Miner killed in Harlan

A Knox County coal miner died Wednesday afternoon from injuries suffered in an underground mining accident caused by a rib roll.

The miner has been identified as 42-year-old Jimmy R. Carmack of Barbourville. Carmack was a section foreman at the Lone Mountain Processing's Clover Fork Number 1 mine near Holmes Mill in Harlan County.

The accident was reported to state officials at approximately 3:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Investigators from the Kentucky Office of Mine Safety and Licensing (OMSL) and the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) will continue their investigation today.

This is the fourth mine-related fatality in Kentucky in 2010.

Correction

Court records incorrectly listed Delbert Conn as having been arrested on charges which were in turn published in the June 4 edition of The Times. It was actually Jonathan Niece who was charged with possession of marijuana and alcohol intoxication. Conn was the individual who posted bond for Niece following the arrest.

Word-wielding robbers hit pharmacy

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

EASTERN — Police are searching for two suspects who allegedly used a shotgun and a sword in the robbery of Howard Family Pharmacy in Eastern on Thursday.

According to Wes Howard, pharmacist, two men entered the pharmacy around 10:30 on Thursday morning and demanded certain types of pills. Howard said one of the suspects had a shotgun that was still in its case and didn't remove it during the robbery.

Officials with the Floyd County Sheriff's Department said that the suspects left the scene in a black Ford Explorer.

Despite the robbery, the pharmacy remained open on Thursday.

The incident is currently under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

COURT APPEARANCE

Court bailiffs led John C. Combs from a Floyd County courtroom Thursday. Combs was found competent to stand trial for the murder of Perry County physician Dr. Dennis Sandlin in December. Combs is accused of entering a clinic and gunning Sandlin down after the doctor refused to fill one of his prescriptions.

Accused clinic shooter found competent PRESTONSBURG — John C. Combs, the 46-year-old Knox County man who is accused of fatally shooting and killing Perry County physician Dr. Dennis Sandlin this past December, was found competent to stand trial Thursday morning in Prestonsburg.

Floyd County Circuit Judge John David Caudill, who has been assigned as special judge in the case, heard testimony from Dr. Steven Simon, the psychologist who gave Combs his competency evaluation.

Combs showed no emotion during the hearing, keeping his head lowered for the hour-long proceeding and speaking briefly only once to his defense attorneys.

Combs was indicted this past January on charges of murder, burglary, tampering with physical evidence and terroristic threatening after police said he entered the Leatherwood-Blackey Clinic on Dec. 8 and shot Sandlin after being denied prescription medication. Police said Combs had been at the clinic earlier that day and had become irate when he was asked to submit to a urine test as a requirement to obtain the medication.

Victim of fiery wreck still not identified

MAYTOWN — A one-vehicle crash along Route 80 left a man dead Wednesday and state police and investigators still seeking to determine the identity of the driver.

Though authorities say they are close to a determination on the victim's identity, there has been no official reports sent back from Frankfort, where the body was sent for autopsy and identification shortly after the accident.

According to reports from State Police Post 9 in Pikeville, their dispatch center received a call of a vehicle on fire on Route 80 near Maytown at about 4:30 a.m. Wednesday morning. The as-yet unknown driver was traveling east on Route 80 and crossed into the westbound lane, striking a cliff.

When the Maytown Fire Department arrived on scene, the vehicle was fully engulfed in flames. Crews worked to put the fire out, finding the body inside the vehicle.

The case remains under investigation by KSP Trooper Ryan Hamilton, while Post 9 officials expect to release word of the driver's identity possibly by this morning.

Guest View Prescription drug use among teens troubling

A recent report that indicates more and more teens are taking prescription drugs shows we must do more as a society to grapple with this alarming epidemic.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's report showed that 20.2 percent of students admitted taking a prescription drug without a doctor's prescription one or more times during their lives.

We are talking, in some cases, about teens taking some pretty powerful prescription drugs, such as Oxycontin, hydrocodone and Dilaudid.

These teens are taking huge risks not only in terms of legal implications, but are also risking potential overdoses or death.

Law enforcement has taken note of the report and has come together with medical professionals and community leaders to head off illegal prescription drug use and reduce the incidence of addiction.

Law enforcement and local pharmacists maintain a relationship to help ferret out those who fraudulently obtain prescriptions from multiple doctors, often referred to as "doctor shopping," and have them filled at numerous pharmacies.

The drug of choice among teens still seems to be marijuana, which is certainly a concern, but the way in which these teens are getting these illegal prescriptions raises eyebrows.

A lot of teens are simply sneaking into their parents' medicine cabinets and stealing painkillers and other types of drugs for recreational use.

Parents would be wise to keep all narcotic prescription drugs locked up or hidden so teens cannot access them.

State and local law enforcement have done a good job thus far battling drugs such as methamphetamine and marijuana, but prescription drug abuse is a different problem. It is a welcome sign that law enforcement is doing all it can to ensure that fewer teens have access to these very dangerous drugs.

While law enforcement has an important role to play, parents and others for whom drugs are intended have an equally important role in seeing that prescription drugs don't fall into the wrong hands.

Oil spill: It's your fault

by DONALD KAUL
OtherWords

The great question of the day is: Who is to blame for the BP oil disaster that's dominating the news? There are many answers.

Texas Governor Rick Perry, known as the conservative's conservative, provided my favorite. He thinks God did it. At least he called the spill "an act of God," which is pretty much the same thing.

An oil company goes out into the Gulf of Mexico to sink a well two miles into the bottom with a mile of water on top. When its equipment breaks down and the well starts sending vast clouds of oil into the environment, one of its bought-and-paid-for politicians blames God for the mess.

I can just hear God's response: "Now wait a minute. I'm willing to take responsibility for hurricanes, volcanoes, floods and earthquakes, even plagues of locusts if I'm in the mood. But oil spills? You yokels are on your own with that one."

Still, I give the governor's answer high marks for originality. Texans must be proud.

My second favorite answer came from Sarah Palin, Alaska's gift to Tina Fey. She blamed President

Barack Obama. Not for the leak so much as for taking "so doggone long to get in there, to dive in there and grasp the complexity and the potential tragedy that we are seeing."

Pretty much any politician can talk without saying anything, but it takes a kind of genius to make a statement that is so empty of meaning yet still works "doggone" into the sentence. It is a beautiful thing to see. She has the second-best answer to almost everything.

Conservative columnist Charles Krauthammer was almost as ingenious as Gov. Perry. He blamed environmentalists who, he said, "have succeeded in rendering the Pacific and nearly all the Atlantic coast off limits to oil production."

These environmental extremists have forced the poor oil companies to abandon remote areas like the Arctic in favor of regions where people live and work.

In other words, if only we had drilled in the Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge, none of this would be happening today. Or, at the very least, we wouldn't know about it.

No wonder he won a Pulitzer Prize for commentary.

Then there are those wishy-washy centrists who say: "There's a lot of blame to be spread around." Or, "It doesn't do any good to point fingers."

They're all wrong. Blame spread is blame denied, and that's what fingers are for—pointing.

In that spirit, I accuse...

You. Yes you there, wearing your complacency like a suit of medieval armor, proud that you only have three cars in your family and that you keep the thermostat at 70 degrees in the winter.

It's not enough, dude, not nearly enough. We, as well as the other nations of the Earth who are straining to catch up with us, have gorged ourselves on cheap oil for decades without regard for the consequences. The oil spill is a consequence.

BP is out there drilling in deep water to feed our oil addiction, just as the drug lords of Colombia and Mexico kill to feed our addiction to cocaine, pot, and heroin.

And don't imagine that the BP oil disaster is unique or even very unusual. Oil spills, some of them gigantic, are happening all over the world, all the time. You don't hear about them because they're in Africa, Indonesia, or South America. No one cares, least of all the corrupt governments there.

Nor are our agencies free of the corruption (although the bribes given to our agency officials tend to be pathetically small). Still, they work.

As John Vidal, writing in The Guardian, a British newspaper, said: "If the industry were forced to really clean up the myriad messes it causes, the price would jump and the switch to clean energy would be swift."

But don't expect that to happen any time soon. And it's your fault.

Priode, Panthers remain alive in state tourney

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

OK, admit it. How many of you are surprised that when the semifinals of the first-ever Sweet 16 baseball tournament is played tonight the 15th Region representative will still be involved?

I would say I'm mildly surprised, simply because Greenup County, which Pikeville blanked 10-0 on Wednesday night, is usually a pretty good baseball program and there are always some good teams in the 16th Region.

But one thing I'm not surprised about is that Steve Priode is leading the Panthers. I've known Coach Priode since I was in college, when he was resurrecting the Bears baseball program. He knew baseball then and he knows it now.

I'm personally happy for many of the people associated with Pikeville baseball, Priode being one of them. I don't know Randy Maynard but Dartell and Brenda, his fantastic parents, have been friends of mine for a lot longer than any of us want to admit.

But the kid I'm most pleased for is Patrick Keene. I've known Patrick for what seems like his entire life thanks to my friendship with his step-dad Mike

Hamilton leads Pikeville into state semifinals

LEXINGTON — The Pikeville High School baseball program continues to chase a state baseball title. The Panthers' mercy-ruled Greenup County 10-0 in six innings in the quarterfinals of the Forcht Bank/KHSAA State Tournament Wednesday in front of 2,803 at Applebee's Park.

Eighth-grader Jacob Hamilton, a 14-year-old left-hander, pitched the Panthers past Greenup County. Hamilton limited Greenup County to 5 2/3 innings. The young Pikeville pitcher allowed only four hits while walking four and registering five strikeouts. Hamilton was also a hero for Pikeville in an 8-7 win over 14th Region champion Perry County Central in the opening round of the state tournament on Monday.

The Panthers took an early advantage, scoring three runs in the bottom half of the first inning.

Pikeville slugger Gavin Miller went 4-for-4 against the Musketeers. Miller, who also scored three runs, hit his school-record ninth home run of the season for the Panthers in Monday's win over Perry County Central.

Senior outfielder Patrick Keene delivered three hits and two runs for the Panthers. Steve Layne had two singles and two RBIs for Pikeville, which improved to 26-10.

Greenup County ended the season 26-17.

Pikeville will face Butler today at 6 p.m. in the state semifinals. Lexington Christian will face Male in the nightcap at 8.

TRAVIS ATKINS (ABOVE) AND MICAH HARLOW (BELOW) are two leading returnees for the Allen Central High School football program. The start of practice for the 2010 season is now less than one month away.

Schedule set: Rebels to open gridiron season at Jenkins

by STEVE LEMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

EASTERN — The Allen Central High School football program will open the 2010 season on the road at Jenkins Aug. 27. If the upcoming season is anything like the 2009 campaign, Allen Central fans are in for a treat. The Rebels finished last season 10-2, advancing into the second round of the postseason. Allen Central, however, must replace several talented performers who moved on via graduation. The Rebels, fresh off a record-breaking season, the best in school history, face a rebuilding task. Allen Central moved one spot ahead of longtime rival Paintsville last season after defeating the Tigers for the first time in school history.

The Allen Central football program has finalized the 2010 schedule. Following the season-opener versus Jenkins, Allen Central will host Jackson County on Sept. 3. The Rebels will visit Harlan on Sept. 10 before venturing to Paintsville to face the Tigers in the first district game of the season.

Pikeville remains the favorite in Class A, District 8. The Rebels will host Pikeville on Sept. 24. In other home games, Allen Central will entertain East Ridge (Oct. 1), Phelps (Oct. 8) and Knott County Central (Oct. 29). Additional away games will place the Rebels on the road for matchups against South Floyd (Oct. 15) and Betsy Layne (Oct. 22).

Juniors Micah Harlow TE/QB(S) and Travis Atkins (RB/CB) are among Allen Central's leading returnees.

Blann Brothers finish 1-2 in State Amateur

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RICHMOND — It has been a decade since Eric Mason won back-to-back KGA State Amateur Championships. Last Thursday (June 10), it was Jordan Blann's day to claim the same distinction as he took top honors at the 2010 AT&T Kentucky State Amateur Championship to go along with the same title last year. But this was definitely a different way to win a title.

Jordan Blann was one shot behind the leaders as they began their final round but finished two shots ahead with a one under par 71 and a three day total of 206. But he may not have counted on his younger brother Seth to be his closest competitor. Seth's final round 67 set up a tie at the end of the tournament and they were forced into a sudden-death playoff for the title. Jordan proceeded to birdie the first extra hole and secure the victory for the second straight year.

Chris Morris and Jesse Massie matched scores for the third straight day and tied for third at 3 under par 208. The best scores of the final round, six under 66, came from Lexington's Brian Fister and Zack Butler, teammates at Eastern Kentucky University.

Louisville to host 2010 KGA Father-Child: The annual family golf championship featuring fathers, sons and daughters will be in Louisville starting on Monday, June 21 as the 2010 KGA Father-Child Championship tees off at both Big Spring Country Club and Polo Fields Golf & Country Club. Teams from as far away as Harlan and Colver City will be on hand in hopes of taking top honors.

The event has been a tradition of the Kentucky Golf Association for many years and is filled with lots of great memories for lots of families. Players have the chance to play two different formats during the tournament, a scramble and best ball. The field is split for each day and teams will play Big Spring one day and Polo Fields the next, or vice versa.

Play will begin at each golf venue with a 9 a.m. shotgun start. Monday's round will be followed by a player's luncheon.

Bobcats eyeing second trip to playoffs

Betsy Layne reached postseason for first time in school history during 2008 season

by STEVE LEMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE — The Betsy Layne Bobcats are busy preparing for the 2010 high school football season. Betsy Layne will open the upcoming campaign with four non-district games before facing Phelps in a pivotal district contest. The Betsy Layne-Phelps matchup, as is usually the case, will carry heavy post-season implications.

After missing out on the playoffs following its first-ever trip in 2008, Betsy Layne will look for leadership on the gridiron from a talent-heavy senior class that features multiple four-year starters.

The Bobcats failed to return to the postseason in 2009 and are looking to carry momentum from a productive offseason over into the latest campaign. Betsy Layne features a stout senior class which includes running back Casey Adkins (1,139 yards, 12 TDs) and quarterback Nathan Martin (1,016 yards, six TDs), among others.

Senior Dylan Maldonado (557 yards, three TDs) has transferred to rival South Floyd.

Betsy Layne will host Bishop Brossart on Aug. 20 in a season-opener then entertain Burch (W.Va.) one week later. After traveling to Jackson County on Sept. 20, Betsy Layne will host Magoffin County and Phelps in back-to-back games. Betsy Layne will enjoy an open date during the final week of September.

The Betsy Layne schedule is split evenly with five games home and five away.

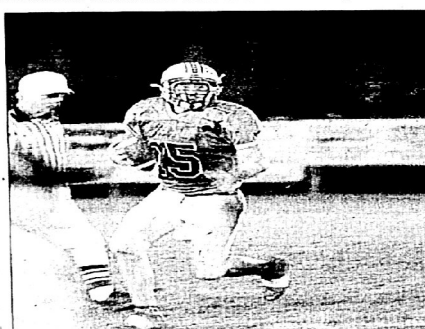

A grueling three-week stretch in the first half of October will put the Bobcats on the road for district games versus South Floyd (Oct. 1), Paintsville (Oct. 8) and Pikeville (Oct. 15).

Betsy Layne will entertain opponents in back-to-back games during the final two weeks of the regular season, hosting Allen Central (Oct. 22) and Jenkins (Oct. 29).

Betsy Layne concluded the 2009 season 3-7.

UP TO 14TH IN STANDINGS: Earnhardt Jr. climbs with good finish

by DUSTIN LONG
THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES
(MCT)

BROOKLYN, Mich. — Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s first top-10 finish in nearly two months gave him a shot as he left Michigan International Speedway.

"We put together a full race," he said of his first top-10 finish since placing eighth at Texas and only his fourth top-10 finish of the season.

Earnhardt's performance helped him climb two spots to 14th in the season standings. He's 81 points out of 12th, the final Chase spot with about three months until the Chase field is set.

Earnhardt rallied late, gaining four spots in first three laps after the final restart to score the seventh-place finish.

"Really happy with the way we finished with the car all day," he said. "We made the right calls, the car stayed good, it was competitive till the end."

Debris or no debris? A couple of drivers questioned the final caution for debris with 18 laps left, even suggesting it was to set up a closer finish with Denny Hamlin running away from the field.

"I understand this is a show business," Hamlin said after his win. "No, I didn't see any debris if that's what you're asking, but we typically get them every single week. I'm not going to say it's accepted, but what can you do?"

Said Carl Edwards, who placed 12th: "We had a sixth-place finish going there before NASCAR threw that caution to bunch up the field and that cost us at the end."

Runner-up Kasey Kahne, though, said he saw "a big piece of debris."

Back In The Top 12 Tony Stewart's fifth-place finish put him back in the top 12 for the first time in two months but that wasn't what left him the happiest.

Stewart was pleased with how well his car drove. The team changed two tires on the first pit stop to gain track position but then lost it on the next stop when they had a lug nut problem that dropped Stewart back to 21st. He climbed through the field, something he has "been able to do lately" — to score his second top-five in a row.

"That's the best car we've had in a long time, so I'm really proud of our guys," Stewart said. "We're definitely gaining on it."

Car owner Rick Hendrick said nothing has been set on determining where Kasey Kahne will race next season but hinted that many possibilities remain.

Hendrick signed Kahne for next season, but as of now, doesn't have a place for Kahne. Car owners are limited to owning four teams and Hendrick's stable features Jimmie Johnson, Jeff Gordon, Mark Martin and Dale Earnhardt Jr. So, if that lineup doesn't change, Hendrick will have to look elsewhere to put Kahne.

A story on Sports Illustrated's website said that Hendrick is working on a partnership with James Finch to put Kahne in Finch's car, the No. 99. Some have speculated that Kahne could end up in a third car at Stewart-Haas Racing, but Bobby Huttenhower, competition director at Stewart-Haas, said there's been little conversation about it.

Said Hendrick about what his plans for Kahne: "To be honest with you, we've been busy doing some other stuff and I've kind of looked at July as a date [to decide]. Everything is kind of up in the air, still on the table. So we haven't really made any decisions yet."

Asked about if any of his current stable of drivers would change to bring in Kahne, Hendrick said: "I think we're just looking at the best place for Kasey right now. That could change but that's where we are today."

Uncertain plans
Bruton Smith, whose company owns several tracks, was asked about the status of moving a Cup date to Kentucky Speedway for next year and sounded a cautious note.

"I don't think it's too late for things, it's just that there's so many things to be done," Smith said. "A lot of various upgrades needed before the Cup series races there. Whatever we want to do, we have to coincide with NASCAR, we don't want to upset anything."

Pit stops
Kurt Busch's third-place finish was his third consecutive top-six finish. ... Crew chief Steve Letarte said he tried some things "outside the box" with Jimmie Gordon's car, and although Gordon finished fourth, admitted the team needs to find more speed. ... Jimmie Johnson gained six spots after the final restart to finish sixth.

Drivers appreciate race fans: In midst of economic woes, MIS crowd up from 2009

by MATT MARKEY
THE BLADE (MCT)

BROOKLYN, Mich. — There has not been a whole lot of cheering and pom-pom shaking going on in this part of the country over the state of the economy.

Factories closing, layoffs, buyouts, cutbacks, foreclosures — it is either very, very bad, or it's the worst situation in the nation, depending on which statistical gripper you follow.

So when 100,000 people showed up for a NASCAR Sprint Cup Series race on Sunday at Michigan International Speedway, even the guys who were whizzing by at 190 mph noticed.

"This has always been a great facility, and one that a lot of the drivers really enjoy coming to," Indiana native Ryan Newman said, "but to see this kind of fan support here at Michigan, in these tough times, it's amazing. We're really fortunate to have so many people who are so passionate about our sport. It's incredible, and we can't wait to get back here in August and experience it all again."

Staging a weekend of NASCAR racing is a gargantuan task, and the two-mile track in the Irish Hills about an hour northwest of Toledo is one of the facilities on the circuit that gets to do it twice, NASCAR returns to Michigan Aug. 13-15.

MIS has hosted the highest level of stock car racing — currently called the Sprint Cup Series — for two races each year since 1969, except for 1973 when there was just one event.

Sell-outs used to be the norm at MIS, where the grandstand capacity five years ago was close to 140,000. Improvements and enhancements to the main seating areas have reduced the capacity to around 120,000, but no one talks in terms of expecting a sell-out in this economic climate.

Numerous Cup drivers, used to seeing big sections of empty stands as they tour the circuit, expressed their gratitude for the level of loyalty they witnessed at MIS.

"I can't thank the fans enough," race winner Denny Hamlin said after he ran away from the field to take the Heluva Good! Sour Cream Dips 400 for his fifth win of the year, and then treated the crowd to a sequence of burn-outs along the front stretch.

MIS track president Roger Curtis said yesterday that earlier unofficial estimates that put the crowd at 95,000 were low and that a more precise count pushed the number to 100,000, which would reflect a four-to-five percent boost in attendance over last year's June Sprint Cup race — the only such rise in the industry over the past three years, with the exception of the 50th anniversary celebration at Daytona.

"To see that kind of growth, that sends a huge message about how the people of Michigan, northwestern Ohio, northern Indiana, and the Windsor area — how much they enjoy and support this sport," Curtis said. "It's our obligation and commitment to provide them with a good experience at the race track, and the drivers deserve a lot of credit for that. When everyone puts the fans first, this sport works."

Sprint Cup veteran Kurt Busch, who won the pole for Sunday's race, led 60 laps and went on to finish third, said MIS presents a premium overall package that challenges the drivers while providing the fans with plenty of entertainment for their dollar.

"As drivers, we love this place but it really forces us to stay on our toes trying to figure out how to win here. We're chasing a moving target all of the time, and that's a tough deal, but one I think we enjoy," he said.

"As for the fans, I'm thrilled over how they support us here. This track is critically important to everyone in NASCAR, since it's so close to Detroit and the heart of the auto industry."

"Everybody really pushes hard to win here, and we're already thinking about how we can do that in August."

Curtis said the August dates at MIS (Aug. 13-15) include a Friday filled with practice sessions for the Sprint Cup and Nationwide series, and qualifying for the Sprint Cup Sunday race. On Saturday the Cup teams hold two more practice rounds, with the Nationwide cars qualifying in the morning, then racing in the CARFAX 250 that afternoon. The Sprint Cup CARFAX 400 race takes place Sunday afternoon.

The August Nationwide Series race at MIS will be a high profile affair, since IndyCar Series driver Danica Patrick is scheduled to take part. Patrick is running a partial schedule in the Nationwide Series this year.

Panthers

Spears. Mike and I played high school baseball together and coached together for a long time, but because Mike and Cousin Brian were very close in school, we go back a lot further than that.

Patrick is one of the best young men I've ever known. He's a terrific athlete too. He's one of those kids who can just do a lot of things well. He may not have one attribute that causes him to stand out physically, but his toughness and mentality — the way he goes at everything as if it's the last thing he'll ever get to do — pushes him over the top.

And on top of all of his abilities, he's just a fine young man. If you have a daughter about his age, he's the guy you'd like her to bring home. Mike told me last week that since he's known the boys, he's never once heard them argue. Knowing Patrick, that doesn't surprise me.

Tonight the Panthers take on Butler, Brian Milam's alma mater which pulled the upset, if there is such a thing, over West Jessamine in the other quarterfinal game on Wednesday. Can they win it? Yes, they can.

Will they? Who knows. But the bottom line is this team is living the dream right now. They've gone from being a team that saw the gates open when Lawrence County was unable to pitch Chandler Sheppard this season to being two games from the state title.

In Thursday's Herald-Leader, Patrick told Mike Fields about winning the state title, "It'd be awesome to go out with a bang."

Says here, my friend, you already have.

— Um, Reds fans ... what's happening here?

— OK look, I'm not following this World Cup any more than the rest of you, but wouldn't this be awesome?

In Group F — which includes Italy, New Zealand, Paraguay and Slovakia — all four teams were 0-0-1, meaning they'd tied in their opening game. I would love to see the entire round finish with nothing but draws. I don't know why, but I would. To me, any sport that features so many ties on a regular basis and does nothing about it deserves it.

I live by the words of the immortal Herm Edwards. "You play to win the game," he famously said. Except, apparently, in World Cup Football.

— And thus ends any and all World Cup discussion you'll ever find here, barring some sort of catastrophe.

— Title Reds entered play yesterday still tied for first place in the NL Central despite being 3-6 heading into the finale of the season's longest homestand. But really, that says more about the struggles of St. Louis than anything else.

And you just know the Cards are going to get it straightened out. I wonder if the Reds can manage the same.

— Bill Watson and I have an ongoing debate about this, but because I have this forum and he doesn't, you get to see my side of the story here.

I believe the Reds will eventually have to do something about Aaron Harang. On Tuesday night I listened to Marty Brennan and John Fay debate what the Reds would ultimately do about their pitching staff. And despite the fact that they'd just watched their "ace" need 42 pitches to get out of the first, and that he entered the game 5-5 with a 5.5 ERA, the topic of his spot in the rotation was never broached.

Harang is a shell of what he was even a couple of years ago. And while I hate that for him, if this team is going to stay in contention, they have to get better production than this from the supposed leader of the staff.

— Now you have to wonder about rookie Mike Lenke. Yes, Wednesday's was his first loss, but it came on the heels of his shortest outing of the season which saw him give up 11 hits and five earned runs in 4.1 innings.

That means in his last two starts he's given up 20 hits and 10 earned runs in 10.1 innings with more walks than strikeouts.

He was the strongest member of the rotation leading up to this two-game stretch. I'm hoping it is just a blip, but he's going through his first season as a pro. You know there will be ups and downs, but the team really could have used an "up" on Wednesday night.

— And finally ... I'd like to wish a happy Father's Day to all who qualify. Chief among those is my own dad. Last Sunday I got to do something I'd always wanted. I turned the tables on my childhood and took him to a Reds game.

For my entire childhood we went to Cincinnati to see a game or two every summer. I'm pretty sure I enjoyed last week more than he did, but it was something I'd always wanted to do.

Thanks for everything, Pop. Like it or not, you made me the man I am today. And I appreciate every bit of it.

SPARTA — Joe Gibbs Racing driver Joey Logano tightened his stranglehold on Nationwide Series competition at Kentucky Speedway by earning his third consecutive "Meijer 300 presented by Ritz" victory from the pole position by 0.662 of second over Carl Edwards tonight.

Logano led the 200-lap battle five times for 106 laps and survived a series-track-record tying 10 caution periods that covered a new series track-record 54 yellow-flag laps before nailing down the fourth-place Nationwide Series finish and fifth race to be decided by less than a one-second margin of victory in the track's 11-year history.

"I don't know what feels better — going three-for-three (at Kentucky Speedway) or finally getting a win this year. We've had quite a few stolen from us, and Carl (Edwards) was running hard there at the end. I thought, 'man, I don't want to lose another one this way,' he said."

After leading the opening 22 laps, the recently-turned 20-year-old driver was shuffled back no further than the third spot in the 43-car field the remainder of way. He took the race lead for the fourth time on Lap 169, but lost it to Brendan Gaughan six laps later. Logano raced back to the front for the final time with 25 laps to go and held off a fast-closing Edwards to seal the victory.

"My restarts, especially the first lap, I wasn't up to speed, but after that I was able to make something happen with this car. Clean air was a big deal tonight, and the last 25 laps I was going for all I had. I know Carl (Edwards) was too, he had a

Fans pick Bristol track for first NASCAR race

THE poll on SceneDaily.com comes on the heels of BMS being named this month as one of The World's 50 Most Important Sports Venues by SportsPro magazine. Only nine venues of those were in the United States and BMS was one of only two American race tracks named.

"This is exactly what we are looking toward," said BMS president and general manager Jeff Byrd. "The fans know without a doubt they are number one at Bristol Motor Speedway and the fact they continually tell us they feel the same about us is extremely gratifying."

"It's great people would say Bristol is the place they'd want to come to for their first race. That says an awful lot about the racing, the atmosphere and the overall experience they've obviously heard about. We had quite a few first-time fans in March and we're hoping, now that we have tickets available for the Night Race, that we'll have more for the IRWIN Tools Night Race Aug. 21."

Bristol Motor Speedway will next host four NASCAR night races, beginning Aug. 18 with a doubleheader, consisting of the O'Reilly 200 Camping World Truck Series race and the UNOH Perfect 150 Whelen Modified Series event, followed by the sport's most popular race, the IRWIN Tools Night Race Aug. 21.

"I don't know what feels better — going three-for-three (at Kentucky Speedway) or finally getting a win this year. We've had quite a few stolen from us, and Carl (Edwards) was running hard there at the end. I thought, 'man, I don't want to lose another one this way,' he said."

After leading the opening 22 laps, the recently-turned 20-year-old driver was shuffled back no further than the third spot in the 43-car field the remainder of way. He took the race lead for the fourth time on Lap 169, but lost it to Brendan Gaughan six laps later. Logano raced back to the front for the final time with 25 laps to go and held off a fast-closing Edwards to seal the victory.

"My restarts, especially the first lap, I wasn't up to speed, but after that I was able to make something happen with this car. Clean air was a big deal tonight, and the last 25 laps I was going for all I had. I know Carl (Edwards) was too, he had a real good car. This was just the way it played out. It was really cool to win it this way," Logano said.

Edwards earned his second career Kentucky Speedway Nationwide Series top-five finish and first since his 2005 win at the track from the pole position. His second consecutive top-five finish of the season gives him a total of seven top-five and 11 top-10 finishes.

"I thought we had something for him (Logano) on that high line. The trick was I had a better line going than him. Once he realized I was faster, he moved up and I couldn't move another one this way," he said.

"That's two weeks in a row we've run second and been one of the fastest cars on the race track. We still have some things we can work on. My last two years here (placing 20th) have been just embarrassing. I'm just really, really glad we ran well. It's just good to have the car run and gain a few points off Brad," Edwards said.

Nationwide Series championship leader Brad Keselowski took third, Brendan Gaughan placed fourth and Reed Sorenson rounded out the race top five.

Keselowski earned his third consecutive Kentucky Speedway Nationwide Series top-five finish. He will carry a 272-point championship lead into the series next race on the four-mile Road America course in Elkhart Lake, Wis. Gaughan grabbed his second consecutive Kentucky Speedway top-five series finish. Sorenson also nailed down his second career series top-five finish at the track in his first start since 2006.

Kentucky's jobless rate drops to 10.4 percent

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate fell to 10.4 percent in May 2010 from a revised 10.6 percent in April 2010, according to the Office of Economic and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

The May 2010 jobless rate is 2 percentage points lower than the 10.6 percent rate recorded in May 2009 for the state. The 10.4 percent rate recorded in May 2010 matches the 10.4 percent rate in Kentucky in April 2009 and is the lowest unemployment rate recorded since that time.

"Temporary hiring at a federal agency efforts in data collection efforts boosted Kentucky's nonfarm payroll for the third consecutive month. A drop in the number of entrants and reentrants into the civilian labor force exacerbated the decline in the unemployment rate in May 2010," said Dr. Justine Detzel, OET chief labor market analyst.

The U.S. seasonally adjusted jobless rate decreased from 9.9 percent in April 2010 to 9.7 in May 2010, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

Five of the 11 major nonfarm North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) job sectors reported an employment increase in May 2010, while three decreased and three remained the same, according to OET. An increase of 6,500 jobs in May 2010 brought Kentucky's nonfarm employment to a seasonally adjusted total of 1,779,500. This represents the third consecutive month of job gains and the highest level of nonfarm employment since February 2009, when total nonfarm employment was recorded at 1,786,300.

"Since May 2009, Kentucky's nonfarm employment has advanced by 12,900 professionals. This marks the first year-over-year increase in nonfarm employment since February 2008, ending a string of 26 months in a row of year-over-year employment losses," said Detzel.

According to the seasonally adjusted employment data, the government sector, which includes public education, public administration agencies and state-owned hospitals, gained 3,400 jobs in May 2010. The sector has 5,900 more jobs compared to May 2009.

"The year-over-year expansion occurred predominantly in the federal government subsector, reflecting a base realignment and hiring at multiple federal agencies including a ramp up at a federal agency in preparation for data collection efforts. Despite the overall expansion in the government sector, the local government subsector endured over-the-year job losses," Detzel said.

Manufacturing sector jobs increased by 1,600 in May 2010. Since May 2009, employment in the manufacturing sector has fallen by 100 positions.

"Job gains from April 2010 to May 2010 were concentrated in the durable goods subsector, which is a sign of an expansion at an appliance manufacturer and the opening of a steel cabinet factory," said Detzel. "This is the third month in a row the manufacturing sector has reported job growth."

Kentucky's leisure and hospitality sector climbed by 1,300 jobs in May 2010. Since May 2009, employment in the sector has decreased by 1,100 positions. The leisure and hospitality sector includes arts, entertainment and recreation, accommodations and food services and drinking places industries.

The professional and business services sector rose by 800 positions in May 2010. This area includes professional, scientific and technical services, management of companies and administrative support and waste management, including temporary help agencies. Since last May, jobs in the sector have surged by 14,200.

"Since May 2009, this sector has grown by 8.4 percent with the expansion attributed to administrative and support businesses," said Detzel.

The information sector reported 200 more positions in May 2010. This segment, which includes firms involved in publishing, Internet activities, data processing, broadcasting and news syndication, has decreased by 800 positions since May 2009.

Employment in the mining and logging sector remained at the same level from April 2010 to May 2010. The sector has lost 1,100 workers since May 2009.

Kentucky's trade, transportation and utilities sector maintained steady employment in May 2010. This area includes retail and wholesale trade, transportation and warehousing businesses and utilities. It is the largest sector in Kentucky with 364,300 employees. Since May 2009, the number of jobs in this sector has increased by 1,400.

"The lion's share of the year-over-year job gains are attributed to retail trade establishments, which reflects the openings of countless stores in the last year. Transportation, warehousing and utilities businesses also exhibited over-the-year job gains. As the economy stabilizes, consumers are loosening their purse strings and opening their wallets. The easing in the retrenchment by consumers is positively impacting transportation enterprises as resurgent demand for products ripples through distribution networks," said Detzel.

The educational and health services sector reported the same number of workers in April 2010 and May 2010. The sector had 4,200 more workers in May 2010 than May 2009. This sector includes private and nonprofit establishments that provide either education and training or health care and social assistance to their clients.

Employment in the other services sector, which includes such establishments as repair and maintenance businesses, personal and laundry services, religious organizations and civic and professional organizations, decreased by 500 positions in May 2010. This sector had 1,600 fewer positions in May 2010 than in May 2009.

The financial activities sector lost 200 jobs in May 2010. This segment, which includes businesses involved in finance, insurance, real estate and property leasing or rental, has fallen by 3,300 positions over the past 12 months.

Construction sector jobs fell by 100 positions in May 2010. Since May 2009, employment in the construction sector has fallen by 4,800 jobs.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' monthly estimate of the number of employed Kentuckians for May 2010 was 1,865,284 on a seasonally adjusted basis. This figure is up 212 from the 1,865,072 employed in April 2010, but down 1,891 from the 1,867,175 employed in May 2009.

The monthly estimate of the number of unemployed Kentuckians for May 2010 was 215,652, down 4,949 from the 220,601 Kentuckians unemployed in April 2010, and down 6,821 from the 227,473 unemployed in May 2009.

PIKEVILLE — A group of five people have been indicted on charges relating to the distribution of oxycodone in Johnson County.

Jason Michael Blevins, Anthony Brian Conley, Tella Chere Caudill, Christopher Brandon Grimm and Wesley Michael Witten were charged June 3 under a sealed indictment in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

According to court documents, the group "conspired together with others to knowingly and intentionally distribute a quantity of pills containing oxycodone, and to knowingly and intentionally possess with intent a quantity of pills containing oxycodone."

The penalties for the charges include not more than 20 years of imprisonment, a fine of not more than $1 million, and supervised release of at least three years for the first offense. The penalties for the second offense include not more than 30 years of imprisonment, a fine of not more than $2 million, and supervised release of at least six years.

Blevins is represented by Pamela Dae Perlman, Conley is represented by Jason Charles Reichenbach, Caudill is represented by Clyde Fitzpatrick Johnson, Grimm is represented by Garland Lewis Arnett, Jr. and Jonah Lee Stevens and Witten is represented by Joseph R. Layne. The United States is represented by Ron L. Walker, Jr. with the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Hearing

Sandlin, was in the courtroom for the hearing in Prestonsburg, along with several others, all wearing buttons of support displaying a picture of the fallen physician. His daughter and the rest of the family in attendance said only that it was a "stressful time" and that they had no comments to make at the time.

Michael Ubanks, one of two defense attorneys for Combs, spent Thursday's hearing asking questions of Dr. Steve Simon by telephone conference. During that testimony, Simon ended by saying he felt Combs, a resident of Red Fox in Knott County at the time of his arrest, was competent to stand trial.

Simon, who has evaluated some 1,500 criminal cases over nearly 20 years, told Combs' defense that as part of his evaluation, he and his staff reviewed more than 200 pages of police reports, including some 41 eyewitness testimonies from state police officers in the case.

During a three-hour-long personal interview session with Combs, Simon said the 46-year-old said he had been experiencing "mental problems" and was "paranoid and having nightmares and also afraid that people were out to get him."

When asked if this seemed to point to mental problems that would impede his ability to take part in his own trial, Simon said that, under the circumstances, he felt most of those feelings were probably valid. "I felt he could have reasons for feeling this way because he had been accused of shooting a popular doctor," Simon testified. "I do recall Combs saying he was in a lot of trouble."

It was also mentioned by Combs' defense attorneys that Combs had expressed suicidal ideation to his staff, but, Simon testified that as a man diagnosed with depression, this was not inconsistent as a symptom for that illness.

"This is not uncommon under the circumstances," said Simon. "There are social stressors that were also at play, such as being incarcerated, facing charges of murder. But he was not self-defeating. Self-defeat is one part of another kind of problem."

Combs' attorneys had argued during the hearing that if Combs had said he wanted to die, then it could impair his ability of cognitively take part in and fully appreciate his trial proceedings.

Combs' attorneys asked prosecutors for a variety of things, through separate motions after the competency hearing Thursday including discovery items such as DNA and toxicology reports, that a KASPAR report be issued for Combs to show what prescription medications he had acquired at Kentucky pharmacies.

The Commonwealth agreed to work with these motions, but when asked in another motion to afford Combs' defense with a timeline for a decision on whether or not the death penalty would be sought, prosecuting attorney Teresa Reed said a decision had not yet been made on that point. Caudill and both sides in the case agreed that within 30 days, Combs' defense team would have an answer on the death penalty question, giving them time to adjust their case as needed.

The next scheduled court appearance for Combs will be a preliminary hearing in Hazard on Sept. 23.

Taylor elected Chief Judge of Kentucky Court of Appeals

FRANKFORT — Judge Jeff S. Taylor of Owensboro has been elected by his fellow judges to serve as chief judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals. His term as chief judge will begin July 1.

"I am deeply humbled that my fellow judges have selected me as their chief judge," Judge Taylor said. "It is an honor and a privilege to serve in this capacity for our court. I look forward to working with my fellow judges and court staff to make the Court of Appeals more efficient and to further enhance the administration of justice in Kentucky."

The Court of Appeals judges elected Judge Taylor during their regular court meeting June 15. The chief judge provides administrative oversight to the Court of Appeals and serves in the position for a four-year term under the Kentucky Constitution.

Court of Appeals Judge Laurence B. VanMeter has served as the court's acting chief judge since Judge Sara Walter Combs resigned from that position in May. Judge VanMeter will continue as acting chief judge until Judge Taylor's term begins.

Judge Taylor was first elected as a Court of Appeals judge in November 2003 to represent the 2nd Appellate District, which is comprised of Barren, Breckinridge, Bullitt, Daviess, Grayson, Hancock, Hardin, Hart, Henderson, LaRue, Meade, Ohio, Union and Warren counties. He was re-elected in November 2006 to a full eight-year term.

Judge Taylor previously practiced law in Owensboro for more than 20 years and was a sole practitioner from 1990 until his election to the Court of Appeals.

He has a Bachelor of Science degree from Murray State University and a Master of Public Administration degree from Memphis State University. He earned his law degree from the University of Louisville Louis D. Brandeis School of Law, graduating with honors in 1982. He is a 1971 graduate of Elizabethtown High School.

Judge Taylor serves on the Kentucky Bar Foundation Board of Directors and on the board of directors for the Daviess County Public Schools Foundation. He served on the Murray State University Board of Regents from September 2006 to September 2009.

Kids: Invite your grandparents to our online office

by JENNIFER HOPKINS SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE
SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Did you know that with age comes wisdom? Clearly, there is a lot of knowledge and experiences that grandparents can pass along to their children and grandchildren. But there's one place where young people can teach grandma and grandpa a thing or two: online.

Show your grandparents how they can use www.socialsecurity.gov to avoid unneeded trips to a Social Security office. Take them to the online Retirement Estimator, a tool that helps them figure out how much they may get in monthly benefits depending on when they retire. It's available at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

You also can show them our library of online publications containing all the information they need to know on an array of Social Security, retirement, and Medicare subjects. The publications can be found at www.socialsecurity.gov/pub/s/index.html. If they were thinking about retirement, you may want to show them just how knowledgeable you are by suggesting they read the publication When To Start Receiving Retirement Benefits at www.socialsecurity.gov/pub/10147.html.

Now you've done it! You've been so helpful that they've decided they're ready to retire right away. When they grab their hats and try to drag you to the local Social Security office, remind them that all they have to do is drag the mouse across the mouse pad. Take them to www.socialsecurity.gov/applpyonline, where they can apply online for retirement benefits in as little as 15 minutes - that may be less time that it would have taken to lock the front door and start up the car. Once they click the "submit" button, they're done. (And so are you.)

While you're online with them, here's an excuse to visit Facebook and Twitter. Show them how to follow Social Security on both! The

So many of the things grandparents (and even parents) may want to do at a Social Security office can be done online these days. See for yourself. Even better, help someone less web-savvy than you check it out: Social Security online.

For more information about online services just call your local Social Security Office in Prestonsburg at (606) 886-8525. The office is located at 1897 Kentucky Route 321 in Prestonsburg, KY. Representatives are available to answer questions.

And remember, we have representatives available to give presentations and speeches about Social Security Programs. Contact the office for more information.

MOVIES FROM THE BLACK LAGOON

'Angel of Death'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

A hit-woman wages war against the mob to appease the ghost of one of her victims in this quirky and effective yarn that mixes supernatural elements with action movie set pieces.

This movie messes with you from the start with an ordinary opening sequence that doesn't hint at how weird things are going to get. It starts with our heroine, Eve, embarking on her latest assignment while training a new recruit. The trainee has an annoying habit of asking questions about their target and questioning whether he deserves to die. Eve makes it clear that she doesn't care and we are off to the races, plot wise, as the job proceeds to go entirely wrong.

Eve manages to close out the job but walks into a couple of bodyguards as they step off an elevator and quickly determine that she's not there to deliver a pizza. Everyone whips out guns and Eve goes into work mode. She decimates the pair but makes two costly errors. First, she accidentally kills her target's young daughter, and then she compounds the error by using her head to stop a knife attack. She winds up with four inches of steel in her brain and a miraculous change in attitude.

Pretty soon she is caring about

This Town, That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

I have more than one objection to this new Turn Right on Red law, but the strongest stems from the fact that this is going to make that driver's test that much more difficult. Now, a fellow's going to have to be able to know right from left.

PHILOSOPHY

There's always some smart aleck. The fellow was expounding on Emerson's Law of Compensation, tossing in a few ideas of his own while the others yawned. He pointed out that nature balances matters pretty well, that the runt is agile but not strong while his big brother has all the muscles but moves like a turtle; that the rough land is unfit for farming but has rich mineral resources while the rich lands have neither coal nor oil nor gas, that where one is up the other is down.

"Yeah," remarked one of the bystanders. "The rain falls and the river rises."

PIPING WARM

One of my liar-friends was telling one about the inveterate pipe-smoker. Said this fellow fell out of a john-boat crossing the river here and came, up some minutes later, with his pipe still in his mouth. "Was it still lit?"

Goose Creek Symphony returns to MAC

FEATURES WRITER

Charlie Gearheart was fishing on Wednesday morning, taking it easy and hoping that the rain would stay away, but Gearheart, the lead singer of Goose Creek Symphony, will not be relaxing on the water on Saturday as his band returns to Prestonsburg for a show at the Mountain Arts Center.

Gearheart, a native of Floyd County, plans to visit a number of friends and family while he is in the area for the concert.

"I've been all over the place and I wouldn't trade growing up in Floyd County for anything in the world," Gearheart said.

The band is only going to be playing for a couple of months, and Gearheart said that the show at the Mountain Arts Center is one he is really looking forward to playing.

"It's a great theater and we always get a really good crowd," Gearheart said. "I think we were one of the first bands to ever play at the MAC. Plus, I always look forward to coming home to Floyd County."

Fans of Goose Creek Symphony have more to look forward to, as Gearheart said he has written new songs and hopes to get the band back in the studio for a new album. Also, a PBS special concert is scheduled to air this winter.

The concert at the Mountain Arts Center is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. with opening act The Deadstring Brothers. Tickets are $18 in advance and $20 on the day of the show.

CELEBRATING DIFFERENCE

Local author writes book to help children

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

Lenora Wheeler spent the majority of her working life as a teacher, and now Wheeler's illustrated book "Why am I Different?" is available to help children understand that it is fine to be different in school and in life.

Wheeler will be at the Paintsville Public Library on Saturday to sign copies of the book and talk about her experiences as a teacher, including her final year as a special education teacher at Paintsville Elementary School.

According to Wheeler's biographical information, "She never had bad days at school, just different days. Lenora loved all the students, staff, and parents. Her goal as a teacher was to inspire each student to reach his or her best potential and to become an asset to their school, family, community and country while realizing it is okay to be different. Lenora desired to write the book so that people could know it is okay to be different."

"Why am I Different?" features full-color illustrations by Cindy Ramsey and was printed by Williams Printing Company in Prestonsburg.

A portion of the sales from the book will go toward charities that help to feed children in eastern Kentucky.

DINNER DIVA

Blessed responsibility

There are times when you cannot help but feel disheartened when you read what's happening at home and in the rest of the world. It's times like this when we need to keep our home fires burning, regardless of what is going on. The one place where we do have some control is in our homes. We cannot control the Middle East, we cannot control the winds of war, the price of gas or the cost of food, but we can control the environment around us that we call home.

Your home is a gift. Likewise your family is a gift, too. And with these gifts comes blessed responsibility. Every time you feed your family a meal, it is an expression of your love and nurture for them. That meal says that you love them, you care about their needs and that you're there for them. One of the first things a woman is able to do after giving birth to a baby is feed it. The privilege of feeding our children and families goes beyond infant care and into the very fabric of our families' lives at the place we call our dinner tables.

The meals you prepare for your family is how you can bless them. We live in uncertain, scary times. We need the comfort of hearth and home and you have the privilege of bringing that comfort to your family with the meals you serve. Make your menu, put it on the fridge and keep at it! You CAN do this! If you need a little help with menus, go to my website for a prepared menu and shopping list already made out for you.

Q I seem to get ringworm a lot. Exactly what causes this, and how can I treat and prevent it? I am around a lot of animals; can I catch ringworm from them?

A Ringworm is a fungal infection on the top layer of skin, which we physicians call the "tinea corporis." Ringworm forms ring-shaped lesions with red, raised edges and unaffected skin in the center. Despite its rather unfortunate common name, ringworm has nothing to do with worms.

The primary symptom of ringworm is the appearance of these ring-shaped, itchy patches anywhere on the body. There can be one or many lesions. The lesions can appear in overlapping patterns or far apart on the body. Sometimes red, scaly or blister patches appear. When ringworm affects the scalp, temporary bald patches may appear.

Ringworm is contagious by direct or indirect contact. This is primarily why the lesions can appear all over the body; you can actually spread it to different areas on yourself. It can be spread to other people by skin-to-skin contact and by touching a surface that an infected person or animal has recently contaminated with the offending fungi, called dermatophytes. These microorganisms can live on waxy surfaces, especially in damp, dark areas, and in soil.

So, to answer your question, ringworm can also be spread from animals to humans by touch. Pets like cats and dogs can be sources of ringworm as can ferrets, rabbits, goats, pigs and horses.

There are some other risk factors for getting ringworm. As noted above, ringworm, like any fungus, is more likely to thrive in dark and damp areas. People who sweat excessively are prone to fungal skin problems. Contact sports like wrestling or football are also notorious for spreading ringworm.

Anyone who thinks they have ringworm should check with their family doctor, especially if it is their first infection. Generally, it is easy to diagnose with a visual inspection by a seasoned professional. Sometimes a culture is necessary if the rash doesn't respond to treatment.

Ringworm only gets worse if it's not treated right away. Most over-the-counter treatments for ringworm effectively clear up lesions within a few weeks, but be sure to use antifungal creams until the skin has completely recovered. If those don't work, there are topical and oral anti-fungal prescriptions available.

With ringworm, the most important prevention is good hygiene. Athletes should avoid sharing clothing or towels with teammates and shower after every practice or game. Regularly wash and disinfect your clothes and sports gear.

When it comes to infected animals, it is not always possible to avoid contact with them, especially if they are your pets. The good news is that there are topical pet shampoo treatments available. Consider an occasional antifungal bath for your animals to help prevent future cases.

"Couldn't truthfully say," replied the story-teller. "But it musta still been hot. There was steam spoutin' out his ears."

The moral of the story is, Never gamble. It has to do with the report heard this week that a Canadian youngster on a $10 bet with a friend swallowed a live frog. When this old man learned what had happened, he became worried about what might happen, and rushed the boy to the hospital. A day later, the frog was removed—still alive, so the report says.

And the boy's father made him give the $10 he had won back to his friend. Persistent inquiry failed to learn who paid the doctor and how much.

Buck Scalf says this happened in Williamson, W. Va. As I recall it, this youngster's step-father came upon him standing at a street corner and not in school where he was supposed to be. When the elder man reminded the truant that he should be in school, the lad remarked that his teachers didn't know anything.

"But you go back to school. As you grow older, you'll find they know a lot more than you thought."

"No, I won't," the boy contended. "I go to school one day, and teacher tells me 2 and 2 make 4. Then, next day, he'll tell me 3 and 1 are 4—and any fool knows 3 and 1's gun oil."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised mattress, under an advertised blanket, in advertised pajamas. He bathes in an advertised tub, washes with advertised soap, shaves with an advertised razor, drinks advertised coffee after his advertised juice, cereal and toast (toasted in his advertised toaster), puts on advertised clothes and an advertised hat. He rides to work in an advertised car, smokes advertised cigars and writes with an advertised pen.

Yet, this man hesitates to advertise, saying that advertising does not pay. Finally, when his unadvertised business goes under, he will advertise it for sale!

GOOD HEALTH

Most don't have second heart attack

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: About six years ago, I had a heart attack. The doctor said there was hardly any damage. Is it likely that I will have another heart attack? I am overweight and have a hard time losing weight and keeping it off. — C.P.

ANSWER: The chance of a recurrent heart attack for men is 21 percent; for women, 33 percent. Looked at in the opposite way, the chances for not having a second heart attack are very good. Figures like these are deceptive when applied to an individual. A person's efforts to decrease the risks of having another attack are the keys to not having one. Those risks include dealing with obesity. Even though weight loss is difficult for you, you must make an effort to reduce your weight. A dietitian can help you with the diet part. You have to increase your physical activity. Inactivity is an invitation to artery clogging and heart attacks. Ask your doctor what kind of exercise is safe for you. Walking is permitted for most, and walking is a way to strengthen your heart, clear your arteries and lose weight.

You also have to watch your cholesterol in all its forms. HDL cholesterol keeps heart arteries free of plaque buildup, and LDL cholesterol encourages it. You have to keep an eye on your blood pressure, another ingredient for heart attacks.

The fact that your doctor said little damage was done to your heart puts you into a class of heart-attack patients who are at low risk for having another.

The booklet on heart attacks discusses all aspects of this common problem that takes so many lives. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue, No. 102W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 23, just graduated from college and have my first full-time job. In high school, I ran track, both distance and sprints. I am trying to get myself back into condition. I can still run distances pretty well, but I can't sprint. My legs hurt after a very short time. Why? Can I overcome it? — P.M.

ANSWER: Pain from sprinting comes from the buildup of lactic acid, a byproduct of anaerobic exercise, exercise done without the benefit of oxygen. If you haven't been sprinting for four years, you can't expect your body to do what it could back then. It takes time for it to gear up to lactic acid. You can overcome it by continuing to practice sprinting at a reduced pace.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been taking acetaminophen for pain, as well as an aspirin every day. Is it safe to use both together? — H.B.

ANSWER: It's safe if you're not exceeding the recommended doses of each. In fact, tablets are available with the combination of acetaminophen and aspirin. Excedrin is one such tablet.

Have you found out the cause of your pain? Do so. Don't just mask it with medicines.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

KIM'S KORNER

Salome's Stars Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you don't like to change plans once they're set, once again, you might find that doing so can make a big difference in your favor. Family matters dominate the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You continue to get encouragement for your proposals, including some support from unlikely sources. Use this positive flow to move forward with your plans. Good luck.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family matters are dominant this week. It's a good time to be with those you love. It's also a good time to contact and reunite with loved ones with whom you've lost touch.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be careful not to allow differences of opinion to create unpleasant feelings, especially in the workplace. A neutral observer could check out the situation and suggest a resolution.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While the Lion's Den is the center of attention this week, with family matters dominating much of your time, workplace issues are also important. Try to find a balance between them.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The future of a new relationship could depend on how much the usually impatient-to-get-things-done Virgo is willing to stop pushing and let things happen naturally.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Worry over a loved one's well-being is eased with good news from a sympathetic source. Your continued show of love and support is important. Stay with it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to consider mending fences with someone you wish was back in your life. Forget about blame, and focus on the good things you once shared.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good week to start researching information regarding whatever changes you're considering, whether it involves a new home, a new location or a new job.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A long-anticipated job opportunity could turn out to be less than you expected. But appearances might be deceiving. Check it out before you decide it's not for you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Good news: Adapting to a new situation might come more easily than you expected. You can look for continued support from colleagues who appreciate your contributions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Someone you care for might need more reassurance from the typically "unemotional" Pisces. Go ahead. Open up, and you might be surprised at what you find when you do.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a romantic at heart, although you can be amazingly practical when you need to be.

Keeping quiet in the storm

by KIM LITTLE FRASURE

Keeping quiet when life is running amok can be one of the most trying tasks we can experience. Even a seasoned Christian may find themselves uttering a negative word time and again, knowing better. Yet, it can happen. After all, we are human.

Yes, disciplining our minds, mouths and thoughts, and even attitudes during a raging, heart-wrenching time in our lives allows us the opportunity to see the degree of our faith. And helps to direct us to practice more "keeping quiet!"

Oh, how amazing it is when we can reach the ability to remain calm in the storm. Granted, some storms are worse than others. Some bring a small amount of thunder, a smidgen of lightning and maybe a raindrop or two. But every now then, we can experience a storm like none we've ever witnessed before. Hail, raging winds, thunder so loud we want to hide under the covers and put a pillow over our heads.

Ah, but thank the Good Lord he sent us His Word! James 3:3-5 "If we set bits in the horses' mouth to make them obey us, we can turn their whole bodies about. Likewise, look at the ships: though they are so great, and are driven by rough winds, they are steered by a very small rudder wherever the impulse of the helmsman determines. Even so the tongue is a little member, and it can boast of great things. See how much wood or how great a forest a tiny spark can set ablaze!"

So, do we get it? Do we realize how extremely powerful our mouths are to our lives. Not just in the good times, but in the storms, the raging storms as well.

Oh like a rudder on a ship steering that vessel in one direction or another so does our tongues steer our lives!!!

And not only our lives, but those in our lives as well. OH, when that revelation hit me people I hit my knees and ask forgiveness for every negative thing my mouth has ever uttered when it came to my children. Oh the feeling of being knocked behind the knees with a baseball bat and the breath knocked out of me. It was then, when I started speaking favor, God's favor over my girls. His protection. His guidance. And to this day I claim it for them each and every day.

I thank God night and day for our very first grandchild and the blessings he brings to our lives every single day. And to this day I claim it for them each and every day.

And I pray that when the storms come that He will, "Set a guard, O Lord, before my mouth; keep watch at the door of my lips" (Psalm 141:3) and help keep me quiet!

God's blessings to each of you.

'Til next week!

Nervous mom of new driver wants electronic help

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:
I'm a concerned mom. Our spirited 16-year-old daughter will soon have her driver's license. We subscribe to the Reaganesque philosophy of "trust but verify" when it comes to raising teenagers. Is there a covert car-tracking device or service that you recommend that would provide us with the ability to locate the vehicle on demand via e-mail or SMS (Short Message Service)? Thanks for your help! — Blair

TOM: Spirited. Gotcha. Yes, there are such devices. But I would encourage you to go over rather than covert.

RAY: Right. The idea is not to "catch" your little juvenile delinquent driving 80 mph through a school zone; the idea is to teach her not to do that. There are several devices on the market that provide feedback to the driver in real time, in addition to tattling.

TOM: One we particularly like is called tiwi. It's a global positioning system-based computer that costs about $200. You pay a monthly subscription fee of about $40. But what it allows you to do is set your own rules. So if you decide that your daughter is allowed to go only 5 mph over the speed limit, the unit will alert her when she's broken that rule, and also will alert you immediately — by phone, e-mail or text message.

RAY: By giving her instant feedback ("You're going over the speed limit, and we're calling your mother"), she's given a strong incentive to start following the rules.

TOM: There are other "black box" or EDR (event data recorder) devices, and you can find many of them on the Internet. They can monitor speed, hard braking and hard acceleration. Some provide instant feedback to the driver and reporting to a parent; others just collect the data and offer it to you via a website at your convenience.

RAY: But the cool thing about tiwi is that, because it's one of the GPS-based systems, it knows the speed limit of whatever road she's on at that moment. Other devices just allow you to set a maximum speed of, say, 75 mph. But you can kill a lot of people driving 74 mph in a 35-mph zone.

TOM: Tiwi also allows you to set "no go" zones with the GPS so that it will let you know when, for example, your daughter leaves the immediate area. Or wanders into her boyfriend's neighborhood.

RAY: She's going to hate this thing, Blair! It is intrusive. But the stakes are so high in the case of a new teen driver (life and death) that some parents may decide that the invasion of privacy is worth it, at least for the first few years of driving.

TOM: And after a few years, the hope is that your daughter will have developed safe driving habits, and will be mature enough to make good driving decisions on her own. And if not, there's always the convent!

Dressings are for salads, not belts

Dear Tom and Ray:
Belt dressings? Yes or no? I heard on your radio show this week not to spray belt dressings on serpentine belts. I recently was told to use belt dressings on my serpentine belt by a mechanic. He said it would increase the longevity of the belt — replacing the lost oils and keeping it more flexible and, therefore, increasing the life of the belt. Why is this not good on today's belts? — Bruce

TOM: Well, I've found that dressings tend to expand MY belts. Especially Newman's Own. That's why I've switched to the Light Italian.

RAY: The problem with belt dressings is that they're temporary solutions. They just cover up a problem, rather than solve it.

TOM: Most belt dressings contain either a lubricant of some kind, to allow the belt to slip more, or a tacking agent, to allow the belt to grip more.

RAY: The problem is that these agents — and the solvents that are used as spray-can propellants — can cause modern belts to swell and delaminate. Belts are made of several layers of rubber, and when they delaminate, these layers come apart and the belt fails.

TOM: In most cases, when a belt is making noise, it's because it needs to be tightened or needs to be replaced. Belt noise also can be caused by a bad belt tensioner or a misaligned pulley. But belt dressing isn't going to address any of those problems in the long term.

RAY: Of course, if you know for a fact that your belt is just old and worn out — and it's not a tension, tensioner or pulley problem — and the noise is driving you nuts, and you just want to keep the belt quiet for a couple of weeks until your in-laws leave town, then spray all the dressing you want on it.

TOM: But I don't know of any maker of serpentine belts that approves of belt dressing for its products. And it's a short-term band-aid at best. So dress your salads, and tighten, or replace squealing belts, Bruce.

what she does for a living but that's nothing compared to the changes she undergoes when ghost-girl begins giving her orders. Pretty soon, Zoe is a human weapon again but now she is pointed at the gangster clan that ordered the killing of the young lady's father. What follows is a lot of gratuitous violence as she begins taking down everybody connected to the hit.

The campaign brings nothing but suffering to everyone in her orbit. By the time the credits roll, she has exacted enough vengeance for a Charles Bronson movie, but her private life lies in ruins. The ghost appears to go away but there's not much left of her life though that could be a good thing as she is definitely in need of a new beginning.

This is primo action fare and a lion's share of the credit must go to a tight script from Ed Brubaker. This is the same guy who made his bones killing off Captain America in Marvel Comics last year. He gets a reprieve from me for two reasons.

■ He has written this movie.

■ It turned out that Captain America was alive the whole time, but just in a bad place due to an evil scheme that came close to actually killing him.

Alright, that may sound lame but it was a well executed story. Besides, how many times have D.C.

Comics claimed that Superman and Batman were dead in storylines that just saw them coming back in different costumes?

Anyway, Brubaker fashions a sturdy tale of redemption that lends itself to the low-budget action arena. The story was also good enough to attract a talented cast.

Zoe Bell leads the pack as Eve. It's a perfect role for her and allows her to show what she picked up as a stuntwoman before going into acting. Most of her time was spent doubling Lucy Lawless on the "Xena" series, so it's appropriate that Lawless turns up here in a small but pivotal role.

Bell handles all of the action brilliantly. She proves that she can take a punch as well as she can land one in several expertly choreographed melees.

The film gets a lot of mileage out of her screen presence while Brubaker's script offers a few inside jokes for fans of "Xena."

Fans will get a kick out of seeing Ted Raimi lose his head to a stray bullet. He toiled away on "Xena" for years as the underappreciated "Joxer" and received an undeserved amount of hate mail. Then there is the clever scene where Lawless gets lit up by thugs who mistake her for Bell (very funny as Bell made a living as Xena's stunt double). This one will please action junkies of all stripes, but fans of "Xena," which finally hit DVD two months ago, will get an extra kick out of it.

Best line: "If you're gonna get stabbed in the head, you picked the right spot."

TIMES COLUMNIST

A good week for average movies got a boost from one of the better animated shows that was created by those off-key folks at "Cartoon Network."

■ "Book of Eli" — If you hated "The Road," then you might enjoy this take on an apocalyptic future that enjines the post-apocalyptic train for an action-fest rather than dreary drama. Denzel Washington stars as a man sent out to quell the masses with a book that could provide their salvation. Luckily, he lands in a police state run by Gary Oldman and the fights ensue. Ray Stevenson ("Rome") also pops up as well. The atmosphere is top notch and there are some excellent fights, but the whole thing does drag a little.

■ "When in Rome" — Romantic comedies often count on a goofy plot device these days and this film is no exception. A driven career woman attends her sister's wedding in Italy and a magical spell makes her irresistible to males. This would have been a lot of fun had they written some character for you to enjoy. Kristen Bell looks great but there's nothing for her to do here.

■ "Unthinkable" — A terrorist gets more than he bargained for when a Black Ops type joins the FBI agent who is assigned to interrogate him. Turns out that this guy uses methods that are not in the manual. The resulting confrontation proves too much for the FBI agent and a conflict ensues. Thought-provoking drama with good work from Samuel L. Jackson as the maverick and Carrie Ann-Moss as the "by the book" agent.

■ "Johnny Bravo" — Cartoon Network finally begins rolling out their old shows with this collection of stories about an egotistical body builder in search of a date. Despite possessing awesome pectorals and a guttural "Elvis Presley" twang, this guy is often undone by his narcissistic tendencies — and lack of smarts. Hilarious as all get out, with great voice work and a roster of cool guest stars.

Next week look for Matt Damon and some earth friendly action in "The Green Zone."

Strange ... but true

■ It was multitasking Robert Anton Wilson — he was, at various times in his life, a novelist, essayist, psychologist, editor, philosopher, playwright and mystic — who made the following observation: "It only takes 20 years for a liberal to become a conservative without changing a single idea."

■ The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently released its study on the costs of raising a child. Those who have children may not be surprised to learn that the average two-parent, middle-income family spends a whopping $222,360 on the child through the age of 17 — and that figure, of course, doesn't include the cost of a college education.

■ The blue whale is the largest animal known to have ever existed. The marine mammal is so large, in fact, that a grown man could swim through its largest blood vessels.

■ The company known as Ulysse Nardin, based in Switzerland, is known for its line of luxury watches. They've recently expanded their offerings, though, so the next time you're in the market for a cell phone, you might want to check out their version of Google's Android model. You also might want to check your bank account; this gold-plated piece of technology will retail for $50,000.

■ Here's a sign of our increasingly cluttered lives: When the National Association of Professional Organizers was formed, in 1985, it had five members. Today there are more than 4,000 registered organizers with the group.

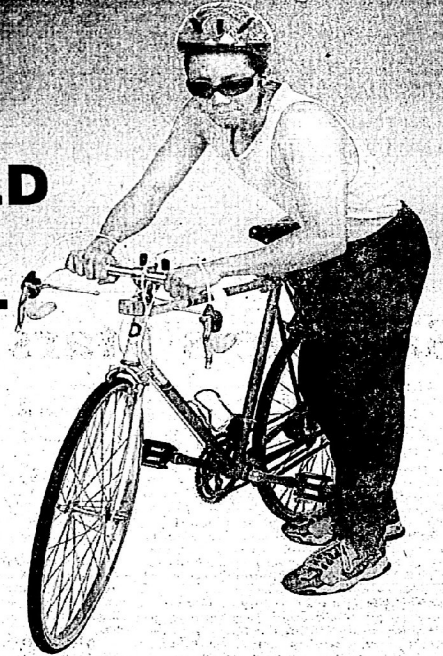

■ According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, those who hold the most dangerous job in America aren't firefighters or police officers; they're taxi drivers, with 22.7 homicides for every 100,000 workers each year.

Thought for the Day

"It's not the genius who is 100 years ahead of his time but the average man who is 100 years behind it." — Robert Musil

This man is working to lower health care costs, prevent global warming and reduce our nation's dependence on foreign oil

SO WHY WOULD YOU WANT TO KILL HIM?

Cycling is one of the best ways to improve your health, protect the environment and reduce consumption of foreign oil. But even if you don't ride a bike, you can help do your part by watching for cyclists on the road and driving with care. In Kentucky, bicycles have the same rights to use roads and highways as cars and trucks. But keep in mind that cyclists are at greater risk of injury or death in the event of a wreck. That is why it is important to use caution and courtesy when you encounter a bicycle. Pass them only when it is clear, give them a few extra feet when passing, and never do anything to startle a cyclist, such as blowing your horn, passing too close or yelling at them.

Save a life. Share the road.

Solicitation of Public Comment

The Kentucky Division of Abandoned Mines (KYDAML) is soliciting public comment on a proposed Abandoned Mine Land Enhancement Rule Reclamation Project in the community of Wheelwright, in Floyd County. The project is being proposed pursuant to guidelines in 30 CFR 874.17, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky's Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Plan. The Division will accept comments from the public until close of business June 25, 2010. Any person or group may submit comments in writing through the United States Postal Service or via email.

The project involves a proposed cooperative reclamation effort between the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources (DNR) and a contractor to remove coal refuse material from an abandoned coal refuse dump located on the west side of KY Highway 306 near Wheelwright. The refuse material was deposited by previous pre-law mining operations. The project proposes to remove the refuse material using suitable equipment and transport it to a local permitted preparation plant.

After refuse removal operations are completed, the former dump area will be regraded and revegetated in a manner described in the project narrative.

You will find a description of the proposed project and plan maps on the internet at <http://www.aml.ky.gov> for viewing and download. Or call (602) 564-2141 and request to have a copy of the project mailed to you.
