EASTERN — The Floyd County Board of Education may soon have an option for providing instruction to students when inclement weather or other circumstances keeps the doors to schools closed.

Supt. Henry Webb addressed the board and those in attendance at a meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education at Allen Central High School on Monday, talking briefly about a suggestion from the Kentucky Department of Education to form a committee that will research ways to utilize computers and technology to continue instruction despite the fact that students are not in the classroom.

"We know that it will include using technology so teachers can provide assignments and instruction to students when they are at home and count that as an attendance day," Webb said. "The commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Education is open to looking at alternative kinds of ways to meet the needs of kids. The committee will be having conversations with the KDE about the feasibility of making this happen."

According to Webb, the committee to discuss the proposed idea will be formed this week and should meet soon to learn more about what the option will entail.

While Webb is excited about the idea, he also said there are plenty of questions that need to be addressed, including how to utilize the option for those students who don't have computers at home.

"It's a wonderful idea and a terrific option," Webb said. "It's just making it happen that is the next step. There are a lot of questions that we have to get answered before we go down that road."

PIKEVILLE — A flash flood that hit Pike County Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford, a five-term judge, said was something "unlike anything" he'd seen during his time in office, dropped nearly 10 inches of rain across Pike County Saturday.

The areas of Raccoon Creek and Harless Creek were hardest hit, according to statements released by county officials in the days following the flooding. Raccoon, it has been reported by emergency officials in Pike County, was close to being completely destroyed.

"It's awful," Rutherford said. "I've never seen anything like it in all my years of public service. 'It's a disaster if I've

PIKEVILLE — Relief efforts for flood victims in Pike County continue on a number of levels, including community, local, state and national, with President Obama recently issuing a disaster declaration.

Considering this outpouring of help, it should be no surprise, then, that the American Red Cross is directly in the middle of that effort.

According to Winn Stephens, public affairs officer for the Red Cross, across Pike County alone there were some 250 homes either destroyed or considered having experienced major damage.

"What they call 'major' is if there was 36 inches of water in the house," Stephens said.

PRESTONSBURG — The Floyd County Fiscal Court approved incoming funds through House Bill 1 Friday morning, authorizing them into a priority list covering 2010, 2011 and 2012.

"This list of projects that fall under that bill will be prioritized in the coming weeks," said Floyd County Judge-Executive R.D. "Doc" Marshall.

For 2010, the court gave authorization to Marshall to prepare proper documentation for $65,000 in funding to the Disabled American Veterans Post 128 for equipment and operating expenses, according to court records provided during Friday's meeting.

For the list of projects relating to 2011, the county voted for the same authorization on some 20 projects when funding becomes available through the Department of Local Government.

Among those projects were $100,000

County postal worker was indicted on theft charges and will now face those charges in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

According to the federal indictment, postal employee Amanda Reynolds is charged with three counts of theft of mail matter by an officer or employee.

Reynolds is scheduled to appear next in court tomorrow on the charges.

Those charges, spanning from Nov. 1 through Dec. 3, allege that Reynolds on three separate occasions took mail addressed to unnamed recipients, embezzling them while on duty as a postal worker.

The first count says only that the Floyd County worker took mail addressed to "S.B." The indictment claims Reynolds took this individual's mail between Nov. 3 through Nov. 18.

In the second count alleges Reynolds did the same again to a victim referred to only as "J.F." between Nov. 19 and Nov. 22, while the third count alleges that during the full period of time stated in the original charge of the indictment — Nov. 1 through Dec. 3 — Reynolds embezzled mail intended for "J.O."

The indictment against Reynolds was handed down by a federal grand on July 22. A motion for summons was issued for Reynolds that same day.

ever seen one."

The total damages are, at this time, unable to be determined, as the losses were so widespread.

And that loss, unlike the flooding that took place in May, claimed the lives of two county residents.

Reports from Kentucky State Police Post 9 in Pikeville say that Craig Morris, of Carrie, stopped on a bridge along U.S. 119 in the Zebulon community and got from his car to look over the northbound shoulder into the Raccoon area.

Police say Morris was attempting to check on a family member's residence when he fell from the bridge. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

The second person who officials have confirmed as having died during the flooding was Chloe Creek resident Donna Sue Walters.

On Sunday there were still several people reported as missing but by Monday, Pike officials released statements saying that all those who had been reported missing were accounted for.

The Christian Appalachian Project started training volunteers to help in victim recovery and cleanup Monday morning at the First Presbyterian Church in Pikeville, said Pike County Emergency Management Director Doug Tackett.

Tackett said also that volunteers were needed to help field calls at his office and that bottled water was badly needed at Kimper, Johns Creek and Millard Fire Departments to be distributed to those in need.

"We have established several water distribution points throughout the county," Tackett said. "All of them either have water or have water on the way."

Over 7,000 people were left without power after the flood but that number was growing smaller by Monday, officials said.

Gov. Steve Beshear toured the county Sunday with Rutherford to access damage following his declaration of a state of emergency for the county.

Our View

Rescue Squad deserves thanks from all of us

We could not be more proud of a group of people than we are of the volunteers who comprise the Floyd County Rescue Squad.

During the recent flooding in Pike County, the Rescue Squad pulled 36 people from the raging waters, some in their homes, some in their cars and some swept away. Surely, many of those could very well have perished had it not been for their actions.

Those who were rescued, and those who love them, certainly owe the Rescue Squad a debt of gratitude. And the chest of every Floyd Countian should swell with pride and admiration over the feats of these brave volunteers.

But we can also think of a more tangible way to offer thanks. Next week marks the 44th annual radio auction to support the Floyd County Rescue Squad. What better time is there than now for every Floyd Countian to give support to an organization that has proved its worth time and time again?

Guest Column

A legislative perspective

by REP. GREG STUMBO
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

For thousands of children attending school, the biggest challenge of the day may not be tied to the classroom, but to their health.

A little more than 18 months ago, the General Assembly's Program Review and Investigations Committee began taking a closer look at this issue, to see what more the state might do to help those students facing a chronic disease or a potentially life-threatening allergy.

Though exact numbers are hard to pin down, the committee's survey of the state's school districts estimates that they have about 32,000 children with asthma, 2,500 with epilepsy and 1,700 with Type 1 diabetes — the three most common chronic conditions in our schools — plus 4,600 children with severe allergies to such things as peanuts.

The report adopted by the committee concluded that Kentucky needs more statewide consistency when it comes to these students' healthcare. It recommended more oversight of school health services by the Department of Education and greater coordination between local health departments and the state's Department of Public Health.

The results of the committee's survey suggest that more day-to-day care is needed as well. It found that about 17 percent of our schools don't have ready access to a licensed healthcare provider at all, while nearly half have one who is there part-time or on-call. Only a little more than a third have one on-site throughout the day.

If the districts hired additional nurses to provide what they think is adequate coverage, it would take over 370 more working full-time in the schools, according to the committee. That would increase the number currently working by more than half, and take us below the 750 students-per-nurse ratio recommended by the National Association of School Nurses.

When it comes to severe allergies, the best medicine is often prevention. The vast majority of school districts said they would make sure cafeteria staff is aware if any student had a food-based allergy. About two-thirds of the districts would provide a nut-free classroom if necessary, and a fourth would eliminate nuts from the school altogether.

This year, the state is taking further steps to improve the health needs of our youngest citizens. During the legislative session that ended in April, for example, the General Assembly adopted a prominent new law to extend better insurance coverage to children diagnosed with autism.

Those whose families are enrolled in large-group health insurance plans will now be eligible for up to $50,000 annually between their first and seventh birthdays, and $12,000 annually from then until they turn 21.

In the United States, one child in 110 is diagnosed with autism, and a 2006 study said that this applied to nearly 2,400 children in Kentucky. Research proves that proper treatment — the earlier the better — can result in near-miraculous results. Without that care, other research shows that the societal cost for each child could top $3 million over his or her lifetime.

This cause is very dear to me and to our region. Recently, I was proud to host my annual fundraiser at Stonecrest to help families with their costs, and the Highlands Center for Autism is a renowned leader in providing world-class care. It is a true jewel for Kentucky.

In another healthcare-related matter, five- and six-year-old children entering public school this fall for the first time will now have to have a dental exam before next January, under a requirement that became law in 2008. This builds on other required health screenings for vision and immunizations.

The General Assembly made this possible to better tackle the

by REP. HUBERT COLLINS

Keeping DUI offenders off the road with breathalyzers linked to their vehicle's ignition system is not a new idea.

It's certainly not new in Kentucky, where judges have the discretion to order ignition interlock devices for DUI offenders. When judges cannot do, despite recent legislative attempts, is mandate use of the devices as part of every DUI sentencing in the state. And some—including the Kentucky Department of Public Advocacy, which represents about two-thirds of the state's DUI defendants—want to keep it that way.

Public Advocate Ed Monahan told the state legislative Interim Joint Commission on Judiciary in mid-July that his office has three main concerns about legislation that would make the device mandatory: the cost of the device (estimated at $70 per month per vehicle), the effectiveness of the device, and taking away judicial discretion on when the device is necessary. Most states that have made the device mandatory for DUI offenders include provisions in their law that make the device affordable for indigent clients, said Public Advocacy employee Damon Preston, but, he added, there is still the question of the device's effectiveness.

Preston said there is plenty of information as to when the system does not work, and said "When they don't work, it's a real consequence." Failure or ineffectiveness of the device could, for example, prevent someone from getting to work or making an emergency trip to the hospital, he said, whether that individual is the DUI offender or a family member.

A representative of the Canadian-based Traffic Injury Research Foundation who spoke to the committee before the Department of Public Advocacy described the devices as very effective. Robyn Robertson said the devices generally reduce recidivism or being re-arrested for DUI at a rate of between 35 percent to 90 percent and are considered the third most cost-effective way to prevent recidivism in some cost-benefit analyses.

Then there are situations like a case in Laurel County that Preston shared with lawmakers. In that case, Preston said, a sober man with an ignition interlock device on his vehicle was unable to start his engine because his device confused the scent of bologna sandwich on his breath with the smell of alcohol.

Sen. Ray Jones, a Pikeville-based attorney who has represented many families whose loved ones were involved in drug or DUI-related crashes, said he believes the state should require probationary licenses for those who have been convicted of DUI and are on probation or who have had a prior license suspension as a result of DUI. Stricter penalties for those who do not follow an order to use an ignition interlock device could also be imposed, he said.

Jones said he plans on drafting a piece of legislation between now and December of this year that would address the issue.

A 2010 state law that Jones was instrumental in passing will discourage drugged or drunk driving by creating a "per se" DUI offense allowing drivers to be charged with DUI if illegal drugs or certain prescription drugs not prescribed to the driver are found during a blood test. The law will also make it easier to prosecute a DUI offender who injures or kills someone in a car crash while driving while intoxicated.

Committee Co-Chair Sen. Tom Jensen of London asked Robertson if states which require use of ignition interlock devices are using the devices in lieu of suspending a person's license or in addition to license suspension. Robertson said suspension is limited when devices are used, in most cases, and suspension is short. She added that some states mandate the devices early "instead of letting (offenders) learn that they don't need a license to drive."

I am spending part of this week in Louisville, where I will Approximately 5,000 state legislators, legislative staff, business people, public interest groups and others were expected to attend the event, which is projected to have an $11 million economic impact for Kentucky.

I will share information about the conference with you next week along with information about happenings in Frankfort. Have a great week.

ongoing problems we have seen in dental care. In 2001, state health officials found that a little more than 40 percent of two- to four-year-olds had untreated dental decay, which was nearly double the national average. Another survey several years ago discovered that most of our counties don't have a pediatric dentist, and 15 only had one dentist for the county's total population.

All of these health concerns, not to mention the problems caused by seasonal and now swine flu outbreaks, underscore the importance of doing even more to improve the health of our children in school. Our task as a state is to make sure all of our students can focus on academics while knowing that care, should they ever need it, is always close by.

"With foundations included in that, you're talking about homes that saw four feet of water."

To put this number in perspective, neighboring counties also feeling the hit during the flash flooding, including Carter, Lewis and Rowan counties, collectively had some 50 homes that fell into those two categories.

In addition to the homes either destroyed or damaged, there were 90 other homes with minor damage. 85 homes considered affected and 32 homes still inaccessible as of Sunday morning. Again, Stephens said the "vast majority" of these were in Pike County as well.

The Red Cross currently has about 100 caseworkers on the ground in Pike County at this time, each of those traveling through the areas hardest hit, such as Harless and Raccoon Creek, but, at times and not surprisingly, finding no one home.

"It would be helpful if they had to evacuate, if they would go back and see if a caseworker had been there," said Stephens. "The workers will have left a note if the people were not at the home. If they would see if that note has been left and then contact us, it would go a long way in helping us continue to help these people as much as possible."

Extending help is the idea, said one caseworker.

"Now that all the damage assessments have been completed and the situation has stabilized, we're about to reach out to individual clients to determine their immediate disaster-related needs," said caseworker Alice Ferrell.

In addition, Stephens said if residents could return to their evacuated homes and see if a note was left, it would then let them know to contact the Red Cross for help.

The caseworkers will be traveling the area until at least Aug. 3, Stephens said, adding that it could go longer than that if needed.

The Red Cross is still operating a shelter at Pike Central High School where 26 residents spent the night Saturday.

Flood victims have also been encouraged to contact the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) if they have not already.

Funds

each for floor and other repairs for the Mountain Community Center and also various improvements to Minnie Park, including restrooms, sewer and others. Also, a project amount of $74,400 for the construction of the Mountain Sports Hall of Fame through the Wayland Historical Society.

Other large amounts of funding included the 2011 list was $75,000 for scholarships at the Highlands School for Autism and $50,000 each for a veteran's cemetery, the Floyd County Drug Court and repairs at the Big Sandy Regional Airport.

Of the 2012 project list, one of the largest items discussed Friday was $80,000 for the purchase of a county dump truck. Many of the project funding items for this list match those for the 2011 list while including some others such as $25,000 for the development of the Mud Creek Park and another $12,500 for maintenance and repairs at the Elkhorn Park just off Route 680.

Marshall said the county intends to hold numerous work sessions in approaching authorization and approval of these funds, adding that the priority lists and the projects that make them up will be funded as money becomes available through the Department of Local Government.

transition a child back to their home who has previously been removed," said John Shindlebower, the associate director of communications for Sunrise Children's Services.

Eligible families are referred by the Department of Community Based Services and will be contacted within 72 hours by trained specialists from Sunrise. These specialists will be available around the clock to work with the families, Shindlebower said. "The specialists will help teach skills, promote and model positive parenting and connect families with community services," he said.

The assistance will vary based on the needs of the individual families and can last anywhere from 4-to-27 weeks, Shindlebower added.

The program is envisioned as a "proactive step" to help families stay together and help them learn how to deal with situations in a "constructive, nonabusive manner." There is also added incentive the organization says that a state evaluation of the program suggests it can be a significant savings to Kentucky taxpayers.

The program is available to families across the commonwealth's 120 counties through contracts, which is how Sunrise came about providing the service to Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

For more information, contact Shindlebower at (502) 538-1007.

Allen Central preparing to host preseason volleyball event

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

EASTERN — The Allen Central High School volleyball program will host its annual preseason tournament/referee clinic on Saturday, Aug. 7 at the J.E. Campbell Arena. The preseason tournament will consist of 12 teams. Each team will play two matches. An 11-minute junior varsity set will be played between two 12-minute varsity sets, for a total of 35 playing minutes per match. Each set's score (varsity and junior varsity) will determine the results for placement in divisions.

Event officials hope to begin a new match every 40 minutes. Tournament play will be in accordance with standard KHSAA rules including rally scoring. A team only has to win by one point at the conclusion of time/match. The tiebreaker is set for one minute. One timeout per game and one minute between the varsity and JV change will also be implemented. The division championship team will receive a team plaque and medallions.

Teams set to join host Allen Central in the preseason invitational/referee clinic are Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Sheldon Clark, Betsy Layne, Belfry, Magoffin County, Pike County Central, Johnson Central, Pikeville, East Ridge and Phelps.

Schedule set for Soccer Rama

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

PRESTONSBURG — The schedule has been finalized for the 2010 Eastern Kentucky Soccer Conference Soccer Rama. The Eastern Kentucky Soccer Conference will host its annual Soccer Rama on Saturday, Aug. 7 at StoneCrest. Approximately 250 student-athletes from nine area high schools will be participating in the annual event.

The event will be held in two sessions. The morning to early-afternoon session will feature high school boys' soccer programs. High school girls' soccer teams will be involved in the late-afternoon session. The Soccer Rama will use a unique format which allows a team to play against four opponents in four 20-minute quarters. Using that format allows each team the chance to compete against multiple defenses and offenses in preparation for the upcoming season.

The preseason event will serve as a fundraiser for the Eastern Kentucky Soccer Conference. Although there is no entry fee, donations will be accepted. Funds from the event will hold the conference implement programs. The conference also participates in training programs to aid the area student-athletes in their pursuit of individual achievements. At the end of the high school season, the EKSC hosts an annual awards banquet ceremony to recognize team and individual accomplishments. The Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg will serve as the host site for this year's awards ceremony.

Pairings for the Soccer Rama follow.

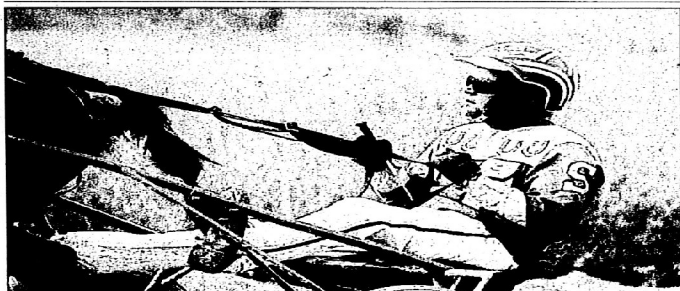

Boys' Soccer Rama pairings: Field 1 — Belfry-Paintsville, 9:55 a.m.; Belfry vs. Pikeville, 10:30 a.m.; Shelby Valley-Hazard, 11 a.m.; Johnson Central-Hazard, 11:30 p.m.; Paintsville-Jackson City, Noon; Paintsville-Pikeville, 12:30 p.m.; Prestonsburg-Shelby Valley, 1 p.m.; Jackson City-Shelby Valley, 1:35 p.m.

Pitino welcomes back troops

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE

University of Louisville men's basketball coach Rick Pitino made a positive impression on a group of our nation's troops earlier in the month.

Pitino joined Brig. Gen. Jeffrey Foley in greeting about 300 U.S. Army troops of the 35th Signal Brigade upon their return from an 11-month tour in Iraq. He boarded the plane in Augusta, Ga. and spoke to the troops, shook their hands when they exited the plane. Pitino had been evaluating student-athletes at the nearby Nike Peach Jam. The troops were returning to Fort Gordon.

"Coach Pitino is an awesome person for taking time out of his busy schedule to talk and shake hands with our returning soldiers," said Capt. Nathan Lepper, a member of the Signal Corps and a U of L graduate. "I am proud of his caring and patriotism and that he represents my University and the city of Louisville."

Grady promoted to Morehead State Associate Head Coach

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — Morehead State University men's basketball coach Donnie Tyndall announced Monday that he has promoted Matt Grady to the position of associate head coach.

Grady joined the MSU basketball program in July of 2009 and was a key factor in the Eagles success last season. He assists with all aspects of the program, including recruiting, scouting and game planning.

"I'm extremely excited and honored by my promotion to associate head coach," Grady said. "I greatly appreciate the opportunity and confidence that coach Tyndall has shown in me. I am going to continue to work hard every day to help coach Tyndall maintain the overall success that Morehead State University has had over the last few years."

Grady joined Morehead State with experience at the University of Louisville, the University of Cincinnati, New Mexico State, Murray State, and St. Joseph's.

He was most recently an administrative assistant on Rick Pitino's staff at Louisville. He also worked with Pitino at U of L as a program assistant in Pitino's first two years at the school in 2001-03. The Cardinals won 44 games during that span.

Grady is a native of Springfield, N.J., where he played alongside former Duke All-American and Chicago Bulls' star Jay Williams at St. Joseph's High School. Along with Williams, he also teamed with Golden State Warriors' standout Al Harrington when the two played for the New Jersey Roadrunners AAU club.

Warford ruled academically ineligible

by NATHAN HUTCHINSON
RICHMOND REGISTER

RICHMOND — Paul Warford's tumultuous career at the University of Kentucky has apparently come to an end.

First-year coach Joker Phillips said at SEC Media Days on Wednesday in Birmingham, Ala., that the former Madison Central standout did not accumulate enough credit hours to maintain eligibility.

Warford, a senior, played in 11 games last season at comeback and was expected to once again battle for a starting spot this year. The 5-foot-10, 206-pounder was a two-year starter and had 107 career tackles.

The Kentucky football media guide was released Wednesday and Warford is listed among "lettermen lost."

After a standout career at Madison Central, Warford jumped right into the lineup as a freshman in 2006. But, injuries and academic problems sidelined him the next two years.

Warford took a redshirt season in 2008 after he was ruled academically ineligible.

He also missed two games in 2007 because of a fractured collarbone and missed two more games last season because of a quad muscle strain.

Warford had two interceptions and 16 pass breakups during his career at UK. He played in three bowl games and recovered a fumble in the 2006 Music City Bowl.

Warford was a three-year starter at Madison Central as a running back and defensive back. He helped the Indians win three-straight district titles and was a part of two region runner-up teams.

Flood Aid radiothon tops $200,000 in donations

PIKEVILLE — The Pike Ministerial Association, Pikeville Medical Center and East Kentucky Broadcasting joined forces on Sunday for a five-hour radiothon to provide relief to victims of last week's flooding in Pike County. As of Sunday evening, the total of financial donations and pledges was $153,715.83, and the seven truck-loads of donated items was valued at more than $50,000 — making the grand total well in excess of $200,000.

The event began at 1 p.m. and was broadcast on the nine radio stations of East Kentucky Broadcasting. The radiothon was also streamed live on the internet from EKB station websites.

Donations ranged from a $5 bill donated by a 3-year-old to a $5,000 pledge from local attorney Gary C. Johnson. Donations and pledges came in from as far away as California and Hawaii.

Pikeville Medical Center employees donated more than $30,000 by way of payroll deductions, cash and unused vacation time.

At around 5 p.m. Sunday, PMC President and CEO Walter E. May announced that Pikeville Medical Center would match all donations made by its employees, pushing the financial total well over the $150,000 mark by the time the event concluded at 6 p.m.

The Pike Ministerial Association will distribute the funds and the material goods directly to victims of the flooding. Temporarily, flood victims seeking aid may call the President of the association, PMC Chaplain Randy Johnson at (606) 218-3915. A more permanent contact will be announced in local media at a later date.

All donations to Flood Aid are tax deductible. Checks should be made to the Pike Ministerial Association, and may be mailed in care of Pikeville Medical Center, 911 By-Pass Road, Pikeville, KY 41501.

State Department of Education reorganizes

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) is embarking on a new model of organization that is designed to make the agency more streamlined and efficient and to help provide services more effectively.

This reorganization proposal delineates a model that focuses on next-generation learners; next-generation schools and districts; support and services for all the agency's constituents; information and data services; and more. KDE began operating under this new structure on Monday, July 19, and an executive order from the Governor's Office formalizing the new organization will be forthcoming.

"This proposed reorganization addresses two major issues," said Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday. "First, this model will incur annual cost savings of approximately $500,000 in salaries with the elimination of higher-level positions and increase the efficiency of the agency. Second, this model enables the agency to directly address priorities related to Senate Bill 1 and other legislative mandates, Kentucky's Race to the Top application and the Kentucky Board of Education's strategic plan."

The highlights of this model include:

- a structure that provides more direct reporting to the commissioner of education from KDE offices

- a logical distribution of programs, projects and teams based upon KDE's core, guiding and support processes

- grouping of efforts that address common activities and issues

The proposed organizational hierarchy is as follows:

- The current structure of eight offices is streamlined to six offices, with a primary focus on the Kentucky Board of Education's strategic priorities.

- The number of operational divisions in KDE also is reduced by a third due to consolidation and redirection of strategic priorities.

- Some office, division and branch names have been changed to reflect the changes in priorities and work.

The attached organizational chart and listing give more specifics about the makeup of offices, divisions and branches.

Although office names have changed, and individuals within the agency may be assigned to new areas, KDE's mission is the same: to prepare all Kentucky students for next-generation learning, work and citizenship by engaging schools, districts, families and communities through excellent leadership, service and support.

The proposed new organizational model will enable the agency to target the areas of greatest importance and provide the services schools and districts need to ensure student success, while complying with additional budget reductions required by the biennial budget shortfall.

AG warns against price-gouging in wake of flooding

FRANKFORT — Attorney General Jack Conway last week put Kentucky businesses on notice that price-gouging will not be tolerated during times of emergency.

Gov. Steve Beshear declared a state of emergency for the state on July 21, after severe thunderstorms and deadly flash flooding in a number of Kentucky counties on July 17 and 20. Gov. Beshear also signed an executive order to implement Kentucky's price-gouging laws statewide.

"Gov. Beshear and I both want to ensure that Kentuckians who are suffering as a result of these deadly storms are not victimized a second time by unscrupulous businesses," General Conway said. "I will investigate and prosecute those who seek excessive profits during times of emergency."

Gov. Beshear's emergency declaration triggers several consumer protection measures that will remain in place for 30 days. As a result, the Attorney General is empowered to investigate and prosecute, where appropriate, those who sell gasoline, generators, building supplies, chain saws, hotel rooms and other necessary goods and services at an exorbitant price during a time of disaster.

Attorney General Conway launched a price-gouging investigation following Hurricane Ike and the subsequent wind storm that swept across Kentucky in September 2008. Investigators followed up on more than 2,000 emails and calls from across the Commonwealth on possible price-gouging complaints related to the storm. General Conway's price-gouging investigation resulted in recoveries of more than $100,000 against eight retail stations in several different Kentucky communities.

General Conway encourages anyone with specific information regarding possible price-gouging to contact the Office of the Attorney General at 1-888-432-9257 or to email price.complaints@ag.ky.gov.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

The queen of oils

by SANDY MILLER HAYS
AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

A few years ago, my husband and I were lucky enough to take a vacation in Crete, a truly magical place. We stayed in the ancient city of Rethymnon, which apparently was built on the site of an even older city called Rithymna, which flourished during the Mycenaean era between 1600 B.C. and 1100 B.C. Many of the buildings in Rethymnon, including the hotel where we stayed, date to the 1500s.

Mixed in with the unforgettable sights and scents of Rethymnon (especially at an eye-popping spice store located near a gorgeous Venetian archway) was the incredible experience of the foods there. Rethymnon is where I really came to love and appreciate the "queen of oils": olive oil, so light and lovely and flavorful, I was almost tempted to drink it from a glass!

Of course, if you're up on your health news, you know that virgin olive oil is a great choice for preparing meals or even dipping breads. But an international team that included a scientist from the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) has given us even more reasons to love the queen of oils: the impact on our genes.

The researchers already knew, from the findings of other studies, that consuming high-phenolic content virgin olive oil reduces certain pro-inflammation, pro-oxidant, pro-blood-clotting biomarkers in our bodies, compared with consuming low-phenolic content olive oil. But they wanted to find out if olive oil's beneficial effects could be the result of gene activity.

The researchers fed 20 volunteers — all of whom had metabolic syndrome — with two virgin-olive-oil-based breakfasts, one at a time. In case you're wondering what "metabolic syndrome" is, you probably know someone who has it. It's a combination of abdominal obesity, high triglycerides, high blood pressure and poor blood sugar control, all of which increase the risk of heart disease and diabetes.

One of the experimental breakfasts in the study contained virgin olive oil with high levels of phenolic compounds (398 parts per million), and the other breakfast contained olive oil that had lower levels of the phenolic compounds (only 70 parts per million). All the volunteers ate the same low-fat, carb-rich "background" diet during all phases of the study.

After the volunteers ate, the researchers tracked the expression of more than 15,000 human genes in the volunteers' blood cells. The results? Seventy-nine genes were "turned down" and 19 genes were "turned up" by the high-phenolic content virgin olive oil. Many of these genes affected by the virgin olive oil are linked to obesity, high blood-fat levels, type 2 diabetes and heart disease.

Most important of all: Several of the genes that were "turned down" by the virgin olive oil are known promoters of the internal inflammation that often accompanies metabolic syndrome. This could help us understand why there's a reduced risk of heart disease among people living in Mediterranean countries where virgin olive oil is the main source of dietary fats.

Another important element to include in your diet: vitamin D. As I've mentioned previously, vitamin D is easy to find in the foods we eat: it's in cheese, butter, cream and milk, and it's also in fish, oysters, many fortified breakfast cereals, and margarine.

New information from research funded by ARS supports the evidence that there's a link between vitamin D and the functioning of the brain, called "cognitive function." Cognitive function is measured by the level at which the brain is able to manage and use information to carry out the activities of daily life. Metabolic pathways for

HIGHLIGHTING HISTORY

Battlefield Corridor Project shines light on need for park

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

The recent Battlefield Corridor Project, an event designed to highlight the Civil War battles that took place at Middle Creek in Floyd County and Punched/Half Mountain in Magoffin County, was considered a success by those involved.

"It was also an effort to form closer ties between our respective counties and to acknowledge our common heritage and history," said Randall Risner, with the Battlefield Corridor Project. "But the main objective was for both counties to highlight the need for a Civil War park in south Magoffin County, and to explore, preserve and reenact the history of what took place there."

The group worked closely with officials in both Floyd and Magoffin County to promote the project.

"The effort proved fruitful and loads of fun for everyone who participated," Risner said. "We were able to forge strong ties with Freddie James and Sam Hatcher, of Floyd County Tourism, and we were able to work with the Friends of Middle Creek with whom we already have a good relationship. We also formed close ties with the South Magoffin Community Activists group."

The group gathered at the Middle Creek National Battlefield and were then escorted to the David School by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

"The school graciously opened their grounds to us where we had a picnic lunch in a relaxed social setting," Risner said. "This school and its surroundings are striking and memorable. The horses were particularly grateful for water, shade and rest on the picturesque grounds."

The group moved to South Magoffin Elementary School later in the day for food and entertainment, including horse and buggy rides.

The next Battlefield Corridor Project event is currently scheduled to take place in the fall.

Job Corps student earns top honors at Fine Arts competition

PHILADELPHIA - Jeremiah Darryle Robinson, a fine arts student from the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center in Prestonsburg, earned top honors in various categories at the 2010 Job Corps Fine Arts regional competition being held July 7-30 at Eastern University's Falls Center in East Falls, Pa.

Robinson won second place in the creative writing category.

Sixty students from Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia submitted a variety of materials in the artistic, design, and literary categories, including acrylic/oil, watercolor, pencil/ink/charcoal, pastel, mixed media, graphic design/printmaking, jewelry/fabrics, sculpture, pottery, photography and creative writing. The top four student entries in each category were selected, with first-, second- and third-place entries winning cash prizes.

"The competition serves as a shining example of the Job Corps' program's success with nurturing the artistic talents of these gifted students," said Dr. Francis Cole, Job Corps regional director in Philadelphia. "Our students consistently display amazing creative ability, as evidenced by the number of inquiries we receive each year from the general public about purchasing their artwork."

The Fine Arts regional competition is held each year to provide Job Corps students with an outlet for their artistic talents

Floyd County Deputy Herman Morris pursued Leck M. Tackett, 21, of Martin County, from Route 80, into Prestonsburg, Thursday night. He allegedly led Morris into Prestonsburg via US 23 and then allegedly attempted to elude the officer by driving into the Cliffside Apartments complex on Cliff Road.

On July 14, a Johnson County grand jury indicted Travis Hall of Prestonsburg and Jeff Stanley and Mark Stanley, both of David. They were arrested two weeks ago after a lengthy investigation by the Johnson County Sheriff's Department and Kentucky State Police into a string of burglaries and attacks on two Johnson County residents. The Prestonsburg Fire Department and Ambulance Service respond to the scene of one vehicle accident near the community of Dvale Wednesday. Twenty Years Ago

(July 25 & 27, 1990)

How Floyd County plans to handle the out-of-county, out-of-state dumping of hazardous or household garbage was one question addressed during the Friday meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court. The answer on the surface appears simple: regulate it. But, according to County Attorney Jim Hammond, this is not such an easy task.

The US House of Representatives last week approved a comprehensive education and labor funding bill that includes increases for black lung claimants and the Job Corps training program, according to Congressman Chris Perkins. "The fund is the only means by which thousands of former coal miners can receive compensation for the problems afflicting them," Perkins said.

In response to recent discussions with Kentucky Secretary of Transportation Mingo Bryant, Prestonsburg City Council at a special meeting, Tuesday, made a formal request that the Bert T. Combs Bridge be removed from the extended weight coal haul road system. This relieved Prestonsburg from the liability for the bridge, said City Administrator Fred James. Once the resolution is received and processed by the Department of Transportation, the bridge will be permanently closed to trucks weighing more than 80,000 pounds. Trucks over that weight will be rerouted to the Mountain Parkway (KY 114) to Salyersville and then over US 460 to Paintsville, where they may once again travel US 23 North. Unloaded trucks would be allowed to continue passage on the bridge.

In a month or two, all property in Floyd County will begin to get a long-desired second look. One of 25 counties in Kentucky, most of them in eastern Kentucky, that will experience a complete property reassessment over the next two years, according to State Property Tax Commissioner James Coffman. The reassessment, Coffman said yesterday from his Frankfort office, "doesn't mean every parcel will go up in valuation. Some may go down, others will stay the same." The commissioner said the reassessments in the 25 counties are being made possible through additional funding approved by the General Assembly in its recent session with the extra $6 million in state monies, revenue officers can go into each county for a systematic reevaluation of property.

Except for the operations of one contractor, all construction of new KY 80 in this county has been at a standstill for a week, with some 300 employees of United Steel Workers on strike. Science vitamin D have been found in the parts of the brain involved in planning, processing, and forming new memories.

In a study with more than 1,000 participants aged 65 to 99, the researchers evaluated the associations between measured levels of vitamin D in the blood and neuropsychological tests.

The researchers found that only 35 percent of the study participants had sufficient vitamin D levels, but those who had it scored better on the tests, particularly on measures of "executive performance" such as cognitive flexibility and reasoning.

The take-home message: Keep the "queen of oils" and sufficient vitamin D in your diet as a little extra insurance toward a healthy and independent future!
