

Fiscal Ct., City Help Red Cross

Each Pledges $6000-a-Year Chapter Fund

The American Red Cross may soon boast a Floyd chapter again, following recent commitments by the Floyd fiscal court and Prestonsburg city council to help fund it.

In response to requests by Cassie Allen, Prestonsburg attorney who has coordinated local Red Cross efforts since the organization's regional chapter folded last year for lack of support, the city council and fiscal court have each pledged $500 a month toward the cost of maintaining a county chapter, estimated at $1300 a month. The city of Martin will be asked to contribute the remaining $300 a month, Mrs. Allen said.

The attorney fended off a move by magistrate Ed Caudill to have one person appointed to the new chapter board from each magisterial district. "We already have by-laws (governing selection of board members)," Mrs. Allen said. "We want it to remain non-political."

Price Man Gets Extra Ten Years In Robbery Case

A Price man who is already serving a three-year prison term for robbery received an additional 10-year sentence on a similar charge last Thursday.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert A. Burchett told a Floyd Circuit Court jury that Wiley Keith Pennington, 19, and Ted Reynolds, 26, beat and stripped a 37-year-old Martin man and robbed him of $450 on April 15 last year.

James Chaffins hired Pennington to drive him home from a Jacks Creek residence that day but was taken instead to Mud Creek where Pennington and Reynolds punched him about the head and face, took his trousers, wallet and shoes, and left him bleeding by the side of the road, the Commonwealth's attorney alleged.

By agreement with the prosecutor, Reynolds pleaded guilty to an assault charge and received a two-year sentence in exchange for his testimony against Pennington. Public Defender Robert Bishop, representing Pennington, criticized the arrangement as "a sweetheart deal" and told jurors that Reynolds' testimony was unreliable.

Chaffins initially told police he did not know who assaulted him, said Bishop, who suggested that Reynolds and an unidentified "buddy" had committed the crime. In naming Pennington as his accomplice, Reynolds had "picked out the name of an innocent man," the defense attorney claimed.

But Chaffins identified Pennington in court as one of the two men who beat (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

WE WERE GIVEN A BUM STEER

Driving around the county, one may be delighted by the delicate, off-white blooms that decorate almost every fence row and dot pasture lands.

But, even as all that glitters is not gold, those clumps of greenery now in flower are something more than a mere beauty of the season. They are a pest euphemistically known as multiflora rose. Their seeds are scattered by every bird that eats of their berries, and these accretions are rapidly spreading. At their present rate of spread, this county's pasture land within another 20 years will look like a giant briar patch, unless something is done to stop it.

Multiflora rose was introduced to this section by state and federal agriculture departments. It was recommended as "a living fence"—and how right they were! Only a rhinoceros in a hurry to get somewhere would dare venture into its thorny clumps. We were encouraged to plant it, and we did. We were given a bum steer, and, to stretch the figure, we swallowed the steer, hide, hoofs and horns.

So what? Is it a problem the individual farmer must attempt to solve alone, or one to live with till the countryside is lost?

A few have attempted multiflora control or eradication at their own expense. But we do not think they should. We are (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

East Kentucky Drilling Plans Said Scuttled

"A grand design" drilling program that was scheduled to begin June 15 in the development of about a million acres of oil and gas leases in Floyd and other counties of the area may not be begun at all.

The Arco Exploration Co., a subsidiary of Atlantic Richfield, of Dallas, Texas, said Arco isn't interested in renewing with Melinworth Financial Securities the contract which expired April 16, according to Buddy Beck, an Arco spokesman.

Labin Donald Hock, chairman of Melinworth, termed the Arco decision "a breach of contract," and indicated that his company is considering legal action.

Parks Anniversary Observance To Honor Ex-Governor Combs

A reception honoring Former Gov. Bert T. Combs is among activities planned at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park during its observance of the state park system's 60th anniversary.

May Lodge at the park was built during Governor Combs' administration.

The reception is scheduled for Saturday, June 9, beginning at 4 p.m. Gov. Combs is scheduled to attend and make brief remarks. The reception will include performances by the Prestonsburg Honor Choir and Sabrena West, who plays the lead character in the musical, "Annie," at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

Also on Saturday, prizes for many park activities, including golfing and boating, will be reduced for the day. And at 9 p.m. the park will host a dance.

The weekend's festivities start Friday evening with a buffet dinner and music provided by the "Gumbranch Heartbreakers." Then at 8 p.m., popular folk-singers Dick and Anne Albin will perform.

For more information on the weekend, call the park at 606-886-2711.

Budget Proposes Salary Increase

Closing Date Is Set For Floyd Schools

Floyd schoolchildren are headed for the final stretch this week with Friday the last day of school for book-weary pupils. For teachers, Monday, June 11 will be the closing day at all schools except McDowell Elementary, McDowell High School, Maytown, Wayland, and Spruce Pine Elementaries.

Owner of Mine, Others To Face Hearing Panel

The mine owner, a supervisor and two miners involved in the operation of a mine in which a Teaberry man died earlier this year have been ordered to appear before a state panel to see if their certifications should be revoked.

Willard Stanley, commissioner of the state Department of Mines and Minerals, said the July 14 hearing by the Miner Education and Certification Board will be the first in which regular miners have been ordered to attend. Usually, only supervisory personnel are called to appear.

Jerry Ray Johnson, 27, was killed in a roof fall in the Newsom Coals, Inc. mine near Galveston on April 16. According to state mining records, the roof fall occurred when a newly blasted area hadn't been properly supported with roof bolts or timbers. "The men knew there was a roof plan and we want to know why they were in that mine knowing it wasn't being followed," Stanley said.

Johnson, a foreman at the mine, was operating a scoop at the time of the accident.

The Sargent No. 19 mine on Branham's Creek, where Johnson died, had a long history of violations of mining regulations. Inspectors had visited the mine nine times this year before the Floyd Fiscal Court last week approved a budget that provides for substantial salary increases for magistrates in the new fiscal year, but two members of the court said they will vote against the raise when it comes up for a decision later this month.

The 1984-'85 budget, which must yet be approved by the state Department of Finance, provides for a 7.65 percent cost-of-living adjustment for the four magistrates, whose last raise was in January, 1982. It would boost a magistrate's annual salary from the present $20,843 to $22,438. In addition, each magistrate automatically receives $3600 a year for expenses.

Magistrates Gerald DeRossett and Ed Caudill indicated they will oppose the raise when it comes to a vote, perhaps on June 15, the date of the next fiscal court meeting. They would rather see the money go to wage increases for county road workers or toward hiring more road workers, they said.

Floyd is one of 24 Kentucky counties paying magistrates more than $10,000 a year for what is generally regarded as a part-time job; it is one of only six counties—the others are Pike, Perry, Leslie, Jefferson and Daviess—that pay more than $20,000.

The salary of the judge-executive, which—like that of the sheriff, jailer and county clerk—is set by the state, will rise on July 1 from $29,485 to $30,605, plus $3600 a year for expenses. The position of judge-executive is generally reckoned as more nearly a fulltime job.

The proposed raises could be made retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, a choice provided for in the new budget.

Music Festival Queen

Kim Johnson, Betsy Layne High School senior, was crowned Floyd County Music Festival Queen for 1984 at the annual event held Thursday, May 24, at the Prestonsburg High School gymnasium.

The new festival queen is the daughter of Mrs. Jo Johnson, of Ivel.

Students Score Gain in Averages

Floyd eighth-graders scored somewhat lower than the national average on standardized tests administered in March but appear, generally, to have moved closer to the national norm since they were tested a year ago.

In a battery of tests known as the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS), the performances of 723 eighth-graders were measured in reading, language, math and other skills. Scores were reported in 10 categories—two in reading, three in language skills, two in math, and one each in reference skills, science and social studies—in terms of the percentage of Floyd students scoring at or higher than the national median for their grade.

Over seven categories usually reckoned as indicative of competence in the "basic" skills, 42 percent of Floyd students scored at or above the national median, compared with 36.1 percent of the same students last year. The shift means that the scores of Floyd eighth-graders as a whole have moved from below average to low average, according to an explanatory note accompanying the test.

Last year, these students' scores ranged from a low of 32 percent (in vocabulary) to a high of 48.2 percent (in math comprehension). This year the low point was 36.4 percent (in reference skills) and in two categories—language expression (53.5 percent) and social studies (51.8 percent)—the Floyd students came out slightly ahead of the national median.

Testing of eighth grade students is voluntary in Kentucky schools. By law, third, fifth, seventh and tenth grade students are tested each year in Kentucky. The results of those tests are expected to be released later this month.

Among factors cited by Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. as contributing to the improved eighth-grade scores were increased emphasis on instruction in "the basics" and a school effectiveness program set up by state education officials to help school districts with poor test scores.

Insurance Agencies Blame Handling of Flood Claims

Don't blame them—blame the feds—is what local insurance agents are telling angry clients. Because federal officials are taking care of insurance claims stemming from the recent floods and, by many accounts, are making a poor job of it.

The trouble began May 10, three days after the worst flooding here, according to Dick Clark, vice-president of the Hall-Clark insurance agency. That was when the flood became an officially-certified disaster and directors of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) set up a claims office in a Pikeville motel.

Until then, local agents were handling flood claims routinely for their clients, assigning them to local adjusters. Clark said he had 80 claims reported by Wednesday, a day after the river crested, when federal officials announced they were taking over all insurance claims and the call went out to adjusters all over the country to help with the workload here.

Since then, as Clark and other local insurance agents tell it, they have found it virtually impossible to get information out of the federal claims office; they feel frustrated that they are unable to help their clients, and they are taking the brunt of criticism for problems over which they have no control.

"Runaround" is a word frequently used by agents and their clients to describe their treatment by NFIP staffers—as in a letter fired off by Clark to U.S. Congressman Carl D. Perkins last week. "It is a shame that (insurance) agents in eastern Kentucky were given such a runaround by the National Flood Claims representative in the recent flooding," he wrote. "When it takes more than one week to set up claims offices and in some cases two weeks or more to contact the flood victims, there has to be something wrong with the program."

Even now, four weeks after the flood struck, some victims are still waiting for an adjuster to assess their damage. Juanita Clifton, of Dwale, is one. A disabled widow, she lost her hot water tank, washer and dryer in the flood and reported the loss "just as soon as the water went down." An adjuster came to her neighbor's; none has yet visited her. Calls to the NFIP office in Pikeville have yielded nothing but busy signals, she said.

In Hueysville, Sarah Alice Refitt fretted for her sick husband during last week's unseasonably chill mornings. The flood made their furnace inoperable and there is no way they can replace it until the insurance is settled. It took Mrs. Refitt two days to get through to federal officials and then it was "hold, hold, hold," she said.

She pays a $134 annual premium and will sue if she does not get results soon, Mrs. Refitt vowed last week. The NFIP office promised to have an adjuster out to see her this week.

In Emma, the whole community is still waiting to see an adjuster, lamented Huey Darby, a partner in the Darby and Allen agency. "The government's really messed up on this," he said. "They've goofed and they ought to admit it." Darby said he thinks federal officials seriously underestimated the extent of flood damage here.

While most report that adjusters are courteous and fair when they finally (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Reading Program Begins For Kids

Don't let your children's reading skills get rusty over the summer! That was the advice of Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald as she promoted a summer reading program recently.

The program, which is sponsored by the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives, will be offered at over a hundred local libraries, including the Floyd library. Children will keep a record of the books they read, will participate in skits, puppet shows or other special activities and, at program's end, will be given a certificate of achievement and discount tickets for use at King's Island. The reading series is open to pre-schoolers and students through grade 6, including the blind and physically handicapped.

The Floyd library will kick off its program at 10:30 a.m. next Tuesday, June 12, with a party and film, "Andy and the Lion," for 3-through-7-year olds. At 2:30 p.m. the same day, children 8 and up will have a party and will see "The Seven Wishes of a Rich Kid."

Other sessions in the summer reading program are scheduled for June 19, July 3, 17 and 31, and August 7, when certificates will be awarded.

The discovery of acupuncture is attributed to Emperor Shen Nung of China, who, it is said, also compiled the first known list of effective herbal remedies around 2700 B.C.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield Move To Limit Hospital Charges

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky has announced changes in its hospital reimbursement program which will limit future rate increases from member facilities. The changes were outlined in a letter mailed to all 113 acute care hospitals in Kentucky.

Under the revised agreement, increases effective on or after July 1 will be limited to a hospital inflation index projected by Rate Controls, a national health care publication. The changes are designed to further contain payments made to hospitals on behalf of all Blue Cross and Blue Shield subscribers and their families.

Said G. Douglas Sutherland, Plan president: "We have an obligation to negotiate the best buy for our members. This change in reimbursement to contracting hospitals represents our continuing effort to play a leadership role in managing the cost and utilization of health care services on behalf of our subscribers. This can be accomplished while providing necessary levels of reimbursement to hospitals so they can maintain available services and quality care."

Hospital price increases in Kentucky averaged more than 11% last year while the Rate Controls "marketbasket" index averaged 7%. Overall hospital reimbursement, including the price and use of services, increased 19.8%. These program revisions represent an effort to achieve a significant savings on behalf of Blue Cross and Blue Shield members who require hospital care.

Other major components of the program include:
—A cooperative utilization review program which will enable the Plan to monitor patterns of care throughout the year.

—A hold-harmless provision under which neither the Plan nor the patient will be obligated to pay for hospital expenses incurred for a medically unnecessary admission.

—A pre-certification program which assures a patient prior to an elective admission that benefits will be paid according to that patient's level of coverage.

The program also involves a review of budgeted operating expenses and capital needs in establishing reasonable levels of reimbursement. An adjustment is made in all hospitals to recognize on-

"Taken for Granted"

I have been confined to a small room for more than two years against my own will. I have been granted few privileges and afforded fewer familiar luxuries. Three meals a day have been provided me, none of which are delicacies by anyone's standards. However, I have lost few pounds and I have survived. My environment finds me with ample idleness.

I have a philosophy that goes like this: "An idle mind means trouble." Keeping this philosophy in mind, I strive daily to assert my few talents. As a personal reward and at each day's end, my leisure activity consists of amateur writing—a skill I am not very good at, but I enjoy immensely, nonetheless. Simply being myself and being able to put down on paper what I feel within would have been the greatest privilege deprived me, but was not. Imagine, even while under such restraint and, still, only in America can one continue to enjoy such freedom. Otherwise, I would have lost all sense of reality, as well as my sanity.

At night while writing, and with my window slightly open, I find myself inhaling the sweet smell of freshly cut grass. Many nights I sit for hours simply gazing out at the million of twinkling stars that seem to bob about in the blackened sky above. A sight to behold, and yet it somehow loses its beauty from where I sit. While gazing out my window late at night, I sometime fall into a trance, reminiscing that many beautiful memories of days not so long ago. Many mornings as the sun gives new life to the eastern sky, I find myself having slumbered with my head supported on the narrow window sill.

One does not miss such trifling things as the sight of shining stars, the sweet fragrance following a spring shower, sand crabs dancing about to the tune of the breaking waves, a field of swaying flowers basking. Unless, of course, you find yourself in my situation. If you haven't guessed by now... I am an inmate at the Luther Luckett Correctional Complex.

Many in society feel that simple imprisonment is not enough punishment and that it doesn't deter crime. Hence, I assure everyone who reads my letter that the greatest punishment endured is the deprivation of one's basic freedom. Isolation and solitude are ample punishment... Prison has been my world for such a short time and, yet it now seems to have been my life forever. Although ironic, and even somewhat paradoxical, but I only realize now that love and simple caring may be the answer in our attempts to deter crime.

It shames me to acknowledge that it took prison to awaken me, to cause me to stop and to take time to look about me.

Whistler's Mother Would Have Smiled

By SUSAN D. BLISS
Smithsonian News Service

It was 1855 and the young artist, James McNeill Whistler, not quite 21, resigned from his job as a draftsman for the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey in Washington, D.C., and sailed off to London.

Whistler never was to see his native land again.

Like other Americans who headed for the art capitals of Europe in the 19th century to refine their training and soak up the nourishment offered by civilizations that had long supported the arts, Whistler enjoyed the easy, unconventional way that artists could live in cities like London and Paris.

Whistler spent the rest of his life making a name for himself in those cities, but America still claims this expatriate painter as its own. Born in Lowell, Mass., on July 11, 1834, Whistler is linked inextricably with the immortal painting of his mother. That solemn image, however, belies the artist's calculated and outrageous personal style and over-shadows the artistic innovations that characterize his oil paintings, water-colors, pastels and decorative schemes. Today, art historians acknowledge Whistler's works as precursors of 20th-century modernism.

The man most responsible for bringing Whistler's legacy back home was his friend and patron, Charles Lang Freer, a Detroit industrialist whose collection of Whistlers now is housed in the Smithsonian's Freer Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. In a fitting observance of Whistler's 150th birthday, the Freer is presenting a major showing of 300 works from this collection. The exhibition, sponsored by AT&T, will fill most of the Freer from May 11 through Dec. 1, 1984.

Whistler and Freer couldn't have stood farther apart on the scale of human personality. Freer was decorous, circumspect and tactful, an excellent businessman. Whistler was volatile and controversial, afflicted with a quality that his biographers, Elizabeth and Joseph Pennell, called "a sort of transatlantic impudence." His profligate spending kept him in perpetual debt and at one point led him to bankruptcy.

But in March 1890, when Freer, in a rare, impulsive moment, first called upon Whistler in his London studio and met the man whom he had known only through his etchings, the self-made millionaire discovered a rapport with the artist: Freer and Whistler agreed about art.

"Whistler's art was too subtle for most people of his time," says Dr. David Park Curry, curator of American art at the Denver Art Museum. Curry organized the Freer's exhibition and wrote the accompanying catalog. "Whistler's art theories were abstract at a time when Britain still worshiped realism and 'the human form divine'."

Freer understood subtlety, however, and he began to collect Whistler's etchings as appropriate embellishments for a grand, but tastefully understated, home he was building in Detroit. As Freer's collecting interests expanded to include the artist's works in a full range of media, Whistler wired transatlantic gratitude: "...I think I may tell you without the least chance of being misunderstood, that I wish you to have a fine collection of Whistlers!!! Perhaps the collection."

Freer turned out to be one of the few people whom the acerbic Whistler did not eventually alienate, and the two remained friends until Whistler's death in 1903. Frederick Richards Leyland, the artist's first important patron, was not so lucky. Leyland hired the painter to help decorate his elegant London town house, an arrangement that ended in a maelstrom of misunderstanding when Whistler carried the embellishment too far.

The artist, excited by his opportunity to create a full interior scheme, painted over the priceless antique leather wall coverings in Leyland's dining room with bluegreen oil paint and gold peacocks. Leyland never forgave Whistler for covering the leather or for the copious newspaper stories that Whistler generated and even encouraged during the course of the decoration.

Many years later, as fate would dictate, Freer was to purchase the Peacock Room, now commonly recognized as a herald of Art Nouveau. The room can be seen in the Freer Gallery.

Whistler's penchant for arousing strong feelings can be traced back through his youth. Following a childhood spent abroad, the young artist returned to the United States, having developed in the meantime a noticeable flair for youthful insubordination. He sashayed through West Point, flouting dress codes and narrowly missing dismissal for bad behavior, then dashed his mother's hopes that he would follow a military career by failing chemistry. On the job at the Geodetic Survey, Whistler gained admiration for his drafting skill, but the margins of his renderings of coasts and shorelines were sometimes decorated with elegant—and illicit—doodles.

In Europe, Whistler quickly became a recognizable fixture among the bohemians of Paris and London, with his "gleaming eye-glass, and his shock of curly black hair, amid which shone his celebrated white lock," as the Pennells wrote of their friend.

"Whistler was one of those somebodies you always notice," Curry says, recounting French Impressionist Edgar Degas' facetious comment to his already dandified, capeclad companion, "Whistler, you have forgotten your muff."

Whistler used controversy and showmanship to keep his name floating in the public consciousness," Curry says. "He was one of the first modern artists to understand the cult of the personality as a public relations trick. He knew that notoriety would attract attention to him and his art. But it hurt him in a sense, because it served to trivialize some of the most interesting art of the 19th century."

In fact, Whistler's quiet paintings of London at night, which the painter appropriately called "nocturnes" for their harmonious loveliness, were revolutionary in a society that still praised heroic "history paintings." One of his night paintings of fireworks at Cremorne Gardens, a London amusement park, got him into trouble when the conservative art critic, John Ruskin, hurled insults at painting and creator: "...For Mr. Whistler's own sake, no less than for the protection of the purchaser, (dealer) Sir Coutts Lindsey ought not to have admitted works into the gallery in which the ill-educated conceit of the artist so nearly approaches the aspect of willful imposture. I have seen and heard much of cockney impudence before now, but never expected to hear cockcomb act 200 guineas for flinging a pot of paint into the public's face."

Whistler sued Ruskin for libel and received a symbolic farthing in damages—clearly not enough to stop a financial slide that was finally arrested by a profitable commission to do a set of etchings of Venice. He had gained early fame for his prints of London's grimy but lively East End, and his graphics continued to receive accolades.

The paintings, however, were little understood. Portraiture was a lucrative pursuit that Whistler eagerly sought, but many of his greatest portraits profited him little, featuring likenesses of the mistresses he kept before his marriage (Continued on Page Seven)

Pay Raises Not Justified

Floyd county's new budget, as submitted to the state Department of Revenue for approval, proposes to raise magistrates' salaries to $22,438 a year, plus the usual $3600 each for travel expenses.

We have no official data at hand to show how much time these four officials spend in performing their work for the county, but the office of magistrate in Floyd county is generally considered only a part-time job. That job involves hours and stresses of which we are not aware, we must admit, but we do know that some of the duties magistrates formerly performed no longer exist.

The magistrate, for example, is no longer a judicial officer. He does not issue warrants of arrest, or handle minor civil actions, or set bail bonds or preside at trials. He may serve in an advisory capacity, but under a comparatively new law cannot even supervise road construction or repair. Thus his official acts are pretty well restricted to the once-a-month meetings of the fiscal court.

Floyd county is one of only six counties among the state's 120 that pays its magistrates or commissioners $20,000 a year or more. Ninety-six counties—including Boyd and its city of Ashland, Clark with the city of Winchester and McCracken and the city of Paducah—pay their magistrates or commissioners less than $10,000 per annum.

Frankly, The Times does not believe Floyd county has that much money to spend on these salaries, and, with all due respect to the men who hold these offices, we do not think such pay is justified.

Two of the four magistrates—Gerald DeRossett and Eddie Caudill—have already said they oppose the proposed salary increase, citing the need for county highway employees to be paid more and the possible need of even more workers at a time when winter and flood have left many roads in miserable condition. That is no great sacrifice on their part, since they already are paid more than $20,000 a year, but their opposition to another raise is a start in the right direction.

It is possible that the other magistrates will join them in this bit of self-denial. Certainly we hope they will.

were rehired by the court. Ten summer workers were hired for the Allen pool and park.

One of the county road workers recalled, heavy equipment operator Jack Nelson, died last Friday afternoon when a bulldozer rolled on top of him. He had been back at work for the county only three days. Others recalled were Hurley Akers, Bernard Martin, Billy Merritt, Irvin Shepherd, Shelly Woods, Ray Hill, Ronnie Mullins, Glennis Caudill, Martin L. Vanderpool, Forrest Tuttle, Jr., Earlas Hall, Roy Ousley, Kenny Stumbo, Marcellino Castillo, Henry Burchett, Linzie Conn, Jr. and Walker Coleman.

Park workers hired were Paula Spencer, Wess Halbert, Danny Underwood, Johnny M. Osborne, Brian K. Holbrook, Bobbie R. Marshall, Steve R. Sanford, John L. Collins, Monica Boyd and Laneva C. Hall.

The county is required by law to pay the expenses of Coroner Roger Nelson, County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. told the court. Nelson complained that the fiscal court had failed to honor $2300 in claims for expenses incurred in the course of his duties. Autopsies, formerly a rarity here, have been ordered more frequently by the current coroner, who took office in 1982.

The fiscal court turned down a proposal by James McKinney, of Craynor, for funding public schools. The Mink Branch miner suggested that $2 a month be added to the county garbage bills and earmarked for the schools, with a guarantee that the garbage rates would not be increased again for 10 years.

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said people could have supported the schools by voting for a utilities tax—a proposal that received strong opposition earlier this year—and that, in any case, the board of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. was alone responsible for setting county garbage rates.

Ella Compton asked for repairs to the flood-damaged Conley Fork road; residents of Conn Branch and Home Branch were authorized to apply for federal reimbursement for road repairs they did themselves. The extent of federal funding for flood-related road work will depend on assessments made by federal officials, who were expected to complete their survey last week, Judge Stumbo said.

This is a situation created on government advice, even persuasion. Then government should correct the mistake, at its own expense.

"A-HOOVIN'"

The plural of "hoof" is sometimes written as "hooves," which leads me to inquire if anybody has an idea as to the origin of the mountain expression, "hoovin' and settin'"? It was used more often in an earlier day to describe somebody on a "rare tear."

him; and Reynolds said he and Pennington had planned the robbery, agreeing to split the proceeds.

According to testimony in the case, Pennington picked up Chaffins around 7 p.m. at the home of Lydia Smallwood, then picked up Reynolds at Price, and the three drove later that night to Ligon, where the assault occurred.

Chaffins, who is disabled and has poor eyesight, said he was felled by a blow to the top of his head. "I begged them to let me up," he said, "but they just beat me harder."

After his assailants sped off, laughing, Chaffins stumbled half-naked to the home of Gary Douglas Hamilton, who gave him some clothes and called an ambulance, the complaining witness said. Dr. Ricardo Ocampo, who was on duty that night in the McDowell Hospital emergency room, said some of Chaffins' teeth had been knocked out and he had lacerations on the mouth and head that required stitches.

Hock said that when his company's representatives were called last week to Dallas for a conference with Arco, they thought details of the contract would be worked out. Instead, he said, Arco "threw us out of their office."

Beck said, however, that he didn't know anything about anybody being thrown out of an Arco office.

The rather involved train of negotiations for drilling in the area began with Arco contracting with a New Jersey operator to fund drilling, but he later turned his contract over to Melinworth. In mid-May Arco was quoted as saying it was considering the New Jersey operator's proposal to transfer his interest in the project to Melinworth. On May 8 Melinworth announced an agreement in principle with Atlantic Richfield, Arco's parent company, "to drill and explore on" about 1 million acres in Eastern Kentucky.

The leases included lands in Floyd, Lawrence, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin, Pike, Knott and Perry counties.

fatality. Twice in the past two years—most recently in February—the mine had been closed on account of uncorrected violations.

Summoned to appear before the certification board are Morris Newsom, owner of the mine; Davis Evans, mine superintendent, and miners Matthew Hall and Lloyd Bentley.

Fourteen coal miners have been killed in Kentucky so far this year, eight of them by roof falls. Explaining his decision to call in miners as well as supervisors involved in mining accidents, Stanley, who is chairman of the certification board, said he wanted to "get the message out that we're looking at them, too, and that they're part of the operation."

As well as possibly revoking miners' certification, he may propose that all mines be required to install temporary roof supports on roof-bolting machines, Stanley said. The automated roof supports are used to hold up the roof at the mine face until roof bolts are installed. Without the equipment, miners have to install roof jacks by hand, a tedious procedure that miners sometimes ignore.

LETTERS To the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

Open Letter To Parents

I have never met a child who didn't like stories. As pre-schoolers they beg us to read to them as they cuddle in our laps. Reading aloud to children is an important part of preparing them for school.

Once in school, educational advancement depends in large part on the development of reading skills. Studies at the third grade level show that children lose as much as four months' progress in reading skills over the summer, while those who read gain in competency. That is why I urge you to encourage your children to read for pleasure during the upcoming summer vacation.

This year the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives will again be sponsoring a summer reading program at over one hundred local public libraries. As a member of "The Kentucky Reading Team" each child will keep a record of the books he or she reads, participate in special activities, e.g., skits, puppet shows, story hours and contests and, at program's end, be awarded a Certificate of Achievement and discount tickets for use at King's Island. The program is open to children of pre-school age and students through grade 6, including the blind and physically handicapped.

Give your children the boost they may need by enrolling them in the summer reading program at your local public library. It is a worthwhile investment. They will have fun and best of all, they will reap dividends and profits in reading skills.

ALICE MCDONALD
Superintendent of Public Instruction
(Ed note: The summer reading program begins at the Floyd County Library on Tuesday, June 12. See notice elsewhere in this issue.)

Opposes Handgun Control

It seems as though the Handgun Control Coalition and all of the anti-gun forces won't be happy till all law-abiding citizens throw in the hat and give up their guns.

At first they just wanted to ban the so-called Saturday Night Specials. (Even though they didn't tell anyone that their definition of a Saturday Night Special included most all handguns). Then they wanted a ban on just handguns that were the easiest to conceal (you can bet that would include all handguns as we know them today). Now they are going after our handguns in a new and different way. They want a ban on what they call the "cop-killer bullet," even though there has never been even one single law enforcement officer killed with this notorious bullet. It was actually designed for big game hunting where maximum penetration was needed, such as with big bear and the largest African game animals.

It seems as though the only people who would ever prosper from a ban on handguns would be the criminals themselves. It wouldn't be the law-abiding citizens, on that you can be sure. The next time you see your grandparents, ask yourself if they were unarmed or if there were no chance of them being armed, how many times a criminal would have to think about breaking in on them or even your own family. Handguns may not be the answer to crime control but it's all we have today and I think we better hang on to our guns as long as we have crime and I don't think crime will stop today, or tomorrow, or next week, or next year. Guns are the largest crime deterrent we have.

Criminals in several surveys by the Justice Department as well as some independent surveys say that they aren't afraid of the police, or the courts, or even our jails, but will avoid any contact with persons who have guns for fear that they may be shot while committing a crime. I urge everyone who may read this that they should write to their legislators and voice their strong support for our right to keep and bear arms.

show up, some—like Richard Crisp, of Banner—wonder if outside adjusters fully appreciate the damage done by the acid waters of an eastern Kentucky flood. And Wilce Rose, who sells and services refrigerators, agrees. "I've been through four floods," he said this week, "and this one has been more acid than any I've seen." Acid will later cause damage that an inexperienced adjuster would not now detect, he said.

Rose is critical of adjusters for not allowing flood victims to replace freezers and refrigerators that were immersed in flood water. Unlike older appliances, which you could take apart and fit with new insulating material if necessary, there is no way to replace or sterilize contaminated insulation in the newer models, he argued. "They're doing people wrong," Rose said.

Goldie Lafferty, of Prestonsburg, has a letter from NFIP headquarters in Lanham, Md., warning her that her claim may be denied if she fails to file proof of loss within 60 days. If you want proof, she suggests, watch her trekking over to a neighbor's house each day to cook while she waits for the settlement that would allow her to replace her stove.

Or check out Glenna Mae Stumbo, who lost all the carpet in her McDowell home a week before she made the final payment on it. "I'm just borrowing money from people to buy a little bit here, a little bit there. I have no money to do anything with. It's all making me a sick person," she said.

If federal officials communicated better with them, local agents would be better able to help or reassure their clients, Dick Clark argues. It might also help if NFIP claims offices were responsible for a smaller area, he said, noting that the Pikeville office is expected to serve five Kentucky counties, six in Virginia and seven in West Virginia.

Denzil Allen, of the Hatton-Allen agency, wants to see a fact-finding committee set up, made up of federal officials and local insurance agents. The panel should look into the causes of the current confusion and make recommendations to see that it is not repeated, he said.

This year's is the first major flood in this area since the federally-administered flood insurance program, originally created by Congress in 1968, was restructured and expanded in 1979. Claims will need to be handled faster in the future if public confidence in the program is not to collapse, insurance agents here contend.

What federal officials think of criticism of the program could not be learned this week. Repeated calls to Joseph Seisman, supervisor in the Pikeville NFIP office, went unanswered Monday. On Tuesday, a staff person there referred a reporter to NFIP's Maryland headquarters. The public information director there referred the inquiry to a senior marketing officer in the Federal Insurance Administration in Washington, D.C. He was unavailable at press time.

Trials of Two Are Postponed; Castle Appeals

The trial of a former bookkeeper in the Floyd Circuit Court clerk's office on theft charges will be held in Lawrence county; trial of a Martin couple for murder has been again postponed, and an appeal has been lodged in the case of a man recently ordered to serve a six-year-old prison sentence.

Attorneys for Delores Calhoun asked for a change of venue on grounds that her former employer, Floyd Circuit Court Clerk Frank DeRossett, has daily contact with court officials here. The Commonwealth agreed to a venue change to avoid any appearance of prejudice against Mrs. Calhoun, said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert A. Burchett.

Mrs. Calhoun has been charged with failing to account for $21,915 in funds for which she was responsible between 1979 and 1981, when she handled money paid into the district and circuit courts and the driver licensing office. Trial was originally scheduled here for this week but a venue change was granted May 24. No new trial date has yet been set.

Trial of Alvis Randall Frasure and Linda June Wilson, charged with murder in the death of Larry Wilson at a Buck's Branch home last May 29, has been postponed to next January 7, in order to give new defense attorneys time to prepare their case.

The trial was initially set for last Dec. 28 when it was postponed on account of snow and rescheduled for May 28. But defense attorney Dan Jack Combs has subsequently taken office as a judge of the state appeals court, and a new lawyer will have to take over the case.

Attorney Gary Johnson last week filed a notice of appeal in the case of Gary Lee Castle, who was ordered recently to begin serving an 11-year sentence for robbery that had been imposed, but not carried out, six years earlier. Johnson said his client was a victim of double jeopardy in that he was tried on two charges—assault and armed robbery—arising out of a single incident.

Moreover, the fact that Castle's sentence was delayed so long through no fault of his own means he was denied due process of law, the attorney argued.

Mark Twain's THE ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER was the first major book manuscript written on a typewriter. Twain did not publicize the fact as he did not wish to write testimonials or explain the new machine's operation to inquirers.

Student Aid Funds At Pikeville College Reach Record Level

Pikeville College will reach a new level of student financial aid with the 1984-85 school year. Institutional funds given for academic and performance scholarships, athletic grants, work programs and interest-free loans will reach $376,000—a new high for the college, which distributed just over $300,000 in institutional funds in 1983-'84.

Scholarship funds are raised through the generosity of donors and from endowed scholarships. Pikeville College also administers an extensive federal and state financial aid program as an addition to institutional funds.

Total dollars distributed in 1983-'84, including funds from both Pikeville College and outside agencies, exceeded $900,000.

Financial Aid director, Bobby Price, noted that "no student should refrain from applying to Pikeville College because he or she doesn't think they have enough money."

For additional information students should contact the Financial Aid Office at (606) 432-9322.

Help for Flood Victims Not Wholly Financial

Can you answer this?—true or false. In a flood, people tend to panic, become unreasonable and uncooperative, and act selfishly.

Contrary to what most people might think, that's false. Actually, people behave very well in such stressful situations. People demonstrate increased energy, neighborhood spirit, and show good will and generosity. They will pitch in and help each other move belongings. They will take others into their own homes, and share transportation, food, and clothing. After the water subsides, residents and volunteers work incessantly hosing out mud, sweeping, and cleaning appliances.

But weeks or months later, feelings of being uprooted, loss of security, and the continued interruption of one's usual, comfortable, stable routine can have an erosive effect on one's strength and feelings of emotional well-being.

Those who have been victimized by recent flooding in the community and have visited local Disaster Assistance and Red Cross Centers can be reassured that when these helpers have moved along to another disaster area, their family, friends, church, and the community mental health center will still be here. Those who still feel the need "just to talk" may call the local Mountain Comprehensive Care Center office for an appointment. After hours and on weekends, telephone counseling is available through Help-Line at 1-800-422-1060.

THANKS SUPPORTERS

The Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad wishes to thank all supporters during the recent roadblock. Secretary-Treasurer Charles Hackworth said proceeds will be used for turnout suits for firefighters and that the roadblock will be an annual event. The fire department is located on the Middle Creek road in the building formerly occupied by Parkway Furniture.

USAA Award Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Laura Cooley, 17-year-old daughter of Prestonsburg Mayor and Mrs. Harold W. Cooley, has been named a 1984 U.S. National Award winner in two categories. Nominated by Mrs. Frances Brackett, faculty member in the business department at Prestonsburg High School, Laura won the National Award in Business Education and the U.S. National Award for Leadership and Service.

Laura has been an honor roll student for four years and has been very involved in many school, church, and civic activities. She was elected majorette for four years and was elected captain of the squad her senior year. She is a member of the newly formed jazz band at PHS, playing piano. This group was formed as an honors group from within the concert band where she has played flute for four years. She is a member of the PHS Honor Choir, having just returned from Gatlinburg, Tenn., where the group received a Superior rating. Laura served as Editor of the football newspaper, the Cat Scratch. Having done some work as a free-lance photographer for the football and basketball teams and for various other school activities, Laura contributed weekly sports coverage over the past year for The Floyd County Times. She has also contributed some work to the Floyd Co. Board of Education. Laura's career plans center around Photojournalism.

This is the second year that Laura has been nominated a National Award Winner, having won National Honors in History on the recommendation of Ms. Aileen Brown, PHS social studies teacher.

Laura is the granddaughter of Mrs. W.W. Cooley and the late Mr. Cooley, of Lexington, formerly a resident of this county and a long-time member of the faculty at PHS. Laura has two sisters, Susan, who has just completed her freshman year at PHS, and Christa, who will graduate from Prestonsburg Elementary on June 7.

A CONSUMER REPORT FROM ULTIMATE IMAGE TANNING CENTER ON TANNING BEDS VERSUS TANNING BOOTHS

We at Ultimate Image Tanning Center at Banner, Ky. realize that the person who desires the quickest tan in the least amount of time wonders which system of tanning is the best, the tanning bed or the tanning booth?

At Ultimate Image Tanning Center we use what we consider to be one of the most efficient and quickest forms of tanning in the world, utilizing the Hex Tanning Booth.

What makes the Hex Tanning Booth different from any tanning bed manufactured in the world?

The Hex Tanning Booth uses 40 tanning bulbs with the strength of 1,500 milliamps in each bulb, compared to the tanning beds which use only 20 or 24 tanning bulbs with the strength of approximately 800 milliamps in each bulb.

The secret of the faster tan is the larger amount of bulbs and milliamps per bulb.

You see, it takes 30 minutes on a tanning bed to receive the desired results, but it only takes 10-15 minutes in the Hex Tanning Booth to receive the same results.

This is why we guarantee that the Hex Tanning Booth can give the same tan in 10-15 minutes that any tanning bed manufactured in the world gives in 30 minutes.

The question is whether you would rather lie down for 30 minutes, or use the Hex Tanning Booth for 10-15 minutes.

We at Ultimate Image Tanning Center believe that time means money to people, and that the best tanned person is the best informed person.

We guarantee our Hex Tanning Booth to be safe and to tan without burning.

We also believe that the person who has used a tanning bed, and then comes to Ultimate Image to try our Hex Tanning Booth, will wonder why they were not informed sooner, and will also make up their mind not to lay down on the job any longer.

Graduation Time For Dogs, Too!

Six dogs—four of them are pictured above—graduated recently from an eight-week obedience school conducted by Debbie Roddam, of Bull Creek. The course changed "rowdy canine juvenile delinquents" into "well-mannered, easy-to-live-with pets," their instructor claimed.

Daughter of a Gadsden, Alabama kennel owner and dog trainer, Miss Roddam moved here last November to set up her own dog-training business. As her recent graduates were put through their paces and judged last week, she noted their progress with satisfaction. "Eight weeks ago these dogs were snapping and growling at each other and dragging their owners around. Look at them now—they're under perfect control."

We thank the Floyd Funeral Home, especially Roger Nelson, for his help, kindness, and understanding in this time of need.

Long-Distance Calls Opened to Competition

Kentuckians will soon be able to make long distance calls within the state through specialized long distance telephone companies.

The state Public Service Commission has opened the long distance market within Kentucky to competition by ruling that toll competition would best serve the phoning public and reduce the monopoly on in-state toll calls held by ATTCOM, an AT&T subsidiary.

The Commission issued its order May 25 on an administrative case opened in January. The case has explored various aspects of telephone toll competition, reimbursement fees for companies to use the existing telephone network, and methods of regulating competitive markets.

Since the break up of the Bell system last year, ATTCOM has provided all long distance service in Kentucky among the three local access and transport areas (LATAs). Long distance service within each LATA is provided by local telephone companies, including South Central Bell.

Under the Commission's order, specialized long distance carriers may now apply to provide toll service among the three service areas. Three companies—MCI Telecommunications Corp., Western Union and GTE Sprint—have already applied to the Commission for certificates of convenience and necessity to provide long distance service within the state.

Church To Present 'Greater Than Gold'

"Greater Than Gold," the film which will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday, June 19, at Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church here is described as "not just a film that reveals the problems we face but also how to win in Christ."

The film depicts a family torn by the pregnancy of a teen-age daughter and the lack of communication which threatens the life of the family.

The public is welcomed. But, because of the sensitive nature of the subject matter on abortion, the film is recommended for audiences age 11 and up.

Whistler's Mother...

at age 54 or pretty but anonymous young women who caught his eye as he walked through his Chelsea neighborhood.

His most famous painting, "Arrangement in Grey and Black: Portrait of the Painter's Mother," was begun on a day when one of those women failed to show up, and he asked Anne Whistler, who was staying with him in London, to strike a standing pose. The long-suffering, aged lady "stood as a statue...two or three days," as she wrote to her sister, until Whistler finally took pity on her and painted her "sitting perfectly at (her) ease." Both Whistler and his mother were overjoyed with the results, with Mrs. Whistler ascribing the "attractive charm" of her expression to "a Mother's unceasing prayer."

In 1891, Whistler must have felt a glowing sense of revenge when the portrait, which had been ridiculed by some critics, was bought by the French government. Since 1926, it has hung in the Louvre. Today, most people appreciate the painting for its subject matter instead of for the complex arrangement of shapes and tones that concerned Whistler.

On hearing the news of its purchase, Freer wrote to Whistler's wife: "This significant recognition of Mr. Whistler's art speaks in many ways and comforts many hearts—and although of universal interest, it is as peculiarly gratifying to all good Americans as it must be extremely disappointing to the few remaining scalpless followers of Ruskinism."

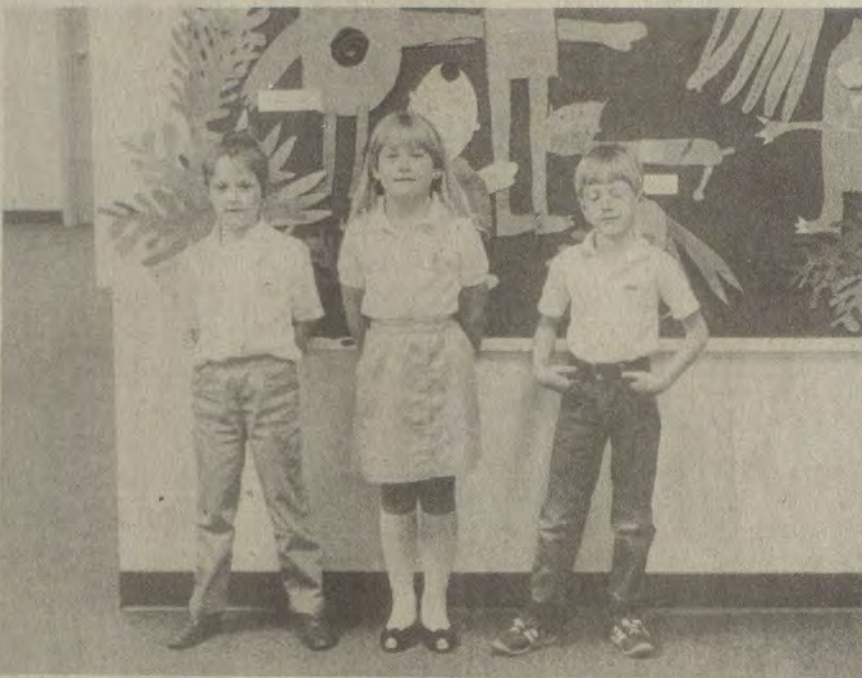

Freer, who had once advised a business associate not to fire a subordinate, offering the comment that "Genius is always erratic," never seemed flustered by Whistler's reputation for touchiness. When faced with a problem in obtaining a work of art that he wanted to buy from the artist, Freer advised his frustrated intermediary to "forget the man and remember his art."

Could any artist wish for a better remembrance?

Whistler's most famous painting, "Arrangement in Grey and Black: Portrait of the Painter's Mother," was purchased by the French government in 1891. It hangs today in the Louvre.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. May K. Roberts recently observed her birthday. On Sunday morning, during services at the First United Methodist Church, where she has long been a member, there were flowers on the altar for her, in commemoration of her birthday, from friends of long-standing, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland and Miss Alice Harris. Mrs. Roberts received many other greetings and remembrances from friends and relatives during this time.

CARD OF THANKS

We the family of Minnie Jarrell Akers of Dana, would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest appreciation to all our friends and loved ones who helped us in our time of need.

The many hours that were devoted out of love and caring meant so much to all of the family during her long illness and her funeral.

We thank the Little Salem Church and the Regular Baptist ministers. Also thanks to the Hall Funeral Home for their kindness.

Taxpayers May Amend 1983 Returns To Cut 1984 Flooding Losses

Taxpayers with 1984 personal and business flood losses in locations declared as federal disaster counties by the President may claim losses on their 1983 or 1984 Kentucky income tax returns.

To claim losses on 1983 returns, taxpayers must file an amended income tax return (Form 740-X) and attach a copy of Federal Form 4684. To expedite a refund, write "1984 Flood Loss" on top of the amended return. 1984 flood losses in other counties must be reported on 1984 income tax returns.

Each casualty loss must be reduced by the amount of insurance reimbursement and government aid received.

Requests for copies of 1983 tax returns destroyed in the flood must be made in writing and sent to P.O. Box 1190, Station No. 70, Revenue Cabinet, Frankfort, Ky. 40602. The request should be handwritten by the taxpayer and must include the name on the original return, the social security number and the taxpayer's signature. If additional tax was paid with the original return, send the validating number stamped on the front of the cancelled check.

Copies of Form 740-X may be obtained by writing the Property and Mail Services Section, Revenue Cabinet, Frankfort, Kentucky 40620.

Mrs. David Reed, of Lexington, was the Wednesday night guest of her mother, Mrs. Earla Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Robinson were in Frankfort recently on business.

Sean Keith Robinson was honored with a birthday party, his eighth, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Robinson, Sunday, May 27. A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Pamela Sue Prater, bride-elect of Keith Randall Frasure, was held June 2 at the Allen First Baptist Church. Miss Prater received silverware, small appliances, a sweeper, handmade quilts and spreads, linens, cookers, blankets, cutlery, corelle ware, plus many miscellaneous items. Refreshments, including a wedding cake decorated with four bridesmaids in long, pink dresses on the first layer and a bride on the top layer, were served by the hostesses, Edna Click, Sherri Conn, Lynn May, Lula Webb, Mary Webb, Sharon Webb, Libby Carr, Connie Hicks, Debra Isaac, Norma Davis, Billie Flynn and Donna Slone.

KET To Interview Webb Bros.,
Famed Lexington Developers

A discussion of their law days, prior to establishing a multimillion dollar real estate partnership in Lexington, is a highlight of the interview with Donald and Dudley Webb on "Bywords," airing Friday, June 15, at 9:30 p.m. (ET).

Host Sky Yancey, news anchor for WTVQ-36, Lexington, interviews the Webb brothers, Donald and Dudley, who are originally from Letcher county. They discuss their early years attending school, and the value of growing up in a small town (Whitesburg) during the 1940's and 1950's. Donald, the older of the two, mentions his experiences in law school; Frankfort (state government), and the Johnson White House during the civil rights strife of the '60's.

The two brothers reunited as a law partnership handling real estate closings, and criminal and civil law suits.

Real estate purchases pushed their legal practice into the background and in 1972 the Webb Properties came to the foreground. The brothers discuss their philosophy of taking what's there, such as abandoned, rundown storefronts, and turning them into attractive downtown structures attracting citizens for work, living and recreational purposes.

Pittston Signs Pact
For Low-Sulfur Coal

The Pittston Coal Sales Company, a division of The Pittston Company recently announced it has signed a new 10-year contract with United Illuminating Company of Connecticut that could result in the shipment of more than seven million tons of low sulfur, environmental-compliance coal over the term of the agreement to the utility firm's Bridgeport Harbor Station Unit 3.

United Illuminating today announced its Board of Directors had approved management's recommendation to maintain the current schedule of reconverting Unit 3 to coal burning. Under the schedule, Pittston will begin shipping coal to the unit in July for a test burn by December of this year. Assuming the test burn is successful, the unit will be capable of operating on coal or oil as of January, 1985.

The new contract, under which Pittston will supply all the coal required by the unit, is based on a fixed price plus escalation and calls for shipment of 500,000 tons to 800,000 tons per year, beginning in 1985.

The high quality steam coal, when burned, will meet Connecticut's stringent air quality standard which requires sulfur dioxide emissions be no more than 1.1 pounds per million British Thermal Units (BTUs) of power generated.

DAY CAMP CANCELLED

The Floyd County 4-H Day Camp scheduled for June 18-22 has been cancelled due to the condition of Archer Park following the flood.

To Attend Emory & Henry

Todd Nairn, a senior at Prestonsburg High School, recently signed a letter of intent to play football at Emory and Henry College, Emory, Virginia. Nairn started at quarterback for the Blackcats for three years and was All-State Honorable Mention both his junior and senior year. Also a four-year starter on both the basketball and baseball teams, Nairn has the option of playing either or both of these sports at the school. Recruited by such schools as Dartmouth and Carnegie-Mellon, Nairn listed size, location, and academic reputation as primary reasons for choosing Emory and Henry.

Gordon Peck, director of admissions at the school, announces that Nairn has also been designated an Emory and Henry Scholar, and will receive a four-year academic scholarship, renewable each year upon maintaining a 3.5 GPA. The scholarship is the highest award presented any entering freshman, and is based on GPA, rank in class, and college entrance exam scores. Graduating number five in a class of 167, Nairn is also vice-president of the Beta Club, treasurer of the National Honor Society, and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students, the Society of Distinguished American Seniors, the United States Achievement Academy in history, English, math, science, leadership, and athletics. Nairn also was voted 'Best-All-Around Senior' by his classmates, and was elected 'Outstanding Senior' by the PHS faculty. Mr. Peck stated, "We are indeed happy to have Todd choose our school as 'his school'. It is seldom that we see a student who excels both academically and athletically, and we feel very fortunate to have a student with Todd's abilities, talents, and character."

Social Security

Most Social Security benefits to dependents or survivors of retired, disabled, or deceased workers end if the person divorces or marries, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, said recently. But benefits to disabled widows and widowers, age 50-59, and to widows and widowers 60 or older can continue upon remarriage. However, all changes in marital status must be reported to the Social Security Office.

This same rule applies to disabled surviving divorced spouses 50-59 and to surviving divorced spouses 60 or older, Kelly said.

Benefits to a child getting checks, because he or she is under 18, or 19 if a student, or disabled will generally end if the child marries. Checks to a spouse getting benefits on the record of a retired or disabled worker will end if the marriage ends in divorce unless the spouse is 62 or older and the marriage lasted 10 years or more.

Checks for a widowed mother or father getting benefits because she or he is caring for an entitled child will end if the parent remarries.

There is an exception to these general rules, Kelly said. If an otherwise eligible person receiving benefits as a widow, widower, or adult disabled in childhood marries a person also getting one of these benefits she or he can continue to get benefits.

Benefits will also continue if a person receiving benefits as a widowed mother or father or adult disabled in childhood marries a person getting benefits as a retired or disabled worker. A retired or disabled worker receiving benefits on his or her own record are never affected if he or she marries or divorces. "A person drawing Social Security that is planning on marriage or divorce can contact their Social Security office about what effect such action would have on their Social Security benefits," Kelly said.

More information about how divorce, marriage, or remarriage affect Social Security benefits can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Creel Surveys Important

If you've ever had a fish and wildlife employee approach you while you were out fishing and ask a bunch of questions about how long you've been on the lake, what you're fishing for, what and how many you've caught, then you've participated in something called a "non-uniform probability creel survey."

These surveys, which are designed to measure angling pressure, fisherman success and a variety of other factors, are important parts of Kentucky's total fishery management efforts, according to Fisheries Director Pete Pfeiffer.

In most cases, these surveys are conducted by creel clerks whose only duty is gathering information from fishermen, Pfeiffer says. But on some bodies of water, law enforcement conservation officers conduct the surveys.

"If an officer should question you and skip the next four fishermen, it doesn't mean that he thinks you're a suspicious character," Pfeiffer says. "Each survey must be completed within a certain time limit and if there are many fishermen on the lake, the officer must select a representative sample, since he doesn't have time to interview them all."

The surveys are conducted under strict controls, according to Pfeiffer, so the results will be statistically valid. After a season of sampling, the raw data are mathematically expanded to give biologists a picture of the total fishery for each body of water.

There are several ways to express these results, none of which mean very much to anyone except a fisheries biologist. Fishing pressure, for example, is measured in man-acres/hour—one man fishing one hour on one surface acre of water. Harvest is expressed in fish/hour, fish/acre or pounds of fish/acre.

In isolation, these figures don't mean much even to the biologists. But when data from different lakes (or from different years on the same lake) are compared, trends and patterns begin to emerge. Creek surveys, for example, have documented the rapid rise in popularity of bass fishing in the past 10 years and have shown biologists how much and in what ways angling pressures have increased or decreased.

Other data, such as the number of men and women anglers, the percentage of resident and non-resident fishermen, the proportion of bank and boat fishermen and enumeration of fishing methods (casting, trolling, still fishing, etc.) also help both biologists and administrators with long and short range planning.

SBA Visits Scheduled In County on Mondays

The Small Business Administration (SBA) began Monday weekly visits to Floyd, Pike, Perry, Breathitt and Martin counties to help disaster victims process loan applications.

In each county the SBA representative will be at the Department of Social Insurance. The Floyd county visits will be on each Monday, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Norman Davis, SBA disaster field director, said the one-day-a-week visits to the five counties will continue until further notice.

Representatives for the agency will be on hand to answer questions and give out applications to homeowners, tenants and business applicants who have suffered losses from the recent storms, floods and tornadoes which struck eastern Kentucky. Advice on how to fill out applications properly also will be available to residents.

Davis urged residents to complete their SBA loan applications as soon as possible rather than to wait for insurance settlements, deeds, income tax reports and other verification documents.

He added that applications may be returned to one of the SBA assistance offices or mailed to SBA, P.O. Box 1618, Paintsville, Ky. 41240. Further information also may be obtained by calling (606) 789-6773, or the toll-free Disaster Hotline at 1-800-422-1044 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Memorial Day Flowers At Knott Graves Stolen

(In The Troublesome Creek Times)

Memorial Day weekend presented an unusual opportunity for thieves who annually rob graves at Carr Fork cemetery.

One family who had their flowers stolen repeatedly, marked their arrangements before placing them on the graves and later bought them back from a local florist.

Derek Tolliver, owner of Derek's Floral Design, has been arrested for receiving stolen property over $100, a class-D felony.

Investigating officer, Trooper Tim Hogg, said approximately $600 to $700 in flowers have been stolen from Carr Fork and surrounding cemeteries.

One resident who has been robbed three years in a row said that over the weekend she would visit the cemetery to remove the $100 arrangement of silk flowers the family bought for her father's grave for safekeeping overnight, and then return it to the grave the next morning.

Several families have tied arrangements to head stones with ropes and wires to prevent theft.

"The year we planted shrubs, they even dug them up out of the ground and took them," said one relative.

No arrests have yet been made regarding the actual thefts from the cemetery.

★ GOOD NEWS REPORT ★

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

On Sunday, at the local fire station in Juarez, Mexico, the children gather to wait for the round jolly man they call "El Doctor." Almost every Sunday, for the past 18 years, he has been on hand to greet them, coming across the border from El Paso, Texas. His name is Ray G. Villarreal, and he is not a doctor, but he's a very special person to these very special children. They are physically handicapped in one way or another, needing orthopedic shoes, leg braces or artificial limbs, and El Doctor comes with his supplies to fit them, to make them smile and laugh, at no cost. He is a man who knows all about special footwear and all about loving children on both sides of the border.

Long ago, back in 1948, Villarreal came to El Paso from San Antonio, via Brownsville. In all three places he had established stores that specialize in corrective shoes. His wife and three children pitched in; his son Gus is managing one of the stores today. Ray's motto is "Money is round. Spin it in the right direction and it comes back to you." It has come back to him, and he, in turn, aware of the needs of many Mexican children, has spun it in their direction, not only supplying them with corrective footwear but also with food, soap and other necessities. "If you know a crippled child, give me the child's name," is his familiar request. And with the name, he is off and running.

At Christmas, with the aid of the police and sheriffs, he donates several thousand pairs of shoes and gifts to El Paso's needy youngsters, and annually, an even larger number to the children of Juarez. In his volunteer efforts, El Doctor has, for many years, brought Mexican children with the most serious deformities to the Shriners Hospital in Galveston for treatment. Furthermore he has persuaded Shriners hospitals in Salt Lake City, Utah and Mexico City to periodically send orthopedists to Juarez for the purpose of transporting the most difficult cases to their hospitals for corrective surgery—all on a volunteer basis. Beyond that, when Villarreal learned that Mexico had no medical facility to train personnel in treating burn patients, he joined with El Paso's Sister Cities Havoc Committee and the local Rotarians to supply transportation for a team of Mexican doctors and nurses, bringing them to Galveston for special training. Then he helped them establish their own burn clinic in Juarez. What motivates Ray Villarreal? His friends and neighbors and literally thousands of youngsters and adults on both sides of the border will tell you the spirit of giving is in his heart, his eyes, his laugh. "I feel so good to see a crippled child walk," he says, and then quickly adds, "I could never have done any of this without the support and love of my wife and children."

There have been numerous awards recognizing El Doctor's giving, but none that thrilled him and his whole family more than the recent recognition he personally received from President Reagan. At a White House celebration, he was one of 19 individuals and organizations chosen from nominees across the country to win this year's Volunteer Action Award... and the cheers from Juarez and El Paso could almost be heard in Washington, D.C.

In memory of Virginia Akers Skeens, who passed away June 4, 1983.
My wife, and the mother of our seven children, passed away one year ago. She is missed greatly by her family and friends. She knew she had a home in heaven with Jesus, where she will not have to suffer with sickness anymore. Virginia cannot come back to us, but we know that we can go to be with her in heaven. Words cannot express the sorrow of her passing on.
She was greatly loved by her family and friends.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of John F. Wallace, February 6, 1984.

God saw you getting tired,
He did what he thought best,
He put his arms around you
And whispered, come and rest.
To see you slowly leave me
As I helplessly stood by,
To drink the cup of bitter grief
The day that you died.
From hospital bed to heavenly rest
God took you home to be his guest.
So treasure him Lord, in your garden of rest
For when on earth, he was the best.
I knew within my heart
That you loved me well and true
And bitter was the trial to part
From one as good as you.
In my heart your memory lingers
But I know 'tis vain to weep.
Tears of love can never wake you
From your peaceful happy sleep.
Sadly missed by your wife, Pauline.

★Cancer Hopeline

Q. Does cigarette smoking cause cancer?

A. Yes. People who smoke cigarettes have a ten times greater chance of getting cancer than people who don't smoke. Overall, smoking causes 30 percent of all cancer deaths. The risk of getting lung cancer from cigarettes increases with the number you smoke, how long you have been smoking, and how deeply you inhale. Smoking also has been linked to cancers of the larynx, esophagus, pancreas, bladder, kidney, and mouth.

Stopping is the best way to reduce your cancer risk from smoking, but switching to low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes may reduce somewhat your risk of developing lung cancer if you do not inhale more deeply, take more puffs, or smoke more cigarettes than you did before you switched.

However, switching to low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes will not reduce your risks of developing other cancers and diseases, such as heart disease.

Animal studies also have confirmed that by-products (tar) produced by smoking marijuana can cause cancers.

Once you quit smoking cigarettes, though, your risks begin to decrease at once. The only way to eliminate your cancer risks due to smoking is not to smoke at all.

For more information on how you can help protect yourself from cancer call 1-800-4-CANCER or write to McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South Limestone, Lexington, Ky. 40536 and ask for your free copy of Good News: Better News; Best News: Cancer Prevention.

A minor point as it turns out — for the accent here is not on history but on slam-bang excitement, and no one knows how to squeeze more excitement from a situation than Spielberg and Lucas. "Indiana Jones" is virtually (and at one

FAME

Tuesday Weld

WEDDED WOES — Tuesday Weld, Keith Carradine, Peter Coyote and Sheree North will star in a new television movie called "Scorned and Swindled" now being filmed in Los Angeles for CBS. The film was inspired by the true story of Sharon Clark (Miss Weld), who marries a con artist (Coyote) who also turns out to be a bigamist. Carradine plays another victim of the crafty Coyote, and he joins Clark in tracking down the con artist to get revenge. Miss North plays Clark's mother, who is also taken in by Coyote's character.

WAR CHILDREN — Dublin, Ireland is the scene for the filming of "Holiday From Fear," a television movie now in production for NBC. The movie stars Charles Haid (who is also the co-producer), Karen Valentine, Julia Duffy and David Huffman.

This story deals with three children from war-ravaged Northern Ireland who spend a summer vacation in the United States with foster families.

NEW COP ON THE HILL — Ken Olin has joined the cast of NBC's "Hill Street Blues" after guest-starring on several episodes last season. Olin plays the socially conscious Det. Harry Garibaldi.

Besides those guest spots, the actor has most recently co-starred in the ill-fated series "Bay City Blues" and the NBC television film, "Flight 90: Disaster on the Potomac."

TALES OF COLUMBUS — Gabriel Byrne will star in "Christopher Columbus," a six-hour CBS miniseries recently filmed in the Dominican Republic and Spain.

Byrne, who makes his American television debut in the title role, is joined by Rossano Brazzi, Faye Dunaway, Virna Lisi, Oliver Reed, Raf Vallone, Max von Sydow, Eli Wallach and Nicol Williamson.

Martin Branch Free Will Baptist Church at Estill was recently flooded. We want to raise our church and put a new roof on it, among other things. This is to appeal to members, ex-members or their families for donations to help us with this project. There will be some seats available in memory of deceased members. Any donation from anyone will be greatly appreciated. A list of names with a thank you note will later be listed in the Floyd County Times. I believe with the help of the Lord and people with fond memories of Martin Branch Church it can be done.

Miss Lora Hardwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hardwick and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, of Betsy Layne, won the overall senior division state piano competition held at Pikeville College. She will be competing for the final state title in Louisville this fall. A private music student of Mrs. Susan Compton Newsome, of Grethel, she received the best overall superior rating.

Food Stamps Request Denied 20 Counties

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, which administers the food stamp program, has turned down the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources' request to distribute food stamps on an emergency basis in 20 counties in flood-stricken areas of Kentucky.

The department currently is distributing food stamps through emergency procedures in 10 counties authorized earlier by the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Department officials said the number of flood victims seeking food stamps in the original 10 counties certified for emergency procedures led them to conclude that the ongoing food stamp program could handle food stamp applications from flood victims in the additional 20 counties. Counties for which emergency approval was requested but not granted include Adair, Casey, Edmonson, Estill, Franklin, Grayson, Green, Harlan, Johnson, Larue, Lee, Lincoln, Marion, Morgan, Ohio, Owsley, Pulaski, Taylor, Wayne and Wolfe.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Today drugs are dispensed according to a carefully refined system of categories and regulations. The most basic breakdown is between prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) drugs. For the former a doctor's prescription is required. The latter is available without prescription at your pharmacy. It was not always this way however. As late as 1914 buying any medication, including narcotics and barbituates, was as easy as buying a bolt of cloth. They could be ordered from national catalogues. By 1938 major changes had occurred. The most fundamental were outlined in that year's Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, the act that established the standards administered today by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

All prescription items and over-the-counter remedies are available at COOLEY APOTHECARY. Learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us. We are large enough to serve you yet small enough to know you. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30, Sat., 9-4.

"Jonathan Livingston Seagull", by Richard Bach; "A Death in the Family", by James Agee; "Dr. Tom Dooley, My Story", by Thomas A. Dooley; "The Summer After the Funeral", by Jane Gardam; "Help for Your Grief", by Dr. Arthur Freese; "Charlotte's Web", by E. B. White (for children); "Explaining Death to Children", by E. A. Grollman; "Death as a Fact of Life", by David Hendin; "On Death and Dying", by E. Kubler-Ross; "Death, the Final Stage of Growth", by E. Kubler-Ross; "Death and the Family", by L. Pincus.

Are You or Aren't You Pregnant?

By LUELLA KLEIN, M.D., President The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Some women say that they just know. Other women don't even suspect anything until they have missed several menstrual periods. For women, however, there are certain physical changes that do signal pregnancy.

The most obvious sign of pregnancy is a missed menstrual period. If you miss a period and have not been using contraception or using it irregularly, it's a good idea to see your doctor for a pregnancy test and examination. Other common symptoms can be breast tenderness and swelling, fatigue, slight weight gain, an increased need to urinate, and an enlarging abdomen. It's not unheard of to have light spotting or bleeding around the time of your period. So if you think you had a menstrual period but still have signs of pregnancy, make a doctor's appointment.

It's a good idea to wait at least two weeks after your missed menstrual period before having a pregnancy urine test. By that time, if you are pregnant your body will be producing a hormone—human chorionic gonadotropin or HCG—which is measured by both the home pregnancy tests and tests performed in the doctor's office. Although the home pregnancy tests are fairly reliable, they are sensitive to heat and vibration, and there is a slight chance of the test reading "not pregnant" when you are.

Your doctor, in addition to performing a blood or urine test, also will do a pelvic examination. If a woman is pregnant, the opening to her uterus will be slightly bluish and there will be some softening of the uterus.

If you are pregnant, your expected due date will be figured from the date of your last menstrual period since the date of conception is often unknown. Taking the date of your last menstrual period, count back three months then add seven days. If your last menstrual period began on January 1, your estimated due date would be October 8. Of course, any due date is just a good estimate by your doctor, as only a small number of women actually have their baby on that day.

WAGE LAW PROHIBITS SUBSTITUTING EMPLOYEES

The proposed Summer Youth Employment Opportunity Wage program prohibits employers from substituting youth for current employees. Employers who discharge, transfer or demote workers for the purpose of employing eligible youth are subject to various legal remedies and sanctions, including a $10,000 fine, 6 months in prison, and payment of back wages, according to the U.S. Labor Department.

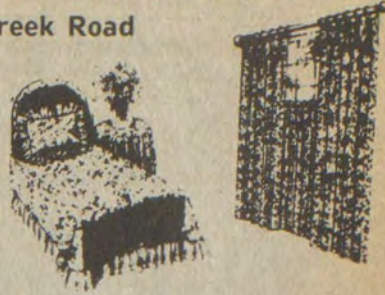

Although your pregnancy isn't apparent to anyone in the early stages and may not seem real to you, it's important to know definitely if you are pregnant. The earlier you know, the earlier you can begin prenatal care and begin to take care of yourself, especially by avoiding alcohol, smoking, and unprescribed drugs that aren't good for you or your baby.

PRESTONSBURG

DENTAL HYGIENISTS

Q. What is the dental hygienist's role in taking care of teeth and gums?

A. The dental hygienist, a vital member of the dental-care team, plays an important part in overall care of the mouth. He/she helps the dentist or periodontist by doing periodontal probes, taking impressions of teeth for diagnostic models, scaling and polishing teeth, taking X-rays and shouldering other responsibilities.

For example, the hygienist is trained to apply medication to reduce sensitivity, give fluoride treatments, and, in some States, administer anesthetics. To qualify for this work requires graduation from an accredited university program and certification by the State Licensing Board to practice under the direction of a dentist.
