady to do a buck-and-wing. Very funny. Till the boy just chanced to unscrew the cap of the jar inside which the snake was confined, and that taking place as he sat beside me while I was at the wheel, topping Brush Creek Mountain. ## Salome's Stars Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Aries leadership qualities can help bring order out of all that confusion, whether it's on the job or in the home. But be careful to guide, not goad, others into following you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Applying a more personal view to a job-linked issue could help provide better insight into those persistent problems. Use your keen Tauran logic to cut through the double-talk.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Taking some time off could be the best way to get through that seemingly endless round of demands. You'll return refreshed and ready to tackle things from a new perspective.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Restoring a sagging professional relationship takes a lot of effort. By all means, state your position. But also make sure you pay close attention to the other person's point of view.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A hot prospect intrigues the Big Cat, who is always on the prowl for a promising investment. But be careful that this "promise" has a chance of being kept. Check it out more carefully.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A friend could use some of your compassion and concern. If he or she doesn't ask for help, be sure you step up and make the first move. Also, check out a new career possibility.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might have difficulty getting your opinions heard because of all the noise being made by the other side. But hang in there. Others should line up with you once they learn the facts.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Offering to help a colleague is commendable. But before you commit your time and effort, check to see if that person's situation is all that he or she has led you to believe it is.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You should soon be seeing positive results from your recent efforts on behalf of a family member. On another matter, check that you have all the facts regarding a job assignment.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your aspects favor closer family relationships this week. Take time for visits, whether in person, by phone, by mail or in cyberspace. Let them know how important they are to you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A missed opportunity isn't always a negative. Maybe your instincts are telling you not to rush into something you "thought" was worthwhile. Make time for family this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your sense of humor helps you get through a tricky situation. But some stick-in-the-muds might not be so willing to make the changes that you and others agree are necessary.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for making everyone you know — or even just meet — feel important and welcome in your life.

WHY WOULD YOU WANT TO KILL HIM?

Cycling is one the best ways to improve your health, protect the environment and reduce consumption of foreign oil. But even if you don't ride a bike, you can help do your part by watching for cyclists on the road and driving with care. In Kentucky, bicycles have the same rights to use roads and highways as cars and trucks. But keep in mind that cyclists are at greater risk of injury or death in the event of a wreck. That is why it is important to use caution and courtesy when you encounter a bicycle. Pass them only when it is clear, give them a few extra feet when passing, and never do anything to startle a cyclist, such as blowing your horn, passing too close or yelling at them.

I've always pitied the poor city child for all the things he has missed, but two of my seven grandchildren have almost convinced me that I might be better off if I had

Serves about 6
1 dozen eggs, beaten like for scrambled eggs
1/4 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste
1 small package of frozen, chopped spinach, drained
1/2 a small onion chopped

and sauteed
1 cup ground beef, cooked (I use just about anything from leftover spaghetti meat to leftover taco meat—use whatever you have)

6 oz. shredded sharp cheddar (I use lowfat)

In a bowl, beat your eggs and add milk, salt and pepper. In a lightly greased 9 x 13 pan, put meat, spinach and cheese down then top with egg mixture. Bake at 350 for 20-30 minutes, but check it often. I have noticed a great deal of difference in cooking times on this. Serve it with a great big salad and some whole grain bread and you have one wonderful supper.

What do gas-enhancement claims really mean?

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:
Is there any merit to the claim that nitrogen in gasoline can benefit for cleaning the engine? What's the chemistry behind it? Or is this just the latest gasoline-additive scam? — David

TOM: Hmm. Maybe they're trying to get rid of all that excess nitrogen that they couldn't talk people into buying and using in their tires?

RAY: You're asking about Shell Oil Company's latest campaign, David, in which it claims that its gasoline is "nitrogen enhanced." And like most of the "enhancement" offers that come via e-mail these days, David, this claim probably should be ignored.

TOM: Shell claims that its new nitrogen-enhanced gasoline keeps your engine cleaner.

RAY: Here's the story. Every gasoline is required to use a certain minimum amount of deposit-control additive — which does help keep deposits from forming on your valves and other engine components. All of these additives contain small amounts of nitrogen.

TOM: But nitrogen is only one of several ingredients in these cleaning additives. So my guess is, Shell has increased the amount of cleaning additive in its gasoline, which has "enhanced" the nitrogen component.

RAY: And more cleaning additive is good. I mean, why not? It's such a small amount of nitrogen, compared with the volume of gasoline, that it doesn't affect the amount of nitrous oxides that come out of the tailpipe. And if your engine runs cleaner, that's the better.

TOM: But what the claim "nitrogen-enhanced" doesn't tell you is how much additive the gasoline had in the first place, and how much it has now. Maybe Shell used to add the absolute minimum necessary? Maybe it already was good, and got better? There's no way for us to know, as these are trade secrets. And by claiming its gasoline is enhanced, all we know is Shell is using more now than it was before.

RAY: Right. It would be like me and my brother claiming that our newspaper, Nonnam, is now "enhanced with right answers." It could mean that we really are trying harder and putting more time into answering each question. Or it could mean that we've enhanced the column to the point that we now get at least one answer right a year.

Best way to stay cool in an old car

Dear Tom and Ray:
I have a 1995 Volvo 940. Late last summer, my air conditioner seemed to lose some punch. Since summer was ending and the AC was blowing just cool enough to make things comfortable, I didn't bother fixing it. Now, with summer upon us again, I need to get it fixed. The air blows cold in the morning, and just slightly cool during the afternoon. The volume of air is fine. I do not hear any strange or weird noises from the compressor. The car runs great, and has

186,000 miles on it. About seven years ago, I had a new compressor installed. I'm guessing I have a leak, or leaks. Any thoughts for me before I take it in? It's supposed to get hot this week. — Juan

TOM: Yes. Bring a fresh shirt to change into, Juan. Most waiting rooms are on the polite side. RAY: If I had to guess, I'd say you've lost some refrigerant. The fact that your air conditioner's performance has degraded so slowly (it changed very little in the past year) suggests that you have a very slow leak.

TOM: In that case, the prudent thing to do would be a vacuum test, to confirm that your leak is very minor. If it is, then you can just get your system recharged — that is, have it filled back up with refrigerant.

RAY: It may be another year, or more, before it gives you problems again. By then, with any luck, your Volvo may be sailing over to Korea as scrap metal, preparing to return to America as a Home Depot Chimenea.

TOM: I mean, if you were really environmentally conscientious, you'd ask them to do a dye test to find the leak or, more likely, leaks. And then you'd fix them, no matter what.

RAY: If your system was losing its charge every week, or if your car was much newer, that would be our suggestion, too. And you'd have to do it, or invest in a lot more shirts.

TOM: The reason it's nice to do the diagnosis is because you may find a relatively simple problem. If your biggest leak is just a cracked hose, for instance, fixing it could cost you as little as $100.

RAY: But if it's one of the major AC components, that's more like $1,000. And since you're driving a 15-year-old car with almost 200,000 miles, I'm guessing you don't have a lot of extra money to spend.

TOM: In that case, you should do what most of our customers with slow leaks do, and just recharge it. At least see how long the charge lasts. If it lasts only a week, you'll obviously have to reassess. But if it lasts the summer, it may be the last charge you ever need.

Rental Central

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

A superb week for rentals included superheroes, serial killers and a new riff on "Alice in Wonderland."

■ "The Watchmen" — Retired superheroes must hunt down a killer preying on their ranks in this apocalyptic action tale from Zack Snyder ("300"). The film turns out to be a faithful adaptation of the award-winning graphic novel (by Alan Moore and David Gibbons) that took the comic book world by storm in the late 1980s. Snyder sticks to the source material (though he does add some great touches, such as an opening montage that fills you in on the back story). The story is a bit long for what audiences expect from a comic book film, but that's nothing compared to the dark mood which permeates the piece. The film is even better on DVD, with a ton of additional scenes that were cut for the theatrical version (though fans of the series would have gladly sat through a four-hour version, most audiences try to schedule movies around their hectic lives). There is also some meaty acting on display here, with the best work coming from Billy Crudup, as Dr. Manhattan, and Jackie Earle Haley, as the seriously disturbed Roarshach.

■ "Cowling" — A young girl escapes from her oppressive life by jumping into a mirror world in this fresh spin on Neil "The Sandman" Gaiman. The young lady (voiced by Dakota Fanning) soon discovers that escapes can be their own prisons when her new world begins to exhibit signs that it isn't the paradise she'd hoped for. This one is aimed at kids but it is pretty dark. This is not recommended for younger children but it should hold the attention of adults and middle-schoolers. John Hodgman ("The Daily Show") and "Tori" Hatchel ("Desperate Housewives") voice the parents of both worlds.

■ "Bundy: A Legacy of Evil" — Low-budget serial killer movies have made for decent decisions lately. They have profiled, rather effectively, famous killers such as the Hillside Stranglers, Richard Speck and the Boston Strangler. Here you get a turkey of the highest order, however, as the filmmakers skew away from known facts about their subject. Bundy was a sociopath but he was also a charmer. Here you get a leaden Cornin Nemesis. He's usually quite good, but here he's undone by a lackluster script and his own weary performance.

■ "Martyrs" — If you missed out on this film when it was first released two months ago then I'm giving you a second chance to check it out, that is, if you like horror movies that get under your skin and deprive you of sleep. The story finds a young lady, who was kidnapped and tortured as a child, gunning for her abusers. She appears to find them and that's when things get really disturbing as she exacts her revenge. For the first time you will think you know where this is going, but you're wrong. You're also in for a film that will rip your heart out. If this one doesn't disturb you, then you'd better check your pulse.

Next week things will lighten up considerably with the latest film in the "Fast and the Furious" series as well as the animated DC film "Green Lantern."

goes to work and figures out how the team escaped the base, but his main concern is who has the virus. His worst fear is that a member of the lunatic fringe is involved, because you know, one of those types that is so "ga-ga" over the idea of world peace that they will kill millions to prove their point.

Barrett immediately singles out a few known radicals with the finances to pull off the job and has the military look into them while he interrogates ... I mean, questions the scientists at the compound. He acts on the assumption that it had to be an inside job due to the tight security measures at the base, as well as the secret nature of its business. Here the film borders on science fiction, as it wants you to believe that the government can keep a secret.

The scientists don't know anything helpful (go figure) but the military reports back that Barrett's chief suspect, a chemical company millionaire, has gone off the radar and has not been seen in months. No pictures exist of the guy so he could be anybody. This is a cool plot point, dovetailing nicely with the origin of one of the scientists but that's all you'll get out of me.

Barrett continues to make intuitive assumptions and eventually figures out where the chemical weapons are when he takes note of a report of a flat tire on the night of the incident. Unfortunately, the thugs are there to reclaim them too and they take Barrett hostage, dead-end.

This turns out to be a good thing as it gets Barrett closer to the "Satan Bug" and introduces him to the architect of the robbery. Turns out our millionaire just wants to use the weapon as insurance so that the military will shut down all labs that are dedicated to creating weapons of mass destruction. Unfortunately he doesn't trust that the government will comply unless he shows that he means business, so he sets off a strain of botulism in Florida and rigs another one in L.A.

The climax finds Barrett wrestling with the madman in a helicopter over California while a flask, containing the world's deadliest virus, rolls perilously close to the open door that just saw the pilot go tumbling through it. Great stuff that folds suspense and intelligence into a tense plot, that has since become commonplace in action movies that depend on bigger and bigger explosions but smaller and smaller ideas.

Idea drive this one so credit it must go to the writers. Alastair MacLean ("The Guns of Navarone") wrote the novel this came from, but James Clavell ("Shogun") did the screenplay and made two important changes by moving the film's location to the USA (the book was set in England) and changing the motivation of the villain (who was simply out for a big payday in the book).

Clavell's script doesn't shy away from the moral implications of creating deadly weapons. The last line in the film, uttered by a triumphant Barrett, cements the message by making it clear that stopping the terrorist only removes half of the equation, as we now have to share our living space with a lot of people who didn't exist until man created it.

The players are solid too and include a slew of people who had their best success on the small screen. George Maharis ("Knots" '66) is well cast as Barrett and manages to make the character equal parts brain and brawn. Richard Baschart ("Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea") makes for a good villain and his final exit is a whopper.

The thugs are menacing as all get out, due to the casting of Ed Asner and Frank Sutton, who would later go on to sitcom infamy as grouchy authority figures. Lou Grant and Sgt. Carter in the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Gomer Pyle."

Anne Francis ("Honey West") is also on hand, but mostly as eye-candy, though she does get to spoil one goon's day.

There are also several well-paced sequences that detail the horrors of chemical warfare. Most chilling is a scene where the characters view the aftermath of a chemical attack on Florida. The camera pans over empty streets strewn with litter, which upon closer inspection turns out to be corpses.

MGM released this on VHS in 1996, but your best bet is to catch it on television until they finally get around to releasing it on DVD.

Best line: "He's floating at the bottom of the pool." 1965, unrated.

Betsy Layne looking to capture second straight district title

Lady Cats to compete in State Games

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE — The Betsy Layne Lady Cats will enter the 2009 season looking to capture a second straight 54th District championship and contend in the 15th Region tournament. Betsy Layne is currently involved in preseason practice sessions.

"I am so proud of my team from last year — again it was one of our most successful seasons in history," said Betsy Layne Coach Christina Crase. "Our seniors Andie Meade and Samantha Stewardson led the way the entire time. They were seniors who led by actions — they meant business and they were able to rally their team to district championship and region runners up effort!"

Meade finished last season with 151 kills, 71 aces, 102 digs and 264 Assists. Stewardson concluded the same campaign with 44 kills, 73 aces, 62 digs and 11 assists.

"This season starts fairly early for us with the Bluegrass State Games," Crase added. "Our returning players and incoming players are working hard to fill the big shoes from last season. Some stats from returning players include Taylor Watkins, who finished the season with 137 kills, 32 aces, 76 digs and 68 blocks; Andie Ray, who finished the season with 85 kills, 58 aces, 95 digs and 85 blocks; Kaleigh Wagner finished the season with 122 kills, 70 aces, 66 digs and 317 assists; and Allie Meade, who finished the season with 11 kills, 65 aces, 42 digs and 10 assists."

Andie Meade was the 2008 54th District Most Valuable Player. She and Stewardson were both members of the All-54th District Tournament Team along with Watkins, Wagner and Ray. Last season, Betsy Layne featured some of the top players in Floyd County and the 15th Region. Ray earned a spot on the All-15th Region Team.

"The team has come out with a passion and desire that is wonderful to see," Crase confided. "They have been practicing so hard. It's very obvious that many have worked hard on their own in the offseason. We plan on using our preseason scrimmage games to help us jump start the season."

Betsy Layne will play in the Bluegrass State Games starting July 31. The Lady Cats will then host Johnson Central Aug. 6 before competing in the Allen Central preseason tournament Aug. 8.

Betsy Layne is the defending 54th District volleyball champion.

Remembering small college hoops coaches

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Around the time Adolph Rupp was retiring from the University of Kentucky, a special era was coming about in small colleges around the Commonwealth. It didn't draw the national acclaim of the statewide university or its bitter rival in Louisville, but it was a unique period all the same.

Jim Reid was coaching at his alma mater in Georgetown. Beginning in 1973, Reid won 529 games over the next couple of decades. He was named national coach of the year twice, led his team to the national championship game in 1996 and is a member of the NAIA hall of fame.

Lou Cunningham spent 25 years as head coach at Campbellsville, leading the Tigers to a pair of national tournament berths.

Don Lane coached at Transylvania for 27 years, winning 524 games in his illustrious career. He was honored by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes as its coach of the year three times and was the consensus coach of the year in 2001 when Transy went to the national tournament ranked No. 1 in the country. In 1998 he was inducted in the NAIA hall of fame and joined the Kentucky hall of fame in 2004.

Randy Vernon got to Cumberland College in 1979 and posted a career record of 528-183. His teams made it to nine national tournaments. In 1981-82 the Indians were 20-16, but over the next five years, Vernon's clubs posted a combined record of 155-17.

Roland Wierwille coached Berea College from 1972 to 2002, winning 464 times in that stretch. He led the Mountaineers to five NAIA national tournaments, including a 1999 trip to the national semifinals. That year he was inducted into the NAIA hall of fame.

We mention these gentlemen this week because last Saturday morning at a hospital in Berea, Coach Wierwille passed away quietly. Obituaries and tributes cited "a short illness," but the truth of the matter is the coach,

May wins TVBA tourney at Paintsville

TIMES STAFF REPORT

STAFFORDSVILLE — The Tug Valley Bass Anglers held its fifth and only night tournament of the 2009 season on Paintsville Lake Saturday. Veteran fisherman Brad May won the Tug Valley tournament.

Paintsville is the deepest and clearest lake in the Eastern Kentucky area. Lined with rock cliffs and an abundance of standing timber the yearly night tournament on this lake is always good fishing. The water level was at normal summer pool and very clear.

Weather for the tournament was good with mostly clear skies and night time temperatures in the low 50s.

This was typical night time fishing. Most of the fish were fairly shallow, ten foot or less and not far from the bank. The main pattern for this tournament was to fish jigs, soft plastic craws or worms on the steeper main lake deep banks with wood cover.

A breakdown of the top 10 finishers follows. 1st: Brad May — (5 fish), 7.40 lbs., Big fish 4.31 lbs.; 2nd: Kevin Runyon — (5 fish), 6.99 lbs.; 3rd: MO — (5 fish) 3.97 lbs.; 4th: Lynn Fields — (5 fish) 3.08 lbs.; 5th: Justin Cook — (4 fish) 1.84 lbs.; 5th: POP — (2 fish) 1.84 lbs.; 7th: Keith Pacific — (4 fish) 1.68 lbs.; 8th: Chris Taylor — (3 fish) 1.63 lbs.; 9th: Brandon Staten — (2 fish) 1.04 lbs.; 10th: James Riley — (2 fish) .72 lbs.

Gander Mountain, TMK Security and Personnel, Borders, Sporting Goods, Elliott Supply & Glass, Perry Distributors, Don's Street Machine, Extreme Sounds, Pigeon Creek Log

Company, Appalachian Wireless and Thoroughbred Steakhouse are Tug Valley Bass Anglers sponsors.

WYMT included in SEC

Regional Network: ESPN Regional Television, the new over-the-air syndication home for Southeastern Conference programming, and the SEC have announced a regionally syndicated college sports package that will air in more than 73 television markets, along with the branding of the syndication package as the SEC Network — all part of the groundbreaking 15-year agreement between ESPN, Inc., and the SEC.

The SEC Regional Network will include Hazard-based WYMT.

Within the nine-state SEC footprint, the SEC Network will be delivered in markets by the local over-the-air carrier of SEC events. In markets outside the SEC footprint, the syndicated programming will air on either local, over-the-air television stations or regional sports cable networks.

Coverage will feature extensive football, men's basketball and women's basketball telecasts produced by ESPN Regional Television.

"As ESPN moves forward in this landmark agreement with the SEC, ESPN Regional Television is thrilled to provide our viewers with a consistent window for Southeastern Conference football and basketball," said Pete Derzis, senior vice president & general manager, ESPN Regional Television. "With ESPN's multimedia platforms, we anticipate SEC sports will touch an unprecedented base of college fans nationwide."

The regular-season SEC men's basketball package on the SEC Network beginning in January will consist of Wednesday and Saturday games, including doubleheaders. The SEC Network will also offer regional coverage of multiple rounds from the SEC Men's Basketball Tournament as well as SEC women's basketball games on Sundays, also beginning in January.

The SEC Network, through the efforts of ESPN, will be the largest college sports syndication television package in the country.

SEC Commissioner Mike Slive said, "The comprehensive market coverage in the nine-state SEC area combined with the out-of-market reach gives us significant additional exposure for our programs."

The markets that will air the package represent more than 54 million television households, or 47 percent of the U.S. Before the first clearance work continues, the coverage area will be larger still. The 15-year agreement between ESPN and the SEC begins with the 2009-10 season and continues through 2023-24.

MSU adds international standout Jason Beharie

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — Jason Beharie, a 6-foot-9, 230-pound power forward from London, England, has joined the Morehead State University men's basketball program. Head coach Donnie Tyndall announced this week that Beharie has completed his financial aid agreement and has completed enrollment requirements to the university. He joins the Eagles after two seasons at the Canarias Basketball Academy (CBA) in Spain's Canary Islands.

"Jason is a very skilled player that can play both frontcourt positions. He runs the floor well and will be a good shot blocker," said Tyndall. "Jason has played for a very good coach in Rob Orellana at CBA who has pushed him hard so he will understand the work that is required at this level. Not only is Jason a talented young man on the basketball floor, he is a very good student as well. We are excited to add Jason to our basketball family."

Beharie averaged 12 points, 10 rebounds and 2.5 blocks per game at CBA.

"I have been impressed with Coach Tyndall," said Beharie. "He is very straight forward and direct which I like. He seems to be the type of coach who will push me to reach my potential and help me develop both on and off the court. I'm very excited to be coming to Morehead State and hope to help the team any way I can."

The Canarias Basketball Academy has produced numerous NCAA Division I and NBA players and is located in Gran Canaria, Canary Islands - Spain.

MSU student-athletes honored: Morehead State University student-athletes once again proved to be stellar in the classroom during the 2008-09 year as 14 student-athletes earned Ohio Valley Conference Medals of Honor for perfect 4.0 grade point averages. 89 were named on the OVC Commissioner's Honor Roll, and four teams were awarded the OVC Team Academic Achievement Award for their sport. Leslie County High School graduate Quentin Morgan, a junior pitcher for the MSU baseball program, earned a Medal of Honor.

The programs earning the Team Academic Achievement Award were baseball, soccer, women's tennis, and volleyball. It's the second straight year that volleyball and women's tennis have won the honor. The award is bestowed upon the program with the greatest percentage of student-athletes named to the Commissioner's Honor Roll. MSU finished an extremely close second to Austin Peay in the bid for the OVC Institutional Academic Achievement Award. Morehead State had won the previous four consecutive years and has a total of an OVC-record 10 Academic Achievement banners.

The student-athletes that were awarded a Medal of Honor include Matt Clark (baseball), Michael Brown (men's golf), Karolina Tinsley (women's golf), Jillian Barker, Bethany Davidson, Lily Miesner (women's soccer), Brittany Scheer (softball), Heather Butt (women's tennis), Megan Arnold, Jaimie Howard (women's track and field), Katelyn Barbour, Kirstie Brangers, Holly Evans, and Emma Kough (volleyball).

The OVC announced that 144 conference student-athletes were named to the Commissioner's Honor Roll, breaking the previous high-water mark of 1,023 in 2006-07.

Coaches

who not only survived a 1994 stroke, but also returned to coaching after emerging victorious, had a relapse of the cancer he'd also once beaten.

I'm a fortunate person. I can say that I've known all five of these outstanding coaches and could call all of them friends. I've been in their inner circle and been lucky enough to see them interact with each other, heard them joke and laugh at each other's expense, and saw the playful side of them all.

I told Bill Watson one time about my first encounter with Wierwille, when I was a student sitting on the Alice Lloyd bench for my first trip to the old Seabury Center at Berea. Roland was, I'd guess, in the 6-foot-5 range, probably weighed around 240, and was a raging bull on the Mountaineer bench. I don't mind admitting as a college freshman I was intimidated by him, and I played for Richard Maynard in high school. I'd seen this show before.

Watson told me about the first time he saw Wierwille coach. The coach got particularly perturbed at one point and stomped to his seat. He sat down, reached down to pull his socks up, and ripped them clean in two. On the court he was full of fire, full of passion. Off it, he was as nice as anyone I've ever met. I was fortunate to have a particularly good relationship with him to the point that he once recommended me for a job.

Embry-Riddle, an NAIA school in Daytona Beach, was in need of an SID, and its basketball coach and AD was and still is Steve Ridder, who played at Berea under Coach Wierwille. Coach Ridder flew me to Daytona and treated me like gold. In the end he offered me the job, but at a similar rate of pay as I was making at Pikeville at the time. I turned it down.

This was in about October. That March, Ridder led the Eagles to the national championship.

The next afternoon I was walking around press row at the Sweet 16 when I approached Coach Wierwille, in his usual front-row seat. He saw me coming, pointed, and burst into laughter. "Lemme see your finger," he said. "Yep, that's the one — the one that could have a national championship ring on it!"

I loved Roland Wierwille. I laughed every time I saw him. When he came to Pikeville College games to see the teams his son Roland helped coach, he'd often sneak into a seat in the corner near the top of the gym. I never failed to walk up for a hand-shake and a smile. Had he been at the top of Rupp Arena, it would have been worth the journey.

On Saturdays, afternoons, they'll hold a memorial service for the coach on the Berea campus. Fittingly, those in attendance will walk past the new Seabury Center to the old one. It's less fancy, without the shiny, blue, chair-backed seats, but in many ways, the old Seabury is very much like the old coach.

Nothing flashy, but perfectly capable. I'll miss Roland Wierwille. I'll miss the snile, the hand-shake, the laugh. I've already missed him coaching.

Good guys come around all-too-infrequently these days. Legends are here next to never.

Last Saturday, we lost a legend. This Saturday, we'll say goodbye to one of the absolute best.
