

WHERE SHE HOPED to be putting out beans and sweet corn, Luna Patton could only have raised frogs. Her Punkin Center garden was flooded last week when a culvert was blocked—by silt and debris from a neighbor's stripmine, Mrs. Patty says—and rainwater was unable to drain away. Even as she inspected the damage last Friday, a Chessie System crew drew up with a mechanical shovel—in background of picture—and cleared the obstruction.

Solid Waste Rates Upped $2 a Month

Under pressure from creditors, Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. voted recently to raise the rates for garbage collection in the county.

Effective immediately, householders who have been paying $6 a month for the weekly pickup service will be paying $8. The rate for senior citizens will rise from $4 to $6. Businesses, which are billed according to volume, will see a 15 percent hike.

Floyd County Solid Waste president Bob McAninch said this week the agency was directed by Robert Purdom, state local finance officer, to raise its rates in order to put the garbage system on a sounder financial footing. Along with the fee hike, the agency is stepping up efforts to get everybody onto the garbage pickup system and to see that they pay for the service, he said.

With the addition of 2100 new subscribers, 14,600 households now take the mandatory service, of whom about 70 percent pay their garbage bills, McAninch said. An ecology officer hired recently will police illegal dumps and violators will be prosecuted, he warned.

"I don't want anyone to think they're carrying the whole load," McAninch said. "We're mounting our own collection effort and we'll be turning bad debts over to the county prosecutor." The solid waste board turned down McAninch's proposal to hire an outside debt collection firm, however.

For more than a year, bondholders have exerted pressure on the solid waste agency to raise its rates in order to meet payments on the bonds and to replenish a depleted reserve account. A $73,000 bond payment is due at the end of this month, as is the retirement of a $26,000 First Commonwealth Bank loan. Moreover, the agency still owes creditors about $46,000 in back debts.

Al Howell, field officer with the state Local Finance office, is expected to urge the fiscal court at its April 20 meeting to budget $125,000 in county funds for the solid waste system next year, a proposal that could run into opposition from some magistrates.

Woman Says Mine Operation Made 'Frog Pond' of Garden

She hates to say it, but her neighbor is "a polluter of the earth," according to Luna Patton, of Punkin Center. And state environmental inspectors confirm that Junior "Red" Martin, who operated a stripmine across the road from Mrs. Patton until they shut it down last week, has a record of violating mining regulations.

But Martin, who says he has nothing against Mrs. Patton and can understand her feelings, insists she is putting the blame in the wrong place. The real culprits, he contends, are the operators who mined the site before him and the environmental officials themselves.

Trouble between the two property owners, who face each other across KY 7 near Estill, came to a head the week before last when Mrs. Patton returned from Lexington to enjoy her blossoming fruit trees and put out her garden, only to find garden and trees under water. Silt and debris washed off Martin's mine during recent rains had blocked a culvert, flooding her bottom land, she figured.

"You guys are selling coal and making big money...just sitting on your hill and laughing at me...and all I've got is a frog pond," Mrs. Patton said she told Martin.

It wasn't the first time—the same thing happened three years ago, she said—and she wasn't going to take it without a fight. "Just because I'm old and a woman, I'm not going to sit down and do nothing," she asserted. Mrs. Patton, whose husband, Morton, died last year, is 62.

She called in inspectors from the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet. She summoned a crew from the Chessie System, owners of the blocked culvert. She sued Junior Martin for damages.

Natural Resources inspector Johnnie E. Ross shut the mine down last Monday. Martin had mined beyond the two

In Ray-Mac Case...

Ten Defendants Win Acquittals

A federal court jury acquitted the remaining 10 defendants in the Ray-Mac case last Wednesday, ending the three-month trial of 18 men on charges of plotting violence early in 1982 to drive the Pikeville-based coal firm out of the McDowell coalfield.

Earlier, the jury convicted five defendants, including Edgar Jones, of Prestonsburg, president of JRM Coal Co. Inc., of conspiring to shut down the rival mine.

No one was convicted of charges stemming from shots fired at the mine during two days of picketing in February, 1982. But, in addition to conspiracy, Jones was found guilty of aiding and abetting the bombing of a Ray-Mac auger; four others—German Stumbo, 40, Teddy Kinney, 49, and Kenneth Rolland, 47, all of McDowell, and Mose Mead, 26, of Wayland—were convicted in the auger bombing as well as on conspiracy charges; and Mead and Stumbo were implicated also in the burning of a tippie leased by Ray-Mac.

Three defendants were acquitted the first full day the jury began its deliberation. They were: Donahue Halbert, 53, of Langleigh; Linville Mosley, 37, of McDowell; and Drexil Hall, 32, of East McDowell.

Acquitted on Wednesday, the fourth full day of deliberations, were: Raymond Hall, 39, Tim Milan, 25, Jason Moore, 45, Eugene Tackett, 36, and Harold Moore, 25, all of McDowell; Pebo Gayheart, of Ashtabula, Ohio, formerly of McDowell; Hermit Newsome, 38, of East McDowell; Austin "Bo" Moore, 25, of Minnie; Ranny Blankenship, 33, of Ligon; and Benny Caudill, 48, of Drift.

Those convicted in the case are free on bond or on their own recognizance pending sentencing, which U.S. Judge G. Wix Unthank has set for May 25.

Roof Collapse Claims Johnson

Jerry Ray Johnson, 27, of Teaberry, became the twelfth Kentucky miner to die in a mining accident this year.

Foreman at the Newsome Coal Company's Sargent No. 19 mine on Branham's Creek, near Galveston, Johnson was operating a scoop Monday night when a section of the mine roof fell on him. The accident occurred around 9:30 p.m.

Asked to describe the state's mining safety record this year, Richard A. Watts, district supervisor at the Department of Mines and Minerals office in Martin, said simply, "Bad." Only 14 fatalities were reported in Kentucky mines for the whole of last year, he explained.

Mining officials inspected the scene of the accident Tuesday.

Johnson was born March 12, 1957, the son of Kendrick and Larkie Hamilton Johnson, of Teaberry. He is survived also by his wife, Freda Howell Johnson; two children, Jerry Christopher and Christy Nicole; four brothers, Carl Douglas, Jimmy Darrell, Roy Gene and Billy Joe, all of Teaberry; and four sisters, Emma Sue Rogers, of Betsy Layne, Myredia Howell and Judy Hamilton, both of Teaberry, and Rachel Ann Coleman, of Dana.

Funeral arrangements, which are in the hands of the Hall Funeral Home, were incomplete Tuesday.

Campbell Says Lack of Room Poses Problem

If Prestonsburg Community College keeps growing at its present rate, not only will it no longer have space to host civic and other organizations but it will itself be begging for classroom space off campus, Director Henry A. Campbell said this week.

Dr. Campbell's remarks came in the wake of a veto by Gov. Martha Layne Collins of a last-minute state budget addition that would have made $2.5 million available for construction of another classroom block at the college.

Money for the new classrooms—and for a similar project at Hazard Community College—was inserted in the biennial budget by a legislative conference committee, reportedly at the insistence of Sen. Benny Ray Bailey.

In deleting them, the governor cited the state's tight finances and the relatively low ranking of the two classroom projects on a priority list submitted by the Council on Higher Education. Legislators later voted to uphold the veto.

Campbell, who heard of the veto while he was vacationing at Myrtle Beach, said he was "real disappointed" in the governor's action but "very proud and happy" for the support east Kentucky legislators gave the proposed appropriation. "Two years from now the building will be in (the budget)," he predicted.

Had the budget measure survived, a new classroom block would probably have opened for students in the fall, 1986 semester, Campbell said.

State To Rush Clear Cr. Dump Clearance Job

A slate dump at the head of Clear Creek will be reclaimed with federal funds, John Smiley, assistant director of the state Division of Abandoned Mine Lands, confirmed this week.

Ligon residents had complained that the waste dump, which towers above several Clear Creek homes, is saturated with water and could collapse.

Smiley said his department is "cutting through red tape" to speed up the reclamation effort. A Lexington engineering firm should finish the project design by June 30, construction could be let to bid by late August and, if the weather holds, it may be completed by Christmas, he said.

In that event, trees and grass will be sown on the reclaimed site next spring.

Fire Sweeps W'wright Buildings

Intense heat from a fire that destroyed two businesses and an apartment over one of them also left Wheelwright without telephone or TV service from around 1 a.m. Thursday until about 8 o'clock the following evening.

Work of members of five volunteer fire departments is credited with containing the blaze which destroyed the Hall & Couch Dollar Store and Jack's Restaurant, owned by John Melvin Hall, Jr., who, with his family, lived above the restaurant. Fire departments at the scene included Southeast, Wheelwright, Left Beaver, Martin and Knott County.

According to Haskell Hall, chief of the Southeast Volunteer Fire Department, when his group arrived the restaurant was expanding with heat and exploded shortly afterward, collapsing onto the adjacent Dollar Store. The two buildings are located between the Wheelwright High School and P.J.'s Hardware at Wheelwright Junction.

The blaze, believed to have started in the kitchen of the two-story restaurant building, has been investigated by Barry McKenzie, state police arson investigator.

Surgery A Snap For Granny Cotton

Granny Cotton, age 108, is back to her quilting after successful surgery at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

By AMY LIVELY

Elsie Wheeler, known to many in the area as Granny Cotton, enchanted the Operating Room staff at Highlands Regional Medical Center the moment she arrived at the hospital. She was scheduled for surgery for the first time in her life.

The Paintsville native was having a lesion removed from her right eye lid. "It interferes with my quilting," Granny explained, "so I need to have it taken off."

The surgery went smoothly and two hours after the procedure, Granny Cotton was on her way home to the Riverside Nursing Home in Prestonsburg. Granny Cotton has been a hospital patient only twice in her life, both times at Highlands Regional Medical Center. "They treat me real nice there," she said. When asked the secret to maintaining this astoundingly sound physical condition, she said, "The Lord keeps me happy and healthy."

Advanced years haven't kept the oldest Democrat in Kentucky from being active. Granny Cotton helped campaign for Martha Layne Collins and also rode on a float in the Jenny Wiley Festival Parade during the past year. She charmed TV audiences with her appearance on "Good Morning America." Granny plays bingo daily, quilts and goes to church. She was the winner of the nursing home horseshoe tournament and the prize was her choice of anything she'd like to do. Her decision was a trip to see "Return of the Jedi." Even at 108, Granny Cotton exemplifies the adage "young at heart."

'Cheap' Gas Rate Set In Old Lease Upheld

A 1921 lease giving a Drift family the option of buying all the natural gas they want for 30 cents per thousand cubic feet was recently declared valid by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The Kentucky-West Virginia Coal Company claimed the deal was void and has refused to honor it.

The bargain was originally struck 63 years ago, when A.L. and Melvina Martin, then living on Frozen Branch of Left Beaver Creek, near Drift, agreed to lease to the Kentucky Coke Company the oil and gas underlying their 87 acres. Kentucky Coke would provide free gas to two homes and a storage building on the property and, in addition, they would sell gas to the Martins for 30 cents a thousand cubic feet.

It was many years later before the family exercised its option of buying the cheap gas—just how many years is an issue in dispute. Kentucky-West, successor to Kentucky Coke, says A.L. Martin's son, Gomer, asked to buy gas in 1966 and was turned down, the gas company claiming the cheap gas was intended only for use on the premises.

The family contends it didn't try to exercise the option before November, 1981, when Gomer Martin said he planned to sell gas to people "up and down the road here to Weeksbury."

The difference in dates is critical, Kentucky-West claiming that the family delayed beyond the 15-year statute of limitations before trying its suit. But Judge Conley earlier found unpersuasive a company memo purporting to support the earlier date.

The question then turned on whether the original lease violated a legal rule prohibiting certain conditions—called perpetuities—which would tie forever the hands of people wishing to buy and sell property.

Kentucky-West said the 1921 clause

Bobby McGuffey Gets Life Term On Guilty Plea

Bobby Gene McGuffey, the only one of three defendants to be convicted in the death last year of Glenda Sharon Marshall was sentenced last Friday to a life term in prison.

McGuffey's sentence was pronounced at London, Ky. by Judge C.R. Luker, who presided in the trial of Douglas Marshall, husband of the victim, McGuffey pleaded guilty shortly before the trial began in the Fayette circuit court at Lexington and accepted a life term.

In the small courtroom gathering for the sentencing procedure were Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and State Police Detective Danny Stumbo, both of this county.

Marshall was cleared of the charges against him. Carl Harold McFarland, who was indicted as a fellow-conspirator, was not placed on trial. He joined McGuffey in testifying for the prosecution in the trial of Marshall.

McGuffey is a younger brother of Marshall.

To Speak At Pikeville College Commencement

Pikeville College will celebrate Commencement exercises Sunday, April 29 at 2 p.m. in Faith Chapel when the Rev. Dewitt Furrow, pastor of the Peter Creek Presbyterian Church in Phelps, will address 97 graduating seniors. The Rev. Furrow will be awarded an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity.

He graduated from Davis and Elkins College in 1952, from Union Seminary in Richmond, Virginia in 1955, at which point he came to Phelps.

Furrow first came to serve at the Mission in Majestic in 1955, and then that Mission merged with the Shepard Memorial Presbyterian Church in Stopover in 1956. It was then he became the pastor of this newly formed Church. Subsequently he became also the pastor of the Peter Creek Presbyterian Church in Phelps in 1962.

"We are extremely honored to be able to recognize Dewitt Furrow at our Commencement exercises this year," stated Dr. Jackson O. Hall, president of Pikeville College. "The Rev. Furrow has given his life's work to the people of Eastern Kentucky, and we are all richer for having known him and witnessed his commitment to mankind."

Works on Genealogy Added to Library

The Floyd County Library has just added the following books on genealogy: How To Climb Your Family Tree, Genealogy for Beginners, The Ky. Gazette 1787-1800, Passengers to America, Directory of Scottish Settlers in North America 1625-1825, Crests of the Families of Great Britain and Ireland, In Search of Scottish Ancestry, Index to American Genealogies, Kentucky Marriage Records, History of Scott County, Virginia, A Genealogical Record of the Descendants of Isreal Walker, The Ancestors and Descendants of James Justice, Pickin' Up the Porters, and Pierce's Register.

The Pierce's Register is on of the touchstones of Revolutionary War genealogy. This is among a mere handful of works which are regarded as reliable Revolutionary War sources. Among the initiated it is acknowledged as the classic starting point for anyone wishing to trace a Revolutionary descent. With its 93,000 names it is very nearly a complete Revolutionary War roster.

The books listed above may be used only in the Library.

Coal-Fired Boilers May Save Hospital $40,000 Annually

McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital is installing two new coal-fired boilers, thanks to the help of a Department of Energy grant. The grant, which pays 60% of the price of the boilers, allows McDowell ARH to replace the oil-fueled heating units at the hospital.

"The new boilers were purchased mainly as a means of energy conservation," Director of Maintenance and Engineering Bob May said.

Installation of the new units continued as concrete was poured for the pads. After a week for concrete to "cure" installers will begin the brick and refractory work.

Deadline for the project is July, but Doug Rice, chief engineer of maintenance at McDowell ARH, said he feels that both new boilers will be fully installed and operational much earlier.

Economic savings as well as energy conservation will result from the replacement. May says the estimated savings per year will be about $40,000 using the new boilers.

The hospital is planning to use local coal supplies in order to benefit the economy of the community.

Recognition That's Past Due

We are pleased with the Floyd County Board of Education's decision to give past-due recognition to students for outstanding academic achievement. It will be our pleasure to cooperate in honoring academic achievers.

If this honors program is made effective, the youngster who does not shirk from study and who distinguishes himself or herself by scholastic excellence will no longer remain anonymous outside his or her class in school or beyond the comparatively small circle of immediate relatives and friends.

Acting on the recommendation of a survey panel, Superintendent Grigsby has proposed, and the Board of Education has approved, the selection each year of an "all-county academic team," just as all-star basketball and football players are recognized.

And why not? We would take nothing away from those who excel in athletics. They are subject to discipline, too. They spend long hours at practise, undergo physical stress, even pain, overcome mental and physical obstacles to merit stardom. But for the life of us we have never been able to understand why the youngster who submits to the discipline of home study, the study hall at school, the laboratory and all those other steps along what somebody has called the royal road to learning should go unsung while his more physical schoolmates draw all the attention.

Learning may, like virtue, be its own reward. But that does not justify us as we ignore the learner.

We have no illusions about these honors for the achieving student. However much he may be recognized, it's not likely that anybody will be asking for his or her autograph. But few students, however brilliant, are so zealous that they are content to remain invisible, or nearly so, to the public. Besides helping give those who study a nudge forward, the proposed honors program will do us who have been neglecting them some good, too; it will awaken us to the need to put first things first in the area of education.

granting the Martins the option to buy cheap gas whenever they wanted to exercise it was a perpetuity—restricting the gas firm's use of its property for an indefinite future—and so invalid.

But the Martins argued that their right to the gas was already transferred in 1921, even though they chose not to exercise it until many years later.

In finding for the family on the question of the validity of the lease, Judge Conley said a hearing would yet have to be scheduled to consider the question of damages, which one family member estimated this week to be in excess of $600,000 due to lost profits.

Extensive legal arguments were advanced in the case—by Richard E. Fitzpatrick, of Lexington, for the Martins, and by James A. Combs, of Prestonsburg, for the gas company—before Judge Conley issued his summary judgment. The matter is likely to be referred to the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The Division of Abandoned Mine Lands is also investigating the alleged pollution of domestic wells on Clear Creek. If it is determined that degradation of well water has occurred as a result of mining completed before August, 1977, that problem may also be eligible for funding under the abandoned mine lands program, Smiley said.

The reclamation program, which is funded by a tax on coal operators, is administered by the federal Office of Surface Mining. Design for the Clear Creek project is being done by Fuller, Mosbacher, Scott and May, geotechnical engineers. The project could cost as much as $500,000, according to an early estimate.

Enrollment at the community college has more than doubled in the past five years, jumping from 500 students in 1978 to 1223 last fall. Already, some continuing education classes are being held in temporary buildings and space is so scarce the college can accommodate few outside groups, the director said.

Although it is rare for a governor to veto budget line items, the community college buildings were not included in the budget Gov. Collins recommended or in the budget that originally passed in the House and Senate, facts the governor noted in removing them.

acres allowed under his permit; he would have to reclaim the area or get a regular stripmine permit, the inspector said.

Martin refused to sign the cessation order and reportedly went on mining until Natural Resources obtained a restraining order from a Franklin Circuit Court judge on Wednesday.

On Friday, a Chessie crew rolled up the track with a mechanical shovel. They removed a couple of railroad ties and buckets of silt from the culvert and the water began draining rapidly from Mrs. Patton's garden. But Martin is still going to have to pay for the damage, she vowed.

In a suit filed in Floyd Circuit Court Friday, she seeks $10,000 from Martin, claiming his negligence hurt her garden, her trees, and a new septic system.

For his part, Martin says his neighbor is "suing backwards." If she is going to take anyone to court, he says, it should be Don Goble, who mined on Martin's property in 1981, or mining inspectors who recently pressed Goble to begin reclaiming the site.

"Reclamation gave Goble a deadline to move the dirt he left here. When he did, he filled my silt pond. That's what destroyed that woman," Martin explained, adding, "She's entitled to damages but there ain't no use her suing me. I ain't in it."

According to records on file at the Natural Resources office here, Mat-Cour, a mining firm operated by Don Goble and Ivel Moore, was cited for mining without a permit on Junior Martin's property in December, 1981. The wildcat operators had by then disturbed two-and-a-half acres and had not taken necessary silt-control measures, the citation noted.

Goble, a former Prestonsburg attorney now said to be living in Lexington, argued that the firm was mostly in the business of selling dirt and rock and so was not subject to mining regulations. He had no equipment suitable for reclaiming the mine and, in any event, no longer had any legal right to return to the site, he said. But Mat-Cour agreed, in an order filed in Franklin Circuit Court on Feb. 6 this year, to reclaim the land by March 1.

John Thacker, head of the Bureau of Surface Mining office here, said Mat-Cour had recently moved some earth at the site but has yet to reclaim the area. As to whether Martin or Mat-Cour is responsible for the damage done to Mrs. Patton, Thacker said there is "no way to separate" the soil disturbed by the two operators.

But the damage to Mrs. Patton could not have resulted from Mat-Cour's filling Martin's silt pond, since there has never been a silt pond at the mine, inspectors said.

"I'm not particular whose pocket the money comes out of," Mrs. Patton said last week, "but they needn't think, they can just push me around. They hit a dead end when they tangled with me."

Decries 'Sleep' Act

Upon visiting relatives in Pike county last week I was invited to attend the Miss Springtime pageant held at Betsy Layne High School last Saturday night.

While watching all the lovely ladies model their gowns, one pretty young girl walked out in her gown and a group of 8-10-year-old girls seated in front of me were instructed by one of the group to sleep. The whole group of girls dropped their heads and appeared to be asleep until after this particular girl was off the floor.

Out of curiosity I asked one of the girls who had participated in the "sleep" what was the meaning of it. She informed me that that particular model and a couple of the others (they slept through these also) were Majorettes for Betsy Layne and they and their instructor (twirling) did not like Betsy Laynes Majorettes.

I found this behavior very distasteful. I soon found out that these little girls were from Prater Creek and that similar actions had taken place earlier in the day at the twirling competition held at Betsy Layne.

On my way home Sunday I could not get these little girls out of my mind. I kept thinking, surely these girls' mothers do not know what these little girls are being taught by their twirling instructor.

Prater, being a feeder school to Betsy Layne, should surely consider the problems that could arise when these girls are high school age and must then attend Betsy Layne High School. How then will their instructor unteach them the very things they are being taught now? Some day they will have to be students at the very school that they are showing such strong dislike for now. Evidently they hope to be majorettes some day, but how can they hope to be accepted as friends, much less majorettes, for this school unless they change their attitude soon?

I believe the parents of the little girls should check closely and find out exactly what their little girls are being taught at their twirling lessons.

Job Corps 'Slander'

I am health care coordinator at Prestonsburg Job Corps and a licensed practical nurse who has worked very hard for my license and professional standing in the community. When your paper reported on an anonymous letter containing a lot of insinuations, allegations and half truths, it placed undue embarrassment and mental anguish upon innocent staff who are outraged by your article.

My name was not implicated in your article. If you have the audacity to refer to an anonymous letter, then you should have printed the names of the people involved. Instead you have slandered the names and reputations of a lot of innocent people. Prestonsburg Job Corps has been misunderstood as a notorious juvenile center for delinquents and this is not true. We are a learning center for young men who otherwise would not have the opportunity to get a high school diploma, driver's license or learn various skills such as carpentry, plumbing, electricity or masonry skills which will enable them to lead a more productive life. Callous attitudes and negative accusations will only mislead the community about our goal.

YVONNE LINDSAY,
Prestonsburg Job Corps Center

America's Pride

I am employed by the Singer Company at the Job Corps as the maintenance skill instructor, a position I have held for just over one year. I feel that I have been privileged to have spent that much time with the young men who have come to us for training. I look forward to spending more of my days in a similar fashion. I am challenged to the limits of my knowledge by the creativity and ingenuity of these youngsters.

I take exception to their scurrilous portrayal as contained in your article of 4-11-84 on the "scandals of Job Corps." (I sincerely hope that you don't often make news of the crank mail which circulates the community—as your article infers.)

Certainly, each of the young men who come to us has an individual need for some sort of discipline. Certainly each child in this county, including my own, have that same need. The statement about Job Corps students being armed was nicely sensationalistic, but untrue. And I find that our Job Corps drug problem is exactly proportional to the drug problem of my community here in Floyd county, though we hear and see more about that of Job Corps.

I have a crudely lettered sign hanging in my classroom/shop which states to the Corpsmen: "You Are America's Pride." When I witness negative attitudes toward the Job Corps students, it causes me to wonder how we as a community feel about our own children. Should we have to send our kids to a community fifty to seven hundred miles from here, when it's their turn for Job Corps training—we'd we want them received the way we've received these Corpsmen?

Skeptics Confounded

In the Wednesday, April 4, 1984, edition of the Floyd County Times appeared an article headlined "$10 Million Project Here Yet 'On Track.'"

In an effort to clarify misinformation that was obviously generated by "confounded skeptics and rumor circulators," I submit the following information:

Although completion of Prestonsburg Village is very much 'on track,' the monumental task of moving mountains (920,000 cubic yards), in addition to extended inclement weather conditions, has caused rescheduling of completion until the Fall of 1984.

As originally planned, the center was designed to cover a land area of fifteen acres. Currently, however, the complex will spread over twenty plus acres of the thirty acre site—a 'development expansion' of over twenty-five percent.

At our announcement last year, we stated that "half of the 200,000 square feet of commercial space was already leased." Since that time, Commonwealth Leasing has either signed leases or has leases in the final stages of negotiations for well over 90% of the center.

The Chemical Bank of New York closed the major construction loan to finance the project on August 19, 1983. Since that time, the full funding of the project has always been assured, has never been withdrawn, and is on schedule. Additionally, Commonwealth has an excellent banking relationship with The Bank Josephine on this development and other Eastern Kentucky projects.

To memory, there has never been a commercial project of this magnitude constructed in Prestonsburg or Floyd county. Due to the extreme mountainous topography of Eastern Kentucky, coupled with the high cost of land and the absence of water and sewer facilities, private enterprise, historically, has been unable to justify the construction and operation costs necessary to build a project of this nature.

Please be assured that the Commonwealth commitment—to bring millions of dollars of new commercial development, hundreds of thousands of new retail sales dollars, scores of thousands of new tax revenue dollars, thousands of new advertising dollars, and hundreds of new jobs to Prestonsburg and Floyd County—is very much 'on track.'

In a moment of levity, Mark Twain once said, "Reports of my death have been greatly exaggerated." Whether spoken or printed, reports (rumors) of the demise of Prestonsburg Village have been greatly exaggerated, have no levity, and, like all mistruths or rumors, should not be repeated or reported.

We continue to look forward to the 1984 opening of Prestonsburg Village. Be assured the completion and opening of this major new commercial complex is 'on track.'

Unappreciated Reminder

Although I am not the most intelligent person in the world, I still resent big companies stamping their envelopes with, "Put stamp here. The post office will not deliver mail without postage."

The one thing we all know, be we intelligent or illiterate, is that we need money to mail anything, no matter how small.

To Complete the Picture

We are pleased to see recent ads ("Oh, Kentucky") telling the rest of the country and others more about our fine state and encouraging tourism. However, the "Samples of Richness" in these ads completely ignored, both by map and printed word, many other truly representative points of interest that should have been mentioned in order to give a complete picture of Kentucky at its best. Items that are missing from the ads are:

—Clean and well-run state parks in the heart of Appalachia.

—The center of the No. 1 coal-producing area in the entire United States.

—Good highways, such as the Mountain Parkway, the Daniel Boone Parkway and other good highways and byways for ease of driving through the scenic Mountain area.

—Many specific points of interest, such as Natural Bridge, Cumberland Falls, Mammoth Cave, the Breaks, and on and on. Many others could be highlighted, any of which adds to the "Richness of Kentucky."

While all of the points of interest outlined in the ads represent that richness, why not include east-southeast area highlights for a more truly representative list of attractions found in Kentucky?

Running east out of Lexington, US 64 leads to a well-kept, scenic route, the Mountain Parkway. This takes you into the heart of Appalachia, adding another very interesting touch to Kentucky's wide variety of "sights and sounds."

We, in these parts, are proud to show off yet another sample of "Richness of Kentucky." After all, we are still an important part of the Commonwealth and pay our taxes on time.

Action To Prevent Child Abuse Urged

"There are few problems facing our society today as repulsive and regrettable as the abuse and neglect of our children. Child abuse is a concern that has grasped citizens and entire communities all across Kentucky. For the sake of our children, we must continue to translate that concern into preventative action and treatment," said Gov. Martha Layne Collins in declaring April as Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention Month in Kentucky.

Gov. Collins will kick off the statewide observance by co-hosting a fund-raising banquet for the Parents Anonymous of Kentucky organization April 5 in Frankfort. Parents Anonymous of Kentucky is a self-help group whose efforts center on prevention and counseling against child abuse and neglect. The group, which is funded in part by the Cabinet for Human Resources, has 18 volunteer chapters across the state.

During 1983 more than 18,500 cases of suspected child abuse or neglect involving 34,000 children were reported to the cabinet's Department for Social Services. Margaret Frederick, director of the Children's Services branch, said "About half of the reported cases we investigate reveal substantiated incidents of abuse or neglect. Put in very real terms, last year produced scars of abuse or neglect for nearly 20,000 children in Kentucky."

Public attention to the problems of child abuse and neglect rose sharply during the early part of this decade with a major increase in reports of suspected abuse. "It's difficult to say that child abuse and neglect is on the rise or the decline because increased public awareness has dramatically driven upward the number of reports we receive," said Mary Jane Renner, one of the department's child protection specialists. "At the same time, that higher public consciousness is also resulting in greater acceptance of the idea that child abuse is a community problem best dealt with through prevention and treatment," she said.

In fact, according to another child protection specialist, Barbara Southard, preventative treatment rather than removal from the home is practiced in 90 percent of cases of substantiated child abuse or neglect. "Abuse is traumatic enough for the child but even severely abused and neglected children retain a strong family attachment," Southard said. "If there is imminent danger to the child, we won't hesitate to ask the courts for custody. But in the vast majority of the cases, it is more beneficial for the child and the entire family involved to strengthen, rather than break apart, those ties."

Southard continued, "Most of our substantiated cases of neglect involve a lack of parental supervision, insufficient medical care, nutrition and education instruction."

The highest number of abuse cases fall in the category of excessive use of corporal punishment. Renner said, "An alarming fact is the rapid rate of increase in the number of sexual abuse cases reported. And that is an area we are targeting through our prevention training and treatment programs."

Frederick said there are several avenues of child abuse prevention and neglect being used in Kentucky. These include:

Funding day care placements for children as a protective or preventative measure. The Department for Social Services spends more than $126,000 each month for protective day care placements for around 1,200 children.

Development of volunteer, specially trained teams of physicians, social workers and educators who work with parents, school and community groups and others on child abuse and neglect prevention and training. To date these teams are in place in Boyd, Fayette, Floyd, Jefferson, Kenton, Morgan, Rowan and Warren counties with teams scheduled to begin work this year in Daviess and Hardin counties.

Educating children at school on self-care concepts of avoiding troublesome situations and the importance of reporting such situations.

Encouraging community self-help groups such as community child abuse prevention council and the Parents Anonymous chapters around the state.

The Department for Social Services has established a child protection specialist position in each of Kentucky's 5 area development districts. Frederick said, "These staff members work with volunteers, with the physician/social worker/educator teams and with school and parents' groups. Community education is an important factor because most abusive parents feel shut out and isolated from the rest of society. Early identification of at-risk children by concerned citizens may mean the difference in avoiding abuse and neglect in the first place rather than having to rebuild a family after the abuse has occurred."

She said, "Today we have better training available and better trained staff to work with abuse in families. However, there is a growing concern that if abuse and neglect reports continue to escalate, the limited resources currently available will have to be increased in order to provide services to this critical area."

Democrats Schedule Precinct Elections

County Democratic Chairman Morris Isaac has announced that precinct conventions will be held April 21 at each Floyd precinct's regular polling place at 10:00 a.m.

All Democrats who reside in this county and were registered to vote on March 29 are eligible to attend and participate in the election of precinct committee members. The precinct committee members will be the delegates to the county convention to be held April 28 at the Floyd County Court House at 2:00 p.m.

At the county convention, the precinct committee members will elect delegates to participate in the congressional district and state conventions scheduled for June 2, 1984 at the Sports and Convention Center in Frankfort. Any Democrat registered in the county on March 29 may seek election as a delegate to the congressional and state conventions.

At the April 28 county convention, the precinct committee members will elect a new county executive committee to serve for the next four years.

Don't "Clean Out" Wildlife

"Spring housecleaning" down on the farm can be hard on quail and other ground nesting birds. Mowing and cleaning operations are among the prime destroyers of nests, according to wildlife biologists with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Quail will begin actively nesting about now and will continue to nest through the middle of July. Unfortunately, this nesting period coincides with both hay cutting and many clean-up operations such as mowing weeds and clearing fence rows.

Farmers who want to enhance wildlife on their property can take several steps to reduce these losses. One easy way is just to postpone clearing operations until late July, after the young birds have hatched and left the nest.

Of course, hay must be cut when it's ready and the weather is right, so waiting isn't possible. However, leaving an eight-foot uncut strip around field borders will save most nests, since wildlife tends to concentrate around field edges, where cover is nearby.

Idle fields must be mowed periodically to keep down brush, but if this mowing is done in strips on alternate years, much wildlife cover will be preserved. In addition, the new growth in the mowed areas will provide additional food for rabbits and other species. Again, remember to wait until after the middle of July to do most of your clearing. And don't be too intent on having a perfectly clean farm. The brush that is cleared out of fence rows and odd corners of the farm represents home to a variety of beneficial wildlife species. Clear it up and you have destroyed wildlife habitat—and wildlife.

Remember that wildlife thrives in areas with varied landscapes and vegetative types. An abundance of edges—where croplands, meadows, pastures or woodlands meet—is particularly important to wildlife. "Clean" farming, growing large fields of a single crop, fence-to-fence plowing and other current agricultural practices, while necessary from an economic standpoint, do destroy wildlife habitat.

So it is becoming increasingly important for landowners to be aware of wildlife and of wildlife habitat. Often making small changes—such as delaying mowing for two or three weeks or leaving a fence row uncleared—can make a big difference.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources offers technical advice and assistance to anyone wanting a wildlife plan for his property. Interested landowners should get in touch with their local conservation officer for details or write to Division of Wildlife, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Governor Assesses Results

Governor Martha Layne Collins says the 1984 session of the Kentucky General Assembly accomplished important initial steps in improving education in Kentucky. At the same time, however, she points out that much remains to be accomplished in the field of educational improvement.

Speaking in Frankfort Friday, Governor Collins said that she continues to be committed to educational improvement in Kentucky. "We have made important moves in the right direction," Collins said, "but, we must continue efforts to see that Kentucky's young people receive the best education possible."

The governor repeated her disappointment that the entire education improvement package was not approved by the general assembly. But she was quick to point out that the legislature did approve many measures that will help improve Kentucky's schools.

"In any other times," she continued, "these approved measures would have been noted breakthroughs in education legislation. But the attention focuses on the overall education package tended to steal the spotlight from several important pieces of legislation which will lead to the overall improvement of education in Kentucky."

She pledged a close working relationship with the members of the General Assembly. "Right now, though," the governor said, "I am more interested in looking ahead toward what the legislature and I face in managing and leading this state than I am in looking back at the session."

"We are in a new era of state government—a time of transition—a time when old patterns of power have been broken, but new ones have not yet been established. That makes for a lot of uncertainty. While the supreme court defined some issues more clearly, both the General Assembly and the Governor are still struggling with this profound rearrangement of powers. Things are far different than they were a decade ago. "Never again will the governor write the state budget and the general assembly simply go along with it. But, neither can the General Assembly write a budget and run government by itself. In short, there has to be cooperation between the executive and the legislature. We learned a lot about each other during this session."

Then she added: "In the coming months, I plan to work closely with the interim committees of the legislature. I want to cooperate with them. But, that has to be a two-way street. I want them to cooperate with me and my cabinet. There is only one way we can begin to solve the very difficult problems we face in education, in corrections, and in all the other areas affecting the people of Kentucky."

Among the educational items passed by the General Assembly and signed into law by Governor Collins are:

Senate Bill 19, which requires competency testing for beginning teachers and provides for internship.

Senate Bill 26, which sets up a study commission to investigate and make recommendations on the implementation of a career ladder for teachers.

Senate Bill 169, which establishes minimum levels of basic skills achievement by pupils and develops a statewide assessment program to measure student progress.

Senate Bill 202, which allows the state board of education to place local school districts in "academic receiverships" if they are educationally deficient. The state board would first attempt to work with the local superintendent and board members to improve the local academic environment.

Senate Bill 364, which requires certified personnel in public school systems to complete 42 hours of training every two years in order to retain their certification.

Senate Bill 379, which mandates kindergarten during the school year of the biennium.

House Bill 19, which requires written, signed permission of parents for those between 16 and 18 years of age to withdraw from school.

House Bill 87, which establishes a council to study programs that should be offered to gifted and talented students. The council is directed to complete its work within two years.

House Bill 153, which establishes the requirement that all school board members have at least a high school education. The bill also requires school board candidates to file reports with the Registry of Election Finance.

House Bill 317, which permits local school districts to levy either or all of the utility gross receipts tax, the excise tax on income, and the occupational tax.

House Bill 568, which requires local school districts to levy a minimum ad valorem tax rate of 15 cents or the rate supported by the District Power Equalization Program, whichever is greater.

"The General Assembly's action of passing these important pieces of legislation indicates the members' commitment to quality education in Kentucky," the Governor said.

Never overlook the value of snake venom, says National Wildlife magazine. One ounce of freeze-dried king cobra venom, used by doctors and medical researchers, goes for about $3,000—more than nine times the per ounce price of gold.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

A closer relationship between the consumer and pharmacist is coming back into style. In fact it is only relatively recently that the two have lost contact, since the 1930's and '40s. At that time colleges of pharmacy determined that it was inappropriate for pharmacists to advise patients, and people began to rely more heavily on their doctors for medical advice. Also at that time pharmacies began to be built with imposing designs—raised prescription booths and glass partitions—which inhibited communication. These conditions are changing however. Unlike a doctor, a pharmacist is not trained to diagnose, but if a patient can safely identify his symptoms, the pharmacist can usually recommend non-prescription products and certainly monitor multiple drug therapy.

The patient profiles maintained by COOLEY APOTHECARY not only can be helpful in determining possible difficulties with drug interactions but it also is very convenient for the consumer at income tax time. Remember prescriptions are tax deductible. Rely on us for your complete prescription and over the counter remedies. We offer everyday low prices on our prescriptions. We are located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa.

HANDY HINT:

Bowhunters Schedule Tourney

Darryl Shepherd and Mike Scott, members of the Eastern Kentucky Bowhunters Club, take aim at silhouette targets similar to those which will be used in an archery tournament scheduled April 28-29 at the Sky Lift, Jenny Wiley State Park. All clubs or individuals are reminded that registration before the day of the tourney will result in a dollar savings. For pre-registration forms contact Dean Franklin, 886-8530.

The club will also hold a stump shoot at their archery range on Jenny's Creek, Easter Sunday with the shoot beginning at 1 p.m. Trophies will be awarded in all classes.

Spring Turkey Season Opens

Kentucky's spring turkey season is set to open April 14, and although turkey hunting is by no means a major sport, interest in this challenging pastime is growing greater every year as turkey populations increase.

Last spring, an estimated 2,100 hunters took 202 turkeys in Kentucky. Although that doesn't seem like a lot of birds, it was a modern-day record for the state and was 15 more than had been harvested during the 1982 season.

Almost half (an even 100) of last year's total harvest came from Land Between the Lakes. Early reports this year indicate that the turkey population there is really booming, so look for another good harvest this season.

Some of the success of the LBL flock can be attributed to the release of 50 Missouri turkeys four years ago. Biologists reasoned (correctly, it seems) that the LBL flock had been isolated so long that it had become inbred and productivity was dropping. The Missouri birds provided an influx of new blood which has caused the population really to explode.

Biologists estimate the current turkey population at approximately 8,500 birds, up from around 7,000 the year before. In 1979, the statewide flock was estimated at only 2,641, so it's apparent that restoration efforts are paying off.

Recent new releases have been made in Grayson, Livingston, Trigg and Trimble counties, as well as in Mammoth Cave National Park. Once a flock is established on Mammoth Cave, wildlife managers will use it as a source for wild birds to stock in other parts of the state.

The 1984 spring season will run through April 20 in Ballard county and in Christian county east of Highway 41. The season will run through April 27 in Bath, Boyle, Butler, Casey, Crittenden, Harlan, Leslie, Letcher, Marion, McCreary, Menifee, Pike and Pulaski counties as well as on the Beaver Creek, Cranks Creek, Redbird, Pine Mountain and Pioneer Weapons wildlife management areas.

The LBL season runs from April 11 through April 29, while Ft. Campbell will permit turkey hunting from April 7 through April 29, except for the "no hunting" days of Monday and Tuesday there. The Ft. Knox season is set for March 24-25 and every Saturday and Sunday in April.

All other counties, portions of counties or wildlife management areas are closed to turkey hunting. Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise until noon except on LBL and Ft. Campbell, where you may continue to hunt until one-half hour after sunset.

All turkey hunters are required to have a turkey tag in addition to a valid annual license—the three-day non-resident license is not valid for turkey hunting. Hunters are limited to one turkey gobbler with visible beard per year, except that if you take a turkey from LBL, Ft. Campbell or Ft. Knox, you may take a second turkey.

And remember that all turkeys taken must be checked at the nearest open check station or by a conservation officer. A list of check stations, along with a complete set of turkey hunting rules, is available by writing the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, Frankfort, Ky.

Little League Tryouts, Umpire Meet Scheduled

An umpires meeting for the Prestonsburg Little League is set for tomorrow (Thursday) night, April 19 at 8 p.m. in the municipal building here. According to league President John Earl Hunt, a lack of umpires is the most pressing problem faced by the league as it gets set to enter a new season.

Special tryouts for potential Little Leaguers who were unable to attend the last tryout session will be held at the Archer Park Little League field Saturday, April 21, beginning at 10 a.m.

Further information may be obtained by calling Mr. Hunt at 886-6161, or 886-9670.

Hazard Girl Named Miss ALC for 1984

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Miss Stephanie Moore, a junior majoring in elementary education, was recently crowned MISS ALC 1984. Miss Delores Stone, MISS ALC 1983, presented the traditional bouquet of red roses and the jewel-studded crown to Miss Moore.

In addition to the crown and title, Miss Moore received trophies in the evening gown and talent competition. She is the daughter of Herbert and Wilma Moore, of Hazard.

Runner-up in the MISS ALC Pageant was Miss Melinda Hopkins, a junior from Price. Miss Hopkins also won trophies in the swimsuit competition and as "Miss Congeniality," an award voted on by her fellow contestants.

Junior Pro Name Omitted

In a recent listing of team members of Martin's Junior Pro Girls' All-Star team which won the national championship in Knoxville, Tenn., the name of Beth Horn was mistakenly omitted. Beth is a daughter of Janet and Archie Horn, of Martin. Another team member, Tina Crum, was listed, but with a typo error. Her parents are Garvin and Brenda Crum.

The three-wheeler is owned by Darryl Salisbury, of Ivel, and Ken Salisbury, of Maytown. The three men work for Mountain Truck Parts, of Allen.

Prior to the weekend races, the No. 18 Floyd team had two first places and two second places this season.

Cardinal Hill Hospital Serves the Handicapped

In 1943 the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, now known as the Kentucky Easter Seal Society, began initial steps towards developing a convalescent hospital for crippled children when 10 acres of land were purchased in Lexington. Building plans were drawn but high-building costs (due to war-time economy) delayed construction. Construction began five years later in 1948 and the hospital was completed in mid-1950. Building and equipment costs (excluding purchase of land) were approximately $700,000.

The building plan called for 49 beds plus a 4-bed isolation unit. However, within a few months the hospital was filled beyond capacity with 59 patients. Many of the early patients at the hospital were polio victims from the great polio epidemic of the 40's and early 50's. Since that time the hospital has evolved into a full service rehabilitation center specializing in severe physical disabilities for children and adults. The facility now has a 100-bed capacity.

Inpatient specialty programs include a 21-bed spinal cord injury/or orthopedic unit, a 16-bed brain injury unit, and a 30-bed stroke unit. Typically, the person with a recent traumatic injury or newly diagnosed neurological problem is admitted into one of the Cardinal Hill specialty programs from the acute care hospital once he/she is stabilized. At Cardinal Hill, he/she undergoes an intensive therapeutic and educational program aimed toward the highest possible level of functional independence. Services include medical and nursing management, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, psycho-social counseling, and patient-family teaching. All programs emphasize a step-by-step transition from dependence on others to independent living.

Upon discharge home, the patient may continue receiving services from Cardinal Hill if he requires ongoing therapy. A full range of outpatient services is now available to both former inpatients and those whose problems may be treated entirely on an outpatient basis. Services include physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, psychological testing, home management training, and specialty clinics for assessment and follow-up.

The Developmental Stimulation Therapy Program of Cardinal Hill Hospital provides therapy and educational services on an outpatient basis to children from infancy to five years of age who are physically and/or developmentally disabled. Many families travel as far as 90 miles a day to participate in this comprehensive program.

Outreach programs include community health maintenance projects, such as low-cost flu shots in the late fall, and the Stroke Network, a coordination service helping stroke patients throughout central and eastern Kentucky. A Stroke Newsletter which is published monthly has a nationwide distribution.

Cardinal Hill Hospital sponsors the Cardinal Hill Stroke Club, Brain Injury Network, and Spinal Cord Club, emphasizing socialization allowing individuals to share anxieties and frustrations as well as accomplishments and victories.

Cardinal Hill Hospital is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF).

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, former superintendent of Public Instruction, was recently selected the new executive director of Cardinal Hill.

D.A.R. CHAPTER MEETS

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met April 10, at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center, with the regent, Mrs. Ray Brackett, presiding.

The regent, Mrs. Brackett, asked the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, to write a letter to the President General, Mrs. Sarah King, commending her on behalf of the chapter for the interest shown by her, and the accomplishments that have been made, during her term of office.

Members who had been absent due to illness were welcomed.

The regent introduced, for the National Defense program, Wayne Berry, a native of Berea who serves as director of Nuclear Preparedness, at Frankfort and Mrs. Carroll M. Howard, who is the area secretary of the Kentucky Disaster Emergency Service.

Mr. Berry gave information on what to do to enhance chances of survival in the event of a natural or man-made disaster, and distributed handbooks of information pertaining to this matter. Mrs. Howard, whose office is in the Armory building on the Auxier road, told the group that she would be available for meetings, upon request from schools and organizations, to discuss these topics.

Both agreed that in time of emergency, "the more known about survival, the better the chance of surviving."

Mrs. Brackett announced that the annual luncheon-meeting will be held at May Lodge, May 12, with the Pikeville, Troublesome Creek, Harmon Station, Jane Owen West and John Graham Chapters as hostesses. The Kentucky D.A.R. president, Mrs. Tracy Neal, of Lexington, will be the guest-speaker. Reservations should be made by contacting Mrs. Olga Preston, Treasurer of John Graham Chapter, D.A.R., at Ulysses, Ky., before May 10.

Following Tuesday's meeting, refreshments were served to guests, Mark Green, Miss Michelle Green, Mrs. Beulah Hatfield, Mrs. Fannie Runnels, Mrs. Carroll M. Howard, Wayne Berry, and members, Frances Brackett, Eleanor Horn, Mae Kendrick, Norma Stepp, Olga Preston, Opal May, Alice Harris, and Edith James.

Two in Jail Break Sought by Police

Police were still searching Tuesday for two Floyd men who escaped from the Johnson county jail over the weekend.

Charles Dennis Brown, 25, and Terry Bartlett, 22, both reportedly of Allen, removed a toilet in their cell and slipped out through a hole in the wall around 3 a.m. Saturday, said Jailer Toy Blair. Deputy Jailer Ronnie Blair gave chase immediately but the two men eluded him, the jailer said.

They were being held—along with two other Allen men, Ballard Brown, 23, and David Brown, 19—on charges of receiving stolen property. The four were arrested March 29 at a Johnson county home following the theft earlier that day of furniture, appliances and a stereo from Tackett's Furniture Store in Allen. Two juveniles were also apprehended.

A third-degree rape charge against Charles Brown was later dismissed in Johnson district court, the jailer reported.

THE BIG SANDY-ELKHORN Coal Mining Institute's seventh annual Coal Mining Seminar was held Thursday and Friday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park with industry representatives attending from a wide area of the Southeastern coalfields. SNAKE VENOM is not only being used to aid people bit by snakes, it's becoming a valuable substance to make new drugs, reports National Wildlife magazine. Viper venom, for instance, is being used to make anti-coagulants that can dissolve blood clots. It's even proving effective in treating coronary heart failures where a clot is blocking the arteries that supply blood.

Humans aren't the only ones with undertakers—bees have them too, reports International Wildlife magazine. Less than an hour after a honeybee dies, another bee carries the body as far as 400 feet from the hive before dropping it. Scientists believe this undertaking is due to a chemical emission from the dead bees.

In Memoriam

In memory of Luna Hamilton who died April 12, 1983.

It has been one year since God came and took my mother home. She left the only child she had so sad and so alone. Sometimes when I first awaken, I'm filled with doubt and fear. I wonder what in the world I'd do if my wonderful husband was not here.

I just could not face this world alone since my mother has been gone, but my wonderful husband has always been there to help me share my load. He helps me over the bumps of life and around the puddles in the road. But my feelings were so different in days past, the excitement of life made me glad.

With each passing day I have realized I've now got less years than I've had. So, if I go to Heaven, my mother will be standing beneath that Golden Dome. She will be holding out her hands trying to help me to her heavenly home.

Mom, I still miss you so, no one will ever know.

Daughter,
SILVIA WILSON

Growing Child

AVOID TAKING SIDES IN SIBLING DISPUTES
Who says parents must be referees in their children's fights?

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, suggests encouraging your children to settle their own differences and disputes when they can. You should resist becoming a referee in their fights and squabbles, especially when they ask you to assess blame, settle the argument, and punish one of them.

You can help them learn how to do this by instituting "thinking chairs" or "talk-it-over chairs" in your home. Whenever an argument erupts, the participants have to go to their chairs and either think it over or talk it over until the situation calms down.

In any dispute, both people contribute in some way, and they both need to compromise in order to resolve the situation. Once they've begun to learn how to do this with your help, encourage them to begin doing it on their own: "Dana, I'm sorry Doug hurt your feelings. Why don't you try to find out why he got so mad and try to let him know how you feel?" Be sure to praise and compliment them when they resolve conflicts in this and other constructive ways.

Don't force your children to "make-up" and lie about their feelings following a dispute. For example, don't direct a child to "Go tell Baby you love him," or "Go say you're sorry." Probably she doesn't feel either loving or sorry at the moment and she'll feel even less so after you make her say she does when she doesn't. She'll feel misunderstood by you and angry and resentful of her sibling, even if she did something to him she doesn't feel good about.

When you take sides in a dispute between your children and you force them to mend their fences before they're ready to do so, you increase the chances of further hostility between them later, particularly when you're not near. Once each child has had her "day in court" and feels someone understands her viewpoint, she's much more likely to apologize or make-up on her own. And each time a dispute is settled by bringing out honest feelings on both sides, the hostility is lessened, thus decreasing the chances of similar disputes in the future.

Next: "Nine tips for handling sibling disputes."
The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Questions Answered

Q—My husband was covered under Veterans' Group Life Insurance when he died. An attorney from a company where he owed money said they would attach the proceeds of the insurance to pay the bill. Can they do this?

A—No. Servicemen's Group Life Insurance and Veterans' Group Life Insurance proceeds are not assignable, nor are payments to beneficiaries subject to claims of creditors of the insured or beneficiary.

Q—Can a veteran draw compensation even though his or her disabilities are service-connected but rated as non-compensable?

A—Yes. When a veteran has two or more non-compensable service connected disabilities that are permanent and clearly interfere with normal employability, a 10 percent rating may be assigned.

Q—Is there any restriction on the type of work performed by VA work study students?

A—Yes, it must be related to VA business.

Q—I entered active service in May 1976, served six years and was honorably discharged. I was involved in a near fatal accident and am now totally disabled and unable to work. Am I eligible for a VA pension?

A—No. Veterans with initial service on or after the end of the Vietnam Era, May 8, 1975, do not qualify for VA nonservice-connected disability pension.

Witness Absent, Trial Postponed

The trial of two David men on charges of stripmining without a license was postponed for a day yesterday (Tuesday) when a prosecution witness failed to appear.

Dewey Shepherd and his son, Melvin, are accused of mining 556 tons of coal from a site on Open Fork of Middle Creek over the 1982 Labor Day weekend. A task force composed of state police and officers of the state Department of Mines and Minerals seized a bulldozer, rock drill and end-loader when they raided the site.

Testimony was heard Tuesday morning but the trial was halted soon after the lunch recess because of the failure of Hershel Owens to appear as a witness.

Owens was also charged in the case and entered a guilty plea in Floyd district court in October, 1982. He was fined $300 and forfeited the seized mining equipment. The machinery was later claimed by its owners and lienholders—the bulldozer by the First Commonwealth Bank, the rock drill by Pikeville National Bank, and the end-loader by Ivel Moore.

The Department of Mines and Minerals sent Owens a $2010 bill for moving the equipment and $740 for storing it, bills that District Judge Harold Stumbo ordered him to pay. Owens asked for a hearing on the order but court files do not indicate a hearing was scheduled.

In testimony Tuesday, Tommy Hale, of Blue River, said he hauled seven or eight loads of coal from the Open Fork stripmine to the Scorpio Coal Inc. tipple on Caney Fork. Tipple superintendent Jimmy Joe Reynolds, of Allen, said Owens had arranged with him to buy the coal, with payments to be made to Ethel Howard and Melvin Shepherd. Tim McClanahan, accountant for Scorpio Coals, said he made out checks to the two—a $7646 check to Mrs. Howard for 332 tons of coal and a $5171 payment to Shepherd for 224 tons.

The trial is expected to continue in Floyd Circuit Court today (Wednesday). Conviction on the charges could bring jail terms of up to five years.

Women who maintain their own families are considerably more likely to work or look for work today than in the past; but their historical pattern of marginal earnings and high unemployment persists, keeping the economic status of their families well below that of the majority of American families, according to an article published in the Department of Labor's Monthly Labor Review.

KATIE THE CATERPILLAR

by Donna Miller

To make Katie:
1. Cut out a strip of six connecting egg sections from the bottom of an egg carton (see picture).
2. Cut out another strip of five connecting sections. Trim 1/4" of cardboard from around this strip.
3. Push the trimmed strip inside five of the sections of the first strip to form the caterpillar's body. If it doesn't fit, trim off a bit more. Put glue on both strips, push together, and allow to dry.
4. To make a mouth, cut the one remaining section from the carton. Trim it and glue at an angle inside the first section of the body strip.
5. If you want to paint your caterpillar, now is the time. Let it dry thoroughly.
6. Cut out antennae from colored paper, curl around a pencil, and glue in place. Add eyes and body markings with paint or cut-out paper.

Growing Child

WHEN A CHILD LIES OR STEALS
"Did you steal that?" asked the mother.

"No, I didn't," replied the child.
In reality, the child had stolen the candy. Now to the guilt of stealing, he has added the guilt of lying about it.

Parents don't like to admit—or even think—that their school-age children have lied or stolen. Call it "human nature" or call it "growing up"—but be aware that lying and stealing are much more common among young children than parents want to believe, according to Growing Up, the child development newsletter about school-age children.

Given that these behaviors are likely to occur, what can a parent do when confronted with the fact that a child has told a "white lie" ("I didn't do it") or left a store with something not paid for?

It's best to avoid the extremes of irrational overconcern ("My child is a budding criminal") or apathy ("So what?"). Treat the occasion, instead, as a valuable opportunity to teach a lesson about moral behavior.

For example, let's say you've almost reached home after an exhausting afternoon of shopping. You notice that your child has a bar of candy that you didn't pay for, and you know he didn't have any money to pay for it, either.

Instead of accusing him ("You stole that!") give him a chance to confess ("Where did you get that candy bar?").
Avoid asking a "yes" or "no" question that invites your child to tell a lie.

Then, even though it may be a nuisance to turn the car around and go back to the store, do so. The effort will teach the child an important lesson.

A child learns nothing about honesty from a parent who is too apathetic or embarrassed to go back to the store. He learns an entirely different lesson from a parent who takes him right back to the cashier or manager to return the ill-gotten goods and tell them the truth about what he did.

If the child doesn't have to go back to the store, he learns that, apart from a brief scolding, the consequences of lying and stealing are not very great.

The child who has to return the stolen object and tell the truth learns about personal responsibility, discovers an inner sense of satisfaction that comes from being honest, and leaves the store with the good feeling of having done the right thing.

Although stimulants may not lead to physical addiction, tolerance is built by the body so that larger and larger doses are needed to reach the desired results. Also, since the use of stimulants hides the sense of fatigue (extreme tiredness), the user can collapse from exhaustion after use, and the heart and circulatory system may be damaged by the overproduction of adrenalin.

A final word on perhaps our most popular stimulant, caffeine. When a person drinks two cups of coffee, the effects begin in 15-30 minutes. The person's metabolism, body temperature, and blood pressure may increase, as well as many other effects, depending upon the individual. A regular user of caffeine who has developed a tolerance may have a craving for the drug's effects, especially to "get along" in the morning. Some researchers have found a withdrawal-like syndrome among people who suddenly stop using caffeine. The symptoms include headache, irritability, and mood changes.

For more information on stimulants, or other drugs, contact Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, 886-8572.

Alcoholism...

Baffling Illness

Most Americans drink alcohol beverages socially and think of their drinking as a legal rite and as an accepted social rite. Drinking does become a problem, however, when a person's misuse of the drug results in physical, psychological or social damage to themselves or to those close to them.

Alcohol abuse is irresponsible drinking which harms or endangers the drinker and those who come into contact with the drinker. The heavy cost of alcohol abuse is seen in highway accidents where an estimated 28,000 people are killed on U.S. highways each year by drunk drivers. Studies show that half of all homicide offenders and half of the victims had been drinking at the time of the crime. These figures can not estimate the more personal hidden costs alcohol abuse has daily on broken families, police trouble, job performance, and mental anguish.

It is hard to distinguish between social drinking, problem drinking and alcoholism. Generally, social drinking becomes problem drinking when drinking continues despite the harm done to the drinker and those close to him or her. An alcoholic is a person who has lost control over his or her drinking, resulting in personal, job and family problems. It is estimated that one in every 11 drinkers becomes an alcoholic.

There is no "typical" alcoholic. Research shows that 95% are educated, responsible citizens and half are employed full time. Most alcoholics are trying desperately to hide their illness and keep up a good "front". Alcoholism strikes men and women of any age (even teenagers) and of any background. An alcoholic's drinking pattern can vary from daily use of the drug to only occasional use. When drinking, however often, an alcoholic cannot control the amount consumed.

Though alcoholism has disabled people for thousands of years, there is no single cause of the illness. There seem to be a number of psychological, physical and social factors that determine the onset and progress of alcoholism. It has been accepted as an illness by the American Medical Association; an illness that is treatable. The myths and misunderstandings that many people have about alcoholism however, make it difficult for alcoholics to seek the help they need.

Many people think of alcoholism as a form of moral weakness, rather than an illness. This attitude makes many problem drinkers and their families hide the problem rather than admit there is a problem and seek treatment. Like other illnesses, the earlier alcoholism is diagnosed and treated, the better the chance for recovery.

A social drinker can stop drinking when he or she choose to. An alcoholic cannot stop because he or she is addicted and needs the drug to cope with life. No social drinker ever intends to become an alcoholic. The disease, alcoholism, is a baffling and serious illness that can be deadly if not treated.

EKCEP To Receive $4,815,167 In Funds

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin announced Friday final allocations of Job Training Partnership Act funds to the state's nine service delivery areas. More than $25.4 million will be distributed for programs operating between July 1, 1984 and June 30, 1985.

Each area's JTPA allocation depends on the number of unemployed and low-income people compared to other areas, Austin explained.

The Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, of which Floyd is a part, will receive $4,815,167.

"For planning purposes, earlier we provided the areas with estimates of their new allocations, but these are the final Title II-A allocations for the new program year," said Richard Heine, Planning and Research Director in the Department for Employment Services. The areas also will receive funds to operate Summer Youth programs.

"Most of the money is spent for classroom and on-the-job training programs for adults and youth. These programs are aimed at training people for existing jobs," Heine said.

In addition to each area's allocation, Heine said the state will have about $12 million available for discretionary programs, training for dislocated workers and administrative costs.

Few people realize that bats are gentle, intelligent, meticulously clean, and frequently beneficial animals to man, says International Wildlife magazine. They eat pest insects, are nature's most important seed dispersing mammal, and pollinate many valuable crops of fruit and nuts.

PLAN EASTER SERVICE

Paintsville Commandery No. 48, Knights Templar will hold its annual Easter service at the Paintsville Masonic Lodge Hall Sunday, April 22 at 7 a.m. All Sir Knights are urged to attend, and the public is invited.

In Memory of Mrs. Betty Jean Akers Hodges

She was born January 5, 1938 and died February 28, 1984, after an 11-month battle with cancer, at the age of 46. She died at the Gulf Coast Community Hospital in Biloxi, Mississippi. On March 2, 1984, she was buried in the Biloxi National Cemetery.

She was a native of Kentucky, the daughter of Mrs. Orpha C. Akers of Drift, Ky. and the late Clive Akers.

She leaves her husband, Dr. Thomas O. Hodges, Chief of Staff at the Veterans Hospital of Biloxi, Miss.; one daughter Mrs. Skye Goodman, of the U.S. Air Force, and one granddaughter, Gretchen Leah Goodman, all of Biloxi, Mississippi. She also leaves two brothers, Kenneth Ray Akers, of Drift, Ky., and Clive Akers, Jr., of Emerson, N. J.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church. She was also a member of the following organizations:

Chapter #103 Order of The Eastern Star, in Grand Junction, Colorado; Biloxi-Ocean Springs Medical Auxiliary; The Sunkist Country Club; Gulf Coast Opera Salon; Gulf Coast Opera Theatre; Gulf Coast Ladies Golf Association and a member of the Board of Directors of Sunkist Country Club Ladies Auxiliary.

We wish we could thank in person the many friends who remembered her during her illness with prayers, flowers, cards and letters of encouragement. These gave her a stronger will to fight her illness. She never lost her fighting spirit until the end.

We wish to thank you from the bottom of our heart for the cards of sympathy, prayers, and flowers sent to us after her death. Nothing can stop the pain caused by the loss of a loved one—but it helps to know that so many people cared.

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to each of you and your families wherever they may be. May God bless each and everyone of you always.

From the Heartbroken Family of Betty Jean Akers Hodges.
We miss you so much.

PRE-PAID PRE-PLAN OR NOT—WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

One's pre-planned funeral need not be paid for in advance.

Funeral arrangements may be made in advance—music and scripture readings selected, funeral service details are all noted and casket chosen, price range fixed—all without spending a dime at this time.

This manner of pre-planning becomes a guide for your family to follow. It is an expression of your personal wishes. But it is a guide only, until payment is arranged. Your family can take care of pre-payment in advance of—or at the time of need.

If you make pre-payment arrangements in advance, you have assured yourself your wishes will be followed exactly and to the letter. You have the peace-of-mind in knowing the chore is taken care of now. It will not be thrust upon your family in their time of emotional stress.

You may stop by or call for full details.

McDonald Introduces Plan To Spur Student Effort

In an effort to trigger higher academic achievement in Kentucky's high schools, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald has introduced a plan to grant students college credit for advanced-level courses taken while still in high school.

The plan, entitled the Commonwealth Diploma and Certificate Program, is the first of its kind in the nation.

"We have been seeking ways to bring about high quality educational programs that would make teachers and administrators eager for challenge, students eager to study, and parents eager to encourage all groups," Miss McDonald said. "The Commonwealth Diploma Program is the proposal which has resulted."

Under her proposal, a high school student could complete requirements for the Commonwealth Diploma by taking specialized classes and passing tests in English, mathematics, science, history, and foreign language.

A maximum of 30 semester hours could be obtained in those areas.

Additional tests could be taken in speech, computer science, music and art with three more college credit hours being earned in each area with successful completion of an exam.

Students who do not want to complete the requirements for the total diploma program can receive credit in one or more areas by taking the course and completing the exam.

According to McDonald, by taking the advanced courses a student would receive the same content as a course taken on a college campus.

The program additionally creates a stronger link between the state's high schools and universities in order to encourage more capable students to continue their education past high school, she added.

The operation of the program will be guided by a board of governors made up of members of the State Board of Education and the Council on Higher Education.

Higher Phone Rates Could Make For Less Weather Information

A lot of things have changed in farming over the years, but one constant has remained: a daily dose of weather information is crucial to most farm operations.

Weather information heard by Kentucky farmers generally comes from National Weather Service wires, with some local interpretations made by local meteorologists.

Farmers might experience a change in the availability of weather information in the near future, however, depending on what happens to some budget cut and cost increase proposals.

The budget cut proposals are coming from the National Weather Service, and Tom Priddy, Extension meteorologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says if the proposals become reality, the flow of data from which local interpretations are made may be curtailed.

"If the proposed budget cuts are actually made, there may be a partial or complete reduction in service to Kentucky farmers," said Priddy.

In addition to National Weather Service's proposed cutbacks, the flow of information also is threatened because of American Telephone and Telegraph's (A.T. & T.) proposed increases in costs of subscribing to the wire services. Priddy explains that A.T. & T. has notified the Federal Communications Commission of its intention to file for new tariff rates.

The lines now cost less than $20 each month, but with proposed increases in line rates, Priddy says the rate may increase to more than $100 per month or even higher, depending on the station's geographic location. Many of the subscribers might drop the service under the higher rates, notes Priddy.

Subscribers to the weather wire include the state's radio and television stations and many of the newspapers in Kentucky. The wire generates information 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Priddy noted that the cutback proposals from the National Weather Service also came up last year, but farm leaders throughout the country were successful in preventing the cutbacks.

Fifth Grader Wins National Award

Jeff Bingham, fifth grade student at Northwest School in Howell, Mich., received notification, recently, that he had placed fourth in a national contest. The winning card will be reproduced in the May edition of Good Housekeeping.

Actor Brian Matthews studied pre-med

By Nancy M. Reichardt

"At one time I considered becoming a veterinarian," says Brian Matthews, who plays Eric Garrison on "The Young and the Restless."

"I went to St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota, where I took pre-med courses. I had no intention of becoming an actor, although I had been doing a lot of singing," remembers Matthews, who was a member of St. Olaf's famed choral society.

From Minnesota, Matthews went to Boston where he attended the New England Conservatory, and finally to the Juilliard School in New York City where he studied voice and opera.

"Beginning at St. Olaf's, I drew more and more toward a singing career and less and less toward medicine," he says. "By the end of my junior year, however, I already had all the credits for my biology major, but I decided to go for a career in music instead."

Matthews' first professional role was in the musical "Pippin." He also appeared in musical comedies and dinner theater productions, but capped his New York career by landing the lead role in the short-lived Broadway musical "Copperfield."

RACING WITH THE MOON. (PG-Paramount) Starring Sean Penn, Elizabeth McGovern and Nicholas Cage. ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

With this film, Richard Benjamin shows every sign that he will be a much better director than he was an actor. Lacking leading-man charm and method-actor dedication, Benjamin ambled along through a number of unmemorable roles before finding success. Finally, Benjamin has given us two solid, thoroughly enjoyable pictures. "My Favorite Year" was a delightful comedy filled with warmth and charm, not to mention the best performance by Peter O'Toole in years. His current effort, "Racing with the Moon," beautifully mixes small-town USA charm with the occasionally traumatic events of growing up. The film is set in the early '40s, when two boys are about to turn 18 and be drafted into a war that is foreign to them in every sense. Sean Penn turns in his best performance yet. In a time when boys were forced to grow up very quickly, Penn plays a sensitive, searching kid who's looking for something even if he's not sure what it is. His buddy (played equally as well by Nicholas Cage), on the other hand, wants to grab all the girls and gusto he can before he's shipped out. Along the way, Penn falls in love with Elizabeth McGovern, who also gives her top performance. If the story sounds a bit familiar, there's good reason. Films such as "Baby It's You," "Blue Denim" and "Splendor in the Grass" have attacked the same subject matter with varying degrees of success. But "Racing with the Moon" will hold up in comparison to any of them. Since the film is set in the '40s, it contains enough music and memorabilia of the times to trigger sure-fire waves of nostalgia for older viewers - but the story is also universal enough and the characters so likable and recognizable that most of today's predominantly young movie goers are sure to like it as well. The film's ending will have you waiting for a sequel - a sure sign that the characters (and the movie) have won you over.

Two tales of India

By Katy Koontz

If one of your passions is tales of British-ruled India but you're going to miss this week's three-part miniseries "The Far Pavillions" because you don't subscribe to HBO, don't sweat it. You'll have to wait a little longer to get it, but CBS plans to air its own show — a three-hour movie as opposed to a three-night saga — about a British boy raised as an Indian in the streets and alleyways of India during the 1890s.

The CBS film, "Kim," based on a story by Rudyard Kipling, is scheduled for broadcast May 22 and stars Peter O'Toole, Bryan Brown and John Rhys-Davies. Ravi Sheth makes his acting debut in the title role, and although we never see him grown up and chasing around with a lovely princess as Ben Cross' character does in the HBO story, he is perhaps more physically convincing than Cross in the part — his father is Indian and his mother American.

Sheth plays a boy whose Irish mother dies in childbirth and whose father, an Indian soldier, deserts the army and dies of alcoholism a few years later. The orphaned Kim meets up with a Buddhist monk (played by O'Toole) and becomes his pupil. The two begin their search for the holy River of the Arrow that washes away all sin, but along the way they have plenty of adventures that delay the journey.

What happens to the boy once his identity is discovered and he is threatened with being sent to England for "a proper white man's education" makes up the rest of this tale.

HBO's "The Far Pavillions" will be aired in three parts on three consecutive nights beginning Sunday April 22. Ben Cross stars in this saga of a man born in 19th-century India of an Indian mother and a British father who was raised believing he was an Indian.

His true identity is discovered and he is sent back to England. Cross, once grown, returns as part of the British cavalry and re-discovers the Indian princess (Amy Irving) he befriended as a child. He falls in love with her, but she is betrothed to another.

The rest of the drama tells their story as they try to be together in less than ideal circumstances.

HBO spent four months shooting the miniseries and used more than 1,000 extras and 5,000 original costumes for its 547 scenes.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Recently, the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water issued a statement in this newspaper concerning a December 1983 violation for Wheelwright Utilities Commission. To inform the consumers of the system accurately, this corrected information is being published.

Although one representative water sample gave preliminary indication of coliform bacteria presence in December 1983, subsequent check sampling demonstrated no coliform contamination. These check samples were improperly labeled prior to submittal, causing the preliminary results to be recorded as a violation. Due to this error, the initial public notification was published on March 28, 1984.

All water samples submitted by Wheelwright Utilities Commission since December 1983 have indicated no coliform to be present in the water system. The initial violation has also been deleted.
