

County To Close Three Landfills

At the direction of the Non-Hazardous Management Section of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Floyd county this week took the first steps toward closing three of its four solid waste landfills.

The fiscal court conferred Monday with the Hill Engineering Company, Prestonsburg, which will do the engineering work and prepare plans for their closing.

To be closed are the Mud Creek, Turkey Creek and Stumbo Hollow landfills. At the same time, work will be done to keep the Middle Creek landfill open.

Besides asking the fiscal court for a time schedule on the closing of three of the landfills, Caroline Patrick Haight, chief of the non-hazardous management section, asked the court to apply for a permit for the Middle Creek site and to plan for the dumping of waste at that point.

Elimination of the three landfills obviously places a strain on the already overtaxed waste disposal system in the county because of the distances waste will have to be hauled. County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said of the situation, "We are looking at other alternatives."

This situation, she said, is why the county recently filed for a $200,000 impact grant—money which would give the county the resources with which to develop new and acceptable waste disposal sites.

Meanwhile, the search for one or more sites acceptable to the state continues with little or no success.

Red Cross Chapter Is Granted Reprieve

Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, has won a reprieve from the "death sentence" which hung over it because of a lack of operating funds, thanks to the four-day radiothon staged last week by Radio Station WPRT.

Dave Stephens, Jr., station manager, announced Monday morning that pledges and contributions received during the four days total $14,420.

At the same time, Mrs. Sallye L. Clark, executive secretary of the chapter, announced that already all but $1278.84 of all pledges had been paid.

Mrs. Clark had announced that $8,000 was needed to forestall the closing of the office here permanently. The closing date had been set for Monday, this week. Had it closed, she said, any attempt to reopen would have been in vain.

County Was Not Shortchanged On Gifted Program, Clark Says

Suspicion on the part of some Floyd countians that the county may have been shortchanged in the distribution of state funds for gifted and talented schoolchildren are groundless, an official of the State Education Department said this week.

The Floyd school district's proposal for funding under the Gifted and Talented Program was recently turned down. The proposal had been conceived and drafted by a group of parents and teachers from the Clark, McDowell, Prestonsburg and Melvin grade schools. Fifty of the 103 proposals submitted under the program were funded. The Floyd proposal is said to have ranked 77th.

Some concern was expressed by members of the Floyd group when, two weeks prior to the May 15 deadline, the application period was extended by two weeks, and the upper limit for funding was raised from $20,000 to $50,000. Some speculated that this was done at the request of some of the larger school districts, and feared that it had put smaller districts at a disadvantage. It was also rumored that insufficient applications had been received prior to the original deadline, and that this may have prompted the extension.

Joe Clark, coordinator of the Gifted and Talented Program, which is administered by the state education department's division of program development, said this week that the decision to raise the funding ceiling was made without regard to the number of applications received and that, if any school districts were disadvantaged by the decision, they were those that had only two weeks to re-draft their proposals in light of the new funding limit. The Floyd school district did not re-draft its proposal.

The ceiling stood at $50,000 last year, the first year of the program's operation, Clark said, and it had originally been

Have a great urge to write President Carter, just to tell him that we're having the dickens of a time getting the thermometer in this office down to 78, our air-conditioner being somewhat in the same fix as Sky Lab.

TWO-PART ANSWER

While I was dwelling at some length on the matter of earning your bread by the sweat of the brow, hands, feet, and so on, "Snow" White asked what I did in the days before air-conditioning. That was easy. I (a) found the darkest shade around and did nothing, or (b) went fishin'.

IT DOESN'T HAVE TO HAPPEN

Now this Dutch Elm disease has come home to me. The big tree, nobody knows how old, has been there all the years I've been around these parts, and I treated it as carelessly as I've treated some of my old friends: I know they're there and that I enjoy them, but take them for granted—they'll be around when I need them. So it was that the great, old tree that graced the back of our lot was half-dead before I learned that another old friend was passing from the scene. Nothing to do now but watch it die, or surrender it to ax and saw.

Other elms here are dying. More will die unless they get immediate attention. I'm not going into details, but there is a (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

111 Summoned for Jury Duty

Sixty-nine county residents were notified by mail June 25 to appear for jury service here, but the response was so low that 42 more names were drawn from the jury drum to be summoned by the sheriff in order to complete the panel, Monday morning.

Of the total of 111 notified, 36 jurors were qualified and accepted. Jurors named are to serve in both circuit and district courts, possibly till September. Names and addresses of those summoned follow:

Flood Insurance Study for P'burg To Be Discussed

The Office of Federal Insurance and Hazard Mitigation (formerly Federal Insurance Administration) has announced that it has completed a detailed study of flood areas in Prestonsburg as part of the community's involvement in the National Flood Insurance Program.

This announcement is intended to notify all interested persons of the completion of the Flood Insurance Study so they may have an opportunity to attend a public meeting to be held tomorrow (July 19) at 10 a.m. in the City Hall here.

The study was performed for the Office of Federal Insurance and Hazard Mitigation (FIHM) by the Huntington District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

According to Glenn C. Woodard, Jr., regional director, Office of Federal Insurance and Hazard Mitigation, Atlanta Regional Office, the purpose of the study is to examine and evaluate flood hazard areas which are developed or which are like to be developed and to determine (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Kitchen Blast Here May Cost Up to $200,000

The Kentucky law which provides that property taxes may not rise by more than 4 percent per year will cost the Floyd school district $70,000 this year, Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr., said this week. The reason is that, given the annual appreciation in property values, the tax rate must be rolled back each year in order to keep total tax receipts within the legal limit.

Because of this legislation and the fact that the Floyd county tax assessment shows a substantial increase, the county school tax rate this year will be rolled back to 20.5 cents per $100 valuation. The state, however, will collect its standard 50 cents and will return the funds to the counties.

The added financial squeeze comes at a time when the school board is under orders from the state attorney-general to balance its budget and when repairs expected to cost around $200,000 are under way on the school's kitchen, destroyed earlier this year by a gas explosion.

A contract for the repair of the kitchen was let last week to the Barco Co., of Lexington, on a cost-plus basis. The school board will purchase materials for the rebuilding, and the construction firm has been guaranteed $25,000 above construction costs.

Repairs to the roof of Prestonsburg High are almost complete, Grigsby said. Completion of the task will leave only 10 to a dozen school roofing jobs to be done in the school district, he added, compared to the 50 awaiting repair when the school board began addressing the problem four years ago. Next to be repaired are the John M. Stumbo, Wayland and Bonanza grade schools.

Court Hears Baril Trial

The trial of Tony Greg Baril began in circuit court here Monday. The 18-year-old youth has been charged with the armed robbery and murder of Earl Chester Porter at the TCT truck stop on the US 23 bypass at Katy Friend August 14 last year.

Porter's body was found in the early hours that morning, slumped in a pool of blood inside the attendant's booth at the self-serve gas station, where he was employed as night clerk. The victim was found to have been stabbed 34 times, mainly in the upper back.

Police and other witnesses called by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen have testified to having seen a bloody footprint at the scene of the crime that later proved to match a canvass shoe worn by Baril at the time of his arrest the following day. Bloodstains on the shoe were also said to be of the same type as the blood of the victim.

Testimony was also given to the effect that Baril, shortly after the crime, had apparently washed his shoes and the cuffs of his jeans in a creek which he had to cross on his return to his Abbott Creek home. While the defendant has denied having worn a shirt at the time, a wet shirt was said to have been found on an embankment near the creek a week after the slaying occurred.

Clarksburg Firm Buys Cable TV; To Add Channels

The Flanery & Dingus cable television system passed last Thursday from the hands of Dave M. Flannery and William J. Dingus, its founders, with its purchase by the Mid-West Corporation, of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Dingus retired last week, but Flannery, his partner for almost 29 years, remains as location manager of the business.

Amount involved in the transaction, which was completed at Ashland, was not stated. The new owners plan satellite operation and the addition of three channels to those now in transmission, it was said. The purchase includes the electronics repair department operated by the firm.

The system has approximately 2,000 subscribers in Prestonsburg and vicinity. It had its beginnings after its founders had first been in radio repair work after returning to the county from Army service during World War II.

Conservative, and Proud of It

Elmer Castle relaxes in his room at Mountain Manor. The 88-year-old Martin countian takes at least one daily "constitutional" in downtown Prestonsburg.

Elmer Castle is a conservative, and proud of it. The way he sees it, it's a matter of simple logic: What people want most of all is freedom; American democracy is the freest system the world has known; and conservatism means keeping the American system intact.

He is a Republican who thinks Ronald Reagan would make a fine president, and he liked Richard Nixon too, before he was "led into trouble by the people around him." He didn't care much for Nixon's overtures to China, however, and he thinks returning the canal to Panama is a foreign-policy disaster.

It is not that he sees no merit at all in Panama's claim to the canal, or in China's communist revolution, or in any of the other foreign or home-grown surrections—it's just that he doesn't like stretching the fabric of American society.

With views as strong as his, it might seem that Castle is a dogmatic man. He is not. More than any dogma, he values his friends. And having friends, he says, is the result of "treating people right."

"I've never stolen a penny from anyone in my life," says the man who has spent nearly all his life in business, "and I've worked hard." If there's a formula for a long, happy life, he thinks, then honesty and hard work are the main ingredients.

On that subject he speaks with some claim to expertise. Elmer Castle is an alert, satisfied and remarkably agile 88 years old. Born in Inez, March 14, 1891, he grew up to become a teacher at Inez grade school, marrying a fellow-teacher, Harriet Stafford, in 1913.

The war changed all that. In 1918, Castle recalled, they were calling up teachers all over. He and Harriet moved (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Observe 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Clark were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary May 20 with a reception held at their home in Nova, Ohio by their children and grandchildren. Charlie and Clara G. Clark were married May 11, 1939 at Harold, their home town.

Sharing the occasion with them were their 10 children: Milford, Tolva and Larry, of Ashland, Ohio, Hillard, of Hayesville, Ohio, Charles, R., of New London, Emma Lou Sanders, of Nova, Ohio, Anna Sue Lilly, of Medina, Ohio, Pauline Jenkins, of Nankin, Ohio, Jewell D. Arms, of Shiloh, Ohio, and Linda, who is still at home. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have 22 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Many friends and relatives joined them on their anniversary. Emma Tackett, of Harold, Mrs. Clark's mother, and who will be 78 years old in September, was unable to attend.

MEDICARE PREMIUMS RISE 50 CENTS STARTING SATURDAY

WASHINGTON—About 27.1 million elderly and disabled Americans will be paying an extra 50 cents a month in Medicare premiums. The premium will now be $8.70 a month, up from $8.20.

The program is expected to pay $9.6 billion in physicians' fees in the year ahead.

Requests More Time For Mine Controls

Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus has asked Congress to allow an additional seven months for submission and approval of state programs to control the adverse surface effects of coal mining.

The request for a change in the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 was presented at oversight hearings before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

"The Administration will support my proposal," Andrus said in a statement read to the committee by Walter N. Heine, director of Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM). "However, I want to strongly emphasize that any other substantial changes in this important piece of legislation (the surface mining act) will not be acceptable to this Administration."

In releasing the statement Andrus said, "We realize some states are having difficulty in preparing their program submissions, and the problems are not necessarily their fault. So an extension of the deadlines is only fair and right. Meanwhile, the interim regulations will remain in full force and effect until a final program is approved, or a Federal program put into place."

If approved by Congress, coal-producing states would have until March 3, 1980 (rather than the present Aug. 3, 1979 deadline) to finalize their applications to take the lead in enforcing the Act. And the June 3, 1980 deadline for Federal approval of the State's proposed program would be extended to Jan. 3, 1981.

With an approved program, states would take the lead in enforcing regulations to insure that coal is mined in an environmentally sound fashion, and that mined-out areas are restored. A Federal enforcement effort will be implemented in states which do not have an approved program.

to West Virginia where, for the next three years, he built houses for a coal company. By then, Inez was looking up again—a new mine was opening up in nearby Himmlerville (as Beauty was still known), and Castle returned to open a grocery store. For 10 years, he doubled as the Himmlerville postmaster.

The grocery business, as it happened, outlived the mine. But by 1939 Harriet had developed asthma and her doctor ordered a change of climate. The couple made their home in Asheville, North Carolina, and they traveled—to every state in the nation, to Canada, to Mexico. "But we grew homesick," Castle remembers, so they returned to eastern Kentucky—to Paintsville, where he would work the next 25 years for Maggard's Furniture Store.

After his retirement in 1968, Castle and his wife returned to Inez, where Harriet died in 1976. They had been married 63 years. Castle would have been content to spend his remaining years in Inez, surrounded by family and friends, except that hardening of the arteries and a couple of dizzy spells signaled the need for more constant nursing care. He lives at Mountain Manor, in Prestonsburg.

"I've enjoyed every minute of my 88 years," the old man says, leaning forward on his cane for emphasis, "and I hope to enjoy whatever time remains to me. I am perfectly satisfied with my life." It is surely an uncommon, perhaps even an implausible, account for anyone to give of his life. But Elmer Castle renders it with some conviction.

for the Phelps area, Corps of Engineers personnel at Dewey Dam filled two Army tankers with water at the Pikeville Community Action Center and had them in service at Phelps by 10 a.m. Monday.

"The biggest problem we have is food and water," John Phillips, assistant Pike county judge executive, said.

The flooding was described as worse than the flood of 1977 that killed four persons and did widespread damage.

One official said 300 persons were still unable to return to their homes and estimated damage in his state at $7 million to $8 million.

Across the border in Virginia, where Red Cross officials estimated 50 homes were destroyed and 300 were damaged, about 200 families were stranded because of washed out roads and bridges.

"People are staying with relatives, in campers, vans and some stayed in shelters," said Magistrate Wade C. Justice, of Pike county.

Phillips said many of the homes in the Phelps area are served by wells and he predicted that at least 1,000 wells will have to be pumped out and chlorinated.

The Salvation Army sent three mobile canteens to Pike County and the Red Cross established a shelter at Phelps High School.

In Buchanan county, Va., Red Cross worker Bill Meador said officials estimated that 400 to 450 families were hit by the flooding early Sunday, but about half were able to return to their homes after the water receded.

THOUGHTS TURN HOMEWARD

My friend, James Morell, sends me a small portion of a map of Texas which shows Hell's Half Acre, skirted by Devil's Backbone. And this expatriated Kentuckian writes:

"Have often thought about the comparison between Hell's Half Acre (barren and ugly) and Kingdom Come in Kentucky (fertile and beautiful)."

WANTS COMPLETE RETURNS

Mrs. Dorothy Porter, of Westland, Mich., makes this request toward the end of a very pleasant letter:

"Also, please, next year would you publish ALL the election results? I never did find out who was officially elected Poke Warden."

THE LOWLY MILKWEED

And this from a friend who prefers to remain anonymous:

"Take some time from your cluttered desk to smell the blossoms on the milkweed, this July. There must have been fifty monarchs hovering over a bunch of them behind our house today. If people realized the importance of the milkweed to the monarch's life cycle, I do not think they would be so ruthless in destroying the plant, unsightly though it is."

flood elevations for those areas. Flood elevations will be used by the community to carry out flood plain management objectives of the National Flood Insurance Program. The elevations will also be used as the basis for determining the appropriate flood insurance premium rates applicable for new buildings and their contents, as well as determining the rates to be used for additional amounts of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

A representative of the Office of Flood Insurance will discuss the results of the flood insurance study and outline specific actions needed to be taken by the local government in order to continue eligibility in the National Flood Insurance Program.

All interested residents and property owners who might be affected by the study results are encouraged to attend the July 19 meeting.

A contract has been awarded to King School Equipment Co. for the construction of a new science laboratory at Prestonsburg High School. A federal grant of $7990 has been received for the project.

At the regular meeting of the school board last Wednesday, representatives of the Clark Elementary School PTA sought the board's recommendation of an application the group is making to the Economic Aid Board for funds to improve the school's recreational facilities. The organization hopes to continue upgrading the ballpark, build a basketball-volleyball court, and pave a parking area at the school.

While commending the group's efforts, Grigsby said this week that the group did not need the school board's recommendation and that the board was, in any case, not authorized to make such a recommendation. Grigsby also serves on the Economic Aid Board.

The improvements sought by the PTA represent the second phase of an ambitious plan designed with the help of University of Kentucky architecture and forestry students and built largely with donated labor and materials. Extensive grading has been done and a play structure and swings have been erected, completing the plan's first phase.

In a letter to the school board, Clark PTA president Hilda McKinney noted that the organization had recently spent $1223 for desks and chairs at the school, and $2315 for a Systems 80 Math program, and requested reimbursement by the school board for at least some of the expenditures. Representatives of the parent-teacher organization say the group has raised about $10,000 for school improvements over the past two years, which the school board has matched with grants totalling about $3000.

Regulations governing the Economic Aid Board, which disburses some of the coal severance tax receipts, have recently been changed to include recreational facilities on school property as eligible for funding. The EAB has allocated $35,000 for a recreational area to be developed on the play ground of the John M. Stumbo school on Mud Creek, to be used by the school during school hours and by the general public at other times. In seeking the school board's endorsement for Clark's EAB application, Mrs. McKinney noted the extensive use of the playground by the general community after school hours.

In response to questions raised at the meeting by representatives of People for Better Schools, school officials assured the group that each school had enough textbooks for all its students. Textbook supervisor, Ulysses Horn, said this week that he cannot understand the complaints voiced by some parents that their children are lacking textbooks. "We have an ample supply of textbooks for both the grade schools and high schools, he said.

Jurors Fail To Agree On Akers Damage Suit

The jury was unable to reach a verdict last week in the case of Everett Akers, Sr., versus Triple Elkhorn Mining Co. and RDK Coal Co. Akers had asked for compensation for alleged blasting damages to his TV tower and residence at Finance Hollow.

Attorneys for the litigants were said to be still trying to work out a settlement this week.

Mrs. Edna Baril, the defendant's mother, testified that her son came home around 11:30 on the night of the slaying, shirtless, and with his shoes and trouser cuffs wet. Mrs. Baril identified the shoes as those exhibited in court as matching the bloody footprint at the crime scene. Her son told her, she said, that he had stepped into the nearby creek to re-start his van which had stalled there. He left home again around midnight, Mrs. Baril testified, returning around 12:30 a.m. He was upset, she said, and told her that Chester Porter, who was known to the family, had been shot or stabbed. Mrs. Baril said she had known her son owned a knife, which she described as a hunter's knife.

Former State Trooper Tom Shelton and State Trooper Doug Asher testified that Baril arrived at the TCT truck stop around 1:30 a.m., some time after the slaying had been discovered, and appeared intent on approaching the attendant's booth, ostensibly to change a dollar bill. The state police said they found water on the floor of Baril's van, suggesting that it had recently been washed out. Cross-examined by defense attorney Gary Johnson, Asher admitted that he had seen no signs of blood or water on the van's steering wheel, dashboard, or seat.

State Detective Keith Scott told the court that he had found several oil cans in a trash barrel by the TCT gas pumps the morning of the crime. The cans, he said, appeared to have been opened with a large knife. He also said that a money box in the attendant's booth had been overturned, scattering coins on the floor. Scott said the defendant had told him under questioning a day later that he had been at the truck stop around 11 p.m. the night of the crime, had bought gas and oil, and had thrown the spent oil cans in the back of his van. A subsequent search of the Baril residence, Scott said, turned up two oil cans apparently opened in the same manner as those found at the truck stop.

Cross-examined by Johnson, Scott said that two $50 bills and an uncashed check for $87 had been found in the slain man's wallet. Johnson took Scott to task for not having included this and other information in a statement given to the defense attorney and purporting to be an account of Scott's investigation of the defendant.

Defense and prosecution attorneys also clashed over a statement allegedly made by Mrs. Baril to Detective Scott concerning what her son had told her on his second return home the night of the slaying. Prosecution attorney Allen sought to show that Mrs. Baril had said in her statement to Scott that her son told her "his friend had been stabbed to death at the TCT station and robbed." Mrs. Baril denied in court having made the statement. What her son told her, she said, was that "Chester Porter had either been shot or stabbed to death." At the time referred to, it was still generally believed that the victim had been shot, owing to the presence of a bullet hole in the window of the attendant's booth.

Baril has previously explained that he left his footprint at the TCT station after he had come upon Porter already dying of his wounds. He has claimed that, becoming frightened that he would be connected with the slaying and not knowing if the killer was still in the vicinity, he had fled and had thrown the knife in his possession over a nearby bridge.

The case, which is being tried before Judge Hollie Conley and a jury of four women and eight men, continues today (Wednesday).

Another murder case is scheduled to be tried in circuit court next Thursday, July 26. Elder Lee Hamilton has been charged in that case with the murder of Charles Hatler Hamilton on Mud Creek last year. The case was originally tried earlier this year, and resulted in a hung jury.

Members of the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association prepare for their annual picnic at Dewey Dam Recreational Area Saturday.

Twenty-six families from five counties converged on the Dewey Dam recreational area Saturday for the annual picnic of the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association.

The organization, which is made up mainly of families who have attended prepared childbirth classes, promotes family-centered health care in the Big Sandy area. The group is best known for its reliance on education and family support, rather than drugs, for safe childbirth in normal circumstances. Commonly known as "natural childbirth," the method favors regular bed deliveries, close attention to the preferences of the mother, and participation of the father in the delivery.

During the business meeting that preceded Saturday's picnic, the following board members were elected: Leatha Kendrick (Floyd Co.), president; Marian Yarus (Pike), vice-president; Jean Rosenberg (Floyd), secretary; Bonnie Hale (Floyd), treasurer; Nell Valentine (Magoffin), Billie Turner and Eilene Recktenwald (Floyd), Betty Beverly and David and Terry Lusk (Johnson).

Membership in the organization is open to anyone interested in family-centered maternity care and support of new families.

Shooting Case Ends In Dismissal after Fine for Contempt

One man was fined $200 for contempt of court, a warrant was issued for the complaining witness, and yet the first degree assault charge against Hillard "Skeeter" Cecil for the wounding of Virgil Daniels ended in circuit court here recently with the dismissal of the case after Daniels had decided he did not want to prosecute.

Chester Layne drew the contempt fine after Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had received word from jurors that Layne had, according to Judge Conley's order, "requested that they help the defendant." The contempt order said "at least six persons reported to the court" and that Layne admitted he spoke to four. There was no attempt at bribery.

Layne said later that he spoke to the jury members before they had been empanelled for the trial of Cecil and that he merely expressed the hope that the defendant would come clear.

Meanwhile, Judge Conley issued a warrant for the arrest of Daniels after the complaining witness in the case had left the courtroom and failed to appear to testify. When Daniels did return he announced that he did not want to prosecute, and the case was dismissed. Cecil was accused of wounding Daniels last August with a shotgun blast.

One Claimed as Water Tank At Jenkins Bursts, Sunday

One person was killed at Jenkins last Sunday afternoon when a mountaintop water tank burst, dumping 500,000 gallons of water on the downtown area of the town.

The sudden wave of water, which residents said lasted about 10 seconds before running into nearby Elkhorn Creek, caused injuries to a second person and destroyed or damaged four homes, a grocery store and several automobiles.

The body of Dr. Tom M. Perry, 82, was discovered in the rubble left in his basement after his home washed away. The water tank was located above Perry's home on U.S. 23, the main street in Jenkins.

The gush of water also destroyed a home and grocery store owned by Jimmy Stallard. Two other homes, one of which was unoccupied, were damaged.

Stallard's wife, Alice, was hospitalized with a leg fracture, according to Harold Davis, Jenkins city police dispatcher.

The incident occurred about 5:30 p.m. Several residents reported hearing a noise—like an explosion—and then seeing a wave of water rush down the mountainside.

Mrs. Nona Polly, co-owner of a local funeral home near the Perry residence, said everything in the path of the water was destroyed. "I'd say it all happened in about 10 seconds," she added. She said one of her employees watched the water come down the mountain and described the wave "as high as the trees."

She said the water dispersed when it hit Elkhorn Creek and caused no further apparent damage as it moved downstream.

The tank, a steel structure reportedly built on a stone and earth foundation, was six or seven years old, according to Davis. He said it had been unused for several years and that the city had recently added it to its system of tanks for storing city water. The tank had been in use about two months, and was full of water, he said.

Davis described the tank as a "huge thing," adding, "I'll tell you how you can figure it (the amount of water in the tank). These gasoline trucks you see on the highway average about 10,000 gallons of gasoline, so it would be about 50 of those trucks."

Davis said the city has several other tanks located around town which are older than the ruptured tank. "Those tanks are in good shape," he said. "This one was just a dud."

He said the ruptured tank had been unused because of the engineering problems involved in pumping water up to it.

Davis said the water supply to the community of about 2,500 was not seriously affected.

Dr. Perry, a widower, was a retired physician who had practiced in Jenkins since the days it was a coal camp for Bethlehem Steel Co. His body was taken to the Polly and Craft Funeral Home.

Mrs. Conley Appointed 2-County ASCS Director

Graham Burchett, chairman of the Floyd County ASC Committee, announced this week that Mrs. Sharon Conley has been appointed county executive director of the Floyd and Martin county ASCS offices.

Mrs. Conley was named to the position after completing a six-month training period in ASCS programs and ASCS basic management training in Jackson, Miss. and Nashville, Tennessee. She began working with ASCS in February, 1974. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Boggs, of Garrett.

Mrs. Conley and her husband, Michael, make their home in Hindman.

To All Opposed To Job Corps Center

All Floyd County residents interested in opposing the placement of the juvenile offender facility planned for the Shoe Factory in the Goble-Roberts Addition are urged to tear out and complete the petition below and mail it to: Box G31, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

These petitions will be brought to the attention of the appropriate officials with the demand that the facility be placed elsewhere.

We, the undersigned citizens of Floyd County, Kentucky do by this petition demand that the Prestonsburg City Council rescind its Resolution approving the placement of a work facility for juvenile offenders at the Shoe Factory in the Goble-Roberts Addition of Prestonsburg.

We believe such a facility will be injurious to the peacefulness and safety of the residents living nearby, will increase traffic and the likelihood of crime, and generally constitute a public detriment to the well-being of the area without producing any tangible benefit to the community whatsoever.

We will actively oppose the re-election of any Mayor or Council member voting for putting this project in Goble-Roberts.

66 To Get Training To Build or Rebuild Low-Income Housing

About 1,000 rural Appalachian residents will get better housing through a joint federal effort for which the U.S. Department of Labor is contributing $488,000 to train 66 construction workers in the region.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Ernest G. Green announced that the training contract went to Human-Economic Appalachian Development (HEAD) of Berea, for an on-the-job training program at eight construction sites in Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, and Tennessee.

The trainees, all economically disadvantaged, will help build 34 new houses and rehabilitate 120 others to house about 1,000 low-income people.

The project is in conjunction with a program that finances housing construction costs with other agencies such as the Farmers Home Administration, Housing and Urban Development, Civil Defense, Disaster, and state housing programs.

Under the contract, 51 persons will receive training as worker trainees, and 15 will be trained as supervisors. Training will last 36 weeks and be in basic carpentry, plumbing, and electrical work.

Training will be at Frontier Housing Inc., Morehead; Interfaith of Bell County Building Corp., Pineville; Kentucky Mountain Housing Development Corp., Manchester; Home of Powell-Estill (HOPE), Irvine; Mountain Women's Exchange, Williamsburg; Tri-County Housing Corporation, Pennington Gap, Va.; Tug Valley Recovery Center, Williamson, W. Va.; Scott-Morgan Community Development Corp., Deer Lodge, Tennessee.

SYRIANS EXECUTE 15

DAMASCUS—Syria last Thursday executed 15 persons convicted of a string of crimes ranging from murder and sabotage to provoking sectarian strife in a crackdown on the right-wing Moslem Brotherhood.

Consumer Comments

Robert F. Stephens
Attorney General

If you are unable to settle a consumer complaint, then you may take the law into your own hands and sue in the Small Claims Division of District Court.

The Kentucky Small Claims Court became effective Jan. 2, 1978. It will assist consumers and businesses in settling disputes of $500 or less.

The Small Claims Division was designed so that consumers or businesses with claims of $500 or less can file a claim or defend themselves without the assistance of an attorney. However, you can employ an attorney to handle your case if you desire.

The procedures used in the Small Claims Division Court are simple and formal. The two parties involved in the dispute go to court at the designated time and tell their sides of the disagreement to the judge. The judge listens to each side, then makes a decision based on the law governing the facts presented. No juries are used in the Small Claims Division.

To file a claim in the Small Claims Division follow these steps:

- (1) Go to the office of the circuit court clerk in the county where the defendant lives or does business. If the dispute arose from a sale made in your home, you can sue in the county in which you live.
- (2) Complete the Small Claims' Complaint Form which the clerk will provide. You will need to supply the following information:
 - a. Your name and address, and the defendant's name and address;
 - b. A short, simple statement telling why you are suing;
 - c. The amount of money you are suing for.
- (3) The clerk will assign the case a number and set a date and time for the hearing before the judge. The hearing will be held within three-six weeks after the clerk notifies the defendant of your suit.
- (4) The clerk will send a copy of your complaint to the defendant by certified or registered mail. If the clerk cannot reach the defendant by mail, then you must have the sheriff's office personally deliver a copy of your complaint to the defendant.

There is a $10 filing fee for bringing a claim in the Small Claims Division. This does not include the cost of sending a copy of your complaint to the defendant by certified or registered mail, or sheriff's fees if the defendant must be personally served. Remember, however, if you win the case the defendant can be charged for these "court costs."

If you receive notice you are being sued in the Small Claims division, do not fail to appear at the hearing. A default judgment can be rendered against you if you fail to appear or if you are not granted a continuance by the Court.

To prepare for your appearance at the small claims hearing, collect all evidence in support of your position, including contracts, letters, sales receipts, damaged goods or pictures. Bring any witnesses you wish to call on your behalf.

Present only those facts involved in your case in a concise and organized manner. You may want to visit the court and watch a hearing before your own hearing date to better understand this court's procedure.

The Small Claims Division of District Court is an efficient and inexpensive way of settling consumer complaints if your claim is $500 or less. You are limited to bringing 25 claims per year. You must be 18 years of age or older, or represented by a parent or legal guardian, to file a complaint.

You can obtain a free brochure prepared by the Attorney General's office on "How to Use the Small Claims Division of the District Court," from your local circuit court clerk, or by calling toll free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960. Eastern State Hospital Picnic Expected To Draw 150 to Park

July 26 has been set as the date of the annual Eastern State Hospital picnic at Archer Park. Up to 150 mentally handicapped people and members of their families are expected to attend the event, which will feature informational services, games, music and other entertainment.

Members of the Prestonsburg high school football team will be on hand to supervise the day's recreation. Various church groups will provide food and transportation. Other help will be given by Prestonsburg and Martin senior citizens, Prestonsburg high school's Teens Who Care, a number of musical groups, as well as members of local social service and mental health agencies.

A noticeable change in the annual event, which comes as a result of the recent emphasis on treating the mentally handicapped as much as possible in the community rather than in institutions, is that each year fewer of the picnickers actually travel from Eastern State, more of them coming from local communities.

The Maytown facility of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center has for some years offered alternatives to institutionalization of the mentally handicapped, including outpatient, after-care, and partial hospitalization programs.

The picnic, which is sponsored by the Floyd Mental Health Association and Eastern State Hospital, was begun eight years ago to familiarize the community with local mental health programs, to give former Eastern State patients a chance to renew friendships made there, and to give relatives an opportunity to visit with current patients. The day will extend from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Anyone wishing to help in organizing the picnic is invited to contact Janie Beverley, a nurse with MCC's partial hospitalization program, at 285-9235. The public is invited to join in the event.

Jenny Wiley Marks 'Year of Child' Week

The Kentucky Department of Parks has declared July 23-28, a special theme week for International Year of the Child. In keeping with this theme called for by the United Nations for 1979, Jenny Wiley State Park has planned a week full of special children's programs. The following is a line-up of the activities which will be free and open to the public.

Tuesday, July 24 at 8 p.m. in May Lodge there will be a special Children's Folk Music Concert presented by Nancy Johnson and Blake Barker, of Bardstown, who are touring the Kentucky State Parks this summer. They have done several concerts at Jenny Wiley State Park and have been well received. The Children's Concert is a fun one indeed involving audience participation from both children and adults.

Walt Disney has always found a special place in the heart of a child and this week Jenny Wiley Park will be featuring two Walt Disney movies. "Snowball Express" is fractured trees and flying skis, a snowball ski-for-all! This Disney release is pure fun and excitement for everyone. "Snowball Express" will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 25, at May Lodge and again at 9 p.m. Saturday

July 28, at the Pines Recreation Building in Jenny Wiley's campground. The second Walt Disney movie will be "Freaky Friday." This family entertainment movie will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 26, at May Lodge and 8 p.m. Friday, July 27, at the Pines Recreation Building of the campground.

Topping off the Children's Week at Jenny Wiley Park will be the Master's Muppets Show. The Master's Muppets is a youth group of puppeteers from Rosehill Baptist Church, of Ashland, under the supervision of Gary Southard. They will present a special puppet show at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 28, at the Pines Recreation Building of the Jenny Wiley campground. All puppets used in the show are made by these youngsters and the show is conducted entirely by the youth group. The puppet show will be followed by the movie, "Snowball Express" at 9 p.m.

The purpose of the International Year of the Child are several: to develop community awareness of children's issues; to publicize activities and services about children and for children; to identify the local community needs of children; to celebrate the joy and value of children; to involve the entire community in IYC.

The United Nations, by placing the child in the center of world attention, invites the world community to renew and re-affirm its concern for the present condition and the future of its children. The year should also provide an opportunity to emphasize the intellectual, psychological and social development of children, in addition to their physical welfare.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO SELL GULF COAST OIL, GAS LEASES

WASHINGTON—The Interior Department has scheduled a July 31 sale of oil and gas leases on the Outer Continental Shelf, off the coast of Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas.

The sealed bids are to be opened in New Orleans for 126 tracts covering 592,097 acres. The U.S. Geological Survey estimated the area could hold between 20.9 million and 50.9 million undiscovered, recoverable barrels of oil. Recoverable cubic feet of natural gas could range from .697 trillion to 1.36 trillion cubic feet, the survey said.

Stumbo Would Void Release of Moore

District Judge Harold J. Stumbo returned to the bench Monday after an absence of three weeks, two weeks of which he spent attending the Judicial College at Reno, Nevada.

Upon his return, he said, he found that a special Judge, Wayne D. Fitzgerald, who had served during Stumbo's absence, had released from jail Jimmy Moore, who was under 12-month jail sentence for assault upon Graydon Howard, former Pyramid postmaster. Moore had served about four months of his sentence.

Moore was released with the provision that he leave the state, if was said.

"I promised," Judge Stumbo said, "that Moore would serve his full term. If there is any way that I can revoke this order releasing him I'll do it."

1.17 BILLION MOVIE TICKETS SOLD

HOLLYWOOD—An estimated 1.17 billion tickets to movie theaters were sold in the United States in 1978, a 10 percent gain over 1977. The 1978 box office receipts are estimated at a record $2.7 billion.

Floyd Community Clubs Win Three First-Place Awards

Floyd County Community Development Clubs won high recognition for the 17th annual Community Development Awards Banquet held at Ashland Community College last week.

The Village category was represented by the David Club, which received the first-place plaque. West Liberty, the only incorporated town entered in the competition, won second place, and Hitchens, third.

This is the fourth year in a row that David has held top place in the Village category.

The Rural Non-Farm category was won by Weeksbury ("The Town That Wouldn't Die") for the second consecutive year. Other finishers were Load (Greenup county), second place, and Norton Branch (Carter county), third.

In the Farm category the Abbott Creek Club won second place. Pleasant Hill (Carter county) captured first place and RF 377 (Rowan county) was third.

The David Development Club received the first-place traveling trophy plaque for making the most club visitations in the area.

Dorothy Clark, of David, was elected president of the N.E.K.R.C.D.A. for the coming year. The Johnson County Development Committee won first place as the best Development group.

Two hundred twenty community leaders attended the banquet from the 12-county area.

The banquet was sponsored by the Ashland Chamber of Commerce, the Second National Bank of Ashland and the Kentucky Power Company.

Teen-Age Litter Corps Works In Floyd, 17 other Counties

One of the biggest clean-up operations in Kentucky history is being conducted now by the "Clean-Machine," the state's new army of teen-age litter fighters.

The "machine," also known as the Kentucky Litter Corps, is fueled by 315 youngsters hired by the Litter Control and Beautification Section of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. Dressed in green T-shirts, visors and bright orange vests, these teen-agers are beginning to clean up Kentucky's multi-million dollar litter problem.

According to Eugene Mooney, secretary of the department, the corps is picking up litter along the roadsides of 18 counties until Aug. 10. The counties participating in the program are Floyd, Boone, Boyd, Boyle, Breathitt, Campbell, Daviess, Franklin, Henderson, Kenton, Laurel, McCracken, McCreary, Madison, Mason, Pulaski, Russell and Warren.

The youngsters rounding up the litter are divided into four-person work crews and are supervised by an adult, most of them school teachers on summer break. The supervisors report to a county coordinator who selects the areas to be cleaned each day and generally oversee the project. The number of crews in each county varies from two to eight.

The crews collect litter from the roadsides and bag it. Everything that can be recycled is separated before it is bagged. The materials are then sold to a recycling center and profits from the project are given to the crews.

The bags are left on the roadside overnight as a reminder to passing motorists not to litter, according to Mooney. The litter is then picked up the next day by vehicles from the state Department of Transportation.

On rainy days, some of the crew members report to shelters where materials are separated and prepared for recycling.

"We're trying to do a number of things with the litter corps," said Mooney. "Not only are we cleaning up certain areas in the state, but these crews are providing a continuous advertisement to drivers reminding them not to litter. We also intend for the program to encourage recycling."

Although this is the first year the program is being operated on a full-scale basis, Mooney said he believes last year's pilot project in three counties provided evidence the effort will succeed.

"Last year we had 100 teens working in Fayette, Morgan and Henry counties," he explained. "In six weeks they picked up 12,400 bags of litter from 2,200 miles of road."

Mooney said not only was the cleanup operation a success, but the experiment in recycling also achieved good results. The crews were encouraged to recycle everything they could from the bags of litter they collected.

After selling their material to a recycling center, the Henry county crew earned enough cash to hold a back-to-school dinner. The crew also set up a Special Educational Fund at their local high school.

"This is a prime example of how the litter corps is not only helping to clean up Kentucky, but is providing a valuable educational experience as well," said Mooney.

Food Facts

At Home On The Range

Going backpacking? You can beat the backpacking dining blues by developing your own recipes from your repertoire of tried and true home recipes. For example, a mixture of quick cooking noodles, dried peppers, garlic, spices and nuts makes a great trail blazer spaghetti, and requires only the addition of water and some light cooking.

For quick preparation, prepackage the "dish" with all the ingredients in water and leak-proof airtight plastic bags. Although it takes some extra preparation time, it may pay off to enclose a card in each bag giving cooking instructions. This way others on the trip can help you with the cooking.

You don't have to avoid fresh food just because it is perishable. Hard-boiled eggs are a tasty replacement for powdered eggs and much more economical. An onion can also go a long way toward enhancing the flavor of a backpacker's casserole. In addition, oranges and apples are great sources of vitamin C for quick energy, as well as being welcome thirst quenchers. If each trail blazer carries just one of each of these fresh foods, and eats half of each at separate meals, they'll help satisfy the yearning for real food throughout the day.

Cueing In On Barbecues

Summer and barbecues go together like peaches and cream and are even more American than apple pie. Few of us can resist the tantalizing aroma of charcoal broiled or roasted meat. Rising meat costs need not eliminate this warm weather ritual, if you know what to look for when meat shopping and how to prepare the meat for barbecuing. Meat prices go up in direct relation to the tenderness of the cut, and the tenderness of the cut is directly related to the part of the animal's body the meat comes from. The most flavorful cuts of meat are from the less tender areas of the animal, such as the chuck, shoulder and round. These sections are more savory, due to the development of more muscle and connective tissue, which impart the best meat flavor.

Chuck cuts are good choices for economical barbecuing. A first cut or blade steak about 3/4 of inch to an inch thick can be grilled whole, bone in or out, or cut up and made into kabobs. The large center section of both the blade steak and center cut chucks are more tender than the meat that surrounds them and can be grilled separately.

A boneless shoulder roast can be cut into 3/4 inch steaks for barbecuing. Steaks from the round include sirloin tip steaks and sirloin tip for London Broil. These can also be grilled whole or cubed for kabobs.

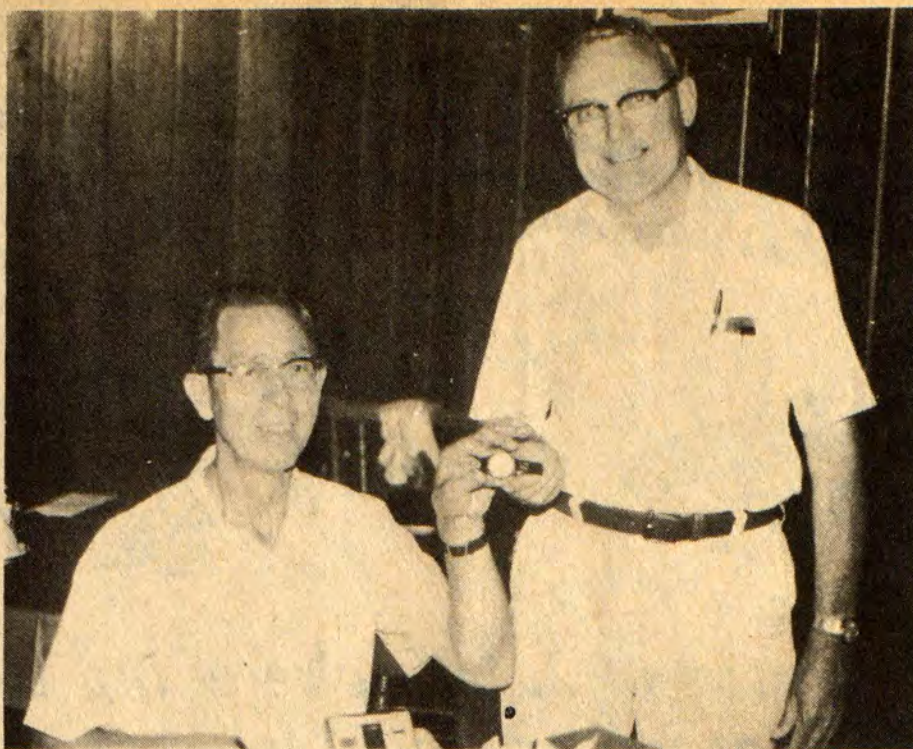

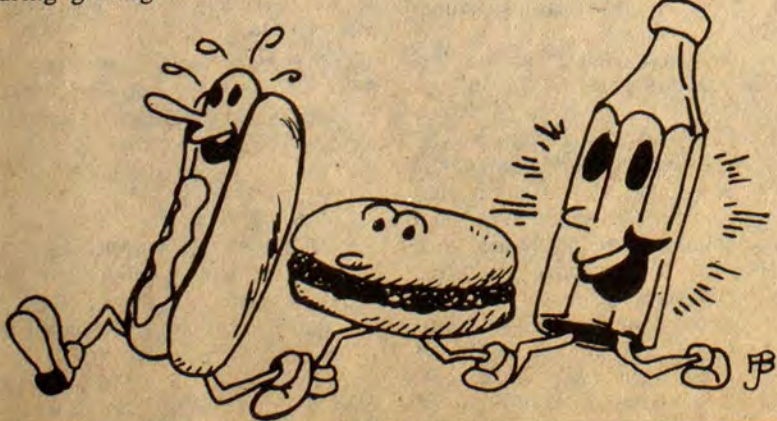

To prepare any economy cuts of meat for the grill, trim all but 1/4 inch of fat from around the edges and slash the remaining fat at one-inch intervals to prevent the steak from curling.

For tenderizing economy cuts of meat, there are three basic methods. Packaged meat tenderizers are the most popular. They are composed of enzymes extracted from foods such as the papaya or pineapple. They are blended with salt and when they are sprinkled on a piece of pierced meat, they break down the tough connective tissues.

Marinades are another form of tenderizer, although they generally add more flavor than tenderness. The oil in a marinade prevents the meat from drying out during cooking.

Mechanical tenderizing consists of nothing more than a mallet or hammer, some wax paper and brute strength. Place the meat between sheets of wax paper and pound it flat, but not less than 3/4 inch thick for barbecuing.

For best results when grilling or roasting any of the tougher cuts of meat, always tenderize and marinate it first, and baste it often during grilling.

Book Review

Rich in Facts . . . Shy on Opinion

By RON MARSTIN

From the University Press of Kentucky comes another history of the Big Sandy Valley. It is Carol Crowe-Carraco's "The Big Sandy" (136 pp; $4.95, hardbound), the first history of the area since Henry P. Scalf's 1966 work, "Kentucky's Last Frontier."

A very readable, if summary, account of the region's history from the late 18th century through the 1970's, "The Big Sandy" outlines the contributions of the early explorers, hunters, and pioneers; the region's ambivalent role in the Civil War; the rise of steamboat navigation on the river and its eventual decline before the onset of the railroad; the growth of the coal industry; and some of the political influences shaping the region in the past two decades.

Readers will learn how Prestonsburg came to be in Kentucky rather than West Virginia, of Daniel Boone's wintering at the salt lick which is now David, of the origins of mountain Calvinism, and the naming of Beaver Creek, Cow Creek, Bull Creek and Dwaile. The story of Jenny Wiley is re-told, of course, as are those of the Hatfields and McCoy's, and of John C. C. Mayo.

Inland Steel's benevolent paternalism at Wheelwright, Himmlerville's short-lived experiment in management-labor partnership, and the abortive UMWA attempt to unionize workers at Garrett (the would-be organizers had their hotel room dynamited) are duly chronicled.

As rich as the book is in such interesting facts, however, its author seems hesitant to render any judgment on the facts. The notorious scrip system of the coal camps, the ruthless commercialization of the coalfields, the exploitive use of the broadform deed—all are treated with a disarming evenhandedness, as if history's verdict on these practices is still in doubt.

On the critics of the broadform deed, John C. C. Mayo, Jr., has the last word: "It would be interesting if those people knew what a small percentage of those acres (purchased under the broadform deed) had any coal at all under them," he is quoted as saying. It might be interesting, perhaps, but hardly as telling as Mayo suggests, or as the author seems to accept.

What judgments the author does make tend to be so bland as to be beyond cavil and unlikely to yield any new insight. "Both a blessing and a bane," she writes, "coal controlled the economic existence of the region and shaped the lives of the people." Which is true, no doubt, but not very enlightening.

"The judicious development of the eastern Kentucky coal industry," she offers in another place, "has the potential to make the Big Sandy River Valley a land of promise for all Kentuckians." Again, the notion is hardly debatable, but not at all helpful without some more precise definition of "judicious."

On the current struggle between the coal industry and environmentalists, we read: "Disagreements...will continue. Resolution of the conflict requires a balancing of each group's views, along with due consideration of the nation's need for fuel." A clue to the banality of statements like these can perhaps be found in the author's description of fellow historian Harry Caudill as "angry, but eloquent," telling a "poignant, but rarely objective story (in "Night Comes to the Cumberlands") of poverty, exploitation and despair in the coalfields."

The antithesis of objectivity is, of course, subjectivity—interpretation, analysis, the reflection of a writer's point of view. Nowhere more than in the final chapter, which deals with the intervention of federal government in the coal fields—in the 1960's, in the form of New Frontier-Great Society legislation and, in the 1970's, in the form of strip-mining regulation, does the author's lack of analysis make itself more keenly felt.

Mrs. Crowe-Carraco writes as one without a point of view. That may satisfy some definition of objectivity, but it also yields such truisms as the one that concludes the present volume: "Kentuckians must face the approaching twenty-first century together, and the Big Sandy Valley and its residents are an integral part of its future."

AFL-CIO Program To Train, Find Work for Handicapped

Physically handicapped Kentuckians, including people who have never had jobs, now can get work training and find employment through a new, federally financed program operated by the state AFL-CIO.

The Kentucky State ALF-CIO is now interviewing prospective participants for a new statewide handicapped employment program funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

Present federal laws require employers who receive federal money to end discrimination against handicapped people. Another law soon to take effect requires companies that receive federal contracts to go beyond that by taking affirmative action to hire the handicapped.

Based on these new laws and a favorable response to the union's survey of its locals, the state AFL-CIO decided to begin a handicapped-employment program quickly, said spokesman Susan Nichols. The union hopes to have a supply of qualified handicapped workers available before the new law—Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973—takes effect next year.

Using a $450,000 grant from the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, the union would like to train and find jobs for 175 handicapped persons by October 1, and continue or expand the program after that, said Kurt Teller, project director.

He said employees are already traveling through the state, visiting officials of AFL-CIO locals and the companies where they work, "to solicit union and management support in considering handicapped individuals for employment."

To help new workers gain basic working skills, Teller said, the program also will pay half of a handicapped employee's salary—for up to 26 weeks—during an on-the-job training period.

And it will provide special training to an able-bodied fellow employee to act as the handicapped worker's "buddy" while he learns the new job.

Federal money also is available to help a handicapped employee buy clothing or tools needed in his new job.

Disabled persons who are interested in employment can call or write their local AFL-CIO office.

Program workers will interview the handicapped person about job interests and physical abilities, Nichols said.

Those who have never worked may be invited to take a special job-seeking skills course, dealing with such matters as job interviews, work relationships and responsibilities.

Others may be advised to take outside classroom work, or possibly be referred to other agencies such as the state Bureau for Rehabilitation Services, she said.

When the individual is ready, he will be sent to job interviews with employers the program has located.

The goal of the program is not to create special kinds of jobs or to provide lifelong help. "There are no special favors—we just want to get them past the initial barriers that are now keeping disabled people off the job," Teller said.

In this area, write to or call William Bradley, Herald Hotel Bldg., Second Street, Paintsville, Ky. 41240, phone (606) 789-6915.

SPAIN RAISES GAS PRICES

29 PERCENT TO CUT OIL IMPORTS

MADRID, Spain—The Spanish government has increased gasoline prices 29 percent, cut heating oil production by one-fifth and ordered half of all public lighting shut off in attempts to cut oil imports.

The government also increased electricity rates 21 percent and is studying gasoline rationing. Gasoline now costs about $2.78 a gallon for premium.

In Appreciation

I would like to express my gratitude and appreciation to the many individuals with whom I have come in contact during my year as director of the M. J. VanHorn Senior Citizens Center, Wheelwright, Ky.

The local support from the area has been good, but in the upcoming year I'm sure that the people in the area will see their way to becoming more active in this great program for our elderly population.

Special thanks is expressed to Peggy Bradford and the Weeksbury Community Center; George Nifong and Mt. Investment, Inc.; the City of Wheelwright; the Beaver Valley C. B. Club; Blaine Hopkins, Community Action Program; the Kiwanis Club and the many, many persons that have made this Center a great one. Last, but not least, thanks to Phil Price, executive director, Community Meals on Wheels, Inc., who in March, 1977 saw a bright future for the Wheelwright site, and provided financial support to this Center; the also to the Big Sandy Area Development District for their interest in the area.

I have made many new friends and appreciate the opportunity to have been a part of this fine program.

Quiet, Please

If your neighbors blast their stereo so loud that you can sing along with every word, you don't have to grin and bear it. Quiet is your right, and if noisy neighbors persist in keeping you up all night, you can take the following steps to alleviate the problem:

- Pay a personal visit. Many noisemakers don't even realize that they're bothering someone. Sometimes a chat will do.
- Write a letter. If you can't manage a confrontation, a short note may do the trick. But by all means, be temperate.
- If the noise persists, you can tell your landlord or call the police. The police can issue a summons for your neighbor to appear in court, but this is usually a last resort.
- Another less drastic option is to resolve the problem through neighborhood mediation. "Neighborhood justice centers" are being set up in communities across the country to help solve problems. These centers help settle disputes of various kinds without the cost and time of lawyers and judges.

A Case For Wine

If you love wine, but cannot seem to find a suitable place to store it, why not create a mini wine cellar in your apartment? A bar cart or window are fine for daily use, but not adequate for storage. For your own instant wine cellar, follow these simple instructions:

- Find a cool, dark spot. In an apartment, a cool inside closet will suffice.
- Make an instant wine rack. Take the cardboard packing cases or wooden crates the wine is shipped in and turn them on their sides. The partitions become storage bins.
- Place wines which need to age longer (and white wines) on the bottom, where it is the coolest. Put the rest above. You can always keep a few bottles of white wine on hand in the refrigerator. They'll do well there for about two months.
- Remember to lay bottles on their sides to allow the corks to stay wet. Moisture is essential; a dried out cork lets air enter the bottle, thus allowing wine to deteriorate.

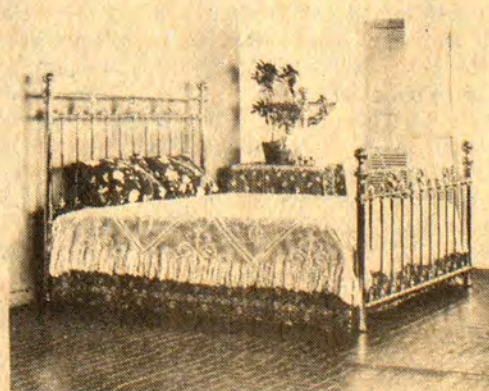

Getting Down To Brass Facts

If you've been thinking of throwing out Grandma's old brass bed, don't; the oldtime favorite is making a comeback into the bedroom scene. Nothing can make a bedroom more bawdy, gentle, formal, or sumptuous, all at the same time.

A brass bed is a lifetime investment. If you're in the market for one, it pays to shop wisely. Here are some tips:

- All "solid brass" beds are not the same, and the phrase "solid brass" is in itself misleading. "Solid brass" distinguishes "pure brass" or "genuine brass" (a copper-zinc alloy) from materials that appear similar, such as brass-plated steel, or anodized aluminum.
- Concern yourself with strength as well as looks. The bed has to provide strong, stable support for your boxspring and mattress.
- Brass is available in a variety of forms and thicknesses, the principal form being tubing. The thicker the wall of the tubing, the higher the quality.
- The form of brass used for the fittings has a vital bearing on quality. (The fittings lock the structural members together.) The best fittings are made through casting—molten brass is poured into molds in a foundry. These fittings are thick and strong.
- Brass oxidizes in contact with air. Natural brass should be wiped down with a cleaner once or twice a year. Don't buy brass coated with lacquer. Sooner or later it has to be stripped down, and that can be painful.

If you're in the market for a brass bed, send $3.00 for a color catalog to: Joao Isabel, Inc. 120 E. 32nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Scene from 'Forum' at Jenny Wiley

The scene above is from "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" opening tonight at the amphitheatre, Jenny Wiley State Park.

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre in Prestonsburg continues its 15th anniversary season this week with the opening of the Broadway comedy hit "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" is the third offering of the theatre this summer. It will be presented Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evenings from July 18 thru July 29. The theatre presents the musical revue "Starting Here, Starting Now" on Friday evenings thru August 17.

Ticket information may be obtained by calling 886-9274 or by writing the theatre at Box 22, Prestonsburg, 41653. Curtain for all performances is 8:30.

The play is a slapstick comedy which takes place in ancient Rome some two hundred years before the Christian era. Loosely based on the plays of Plautus, "Forum" relates the comic tale of Pseudolus, a Roman slave who will stop at nothing to obtain his freedom.

This is Jenny Wiley's second production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." The show drew large crowds to the theatre in 1970, when it was first presented with Ron Palillo, now television's Horshack on "Welcome Back Kotter," in the part of Senex, a citizen of Rome who is the father to the owner of Pseudolus.

This season's production of "Forum" also promises to be an exciting one, according to Bill Campbell, manager of the theatre. He said the combination of talent, hard work and enthusiasm that this season's company exhibited guarantees that the production will be a hit.

"We're happy to be doing an established hit like "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," he said. "It is difficult to do in every respect: dramatically, musically and technically."

"But this show is an almost guaranteed crowd-pleaser."

Due to inclement weather and low attendance, Campbell said the theatre is still in need of more patron's ticket sales and donations in order to defray the cost of the improvements.

PULSATING SEAT CUSHION REDUCES DRIVER FATIGUE

NEW YORK—New on the American market is a seat cushion that keeps drivers alert and reduces fatigue for long-haul truckers.

Improving circulation in the lower extremities, it consists of a bladder made from polyester elastomer converted to a film sheet. Air chambers in the bladder are inflated for two seconds, then deflated for six, creating a "wave motion" that stimulates blood flow in legs and buttocks.

UMWA Fund: Firms Behind in Payments

The United Mine Workers of America Health and Retirement Funds reported today that during the months of February, March and April 1979, complaints were filed against 17 companies signatory to 1978 coal wage agreements that are allegedly delinquent in making their contributions to the Funds. Although the exact amount in question is not known, it appears that more than $372,000 is owed to the Funds.

Kentucky companies named in the complaints are Seals Coal Company, Inc.; Hamcon Coal Company & Hamcon Elkhorn Coal Company, Inc.; and Warner Coal Company, Inc.

Litigation is the final step in the Funds' program of monitoring income to ensure that signatory employers pay all monies owed to the Funds. When it appears that a company is delinquent in its royalty payments and the amount due is not forwarded promptly, appropriate action is taken to protect the interest of the Funds. It is the Funds' general policy to enter into litigation to recover royalties due plus interest, attorneys' and audit fees, and court costs.

Anna Jean Tackett, Director
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

On or about Aug. 21, 1979, the City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (jointly) proposes and will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (as amended) to be used for the Branham Hollow, Hall Hollow, 79 Hill Area Rehabilitation Project.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:

The project proposes to acquire and improve the water system, gas distribution system, and sewage collection system, rehabilitate houses and provide street improvements and make additional single lots available for sale to low- and moderate-income families in Branham Hollow, Hall Hollow and 79 Hill. This project is under Multi-year Comprehensive Program.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the project has been made by the City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (jointly) which documents the environmental review of the project.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment; and, accordingly, the City of Wheelwright-Floyd County (jointly) has decided not to prepare an ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT under the National ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY ACT of 1969 (PL 91-190). The environmental info. Document of the project and more fully sets forth the reason why such Document is not required.

The Environmental Info. Document is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request at Floyd Co. UR & CD Agency during normal business hours. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of federal funds.

The City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (jointly) will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (jointly) is certifying to HUD that the City and County (jointly) and Ms. Yvonne Jones, in her official capacity as County-Judge Exec., consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that, upon approval, the City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (joint) may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or (b) that the applicant's environmental Information Document for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental Information process; (c) that with regard to a project for which the level of clearance finding was made, the applicant omitted one or more steps; (d) that with respect to a property listed on the National Register for Historic Places, which is affected by the project, no opportunity was given to review the effect of the project; (e) the applicant fails to include an Environmental Information Document; (f) that another federal agency submits to a written finding to HUD that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of public health, welfare, or environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR, Part 58) and may be addressed to the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development at P.O. Box 1044, Louisville, Ky. 40201. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection reviewed after August 17, 1979 will be considered by HUD.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration to the Floyd Co. UR & CD Agency. Such written comments should be received on or before August 17, 1979. All such comments received will be considered and the City of Wheelwright-Floyd Co. (jointly) will not take any described prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

Floyd Pioneers in Care Program

By MICHAEL SMITH FAURI

Though eastern Kentuckians are noted for their closely-knit families, few are inclined to welcome perfect strangers into the fold.

Not so for a Floyd County mother and daughter who now provide homes for six women formerly institutionalized at Eastern State Hospital in Lexington.

Mildred Newman and daughter, Yvonne, both of the Grethel area, have been mini-care home operators for twelve and nine years respectively. Theirs were the first and second homes in Floyd county to accept patients under the project, which was pioneered in 1967 by Eastern State social worker, Elizabeth McConnell.

Mini homes or family personal care homes are the private residences of families who offer a home to previously institutionalized mental patients. Every effort is made to locate the residents of such homes in their native area.

As part of a movement in the past decade towards de-institutionalization, community-based rather than institutional care for the mentally ill, mini homes are a model program. Observers of the program agree that most patients show definite improvement in an environment that engages them in family and community life.

As Mountain Comprehensive Care staff psychiatrist, Dr. Jerzy Wysocki, explains, "They're encouraged by example, they're involved in social, recreational and occupational activities that help foster independence."

The mini-home operator receives payments from Kentucky's Bureau for Social Insurance that generally subsidizes income provided the patient through Social Security disability benefits.

The quality of care provided by each of the 15 homes in this county alone is closely monitored by staff members from both the Department of Human Resources and Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, (MCCC), the Big Sandy area's community mental health agency.

Most residents in the family care homes attend a partial hospitalization program operated by MCCC that provides supervised activities aimed at teaching independent living skills.

Willa Lappi, an R.N. who directs the largest of the partial programs, is in a position to observe patients who live in a mini home environment. She finds it an "excellent alternative" to institutionalization.

"These people are out in the community and, in varying degrees, they are accepted into the families they have joined," says Lappi. People like Mrs. Newman and Yvonne have shown their residents acceptance and, as a result, these women have grown and gained some measure of independence.

She adds that, although mini-home operators can contact her or other center staff members for assistance at any time, it is self-motivated.

"This is a big job—one that involves 24 hours a day, seven days a week and 365 days a year. But there are really very few problems, mostly inquiries about medication."

As Floyd county's first mini home operator, Mildred Newman will testify that there have been some difficult moments. She has encountered problems with patient refusals to eat or to respond. One current resident formerly made a habit of running away. After the sheriff picked her up and took her to jail, she quickly learned the consequences of her behavior and quit leaving.

Mrs. Newman cites patience, firmness, discipline, cajoling and "a refusal to give in" as the keys to dealing with problems. Though her three "ladies", as she calls them, have been chronically ill for a number of years, they now are able to perform a number of light housework functions from which they derive some sense of accomplishment.

But over the years Mrs. Newman has become rather philosophical about behavior others regard as bizarre.

About one of her residents who experiences recurring hallucinations, Mrs. Newman says, "She's happy in her wrong thinkings and doings. You can't change everybody. It's just her condition, just the way she thinks."

She recalls that several of her neighbors were frightened of "the ladies" when they first came to live at her rural home. But, says Mrs. Newman, after a time they, too, accepted them. In fact, some of her neighbors began taking patients into their own homes after a time.

Apparently, much of her mother's compassion has rubbed off on Yvonne Newsome. Working in a nursing home helped her to decide that she too would like to help these people.

A mini home operator since she was 21 years old, Yvonne believes the key to helping her people is "love," something she feels many of them have known little of.

Her love and concern for one of the women who now lives with her has enabled her to improve some severely regressed behavior. Yvonne has successfully taught her toilet training and even some light chores. More important the patient has learned acceptance and the resultant ability to interact.

"I treat them like I treat myself," says Yvonne. "They can feel they're a part of me and I'm a part of them."

Both mother and daughter agree they would be lost without their adopted family members.

"They're a help to me and I'm a help to them," says Mrs. Newman. "I guess I'd be lost without them."

Puppets Featured in Frankfort Exhibit

Puppets from all over the world provide a unique Kentucky Historical Society exhibit which will appeal to people of all ages. More than 50 puppets are on display in the Old Capitol Annex in Frankfort until the end of the summer.

Included in the exhibit are shadow puppets which are controlled by rods, explained Elizabeth Perkins, museum curator who planned the display. These puppets come from Java, India and Bali. Some of the puppets in the display cases are hand puppets, a few of which are early 19th century, said Perkins. These include Punch and Judy characters and one French puppet named "Guignol."

There is also a case of marionettes which are manipulated by strings or wires. These puppets come from Russia, America, France, India and Japan.

Perkins said that the puppets come from the collection of Alice and Mary Alexander Hume of the Puppet House Players of Frankfort, the University of Illinois in Edwardsville and Detroit Institute of the Arts.

"Puppetry is a major form of communication in Indonesia and a popular art form in many European countries," said Alice Hume. "Indonesians have learned about birth control and many other important social issues through the country's puppet theaters." Hume has had a life-long interest in puppetry, is self-taught and began doing shows in 1968.

The Kentucky Historical Society Museum is open seven days each week, with the exceptions of Easter, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years Day. The hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and on Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Chevy Malibu beats these foreign cars in gas mileage ratings.
And in room. And in price.

CHEVY MALIBU 4-DOOR SEDAN 22 EPA Estimated MPG

Remember: Compare estimated MPG to other cars. You may get different mileage depending on speed, trip length and weather.

Some people still think foreign family cars are better in price and mileage. Some people are wrong. Compared to these smaller imports, today's Chevy Malibu is clear and away the only place to put your transportation dollar. Which is maybe why Chevy Malibu is America's most popular mid-size sedan.

BETTER MILEAGE. When it comes to gas mileage, Malibu, with its standard V6 engine, beats all three of these smaller foreign cars. In fact, no other 6-cylinder car of any size has a higher EPA gas mileage rating than Chevy Malibu.† Malibu is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.

	Price*	Interior Space	Trunk Space	EPA Est. Mileage†
CHEVY MALIBU	$4915†	102 Cu. Ft.	17 Cu. Ft.	22
TOYOTA CORONA 4-Door Sedan	$5719†	80 Cu. Ft.	11 Cu. Ft.	18
DATSUN 810 4-Door Sedan	$8129†	80 Cu. Ft.	8 Cu. Ft.	20
VOLVO 244 4-Door Sedan	$7585†	89 Cu. Ft.	14 Cu. Ft.	18

*ICES, MILEAGE ESTIMATES, AND COMPARISONS DO NOT APPLY IN CALIFORNIA.

†Malibu's low price. Tax, license, optional equipment and destination charges are additional. Destination charges vary by location and will affect price comparisons. The level of standard equipment varies among cars.

MORE ROOM. According to the EPA Interior Volume Index, Malibu not only has more interior space for up to six, but it has more trunk space; 17 cubic feet—double the space of Datsun 810!

A LOWER PRICE.* According to Manufacturers' Suggested Retail Prices for cars as shown, none of the smaller 4-door imports comes close to Malibu's low price. Tax, license, optional equipment and destination charges are additional. Destination charges vary by location and will affect price comparisons. The level of standard equipment varies among cars.

Gas Lack Spurs City Bike Lanes

With gas prices soaring and availability of gas supplies declining, Kentuckians are buying bicycles in record number. While some people are using their bikes strictly for leisurely tours of the Bluegrass countryside, others are urban riders using their bikes for transportation as well as recreation.

The state Department of Transportation is working with individual cities to provide bikeways through some Kentucky cities in an effort to encourage more urban bikers to make their biking safe.

The division of urban and regional planning has 12 bikeways in varying stages of development in eight different urban areas of the commonwealth. Bikeways are being established in Louisville, Lexington, Winchester, Owensboro, Glasgow, Calvert City, Taylor Mill (a suburb of Covington) and in Kenton County.

The bike trails in these cities are designated either Class I, II or III. Class I trails are those that have separate roads constructed for cyclists along the side of an existing road. Class II includes existing roads that have a lane marked off for bicyclists. The lane is marked with a painted strip, curb or other means. Class III, the easiest to create, are roads which bikers share with motorists but which have been signed as a "bike path" to alert drivers.

According to Bruce Siria, assistant director of urban and regional planning, there is increasing enthusiasm for bike paths in the cities. The state is willing to help provide them, he said. The state can provide up to 70 percent of the funds for a city bikeway. Local funds are used to provide the remaining share of the cost.

Siria added that urban and regional planning encourages the city governments to talk to organized groups of cyclists and other groups to get their input before definite plans are presented to the state. "We are interested in developing city bike lanes that will some day all connect. Hopefully a biker can eventually get through the entire city on designated bike lanes," Siria said.

Final Performances Slated

HOME AGAIN...Annabelle Taylor has a reason for the happy smile she wears. The 96-year-old Mrs. Taylor left a high-level care unit of a nursing home in Paris, Ky. and returned to her own home. She now cares for herself with the help of community programs sponsored by Kentucky's Department for Human Resources. "I think a lot of people at the nursing home would like to come home," Mrs. Taylor says. Human Resources offices throughout Kentucky offer various services to help elderly persons maintain their independence. What makes this 96-year-old tick? "What keeps me going is my energy," Mrs. Taylor said.

Gardening Tips at Merritt Farm

Looking at seedless watermelons grown on black plastic are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Merritt, on whose farm a garden demonstration will be held Thursday, July 26.

A gardening demonstration and lessons on freezing and canning will be held at the farm of Billy Merritt Thursday, July 26, at 6 p.m. You will have a chance to see how black plastic compares to straw in controlling weeds in tomatoes.

This spring due to the abnormal amount of rainfall, high humidity and cold nights have been ideal weather conditions for tomato blight. Three resistant blight varieties of tomatoes were grown with four other varieties. This will give everyone a chance to compare their commonly grown varieties with the blight resistant varieties.

Other topics will be: Staked tomatoes versus tomatoes grown in a wire cage; recommended vegetable varieties; chemical weed control; insect and disease control.

Frances Pitts, County Agent in Home Economics, will be talking about canning and freezing vegetables and door prizes will be given to the lucky winners.

Art and Crafts Exhibit Set at Natural Bridge

The 15th annual Mountain Art and Crafts Exhibit scheduled Sunday, August 19, at Natural Bridge State Resort Park will give art lovers a chance to see trends and changes in their favorite Kentucky artists. Some artists have not missed an exhibit in the 15 years the Powell County Art Club has sponsored the event.

On that Sunday, Hoedown Island will be more colorful than a flower garden with the displays of artists from the Ashland-Huntington area, Louisville, northern Kentucky, Bowling Green and central and eastern Kentucky. Artists and craftsmen who regularly show and sell at Hoedown Island not only represent almost every section of the commonwealth but of some nearby states. Admission to the exhibit is free. There is a $2 fee for exhibitors.

"As usual," said Elmer Combs, Winchester, president of the club, "we are given use of the new park recreation building in case of rain."

Natural Bridge has appealed to tourists for many years. More than 25,000 people visited the framed arch in the summer of 1899. A magazine published about 1900 states "Natural Bridge, 57 miles from Lexington (a shorter distance today), situated on Graining Block (Red River), is the next station."

The "station" reference was to the river converged near Filson, the central (middle fork) stream called "Gaining Block" because Indians who returned from hunting trips stopped here to "grain" animal hides.

According to the old magazine, a 20-acre lake was well stocked with bass and newlight and "fronts half a mile along the railroad and grounds. Spacious docks for boats, boathouses and bathing houses have been erected on the beach. Bowling alleys, dancing pavilion and gardener's cottage face the lake. Sparkling fountains of purest water from the springs throw their spray in pools surrounded by mossy rocks and ferns; easy walks wind up to the caves and spring through a shady forest of trees."

A pastoral paradise then and a comforting refuge today. Owned then by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, the land was acquired by the state in the late 1920s. A few years later it became one of the first state parks.

This changes things—but not the character of a place. The old dance pavilion has been replaced with Hoedown Island, a perfect setting for the annual art and crafts show and sale. High on the mountainside stands handsome Hemlock Lodge. The majestic multi-purpose, recreation building now stands on the site of the old lodge.

The beauty of the park and grounds remains as does the hospitality of park personnel. Much in the way of recreation has been added, making the park and the art and crafts exhibit and sale a place for all the family. Picnic areas are near exhibit sections.

For more information about the show and sale contact Elmer Combs, Rt. 5, Box 278, Winchester, Ky. 40391 or Mrs. Felcia McIntyre, Rt. 2, Box 668, Stanton, Ky. 40380.

Our Appalachia Day Slated at Alice Lloyd

Local craftspersons and musicians are encouraged to include this day in their schedules. Contact Mr. Daley at Alice Lloyd College for additional information (368-2101).

Voice Disapproval Of Water Standards

Both industrialists and environmentalists recently voiced their disapproval of Kentucky's proposed water quality standards.

At a formal hearing held here on the standards and regulations, environmentalists stressed the importance of enforcing water quality standards in Kentucky. However, they objected that under the proposed regulations, initially all waters in the state will be classified at a base level of aquatic life and secondary recreational use. This is the lowest classification that can be applied to waters of the commonwealth within federal guidelines.

Margaret Lowell, a representative from the Cumberland Sierra Club, said under this classification system, "Kentucky's waters will be as dirty as the law will tolerate."

Ralph Madison of the Kentucky Audubon Society echoed Lowell's objections by saying the proposed regulations "maintain mandated pollution. There would be no incentive for dischargers and no stimulus for the state to upgrade waters," said Madison. He asked the Environmental Quality Commission to reject the proposals and asked Kentucky to adopt federal guidelines for water quality.

Under the proposed regulations, a body of water can be reclassified only after the application is reviewed by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection and other organizations within the immediate area. The natural resources department must determine that the proposed designated use is attainable upon considering environmental, technological, social economic and other factors. Certain outstanding waters, such as Kentucky's wild rivers, will automatically have a higher classification because of their uniqueness.

Robert Gable, chairman of the board for Stearns Coal and Lumber Co., said the ultimate determination of whether a body of water should be reclassified "will be left to the whim of the administrators."

Likewise, an environmental representative from Ashland Oil Inc. pointed out that every mine in the state with discharges would have to apply for reclassification and "exceptions would be allowed only after a rigorous task is undertaken through the bureaucracy."

The state Division of Water Quality held a series of statewide meetings in May to inform the public about the proposed regulations and how they will be affected by the regulations.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE Within 100 feet of a public road

Pursuant to 405 KAR 1050 The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection may conduct a public hearing to review the application of Fanny Mott Coal Company (application number 236-5061) to conduct mining operations within 100 feet of public highway Mink Branch Rd. at Craynor, Ky. location. Any interested person may request that the hearing be held by written request to that effect sent to Roger Blair, Division of Permits, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Sixth Floor, Capitol Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 and received by him within 20 days of the date of this notice.

Named Miss RECC

Miss Connie J. Prater, 19, was named Miss Big Sandy RECC at the annual competition held July 2 at Johnson County Central High School near Paintsville. Miss Prater, who was one of five competing for the title, will vie for the state title at the Hyatt Regency in Louisville, August 8.

As Miss Big Sandy RECC, Miss Prater received $150, a silver cup and crown. In the state competition, she will be eligible to receive a substantial scholarship as well as other awards.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Prater, of Pyramid, and is presently employed by R&S Truck Body Company at Allen. A graduate of Prestonsburg Community College, she will enter Eastern Kentucky State University this fall where she will major in fashion merchandising with a minor in business management.

'Continuing Education' Required

Nineteen years of education isn't enough for Kentucky lawyers. The Kentucky Bar Association requires attorneys to earn 60 additional hours of legal credit every two years at activities such as the Kentucky Prosecutors Conference held recently in the Lexington Civic Center.

More than 300 attorneys heard legal authorities lecture on youthful offenders, the death penalty, psychological aspects of jury selection and law office practices. Featured speakers for the 12 workshop sessions included judges, a psychology professor, justice officials and a medical examiner.

Many attorneys fail to consider the crucial question, "Does the Fourth Amendment apply?" when answering arguments in court, according to Judge Charles E. Moylan of the Court of Special Appeals in Maryland.

"Public defenders, prosecutors and judges have a Pavlovian response and jump into the Fourth Amendment controversies without ever asking 'so what,'" Moylan said.

Moylan said the amendment only protects citizens from illegal searches and seizures of American governments, not from foreign governments or other citizens. "The Bill of Rights is not the be all and end all of our protection," he said.

Assistant Attorney General Robert Chenoweth discussed recent court decisions affecting juvenile rights and procedures and discussed youthful offender legislation advocated by the Governor's Juvenile Delinquency Task Force. The legislation, if adopted, would make it easier to try juveniles as adults.

60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Don Waddles, of Mt. Sterling, formerly of Lackey, observed their 60th wedding anniversary at their home Sunday, July 1, with a buffet luncheon hosted by their children.

They were married July 3, 1919 in Knott county, and have four daughters, Mrs. Robert Turley, of Knoxville, Tenn., Mrs. Mary Wills, of Lexington, Mrs. Joy Blevins, of Paris, and Mrs. Dexter Campbell, of Mt. Sterling, and one son, Cornice Waddles, of Lakeland, Florida. They also have eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The first woman Secretary of Labor and the first woman cabinet officer was Frances Perkins who was appointed in 1933, according to the Department of Labor booklet "Labor Firsts In America". Maytown Homecoming Planned

Langley, Ky.—Maytown residents, past and present, who are inquiring if another Homecoming will be held are hereby notified that it will—on July 25-27 (fourth weekend as usual), 1980. In December notices will be mailed all out-of county names on file to remind them about vacation dates. Anyone ever living, working or attending school, plus their descendants, are classified as Maytownites. Those residing in this county are expected to attend and are equally welcome, but to save postage, etc. invitations will not be mailed them. Previous Homecomings in 1968, 1971, 1976 were attended by hundreds who came from many states.

The labor of compiling an extensive newsletter is under way, and will be spread over the intervening year. Maytownites everywhere, in this county and outside, are urged to mail brief data on themselves, their families, also former schoolmates whose addresses they have, at once. Please list names, addresses, work, hobbies, honors, et cetera. Sending this information now enables the few free to work for the next event to do so at leisure. Planning, organizing, executing preceding celebrations required long months. Maytownites wishing to offer suggestions for Homecoming are welcome to do so. If reply is wanted, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Mail all correspondence to Maytown Homecoming Association, Langley, Ky. 41645. Watch the Times for further announcements.

Compensation Rates Claimed Too High

A legislative panel today directed the state's Insurance Regulatory Board to employ an independent actuary to review workmen's compensation claims and rate increase requests.

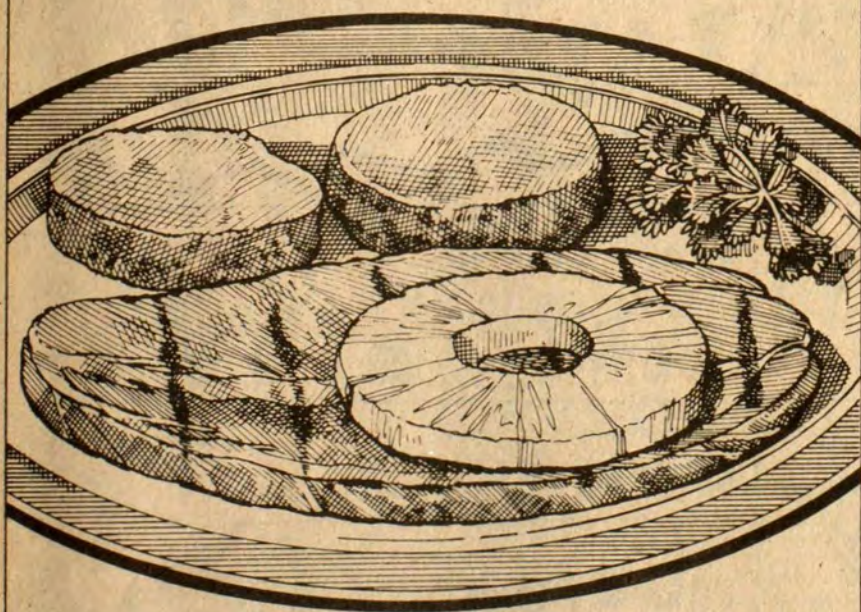

The Interim Joint Committee on Banking and Insurance issued the order after discussing the 1978 General Assembly's intent and hearing some of the problems associated with workmen's compensation.

Rep. James E. Bruce (D-Hopkinsville), chairman of the committee, said that in HB 358 the General Assembly directed the board to have an independent actuary review the claims and requests, but the board has not done that. He said a large gap exists between the rates Kentucky employers pay and the benefits that are paid out. Kentucky is ranked 14th nationally in workmen's compensation rates and 42nd in benefits.

Committee member Rep. Ward Burnette (D-Fulton) said if something is not done about the high rates the state will see many businesses moving to other states.

Phillip Thompson, president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, told the committee the high rates are "one of business' most serious problems" in the state. He said Kentucky is losing jobs because the rates are much higher than for most surrounding states.

Rice's Crispies . . .

A Pioneer in Archer Softball

By KENNY RICE

Doug Hackworth has been a trailblazer in the Archer Park Softball League. He has been a player-manager in the league for more than a decade and has seen the league grow in many ways.

Hackworth did not play the very first year softball was played at Archer 13 years ago, but the next season he was a player and he has been for the last 12 years. He has played with six teams during this time, Caney, Middle Creek, Banner, West Prestonsburg, Holbrook's Garage and the Prestonsburg Businessmen. Doug not only played for these teams—he has also had a hand in organizing and managing them.

While Doug's hitting had drawn the most cheers from the fans over the years (he has led the league in batting average four times and averaged seven homers a year for his first seven years in the league) he is quick to recall a defensive play of his as his most memorable moment on the Archer Park field.

"We (West Prestonsburg) were playing the Mental Health Center and I was at rover for the game. They had runners on second and third with nobody out. There was a line drive hit to shallow left center and I ran in and made a shoe string catch and both runners had left there base's, I threw to third for the second out and the third baseman threw to second to complete a triple play," Hackworth's eyes sparkled at the memory, "That was a big thrill to pull off a triple play. Mental Health was stunned and they argued about the play for the longest time, that was one of the biggest rhubarbs ever at Archer after that play."

Doug has seen a lot of players and teams come and go during his dozen years in the league.

"I think there's only around five of us, Gary Holbrook, Tommy Hale, Wimpy Clark, Larry Burke and me who have been playing in the league for twelve years."

The rate at which the league has grown has been pleasing to Doug. When it first started out, keeping the field in shape and rounding up umpires was not an easy task and the players took care of those chores and others, themselves.

"Everything about this league has improved, from the caliber of competition and umpiring to the field conditions and fan interest. Billy Ray (Collins) has helped the league a lot. It is great for me to see how the league is so well thought of throughout the state right now for its talent. Being in on the first of it all makes me feel good," Hackworth said.

Softball makes Doug feel good still. Currently his Prestonsburg Businessmen team is the most improved club in the league and he says "this is the most fun I've had in all my years in the league. I'm happy with this team. Five men on this year's team have played with Doug on other teams in the past. They are Blake Meadows, Truman Griffith, Tony Burchett, Daryl Allen and Greg Dixon.

Burchett remembers Doug contributing more than just time and effort in the league. "Twice Doug saved up his money to pay for West Prestonsburg's entry fee (which was $100 per season at that time) and then he paid for the team's entry fee in a tournament once that cost $50 then. After Doug got us in the league, we bought our own shirts. That was our full uniform then."

Doug and Tony then reminisced about two games that particularly stood out in their minds during their eight years of playing at the same time.

"In the early 1970's we were leading East Kentucky Auto Parts 1-0 in the third inning and they came back to beat us 4-1," Burchett laughed, "I think they scored 25 runs in their half of the third."

"They wanted us to call the game after they got so far in front, but I wouldn't do it. I like to play when I come to a game and I don't like to win games by forfeit, I want to play them" win or lose. Doug added, "What was surprising about our loss to Auto Parts was that the next week we beat Hippo by a big score and they went on to win the league that year."

The other game Doug remembered vividly was a come from behind win against heavily favored B and D. "In 1975 B and D had a fine team and they were supposed to win it all or at least be in the top two or three. They led us (the last West Prestonsburg team) 12-2 in the bottom of the seventh and we scored eleven runs without an out to win 14-12. That was an exciting comeback."

LAWSON SETS RECORD

National Mines' slugger, Keith Lawson, set an Archer Park record with three home runs in a single game to lead his team to a win over Petry's last week. Lawson's homers move him into a first place tie with Larry Woods. Each has six.

Keith is on a home run tear. During the 4th of July tourney he hit three out (those did not count on the league home run race) and he came within a yard of hitting out a fourth homer in the Petry's game.

'Yankee Fever' Sweeps Area

"Yankee Fever" has caught on in Eastern Kentucky. Attendance figures released this week by the Paintsville-Tri County Yankees show that through nine home games 7,611 fans have passed through the turnstiles for a per game average of 845.

That figure is considered excellent by both the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and the parent club, the New York Yankees.

Two big nights have helped boost the per game average. An opening night crowd of 1,781 and an attendance of 1,631 on July 5 were the largest of the young season.

Club directors are hopeful of drawing 25,000 fans this year, and they believe that goal is realistic because of the heavy schedule of promotional nights planned. A team spokesman said directors of the club are especially pleased with regional support from Pike, Knott, Floyd, Martin, Magoffin and Lawrence counties.

Last season, the Appalachian League attendance leader was Johnson City, which drew 40,000, Bristol reported a figure of 32,000.

Paintsville-Tri County is representing the smallest population area ever to be a member of the National Association.

Coonhunters Name Saturday's Winners

The Big Sandy Coonhunters Association ended its second runoff hunt, last Saturday night.

The results of the six hunts and winner of the Kroher Wheat light given by the club to the hunter with the highest score of plus points, follows:

First—Robert N. Moore, 543½ plus points; second—Herbert Hall, 450 plus points; third—Linzee Hunt, 393½ plus points; fourth—Curt Blackburn, 368½ plus points; fifth—Ronnie Marsillett, 250 plus points; sixth—Johnnie C. Adams, 218½ plus points; seventh—Lester Blankenship, 150 plus points.

The club will sponsor its second U.K.C. night hunt of the year Saturday, July 28, at Archer Park.

A total of 17 trophies will be awarded to the dogs with total score of plus points only during the hunt including one grand night champion class, one night champion class, ten registered classes and five grade classes.

Deadline for registration of entries will be at 8 p.m.

Johnson Team Wins Babe Ruth Tourney At New Allen Park

Floyd county's first Babe Ruth League tournament, held at the new Floyd County Park at Allen, ended Sunday night with Johnson County the winners in both the 13- and 15-year-old team competition.

Earsel Lee Frazier, president of the Floyd County Babe Ruth League and tournament director, said that this, the first Babe Ruth League tourney ever held in the county, was possible this year because of the county park. Heretofore, there was no field available for play.

Five teams, Johnson County, Hazard, Carr Fork, Martin County and Floyd County, took part in the tournament which was plagued by rainy weather. Team effort was not dampened, however, and those attending saw spirited play.

In the final game Sunday night, Johnson County defeated Hazard in both brackets with the 15-year-old score at 6 and 1 and the 13-year-old, 6 to 3.

Floyd County's All-Stars lost by the narrowest of margins to Hazard, 9-8, in Saturday night's game.

Monday night, Johnson County played Pikeville at Paintsville's Yankee Field for the district championship. The winner of that game will go to the state finals.

To Make Canoe Trip From Breaks of Sandy

Two Prestonsburg men will make a canoe trip next Sunday which they think is the first to be undertaken in modern times.

The two, Basil Marsh and Tommy Cesco, of Town & Country Ford, will leave the canyon area in Breaks Interstate Park, early Sunday morning, and paddle their way—hopefully—over shoals, rapids and eddies to a landing at West Prestonsburg by nightfall.

Baby Food-Why Not Make Your Own?

By Abigail Schade

A young mother spoons a nationally advertised brand of strained carrots into her five-month-old son's eager mouth. Each ounce costs her about 4.5¢. With each mouthful, she also feeds him added salt, sugar, and modified food starch.

Next door, her neighbor is also offering strained carrots to her hungry infant. This baby is eating carrots with no additives, however, and they cost 2.3¢ an ounce.

Did the second woman find a sale on baby food? In a sense, she did—but it's one she discovered in her own kitchen, not in the supermarket. She makes her own baby food from some of the same foods she, her husband, and their four-year-old eat regularly. She doesn't need to shop for special baby foods; furthermore, she can control more closely the ingredients her baby is using to build his body. Last, but certainly not least in this age of the diminishing dollar, she saves about 66% of the overall cost of commercially manufactured baby food.

The Natural Way

Not surprisingly, more and more mothers of infants are taking this approach, because store-bought baby foods come up short on several scales when weighed against homemade ones.

The delight with which women discovered commercial baby food decades ago turned to dismay several generations later when the nation began re-examining its attitudes toward nutrition. Baby food, like many other American products, has been made, at least until very recently, in a way advantageous to the processor, but not necessarily to the little people who consume it.

Companies discovered that the addition of sugar and food starch minimized the manufacturing costs and extended the shelf life—starch by preventing the separation of ingredients (as well as thickening the pureed food), sugar by preserving and restoring flavor lost in the pulverization, sterilization, and storage processes. Moreover, the baby food companies knew who was plunking down the money; when mothers tasted baby food without salt or sugar, they found it bland and not very appetizing.

In reality, of course, babies under six months are much more interested in texture than they are in taste. Research has found that the taste for added sugar and salt, which have been linked to serious disease, not to mention tooth decay, is acquired at an early age. Babies fed these extra seasonings began wanting more and more of them, while those infants subsisting on an unsalted and unsugared diet got plenty of both in their naturally-occurring forms of food.

Two of the major manufacturers stopped adding salt to their products in 1977 and now list the percentage of added sweetener on the label; other companies are considering these measures. But these companies still add modified food starch, which contributes only calories and often gives a false impression of thickness to the puree.

You Can Do It Yourself

Baby food is just a puree, either straight or with water added, made so that an infant can swallow and digest it easily. You can get the same results with a big electric mixer, a blender, a food processor, or, if you want to get fancy, a special baby-food grinder. All you do is puree or pulverize food, cool it quickly, pour it into ice cube trays for freezing (the kind with individual units is best), and cover with aluminum foil or freezer wrap. After the food is frozen solid, remove the cubes from the tray to a plastic freezer bag, label with the food's name and the date it was made, and return it to the freezer. Then you can thaw and use the cubes as you need them; all you need is a half hour thawing time before baby's mealtime, or you can warm them quickly on the stove.

Ice cube trays will help you freeze large amounts of food for your baby in convenient, individual servings. A six-month old infant will probably eat one or two of these "food cubes" per meal. For long-term storage, bag cubes of similar food groups (protein, fruit, vegetable, cereal) for easy menu planning later.

The principle is simple and so is the procedure. For example, put 3/4 cup of cooked vegetables (asparagus, lima or green beans, spinach, carrots, peas, or sweet potatoes) and 1/4 cup of water in a blender, cover, and puree for 50 seconds. One half cup of fruit (sliced bananas, pitted apricots, or diced apples), plus 2 tablespoons of water or fruit juice blended for 10 seconds provides the equivalent of strained fruits. These recipes can be expanded using the same ratio of measurements.

You can also duplicate "main dishes" for your child. In a blender, puree 3/4 cup of cooked meat (beef, veal, or liver), 3 tablespoons of cooked vegetables, and 1/2 cup of liquid (milk, water, tomato juice, vegetable juice) for 15 seconds or a little longer. A little cooked rice, noodles, or cereal can also be added.

Fish is even easier to prepare with vegetables for an all-in-one stew. Just steam fresh vegetables and add a lean white fish filet during the last 10-15 minutes. Or puree 1 cup of cooked white flaked fish in a blender with 1/4 cup of milk, water, or vegetable juice, and perhaps a little butter or mayonnaise. Either way you prepare it, though, fish has one drawback: you must go through it very carefully to look for bones which can choke and kill a baby. Even supposedly "boneless" filets must be checked.

Taking It Slowly

It's wise to pay close attention to your infant's likes and dislikes. Pureed food is the natural intermediate step between mother's milk and solid food, but it's best to introduce new foods one at a time, leaving at least 3-4 days between these introductions to make sure the child has no allergic reaction to anything. Foods which commonly produce allergic reactions include:

- orange juice
- egg white
- chocolate
- nuts
- berries
- seafood
- green beans
- green leafy vegetables.

If he doesn't like something, don't insist that he eat it. Wait a few weeks and try again. Babies' appetites are as subject to whim as anyone else's.

Recipes For Baby

Following are several easy recipes you can make which will add to your infant's well-balanced diet:

VEGETABLE EGG YOLK CUSTARD (from The Complete Guide to Preparing Baby Foods at Home, published by Doubleday & Co., 1973)

1/4 cup vegetable puree (asparagus, broccoli, peas or sweet potatoes—prepare by steaming vegetable until soft; then put through a food mill)
1 egg yolk, beaten
1/4 cup milk (whole or skim)
1/2 teaspoon honey or brown sugar
Preheat oven to 350° F. Blend together vegetable, egg yolk, milk, and honey or brown sugar. Pour into two custard cups and place in pan of water. Bake for 30 minutes or until knife comes out clean. (The cups may also be placed in a pan of simmering water for 10 minutes. Yield: 2 servings. (Note: This should not be frozen. You can refrigerate the custard for up to three days.)

LIVER AND BACON DINNER

1/4 cup beef broth
1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup cubed cooked liver
2 strips crisp bacon
1/4 cup cooked potatoes
Put all ingredients into blender; cover and puree until smooth. Heat until warm. Yield: 1 serving.

Have Passport, Will Travel

By Ladislav Reday

Passports have been around a long time. Romans used a document for travel, called a "diplomata", which enabled the bearer to obtain horses from the state postal service and to pass unmolested through the Roman Empire.

The word passport comes to us from the French verb "passer" (to pass) and the word port, meaning either a seaport or the opening or gate through the city walls.

Neutral merchant vessels in times of war were provided with "passports" to enable them to pass blockades and belligerent warships and to enter some ports unmolested.

The first passports were issued in America in the late 1700's for any travel "in the Indian lands south of the Ohio River." What the Indians did when presented with these passports is not recorded. Presumably when presented at army posts, the passport allowed the holder to pass through, perhaps with an escort from the soldiers. Some easterners say the practice should never have been stopped.

Passports grew in the period after World War II into a sort of international pawn in foreign policy, and the stateless nationals whose countries no longer existed as such had real problems. Many nations did not recognize the inherent right of their citizens to travel freely from their own countries. Some still do not allow their citizens to travel freely abroad.

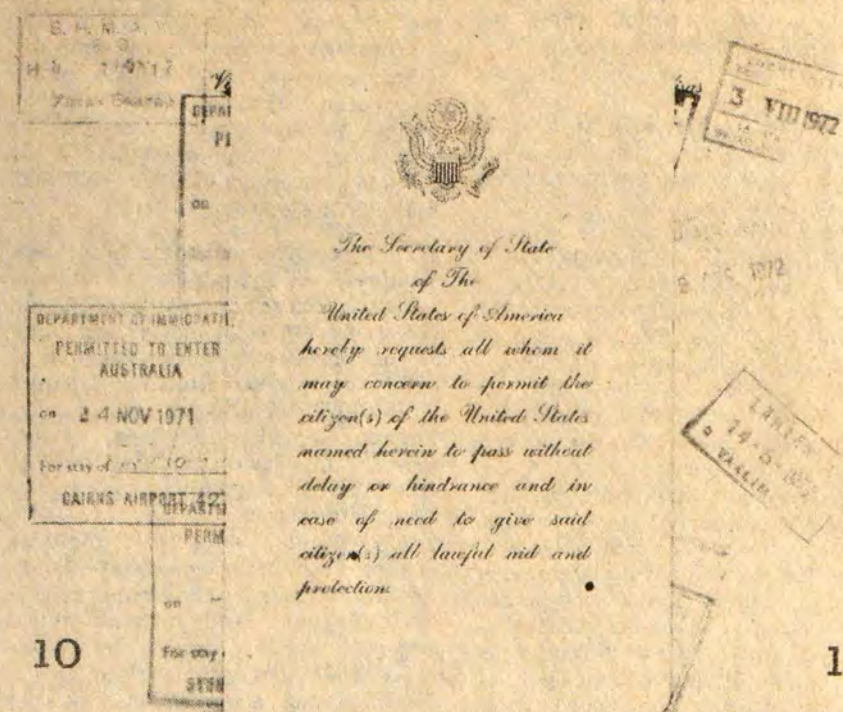

Only a decade ago, even our own United States withheld issuance of passports to citizens whom they felt were up to no good in proceeding to certain countries whose politics or foreign policy ran counter to our own, or were considered dangerous. Happily, these restrictions are now lifted. Unless there is danger to the citizen and the United States cannot offer protection, there are no obstacles.

Visas are required to visit many countries, especially behind the iron and bamboo curtain countries. No visas are required in Europe, and there is a movement for a Europassport to be issued.

Many European countries and all communist countries take your passport on arrival at the hotel, causing many an uneasy feeling when wandering about passportless in a strange city.

What do you do if questioned for identification, or if you are involved in an accident, or simply need to cash a traveler's check? Usually you get your passport back the next morning, but the returning process is fairly casual. Your passport is returned when you ask for your room key from a desk clerk who doesn't know you. Presumably, any reasonably dressed individual could come in off the street and get your room key and passport, and the opportunity to rob your room as well.

You could have an extra pocket sewn inside your clothes so that your passport and cash are safe from any but a razor-cutting pickpocket. Even then, unless you shower, swim and sleep in these same clothes, there must be a time when theft or loss are still possible.

Replacing Your Passport

What do you do if you lose your passport, or if it is stolen?

If you are still in the United States, the quickest method is to notify the passport agency from which you obtained the passport. Then notify the local police. If you are not near home or near the agency where you applied for your passport, you can contact the Passport Office at the Department of State in Washington, D.C.

Local state department offices, some federal and state courthouses, and 900 designated class 1 post offices also issue passports. In this country, you will usually pay a replacement fee of about $10.

What happens if you are stranded alone in a foreign country and your passport is stolen or lost?

Last year, the Department of State estimated that 25,000 American passports would be lost or stolen. If it happens to you, it can be a serious matter.

"There are methods by which passports can be altered to a new identity and used illegally," advise the passport agencies of the Department of State. "Those alterations can be readily detected on entry into the United States, but abroad it can mean trouble."

Your first step is to notify the nearest U.S. embassy or consulate immediately. Report the matter fully to the local police. The passport may have been picked up if it was lost or left in a store or hotel, or discarded by some thief who lifted it while you were sunning on the beach.

The Department of State, through offices in 250 American embassies and consulates in foreign countries, can help you replace your passport. They can issue a replacement passport, valid for 5 years just as your original was. The fee is usually $13. If you cannot pay, they will issue one free, but it will only be good for the duration of your trip.

In an emergency, they may be able to issue a replacement the same day. However, if they have to cable or telex the Department of State in Washington, the expense and delay may be greater.

Be Prepared

Being able to establish your identity and U.S. citizenship can avoid some of the difficulty. Identification, such as a birth certificate (unlikely when you are abroad, the passport agency admits) or a driver's license, or even credit cards can help.

The more information you have about your passport, the easier it will be to replace it. Ideally, you should keep the number of your passport, date and place of issue on a piece of paper and carry it separately from your passport.

Some seasoned travelers make photocopies of their passports and the inside page of particulars; they keep the copies in their wallets and luggage. The photocopy is sufficient to show that they did have a passport, and it contains all the details of the number and issuance.

Passport people, when questioned about this safeguard, are dubious about the wisdom. Officially, there has been no ruling on whether the State Department approves of such a precaution, since the copies could be lost or stolen or used illegally to cash counterfeit traveler's checks (a growing industry abroad these days) and for other unlawful purposes.

The loss of your international identification document in a strange country can be a frightening experience. Even if you still have your traveler's checks, you may find it extremely difficult to cash them without your passport.

Traveling through the country to locate the nearest embassy can be a problem. If you have a photocopy of your passport, local police can check it to verify that you did once have the original document. They could then use it as a bulletin or even issue you a police pass for temporary travel within the country. You may need such a police travel authorization if you have to travel any distance to find the consulate or embassy which can issue a replacement for your passport.

When you are traveling abroad, you may be approached by someone who wants to borrow, or even buy, your passport. Remember that although consulates and embassies have broad-based power to replace your passport, it's a felony to use it fraudulently.

If, despite all your precautions, you and your passport part company, don't despair. Through the State Department, you have representatives in another nation, placed there to help you.

Your own creativity can help, too. One weight-lifter was able to travel throughout the China mainland by presenting his ornate weight-lifter's certificate, complete with red seal and rosette.

It might have been as Dryden said, "His passport was his innocence and grace," but more likely the Chinese admired his weight-lifting ability more than diplomatic credentials!

Get Rolling With Skateboarding

By Richard Lacayo

Separately, the parts are rarely lethal, but together, a 27-inch plank and four roller skate wheels can injure, cripple and even kill. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, roughly 87,000 skateboarders required emergency hospital treatment in 1978. One third of that number suffered fractures. Twenty-five of them died.

Statistics like those make it obvious why there should be growing concern about the safety of skateboarding, which has caught the imagination of millions of kids around the country. Skateboarding has taken off: in 1973, nationwide retail volume amounted to only about $4 million; last year it climbed to over $500 million, most of that spent for new boards, which can range in price from $10 to $120. (You can even buy a motorized skateboard, called a motoboard, for about $350.)

But as sales have spurted, so have injuries—only 3,680 were reported in 1973—and most of the injured are very young, between 10 and 14 years old. Many of the victims had been skating for less than a week. Most of them were seriously hurt on their first time out on a board.

Some Safety Tips

There are ways to minimize skateboard injuries if a few simple precautions are followed.

First off, the skateboard itself should be in top condition. A new board should permit some wobble from side to side—flexibility is needed for turning maneuvers—but not so much "play" that it rocks like the deck of a ship in rough seas.

Wheels and bearings, nuts and connections should be checked and tightened regularly. The trucks—the t-bars that connect the wheels to the board—should be securely fastened. The board should be free of splits or cracks, and its surface should be of some non-skid material.

Next, the skateboarder should be properly decked-out: knee pads, long pants, long sleeve shirts, shoes, elbow pads and thick gloves. Ordinary work gloves won't do—the hands take much of the punishment when skateboarders hit the ground. A helmet is crucial: all of the fatalities last year were the result of head injuries.

Finally, there are important precautions to take while on the board. First, parents who do much of the initial buying should take into consideration the age of their potential skateboarder. Kids under the age of thirteen may lack the muscular co-ordination to maintain balance, to say nothing of the judgment to determine which skateboard tricks are too risky.

Here are a few more common sense safety tips for skateboarders:

- Don't try a fancy trick until you are sure you are ready for it.
- Skateboard in parks, or on streets where there is little traffic.
- Obey all traffic regulations and road etiquette. Remember that the streets belong to cars and pedestrians first.

- Don't cross intersections on your skateboard—carry it across.

- Never skate blindly into a street from behind a parked car. An approaching driver may not see you on your board until it is too late to stop.

- Avoid skating from a hard surface, like a sidewalk, onto a soft one, like soil or grass.

- Skateboard only when weather conditions are favorable.

- Learn the proper way to fall—you'll be doing plenty of it. Gymnastics classes might be helpful here. In general, you should break your fall with your hands.

In a few areas of the country, like California, Texas, Florida and parts of the Northeast, skateparks have been organized where you can fly around on a curving cement course under supervision that ranges from minimal to substantial. But even the most dimly understaffed skatepark is preferable to none, since all of them require you to wear protective gear.

Skateboarding can be lots of fun—but only if you do it safely.

New Methods To End Special Districts

Methods for dissolving special districts were changed for a third time by a legislative task force recently. The new proposal provides for dissolution by a petition of 51 percent of residents using the services of the district.

It grants the county authority to dissolve a district when it feels the service can be performed by the county at the same or lower rate than is currently charged. A county government may also act to dissolve when a district has failed to provide the service for which it was created for three consecutive years. When a county acts, however, the new legislative draft will allow for a recall petition by 25 percent of the residents using the services of the district.

Making Your Way Into a Blue-Collar Job

By Muriel Lederer

Almost 6 million American women hold non-traditional blue-collar jobs. Every day, more women are finding satisfying, lucrative careers in the skilled trades. If you're a woman who thinks wearing a blue-collar sounds like a good idea, here are some jobs to consider:

- A tool-and-die maker builds, modifies and repairs tools, dies, and other special devices used to mass-produce metal parts. It is precise work requiring mechanical and manual dexterity, patience, concentration and a good working knowledge of math. Training is available through technical or community colleges or through a 4-year apprenticeship program. Pay averages $8 an hour.

- A millwright moves and installs heavy industrial machinery. You must know how to dismantle, reassemble, align, repair and maintain complex equipment. Skill in reading blueprints and working with building materials can be acquired on the job or with a 4-year apprenticeship. You'll need mechanical aptitude, visual judgement, and physical strength. Pay averages $7.25 an hour.

- A photographic laboratory worker develops and prints film, makes slides, and enlarges and retouches photographic film. You'll need on-the-job training plus photography courses from a high school, trade school, or community college. Pay averages $6 an hour.

- A waste-water treatment plant operator operates and maintains pumps, pipes, and valves to process and purify drinking water. To read meters and gauges, record flow and make minor mechanical repairs, you must be agile, have stamina, good eyesight and hearing, and be concerned about accuracy. Pay averages $9,000 to $13,000 per year.

- A welder works in manufacturing, construction or repair services, using intense heat or pressure-generating equipment to cut metals or bond them together permanently. The job requires stamina, steady hands, good hand-eye coordination and mechanical ability, plus precision and ability to concentrate. Training can last anywhere from a few weeks of on-the-job training for semi-skilled jobs to 4 years for apprenticeships. Training is also available in 1-2 year courses in vocational schools. Pay averages $9 an hour.

- A nuclear technician assists a nuclear engineer in the research, development, and production of nuclear devices and atomic power plants. In nuclear medicine, the technician aids in diagnosis and treatment of diseases. To do this work you need accuracy, on-the-job training, and a 2-year course in a community college. Pay averages $5 an hour.

- A jeweler or jewelry repairer makes and repairs jewelry, and works with precious or semi-precious stones set in metals. You can train on-the-job or in private vocational schools, home study courses, community colleges, or 3-4 year apprenticeships. Pay averages $6 an hour.

- A television and radio repairer tests for cause of breakdown, changes tubes or other parts, installs and repairs antennas and makes other necessary adjustments. Besides an interest and aptitude in electronics, you need good hand-eye coordination, manual dexterity and good color vision. Some lifting and carrying of equipment is required. Training is available in 2-4 year courses in vocational and technical schools, community colleges, the Armed Forces and home study schools. Pay averages $5 an hour.

If you decide a job in the skilled trades is for you, here are some steps you can take to get started towards your goal:

Be aware of the laws and their enforcement provisions for equal opportunity in employment, education, and training.

Try the labor unions. They don't just hand out jobs and your reception may be less than enthusiastic, but some of them can direct you to training and counseling or job opportunities in their fields.

Contact federal, state, and local agencies. Some school districts have started recruiting women into vocational training programs. The State Director of Vocational Education, and offices of the U.S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training (located in every state) can direct you to specific programs in your area. Check with your city government's women's division, to see if they have any Affirmative Action projects.

Your local YWCA. Many Y's have started good programs to train and help place women in nontraditional jobs.

Once you are on the work site, realize that you may encounter difficulties in working with male co-workers if there aren't many other women on the job. Don't give up in the face of a few hardships if this is the job you want...and you know you can do it.

Mondale's Energy Speech: United We Stand

Americans working together—pooling their technology and ingenuity—is one of the most important answers to meeting the needs of the present energy crisis, Vice President Walter F. Mondale told a group of the nation's governors in Louisville Sunday.

Mondale, addressing the opening session of the 71st annual meeting of the National Governors' Association, said the Carter administration is presently preparing a comprehensive plan to meet the challenge of the nation's energy situation. However, he told the governors the only way the present situation can be combated is by Americans working together.

"If we are to win this fight," Mondale said, "we'll win it together. If we lose this fight, we lose it together."

President Carter was to have appeared before the governors' association, but canceled his plans last Thursday to conduct energy strategy meetings at Camp David, Md.

Mondale used his time before the association to outline the Carter Administration's "two-pronged strategy" for dealing with the current energy crisis. The plan is aimed at dealing with current shortages and increasing production of fuel within the United States.

Mondale said negotiations have begun with Mexico for exporting natural gas to America. International price moderation and increased fuel production internationally is being called for by representatives of the government, he added.

Constructing oil pipeline linkups with mid-American states and diminishing current red-tape problems for national energy projects are also seen as necessary in aiding the energy situation, Mondale added.

While refineries will be pressed to increase output of fuel, Mondale said 200 auditors will keep close watch to see that windfall profits are not made by the oil companies during "our national distress."

Congressional consensus for standby gas rationing also is a vital part of the Carter strategy, the vice president concluded.

Meanwhile, the government will be working to develop the nation's available resources. He pointed out funding for solar energy had been tripled by the Carter administration, and $4 billion is now being invested in new energy research and technology.

American has the resources, the manpower and the technology to undertake the search for energy sources, he said. The important thing is that research in the areas of coal, wind, solar, geothermal, shale, tar-sand, biomass and synthetics begin immediately.

Mondale told the governors there is a threat that dependency on foreign oil could eventually dictate foreign policy for the U.S.

He was applauded when he emphasized that the only ones to say anything about American policies are the citizens of this nation. "Our independence has been threatened before," he said. "Every time there has been a new challenge, American spirit has risen to meet it...Americans now must be ready to face the facts and make sacrifices to build a better future."

After Mondale's speech, the governors addressed energy and budget questions to Jack Watson, chairman of the President's Task Force on Energy Shortages, and James McIntyre, director of the nation's office of management and budget, respectively.

Oil supplies to New England states for the coming winter, de-allocation of diesel fuel to aid independent truckers, easing of air pollution standards, establishment of uniform truck length and weight regulations and the future of revenue sharing funds were topics of concern during the question-and-answer session.

Development Council Ends Recommendations for Area

The Appalachian Development Council (ADC) met in Pikeville late last month to complete recommendations which will be submitted to Gov. Julian Carroll's Economic Development Commission for consideration in the legislative package for the 1980 General Assembly.

Dr. W. C. Hambley, mayor of Pikeville and chairman of the council's Intergovernmental Relations Committee, welcomed participants to "the heart of Appalachia."

Hambley told council members, "There has to come a time when eastern Kentucky has to use its resources and people to become a part of this country on its own two feet."

He said the area's proper role in the economy of the country is in the contribution of coal. "Our main interest is to use all the forces we can muster to urge the legislature to bring out eastern Kentucky to its fullest."

Ralph Coldiron, executive director of the ADC, said the recommendations, which stem from the Appalachian Development Conference held a year ago in Morehead, form a solid base for future action by the council.

"Our job is to continue with a solid voice for Appalachia to insure these recommendations are carried forth," Coldiron said.

The council reviewed the articles of incorporation and bylaws for the Greater Appalachian Economic and Cultural Development Foundation that will encompass a 49-county area.

The foundation will temporarily be located at Morehead State University in order to utilize resources at the school's Appalachian Development Center.

G. B. Johnson Jr., council chairman, said the foundation will in no way be affiliated with the university, but the location will enable the foundation to "develop an independent organization."

The non-profit foundation is being organized to encourage charitable, cultural, educational, scientific and economic activities for the benefit of the area.

Johnson asked the council to formulate the most effective method of addressing recurring problems including adequate road construction and workmen's compensation to satisfy needs throughout the area.

Mayor Hambley said local capabilities are not being used to their potential to solve difficulties. He pointed out vast improvements that have occurred in Prestonsburg and Paintsville as a result of local effort.

In conclusion, the council charged its five committees to identify one area each considers the most urgent need in Appalachia. Committee chairmen are to submit a program design at the next council meeting scheduled for sometime in August.

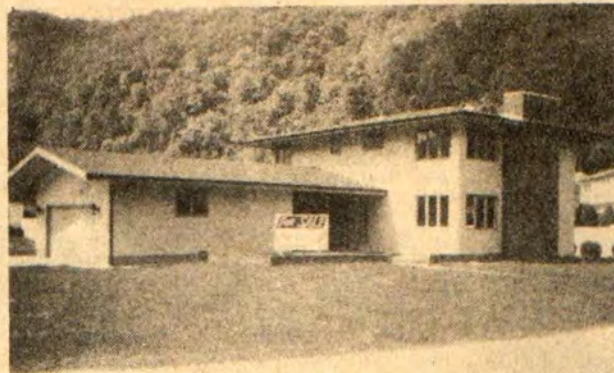

Coal Lauded by New Chairman Big Sandy ADD

Criticizing the portrait of coal company personnel as "villains rather than citizens," Pike County Judge Wayne Rutherford recently lauded coal as the nation's salvation during two World Wars, and predicted that it would again save the nation in the current energy crisis.

Rutherford, who was conducting his first meeting as the new chairman of the Big Sandy Area Development District, said that the September meeting of the AD district would focus on support for the coal industry.

Paul Fyffe, the meeting's principal speaker, argued that regional support is necessary to the continued survival of Paintsville's Yankees. The Paintsville broadcaster was instrumental in bringing minor league baseball to the Big Sandy area. Pike County Planner Dave Chaffin presented a slide program depicting various Pike county development projects.

Pikeville College Hosts Synod School

From Friday to Sunday, July 1, Pikeville College played host to a Presbyterian Synod School. The Synod of the Covenant serving Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky highlighted the special regional study in Pikeville with a study course called "Mission Focus—Appalachia," which included a tour of the sites of the missions of Eastern Kentucky. Dr. Jackson Hall, president of Pikeville College, and Dr. Roger Keller, associate vice-president for development, talked of the mission of Pikeville College and of their commitment to the students of Appalachia. They described Pikeville's graduates as special people, rich in the heritage of the region, yet fully developed, total persons ready to take their places in today's complex world.

Group leaders for the Synod School at Pikeville were A. D. Ellison, of Whitesburg, and Joyce Smith, of Louisville.

Yatesville Project Listed In Appropriations Bill

With two senators pushing to review projects in their home states, the Senate Appropriations Committee finished work last Friday on a $10.8 billion energy and water resources appropriations bill that invited a showdown with President Carter.

Making a comeback in the legislation that is headed for Senate floor action early next week are the Yatesville Lake and Dam project in Kentucky and the Bayou Badcou Levy in Louisiana.

Sens. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., and J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., pushed for inclusion of those projects in the measure to find out how serious Carter is about killing them and other projects that won congressional approval years ago.

Yatesville Lake and Dam in Lawrence County is a flood control and recreation project that is supposed to hold back waters that periodically cause flooding along the Big Sandy River.

About 80 percent of the land has been acquired and about 11 percent of the construction was completed when the $45 million project was halted.

The Yatesville project was among 18 "unwanted" water projects, most of them located in western states, that were on the Carter administration's so-called "hit list." Congress was persuaded to deny funding for the 18 projects in 1977. Carter subsequently vetoed the 1978 appropriation for water resources development because it contained funds for six of the 18 "hit list" projects.

Carter argued that Congress had agreed in 1977 to kill all 18 projects forever. On the other hand, supporters of the six revived projects said they only agreed to suspend funding for one year.

Huddleston argued for Yatesville's revival as a test of Carter's determination to kill the projects.

"It's never been dead," a Huddleston aide claimed. "We've been trying the last two or three years to overcome the 'hit list.' Now Huddleston has come up with an approach to force their hand...to see if they're still serious about it."

Shortly after the committee's action last Wednesday, James McIntyre Jr., director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), sent letters to Huddleston and Johnston advising that he would ask Carter to veto the legislation if it contained funds for the two projects.

According to sources, Huddleston did not view McIntyre's letter as a clear signal of Carter's intentions.

But on Thursday the OMB director sent an even stronger message to Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

In his letter to Magnuson, McIntyre said he had been "authorized" to say that the president would use his veto powers to deny funds for the Kentucky and Louisiana water projects.

Huddleston, according to an aide, "would have preferred a letter from the president himself."

"I don't know what's going to happen," the aide added, explaining that the two senators were planning to get together this weekend and decide whether they should continue their efforts to revive their homestate projects.

"At the moment, you could say Yatesville is teetering on the cliff. But it's been there a couple of times before," Huddleston's aide said.

WHAT DO YOU THINK, ENERGY GROWS ON TREES?

Buck Stove Owners Know It Does.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if energy grew on trees? Every morning the sun could come up and, from sea to shining sea, America could sprout a little more energy.

Naturally, energy does grow on trees. Trees, in fact, are our only expandable energy source.

The only problem with using energy from trees has been that the sun does a great job of packing energy into trees, but people do a poor job of getting it out again.

Until Buck Stove, that is. Buck Stove is almost as good at getting energy out of trees as nature is at getting it into them. Buck Stove is the wood stove for modern America.

How well do Buck Stoves work? Well, a recent owner survey uncovered the fact that 96% of the families surveyed used their Buck Stove as their primary heat source. Doesn't that tell you something?

Another interesting fact came to light during this survey. Of all the really great reasons for buying a Buck Stove (like saving 50—80% on your heating bills, as a majority of our customers do), fully 48% of the customers surveyed listed outstanding quality as their number one reason for buying a Buck Stove.

Of course, this didn't surprise us. We know all about that quality: which is why we can conditionally guarantee your Buck Stove for the lifetime of the original owner.

Buck Stoves are safe and easy to install, too. These all-steel, heavy-duty stoves meet the strict safety standards set by the National Fire Protection Association and Underwriter's Laboratories. And every Buck Stove dealer has trained, certified installers who assure you of the safest, most effective installation. Or, you can even do it yourself.

Because energy grows on trees, and money doesn't, Buck Stove is the sensible alternative for the American homeowner.

Music No Problem for Theatre As Father, Daughter Perform

When Bill Campbell, manager of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, first learned that the theatre was going to do "The Robber Bridegroom," one of his biggest worries was the music.

Because "The Robber Bridegroom" has lots of fiddle playing and square dancing in it, Campbell anticipated having problems in producing the right "foot-stomping" sound from a band that is accustomed to playing run-of-the-mill theatre music that is much more subdued in style.

After hearing the first musical rehearsal for "The Robber Bridegroom" which goes into its final week at Jenny Wiley beginning tonight (Wednesday), Campbell heaved a sigh of relief. This year's band, he learned, is able to play anything and everything, with as much or as little "foot-stomping" as the director calls for.

Part of the reason for that, according to Campbell, is the fiddle playing team of Buddy Ratcliff and his daughter, Angie. From the moment they appear at the rear of the theatre to "warm up" the audience each night with a square dance, the Ratcliffs perform with an enthusiasm and a professionalism that Campbell calls amazing.

That professionalism is actually not all that remarkable when one considers the musical backgrounds of the two. Buddy Ratcliff has been playing music since he was a boy of 18 in nearby Martin. His musical talent is apparent in the number of instruments that he picked up in his 30 years of so of playing: he now plays the piano, the bass, the guitar and the mandolin, in addition to the fiddle.

Jesse Elliot taught him to read music, and Buddy soon found himself playing for some of the top country and western groups in the country, among them Little Jimmy Dickens and Flatt and Scruggs.

In addition to this work with the top country and western professionals, Ratcliff also formed a family group called, of course, the Ratcliff Family Band. That group, he said, just plays for "different occasions," such as music festivals or parties.

Even though she has not had Buddy's varied musical experience, daughter Angie clearly holds her own when playing for "Robber." Beginning her sophomore year as a music major at Morehead State University this year, Angie has been playing the fiddle only two years. Despite that, she plays for the Morehead State Symphony, as well as a bluegrass group called The Clack Mountaineers. She is, of course, a member of the Ratcliff Family Band and she also plays the piano, the flute and the French horn.

The Ratcliffs got involved with the Jenny Wiley Theatre in a sort of "back-door" manner. Buddy, a piano tuner, showed up at the theatre one day to tune the piano. Someone found out that he fiddled, and he was invited to play at a get-together of the theatre cast. That led to his invitation to play "Robber."

Even though Buddy has never done any sort of theatre orchestra work before, he enjoys playing for Jenny Wiley.

"It's really pretty interesting," he said. "I seem to be able to adapt to this sort of thing...I'd like to do it again."

Angie, who had a similar job when she played with the Morehead symphony for the production of "West Side Story," agrees. "I like playing here a lot," she said.

Their enjoyment is apparent in the enthusiastic way they approach their music. When they first saw the score for "The Robber Bridegroom," they were not pleased with the square dances that were written. (They weren't authentic, according to Angie.) When the performance rolled around, the square dances had been changed to ones that were authentic.

The Ratcliffs are also pretty perfectionistic in their work. Campbell said that when they first began, they listened to the cast album quite a bit to figure out exactly how the music was going to sound. Recently, during intermission of a performance of "Robber," Buddy told an acquaintance that they "weren't playing too well tonight." Angie nodded in agreement.

When some audience members were later told, they were shocked. The music, they said, sounded beautiful.

"The Robber Bridegroom" continues at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday through July 15. "Starting Here, Starting Now" plays each Friday night through Aug. 17. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 886-9274 or writing the theatre at Box 22, Prestonsburg, 41653. Curtain time is 8:30.

Firm To Study Home Finance, Building

FRANKFORT, Ky. (July 12, 1979)—The Kentucky Housing Corp. board of directors has selected Sammer, Siler, George Associates to research the Kentucky construction industry and housing finance system as part of a statewide study. The economic consultant firm will do the research for $131,700, including all costs for personnel and direct costs associated with travel, report preparation and printing.

University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center is researching the demand for housing and needs of the population in Kentucky. This part of the study was authorized May 30 for about $60,000.

Both parts of the study should be completed by November. The findings will be presented during a series of regional public meetings in December, according to Diana L. Erickson, KHC director of planning and research.

The statewide study of housing supply and demand was undertaken to help define Kentucky Housing Corporation's role as the "lender of last resort," said Erickson. The corporation role is not to be in competition with lenders in the private sector, she said.

Mining Office Asks More Money of Feds

The budget request for the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is expected to be higher than last year's budget, according to Frank Harscher, deputy secretary of the department.

Among the factors expected to raise funding needs by the state Bureau of Surface Mining are: an increase in permit application expected for underground mining, an increase in the number of mine inspectors needed to meet inspection regulations, and the purchase of 50 to 60 new vehicles for the inspectors to use to visit their sites.

According to Harscher, the Department for Natural Resources is not getting the financial cooperation from the federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) it needs. A state budget is difficult to prepare since the OSM is uncertain as to how much funding it will supply, Harscher said.
