Facebook business workshop to be held July 27

PAINTSVILLE — Morehead State University's East Kentucky Small Business Development Center in Paintsville will host "Using Facebook Market Your Business" Tuesday, July 27, 7 p.m.

The workshop is for persons that have a desire to market their business or business using Facebook. It will be held at the Kentucky Highlands Entrepreneur Center, located at 120 Scott Perry Drive off Teays Branch Road.

"This workshop will teach businesses how Facebook can promote their business products and services. It will show entrepreneurs how to set up their business page on Facebook and begin marketing their business," said Michelle Spriggs, SBDC consultant. "This is an excellent and affordable opportunity for individuals to market their business through the new social media aspect of Facebook."

The workshop is free for all participants; however, seating is limited and advance registration is recommended.

Training programs, sponsored or co-sponsored by SBDC, are available to all individuals without regard to race, color, sex, creed or national origin. Special arrangements will be made for those with disabilities if requested in advance.

P'burg man convicted of fraud

LEXINGTON — A Prestonsburg man has been convicted on charges of mail fraud in conjunction with a case involving brother, the president of Target Oil and Gas.

Christopher Cello Smith, 40, of Prestonsburg, was convicted on 11 counts of mail fraud. He was acquitted on a conspiracy count, two counts of wire fraud and 12 mail fraud counts.

Michael D. Smith, 54, of Lancaster, the brother of Christopher Smith and president of Target Oil and Gas, was convicted on one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud and 11 counts of mail fraud. Smith was acquitted on eight counts of mail fraud and two counts of wire fraud.

According to information provided by the office of the United States Attorney, Smith created a scheme to defraud investors in Kentucky and other states out of millions of dollars.

"Evidence at the trial proved that from February of 2003 to February of 2008, Smith, and other co-defendants, lured more than $12 million from investors through false statements and misrepresentations about the company's oil and gas drilling programs. The company only returned approximately

$538,000 in royalties to investors," said Kyle Edelen, public affairs officer for the office of the United States Attorney. "According to testimony at the trial, Smith used a geologist, Ray Garton, to prepare or direct others to prepare drilling program brochures for potential investors that contained misrepresentations and false statements to inspire potential investors to purchase

PRESTONSBURG — Troy Burchett, local martial arts and fitness trainer, along with former martial arts champion, can now add one more achievement to his ever-growing list.

Burchett can now call himself an actor.

Burchett recently shot scenes for an upcoming western movie, "Hell's Half Dozen," in Somerset and Corbin, in which he first was considered for a cameo appearance but later saw that role expanded, with far more duties added.

"The director, Jay Perkins, saw me on a television program playing music," said Burchett, who also performs in a gospel band that has received radio and television attention in the past several years. "They liked my appearance and they offered me this small role and it was only supposed to be a cameo, but now I have two or three minutes of screen time."

In addition to that expanded role, in which Burchett plays an ex-

MARTIN — The Floyd County School District is searching for some new drivers to ensure transportation for a large number of students across the area.

The Floyd County School District Transportation Department will host a Bus Driver Recruitment Fair on July 16 and July 23. The fair will be held at the bus garage located in Martin from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

"The purpose of the event is to provide information to individuals who want to make a difference in the life of a child by becoming a Floyd County school bus driver. Floyd County bus drivers will be available to share information, and to answer questions you may have about how to become a member of the bus driver team. Just look for the big yellow buses," said Beverly Crisman, director of community education.

For additional information about the recruitment fair, contact Karen Johnson, transportation director by calling (606) 285-9443, Ext. 5101 or Ricky Hancock, driver trainer, at (606) 285-9443, Ext. 5105.

Authors to sign works at Pikeville bookstore

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE — Nationally known writers and researchers Michael Knost and Kyle Lovern will be visiting BookNotes, a Pikeville bookstore, for a book signing event scheduled for July 17.

Knost is a Bram Stoker Award-winner for his nonfiction work, Writers Workshop of Horror, and also a recipient of the Black Quill Award.

An author, editor and columnist of the unexplained, Knost will be signing his Bram Stoker Award-winning book as well as his books "Legends of the Mountain State Volumes 1-3," "Appalachian Winter Hauntings: Weird Tales from the Mountain State" and "Dark Tales of Terror."

According to Glenda Hall, owner of BookNotes, Knost says he "believes that the closeness of our mountains contributes much to the uniqueness of the stories and legends associated with our region."

Knost suggests, "We should not discount that our ancient and mysterious mountains lend an element of authenticity to the 'time for time' concept so frequent in tales of horror."

Knost is now at work on a book about the Mothman of West Virginia lore.

Left to right, sisters McKenzie Tackett, 7, and Keiratan Tackett, 8, visited the Panache salon Tuesday afternoon for haircuts. Both made the trip, according to parents Shelby and Jack Tackett, of Printer, in order to make donations to Locks of Love. "They said since they were blessed to have all this hair, they wanted to give some," said mom Shelby.

Receive Social Security of SSI? Sign up for direct deposit

by JENNIFER HOPKINS
SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE
SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Did you know that the "All-Electronic Treasury Initiative" has been launched by the U.S. Treasury Department? This program encourages everyone receiving a government check to use some form of electronic payment. This includes Social Security and SSI checks. Beginning March 2011, all new beneficiaries may be required to be paid by some form of direct deposit. Paper checks may soon be eliminated. Sign up today!

To some people, direct deposit seems like a new way of doing things. But did you know direct deposit has been in use for more than 25 years, and it has a proven track record of success? That's because it is so fast and convenient. Direct deposit gets your benefits to you faster and eliminates the need to take a paper check to the bank and stand in line to get your check cashed.

Millions of taxpayers use direct deposit for a variety of reason. Some use it to get their income tax returns faster. Even more get their paychecks and/or benefit checks by direct deposit.

Are you on the fence about direct deposit? Consider this.

Direct Deposit gives you peace of mind. According to the National Automated Clearing House Association, once a direct deposit account is established, a payment can

Drug court is a worthwhile investment

For evidence of the short-sightedness of state government these days, look no further than the decision to cut all funding this spring for Kentucky's juvenile drug court program.

By nixing the program, the judicial branch expects to save $1.6 million annually and help make a dent in an anticipated $6.8 million budget shortfall for the fiscal year that this month. By ceasing to make a concerted effort to help kids on the path to drug addiction and substance abuse problems, the state is setting itself up for much heavier costs down the road.

Like its adult counterpart, juvenile drug court brings a mix of counseling and drug testing into the lives of people whose substance abuse has landed them in court. While adults in the drug court program have a chance to turn their lives around, juvenile drug court can help keep the lives of young people from needing to be fully turned around.

But in the name of short-term savings, Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice John D. Minton announced this spring that funding for the program would end, and the program would be phased out by the end of the year, if not sooner in some counties. A current class of juvenile drug court participants in Daviess County will see this program of guidance and discipline come to a close at the end of the year.

The value of this investment is apparent to Letcher County, where government and community leaders are stepping forward to continue the program despite the lack of state dollars. County Attorney Harold Bolling said the program will rely on local public and private dollars to fund drug testing kits and pay a single staff person for the program. Bolling, who lost his re-election bid this year, said he's considering volunteering once he leaves office at the end of the year.

There's no reason Daviess County can't come together to propel this program forward at least for the short term as well. It will take a public-private partnership to provide the funding needed to cover the cost of a coordinator and drug testing kits.

Daviess District Judge Lisa Jones, who currently presides over juvenile drug court, said as a judge, there is still the latitude in handling juvenile cases to direct these young people to treatment or counseling, but juvenile drug court brings stricter oversight or coordination to the process. The program gives parents a point person to turn to as their child works through the program and a more rigid regimen to complete, Jones said.

Contributions from the private sector can help fund supplies, such as drug testing kits, while local government could commit to funding the coordinator's position. It's a possibility that should be explored to determine the extent of the funding needed, and the possibility of such a public-private partnership.

The state has shirked its responsibility to young people who are heading down a path that can leave their lives in a shambles. The state isn't willing to pay for this program now, but will certainly have to pick up the tab later for those that end up behind bars, dependent upon social service programs or picking up the pieces of broken lives.

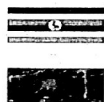

Local government shouldn't have to continually step up after the state has failed its residents, but the necessity of this program can't be ignored.

This community can come together and pick up where the state left off to help give these young people the opportunity to right their lives and a better chance at a brighter future.

Guest Column

A legislative perspective

by REP. GREG STUMBO
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

Our forests may not be one of the first things to come to mind when considering the drivers behind Kentucky's economy, but they should be.

That's because we ship more than $6 billion worth of wood products each year. More than 22,000 people work in wood-processing facilities across the state, and their combined payroll in 2004 was about double the sale of tobacco that year.

Forests cover 47 percent of Kentucky's total 25.67 million acres, but even that impressive amount is down about half of what it was before we became a state.

Our forests were so plentiful during our early years that little if any thought was given to their care. Kentucky's first forester, John Burton, wrote in the early 1900s that most people "wondered why anyone should be concerned about the forests." In 1880 alone, it's estimated that fire wiped out about a half-million acres, or two percent of the state's total area.

These facts are just some of the information contained in a far-reaching study released several weeks ago by the Kentucky Division of Forestry. That agency spent a year gathering data on our forests as part of a requirement for all states under the federal 2008 Farm Bill.

In Kentucky, about three-fourths of our forests are privately owned, a rate much higher than the national average of 57 percent. The forests themselves are very different from the years before European settlement; only 5,000 acres remain that are comparable to what Daniel Boone first saw.

The health of our forests in the years ahead depends largely on several factors: fire, pests and urban development.

Kentucky, unfortunately, regularly leads the South in the rate of intentionally set wildfires. Between 2000 and 2005, more than 8,600 were set, with 411,000 acres burned. The fires slowed somewhat in the decade's latter half, with "only" 4,400 reported.

Some of the pests we have seen have been around for generations, while others are relatively new. Kudzu, an ornamental plant brought to the United States from the Far East more than a century ago, can grow as fast as a foot a day. It's not easy to remove even at its source, as its tap root alone can approach 400 pounds.

A newer pest to our country, the emerald ash borer, was first discovered in Michigan in 2002. It has since devastated tens of millions of ash trees and is beginning to get a foothold in about 20 counties in the north-central region of our state. Its spread is helped by transporting firewood, which is why state officials are encouraging people to keep firewood local.

When it comes to urban development, the key is finding a balance between our needs and the forests'. Between World War II and 1988, Kentucky added 1.2 million acres of forested land, but in the last 15 years, most of that gain has been lost, a total equivalent to the size of the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Right now, of the 12 counties that average at least 1,000 people per square mile, only three — Boone, Kenton and Campbell — had at least 30 percent of their area in forests in 2004. Over the next decade, about 30 counties are on track to lose between one to five percent of their forested area, but none of the remainder is expected to add more than two percent.

On a positive note, our forests are poised to play a bigger role in improving our energy independence and our environment. Biomass production can turn such things as saw dust into usable fuel, and one acre of mature trees can absorb the same amount of carbon-dioxide generated by a car traveling 26,000 miles.

Kentucky's forests may be shrinking in size, but the number of trees within them continues to grow. Helping that along are our two state nurseries — one in Morgan County and the other in Marshall County — which provide as many as four million tree seedlings a year at low cost.

If many thought our forests were inexhaustible a century or more ago, we now know that not to be the case. If managed correctly, though, they can be a resource that will sustain us long into the future.

Letters

Human faces lurk behind statistics

The following letter was sent to members of Congress and is being reprinted here.

I am writing (my first letter of this kind) just to let you know that the current lack of unemployment benefits and health insurance is NOT a neat, orderly row of statistics on a piece of paper. I am a real, struggling human being, desperately trying to finish college and earn a career, not just a job. I am a single mother, forced to move myself and my teenage son into my parents' home because I could not find a decent job in the Pikeville area. I am currently working on my phlebotomy certification but will be unable to finish school now.

I was hopeful when the health care assistance allowed me afford health care, as I have thyroid problems, a tumor on my spine and tachycardia, all requiring recurring treatment. As of the beginning of this month I am no longer insured. I simply cannot afford the $530-a-month premiums on my $800-a-month benefits. I still have to feed and clothe my son and myself, pay my car insurance and gas bill as well as pay full price for my medications now. The sad fact that I now have to face is that, unless benefits are extended, I cannot finish school, and I am six months from graduating.

When I hear politicians complain that they have to stop these benefits to save the government, I have to scratch my head. Isn't it government FOR the people? Don't the people (even a struggling citizen like myself) make up the government?

I have worked since I was 15 and only became unemployed two years ago when my thyroid problems started. I have struggled to regain my health and I had hoped to be a career professional this time next year. Now my future is at the mercy of legislation.

I need your help, your leadership, your representation.

Kimberly Walker

Teenage volunteers win PRIDE award

SOMERSET — A group of promising young leaders from southern and eastern Kentucky has been honored with the PRIDE Volunteer of the Month Award.

The 120 students are members of the 2010 classes of the Rogers Scholars and Rogers Explorers, which are youth programs of The Center for Rural Development, known as The Center. They picked up trash in downtown Williamsburg, at Green River Lake and at Lake Cumberland.

"I appreciate these students for volunteering with PRIDE this summer, and I hope they are now motivated to continue caring for the environment and serving others," said PRIDE's Karen Engle. "They were selected for these youth programs because they have shown great potential to make our region an even better place to call home. We are pleased to partner with The Center to arrange service projects that encourage their long-term commitment to their communities."

The Center's youth programs nurture skills in leadership, technology, entrepreneurship and community service. Through competitive processes, participants are selected from 42 counties in southern and eastern Kentucky. The Rogers Scholars, who will be seniors this fall, spend one week at The Center in Somerset. The Rogers Explorers will be ninth-graders this fall, and they spend three days and two nights at The University of the Cumberlands, Lindsey Wilson College or Eastern Kentucky University.

The PRIDE Volunteer of the Month program recognizes hard work and dedication to the PRIDE initiative. With corporate sponsorship from TECO Coal, WYMT-TV airs commercials about each PRIDE Volunteer of the Month. The 12 Volunteers of the Month are considered for PRIDE's annual Tony Turner Volunteer of the Year Award.

"Volunteers are the backbone of PRIDE," said Congressman Hal Rogers (KY-5). "We wouldn't be where we are without our volunteers. More than 260,000 volunteers have helped with PRIDE cleanup and education projects. We want to thank TECO Coal for helping PRIDE give these generous people the recognition they deserve."

The Center and PRIDE were created by Congressman Rogers to encourage and assist communities with creating long-term opportunities for their young people. PRIDE's role is to promote personal responsibility for the environment. The Center addresses several facets of community development, including encouraging Kentucky's next generation of community and business leaders.

Highlands Regional Medical Center announced that Debra "Dee Dee" Hackworth was named Employee of the Month for June. Dee Dee is Director of Education and Respiratory Care. The Employee of the Month nomination form reflected the respect Dee Dee has earned among all her co-workers and the professional manner in which she carries out her duties. It also applauded her "can-do" attitude and named her one of the friendliest and most courteous people in the organization.

The Riverview Health Care Center spotlight is focused this month on April Amburgey, June's Volunteer of the Month. April is from Prestonsburg and has been married for 18 years. In addition to enjoying her role as a housewife, she desired to find a purpose outside the home. That's when a friend recommended volunteering. She contacted Riverview Health Care and began volunteering one day a week. When asked what she enjoyed most about volunteering her time she said, "The interaction that goes along with helping the residents. I especially enjoy assisting residents with their activities and visiting with them when delivering their mail. I have been richly blessed by volunteering. I wasn't sure what to expect when I began, but I have been totally amazed by so many events at the facility. My time as a volunteer has given me a new purpose." Volunteering has also helped to build relationships outside the facility. She and her husband have become involved in a home Bible study with some of the employees from Riverview. If you would like to benefit by becoming a volunteer, you can contact the center's Quality of Life Department at (606) 886-9178.

Deposit

never be lost. The funds are transferred electronically and can always be traced. There's no worry about stolen, lost or misdirected payments. No matter where you are, your payment is in the bank.

Direct deposit is, hands down, the safest, quickest and most convenient way for people to receive their payments and we encourage that everyone receiving Social Security or SSI benefits enroll today. It is expected that by the year 2013, paper checks will be eliminated and all Social Security and SSI recipients will receive their payments by direct deposit.

If you don't already have direct deposit for your Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits, it's easy to sign up. For more information about direct deposit of your Social Security or SSI benefits, go to www.socialsecurity.gov/dep or call your local Social Security Office.

For more information about online services just call your local Social Security Office in Prestonsburg at (606) 886-8525. The office is located at 1897 Kentucky Route 321 in Prestonsburg, KY. Representatives are available to answer questions.

And remember, we have representatives available to give presentations and speeches about Social Security Programs. Contact the office for more information.

Plenty of history events at state parks in July

FRANKFORT — History comes alive during July at Kentucky State Parks with a variety of demonstrations and programs that cover pioneer life, Native Americans, the French and Indian War and the Civil War.

The Kentucky State Parks offer historic sites, museums and living history programs to guests throughout the year. Below are some of the special events during July. For more information, visit www.parks.ky.gov.

Perryville Battlefield State Historic Site, Perryville

The Horse Soldier: A Tribute to Cavalry in the American Civil War

July 1-Oct. 31, 2010

Perryville Battlefield has a new cavalry exhibition at its museum that includes items rarely seen by the public including Sue Mundy's pistol and artifacts from John Hunt Morgan's 2nd Kentucky Regiment. The exhibit also includes an interpretive film, interactive displays that allow the guest to research Civil War ancestors and graphic panels depicting all aspects of cavalry. Admission is $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

The Horse Soldier exhibit is timely because of the 2010 Alltech FEI World Equestrian Games at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington Sept. 25-Oct. 10, 2010. Perryville's annual battle re-enactment will be held during the games Oct.

2-3. The cavalry theme will continue for the Perryville re-enactment. There will be expert speakers on cavalry, cavalry demonstrations and museum exhibits focusing on horses. The weekend will feature two battles at the park, which preserves the location of the largest Civil War battle in Kentucky that took place in 1862.

The park museum is open Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Perryville Battlefield is 45 miles southwest of Lexington. Take US 68 west to US 150 west. For more information about Perryville and other Kentucky State Parks, visit www.parks.ky.gov. The phone number for Perryville Battlefield is 859-332-8631.

Carter Caves State Resort Park, Olive Hill

Pioneer Life Week

July 19-25

You can experience what Kentucky was like more than 200 years ago during Pioneer Life Week at Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill from July 19-25. This annual event allows visitors to see how pioneers and Native Americans lived. Most events are free to the public. The pioneer encampment near the park campground is open daily 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 25.

Some of the programs include tomahawk throwing, black powder rifle demonstrations, flint knapping, spinning and weaving demonstrations, and pioneer clothing interpretation.

Evening programs will include Pickin' at the Caves on Monday night; L. Henry Dowell will be portraying the frontier surgeon "Dr. Ephraim McDowell" during a Kentucky Chautauqua program on Wednesday night. Frontier stories by the fire at the campground on Thursday night and a dance at the shelter house at the campground on Friday night. Country Fair Day will be Saturday, July 24, featuring old farm tools and machinery, woodcarving, seed spinning, flint knapping, pottery making, flute music, a pie auction and more. A free ice cream social will be at 4 p.m.

Carter Caves also offers cave tours, canoe trips, hiking, golf, mini golf, fishing, camping, horseback riding and swimming. Carter Caves also has a lodge and restaurant. During the week, the restaurant will have a Buffalo Buffet including Buffalo Ribs and Roast on Thursday July 22.

For more information, call the park at 1-800-325-0059 or 1-606-286-4411.

boxer who was blinded in the ring and is now en route by wagon to loan his on-screen brother money, Burchett said he was also given the reins in two different ways with the scene.

"I have two or three fight scenes after this band of six outlaws stop the wagon to rob me," Burchett said. "I do get to beat two or three of them up, but I still get robbed."

Burchett's role in the movie was recast to include this scene after the director learned of his past martial arts experience, which includes a world championship victory at the 2001 Arnold Classic held in Columbus, Ohio. When Burchett then explained that he was legally blind, he remembers it as being a moment where he had to again prove his capabilities.

"I'm legally blind, so when I told the guy, he was nervous," said Burchett. "But I said, 'Give me a chance, and I'll show you what I can do.' I've always believed that what the mind can conceive, the body can achieve."

Apart from his added screen time, Burchett insisted on performing his own stunts and choreographed the fight scenes.

"Driving the wagon with the horses had me a little scared at first, but we ended up acting it in just two takes, so everything worked out," he said.

The movie is still in production and will be released in theaters later this year. Burchett said, adding that his time spent on set afforded him the chance at another role in a second film that is planned to start production sometime next year, "Blood Brothers," another western.

"It was a great experience and I'm pleased they gave me the opportunity to do it," said Burchett. "I enjoyed it and everyone was really good to me."

DELICIOUS Summer Dishes

FAMILY FEATURES

Italian food is at the top of many people's list of favorite cuisines—and for good reason. Chef Fabio Viviani, "Top Chef" contestant and Owner and Executive Chef of Firenze Osteria Italian Restaurant and Martini Bar in Los Angeles, knows that the combination of fresh ingredients, flavorful herbs and healthy, high quality olive oil makes Italian cuisine a go-to choice for al fresco summer dining.

To bring families together for a summer meal, Chef Fabio has created delicious summer recipes that can be made indoors or on the grill while showcasing the versatility and flavors of Bertolli Olive Oil's premium line of olive oils.

In addition to these recipes, here are more easy ways to enjoy the classic Italian taste of olive oil every day:

- Serve a simple appetizer of fresh bread with extra virgin olive oil. Pour the oil in a bowl for dipping and season with cracked pepper or fresh herbs.
- Create a simple yet flavorful marinade of classic pure olive oil combined with either lemon juice or wine vinegar to flavor meats, poultry and fish.
- Toss your favorite unsalted nuts in a sandwich bag with extra light tasting olive oil to coat lightly, then add a sprinkle of salt for an extraordinary taste.

Olive Oil Health: Did You Know?

Not only revered for its taste, olive oil has long been a part of healthy cooking. Since olive oil is low in saturated fat and is naturally cholesterol-free, it adds flavor while boosting nutritional value.

Swap It Out: Using three-quarters of a teaspoon of olive oil for every one teaspoon of butter or margarine cuts the fat in recipes by 25 percent.

Get Rich: Olive oil is rich in antioxidants, also known as polyphenols, which have cancer-fighting properties, especially when consumed as extra virgin olive oil.

Roasted Tomato & Zucchini Salad

by Chef Fabio Viviani

Serves 4

- 6 Roma tomatoes
- 4 zucchini
- Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- Salt and pepper (to taste)
- 2 6-ounce balls of buffalo mozzarella, cut into 3/4-inch slices
- Approximately 10 large leaves of fresh basil
- Shaved Parmesan cheese

Dressing

- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- 1/2 cup Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika

Cut tomatoes into 1/2-inch slices, and zucchini lengthwise into 1/8-inch ribbons. Season both with minced garlic, salt and pepper and drizzle with olive oil. Roast on grill with cut side up for about 10 minutes, or until nice and evenly roasted.

To assemble the salad:

Place the tomato, zucchini (folded) and mozzarella on top of each other, like a tower, with a basil leaf in between layers. Season layers with salt and pepper and a drizzle of dressing. Sprinkle with shaved Parmesan on top.

Grilled Chicken Skewers with Sausage and Pancetta

by Chef Fabio Viviani

Serves 4

- 3 chicken breasts (cubed)
- 5 to 6 sausages
- 8 to 10 thin slices of pancetta

Sauce

- 20 cherry tomatoes (cut in half)
- Handful of fresh basil (chopped)
- 4 tablespoons Bertolli Extra Light Tasting Olive Oil
- Salt and pepper (to taste)

Alternate pieces of chicken and sausage on metal or bamboo skewers and brush with olive oil. Wrap skewers with slices of pancetta, approximately two pieces per skewer.

Place on grill. Grill until chicken is cooked, approximately 5 to 10 minutes.

In a cast iron pan on grill, place cut tomatoes, basil and olive oil. Sauté until tomatoes are almost stewed. Season with salt and pepper.

Place the cooked skewers on a plate and top with cherry tomato sauce. Garnish with fresh chopped basil.

Note: If using bamboo skewers, soak skewers in water for one-half to one hour, to avoid burning on the grill.

Filet with Farro Salad

by Chef Fabio Viviani

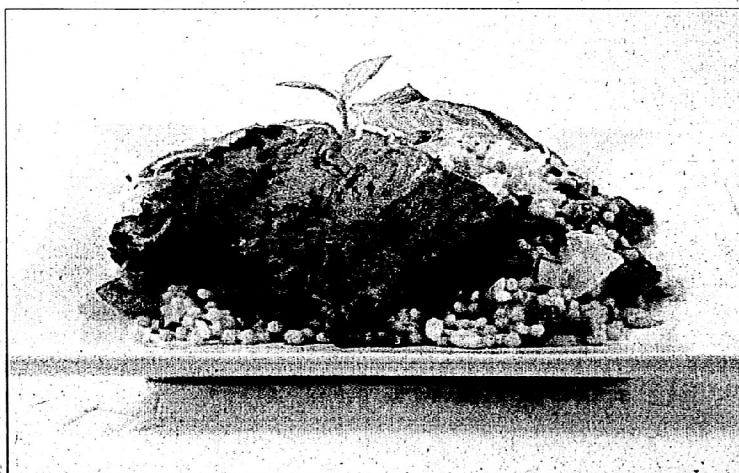

Serves 4

- 1 8-ounce filet mignon
- 8 ounces farro or couscous
- 10 cherry tomatoes, quartered
- 1 zucchini, diced
- 2 tablespoons Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 5 to 6 leaves basil, sliced in half lengthwise
- 1 cup shaved Parmesan
- 1/2 cup pine nuts
- Salt and pepper

Season filet with salt and pepper and grill to medium rare. Let the meat rest. Slice meat when you are ready to serve.

Prepare farro by cooking in salted boiling water for 12 minutes and drain. Mix farro with the remaining ingredients in serving bowl. Serve on plate and place sliced filet on top.

Brian Loney Stables racks up nine wins

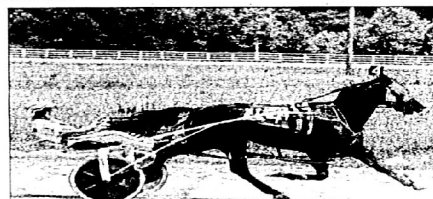

by EDDIE BLAIR
THUNDER RIDGE TRACK WRITER

PRESTONSBURG - Brian Loney Stables of Martin enjoyed its best weekend of the 2010 season thus far at Thunder Ridge Raceway over the weekend, posting nine wins. Brian Loney Stables entry Gram of Gold won the Filly and Mare Open for the second straight week.

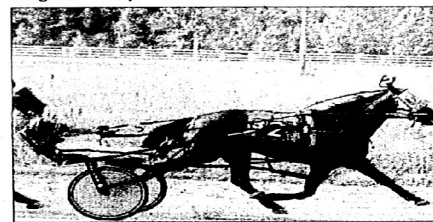

James Stiltner remains atop the driver standings at the Floyd County track. Stiltner claimed two wins in three days with Eden Runner, a 7-year-old pacing gelding. James Spur, driven by Brandon Bartley and owned and trained by James Herald of Jackson, paced the fastest mile of the week, winning the Horses and Geldings Open Pace in 1:56.3.

Simply Hilarious continues to dominate the $2,000 claimers. The 13-year-old gelding won his sixth race of the meet on Thursday. Brandon Bartley, working in a dual role, drives and trains Simply Hilarious.

Two weeks remain in the current meet at Thunder Ridge Raceway.

Southern Nationals opener rained out

Kinzer due to race in Georgia on Friday

TIMES STAFF REPORT

RURAL RETREAT, Va. - Mother Nature won round one of the highly anticipated Southern Nationals Series. The $3,500 to-win show scheduled for Tuesday at the Wythe Raceway was canceled due to inclement weather and will not be rescheduled. The popular Southeastern mini-series was due to open its 2010 campaign on Tuesday at the Carolina Speedway in Gastonia, North Carolina.

"It is unfortunate that we had to cancel the event at Wythe," stated a dejected Ray Cook, Series Director. "The racetrack had received a lot of rain already and more was in the forecast. From all of the calls I was getting, it looked like the show was shaping up to be a good one, but Mother Nature did not cooperate." Allen driver Brandon Kinzer was scheduled to compete in the Southern Nationals event at Wythe Raceway. Kinzer is due to return to competition on Friday at Boyd's Speedway in Georgia in a $4,000-to-win Southern All-Stars race.

Herrick named All-American Scholar

P'burg native recently graduated from Bellarmine University

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE - Bellarmine University men's golfer Brooks Herrick has been named a 2009-2010 Cleveland Golf/Srixon All-America Scholar by the Golf Coaches Association of America. He was one of 119 golfers from NCAA Div I, II, III and NAIA schools to be honored.

In order to be recognized for this award a D-II golfer must be a junior or senior academically, compete in at least two full years at the collegiate level, participate in 70 percent of his team's competitive rounds or compete in the NCAA Championships, have a stroke-average 78.0 and maintain a minimum cumulative grade-point average of 3.2 and be in good standing with the university.

Herrick, a Prestonsburg native, recently graduated with a degree in political science and economics. He graduated summa cum laude with a cumulative grade point average of 3.91.

Herrick helped lead Bellarmine to a 15th place finish in the 2010 NCAA championships in May. This is the second year that Herrick has been named a Cleveland Golf/Srixon All-America Scholar.

A former 15th Region champion, Herrick graduated from Prestonsburg High School. During his prep career, in addition to golf, Herrick also emerged as a starter for the Blackcat basketball team.

BROOKS HERRICK

Concussion rule revised, strengthened in high school football

TIMES STAFF REPORT

INDIANAPOLIS - Effective with the 2010 high school football season, any player who shows signs, symptoms or behaviors associated with a concussion must be removed from the game and shall not return to play until cleared by an appropriate health-care professional.

The concussion rule was one of 12 changes approved by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Football Rules Committee at its meeting in Indianapolis. The rule changes subsequently were approved by the NFHS Board of Directors.

The previous rule directed officials to remove an athlete from play if "unconscious or apparently unconscious." The previous rule also allowed for return to play based on written authorization by a medical doctor. Now, officials are charged with removing any player who shows signs, symptoms or behaviors consistent with a concussion, such as loss of consciousness, headache, dizziness, confusion or balance problems, and shall not return to play until cleared by an appropriate health-care professional.

"Given that the vast majority of concussions do not include a loss of consciousness, but that athletes often show obvious evidence of concussion, the NFHS Sports Medicine Advisory Committee (SMAC) strongly believes that officials must continue to be empowered to remove these athletes from play, thus protecting them from further injury," said Dr. Michael Koester, chair of the SMAC. "Continued participation in any sport following a concussion can lead to worsening concussion symptoms, as well as increased risk for further injury to the brain and even death.

"The safety of the athlete is of paramount concern during any athletic contest. Officials, coaches and administrators are being asked to make all efforts at ensuring that concussed athletes do not continue to participate. Thus, coaches, players and administrators should also be looking for signs of concussion in all athletes and should immediately remove any suspected concussed athlete from play."

In addition to football, the new concussion language is being placed in all NFHS rules books for the 2010-11 season, as well as the "NFHS Suggested Guidelines for Management of Concussion."

Among the other changes were four pertaining to equipment, two dealing with player conduct, one concerning penalty options on scoring plays and three others in Rule 3 dealing with periods, time factors and substitution.

"The NFHS Football Rules Committee continues to focus its primary efforts toward maintaining the highest level of player safety," said Julian Tackett, new commissioner of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association and chair of the NFHS Football Rules Committee. "This is evidenced by several rule changes related to equipment and concussions that were approved for 2010 following review by the NFHS SMAC. The rules of the game are in very good order and our members feel that no substantial changes were necessary beyond our emphasis on the health and welfare of the high school student-athlete."

Among the equipment changes was approval of a new football glove/hand pad standard for the 2012 season. (See FOOTBALL, page two)

Football

Beginning in 2012, gloves, which may be anchored with athletic tape and even though modified, must meet the National Operating Committee on Standards for Athletic Equipment (NOCSAE) test standards at the time of manufacture.

Other equipment changes include removal of restrictions on penalty-marker colored pads or gloves; revisions in the padding rule for guards, casts and braces; and clarification of the illegal player equipment rule.

In Rule 9-4-3k, the committee approved a clarification to the horse-collar rule. The wording in the definition of a horse-collar was changed to address situations when player possession was lost or the ball became dead by rule after the back or side of the jersey collar/shoulder pads were grasped.

In Rule 8-2, six existing articles were refined and a new article created regarding fouls on scoring plays that have succeeding spot enforcement. Colgate said the changes now give both teams the same options when a non-player or unsportsmanlike conduct foul is committed during a down in which a touchdown is scored.

In other changes, the point differential rule by state adoption was modified to allow state associations to terminate a game at any point once the point differential is reached. Previously, the end of the first half was the earliest termination of a game by rule. In Rule 3-2-2, coin toss provisions were revised to state that no more than four captains per team can be on the field of play for the coin toss. In Rule 3-7-1, the committee revised the timeframe for replacing players from "immediately" to "within three seconds."

Finally, the rules committee altered field markings in nine-, eight- and six-player football. All players who participated in the previous down and all substitutes must be momentarily between the 7-yard marks if they play on regulation 80-yard fields.

Points of emphasis adopted by the NFHS Football Rules Committee for the 2010 season include concussion recognition and management, heat illness and hydration, illegal helmet contact, assisting the runner, sportsmanship and public-address announcers, and NFHS Football Officials Manual.

Football is the No. 1 participatory sport for boys at the high school level with 1,112,303 participants in the 2008-09 season, according to the High School Athletics Participation Survey conducted by the NFHS through its member state associations. In addition, the survey indicated there were 759 girls who played football in 2008-09.

New March Madness takes form; field expanded to 68

by BILL RABINOWITZ
THE COLUMBUS DISPATCH (MCT)

Gene Smith expected a consensus to emerge. It didn't. So the NCAA men's basketball committee blended its three proposals to form a hybrid solution to the task of incorporating the three new teams to its 68-team NCAA Tournament.

Get ready for new terms such as "First Four" and "Double Bubble" for March Madness.

The NCAA announced that the final four at-large teams will play for two spots in the round of 64 and the lowest four seeded teams will play to earn the other two spots.

These "First Four" games will be televised nationally in prime time by Turner Broadcasting's truTV (formerly Court TV). The days and sites have yet to be determined. Smith, the Ohio State athletic director who will become the basketball committee chairman this year, said he's partial to having the games played in Dayton, which has served as the site of the tournament's opening-round games.

Smith said three proposals were sent for comment to colleges. One would have pitted the final eight at-large teams against each other for the four spots in the round of 64. A second would have had the eight lowest-seeded teams play each other. A third would have had the last four at-large teams play the four lowest-seeded teams.

"There was no national consensus on any particular model," Smith said. "It was all over the board. There were some that were comfortable with any model, which shocked me."

When the committee met in Chicago, in late June, the hybrid model emerged as the solution halfway through the five-day meeting, Smith said.

"I can't speak for the other committee members, but for me the critical point was that we had added three at-large teams (in tournament expansion)," Smith said. "There's nothing new about the (automatic qualifiers). What's new were the at-large teams. It became clear to me that they should (also) be playing in the first round."

The opening-round contest in Dayton, commonly dubbed the play-in game, has been more curiosity than genuine attraction because it involved two teams from bottom-echelon conferences. Invariably, the survivor has been fodder for a No. 1 seed.

Now, at least two of the "first four" games are likely to involve familiar teams. (Officially, they'll be classified as first-round games, with round of 64 games called the second round.)

An added layer of intrigue will accompany bubble teams as they fight to get into the tournament because they'll want to avoid a "double bubble" scenario of having to play an extra game to reach the round of 64.

Typically, the last four at-large teams are seeded 11th or 12th, but that's not a given. Teams are sometimes moved up or down a seed, usually to avoid a potential intra-conference matchup in the first three rounds.

Teams are seeded 1-58 and then placed in the bracket. It's possible that one or more of the final four at-large teams will be given a better seed than one that doesn't have to play a first-round game.

The decision where and when to play those games will be decided in the next few weeks, Smith said.

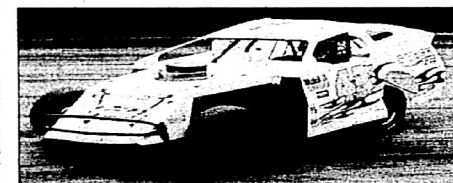

The leading contenders are Dayton and Indianapolis, which is the home of NCAA headquarters. Smith said it's possible the first-round games could be played at different regional sites, though he's not in favor of that for logistical reasons.

He said he prefers Dayton because of the support it has given the opening-round game.

"The staff at the NCAA is having a lot of conversations with facilities and television (officials)," Smith said. "I do lean toward making sure we do everything we can to pay a tribute to Dayton. They've done a marvelous job over the years. I think last year they had 7,000 (spectators) with two teams that have no affinity with that community."

"But who knows whether they can handle this format? Can they handle two days (of games). Can they handle four games in one day? That has to be evaluated by staff."

School calendar options cause questions, creativity

Sen. Vernie McGaha, R-Russell Springs (left), confers with Sen. Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, prior to the start of the August meeting of the Interim Joint Committee on Education.

FRANKFORT — State mandates on class time and scheduling combined with recent weather and illness issues have led to some creative calendars for local districts, lawmakers heard Monday.

State law requires calendars to include 175 instructional days, although the current budget merely requires the equivalent of 177 six-hour instructional days, or 1,062 hours. Teachers are also required to have 185 total days, including professional development and planning time.

District calendars must also plan for make-up days as necessary, with each district required to account for the maximum days missed in the last five years. Some districts in eastern Kentucky must schedule more than 30 make-up days, which lead to school years scheduled to end in April if no days are cancelled.

School years must absolutely end by June 30 because of the fiscal year, and other quirks in the calendar in late May lead each local district to address the calendar differently. "You absolutely cannot make everyone happy," Education Commissioner Terry Holliday told members of the Interim Joint Committee on Education's Subcommittee on Elementary and Secondary Education.

Adair County Superintendent Darrell

Treece said his district scheduled school on Saturday this year because classes on Election Day (May 18) were forbidden, veterans would have been offended by classes on Memorial Day (May 31), and holding the extra day on June 1 would have caused pension problems for teachers who had already submitted retirement papers ending their positions on May 31. As a result, attendance was only 75 percent that Saturday, he said.

Letcher County Superintendent Anna Craft scheduled school for Memorial Day, but included programs on the holiday and its meaning to address veterans' concerns.

To head off issues in the future, Holliday said, districts are scheduling start dates for earlier in the year, building in the extra time for make-up days. With the flexibility to use fewer days to attain the required hours for this biennium, he added, some districts are extending the school year.

The key, said Craft and Lee County Superintendent Jim Evans, is making sure the time is used for teaching, not just to cut down on the number of days students walk through the doors. "In 30-minute segments, you can have meaningful instruction," Craft said.

At the same time, some said, the school day can't run so long that students tune out. "There is a point where we're following the law, but are we accomplishing the purpose?" said Subcommittee co-chair Sen. Vernie McGaha, R-Russell Springs.

Another option, Holliday said, was "virtual school," where teachers could hold classes over the Internet. Assignments could be given, completed, and graded online when the roads were too bad for students to make it to school, he said.

The virtual program still leaves several questions to be answered, the commissioner said, including how to deal with attendance issues, classified staff who are on contracts, and the availability of computers and Internet access in the areas that would most need the program.

"If every kid could have access to a computer and every kid could have access to the Internet, this would be a good idea," said Rep. Hubert Collins, D-Wittensville.

Local superintendents also pointed out that fewer days in the actual school facility would also mean missed meals by children who rely on school breakfast and lunch programs for nutrition during the school year.

One helpful change the General Assembly has already made, they noted, was the switch in statewide testing from a fixed date across all schools to a schedule based on individual districts' calendars. The old schedule, abolished in 2009 by Senate Bill 1, put some schools at a disadvantage because they did not have as much instructional time before the tests, then had too many days afterward where students were disengaged.

Hillbilly Christmas in July ride this Sunday

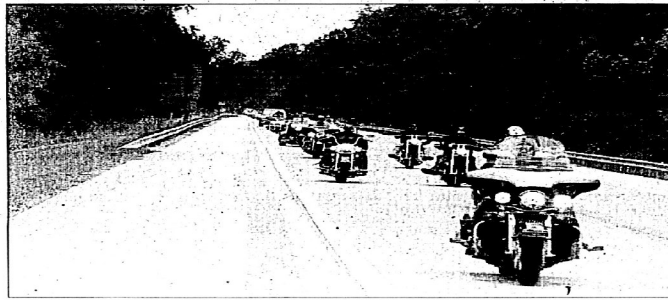

The fifth annual Hillbilly Christmas in July ride to benefit the Shriners Hospital for Children in Lexington is scheduled to depart from Harley-Davidson of Pikeville this Sunday at 10 a.m. The ride officially begins with an 8 a.m. chapel service at the dealership. Then, with some last-minute safety reminders, more than 500 motorcyclists wearing bright yellow wristbands are expected to rumble onto the highway to "Do it for the kids."

This year's ride holds special meaning for the riders and for the community. The event has been designated the Randy Jones Memorial Ride for the Kids in honor of the well-known East Kentucky Broadcasting radio personality and "voice" of the Hillbilly Christmas in July organization. Jones died suddenly last month of an apparent heart attack leaving thousands of friends and fans throughout the region shocked and saddened. An outpouring of love and support for his wife, Paulette and son, Austin, has been re-directed to the cause he was so passionate about — the kids receiving medical care from the Shriners Hospital for Children in Lexington.

The motorcycle parade will leave Pikeville at 10 a.m. sharp, stop for a break at the Mountain Parkway Drag Strip in Clay City, then travel on to Man O' War Harley-Davidson in Lexington. At 3 p.m., the parade will continue to and around the hospital on Richmond Road for the children to see. Many of the riders will return to the dealership for an evening of food, music and camaraderie and to witness the drawing for the 2010 Harley-Davidson Ultra Classic being raffled.

Last year the 500 motorcycles that left Pikeville were joined by hundreds more along the route. The Lexington Fayette County Police Department estimated that 800 to 1000 bikes stretched 4.1 miles on the highway from the dealership to the hospital.

Jimmy Kinney, who co-founded Hillbilly Christmas in July with his friend

Randy Jones, asked that drivers be patient with and respectful of the riders. "Remember, they're doing it for the kids," Kinney said. He suggested that, unless they want to see the parade, Lexington drivers should avoid the area between the Sir Barton Way intersection on Man O' War and 1900 Richmond Road between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. There could be traffic delays.

Shriners Hospitals for Children® is a health care system of 22 hospitals that provide pediatric specialty care without financial obligation to patients or families. As of January of this year, 1129 patients from Pike and surrounding counties were receiving care from the Lexington facility, the one closest to eastern Kentucky.

Hillbilly Christmas in July, Inc. is a non-profit organization totally dedicated to those children. One hundred percent of the funds raised are donated to the hospital along with thousands of new toys. To date, the organization has donated $189,589 in cash and more than 15,000 new toys. Board members will deliver toys collected in this year's toy drive and present a check for funds raised this year on Friday July 30.

Hillbilly Christmas in July is also working to provide a universal access playground in Pikeville for special needs children. More information can be found at hillbillychristmas-july.org.

Review of 'Cinderella'

Tucked away in the mountains of Kentucky is a true state gem, Jenny Wiley Theatre is set in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and is an outdoor theatre company striving "to enhance the quality of life in Eastern Kentucky by providing professional theatre and exceptional educational opportunities in the performing arts."

Jenny Wiley Theatre has been giving audiences outstanding plays and performances for over four decades. We took our two boys (ages 7 and 4) to a production of Cinderella this summer. The stage sits in between two beautiful hillsides is surrounded by a canopy of tall trees — truly a magical experience from the moment we arrived.

Already a Cinderella fan, I saw my first production of Cinderella over 17 years ago at the Louisville ballet. Over the years we have seen numerous more Broadway shows, plays, ballets, and symphonies and the production at Jenny Wiley Theatre sits at the top of our list.

We were blown away by the actors, their powerful voices and the talented orchestral musicians.

As we looked around the audience we were struck by the thought that this must have been what it was like in the days of Shakespeare. Here we were with our 4-year-old and 7-year-old, who were laughing just as hard as the couple beside us who were in their 60s.

We knew this was a memorable night when our 4 year old wished the play wasn't over as much as we too were wishing it hadn't ended.

We hope to make it back later this summer to see Jack and the Beanstalk. Each season is filled with fantastic plays for adults and children alike. Choosing to introduce our small children to such culture and beauty was absolutely priceless.

Beshear encourages community support of education

TEK Talk community forums will discuss 'Transforming Education in Kentucky'

FRANKFORT — Recognizing the value of public support of education throughout the Commonwealth, Gov. Steve Beshear will host TEK Talk community forums on Aug. 17, 2010. Kentuckians are invited to gather at 10 locations across the state to discuss Transforming Education in Kentucky (TEK). The governor created the TEK initiative last fall to focus current education programs toward the unified goal of better preparing Kentucky students for the challenges of the 21st century.

"The success of our education system in Kentucky is dependent upon the involvement of our communities," said Gov. Beshear. "Local participation and support reinforces our united commitment to improving educational opportunities statewide."

Gov. Beshear is working in partnership with the Education and Workforce Development Cabinet, the Kentucky Department of Education, the Prichard Committee, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and Kentucky Educational Television to provide this opportunity for the public to share its concerns and ideas. The local events will take place in Paducah, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Elizabethtown, Louisville, Lexington, Northern Kentucky, Somerset, Prestonsburg and Ashland.

In addition to the local discussions, KET will stream a live panel discussion with the Governor, First Lady Jane Beshear, Education Commissioner

Terry Holliday and Council on Postsecondary Education President Bob King. The panel will address questions posed at the community forums and discuss issues that emerge from local events. Bill Goodman of KET will moderate the panel for his program, "Education Matters."

Last October, Gov.

Beshear formed the Task Force on Transforming Education in Kentucky to study school improvement efforts currently underway and to help develop new strategies.

Members of the task force include education advocates, parents, teachers, superintendents, lawmakers and business and community leaders who have been handpicked for their commitment to education and to Kentucky.

Meetings have focused on improving college readiness; providing every student with the opportunity to earn college credit during high school; assessments that measure what employers value and making high school more relevant; expanding the use of technology for learning; improving teacher recruitment and retention; boosting academics in career and technical education; and improving transitions between preschool to K-12.

The group is preparing to recommend ways to channel all of these efforts into an integrated and comprehensive system of education in Kentucky. The goal is to formulate recommendations by the end of 2010 for consideration during the 2011 legislative session.

Governor Beshear and the TEK Task Force will use the public input from TEK Talk as guidance for the work of Transforming Education in Kentucky.

For more information about the TEK initiative and about the local TEK Talk events, go to www.tek.ky.gov.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCEThe skinny on clean chickenby SANDY MILLER HAYS AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

Barbecue chicken — what could be better?

I've had a serious weakness for barbecue chicken since my childhood in rural Arkansas, where one of the key players on the social scene was the 4-H Club, and one of the biggest social events of the year was the 4-H Barbecue Chicken Cook-off. I can see it now: grills spread far and wide across the local fairgrounds, the air filled with the most aromatic smoke imaginable, and everybody jealously guarding their "secret recipe" barbecue sauce.

If you're a barbecue chicken aficionado, you probably already know the rules of safe chicken grilling, but just in case you can use a refresher, here's a short-and-sweet version:

- Put your raw chicken on one plate to carry it out to the grill, and on a separate, clean plate to carry it to the table after grilling. Don't put the cooked chicken back on the raw chicken's plate unless you've scrubbed that plate with hot, soapy water before using it again.

- Use a meat thermometer — one of those that gives you a digital read-out in seconds. You need to cook your chicken to an internal temperature of at least 165 degrees Fahrenheit, and you may want to go even higher, depending on your personal preferences on chicken doneness.

- If you've touched the raw chicken, be sure to wash your hands in hot, soapy water for at least 20 seconds afterwards. The same goes for any utensils, such as tongs, that have touched the raw chicken.

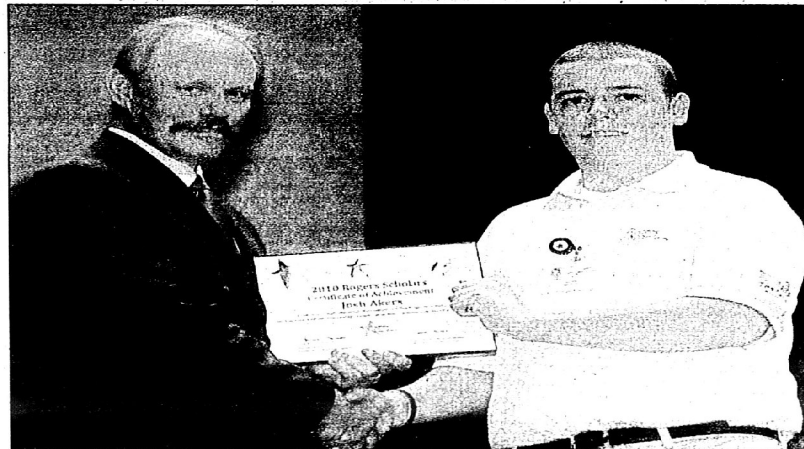

- As for the barbecue sauce, there are two schools of thought on that. You might want to cook the chicken in a skillet on the stove first, so that it's almost done, and then put it on the grill for the finishing touches of smoky flavor and barbecue sauce (while aiming for that all-important internal temperature of 165 degrees F). Or, if you're more of a barbecue purist, cook the chicken "plain" on the grill, until it's well on its way to being done, before you start slathering on the sauce. The reason? If you bath the bird in sauce as soon as it goes onto the grill, your sauce will turn black and look overdone long before the chicken's actually cooked thoroughly, and you wind up taking the chicken off the fire too early.

Why all the worry about chicken cleanliness? Two words: Campylobacter and Salmonella. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Campylobacter is the most commonly identified bacterial cause of diarrheal disease in the world, and this bacteria lives in the intestines of healthy chickens. The CDC also notes on its website that "most raw poultry meat has Campylobacter on it." As for Salmonella, it too lives in the intestines of birds, and can cause an illness called salmonellosis that often includes diarrhea, fever and abdominal cramps.

In case you're beginning to suspect that cleaning up chicken carcasses is a good idea, you're absolutely right. And the scientists of the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) have the same idea.

Fortunately for all of us, they've also come up with a very promising answer: a cleansing solution that can be used on the eviscerated birds in the poultry processing plant. The cleanser is made up of very low concentrations of lactic acid and potassium hydroxide. This could be extremely useful to poultry processors who want a practical, non-chlorine-based sanitizer, and it could also be a boon for processors in countries where chlorine rinses aren't used.

In the ARS studies, the poultry carcasses were spray-washed with differ-

THE CENTER FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Rogers Scholars graduate Josh Akers of Floyd County is returning to his home community with a renewed commitment to community service and determination to use his newfound confidence to step up into a leadership role.

Akers, 16, a junior at South Floyd High School, graduated from the first summer session of Rogers Scholars on July 2 at The Center for Rural Development in Somerset after completing the week-long program, which focuses on building critical leadership and entrepreneurial skills in participants as the region's next generation of leaders.

"The Rogers Scholars program is the greatest program in the state of Kentucky," he said. "It not only helps you meet new friends, but it boosts your self-confidence and makes you want to do things to give back to your community."

Akers, son of Andy Wayne and Teresa Akers of Wheelwright, said the program defined the role of a leader and provided valuable insight into how to develop those skill sets.

"As a leader, I need to encourage others to help strengthen my community, to make it better for the future," he said.

Rogers Scholars — The Center's flagship youth program — emphasizes the development of technological skills and builds in participants a sense of leadership, an entrepreneurial spirit, and a commitment to rural Kentucky.

"Rogers Scholars instills in young people the desire to serve their home communities and the region by assuming a leadership role, if they haven't already, as soon as they graduate from the program," Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center, said. "These students truly represent the best and brightest minds in our region and are the next generation of leaders in Southern and Eastern Kentucky."

Each graduate will receive an offer of a college scholarship from 14 participating colleges and universities in Kentucky, and one university in Tennessee.

During the week, Scholars participate in a series of leadership and team-building exercises; interact with some of the state's top business and professional leaders; complete a community service project; and receive professional development training in one of three declared majors: engineering, video production, and the newest offering, healthcare.

Thirty-six high school students—all rising juniors—graduated from the first session of Rogers Scholars, which was held during the week of June 27-July 2 on the grounds of The Center in Somerset, and another group of 37 students will join the program later on in July for the second and final summer session.

This is the largest group of graduates to attend Rogers Scholars in the history of the 12-year program.

"The Center is honored to share the Rogers Scholars experience, described by past graduates as an experience of a lifetime, with 73 outstanding high school students from within our 42-county primary service area," Jessica Melton, associate director of leadership and training for The Center, said. "These students have exemplified strong leadership skills and a commitment to our region."

"After spending a week with Rogers Scholars," Melton added, "I know great things lie ahead for Southern and Eastern Kentucky."

Funds available to assist with cooling costs

FRANKFORT — Gov. Steve Beshear announced last week that $4 million in federal funding is now available for summer cooling assistance through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), administered by the Cabinet for Health and Family Services. LIHEAP services are provided locally by the 23 Community Action Agencies through a partnership between the Department for Community Based Services (DCBS) and Community Action Kentucky.

"Already this summer we have experienced extremely hot temperatures across the state, which can cause serious health problems for vulnerable citizens, including those who may not be able to adequately cool their homes," said Gov. Beshear. "These resources will help protect Kentuckians during these dangerous temperatures."

The emergency funding is being provided to assist low-income families and the elderly who have the burden of increased energy costs because of the extreme heat experienced over the past few weeks. LIHEAP is a federal block grant program that provides states with annual funding to operate home energy assistance programs for low-income households. While LIHEAP funds are generally dedicated to winter heating needs, to the extent available funding and supplies allow, during periods of extreme or prolonged heat waves, states may elect to direct funds to heat relief. In addition to helping pay energy bills for low-income families and the elderly, some Community Action Agencies may also choose to use LIHEAP funds to provide air conditioners and fans to the elderly, disabled and to households with children younger than 6 years old.

The number of households seeking energy assistance reached record numbers for the third year in a row. This past year approximately 8.8 million low-income families nationally relied on LIHEAP to assist with the costs of heating and/or cooling their homes.

Individuals in Kentucky who want to determine if they qualify for assistance should contact the local Community Action Agency in their area.

Eligible households may receive a one-time payment to the household's cooling (electric) provider. The eligibility requirements are:

- Income must be at or below 130 percent of the federal poverty level;

- Pay home-cooling costs

To save the lives of children in Wheelwright the Inland Steel Company is spending $150,000 these year in a sanitation project which is being hailed by health authorities as an important factor in the study and reduction of the high mortality rate among infants of a large part of Kentucky.

Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club and the Prestonsburg Cooperative Businessman's Association seek location in the county of an aviation training school as a part of the national defense program now underway.

A gas well of 1,500,000 cubic feet capacity was drilled last week by Keathley and Allen on the Jarvis lease on Home Branch of Buffalo Creek.

Members of the Holiness Church of Hazard conducted services at Dinwood Sunday and brought with them an assortment of rattlesnakes and copperheads for a demonstration. A Hazard minister was bitten on the hand but apparently suffered nothing worse than swelling.

Prestonsburg split a twin bill with league leading Wheelwright at Fourth of July doubleheader at Gasco Park here, with one man out and one man on base, Junior Roark sent one out of the park to give Prestonsburg a 9-8 victory.

There died: F. L. Heinze, 56, of Prestonsburg, at his home; Walter Craft Hensley, 28, of Weeksville, in a mine accident; Dussella Yates, 82, of Martin, at Beaver Valley Hospital; Susan Patton, 23, of Martin, at Martin General Hospital.

will host public meetings on Mondays, at 9 a.m., at the junction of U.S. 23 and Rt. 80, on Water Gap Rd., behind the Trimble Chapel Church.

Meetings focus will be to offer information in regard to community resources available to women seeking freedom from drug abuse. Family members are also welcome to attend. The Hope initiative proposes to help women break free from addictive lifestyles to become self-respecting contributing members of society.
