Reynolds Released On Bond, But Murder Charge Unchanged

"A perfect example of a man being in a hurry to make a dollar and a woman's life is gone." That is how District Judge Harold Stumbo described the Dec. 5 collision of a coal truck and car at Allen that claimed the life of a Maytown woman.

"I'm not saying he is a killer or murderer," Stumbo said of Glennis Ray Reynolds, Jr., 21, the Boyd county man who appeared in Floyd District Court for a preliminary hearing last Friday. "but some coal truck drivers drive like they think they own the road. Some curb has to be put on that. Society can't tolerate people running red lights and killing people."

The judge's remarks came in response to requests by Reynolds's attorneys that the charge against him be reduced from murder and that his bond be lowered.

"This is not a criminal but a truck-driver, a hardworking man with a family," said Gerald B. Reams, a Catlettsburg attorney. Members of Reynolds's family, including his parents, his wife and 17-month-old baby, were present in the courtroom.

Reams noted there was no evidence his client was using drugs or alcohol when his laden tractor-trailer collided with the passenger car driven by Brenda Sue Bentley at the intersection of U.S. 23 and KY 1428 around 3 p.m. Nor had he any previous criminal record, the lawyer said. "This is a traffic accident case. An accident does not justify a charge of capital murder," he said.

The defense attorney asked that the charge be lowered to reckless homicide—the lowest of three charges which might be applicable to the case—and that bond be reduced from $80,000 to $40,000.

County Attorney David Barber said the murder charge was justified because Reynolds displayed "wanton conduct that manifested extreme indifference to the value of human life."

The prosecutor cited evidence presented by the investigating officer, State Trooper David Jackson, that, just before the fatal collision, Reynolds's truck passed a car that had already stopped for the red light. "He failed even to attempt to stop until he entered the intersection and saw the (Bentley) car," Barber said.

Legislative Task Force Hears From Public on Insurance Woes

The reasons insurance is hard to get are special to eastern Kentucky. They are not special to eastern Kentucky.

The cause of the problem is the industry itself. The cause is the local community.

The solution lies in more government regulation. The solution lies in anything but more regulation.

All this and more was said Wednesday last when 13 members of a 27-member legislative task force came to Prestonsburg to find out why home and auto insurance is harder to get and more costly in some parts of the state and to decide what recommendations they should make to the 1988 General Assembly.

It was the task force's fifth meeting and the first designed to give the general public an audience—earlier meetings had heard from special interest groups, including the insurance industry.

In fact, the few "ordinary" citizens who spoke—those without public or industry ties—waited three hours to have their chance at the May Lodge podium. One of them complained moreover, that the list of scheduled witnesses who provided the bulk of the earlier testimony was heavily weighted in favor of the insurance industry.

Insurers Cite Roads, Arson As Cost Factors

"I was surprised nobody called for tort reform," said Linda Locke, a member of the panel, at the end of Wednesday morning's session. But if aggressive lawyers and heavy liability judgments did not come up for criticism during the 3½-hour session, they were among the few omissions.

The industry did not escape censure, several speakers charging that recent heavy losses by insurance firms resulted from their earlier scramble to make quick money by selling cut-rate policies. The discount policies provided investment capital when interest rates were high but caused a crisis when rates fell and claims started coming in, explained Doug Hinkle, owner of the Walter P. Walters Insurance Agency in Pikeville.

"They got in such a predicament they are trying desperately to get out. In 1985 there was a $19.5 million loss by the industry," Hinkle said. "Do you think they're interested in writing business in Pikeville when they've got problems like that?"

Pressed by task force chairman Stephen Wilborn, who said he was concerned at the insurance industry's dividing up the state into zones for pricing purposes, Hinkle said there is "no question it costs more here." Auto and homeowners insurance is 18-20 percent more expensive here than in Ashland, the agent estimated.

Bad roads and lack of fire protection make insurance firms reluctant to do business here, Hinkle said. "One of the most problematic areas is trying to insure a coal truck in the mountains," he told the panel. "And I don't have one company out of 14 that will voluntarily cover (a home in) Class 10—areas where there is no fire department response," the agent said.

Of 247 insured-house fires in the Post 9 area in 1985, criminal investigations were opened in 105 cases and 48 arrests were made, said Larry Henderson, of (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Three-Year-Old Is Asphyxiated In Estill Blaze

A house fire in Estill Sunday claimed the life of three-year-old Megan Suzanne Slone. The girl was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson. State Medical Examiner Dr. John C. Hunsaker listed carbon monoxide poisoning as the cause of death.

According to the coroner, Cynthia Slone, who was asleep in the same bedroom as her child, awoke around 8 a.m. to discover a small fire burning near a portable electric heater in a hallway nearby. Believing it to be an electric fire, the mother rushed to flip a breaker switch and then awakened her brother, Timothy Hall, who was sleeping in an adjoining bedroom, Nelson said.

Meanwhile, the open door of her own bedroom had created a draft which fanned the flames and drew smoke into the room, thwarting repeated attempts by the mother to reach the child, Nelson said. Mrs. Slone suffered burns to her hands.

Charles Slone, the child's father, had left earlier Sunday for a hunting trip in Magoffin county.

Fire departments from Maytown, Wayland, and Garrett responded but were unable to save the child or the house, which was gutted. Floyd County Rescue Squad recovered the child's body.

Investigators determined that a throw rug near the electric heater and a plastic runner were the first materials to catch fire.

Quarrel Ends As One Hurt, One Arrested

It was an argument over politics that led to the stabbing and hospitalizing of one man and the arrest of another, the accused man said last week.

Alvin Barnett, 60, of Buck's Branch, was arrested and charged with assault in the first degree following the stabbing of Milton Conn, 39, of Ocosee, Florida.

Two old friends, Conn was visiting Barnett at his house December 3 when the two began drinking and arguing over local politics. "He was talking down politicians here, saying how crooked they are. But some of them are my friends and I worked for them," Barnett said.

Barnett called the stabbing an act of self-defense after his preliminary hearing in District Court. "I stabbed him one time in the stomach. He might have killed me if I hadn't."

The butcher knife used in the stabbing had been used to cut up chickens and was lying on the kitchen counter when Conn reached for it, according to Barnett. "He would have cut me if I hadn't got to it first," Barnett said.

Conn was admitted to Our Lady of the Way Hospital December 4. The hospital the following day listed his condition as fair and he has since been released. After seven days in jail, Barnett was granted a $10,000 unsecured bond on the judge's condition that the defendant not be out of his house after 8 p.m. If he is arrested again for being drunk, he'll receive an automatic 30 days in jail, the judge stipulated.

The case will now go before the grand jury. The victim has reportedly since returned to Florida.

Pilot Killed In Plane Crash On Ivy Creek

The pilot was killed last Wednesday when a small private plane crashed into a mountain at the head of Ivy Creek.

Joseph Bernard Bates, 57, of Ceredo, W.Va., died when his twin-engine plane crashed in a rugged area near the top of a mountain about three miles off U.S. 23 near Ivel. Officials and Floyd County Rescue Squad members used four-wheel-drive vehicles on an old stripmine road to reach the isolated site.

Wreckage of the plane was spotted about 12:30 p.m. by a helicopter pilot, police said. Searchers reached the site about two hours later.

The plane left Tri-State Airport near Huntington, W.Va. at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday bound for Pikeville Airport, where it was due at 7:30 a.m., police said.

Bates recently signed a contract to be the fixed base operator at the new Big Sandy Regional Airport in Martin county. The $6 million airport is scheduled to open officially next year.

Former Councilman Named in Lawsuit

Former Prestonsburg city council member Robert Ranier left town owing them around $67,000, First Commonwealth Bank officials claim in a suit filed last week in Floyd Circuit Court.

Ranier's seat on the council was declared vacant and he was replaced last month by Adrian "Abo" Blackburn after he dropped from view over the summer and failed to respond to council requests for an explanation of his absence.

The suit lists the address of Ranier and his wife Harrietta as Daytona Beach, Florida. The bank claims the couple is in default on six notes issued between January and November, 1985, including a $31,222 note issued July 30 for purchase of a Lincoln automobile and a $23,366 note issued Nov. 18, for which the Raniers' University Drive home is listed as security.

The First National Bank of Paintsville is also named as a party in the suit, by virtue of a mortgage loan (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Complaint Triggers Citation Against Wheelwright Mining

A resident's complaint that Left Beaver Creek was "running as black as soup" Thursday led to a citation of Wheelwright Mining Company for pollution.

The resident, who declined to give his name for fear of reprisal, said mining effluent is discharged into the stream in sufficient quantities to turn it black "four or five times a year." He did not know the source of the pollution, he said.

According to records at the Prestonsburg office of the state Bureau of Surface Mining, inspector Larry Green, who had done a complete inspection of Wheelwright Mining Company's Price plant only the day before, returned on Thursday and cited the firm for discharging contaminated water into Beaver Creek. A follow-up inspection on Friday indicated the problem had been remedied.

The inspector checked a box on the inspection report indicating that Wheelwright Mining had made "a good faith effort in completing remedial work" and a space for recommended legal action was marked "N/A" (not applicable).

For the resident whose complaint triggered Thursday's inspection, however, "good faith" was not easily credited to a company that discharged waste into a stream, especially on a day when a leak at Martin had shut down the Beaver Elkhorn Water System, which serves both arms of Beaver Creek.

"Supposing this stuff was seeping into the system and they started it up and we're drinking it, with all these chemicals and whatever in it," he said. "I don't want to be notified five years from now that we were drinking carcinogenics (cancer-causing agents)."

Wheelwright Mining Co., which is owned by the Toronto-based Inspiration Coal Co., operates an underground mine and tippie at Price. In spite of the concern of 58 residents from Ligon to Drift, who listed their objections with the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, the company was given permission to open a strip-and-auger operation at the site last year and a further permit amendment allowed the firm to extend its refuse area in Indian Grave Hollow.

On March 14 this year, the company was cited for allowing waste to enter Beaver Creek from three sources and, on March 17, for failing to properly maintain sedimentation ponds and diversion ditches. Another notice of (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Next Issue Slated Monday, December 22

The next issue of The Times, which will also be our last for 1986, will come out next Monday, December 22. This departure from our usual Wednesday dateline comes about for at least two reasons. First, with Christmas coming on Thursday, subscribers would not get their paper until Friday, at the earliest. Second, this will allow our staff to get a little longer and much-needed rest.

For this one issue, classified ads must be in by noon, Friday; other advertising, by Friday evening. News items must be in by Saturday.

Public Opinion Seen Changing In Prosecution of DUI Charges

Heightened public outrage at highway deaths was reflected in the two areas in which the state's prosecutors were invited last week to sharpen their skills, said County Attorney David Barber on his return from a three-day workshop sponsored by the state Attorney-General's Department in Frankfort. Sessions focused on the prosecution of drunk drivers and on vehicular homicide cases, he said.

Coincidentally, the first case awaiting the prosecutor on his return involved the death of a Maytown woman in a truck-car collision at Allen.

Changes in the state's murder statute made by the 1984 General Assembly now make it easier to invoke that law in cases of vehicular homicide—and the truck driver involved in the Allen collision was in fact charged with murder, despite his attorney's argument that he should have been cited on a lesser charge.

In accidents in which a person's negligence results in another's death, a prosecutor typically has a choice of three charges to press against the alleged offender—murder, second-degree manslaughter, or reckless homicide.

Taking a risk that would not nevertheless be characterized as "wanton" might justify a reckless homicide charge, Barber said. If the driver's action appears "wanton" headless, the manslaughter statute would more likely apply.

If the driver's action showed "extreme indifference toward the value of human life," a murder charge becomes appropriate, the prosecutor said.

"Public sentiment is changing," Barber said, in explanation of legislative changes that, two years ago, explicitly made the criminal statutes applicable to those responsible for traffic deaths.

"Historically, the only redress a family had in a traffic death was through a civil suit. There was a feeling that, because it was 'an accident,' no one should have to serve jail time," the prosecutor said. "But then there was a public outcry, that something needed to be done."

The difference between murder and manslaughter—a distinction that is likely to be argued closely in the trial of Glennis Reynolds in the Dec. 5 death of Brenda Sue Bentley—hinges on whether the driver's action "in and of itself shows extreme indifference to human life," Barber said.

A driver who is drunk, traveling at high speed, or who "blatantly" disregards a stop sign would qualify under that definition, he said. On the other hand, a driver who gets caught in a culpable miscalculation—pulling out to pass without adequate clear space, or unable to stop when a traffic light changes, for example—would more properly be charged under a lesser statute, he said.

Sorting out the correct charges will become more exact when a state police program to train accident reconstructionists yields its first graduates next year, Barber said. While there are now only two officers in the state specifically trained to reconstruct accident scenes, the new program is designed to produce another 50—several for each of the 16 state police posts—he said.

Defense attorneys who try to discredit Breathalyzer results in defending clients accused of drunk driving will have a harder time of it in future, Barber said. Prosecutors who attended last week's seminar learned more about the machine's reliability and the BA results are likely to be supplemented increasingly with results of urine analysis, he said.

In response to pressure from police and the public, prosecutors who have routinely recommended dismissal of DUI cases with BA readings of .13 or less are now beginning to pursue all cases with readings of .10 or more, said Barber, who noted that he has customarily prosecuted cases with at least a .10 reading.

One demonstration at the seminar, which was organized by the Prosecutors Advisory Council with the assistance of the state police, involved voluntary administration of Breathalyzer tests to seminar participants at the end of a social gathering at which liquor was served.

After the prosecutors had consumed cocktails over a period of two or three hours, a few were "staggering drunk," said Barber. "But they still blew only an 8 or a 9" on the Breathalyzer.

The county attorney, who noted that he did not personally participate in the demonstration, said it confirmed his belief that "if you blow a .10 or above you're drunk and you shouldn't be driving."

the state police. But arson cases have only a five percent conviction rate, he said.

While some suggested rules requiring an "orderly withdrawal" of insurance companies which decided to pull out of an area, industry spokesmen asserted unanimously that redlining could not be resolved by law. "You can't force anyone to do business when they don't think they can make money," Hinkle said.

Their solutions were for insurance companies to be more cautious in writing individual policies and for local communities to make themselves more attractive to underwriters.

Writing policies for more than a home is worth only invites arson, said Jack Miranda, executive vice-president of Kentucky Farm Bureau Insurance Co. While his firm lost overall $8.20 in claims for every $100 taken in in premiums over the past five years, in eastern Kentucky the losses—mainly through fires—were about $23.70 per $100, he said.

Melvin Wilson, an adjuster with Big Sandy Claims service, recommended that mobile homes be merely replaced if they burn, "so that no one can benefit" from the fire.

Beefing up a community's fire protection capability is the key to lowering insurance costs and persuading underwriters to do business here, several speakers insisted. "A major problem in eastern Kentucky is the consistently high frequency of total fire losses," said Kentucky Farm Bureau's Miranda. "You only need one total loss for every 500 homes for the business to be unprofitable. Sometimes it's as high as one for every 200 homes in this area."

Hinkle agreed. "It's hard to have a major fire if you have fire protection," he said. But 85 percent of Pike county homes are in areas designated by the Insurance Services Organization as Class 9 or Class 10—areas with little or no fire protection, he said.

An irony noted by Big Sandy ADD Director Roger Recktenwald and public management specialist Rob Nicholas is that the Farmers Home Administration, which principally funds construction of public water systems in this area, does not generally allow money to be spent for installing hydrants. Neither are fire plugs encouraged by the Public Service Commission, which regulates rural water systems, Nicholas said.

Recruiting physicians for this area, especially for delivering babies, has become increasingly difficult on account of soaring malpractice insurance rates, Dr. Ellen Joyce, a family practitioner at the Mud Creek Clinic, told the panel.

Two obstetrician-gynecologists recruited last summer by Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., operator of the Grethel clinic, had to be turned away because malpractice insurance was unavailable and in any event—with annual premiums running at $42,580 each—would have been unaffordable, Dr. Joyce said. Floyd county has only three ob-gyns and none of its family doctors is any longer delivering babies, the physician noted.

Debbie Gambill, who said she has never filed a claim against her homeowner's or auto insurance, told the task force of having the policy on her Spurlock Creek home cancelled three years running and now of being unable to get coverage at all. In non-compliance—alleging that "waste and other black material" had blocked and then breached a diversion ditch at the mine—was filed on July 21.

According to an agreed order entered into by company officials and the Natural Resources Cabinet on May 23, a $1600 penalty was assessed against the mining company, which was permitted to pay only $1100 of it as long as remedial work was done promptly. A Cabinet official confirmed Tuesday that the firm paid $1100 on August 22.

Bits and Pieces

Before returning home at the end of a visit from afar, her son, daughter-in-law, and two obstreperous grandchildren came to say goodbye. Upon their leave-taking, the honored and honest lady said, "I thank you for coming to see me. And I thank you for leaving."

CHRISTMAS PAST

As long as there are children expecting wondrous things on Christmas morning, there will be a Santa Claus. Add to that older people who have never managed to grow up entirely.

I have always known something strange and marvelous is possible at Christmas. It didn't matter when I was a child, and it doesn't matter, now, that it has never been realized. It is possible still.

And when I was a child, I had the best Christmas in the whole world every year, because Santa, himself, came to see me. I thought he paid every child on Salt Lick Creek a visit for always the day before Christmas, Santa would be seen from some distance walking toward my grandparents' house. I can see him still, striding along briskly in a rich, red suit, his snowy beard flowing, and ah, those gleaming black boots!

Christmas morning was pretty much an anticlimax, but I couldn't fault Santa. He was my Christmas.

GETTING CLOSE

Only seven more days until Christmas, and I do wish it would snow just a little.

Because the condition of three-year-old Jerri Michelle Bentley, who suffered a broken jaw and a head injury in the accident, was reported to be "fine," the judge and prosecutor agreed to reduce from $40,000 to $20,000 the bond on the assault charge arising from the child's injuries. But they refused to lower the $40,000 set on the murder charge.

Barber said he "couldn't look the girl's family in the face" if he agreed to any further bond reduction.

Reynolds's mother, who sobbed quietly during some of the proceedings, left the courtroom while attorneys argued over the amount of the bond. Reynolds was released early Friday afternoon, when his parents put up $6,000 in cash—10 percent of the $60,000 property bond under which he was being held.

Trooper Jackson testified that the Bentley car came to rest 180 feet from the point of impact. In response to a question by Judge Stumbo, he said he could not estimate the truck's speed. However, the impact was "very hard" and so compressed the Chevrolet Citation that the Floyd County Rescue Squad had to use its "Jaws of Life" device to free the victim, the officer said. Mrs. Bentley was pronounced dead about two hours later at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Jackson said two witnesses, Johnny Caudill and David Amburgey, told him they had just passed Reynolds's truck and were still in the passing lane when they stopped for the red light. The light was red when Reynolds passed them on the inside lane, they said.

Reynolds told him he saw the light turn yellow but estimated he did not have time to stop and that the light turned from yellow to red as he entered the intersection, Jackson said.

Reynolds was also represented at Friday's hearing by Sam F. Kibby. Seated at the prosecutor's table but taking no active part in the proceedings was Prestonsburg attorney Jerry Patton, retained by the Bentley family to pursue civil remedies in the case.

B.S.R.T.A. Meets at Lodge

Members of the Big Sandy Retired Teachers' Association held their regular luncheon meeting last Wednesday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. Mrs. Lenore Gullett, of Paintsville, president, presided, and Charles Spears, of Pikeville, past president, offered the blessing. The devotional was presented by Mrs. Daisy Holiday, of Salyersville, and the Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mrs. Opal Priest, of Inez. Mrs. Imogene Salyer, of Salyersville, secretary-treasurer, gave her reports.

Russell Boyd, of Paintsville, a member of the Executive Committee gave a report on legislative matters of interest to retired teachers, and Charles Spears, member of the joint Legislative Committee of K.R.T.A.-A.A.R.P., presented findings in regard to insurance.

The president announced that the next meeting would be held April 19, and added that the county with the largest attendance would be honored at that time.

Mrs. Gullett read two poems and wished everyone a "Merry Christmas and a good New Year."

Those attending and the counties which they represented were: Lenore Gullett, Russell Boyd, V.P. Horne, Edna Boyd Blevins, and Luther Wright, Johnson county; Charles Spears, Requa K. Spears, Edith R. Roberts, Mae D. Irick, Pike county; Imogene Salyer, Anna Mae Arnett, Anna Ruth Arnett, Lillie M. Prater, Flossie May, Daisy Holliday, Lucy Montgomery, Ethel Fetterly, and Ronnie Prater, Magoffin county; Katherine Cline and Opal Preece, Martin county, and Norma S. Stepp, May K. Roberts, Danese Amburgey, Ruby Akers, Lucy Regan, Dixie Webb, Harmon Hale, Eva Allen Hale, Opal S. May, and Dacia B. Woods, Floyd county.

LETTERS
To the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

All Potential Victims

I read Mr. Elkins' letter to the editor entitled, "How Many Have to be Killed or Injured?" I must say that I agree with him totally. However, I would like to add my two cents worth in other areas where the coal truck operators are demonstrating total disregard for our traffic laws, as well as the rights of those of us who aren't in the business.

How many coal trucks do you meet on the road that are within the legal weight limits? At the intersection of Hwy. 1210 and 404 there is a bridge spanning Middle Creek that is very clearly marked "12 ton weight limit." Daily there are at least 30 tractor trailer coal trucks crossing this bridge with coal stacked one to two feet above the top of the beds. Is it possible that these trucks are in the 12-ton weight limit?

Now, travel the county roads and count the number of trucks you meet that are running on the wrong side of the road. Safe, right? And did you know that if one of these trucks runs you off the road, you destroy your car, and possibly, kill someone, but the truck did not make contact with your vehicle, according to the law that truck was not involved in your accident, nor is he liable unless you can prove it in a civil suit in a court of law. Yes, that's right—if contact was not made with your vehicle, the vehicle that ran you off was not involved. That's the law.

Now let me, as a concerned citizen, praise those people who have decided it's time something was done, and are seeking to prosecute those who would willfully disregard the laws, the rights of the citizens of our county, and sometimes human life in the careless operation of their vehicles.

I think it's high time that all of us, politicians and private citizens alike, get behind these people to establish a set of laws common to the operation of all motor vehicles. Also to insure the laws are enforced with equal vigor, whether a family sedan or a commercial vehicle. We are all potential victims.

Not Reporter's Error

Wheelwright Police Chief Terry L. Hill said this week he did not intend to impugn the integrity of the Lexington Herald-Leader or its reporter, Lee Mueller, when he accused the paper—in a letter published in last week's Times—of either misunderstanding or misreporting him.

The reference was to an Oct. 16 news report of the death of Voyné Cannon, in which Hill was quoted as an eye-witness. Hill wrote in his letter to The Times that he was not an eye-witness but arrived on the scene after the event.

Mueller said this week he stands by the original report and insists Hill identified himself as an eye-witness.

Hill does not deny it. "I don't remember what I told him. I'm not going to say I didn't say that. I'm not holding him (Mueller) responsible for my mistake. But I didn't see it (Mrs. Cannon's death)," the police officer said.

The Reason For Christmas

I realize the Christmas Season is upon us. I'm sure there are people reading your paper will agree with what I have to say, because it needs to be said. Commercialism has taken Christ out of Christmas and been replaced with "Merry Xmas." I have seen "Merry Xmas" on windows, signs, and cards. What does "Merry Xmas" really mean?

As we celebrate Christmas let us look that if it hadn't been for Christ we would have no Christmas. As we celebrate Christmas with family and friends, gifts are exchanged between us. Let us give thanks to Christ for his many blessings we have received in 1986. Many of us have received and shared the man's blessings. Thanks to Christ we can love, happiness, health, family and friends. Let us put Christ back into Christmas and Christ back into the future. After all Christ is the reason for this very special season.

Hearing A "Waste"

An insurance task force holds a public hearing in Prestonsburg Wed. Dec. 10 for the citizens of Eastern Kentucky, business people and low-income people concerning their problems on insurance.

There was a house full but all I heard was the insurance representative telling how much money their companies have lost in the east few months.

If the task force is paid by the taxpayers it's a waste of taxpayers' money. The meeting started at 10 a.m. and at 12 noon about 20 of us left the meeting.

Our state legislature passed a law that we all carry insurance and enforce it.

Then, if you have a wreck that is your fault; and, if your car is parked and someone hits you, they cancel your insurance.

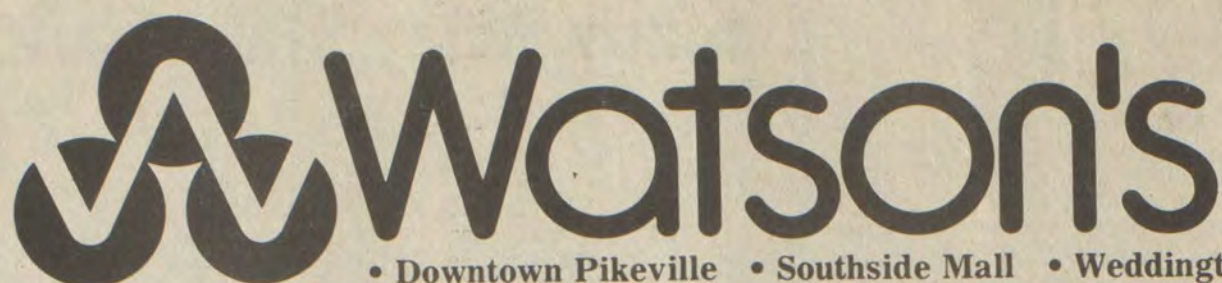

No other company wants to carry you. If they do it costs $1,000 or $1,100 every three months. It also hurts your reputation to have your insurance cancelled.

To insure two coal trucks, it costs $25,387. How are we going to be able to pay such prices for insurance?

Pike College To Use Gift For Gym Roof

The J.M. McDonald Foundation of Cortland, New York, has contributed $20,000 toward the re-roofing of the Pikeville College gymnasium, according to college President William H. Owens. The entire project, which has already begun, will cost $52,955.

"This gift helps make the re-roofing possible, so we can keep the gym open for classes and games, and for community events," Owens said. "We're all grateful to the J.M. McDonald Foundation."

Owens said that the old roof had developed serious leaks, endangering the playing surface inside. The new roof is a seamless polyurethane layer coated with roofing material.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of John Henry Akers, born January 29, 1952, died November 8, 1986.

A NEW STAR IN HEAVEN

A new star shines in Heaven, John Henry is it's name. It's Christmas time here on earth, But it will never be the same. In our homes sadness replaces joy, Tears replace smiles. Memories are Christmas past, When you were a child. We love each other very much, Although it is seldom heard. Our hearts know just how we felt, Without saying a word. Jack and Andy miss you. A brother's love never dies. Why did you have to leave us John? God alone knows why. Ellen, your loving wife, and darling son, Michael, were your life. Oh how lonely it must be. Our hearts are trying to understand. The deeper the love. The deeper the pain. Our hearts are always hurting Our loss is Heaven's gain. YOUR LOVING SISTER PATSY

Job Corps Training Open To Floyd Co. Residents

The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center, which for six years has been training mostly out of state students, will now open its doors to local youths. A new, non-residential program for Floyd youths begins January 1.

"It's a tremendous opportunity for any young person," said Rod Chambers, center director. "We would like to serve more eastern Kentucky youths so they can get the training and the benefits of that training."

The benefits of being a non-residential student are the same as for resident students. Each student will be entitled to full use of the facility, receive a monthly stipend, a clothing allowance, transportation to and from the facility, and free medical and dental care.

The Job Corps is a national program to help out-of-school, unemployed men and women find and hold jobs. Until a planned female dormitory is built the Prestonsburg center can only accept male students.

The non-residential program will accept 10 applicants and possibly more if the demand is there, according to Chambers. This is almost 10 percent of the present enrollment. The funding which comes from the U.S. Department of Labor, will last until December, 1987 but, if it's successful, it will be enlarged and eventually include women students.

Job Corps students receive training in one of six vocational skills: carpentry, electricity, plumbing, building-and-grounds maintenance, masonry, and culinary arts (cooking). To provide balance, academic education is also stressed. Every student has the opportunity to receive his high school equivalency diploma (GED). And, following the completion of his high school degree, the student is encouraged to attend college. Currently, there are five students attending Prestonsburg Community College. These students are receiving federal grants to meet the cost of tuition and books. "Where else can you go and get paid to get an education?" Chambers asked.

The Job Corps Center will be sending home as many students for Christmas as possible but, because of economic considerations and, in some cases, because the student has no home, about 50 students will remain at the center for the holidays. In the past, individuals and churches have contributed Christmas gifts for the students left behind and it is a tradition Job Corps officials hope will continue. Any wrapped presents for young men, ages 16-21, will be appreciated. Call Lenny Grant at 886-1037 to arrange a pickup.

Job Corps volunteers have fought local forest fires, sandbagged and worked on the cleanup after the flood of 1984, and have worked on Archer Park improvements. Presently, Job Corps students are remodeling the Floyd County Rescue Squad Building and will soon begin constructing counseling rooms for Mountain Comprehensive Care. Community projects help the Job Corps students by providing them with hands-on vocational training, Chambers noted.

At the Perkins Center each student learns at his own pace and can stay up to two years in the program. After graduating, students are advised by job placement specialists, who help them prepare and arrange for job interviews. Graduates start out at jobs that pay anywhere from $6.00 an hour up to $16.95, according to Chambers.

The benefits go on. A non-resident can also avail himself of field trips, athletic events, and the other social activities at the center. And, on top of the monthly stipend, students are given a readjustment allowance. In effect it's a bank account. If a student spends one year in the program he will leave with a check for $1,200, one hundred dollars for every month enrolled. Non-residents will also be given a lunch every day.

For more information applications may contact Lenny Grant, placement specialist, at 886-1037.

CHRISTMAS TIME

By WILMAY

The following poem will touch your heart strings. It was written by an anonymous poet and taken from a personal collection covering many decades. 'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE JESUS CAME 'Twas the night before Jesus came and all through the house./ Not a creature was praying, not one in the house./ Their Bibles were lain on the shelf without care. In hopes that Jesus would not come there./ The children were dressing to crawl into bed./ Not once ever kneeling or bowing a head./ And Mom in her rocker with the baby on her lap./ Was watching the late show while I took a nap./ When out of the East there arose such a clatter./ I sprang to my feet to see what was the matter./ Away to the window I flew like a flash./ Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash./ What to my wondering eyes would appear./ But angels proclaiming the Jesus was here!/ With a light like the sun sending forth a bright ray./ I knew in a moment this must be the day!/ The light of his face made me cover my head./ It was Jesus, returning, just like he said!/ And though I possessed worldly wisdom and wealth./ I cried when I saw him in spite of myself./ In the Book of Life which he held in his hand./ Was written the name of every saved man./ He spoke not a word as he searched for my name./ When he said, "It's not here," my head hung in shame./ The people whose names had been written with love./ He gathered to take to his father above./ With those who were ready he rose without a sound./ While all the rest were left standing around./ I fell to my knees—but it was too late./ I had waited too long and thus sealed my fate./ I stood and I cried as they rose out of sight./ Oh, if only I had been ready tonight./ In the words of this poem the meaning is clear./ The coming of Christ is drawing near./ There's only one life and when comes the last call./ We'll find that the Bible was true after all."

Designate Driver For Ride Home, Police Advise Holiday Party Goers

The holiday season is in full swing and the Kentucky State Police would like to remind everyone to take extra precautions during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.
With an increase in party-going and traffic on the highways, the two can create a deadly combination if drugs or alcohol are abused. Last Christmas holiday, there were five people killed in four fatal accidents. Four of those fatalities involved alcohol and three of the drivers in those accidents had been drinking. During last New Year's holiday season, five people were killed in three fatal accidents. Four of the five fatalities involved alcohol and two of the drivers in these accidents were intoxicated.

The designated driver concept is becoming increasingly popular and KSP Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins says if more people would adopt this idea, it would save lives. "The concept is simple. When a group of people get together to go out, one person in this group should be designated to remain sober and drive the others home. This responsibility can be rotated each time the group goes out. It insures that, if the others decide to drink, one person can get them home safely."

The Kentucky State Police also urge the use of safety belts and child safety seats. None of the 10 people killed last Christmas and New Year's seasons were wearing safety belts. Two of those killed were thrown from their vehicles. It is important to use safety belts and safety seats not only on long drives, but also during short trips, even a few blocks away. Most accidents occur within a few miles of home and at speeds of less than 40 mph—but can produce serious consequences.

The KSP will increase their enforcement activities during the holiday period. Patrols will enforce the 55 mph speed limit using state-of-the-art radar and VASCAR (Visual Average Speed Computer and Recorder). Roadblocks and sobriety checkpoints will also be implemented.

To keep the holiday safe, the KSP would also like to ask that anyone spotting a possible drunk or drugged driver call the Action Rap-Id toll-free hotline at 1-800-222-5555. If you see someone that appears to be driving under the influence of alcohol or a drug, stop at the nearest phone and describe the car, the location it's headed and the license number if possible. Your call can remain anonymous.

The official Christmas holiday is 6 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 23 through midnight, Thursday, Dec. 25. The New Year's holiday officially begins at 6 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 30 and ends at midnight, Thursday, Jan. 1.

An enjoyable three nights was spent at the Opryland Hotel, in Nashville, Tennessee, recently, by the following persons from Prestonsburg and vicinity: Billie Little, Effie Hopson, Honey May, Josephine Hopson, Jean Burke, Della Herald, Hager White, Orbie Vaughn, Mary Alice Herald, Dorothy Harris, Ira Cooley, Gertrude Webb, Harley and Burette Moore, Duke and Irma McKinzie, Jeanette Harris, Bee Long, Beatrice Bickford, and Lois Marshall. Plan PCC Alumni Association

A steering committee composed of Prestonsburg Community College alumni met recently to develop a PCC Alumni Association for the Big Sandy area. With more than 25,000 alumni in the region, Dr. Henry Campbell, Jr., PCC director, who suggested formation of the group, said an alumni association would benefit not only members but the college and community as well. Chaired by Bill Gordon Francis, the committee has drawn up articles of incorporation and a constitution in preparation for an alumni meeting at graduation in May. Members of the committee pictured above are, from left, standing, Bill Gordon Francis, Dr. Rodney Handshoe, both of Prestonsburg; Greg Meade, of Paintsville; William Kendrick, of Prestonsburg; seated from left, are Dr. Greg Wells, of Inez; Dr. Anita Hale, of Prestonsburg; Priscilla Merritt, of Paintsville; Leatha Kendrick, of Prestonsburg. Members not pictured are Janie Hall and Dana Collett.

State Police Urge Crossroad Caution

Beginning immediately, state police will be strictly enforcing the law regarding traffic lights and stop signs. Trooper Kenneth Frost, Post 9 spokesman, announced Monday. During recent months, Frost said, state police have investigated "numerous serious accidents," some fatal, at intersections in the five counties embraced by Post 9. Most violations involved disregarding a traffic control device, the officer said. Drivers are urged to approach all intersections "with extreme caution" and police officers will be watching to make sure they do, Frost indicated.

Alzheimer's Support Group Sets Meeting

The next Alzheimer's Support Group Meeting will be Thursday, December 18, at 6 p.m. in the Martin Room of Highlands Regional Medical Center. The public is invited to attend. David R. Wekstein, Ph.D., associate director of the Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging and a professor of physiology and biophysics in the College of Medicine will be the guest speaker. If you would like more information regarding Alzheimer's Disease and the Support Group, please contact Taunya Shelton, health planner for Big Sandy Area Development District, at 886-9402.

TWO FLOYD COUNTIANS RECEIVE FIRST EYE IMPLANTS
(Thursday, November 12, 1986)

Jean Danflous, of Prestonsburg, and Norman Hale, of Hueysville, were the first two intra-ocular lens implant recipients performed at the newly Federal licensed Paintsville Eye Institute Inc., on Thursday, November 12, 1986. The chief of staff, Michael B. Minix, MD, ophthalmologist (eye microscopically implanting a small artificial lens to replace the vision impaired by their cataract. Mr. Danflous said, "I was treated very nice by everyone and the operation didn't take very long at all."

The Paintsville Eye Institute, Inc., is the only state and Federally licensed Ambulatory Eye Surgical and Laser Center in the Tri-state specializing in eye surgery only. Here cataract with lens implants, glaucoma, and other surgical eye procedures are performed without over-night stay.

It has taken almost two years to construct this surgery suite addition onto Dr. Minix's existing office at 191 Euclid Avenue, Paintsville, to meet state and federal requirements.

The addition contains two operating rooms, recovery room, surgical instrument sterilization room, medical gas systems for anesthesiology, laser laboratory, patient clothing change area, and nurse's station.

Marcus Minix, administrator said, "This ambulatory surgery center is much like a mini-hospital. However, out-patient surgical procedures do not require over-night stay. The federal government required our operating and recovery rooms to be built exactly like those at the hospitals. With this Medicare approval, cataract and implant surgery are performed at almost no cost to the Medicare enrollee, after their deductible has been met.

"The advantage is selecting our own staff of nurses and technicians that will specialize in eye procedures and purchasing the latest in high-technology equipment. The surgical technician is Dora Mae Shepherd, David, Kentucky; the registered nurse is Brenda Slone, Tutor Key, Ky.; the LPN is Kathy Baldwin of West Van Lear, Ky.; the anesthesiologists are Dr. Keith King of Prestonsburg and Dr. John Turner of Paintsville."

Observe 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Talt Johnson, Bevinville, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, with an open house Saturday, December 20, at 1 p.m. at the Osborne Elementary School cafeteria.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were married December 24, 1936 at Melvin, by the Rev. Hiram Hall. They have five children, 11 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Federal Mine Agency Chief Resigns Post

David A. Zegeer, assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health for the past three years, announced his resignation today to take effect December 31.

Secretary of Labor William E. Brock thanked Zegeer "for his hard work and dedicated efforts to protect the health and safety of the nation's miners."

Since November, 1983, Zegeer has directed the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration, the federal agency responsible for protecting nearly a half-million workers at more than 17,000 U.S. mines and mineral processing plants from workplace hazards.

A native of Charleston, W. Va., Zegeer went to work in the coal industry as a surveyor in Jenkins, in 1946, after serving for two years in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

He held increasingly responsible positions in the industry, retiring in 1977 as manager of mines for Bethlehem Steel's coal operations in eastern Kentucky.

After his retirement from Bethlehem, he opened a consulting business in Lexington, and is leaving his federal post to rejoin his family there.

Program Designs Healthy Diet For Mothers And Their Babies

A 43-year-old anemic pregnant woman who had given birth to two low birth-weight babies, who smokes and is 13 pounds underweight had a slim chance of having a healthy baby. This Clay county woman sought the help of a nutrition program administered by the Kentucky Department for Health Services for help with her high-risk pregnancy.

The federally-funded Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children, more commonly known as WIC, provides nutrition counseling and specific foods high in protein, iron and vitamin C to low-income pregnant women, new mothers, infants, and children through age four. With vouchers from local health departments, women can buy iron-fortified cereal, juice, milk, cheese, eggs, beans and peas. For infants, they can buy iron-fortified formula, juice and cereal.

"The program's goal is to improve children's health through proper nutrition," said Peggy Kidd, state WIC director. "To qualify, participants must be income-eligible and at nutritional risk, which means that they have health problems that can be improved through better nutrition."

"Our cases show that participants in the program—even after as short a time as six months—become healthier."

The Clay county woman did. With nutrition counseling and the proper foods, she gained weight and her diet improved. She also stopped smoking. By the time she delivered a healthy baby, she was no longer anemic.

The program produced dramatic changes for a Louisville baby. Her birth weight was average, but at five months of age she weighed only nine-and-a-half pounds and had never seen a pediatrician for a checkup. Her ideal weight for five months was about 13 pounds. After four months in WIC, she attained her ideal weight and was regularly seeing a physician at health department well-child clinics.

"These are not isolated examples," said Kidd. "Families in WIC tend to stay in the health-care system because of realizing that preventive measures can improve health. They bring their children to well-child and immunization clinics at the health department. And they become aware of other health department services."

The success of the program should not be construed to mean that the program is doing everything that it could, Kidd said.

"In Kentucky, we serve 63,000 women, infants and children every month. There are thousands more who are eligible who can't be served because of the limited federal funds," said Kidd.

The program, then, serves only those in the high-priority categories, such as women with high-risk pregnancies, teenage mothers, low birth-weight babies, and breastfeeding mothers with nutrition-related problems.

Federal studies show that Kentucky is not alone in these statistics. A 1985 study by the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families showed that only a third of the eligible women in the nation participated in WIC. The study also concluded that WIC saves $3 in short-term hospital costs nationwide for every $1 spent.

Stumbo Appointed To Planning Commission

"We want to do all we can to maintain the momentum Kentucky has going in economic development," said Gov. Martha Layne Collins in naming 50 members to a new Economic Development Planning Commission.

The commission was authorized by Senate Resolution 78 passed by the 1986 General Assembly. Gov. Collins said both private and public sectors are represented on the commission because economic development requires a team effort.

"The more than 62,000 new jobs we have announced during the past three years is the result of teamwork and a strong commitment to economic development," the governor said. "If Kentucky is to sustain this record growth, we must involve not only local communities but also labor and management, higher education and leadership from throughout the private sector."

Mayor Scotty Baesler of Lexington was named by the governor as chairman of the commission. Floyd Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo was also appointed to the panel.

State Moves To Take Charge Of Wolfe Co. School System

At the request of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, the State Board of Education Chairman Clay Parks has called a special meeting of the board to consider the situation in Wolfe county, where the local school board has refused to pass the required tax rate for power equalization money.

Supt. McDonald will recommend that the board take action to suspend and/or remove from office the three board members who have voted against passing the required tax. In addition, she will ask the state board to place the Wolfe county district in financial receivership. It has been operating at a deficit for three years. The special meeting has been scheduled for Dec. 19.

"I deeply regret having to take this action," McDonald said. "But under my oath of office I am bound to carry out the statutes."

Supt. McDonald went to Wolfe county Thursday morning to explain to the local board the consequences of failing to pass the required tax and to give the board a final opportunity to do so. The board lacked a quorum; only two of the five members attended the special called meeting. These members had voted for the legal tax rate and indicated they would continue to support it.

McDonald said the Wolfe county board is the only school district in the state that has refused to pass the tax rate mandated by the General Assembly—38.9 cents in Wolfe county's case.

The State Board of Education refused to grant Wolfe county emergency status for this year because the board passed an illegal—that is, inadequate—tax rate. This means the board is illegally spending money in excess of income.

By failing to levy the required tax rate, Wolfe county schools will lose a total of $225,812 this current year, McDonald said—$80,115 in state power equalization funds and $145,697 in local revenue. Next year's revenue loss would be close to $306,000.

The very severe consequences will affect the children of Wolfe county, she told the board. "We must bring your budget into balance. To do this will be painful and require reduction in expenditures all across the budget, including personnel. If we cut personnel, we cut programs. These penalties are so severe that the instructional program of Wolfe county will be virtually destroyed. As the chief state school officer, I cannot stand by and see this happen."

McDonald also reminded the Wolfe county board members, that they are sworn by oath to uphold state laws, and she cited the state statutes calling for suspension or removal from office of local board members for "willful neglect of duty."

"It is with greatest reluctance that I came here for this meeting," McDonald said. "But in keeping with my oath of office, I cannot and will not ignore the failure of the Wolfe county Board of Education to perform its statutory duty."

McDonald Says Power Shifting From State To Local District

The focus of power is shifting from state agencies and legislatures back to local school districts now that systems for managing and for measuring results are in place, State Superintendent Alice McDonald told the Kentucky Association of School Superintendents at their annual meeting last week (Dec. 7-9).

In the early 1980's when the public became newly aroused about the status of its schools, state legislators around the country gave state boards of education and departments of education strong new authority to enforce higher standards set for students, teachers, administrators and local school districts, she said.

"As a result of that legislation in Kentucky," we have in place a good basic system for state oversight of public education resources," McDonald said. The General Assembly will continue to improve school funding if it believes it is getting results for its investment, she said, "and that management system allows us to show that we are getting the job done."

A basic part of that system that makes school more accountable to citizens as well as lawmakers is the Kentucky Essential Skills Testing (KEST) program. It is very apparent that school administrators are using KEST results to assess the strengths and weaknesses of their programs and learn where improvement is needed, McDonald said. The Master Educational Improvement Plan (MEIP) program is another key part of the management system, requiring school districts to set goals and meet standards in attendance, dropout rates, academic achievement and accreditation guidelines.

Kentucky schools are making strong progress in those areas, she added. "Last year we had 42 school districts with deficiencies; this year there were only 15. And all of the deficiencies were related to attendance and dropouts, not to student achievement."

McDonald noted that many of the new programs administered by the Department of Education reward local innovation by funding new instructional ideas from districts and classroom teachers.

"The public and the legislature will increasingly look to you—and not to the state education department—to move education ahead in Kentucky," McDonald said. The Department of Education will continue to enforce state standards, but its role can now shift toward supportive oversight and assistance."

On the matter of school funding, McDonald said that state tax collections are flat and the overall state budget has had to be cut by about $90 million. "So far the cuts haven't directly touched local school programs. Both the Governor and I are absolutely committed to no cuts in funds to local school districts," she assured the local superintendents.

The budget squeeze makes it more essential than ever that school administrators and state education officials work together to continue showing results for the public's dollars, McDonald said.

Noting that she was addressing the superintendents organization for the last time as state superintendent, McDonald thanked the local school leaders for their support and efforts. "These three years have been exciting and sometimes difficult for all of us. Together, we have pioneered bold new programs for improving Kentucky schools."

MCA Slates Bazaar, Art Exhibit, Dec. 20

The Mountain Christian Academy will hold a bazaar and student art exhibit, Saturday, December 20, from 1 to 5 p.m. in the MCA gymnasium. The bazaar and exhibit will be held in conjunction with the school's Christmas concert.

Mrs. Irene Hayes will also be on hand to promote and autograph her books, What's Cooking in Kentucky and What's Cooking in Kentucky for the Holidays.

Refreshments and homebaked goods as well as handcrafted items made by students and area residents will be available, and the eighth grade class will hold an afghan raffle.

"WHERE REVIVAL IS HAPPENING."

On Comet, On Cupid... Santa's Sleigh and Reindeer Took Place of Horses and Wagon

When Santa Claus first appeared in the United States, he drove an ordinary wagon pulled by horses, not reindeer. But according to International Wildlife magazine, the romantic sleigh and reindeer soon became an enduring fixture of the Santa Claus story.

The modern Santa Claus sprang from the imagination of writer Washington Irving, who also gave us the headless horseman of Sleepy Hollow and Rip Van Winkle. Working from earlier legends, Irving invented the character in his 1809 book, Knickerbocker's History, and his Santa rode in a horse-drawn wagon.

Irving's Santa was forever changed in 1822, however, when Columbia University President W. Clement Moore wrote "A Visit from St. Nicholas." The verse that begins, "Twas the night before Christmas..." put Santa firmly in the driver's seat of a sleigh behind eight reindeer: Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Comet, Cupid, Donner, and Blitzen.

For years, Moore tried to conceal his authorship of the enormously popular poem, which he had intended only to be recited to his children at Christmas. But eventually the truth got out, and Moore's immortality now rests with that piece of verse.

Rudolph is another story. In 1939 a

New York advertising executive named Robert May was assigned to write an animal verse for a large mail-order house. May, who had spent a rather unhappy youth because he was short, patterned "Rudolph, the Red-nosed Reindeer" after the genre of the ugly duckling who is rejected by his peers but makes good in the end.

Over the years, Rudolph has done even better for some of his promoters than he did for Santa that foggy Christmas eve. Songwriter Johnny Marks' catchy Christmas tune about Rudolph is one of the best-selling ditties of all time. Books about Rudolph, TV shows, and assorted novelties have made him a Christmas hero. In the process, Rudolph has made millions of dollars for holiday entrepreneurs.

All of this is a far cry from real reindeer, which forage their frigid way across the Arctic barrens at the top of the world. Reindeer and caribou belong to the same species, although reindeer are smaller than caribou and lighter in color. In Europe, the reindeer has been more or less domesticated since the eleventh or twelfth century, principally by nomadic Siberian tribes, Laplanders, and their descendants.

But domestication did not mean life in a pen for reindeer. On the contrary, their wandering ways were complemented by the footloose lifestyle of their keepers, who followed the herds across the tundra above the Arctic Circle. Reindeer meat and milk are still staples in those barren lands and the herding continues, but the Lapps—those longtime nomads of the northern Scandinavian countries—are beginning to adopt a more sedentary lifestyle. Increasingly, there are permanent houses to live in, snowmobiles to use in tending their herds, and tourists to view the Lapps' few remaining reindeer-drawn sleighs.

Fortunately, the day when Santa discards his sleigh for a snowmobile has not yet arrived.

Pastor, Wayne Burch

THE doors of the many shops and stores in our communities throughout Floyd County are Buzzing with Business. The aisles of the several shopping centers are crowded. The catalog outlets are unloading large numbers of parcels daily. All of this stepped up activity is motivated by the traditional GIFT-GIVING centered around our most precious Holiday which remembers the greatest GIFT-GIVING act of all.....CHRISTMAS! In giving any gift, there are at least two things which make all the difference:

1. There is the TIMING of the gift.
When all seems to be prospering and flourishing, an extra gift may not make so very much difference; but at a time when we are discouraged and disheartened and in trouble someone's gift may make all the difference in the world!
2. There is the SPIRIT in which the gift is given.
The money price of a gift has NOTHING to do with the VALUE of a gift. The value of a gift LIES ENTIRELY in the love which prompted the giver. Many a Mother will wear, with more pride, a little piece of inexpensive costume jewelry, than she would a spray of diamonds, because it was purchased with a child's saved pennies, and given with a child's love.

THE MOST COSTLY GIFT IS VALUELESS IF THERE IS NO LOVE IN THE ACT OF GIVING!
THE CHEAPEST GIFT IS PRICELESS, IF IT COMES FROM A LOVE WHICH COULD GIVE NO MORE!!

This very fact prompted JESUS to say: "Behold she hath given more than ye all", concerning the widow's "two-mites". To receive the greatest blessing Christmas has to bestow.....give from a love which could give no more!
.....Pastor Wayne Burch

KET Profiles Four In 'Never Too Old'

Four people who put to rest the common stereotype that growing older means growing less useful are profiled in "Never Too Old." The special airs Tuesday, December 30, at 6 p.m. on KET.

The 30-minute special, narrated by Dick Cavett, features four persons who have in common that they are all over 70 years old. They also are bound by a spirit which will not allow them to give up on life. Featured are the well-known choreographer Agnes DeMille, gospel performer Roebuck Staples, Japanese philanthropist Ryoichi Sasakawa and Portuguese priest Father Manuel Texiera of Macao.

At 74, Father Texiera lives alone in a crumbling seminary in Macao. When the seminary and church were abandoned, he stayed to continue his life's work, recording the history of Macao. When he is not recording history, Father Texiera can be found jogging through the streets or teaching the children of Macao.

Octogenarian philanthropist Ryoichi Sasakawa, 87, is chairman of more than 50 organizations. He also is one of the wealthiest and most controversial men in Japan.

Staples, 71, spreads the gospel to hospital patients and shut-ins. He continues to perform as "Pop" Staples of the Staple Singers. DeMille suffered a severe stroke more than 10 years ago; yet she continues her creative pursuits as one of America's greatest choreographers.

"Never Too Old" is by KPBS/San Diego.

A special Christmas story pageant will be held at St. James, Tuesday, December 23 at 6:30 p.m. by the Sunday School classes of St. James Church. The play will be followed by an old-fashioned hay ride and Christmas caroling along University Drive and the Green Acres Housing Development. IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Paul Hunter, husband, father and grandfather, who passed away December 8, 1985.

Paul, honey it's been a year Since God called you away Our home is filled with sadness But we know you're in heaven And to worry, there's just no need You're rejoicing with the angels For as God promised, He's saving our seed.

Rita came back to Jesus Jim and George, they pray each day Daddy, the circle won't be unbroken As we walk the narrow way. Oh, we're looking forward To that meeting in the air. We'll walk hand in hand with our dear Savior And God will wipe away ever tear.

Thanks to Hall Funeral Home who has been so good.

THE HUNTER FAMILY

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Sim Justice, December 9, 1985.

Dad, you may be gone, but we haven't forgotten you. You're still in our hearts and minds. I don't think a day goes by you aren't thought of or remembered in some way. It doesn't seem possible that it has been a year since you left us. I still want to tell you something, then realize I can't. We all miss your kindness, your sly grin and smile, your pretty white hair. Our heart still aches and will for a long time. You were one in a million. We loved you so. Some day we will be able to see you again.

Sadly missed by your daughter MARLENE HAYES

Local Church Women Meet

The Local Church Women met Friday morning, December 12, at the First Presbyterian Church, here. Prior to the meeting, Mrs. Elma Jessen and Mrs. Honey May served refreshments.

The Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the host church, gave the devotion. He was assisted by Mrs. Jessen in a discussion of St. Lucia's Day.

Mrs. Eileen Burchett, president, presided at the business meeting where Rev. Jessen reported that $687 was donated during the recent Thanksgiving services to be used by the Ministerial Association in their assistance to needy transients. Mrs. Eva Collins, gave a resume of work done at the Loaves and Fishes Food Pantry, and told of the need for funds for this project. Mrs. Burchett expressed a desire for the organization to have input into the drug program.

The annual project of placing signs with the message, "Keep Christ in Christmas" in store and business windows was discussed, and this is being done again this year.

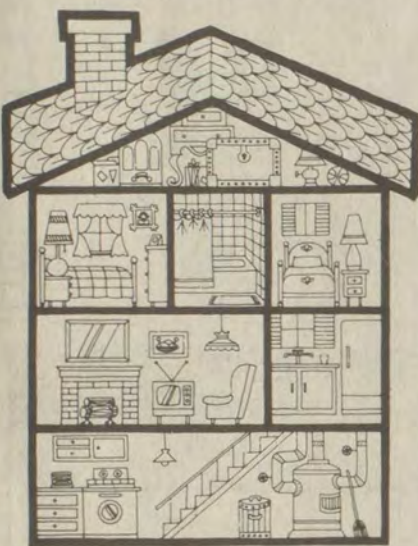

Present for the meeting and the churches which they represented were Mrs. Eileen Burchett, St. Martha Catholic; Mesdames Lucy Regan, Dorothy Osborne, Eva Collins, and Docia Woods, First Baptist, (Irene Cole Memorial); Mesdames Mabel Jean LeMaster and Hope Whitten, First United Methodist; Mesdames Jean Burke and Marian Masters, Community United Methodist; Mrs. Garnett Fairchild, First Christian; Rev. Jim Adams, Emma United Methodist, Mrs. Honey May and Rev. and Mrs. Tim Jessen and son, Chris, of the host church.

Twins Are Three

Marcus Crandall and Joshua Neil Allen, twin sons of Ronald D. and Glenna J. Allen, of Grethel, celebrated their third birthday at their home with friends and relatives.

Their maternal grandparents are Lee and Verdie Akers, of Grethel, and their paternal grandparents are L.J. and Sylvia Allen, of Harold.

UP, UP, AND AWAY!

Santa Claus sure knew what he was doing when he chose reindeer to pull his sleigh. While reindeer are quite small—usually around three-and-a-half feet tall—they have great strength and endurance. Ranger Rick magazine reports that a healthy reindeer usually weighs about 150-250 pounds and can pull its own weight in cargo on sleds across the tundra—or the rooftops!

New Kosair Children's Hospital To Open Sunday, December 21

The new Kosair Children's Hospital will be dedicated in a ceremony at 2 p.m., Sunday, December 21, in the lobby of the hospital at 231 East Chestnut Street, Louisville. It is the only full-service children's hospital in Kentucky.

The first patients will be moved into the hospital Monday, December 29. Patients in critical care areas will be moved Tuesday, December 30.

The $45,000,000 structure will be devoted entirely to the care of this region's children without regard to race, religion, or ability to pay.

The hospital dates back to the fall of 1889 when Mary Lafon, at age 50 an active social worker of Warren Memorial Church, began an effort to establish a hospital exclusively for children. (Warren Memorial Church, located on the southwest corner of Fourth and Broadway, joined with Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church in the 1950's to become the present Central Presbyterian Church.) Miss Lafon organized a circle of 18 young women to work on the project. After several months' effort, the circle met on March 26, 1890, to hear the treasurer report that their books showed exactly $12.

The next day, March 27, a cyclone swept through Louisville, leaving in its wake 75 dead and over 200 injured. A great number of the casualties were children. It was then that the community awoke to the need for Mary Lafon's project. A mass meeting at Warren Memorial Presbyterian later raised $20,000 to help establish the hospital. And on April 5, 1891, The Courier-Journal, for the first time, advocated the hospital in an editorial.

Located at 220 East Chestnut Street, in a converted, old home between Brook and Floyd streets, the Children's Free Hospital accepted its first patient on January 17, 1892. He was five-year-old James R. Duff, who came as "a hopeless cripple" and, after two years in the hospital, "left completely cured." He returned to Louisville in 1948 for the hospital's Building Fund Campaign dinner.

The first president of the Children's Free Hospital was R.T. Durrett; Miss Lafon was vice-president, Miss Symmes, secretary. Some of the doctors on the staff that first year were John Barbour, James Bullitt, William Cheatham, A. Morgan Vance, James S. Chenoweth, S.G. Dabney, W.O. Roberts, Henry E. Tuley, and Julia Ingram.

Mary Lafon died December 5, 1925 at age 85. In addition to originating Children's Free Hospital, she was for many years president of the Presbyterian Orphanage. She organized Kentucky Presbyterians' first woman's missionary society and was active in the organization and support of the Kindergarten Association.

In 1910, a new 75-bed building was opened next to the original building, and in 1930, the hospital was affiliated with the University of Louisville and a charter was received for the School of Pediatric Nursing. Ten years later, a small ward was remodeled into six cubicles to accommodate "private pay" patients. A new 170-bed hospital building was opened in 1952, and a new wing was added in 1957.

Children's Hospital began sharing the large hospital complex at 200 East Chestnut with the Norton Hospital in December, 1973.

In the early 1920's the Kosair Temple's Charities Committee became interested in assisting needy children in obtaining surgery and hospital care. At the same time, many other organizations had become aware of the needs of some 12,000 crippled children in Kentucky.

The Junior League, the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, the Rotarians, the Optimists, along with many other civic groups and individuals, made their interest known. As a result, the 1924 Kentucky Legislature passed an act creating the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission. By that time, the Kosair Charities Committee had purchased six acres on Eastern Parkway and began making plans for a convalescent home.

The Charities Committee's first president, Lawrence B. Craig, was the strongest voice of encouragement in those early years. The hospital opened with 50 beds, an operating room, kitchen and brace shop. The second floor provided quarters for the nurses. In 1927, an occupational therapy department opened, equipped and staffed by the Junior League. The hospital was enlarged to 65 beds in 1934 and to 100 beds in 1939.

Kosair Crippled Children Hospital was filled to capacity with polio patients in the 1940's and early 1950's, but children's orthopedic needs changed dramatically after Dr. Jonas E. Salk's discovery of a polio vaccine in 1954 and subsequent years found a diminishing number of patients at the hospital. On May 1, 1981, the 100-bed Kosair Crippled Children Hospital was consolidated with the 177-bed Children's Hospital. The consolidated hospital, with its new name, Kosair Children's Hospital, became one of the larger pediatric hospitals in the United States. For a time, the facility at 982 Eastern Parkway remained open in addition to the 200 East Chestnut street hospital, but on December 24, 1983, the last patient was discharged from the old Kosair Crippled Children building on Eastern Parkway and that facility was closed.

Emmy Award-Winning "Dance In America"

The two-part Emmy Award-winning "Dance in America" presentation "Balanchine" will encore Monday, January 5, beginning at 8:00 p.m. on KET. This "Great Performances" explores the life and work of ballet's foremost choreographer, George Balanchine.

Narrated by Frank Langella, "Balanchine" traces the legendary choreographer's work from his youth at the Maryinsky Theater in Czarist Russia to his final triumphs with the famed New York City Ballet. Balanchine was a co-founder and artistic director for the New York City Ballet.

The first hour-long program covers the period from Balanchine's birth in 1904 to the premiere of the New York City Ballet in 1964. The second program features the famed choreographer as he shares his thoughts on music, choreography and dancers.

Balanchine's career spanned more than 50 years. He is credited with pushing 19th century Russian dance vocabulary into the 20th century and recreating it in a uniquely American way.

Highlights of the program include Mikhail Baryshnikov being coached for his role in "Prodigal Son," the only film record of Balanchine's choreography on Broadway. A film sequence from the 1929 motion picture "Dark Red Roses," the first English film with sound, also is highlighted. For years thought to be lost, "Dark Red Roses" contains the only footage of a young Balanchine dancing.

"Great Performances" is presented by an alliance of five public television stations: WNET/New York; KERA/Dallas-Ft. Worth; KQED/San Francisco; SCETV/Columbia, S.C.; and WTTW/Chicago.

Three Named Directors, Bluegrass State Games

Dan Ulmer and Jack Guthrie, of Louisville, and Jane Miller Kirkpatrick, of Owensboro, have been appointed by Gov. Martha Layne Collins to serve on the board of directors of the Bluegrass State Games, an Olympic-style competition open to all Kentuckians.

"I deeply appreciate the fact that these very busy people have agreed to give of their time and energy to make the games an ongoing Kentucky sports tradition," Gov. Collins said. "We count on volunteers at every level—in our communities where they help organize and oversee the competition in 15 sports and on the board that will raise money from private sponsors and provide overall direction to the effort."

In the 1986 Bluegrass Games, over 25,000 Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels participated in 15 sports. The youngest participant was 4 and the oldest was 87. Valvoline Oil Co., Coca-Cola and CSX are the games' medal sponsors.

Anyone interested in more information on the games can write Bluegrass State Games, Post Office Box 1405, Frankfort, Ky. 40602.

Third Birthday

Amber Dawn Cole, daughter of Jimmy and Amy Cole, of Betsy Layne, celebrated her third birthday, December 6, at McDonald's. She received many nice gifts.

Those attending her party were Roger Lawson, Jaimie Cole, Jimmie and Brad Ratliff, Timmy and Tonya Rich, Jessica and Jamie Robinette, Krystal Allen and Sean Lawson.

Her maternal grandparents are Dalmer and Barbara Mulkey, of Betsy Layne, and her paternal grandparents are Jeff and Lerie Cole, of Pikeville.

Private Health Insurance Must Pay Prior To State Medicaid Benefits

Kentuckians who have health care coverage provided by both Medicaid and private health insurance should be aware that they aren't eligible for double benefits for the same medical bills.

In fact, according to officials of the Kentucky Department for Medicaid Services, those private health insurance policies could wind up costing Medicaid clients more money out of their own pockets.

When Medicaid clients have other health insurance, those policies must be used to cover medical costs first. "Under federal law, state law and program policy, we are the payer of last resort," said Hughes Walker, Medicaid Services commissioner.

"We are dedicated to ensuring that our clients have the best care we can buy. At the same time, we try to stretch the tax dollars supporting the program as far as we can," he said. "So when a private insurer pays for part or all of a Medicaid client's health care costs, it helps us provide medical services to those who have no health insurance at all."

Last year private insurance coverage held by Medicaid clients accounted for a $6.6 million savings for the state's medical assistance program.

When people apply for Medicaid services they are asked to list any health insurance policies they have. "For example, a divorced mother and her child may be qualified for Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits. The child may be covered under the father's health insurance program as part of the divorce decree," Walker said.

"Older adults may have policies which are supplements to Medicare coverage," he added. "When these people also are eligible for Medicaid, it's their responsibility to tell us and the health care providers who treat them about these policies, because the insurance companies must be billed first."

The department currently is tabulating the results of a recent survey of 110,000 Medicaid clients who are aged, blind or disabled. So far, about 10 percent of the respondents report having some other health insurance. "We certainly won't discourage our clients from having supplemental coverage they can afford. Health care is costly. And these supplemental policies make a significant difference in our program," the commissioner added.

"But in response to federal legislation, all states are making a more diligent effort to match Medicaid claims with insurance company and traffic accident records to make sure medical assistance programs pay the bills after all other responsible sources have met their obligations."

THE POWER OF ASPIRIN

When the Food and Drug Administration decides a drug is safe enough to be sold over the counter, it does not mean that the drug is not powerful. Some prescription drugs are less effective than certain non-prescription drugs. For instance, aspirin has been around for eighty years. It is so powerful that, had it been discovered today, it would have been made a prescription drug. Almost nothing works as well against fever. And, aspirin is an excellent block of prostaglandins—hormones responsible for much of the pain of muscle cramps, headaches, and inflammation. For intermittent pain such as headache, take aspirin only as long as the pain persists. To relieve an ongoing symptom, such as menstrual cramps, take aspirin regularly beginning the day before the cramps are due to start.

Whenever in doubt about the proper medication, ask your pharmacist. He is informed about the various medications available and their contraindications. Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY we have both the prescription medications and the over the counter remedies you will require to keep you in the peak of health. We're conveniently located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. A very Merry Christmas to you and yours!

Ask Toni

Both Welles and Scott starred in 'Jane Eyre'

By Toni Reinhold

I recently saw "Jane Eyre" and was very impressed with the man who played the lead. Who was he? — C.A.L., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Orson Welles

It depends on what version you saw. The 1944 film version of the classic Charlotte Bronte novel starred Orson Welles, Joan Fontaine, Elizabeth Taylor and Margaret O'Brien. The 1971 TV movie featured George C. Scott and Susanah York.

Is it possible to get tickets to see "Cagney & Lacey" filmed? — R.M., North Andover, Mass.

No. "Cagney & Lacey" isn't filmed in a studio in front of a live audience. It's shot scene by scene, and many of its "sets" are on the street or at other locations.

What TV series did Jeff Conaway star in after he left "Taxi"? It was very short-lived. — C.M., Lancaster, Pa.

It was "Wizards and Warriors."

What TV roles did Mary Wickes play? — P.K., York, Pa.

Wickes' earliest TV work was as a regular on "Inside USA with Chevrolet" (1949-50), a musical variety show. In 1950, she appeared as the housekeeper on "The Peter Lind Hayes Show." In 1953, she played Martha, the maid, in the NBC sitcom "Bonino."

She played Alice, the housekeeper, in "The Halls of Ivy" (1954-55), and from 1959 to 1961 she played Esther Cathcart on "Dennis the Menace." She was a regular on "The Gertrude Berg Show" (1961-62) and played Melba Cheley in "Julia" (1968-71). In "Doc" (1975-76), she played Miss Tully.

Was Wolfman Jack the host of "The Midnight Special"? Was Helen Reddy? — M.E., Peoria, Ill.

Wolfman Jack was the announcer of "The Midnight Special," a 90-minute music program that aired on NBC from 1973 to 1981. Until mid-1975, it was hosted by guests such as Mac Davis, Chubby Checker and David Bowie. Then Helen Reddy was made permanent host, but she gave up the spot in 1976 and guest hosts returned.

Medical Science Still Bows To Mother Nature

When all the surgeons gather near, Apply their wisdom and fearsome gear, The greatest healer among them all, May be the fly upon the wall.

Despite all the wonders of machinery and micro-surgery that have been made a part of medicine in the past 10, 50 or 100 years, Mother Nature has a way of reminding us that she works the greatest wonders of all.

A recent case at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Lexington is a case in point. In a somewhat grisly way, the physicians involved were reminded that nature sometimes provides the best cure.

Following facial surgery, a patient was sent home to recover and told to return periodically for follow-up. The patient has poor eyesight and did not notice anything unusual about his wound prior to his most recent visit other than an increase in drainage of clear fluid from it. But when physicians inspected the wound they discovered it had become infested with maggots.

As it turns out the maggots not only did the man no harm, they actually benefitted him by cleaning the wound and prompting it to begin to heal.

"The wound was clean and there was no evidence of remaining dead tissue and there was not the usual foul odor," said Dr. Mark Reemes, a resident at the hospital who treated the patient at his follow-up appointment.

But more than simply being no worse than, or as good as, "proper" medical care, the fly larvae (as maggots are more delicately called) actually did a better job of keeping the wound clean and free of dead tissue than did normal post operative care, even when when carried out carefully.

"The larvae were removed and the patient's wound was cleansed frequently and loosely packed with gauze soaked in a hypochlorite solution. Within two weeks he showed evidence of dead tissue in the wound, scarring was retarded and the wound gave off a characteristic foul odor," Reemes said.

Dr. Chris Christensen, an entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, identified the maggots as belonging to the species Phormia regina, or black blow fly.

"It is not unusual for black blow flies to infest a wound, especially one that is healing slowly. We find them often in wounds on animals," Christensen said.

Physicians have known for more than 440 years of the beneficial effects of maggots. Ambrose Pare' noted the healthy appearance of infested wounds suffered by soldiers in the battle of St. Quentin in 1557. By the early 1800s surgeons in the armies of Napoleon Bonaparte noted that maggots remove only dead tissue from wounds and that they promote healing of the wound.

J. F. Zacharias, a Confederate Army surgeon during the Civil War, is considered to be the first to intentionally introduce maggots into wounds. The measure of his success is not recorded. However, it is known that the practice did not catch on because other infectious organisms often accompanied the maggots.

In the 1920s Dr. William S. Baer of Baltimore devised a method to sterilize the maggots without killing them. He used the sterile maggots in a study of 89 patients with compound leg fractures. At the time such injuries proven fatal three times out of four. The maggots reduced that to one out of 10.

By the end of World War II the use of maggots to remove dead tissue from wounds was widespread, but improvements in the pharmaceutical field produced more and better antibiotics than had been available prior to the war, and the notion of little white worms wriggling around under their flesh became, for some reason, less and less acceptable to the American public.

Reemes believes there may still be a use for maggots in medicine.

"There is evidence that there could be a place for the management of certain larvae in wounds. It should be considered with an open mind as an alternative in the initial treatment as well as a step in definite therapy of difficult to manage wounds," he said.

TV Nostalgia

By Paul Elie

The good, the bad and the ugly sides of police life were given equal time in "Adam 12," a half-hour drama that aired from 1968 to 1975 on NBC. "Adam 12" was produced by Jack Webb, who in the '50s had starred in "Dragnet," one of the first and best of the hundreds of TV police shows. Like "Dragnet," and like the later "Emergency," also produced by Webb, "Adam 12" juxtaposed the drama of police work with the daily grind of the patrolman's beat. Officer Pete Malloy (Martin Milner) and rookie cop Jim Reed (Kent McCord) took part in drug busts and responded to murders, but just as often they settled family squabbles and rescued lost pets.

The series was set in Los Angeles, and a familiar scene was an overhead shot of the squad car cruising the city's streets. True to life, the officers' companion on these patrols was the persistent voice of the dispatcher (supplied by Sharon Claridge). By the time the series was canceled after seven seasons, viewers were well versed in the police officers' radio shorthand: The code "2-11 in progress," for instance, called Reed and Malloy to a felony.

Question: What was the code for Reed and Malloy's squad car?

Answer: "Adam 12."

Rules Limit Utility Response When Power Bills Are Unpaid

Now that the colder temperatures and higher utility bills have arrived, everyone should be aware of his or her rights as a utility consumer should there be problems paying your bills.

According to Attorney General David Armstrong, if there is non-payment of the utility bill, the utility company must give you at least 10 days written notice before it can cut off your electricity or gas. The notice must tell you your rights and what you can do to stop the cut-off. You cannot be cut-off before 27 days after the mailing date of the original bill. "Gas or electrical service cannot be disconnected if this disconnection would be dangerous to existing poor health conditions", Armstrong said. A written certificate, signed by a doctor, registered nurse or public health officer, must be filed with the utility prior to discontinuance of service. Service will not be cut-off until other living arrangements can be made or 30 days pass from the time you have been notified, in writing, of existing assistance programs.

Federal and state energy assistance programs are available through the Cabinet for Human Resources, Department for Social Insurance. People in financial need who get a cut-off notice for an unpaid bill received between Dec. 1 and March 1 can get 30 days in addition to the original 10 days to pay their bill or make other arrangements. To be eligible for this extra time, you must meet the income guidelines and bring your cut-off notice to your local Department for Social Insurance office within the 10-day notice period. Special procedures are set up for homebound people. For more information, call your local Social Insurance office.

"To help you budget for your utility bill, each gas and electric utility has a budget payment plan for residential accounts," Armstrong said. "The customer may choose to pay a fixed amount each month on a yearly basis instead of monthly billings based on actual usage. The utility is responsible for letting customers know of this plan."

If you are unable to pay a utility bill, Armstrong urges you to contact the company immediately. Try to arrange a payment plan. Under certain conditions you can get a 30-day extension of utility service, even if you can't pay all of your bill right away. The extension gives you time to pay the overdue amount or make other living arrangements; however, you still must pay your overdue bill.

If disconnected, you will be subject to a reconnection fee, possibly an additional deposit or an increase in your current deposit. The utility is often more receptive if you contact them early, rather than when it is time to disconnect.

SECRET WEAPON

Watch out America's Cup hopefuls—the Australians may have a secret weapon—kangaroos! While kangaroos have long been regarded as "natural athletes" for their leaping and boxing abilities, they are also great swimmers. According to Ranger Rick magazine, kangaroos have been spotted swimming across rivers and even in the ocean! A "roo" swims with its head and back above water, pumping its strong hind legs one at a time.

Remember, you have responsibilities to the utility company. The company has a right to be paid for its services by the date indicated on your bill.

For more information on your rights as a utility consumer, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Grandparents' Rights

By Attorney General
DAVID L. ARMSTRONG

The rights of grandparents to visit and stay in contact with their grandchildren following the parents' divorce, remarriage or death is becoming an increasingly important issue in our nation and in Kentucky.

Grandparents are asserting their rights in many of our nation's courts. They often state, among other things, that they have a right to visitation because of the unique relationship between grandparent and grandchild. The awareness is growing that this relationship often is a very important one, both to the child and the adult.

In Kentucky, the law states that either paternal or maternal grandparents may be given reasonable visitation rights by the circuit court if it is determined to be in the child's best interest. The law states that the legal action should be brought in the child's home county.

The granting of visitation rights, however, is up to the discretion of the circuit court judge. When he or she grant visitation to grandparents, the judge has the power to enforce the decision.

Although many families work out their own visitation arrangements to everyone's satisfaction, unfortunately some grandparents must go to court in order to be allowed to visit their grandchildren. When this is the case, Kentucky law does provide some assistance to grandparents in their efforts.

Honored by D.A.V. Chapters

10 Tips For Health
In The Coming Years

What types of New Year's Resolutions will you make this year? Resolving to live healthier so you can live longer would be a wise decision for the New Year.

What can you do to live a long and healthy life? If you could ask more than 1,000 doctors that question, what would they tell you?

The American Journal of Public Health posed such a question to 1,715 physicians and their top suggestions were to avoid cigarettes, harmful substances, and too many calories.

The 10 best ways to protect health are:

- Eliminate cigarette smoking.
- Wear protective clothing if exposed to harmful substances.

- Avoid excess caloric intake.
- Eat a balanced diet.
- Use seat belts while driving.
- Know the ingredients of the prescription drugs you take and how they effect you.

- Avoid unnecessary x-rays.
- Avoid saturated fat and foods.
- Drink alcohol in moderation.
- Eliminate pipe and cigar smoking.

Following these rules will help keep you healthier for many future New Years!

Pavarotti Returns To Madison Square Garden

The 25th anniversary of Luciano Pavarotti's operatic debut will be celebrated when "Pavarotti at Madison Square Garden: The Silver Jubilee Concert" airs Saturday, December 27, at 2:00 p.m. on KET.

The performance, videotaped September 16 of this year, includes arias by Donizetti, Puccini, Verdi and Ponchielli. Pavarotti is joined by the young soprano Madelyn Renee. Emerson Buckley conducts the American Symphony Orchestra.

Pavarotti's return to Madison Square Garden is part of the Arts in the Garden series, designed to present cultural attractions to a wider audience than is possible in traditional settings. A Pavarotti concert launched the series in 1984. This recital was the first classical music event held at Madison Square Garden in nearly 40 years. His performance was the first such in the new Garden, which opened in 1968.

"Pavarotti at Madison Square Garden: The Silver Jubilee Concert" is produced by WNET/New York.

Documentary Targets 'Drinking And Driving'

The devastating impact of metal and the resulting destruction of personal lives is the subject of "Drinking And Driving: The Toll, the Tears," which encores Tuesday, December 30, at 9:00 p.m.

This powerful one-hour documentary was produced by Kelly Burke, a Washington, D.C. television reporter, as part of his court sentencing. Burke, driving intoxicated, crossed into the opposite lane and hit a van. The driver died, leaving behind a son and a wife who was eight months pregnant.

Burke discusses the tragedy and its irreconcilable memories with which he deals with on a daily basis. His personal insights are interwoven with comments from a teen-ager, a widower, and a prisoner, all of whom relate their tragic consequences resulting from mixing alcohol with driving. Others comment on dead and paralyzed family members and the endless nightmares of guilt and helplessness coupled with a sincere effort to accept the horrible truth.

Copies of "Drinking and Driving: The Toll, the Tears" are available. Contact: Educational Activities, WETA, Box 2626, Washington, D.C. 20013, (703) 998-2709.

Hall Receives Counselor Award

The Kentucky Department for the Blind held their annual awards presentation and banquet, December 4, at Lake Cumberland State Park. Mr. Ed Rademaker, director of field services, presented the Kentucky Department for the Blind Counselor of the Year Award, to Mike Hall and stated "Mike is the number one Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor in the State of Kentucky".

Hall, who has won this award for two consecutive years for Region 4, has been a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor for the Kentucky Department for the Blind for five years. His office serves Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Pike, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin, Morgan and Wolfe counties.

He graduated from Betsy Layne High School in 1976 and received a Bachelors Degree in Rehabilitation from Eastern Kentucky University in 1981.

Hall and his wife, Georgia Stambaugh Hall, reside at Paintsville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenis Hall, of Banner.

Kentucky Power Offers Help With Winter Heating

One thing for sure. Winter will be here before you know it, and those higher winter heating bills, as well. According to W. W. Zoellers, Kentucky Power Division Manager, several payment plans are available.

The most popular payment plan is the equal payment plan. Currently, over 7,000 Kentucky Power customers are taking advantage of this plan, which enables the customer to pay the same amount 11 months of the year, with a settle-up payment on the 12th month.

This method averages the yearly usage over a 12 month period, thus eliminating sharp increases due to cold or hot weather.

Kentucky Power also has available a partial payment plan for customers having temporary difficulty paying their bills. Specially trained employees are available to assist customers on an individual basis.

Customers falling into the low income bracket, and needing help with their winter heating bills may qualify for Federal assistance under the Home Energy Assistance Program. This program provides payments to low income households who are without heat or in danger of losing their heating source. Applications are taken at local Community Action Agency offices.

In addition, every winter limited funds are available through the WinterCare Energy Fund. This program is sponsored by donations from Kentucky Power's customers, and is administered through the WinterCare Agency and the local Community Action Agencies.

"We want to help our customers anyway we can. We have specially trained employees who can set up payment arrangements, as well as make recommendations on ways we can lower our energy costs," concluded Zoellers.

For more information regarding payment arrangements or other special assistance contact your nearest Kentucky Power Company office and ask for Marketing and Customer Services.

Old Christmas Program
Scheduled at May Lodge

Old Christmas will be observed at May Lodge, from 2 until 5 p.m., Sunday, January 4, the nearest date to that on which, legend has it, animals kneel at midnight to pay homage to the Christ child.

There will be a program of storytelling, traditional songs and dancing. Refreshments will be served, and the public is invited to attend.

Pvt. Williams Completes Course at Lackland AFB

Marine Corps Private 1st Class Michael N. Williams, son of Bobbie J. and Charles E. Williams, of Wheelwright, has completed a corrections specialist course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Course subjects included baton training, facility inspection methods, confinement procedures and regulations, communication with prisoners and emergency plans.

IF PRESTONSBURG grade school kids missed the message, it wasn't that it didn't come through loud enough. Ear-splitting rock lyrics about young lives destroyed reverberated through the school auditorium recently as Will Freebody and Mike Cooley—the duo is known as Double Take—urged their young audience to “say no to drugs.” Their anti-drug crusade in eastern Kentucky schools is being sponsored by the Coleman Oil Co., of Shelbyana.

Pepper Fast Growing
Money Crop in State

Kentucky's reputation for producing excellent pimiento peppers has enticed one packing company to expand its facilities to Lee county where some 400 acres will be grown next summer.

Cherokee Products, headquartered in Haddock, Georgia, has expanded its processing facilities to Lee county, where the value of pimiento peppers to be grown next summer will be about $400,000, said Dick Roberts, University of Kentucky horticulturist, who worked with the company in establishing a receiving station in Hopkinsville several years ago.

Between 200 and 300 farmers in the Lee county area are expected to grow the peppers. The 400 acres of pimiento peppers will average about five tons of peppers each, with some producing up to 10 tons. The price the farmers receive for the peppers will be about $200 per ton, Roberts said.

“With the addition of these 400 acres of pimiento peppers, Kentucky is expected to produce about 5,000 tons next year, making pimiento peppers a $1 million industry in the state,” Roberts said.

Two other packers, Monticello and Moody Dunbar, have pimiento receiving stations in the state, Roberts said.

Pimiento peppers are among 36 vegetable crops grown commercially on 11,000 acres in Kentucky's $17 million vegetable industry. And the industry is expanding, Roberts said.

Pepper producers who contract with the new facility will have a price for their product locked in prior to planting in mid-May. The plants are supplied by the packer, although the producer must pay for them, he said.

By mid-August, the crop will be ready for first harvest. It will be followed by two to four more harvests later in the season, Roberts said.

“All in all, growing pimiento peppers requires about 155 hours of labor per acre, which is about half that required to grow tobacco,” Roberts said.

Peppers are not particularly difficult to grow, as long as the farmer is on top of the situation throughout the growing season.

“Peppers, as most vegetable crops, are quite sensitive to dry weather. You can't just leave the crop in the field and wait for a rain. You have be prepared to water the crop when needed,” Roberts said.

Insects, too, can be difficult.

“European corn borers can devastate a pepper crop practically overnight. You have to watch the peppers like a baby to make sure that nothing is harming them,” Roberts said.

Today is the first day of the rest of your life.

Give blood,

so it can be the first day of somebody else's, too.

Red Cross is counting on you.

TO ALL PET DROPPERS

Where is this place called "Drop It Off?" It is a lonely and unfriendly area. It has no shelter for the homeless, no food for the hungry, no doors with welcome mats, no smiling faces, no tongues to speak kind words, no hands with a gentle touch, no hearts with compassion, no memory, no respect for the suffering. Its address is Slow Death.

Use your animal shelter.

A short time back, a small kitten was abandoned by a church. When Sunday service came, it came in. Where else could a little kitty find compassion but in the house of the Lord. Right? Wrong again. It was carried out again, and when all was gone, it was left alone. It would take shelter under the church and wait for the next meeting. A month later, its luck changed. It made it all the way up in the stand. It set its little poor and weak body down. It did not take its eyes off the minister. It stayed for the service, and this time no one got up to throw it out, but when church was over a man was persuading another who lived a long distance, to drop it off. A better, humane example should be set for the children.

At the end of summer, a black shepherd dog was dropped off. He would wait on a rock by the railroad tracks and wait for his master to return for him. He stood strong, brave, and alert, so sure his master didn't mean to be so cruel, he would stop for him.

When the family car would pass, he would make the mile-long chase day after day, but he was not able to mellow their hearts. Time and hunger began to break his spirits. He only stood and looked the distance for the shadow of death was coming over him. It was time to get to know this area call "Drop It Off." He came in contact with it all. His last three weeks, he had three legs to get around on, and in his weakness he did it poorly. It was plain his suffering was great. Today his twisted body lay by the roadside with, to my disbelief, a rope around his only hind leg. I thanked God that death had finally come.

He is luckier than those responsible for his suffering—he has met death. They yet have it to face, and they too will think it unkind, I pray God will let me walk softly in their presence for surely evil dwells within them.

Editor's Note: Contrary to usual policy, this is being printed despite its being sent anonymously. Payment was made by money order signed 'Humane Supporter.' As Coleridge wrote,

"He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things both great and small."

Check On Heat Tapes To Avoid Home Fire

If you use electric heat tapes to protect exposed pipes from freezing, government safety experts ask you to check the tapes now for possible fire hazards.

Citing some 500 house fires believed to have been caused by heat tapes over a six-year-period, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said tapes should be carefully inspected annually for cracked, baked-out, deteriorated insulation or bare wires that could cause a fire. Defective tapes should be replaced immediately. Always unplug the heat tape prior to inspection to avoid a shock hazard.

Heat tapes are routinely used in crawl spaces and in the substructure of beach homes, mountain cabins, cottages, mobile homes and similar dwellings to prevent exposed water and drain pipes from freezing. Some heat tapes are left in place the year-round and are activated by a thermostat when the temperature approaches 32 degrees. In other cases, homeowners plug in the tapes at the start of the heating season and unplug them in the spring.

Heat tapes have also triggered fires because they were improperly installed, the agency said. Some homeowners disregard label instructions and lap the tape over itself along the pipe in the belief that better protection will result. As CPSC pointed out, heat tape manufacturers specifically warn against overwrapping the tape around pipes.

Consumers should know the kind of pipe to be protected (copper, plastic, galvanized steel, etc.), also pipe diameter and length, when shopping for new or replacement heat tapes. Make sure the heat tape is approved for use on the pipe found in the home.

CPSC said tapes should never be wrapped around the thermal insulation on a pipe or used near a flammable object. Inspect existing heat tapes to make sure no such fire hazards exist in the home.

To freeze a frosted cake without marring the icing, freeze first without wrapping until firm. Then wrap carefully and return to freezer. To thaw, unwrap and let stand to room temperature.

To Wed December 27

Christmas Tree Sales Growing In Kentucky

It was only 135 years ago that Pennsylvanian Mark Carr hauled two ox sleds loaded with evergreen trees from his land in the Catskills to the sidewalks of New York City to set up the first Christmas tree retail lot.

Capitalizing on the German tradition of decorating evergreens with ornaments and lights, Carr made Christmas trees available not only to those near wooded areas, but to urban dwellers alike. He also began what has become a very big seasonal business.

Until recent years, almost all of the Christmas trees sold in Kentucky were shipped in from Michigan and several other states.

This year, that trend is beginning to change, according to Dr. Deborah Hill, extension forestry specialist at the University of Kentucky. Hill estimates there will be between 10,000 and 20,000 Kentucky-grown Christmas trees available for sale at retail lots and at choose-and-cut operations run on producers' farms throughout the Commonwealth.

Hill has been working with Kentuckians for several years, providing assistance to those interested in growing Christmas trees to supplement their farming incomes.

"Five years ago, there were between 25 and 50 people growing Christmas trees in Kentucky," Hill said. "Right now, our estimates show there are between 150 and 200 people growing Christmas trees for sale."

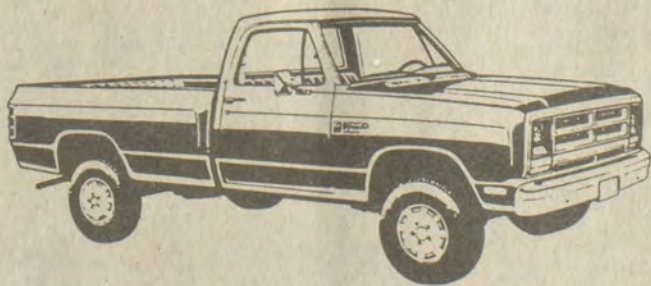

Since it takes about six years to get a tree to cutting size, many of the new producers won't have trees for several years. But those who got into the industry early are beginning to sell their trees.

"We owe a lot to Dr. Hill and the studies the University of Kentucky is conducting on this fledgling industry," said Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell. "They are providing valuable information to the Christmas tree growers on production. But they are also emphasizing marketing and the value of planning for their future business."

"When you consider that seedlings cost about four cents each and Christmas trees sell from between $15 to $20 at choose-and-cut farms and $25 at retail lots—there is money to be made, at least a 10 percent return on the investment," Boswell added. "Christmas trees look like a viable supplement to farm incomes in many areas of the Commonwealth."

Blood Donorama Here Underway Thru Dec. 19

'Tis the season to give. What better gift to give than the gift of life! Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg is asking all residents in surrounding areas to donate blood on December 16 through December 19, at the Sixth Annual Donorama being held at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn from 12:00 noon to 9:00 p.m.

The Donorama is a four-day area blood drive where the Blood Center needs to collect 250 units of blood. Donating blood is easy, safe, and it doesn't take long. Also, by donating a pint of blood, you can help save the lives of three patients in area hospitals. Only with the support of all area residents, can we hope to maintain a safe and healthy supply of blood this holiday season.

Celebrate this giving season with Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg. All donors will receive a care package, T-shirt, free food coupons, and will be eligible for numerous door prizes donated by area merchants.

Give the best present of all this Christmas, the gift of life! For more information, contact Larilynn Leffler at 1-800-432-9528.

Wins Art Scholarship

Kathi Keen, of Wayland, has recently been awarded a scholarship in a nationwide art contest. Sponsored by Art Instruction Schools of Minneapolis, Minnesota, one of the world's leading home study art schools which has offered art training since 1914. Many leading artists have received training from Art Instruction Schools which is accredited by the Accrediting Commission of the National Home Study Council.

Miss Keen competed with contestants from all over the United States and Canada. The scholarship which she won offers training in the fundamentals of art which includes a variety of subject matter, media and techniques: drawing, perspective, color, composition, design, lettering, fashion, cartooning. This scholarship provides an exceptional opportunity for Miss Keen to continue developing and cultivating her artistic interests and ability. She will begin her lessons shortly.

She is a student at Allen Central High School and is presently enrolled in Art II. She is the daughter of Ernest and Roxie Keen, of Wayland.

She won first place in the Floyd County Fine Arts Festival, first place in the Regional Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, and third place in the Regional Kentucky High School Art Education Association Exhibit held at Morehead State University.

SAVING MONEY

COPYRIGHT 1986 KVMA
Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
Uncertainties in the general economy the past few years have caused many people to rethink their buying habits.

It might be worthwhile to consider preventive medicine for animals. Not only is it more economically efficient than treating a disease after it is acquired, it is easier on the animal.

And you will find that your veterinarian is probably more interested in preventing disease than in making heroic efforts to cure disease.

One veterinarian, for example, reports that a farmer in his area lost 24 replacement heifers over an eight month period to a coronavirus infection. Cost of vaccination would have been $1.87 per dose.

Canine parvovirus is another example. Vaccination will cost between $15 and $17, and for a puppy more than one vaccination may be required. But treatment will cost between $50 and $60 the first day, between $40 and $50 for each consecutive day and there's no guarantee the animal will live.

Feline leukemia is a third. One clinic charges $29 for the original vaccination and $8 for the boosters. Price of treatment, however, will be between $20 and $30 per visit, should the animal contract the disease, and the disease, once contracted, is terminal.

Rabies can be considered. Cost of vaccination will be about $9 to $10 for a one year vaccination, $13 for three years. Once contracted, the disease cannot be cured and if passed to a human cost of treatment will easily exceed $600.

Prices given may vary slightly from locality to locality, and are a median figure.

For some diseases there is a vaccination but not a cure. Rabies is a prime example. You are then involving an emotional cost as well as a financial cost.

You already know that your veterinarian is highly trained in matters of medicine. You may not have realized that he is also trained in furnishing the best possible health care for the most efficient price. This can be especially important to livestock farmers, kennels and breeders.

He is also trained to develop a total herd health program specifically for your individual needs. A phone call to him might be worth the time, he realizes that saving you money is in his best interest.

Holiday Blues Don't Have To Get You Down

Most images of Christmas sparkle with laughter and joy, but for some Kentuckians, the gleam of the holidays can be clouded with gloom and depression.

"Christmas is the season when excitement and happiness appear practically everywhere," said Vicki Hayes, a program coordinator in the Division of Mental Health in the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

"People are often nostalgic and more in touch with their feelings at this time of year. The Christmas of our childhood had a magical quality, which the reality of adulthood just can't recapture," Hayes said. "This can really get you down, making existing depression even more intense."

Kerby Neill, a psychologist with Bluegrass East Comprehensive Care Center in Lexington said that holidays become bittersweet for a person who has lost a loved one either by death or divorce. "Christmas is often viewed with anticipation and excitement of being together," he said. "The loss of a loved one is magnified greatly during this time."

Loss for reasons other than death and divorce are also magnified during the season, Neill added. Parents who experience the feeling of an "empty nest" or dating couples recently separated are also subject to holiday depression.

"Many people have a tendency to become nostalgic and try to revive shaky or old relationships during the holidays," Neill said. "This can be dangerous, because nostalgia can fog up the clearest thinking. It's okay to touch base with old friends during the holidays, but don't try to revive romantic relationships. Be realistic."

Termed "transient depression" because it lasts for a short period of time, the holiday doldrums can be caused by a variety of reasons, said Hayes.

"During this holiday season, the average person's energy level is lower and the diet is erratic, which can contribute to depression," she said. "People should remain physically active, watch their diet and limit alcohol intake."

Many people tend to overspend for Christmas presents, creating a money crunch. Then when the bills arrive, they get depressed because they don't have enough money to pay them. To remedy this possibility, stick to a spending limit and avoid buying unnecessary gifts.

"The holiday season is a time for making good memories," said Hayes. "It is important to plan your time so you enjoy yourself. But if the effort or expense outweighs the benefit, give yourself permission not to do it."

If the feelings of depression become more than a person can handle, both officials suggest seeking professional help. The 14 Comprehensive Care Centers located throughout the state have 24-hour crisis lines available to assist in reaching trained professionals who can help people cope with depression.

"The main thing to remember is that we will all have ups and downs," said Hayes. "There were better times and there will be better times. The bad times won't last forever."

Good-Bye, Mr. Chips On KET Masterpiece Theatre

"Masterpiece Theatre" returns to Sundays on KET with the winter season opener of "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," a three-part series beginning January 4, at 10:00 p.m. "Masterpiece Theatre" will repeat Fridays at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

This enduring story of a beloved English schoolmaster stars Roy Marsden, Chief Superintendent Adam Dalgliesh on "Mystery!", in the title role of Mr. Chipping. "Masterpiece Theatre's" presentation is the first television adaptation of James Hilto's 1934 best seller.

The story takes Mr. Chips, as he is called by his students, through a lifetime of teaching: his triumphs and tragedies, and the intrusion of World War I into the tranquil world of the Brookfield School.

Chips goes from a nervous young schoolmaster, to a rather uninspired schoolmaster in his middle years, and finally, to a rather secluded life in his old age. However, during these years as a teacher, he has learned wisdom and humanity.

"Masterpiece Theatre" is presented by WGBH/Boston.

Dad, oh! how I miss you,
Since God called you home.
I never thought your leaving
Would make me feel so all alone.

I have had so many problems,
In my life, since you have gone.
There's no one I can talk to,
Since God called you home.

Many times I go to visit you,
Just to find your empty chair.
I need someone to help me,
But it seems, they don't care.

You were always there for me,
When through this life I fell.
Right or wrong you stood by me.
You loved me I could tell.

Oh Daddy, since you left us,
Our family has strayed apart.
But dad, I'll see you again,
Because God has changed my heart.

Dad, I pray we'll be together,
Up there in Heaven someday.
We can have a family reunion.
On that great judgement day.

Rebels Win Floyd County Final In Capturing Jenny Wiley Tournament

The event was called the Jenny Wiley Invitational Tournament and included teams throughout the state of Kentucky, but when the championship game rolled around it proved to be just another Floyd county show of basketball power.

When the tournament opened Thursday, six teams were in the running for Saturday's championship round but the Allen Central Rebels and Prestonsburg Blackcats denied any outside interference in the Prestonsburg hosted tourney.

Allen Central's march to the championship was a rocky one and playing without two of their starters didn't make the road any easier.

Guards Roger Horne and Darrin Conn missed the entire opening round contest when the Rebels defeated Lee County, 55-54, and played sparingly the following night in Allen Central's 54-52 victory over Lexington Catholic.

In the meantime, Prestonsburg was having a much easier time in their march to the championship, defeating Powell county 62-51 Thursday and coming back with a 64-51 win over Mullins.

The Blackcats received solid individual performances Friday as 6' 6" forward David Martin poured in 21 points and Cory Vicars accounted for 18.

However, the man of the tournament proved to be Allen Central's Roger Horne who fought off the flu bug in a big way Saturday night.

After managing only six points in the first half, Horne heated up the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse to the tune of 22 points in the second half to lead the Rebels to a 63-50 win and a Jenny Wiley championship.

The scouting report on the Allen Central guard reads, Horne is a streak shooter and when he hits a hot streak, he can hit from anywhere on the court.

Coach Jeff Riley and the Prestonsburg Blackcats were well aware of this but as Riley explained, when Horne hits a streak there isn't much anyone can do about it.

Allen Central forward Ronnie Ousley helped the Rebel cause with 16 points, and Johnny Martin was pleased with his overall team play. The coach says that Saturday's victory came as a result of them playing an almost perfect game.

SHORT SPORTS

The Betsy Layne Bobcats, despite Jimmy Stumbo's 27 points, lost their first game of the season, falling short to Sheldon Clark, 60-59, at home Friday night.

According to Betsy Layne coach Craynor Slone, his Bobcats didn't play their best basketball. "We thought that all we had to do was show up," Slone said. "We didn't play well, so we got beat."

First year Wheelwright coach Monroe Jones got his biggest gift of this young season Saturday night when his Trojans turned back Wolfe County 72-71.

Johnny Isaac led the scoring way for Wheelwright with 20 points, but Jones says breaking the Wolves' press was the key to his team's win.

"We broke their press real easily and got some easy baskets," Jones explained. "They kept pressing us the whole game, but it didn't really bother us."

Although the victory over Wolfe County was a big one for Wheelwright, Coach Jones says his Trojans still have some work to do.

"We're not there yet, and its going to take some time, but we have the potential to become a good team."

Four players scored in double figures Saturday night as the McDowell Daredevils defeated Breathitt County at home, 58-56.

Sophomore guard Dickie Joe Shannon led the Daredevils with 14 points while Brian Hall chipped in with 12. Reggie Hall added 11 points, and Bill England chashed in with a total of 10.

"We played a real good game against Breathitt County," Coach Rick Hall said. "They have a good team and might be the best team we've played this season, but we played well."

Eastern Kentucky University's run for a championship was cut short Saturday as the Colonels fell short in semifinal action.

Arkansas State ended Eastern's season with a 24-10 victory which set up a Division IAA final pitting ASU against Georgia Southern.

Tiny Augustana College continued its domination of Division 111 college football Saturday by earning their fourth consecutive title in the nation's smallest division.

Augustana earned an Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl victory. Saturday. The former home of NFL quarterback Kenny Anderson has earned the reputation as the team to beat in small college football.

Just a step up from Division 111 lies

"Saturday night we played about all year, both offensively and defensively. Now, if we could just keep that kind of consistency up the rest of the season, we would be okay."

For Prestonsburg, who lifted their record to 3-2, Brian Wallace let it be known that he is back in full offensive form by leading his club in scoring with 19 points.

The 5' 11" guard has missed several weeks of practice and game time due to an injured ankle and could be one of the Prestonsburg keys to successful basketball.

Coach Jeff Riley also received another solid performance from talented forward David Martin, who scored 15 points in the losing effort.

Riley agreed with Johnny Martin, at least in the idea that Allen Central played their best basketball of the season Saturday.

"In the second half they played as good as I've seen them play all season and I've seen every game they're played," Riley admitted.

Although Prestonsburg lost their second game to county competition, the Blackcats aren't any worse for wear where the Floyd County Conference is concerned.

The Jenny Wiley championship round didn't effect the conference standings. The only thing decided in Saturday's matchup is that Prestonsburg will have to improve somewhere in order to beat Allen Central and at the same time Johnny Martin has to keep his troops sharp and prepared.

Allen Central was selected as this county's top team before pre-season, and the Rebels have started to show signs as to why.

At the same time, they put yet another piece of hardware in their continually growing trophy case. The season is still in its feeling out stages, and as the various teams continue to grow, many changes will become a reality, but one thing won't change, Floyd County basketball has no equal.

Betsy Layne Continues Winning Ways Against Floyd County Competition

Before this basketball season began everyone knew Betsy Layne's Jimmy Stumbo was one of eastern Kentucky's better scorers but not many people thought the Bobcat forward would turn in as much production as he has thus far.

With a southpaw shooting motion poised to engage into action at any time, Stumbo has gunned down some big opponents this year with the latest coming Thursday against the McDowell Daredevils.

Stumbo tickled the twines with 23 points to lead his Bobcats to their first Floyd County Conference victory of the year, an easier than expected 74-58 victory over McDowell.

Stumbo, however, wasn't by himself in the Betsy Layne offensive scheme of things. Two other Bobcats scored in double figures while a total of nine players etched their names in the offensive list for Craynor Slone.

Center Jamie Little came through with his finest offensive performance, collecting 17 points to go with his usual solid defensive showing, and Todd Sturgill helped out with 13 points.

The Betsy Layne guard combination finished with a total of 13 as Duran Newsome tossed in eight, and Bud Newsome scored five.

The McDowell Daredevils were led offensively by Brian Hall, who heated up the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse with 18 points.

Daredevil coach Rick Hall said the contest was simply a case of his team suffering through a sub-par performance while Betsy Layne had one of their better games.

"We just had a horrible game," Hall said. "We shot poorly from the outside, and they were hot."

Bobcat coach Craynor Slone agreed. Not that McDowell played a bad game but that his team played one of their better games.

"We played probably our best game of the season, especially in the second half," the first year coach said of his team's performance, Thursday night.

With the victory, Betsy Layne tied Prestonsburg for the Floyd County Conference race. Both teams are currently 1-0.

The all-important conference title is important, not only for pride and confidence. The top two finishers will receive the top seeds in a district tournament play, having to win only one game to advance to regional play.

Also the fifth placed teams will play only one game before district finals time and this season, fifth could be as good as first.

Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg locked up in the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse last night to determine who would take a Holiday lead in the conference.

No score was available at press time but catch a total rundown of this and all games involving Floyd county schools in Monday's special issue of the Floyd County Times.

Blackcats Take Early Conference Lead By Narrowly Escaping Tough Daredevils

Coach Rick Hall has made it clear that he hoped his McDowell Daredevils would finish first or second in the Floyd County Conference, and for a long time last Tuesday it appeared his hopes would get a big assist early this season.

For 27 minutes and 50 seconds the Daredevils stayed in front or within two points of Prestonsburg, but the game isn't over 'till the final horn sounds. This is a known fact. Just ask Coach Hall.

With ten seconds left, McDowell and Rick Hall trailed the Blackcats by only two points and with control of the basketball, had a chance to tie the score.

McDowell had the basketball where they wanted it, in the hands of prize guard and team leader Brian Hall.

However, Hall wasn't where the Daredevils or he wanted to be. Not that he knew it at the time. No one knows where slick spots will show their ugly heads but for Brian Hall he happened to be in the right spot at the wrong time.

Hall apparently hit a slick spot on the E.P. Grigsby hardwood, causing the 6' 2" guard to lose control. Prestonsburg took advantage of the elements, scoring another basket for the final margin of victory, 58-54.

"We played them tough the whole game and had a chance to tie but got beat on an unfortunate play," Coach Hall said.

McDowell did in fact play Prestonsburg tough. In fact, the biggest lead by either team was the final margin of victory, four points.

The Blackcat loss was the second close game McDowell has lost to Floyd county competition already this season, and Rick Hall says his team just tightens up against conference competition.

On the other hand, Prestonsburg earned their first victory inside this county, mostly because of good ball handling and free throw shooting, or at least this is what their coach Jeff Riley feels about it.

"We played a pretty good game, especially handling the ball," Riley said. "We handled the ball well and didn't have very many turnovers."

The Blackcats also were hot from the charity stripe, hitting on 17 of 22 attempts. Prestonsburg made repeated trips to the free throw line, but McDowell kept defensive pressure on. A man to man at that.

"They surprised me by playing man to man," Riley revealed. "I didn't think we would see it at all, but they played it just about all night."

McDowell's man defense didn't bother Prestonsburg's forwards too much. David Martin led all scorers with 17 points while getting strong support from Cory Vickers who tossed in 16. Point guard Brent Music also hit twin digits with 11.

The Daredevils were topped offensively by Brian Hall who accounted for 14 points, and consistent forward Lenny Hall added 13 for McDowell.

With the victory, Prestonsburg takes an early lead in the conference at 1-0 while McDowell suffers their first loss in as many conference contests.

The Daredevils didn't exactly get off to the start that would have made Christmas more pleasant for Coach Hall, but the McDowell head man understands that winning the conference isn't exactly a necessity in advancing to the regional tournament or having a good season.

"I had hoped to finish first or second or fifth," Coach Hall said. "The district is so balanced this year that the only bad seed would be the third or fourth one." Hall continued. "The third and fourth teams will have to win two games to get to the district finals. It really comes down to who is playing their best ball when tournament time rolls around."

Coach Hall is correct in saying the fifth seed is a better one than the third and fourth but everyone in McDowell and Floyd county knows Rick Hall doesn't want to bring up the rear in anything.

If his Daredevils finish last, you can bet the farm that Hall will be disappointed but, hey, in this case fifth is better than third or fourth.

A WINNER'S FORM: Johnny Isaac displays his shooting form here that led to his 20 points and a Wheelwright victory over Wolfe County. Wheelwright has been selected as this district's fifth placed team but handed the 14th region's number one team a loss.

THE SPORTING TIMES

This past week while eastern Kentucky was in the midst of a cold spell I was given an opportunity to experience the incredible wonders of Florida.

The sun, the ocean, and everything Florida has to offer was in full form but what proved to be the most interesting thing for me was a game they call jai-alai.

It's always tough to find amusement in something you know nothing about such as Australian Rules football or the metric method of measurements, but this jai-alai stuff surprised me. It's fast-paced and interesting as the various events unfold.

According to an official handbook, this sport is a centuries old game originated in Spain and France with the first action held in this country in 1904.

The object of this game called jai-alai is to bounce a goat skin covered nylon ball off a wall in a fashion that will prevent the opponent from either catching it in the air or on its first bounce and slinging it back against the same wall, and so the game goes.

What surprised me was the fact that they didn't use gloves to catch the ball. Actually their mitt, or cesta in its official term, looks more like a twisted up boat oar, but these people could certainly catch and sling.

Although jai-alai has been in the U.S. for 82 years it hasn't exactly caught on throughout the country. In fact this unusual game is played in only two other states, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

However, in south Florida it's just about the biggest thing going next to the Dolphins and the Hurricanes.

The arena is packed almost every night, and it is hard to say what exactly makes this sport so popular, but one reason could be that fans not only can enjoy watching but they can bet on their favorite players.

People of this area show great interest on placing a bet, and in the case of jai-alai, they not only can cheer for their favorites but they prosper when their man wins.

In a normal sport such as football or baseball, all a fan wins when his team wins is the satisfaction but here the fan gains something else, money.

One thing made me suspicious, though. Just before the game began and after all the bets were in, the scoreboard displayed the favorites, based on where the most money went.

Nothing unusual here but the favorite never won. Now, I wonder why the player who everyone had money on never won? Have to stay in business some way.

The excitement surrounding the night's events somehow affected my usual good judgement and like everyone else, I had to bet.

Well, needless to say I didn't win any cash, but I should have. After closely reviewing the program, I instructed my bookie (brother-in-law) to place two bucks on Bobby in game two.

The program showed Bobby as one of the more successful players and my sporting emotion confirmed this but Bobby failed to compromise with my investment.

In fact, Bobby didn't show his best form the whole night. Somewhere during the post game preparations, he lost momentum and failed to make me a winner.

The gambling aspect of jai-alai is a big attraction, and I'm not even a gambler, but what impressed me more is that I now know that somewhere in America there is a sport where the fans are treated to good athletes and good action while not booing as a result.

Don't get confused, jai-alai fans are intense and they make a lot of noise, but they realize that it wasn't the players who lost it for them, they simply bet the wrong numbers.

This sport is certainly different from any we have in eastern Kentucky. The people of Florida have one on us there, but you know what they don't have down there? Basketball.

Kentucky is the basketball king, and I wouldn't trade a slam dunk or a jump-shot for all the rebotes in Broward County.

Oh yea, we can't bet on where UK will finally show Louisville who really represents Kentucky basketball, but Rex Chapman is a much better performer than Bobby.

By the way, a rebote is a return of a ball from the back wall of a jai-alai court.

I plan on returning to the great south Florida scene as soon as possible, but this time I'm going to find out who owns the fastest greyhound there and bring home some funds. You bet, dog racing is big in the Ft. Lauderdale area also, and they bet on it, too.

Court To Review Law On Spotlighting Deer

Kentucky Attorney General Dave Armstrong is asking the Supreme Court of Kentucky to review the Court of Appeals decision striking down a law barring use of spotlights to daze deer and other wildlife.

The Court of Appeals reversed a 1985 Casey county conviction for "spotlighting" deer on the ground that the law was too broad. On November 9, 1984, Carroll Singleton was observed shining a spotlight across the fields and woods off Long Hollow Road in Casey County.

Conservation Officer Ray Floyd, who cited Singleton for "spotlighting with a gun in possession," said Singleton had a .30-06 rifle on the front seat of his vehicle, next to a cartridge, and a clip loaded with four cartridges in his pocket. The Court said citizens have constitutional rights of free speech and privacy which entitle them to travel Kentucky roads without fear of being charged under the statute.

Armstrong said, "This expansion of speech and privacy rights goes well beyond the U. S. Constitution and serves no purpose other than to protect poachers. Fish and Wildlife regulations limit the statute to situations where illegal hunting is obviously intended, and no innocent conduct would be prosecuted." Armstrong emphasized that, "Kentucky's spot-lighting law is a vital tool in the protection of our wildlife and it must be upheld."

Spotlighting is a favorite tactic of poachers because deer and other wildlife stand transfixed and helpless when immobilized by a bright light in their eyes. Singleton had maintained that he wasn't hunting but was searching for a deer he had wounded earlier in the day. The Casey District Court and Circuit Court had previously rejected his claims.

News And Notes From The NFL

Could it really be true? Isn't there some mistake that has been made. The playoffs can't go on without the Dallas Cowboys. They had a position reserved. It belonged to them for oh so long.

Sorry cuz, no post season action for the Cowboys. America's self-proclaimed team will just have to wait until next season and a quarterback.

But, you say, now that the Raiders have to stay home during the playoffs, what is this? Has professional football gone mad?

No cuz, it's a thing called parity. Nowadays teams other than the powerhouses can earn a playoff berth, but your Cowboys and Raiders had an opportunity to stay alive but they lost to lesser teams, and now you will have to find another winner to cheer for.

Denver would be a wise choice. The Broncos upended Washington Saturday which gave the New York Giants a NFC Eastern Division championship. The Giants, however, weren't satisfied with being given a title. They had to prove they deserved it.

Bill Parcell's club thumped St. Louis, Sunday, and accordingly, Parcell was given the traditional ice and gatorade treatment.

Cleveland doesn't believe in pouring their cold drinks on their coach but this season the Browns have developed another nasty habit, trouncing their opponents.

Cleveland gave it to Cincinnati, Sunday, to win their second straight NFC Central Division title. Bernie Kosar had his way with the Bengal defense while leading his team to their championship.

Kansas City kept their playoff hopes alive with a victory over the Raiders in Los Angeles. LA committed eight turnovers as compared to zip for the Chiefs, and as a result, the Raiders have no playoff possibility.

Minnesota is in the same boat. Coming into Sunday's game with Houston, the Vikings were sitting pretty but looked past the Oilers and now they are looking to next season.

The San Francisco 49ers earned an additional step or two toward post season action by whipping New England while Miami helped out with their victory in Los Angeles over the Rams.

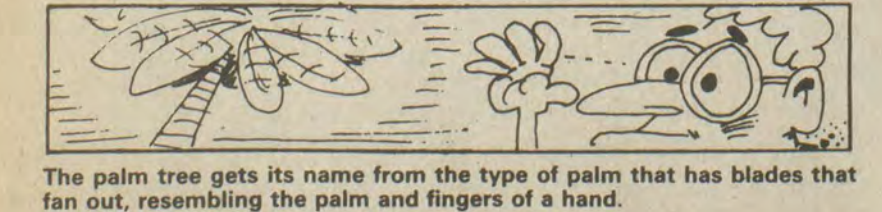

Neither New York nor New England want to win the AFC East. Both teams are experiencing unexpected tailspins and as a result the Bengals, Chiefs, and Sea Hawks have a shot at extending their seasons.

This week will definitely tell the final tale, because it is the final week, but much is left to be decided before Tuesday rolls around.

Cincinnati and the New York Jets will hook up in Riverfront Stadium, with the winner possibly being a wildcard representative.

Lady Blackcats Take Lead In Conference

Coming into last night's encounter the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats and Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats owned one victory each in the all important Floyd County Conference.

Both squads had earned their victory over the McDowell Lady Daredevils. Prestonsburg upended McDowell exactly one week ago while Betsy Layne defeated the Lady Daredevils Thursday.

With an early conference advantage on the line both teams completely understood what was at stake when they came eye to eye in the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse.

Antlered Doe Taken In Butler County During Gun Season

About once each year a deer which is biologically female but has male characteristics is harvested in Kentucky during deer season.

This unusual occurrence was reported this season in Butler County where 16-year-old Timmy Grise of Lewisburg downed an 11-point antlered doe November 14. The deer field dressed at 175 pounds, had a 13-inch inside spread from antler to antler and 21 1/2-inch main beams, according to Butler County Conservation Officer Kenny Kemp.

An antlered doe of this size is not found often, according to Randy Hedges, southwestern wildlife district biologist with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Hedges explained this phenomenon happens occasionally, yet most of the antlered does he has observed have considerably smaller racks and weigh closer to 100 pounds (live weight), like the average doe.

There are two main reasons why some does have antlers. One is that occasionally a doe may be born with genetic make-up of XXY chromosomes, instead of the normal XX female chromosomes. Male deer have XY chromosomes normally. This could give does some characteristics of a buck, such as antlers or a heavier body build.

A more common reason for this uncommon occurrence is a hormonal imbalance in the female deer. The underproduction of estrogen, a female hormone, or the overproduction of testosterone, a male hormone, could produce the same effects as an XXY chromosome might. Hedges said most antlered does with the extra chromosome are incapable of reproduction and probably would have antlers each year as bucks do.

Those antlered does which have the hormonal imbalance will sometimes overcome it, return to normal hormone production, and may or may not have a rack each year. Most does with this type of disorder are able to bear young.

Grise's particular deer would seem to fall in the "extra chromosome" category, based on the knowledge of weight and antler development, but this is not known for certain. Whatever the reason, Grise was happy to have taken an antlered deer well above the average size buck taken by most deer hunters.

Grise said he was surprised to find his deer was a doe after checking the deer. "I didn't know whether to check it in or not," said Grise of his first deer. He took the deer along a grain field on a ridge top on his own farm.

A situation like Grise's is one reason why deer regulations refer to "antlered or antlerless" deer instead of bucks and does when defining legal deer. Antlers don't always mean bucks, but any deer with antlers four inches or more in length is legal when the regulation specifies "antlered deer only."

The deer will probably qualify for the Kentucky State Record Deer List for trophy does, but this has not been determined to date.

There are currently two antlered does on the top twenty list of does by field dressed weight. The top spot on the list is currently held by Wayne West of Bardwell, Ky., with a 161-pound antlered doe taken in Carlisle County. Slot number 20 is shared by William Moore, of Louisville, who took a 127-pound antlered doe in Shelby County in 1982. Grise's doe will most likely place him high on the list, if verified, and will long be remembered as a special deer.

North Dakota State, and they are rapidly becoming a force in Division 11.

NDS earned their second straight championship when they defeated South Dakota, Saturday.

The New York Mets continue to suffer embarrassment with their pitching staff—not from their difficulties on the field but from society's point of view.

After the Houston brawl, Dwight Gooden added to the problems by breaking several laws and fighting with Tampa, Florida policemen.

According to reports, Gooden was pulled over in Tampa, Saturday night, after a policeman saw his car swerve on the road.

After being stopped, Gooden dooked it out with officers and was later jailed on charges of reckless driving, resisting arrest, and assault.

Not much went on at the winter baseball meetings held this past week in Broward county, Florida, but the New York Mets did swing a deal for Kevin McRenolds.

The Mets sent Kevin Mitchell to San Diego, Thursday, for the hard hitting McRenolds.

The New York Yankees also were in the trade market, dealing the hit man Mike Easler to Philadelphia in exchange for prospect Charles Hudson. Hudson has been expected to become a pitching force in the major leagues but has yet to bloom. Easler, on the other hand, is a proven offensive threat but has trouble with the leather.

Mammoth Cave, Kentucky's immense series of underground caverns formed by the action of ground water on limestone formations, was reputedly discovered by a hunter in 1799.

Blacks, who smoke much more, on the average, than white people, have the nation's highest rates of lung cancer and coronary heart disease—the illnesses most often linked to smoking.

Lady Blackcat coach Bridgett Clay especially wanted the victory because winning at home is a must in Floyd County action.

"This is probably our key game because we're playing at home and this is for first place in the conference," Coach Clay said.

Clay says that finishing high in the conference is a high priority for her squad because a first or second place finish is important in advancing to the regional tournament.

And Prestonsburg put themselves in a solid position as number one.

The first American president to be born on Independence Day was Calvin Coolidge. His birthday was July 4, 1872.

America's first aerial photograph was taken from balloon over Boston in 1860. Taken by J.W. Black, it was entitled "Boston as the Eagle and the Wild Goose See it."

Amy Grant looks to widen her audience a little more

By Lynn Hoogenboom

Amy Grant, 25, is the reigning queen of Christian pop. In the next couple of years, she hopes to become the queen of pop — period.

Amy Grant

She may make it, too. "The Next Time I Fall," in which she duets with Peter Cetera, has hit the national Top 5; two of her last four albums have gone platinum; and her first television special, "Amy Grant ... Headin' Home for the Holidays," which airs Sunday, Dec. 21, on NBC, could add yet-another layer to her audience.

But her burgeoning audience seems to carry with it a concurrent danger. Could Grant eventually find herself presenting two different images to two different audiences — one religious and one secular?

"I'm sure that different albums I do will probably appeal more or less to different layers of my audience," says Grant, "but I never want to present two different people. I figure if that's my intent, my audience will catch onto that."

Unlike most gospel singers, Grant's musical roots are not in the church. She was influenced instead by the pop favorites of her older sisters. "I remember digging through my sisters' stuff, and that's where I found Todd Rundgren and Jethro Tull and Joni Mitchell," she recalls.

"Carole King was probably my favorite."

Grant started writing her own songs — some religious, some secular — when she was 14. At age 15, she was signed on by Word, a gospel label.

"I think what happened to me was in a time of real strength, I stood up for what I believed," says Grant, "and a door opened that enabled me to keep standing there. Now, as a 25-year-old, I see that I have the freedom to sing other things also. But I still want to sing about my relationship with Jesus. And now I've got the freedom to do both. Had I started out the other way around, maybe it would have been, 'Whoa, now she's getting religious on us!'"

She's a little unsure what the reaction to her special will be. "I don't think any Emmys are gonna come down from my performance in the Christmas special," she says with a laugh.

"Even if you have a half-way good script and good ideas, something about the camera can squeeze the life out of anybody," she explains. "But we had a blast. It got to the point where we thought, 'I could give a riff that there are cameras on. This is fun!' If half of that translates to the tape, I'll be pleased."

James Pickens Jr.: New to soaps, but not to theater

By Marie Michaels

James Pickens Jr. may be new to soap operas (he recently joined the cast of "Another World" as lawyer Zach Edwards), but he's certainly not new to the acting profession.

James Pickens Jr.

Pickens performed in his first play when he was attending Bowling Green University in Ohio and has developed a solid background in the New York theater.

"If anyone would have told me eight years ago that I'd be acting for a living, I'd have told them they were crazy," says Pickens. "I got into acting totally by accident. It all started when somebody asked me to do a play in college."

"My first professional role was in a showcase production called 'The Good Ship Credit,' " Pickens continues. "The role that brings back the greatest memories for me is that of Corporal Ellis in the original Negro Ensemble Company's production of 'A Soldier's Play,' which I did for over a year and then toured in for an additional nine months."

"I also had a very good experience this past January through March at the Crossroads Theatre in New Jersey, where I portrayed Dr. Martin Luther King in 'Roads of the Mountaintop,' " concludes Pickens, who came to "Another World" from the starring role of Walter Lee in the critically acclaimed off-Broadway production of "A Raisin in the Sun." He also had a featured role in the feature film "F/X."

Pickens lives in Manhattan with his actress wife Gina Taylor, who is currently appearing in the off-Broadway hit "Beehive."

When he's not appearing on "Another World," Pickens likes to sing. "In my free time I like to sing a cappella doo-wop with a couple of guys I met while we were all in 'A Soldier's Play.' We enjoy singing old '50s tunes when the mood strikes."

American Cuisine: A Melting Pot Of Culinary Influences

By INK MENDELSON

If you still think of tacos and pizzas as "junk" food, you may want to reconsider. Regional American specialties like the taco and such European borrowings as pizza, blended with the spices of personal creativity, are the ingredients of an emerging eclectic American cuisine. The taco, it seems, is one of America's most historic dishes, and today in this country's top restaurants, pizza is not only hot but "haute."

"Haute cuisine"—French classical cooking—has been a bone of culinary contention in America at least since Patrick Henry accused Thomas Jefferson of having become "so Frenchified that he had abjured his native victuals." In truth, the president was ever seeking the best in food and was always ready to try anything. Jefferson took pride in serving his ever-present dinner guests Virginia's regional foods along with such European "curiosities" as macaroni and cheese.

After 200 years, America's culinary establishment and much of the citizenry are shedding rigid ideas of what an American cuisine should or should not be and coming around to Jefferson's broad-minded way of thinking. Culinary historian Michael Batterberry recently explained to a Smithsonian Resident Associate Program class the difficulty of defining America's style of cooking: "A cuisine is a living thing and that's sometimes a problem for historians." Continual interchange and mingling of food customs were inevitable in the American melting pot.

When the first Europeans arrived in America, they found Indian tribes in several parts of the country who were sophisticated cooks. Some delicious Indian gifts to American cooking are clam chowder, cranberry sauce, roasted peanuts, hominy, corn bread, pumpkin soup, Brunswick stew, maple syrup and "Boston" baked beans. The Powhatans "invented" Smithfield ham with their hickory-smoking technique. But they couldn't have done it if Spanish explorer Hernando de Soto hadn't brought 13 hogs to Florida in 1542.

The marriage of American Indian and European cuisines began in the 16th century with the torrid union of Indian cookery featuring the chili pepper and highly spiced Spanish medieval cooking, according to culinary historian Ariane Batterberry. "One of the most ancient foods you can eat is a good old-fashioned taco," she told the Smithsonian class.

The tortilla, once a staple in the Aztec kingdom of Montezuma, was an Indian contribution to this handy, wholesome dish. Mexican Indians brought their cornmeal cake to the American Southwest in the early 17th century. Inside the tortilla's protective shell, Spanish lettuce, cheese and beef mingled with Indian tomatoes and peppery chili sauce.

"The Mayflower carried spices," James Baker, another lecturer in the Smithsonian series of culinary history classes, pointed out. According to Baker, research librarian at Plimoth Plantation (Mass.), it's a myth that early New England's "English yeoman cuisine" was bland. "The Pilgrims ate hearty, plain meals, but for special menus, they enjoyed spiced dishes and artful presentation." With or without flavorings and frills, English culinary traditions would become a dominant force in middle-class American homecooking.

In the homes of the very wealthy and in much restaurant cooking, however, French standards of gastronomy would prevail. The Franco-American culinary alliance dates from the American Revolution when such prominent Americans as Jefferson and Franklin called attention to French cooking and it became fashionable among the elite. To show sympathy with the American cause, the French began eating turkey—stuffed with truffles.

After the French Revolution began in 1789, the Reign of Terror propelled aristocratically allied chefs and pastry cooks to America. These skilled refugees and others who followed over the years introduced French cooking techniques and spread such Gallic tastes as soups, salads and bon bons. They opened cafes and restaurants—two of the words of a new language, "culinary French." Filet, soufflé, fricassee, puree, consommé, pate—but not hors d'oeuvres—rolled merrily from many American tongues. Way out west, a Denver hotel by mid-19th century was serving "bear's paws en gelée."

Many Americans, however, were not exactly swept away by Gallic gastronomic gusts. Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin, sniffed, "O, we can't give time here in America to go into niceties and French whim-whams." Stowe's concern reflected the mid-19th-century regionalism in American cooking. Before refrigeration and railroads, Americans depended on seasonal local ingredients and family culinary traditions.

By the sea in New England, clam chowder was a favorite. In the coastal South, a rice-growing region, "Hoppin' John"—rice with bacon and red peas—was a specialty. Maryland crabcakes emerged from the bounty of Chesapeake Bay. The thrifty Pennsylvania Dutch produced scrapple from butchering scraps. Corn, the staff of life of the American Indian, was featured in regional dishes everywhere from Rhode Island "jonnycakes" to posole, the classic New Mexican stew. And Texas chili was legendary.

A fiery Louisiana combination was Creole cuisine—New Orleans city cooking—and its Mississippi Delta country cousin, cajun cooking. The two cooking styles teamed up to make a distinctively American culinary statement. The contributors to this Louisiana-French style of cooking were American Indians, Spaniards, Africans, French Acadians, West Indians, Germans, Mexicans and Chinese. No wonder that Louisiana specialties are multi-versioned mixed delights such as gumbos and jambalaya. Paul Prudhomme, chef of New Orleans' K-Pauls Louisiana Kitchen, says, "You would find a different gumbo on every stove."

Space continually had to be made in the American culinary kettle as immigrants from the world over came to these shores, some bearing dishes that would become daily fare. German arrivals to Midwestern farmlands and such cities as Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee brought hamburger steak, sauerkraut, hot dogs and potato salad. Macaroni, once a feather in Jefferson's camp but mistaken for onions by one of his guests, was by the late-19th century called, "a favorite American food." In New York City in the Gay Nineties, spaghetti began to wind its way around American hearts. But the big love affair with Italian food began after World War II when GIs returned from southern Italy dreaming of Neapolitan pizza, and pizzerias began to pop up around the country.

Millions of Americans became more adventurous eaters as they encountered exotic dishes during wartime service and postwar travel in Europe and Asia. During the 1950s and '60s, "gastronomic gurus"—as food writer Ellen Brown describes New York Times food editor Craig Claiborne, Julia Child and the late James Beard—began to write and talk about, not the nourishing qualities of food, but its pleasures. Brown stresses Child's electronic influence: "Three million people learned to debone chicken from Julia Child."

Meanwhile, out West a young woman was reinventing the meal. In 1971, Alice Waters opened her Berkeley, Calif., restaurant, Chez Panisse, founded on her culinary philosophy of faith in fresh ingredients and respect for the seasons. She recalls today "lettuce with the snails still on it" and "trout that tried to jump out of the sink." At the time Chez Panisse opened, thousands of "Continental" restaurants in America were serving meals reheated from a frozen state, prompting one wag to decide that the continent in question must have been Antarctica. Sunny California's new cuisine flowered in the San Francisco Bay Area and in Los Angeles and soon affected chefs and restaurants across America.

Alice Waters, the "mother" of the New American Cuisine, pictured here in the kitchen of her Berkeley restaurant, Chez Panisse, believes that good cooking should feature fresh ingredients and respect the seasons.

"People today have more educated palates because they eat out more," Thomas Peer of the Culinary Institute of America says. Peer trains chefs of the future in the American Bounty Restaurant of the Hyde Park, N.Y., culinary academy. This CIA is filled with eager students who are looking forward to creative careers and even possible stardom.

Eating out today has become a form of entertainment for the 1980s lifestyle with its growing population of singles and working couples. Kitchens often are front and center in the restaurant, offering diners a culinary show. Chefs, too, are coming out of the kitchen and into the limelight to mingle with admirers in the dining room. Wolfgang Puck, chef and owner of Spago and Chinois on Main in Los Angeles, smiles a Puckian smile when asked about the demands of celebrity. "It's easy to be a showman if you love what you do."

Puck, one of America's most renowned chefs, has a specialty—pizza. Puck's pizzas are topped with duck sausage, smoked salmon, golden caviar and California goat cheese. Chefs around the country are practicing personal pizza panache typical of the new American cuisine using squash blossoms, salad greens, truffles, mussels and quail eggs. From Santa Cruz, Calif., comes word of Chinese pizza with Szechwan or sweet-and-sour sauce.

"Food is to nourish, but it should also comfort, nurture and have a sense of humor," Anne Rosensweig thinks. Rosensweig, chef and owner of New York City's Arcadia, is one of a growing number of female chefs in America. She acknowledges "a passion for food."

The "mother" of the evolving and experimental new American cooking style is still passionate about it. Alice Waters enthuses: "We could come up with something fantastic."
