Raids net cash, dope

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department conducted four raids Saturday and made five drug-related arrests.

Law officers found marijuana, drug paraphernalia and cash at the home of Cecil David Ousley, 47, on Caney Fork of Middle Creek. Arrested along with Ousley was his son, Aaron Ousley, 19, who was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

In a separate incident, Tommy Briggs, 46, of Left Fork of Bull Creek was arrested at his residence and charged with trafficking in marijuana.

A third raid resulted in the arrest of Carlos "Carbide" Little, 46, of Derosssett Lane, off KY 80, Martin. Little was charged with trafficking in a controlled substance and with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Arrested at her residence at Dwale was Thelma Quillen, 54. She was charged with two counts of trafficking in a controlled substance. A handgun was also confiscated.

A warrant had also been issued for her husband, Columbus Quillen, but he was not located and arrested until early Sunday morning. He was also charged with trafficking in a controlled substance.

All were taken to the Floyd County Detention Center, and, as of yesterday, all had been released except Little.

Sheriff John K. Blackburn encourages persons with knowledge of illegal drug activity to contact his office at 606/886-6171. All calls will be kept confidential.

School budget expected to have breathing room

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

Rather than voting on a working budget for fiscal year 2000 without sufficient time to read and digest the material, the Floyd County Board of Education delayed the vote and called a special meeting for Monday to review and consider the budget.

The deadline for the report to be in Frankfort was September 30, but the board got Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) permission to file late.

Officials referred to the budget as a "living document" because of changes that will more than likely be made.

The board asked that a more easily read report be made by the finance department for board members. The entries are coded and it takes finance personnel a few minutes to ascertain what certain items refer to.

Board chairman Terry Dotson told finance personnel that they would be lost if he dropped them into his business. According to board members, the reports tend to be either too detailed or not detailed enough.

Supt. Paul Fanning said he would work with the finance office to come up with a report that would be helpful to board members. Board member Carol Stumbo said the board should stop making decisions without seeing "how much money we have to finance the project."

The budget contains items that are mandated by KDE or authorized by the Board of Education. Some of the items that highlight the budget include the following:

- Textbook allocation of $235,936 in fiscal year 2000, as opposed to a final amended 1999 budget of $133,000. The increase

BOE discusses building plans

In addition to reviewing the working budget for 2000, which was the main reason for the Monday night's special Floyd County Board of Education meeting, the board considered an amendment to the facility plan, looked at ways to make up days for schools in the Betsy Layne area and had the first reading of a policy amendment dealing with eligibility for high school athletes.

The phrase of the evening for the budget was, "This is a living or working document." The amended facility plan listed as top priority the completion of athletic complexes at South Floyd and Prestonsburg high schools.

These projects, by legislative mandate, must be completed before other major projects can be started.

Other than these two complexes, Jody Sword, reporting for the Local Planning Committee (LPC), said the other projects could be done in any order that the board wishes. He emphasized that the list did not constitute a priority order.

He did say that for the board to make such changes the superintendent would have to ask for an amendment to make those changes. He said he saw no problem with making those changes as

County will hold fall cleanup effort

by Randell Reno
Staff Writer

Floyd County Fiscal Court will again sponsor a fall cleanup across the county in October.

Citizens wanting to have debris picked up will need to call the county road department between October 11 and 22 to arrange for the refuse to be collected. Residents will need to give the road department a specific location to come to.

The spring project went a full two months, much longer than expected, because crews had to work the same hollows over and over again. County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said during a work session with county commissioners on Friday.

Thompson said that residents may leave their scrap along the side of the road and it will be picked up without calling, but the ideal is to get an entire area cleaned and picked up in one trip. A redundant number of trips to the same area will cost the county more money and time.

Judge Thompson is encouraging all able-bodied persons to help in this effort to get the county clean.

Residents are also encouraged to take all the refuse that they can to the landfill at Garth or to local staging areas.

All calls to the road department must be made prior to October 23. Calls will not be accepted after October 22. Crews will begin to gather the waste on the 25th. County officials are hopeful that they can set a time limit on the actual pick up.

If disabled residents will call and advise the department that they can't clean up their property, the county will send out crews to help.

County officials want to remind the public that they can not pick up certain materials like tires, batteries, and shingles. A list will be advertised as to what cannot be picked up.

Thompson said that everyday trash can be picked up by the sanitation people, this is about other types of garbage that accumulate over time.

In conjunction with the county cleanup, Judge Thompson has appointed 35 members from across the county to the local PRIDE committee. A PRIDE rally will be held at South Floyd High School on October 26.

Haunted Hotel will be a featured attraction of the carnival which opens today in the Sears parking lot in downtown Prestonsburg. Workmen yesterday started putting up the carnival booths and rides, an ever-popular part of the Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival. (photo by Pam Shingler)

Strike continues

While no progress has been made toward settling the contract impasse between the management of Highlands Regional Medical Center and members of SEIU/1199, the union got a show of support in a Sunday meeting. Union organizer Kathy McCormick said all who attended the meeting were in favor of continuing the strike. McCormick said no new negotiating sessions are planned, although the hospital has been advertising for a variety of workers.

By land and water

One if by land, two if ... whatever. This Saturday, as part of the Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival, local athletes (or wannabes) will follow a land and water route in triathlon competition. The event starts with a 3K run at 9 a.m. in downtown Prestonsburg. True triathletes will continue for another K, en route to launch their boats at River Park. Then they'll paddle the 18-mile river route to Paintsville, where they'll transfer to bikes and make a 20-mile ride back to the Pro Fitness Center in Prestonsburg. To find out more, contact Pro Fitness at www.multipsports.net.

Elect

DOUGLAS HALL

for CIRCUIT CLERK

I am the Democratic candidate for Floyd Circuit Clerk and I ask for your vote and support.

QUALIFIED TO SERVE

I am a graduate of McDowell High School and have B.A. Degree in Business Administration specializing in Management from Morehead State University. This education qualifies me to do the duties of the office so does my work experience. I have worked not only as a coal miner, but for over ten years I've worked management of private business. I understand the demands and discipline of being an employer and handling thousands of dollars in a manner above reproach or any question of honesty.

CHARACTER TO SERVE

You deserve a clerk that is not only qualified by education and experience, but who is both honest and accommodating to your needs. As to honesty, I intend to prove to you that I have such character in my service to you day by day. It is the one virtue that every public servant must have and it has been instilled into me since my youth beginning with my family.

My parents are Denzil Ray and Donna Sue Parsons Hall of McDowell. My grand parents are the late W.J. and Maudie Vance Hall of Grethel and the late Ted Parsons and Margie Hamilton Parsons of McDowell.

My loving wife is Kelly Ann Stumbo Hall, the daughter of Larry Foster and Chris Griffith Stumbo of McDowell. Her grandparents are the late Foster and Edna Hopkins Stumbo of McDowell and the late Raymond Griffith and Anna Skaggs Griffith of Martin.

We have two wonderful children, Emily Ann, 5 years old, and Seth Douglas, 2 years old.

Family alone should never be the reason you vote for any candidate, but the experience of us all has taught us a persons roots help us judge the intent of the heart of honesty, kindness, and willingness to help in the time of need. That said, I am unashamed of my kin and trust who they are and the lives they have led will speak to you of good things that you can expect of me. I promise to you and my family to never fail to uphold the highest level of honesty in the performance of my duties.

I also pledge to you that I have the willingness to work hard and faithfully for you as Circuit Clerk. I am currently assessing every function of the Circuit Clerks office to make it as accomodating and pleasant for you to use as the system allows. My attitude is simple, I run the Clerk's office, but I run it for you, the citizens. I will strive daily to make your experience with this office reflect that . Any time I come short, tell me and I will listen and learn. My ambitions is to be the best Circuit Clerk I possibly can for you, for me, for all Floyd County. Help me do this, beginning with your vote and support; I promise you won't regret it!

Plans

long as people worked "in harmony toward what is best for the district."

Board member Carol Stumbo asked what the process would be if the LPC did not go along with the board's request. Sword said a drawn-out meeting would take place in Frankfort where, more often than not the board's request, would be granted.

Stumbo said she was miffed by the board's failure to follow through on a promise of taking care of the middle school students who were moved to the top floor of both South Floyd High and Duff Elementary. "When we moved students to the top floor of South Floyd High (to make the middle school), we promised them better. Nothing is better," Stumbo said.

Board member Jody Mullins told Stumbo the same situation exists at Duff where Allen Central Middle School was put on the top floor of Duff Elementary.

Stumbo agreed that ACMS school was also promised a better situation. Stumbo voted against approving the facility plan which passed 4-1.

The other schools that appear on the priority list for construction or renovation funding include Allen Central High School, Stumbo Elementary and Prestonsburg Elementary.

At Allen Central, a major renovation and/or addition to the existing facility is planned. This includes the kitchen/cafeteria and an auditorium. Additional work calls for a weight room, storage area, public rest rooms and a concession stand at the football stadium.

Stumbo Elementary will receive major renovation and/or an addition to the existing facility to include kitchen, library and physical education areas, in addition to one art classroom and one general purpose elementary classroom.

The renovation at Prestonsburg Elementary will include heating, ventilation and air conditioning plus a drainage system and electrical/lighting improvements.

The top three capital construction priorities include

- A Betsy Layne Middle School with a capacity of 600;
- South Floyd Middle School with a capacity of 800; and
- Garrett-Wayland Elementary School with a capacity of 400.

The sites for all three projects are yet to be selected.

One project that appeared at the very end of the document, new central office/storage area, would be one of the first projects, since the lease on the present office runs out in two years.

Again, this is not necessarily a chronological order of construction.

Principals, with input from Site Based Decision Making (SBDM) councils, and central office personnel have reached an agreement on how to make up the missed days in the Betsy Layne area due to the meningitis case.

The three principals — Margaret Vaughn of Betsy Layne High School, Karen Allen of Betsy Layne Elementary and Roy Johnson of Stumbo Elementary — agreed to make up the days as follows: October 18 and 19 (first two days of fall break); November 24 (day before Thanksgiving); and December 20 and 21 (first two days of Christmas break).

The board had the first reading on an amendment to secondary athletic participation based on academic eligibility. The amendment allows Site Based Decision Making (SBDM) councils at each school to set the academic eligibility standards in athletics.

The standards must meet the applicable administrative regulations and Kentucky High School Athletic Association (KHSAA) requirements.

Those standards read: "To be eligible for high school interscholastic athletics, students must be properly enrolled in the school they represent and must have passed or are passing at least four units accepted toward fulfilling graduation requirements.

"To continue eligibility, students must have earned at least four units prior to their second year, nine by the end of their second year, and fourteen by the end of their third year of enrollment in high school."

The policy will be become effective at the next reading with approval by the board.

All members of the board were present, with Don Roberts leaving after the break.

Budget

is a result of the implementation of the second of a three-year district textbook funding plan.

• Staffing allocation increased for the arts. A total of 28 positions were allocated for the arts. The change in staffing policy resulted in about 17 more teaching positions than called for in the prior staffing policy.

• A 2.3 percent mandated increase in certified personnel pay. A board matching increase of 2.3 percent in classified compensation;

• Co-curricular supplement funding of $402,000, increased from $364,000 in the 1999 fiscal budget.

• Technology funds currently in escrow are about $40,000. These funds are expected to be matched from areas other than the general fund. No budget fund transfer to technology match is included in the fiscal year 2000 working budget.

• KDE's recommended percentage of contingency, $2.5 million or 5 percent, is included in the general budget fund.

• A transfer of $129,237 is budgeted in the Facilities Support Program for Kentucky (FSPK) (320) fund to supplement the Prestonsburg High School renovation project in the building fund;

• The overall maintenance budget had increased $1.35 million from the prior fiscal year. Certain projects included in the budget for fiscal year 2000 include:

- Roof/dome repair to Betsy Layne Elementary;
- Canopies for Betsy Layne Elementary;
- Sewage treatment plant at Osborne Elementary;
- Bleacher replacement at Allen Central and Betsy Layne High schools
- Playground equipment;
- Allen Central High locker room renovation; and
- Numerous other repair and maintenance projects at various locations.

• Court judgments of $450,000 have been budgeted in current year expenditures, with $930,000 accrued on the balance sheet. The total available for fiscal year 2000 for court judgment is $1.38 million.

The budget for fiscal year 2000 calls for $47,692,873 in revenues and the same amount in expenditures.

The board voted unanimously to approve the working budget.

Apply now and preserve Kentucky's past

Want to preserve Kentucky's heritage, protect her scenic beauty, or enhance facilities in your local community? You can, and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet is here to help. Through a federal aid highway reimbursement program called the Transportation Enhancement Program, funds are available for construction or rehabilitation projects that preserve the environment, and promote the development of an intermodal transportation system. Applications for eligible projects are now being accepted, and must be submitted to the Cabinet by December 15.

Since 1993, the Transportation Cabinet has provided over $33 million to fund 148 Enhancement projects across the Commonwealth. Projects include the construction of the Bellevue Bike Trail, the renovation of the L&N Depot in Bowling Green, and the rehabilitation of Kentucky's remaining covered bridges have all been funded. The federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA) and the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA 21) provided for the funding of such projects.

Proposed projects must have a clearly identified relationship to surface transportation in order to qualify and can include activities such as pedestrian and bicycle facilities, historic preservation, landscaping, rehabilitation of historic transportation structures, and archaeological research. Project sponsors must be a state or local public government agency and a 20 percent local match must be provided. Nonprofit organizations wishing to apply must be in partnership with a government sponsor. Detailed guidelines for eligible projects, qualified sponsors, and applications are available from the Transportation Cabinet by calling (502) 564-7686 or by accessing their web site at www.kytc.state.ky.us.

Applications for the funding of Renaissance Kentucky projects (projects that rehabilitate downtown areas) should be submitted by December 7.

Task force to study sexual assault

FRANKFORT - Surrounded by criminal justice professionals and victim advocates, Gov. Paul Patton announced recently the creation of a special task force to study the crime of sexual assault.

"The overall violent crime rate is decreasing, with the exception of sexual assault cases against women," Patton said. "I believe we need to know why women are at such risk and develop solutions to increase their safety."

The governor named First Lady Judi Patton, a nationally recognized advocate for victims of crime, honorary chair of the task force. "We may not be able to restore every rape victim's sense of safety by one task force, but we can make sure that our criminal justice system responds to them in the best way it can," Mrs. Patton said.

The governor also named Commonwealth's Attorney Steve Wilson and Representative Joni Jenkins as co-chairs of the task force. The 22 members of the task force include legislators, prosecutors, victim advocates, judges, law enforcement officers, a victim of sexual assault, civil attorneys, a sexual assault nurse examiner and others.

The governor charged the task force with studying the effectiveness of the criminal and civil justice systems in responding to crimes of sexual violence. The group will meet monthly through December and present recommendations for legislative changes to the governor by January 1.

Kinship Care

New choice for families of children at risk

Protecting children and keeping families together sometimes prove contradictory missions for the Cabinet for Families and Children. When a child is at risk of abuse or neglect from parents or guardians, or already has been abused or neglected, the Cabinet officials say they have no choice but to remove the child from danger.

Until recently, it might have been necessary to place a child outside his family until the child was no longer at risk. If the family problems cannot be resolved, the agency seeks a family to adopt the child. In some cases, relatives willing to keep the child in a familiar environment lack the financial and other resources to do so.

But now, there's an alternative between a dangerous home and foster care/adoption. The agency's new Kinship Care program allows a child removed from her home to stay with other family members and still receive support from the cabinet for Families and Children.

"Kinship Care offers financial support as well as counseling, child care, health care and case management services to family members who want to take in these children but feel unable to do so without help," says Cabinet Secretary Viola P. Miller. "Kinship Care keeps a child with familiar relatives while protecting her from danger, while we continue to work toward reuniting the family."

Relatives can now be approved for Kinship Care and avoid the barriers that kept them from doing this in the past. Such relatives must still meet the basic care standards the agency requires, but do not have to jump through the more extensive hopes—training, frequent home inspections, etc.—demanded of foster care families.

Kinship Care also offers financial support to relatives caring for a protected child. Relatives with a demonstrated need may receive one-time "start-up" funds of up to $500 to establish the child in her new home (clothing school supplies, beds, deposit for larger apartment, etc.), up to $300 per month cash payment, child care, Medicaid coverage, family counseling, support groups and case management.

Eventually, if the child cannot be reunited with his parents, the Cabinet will ask the relative caregiver to seek permanent custody so that the child can stay in a permanent, familiar home. The Cabinet is funding Kinship Care through savings Kentucky has realized in the federal welfare block-grant program known as Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, or TANF. As more people move from assistance to work, the Cabinet applies the savings to initiatives like Kinship Care, as well as programs that support former welfare recipients and help them maintain self-sufficiency and family integrity.

Kinship Care begins in Jefferson, Warren and Pike counties on October 1. The Cabinet will expand the program statewide in July 2000. The purpose of limiting the program to three pilot counties is to find and correct any problems in the program before offering it statewide.

Adverse curing conditions, tobacco needs more time

Dry weather and low humidity are creating adverse curing conditions for this year's burley tobacco crop, according to agricultural extension specialists. The specialists say growers may benefit by letting tobacco hang as long as possible to give it more time to cure.

"The longer you can expose tobacco to favorable curing conditions, the more likely you'll promote a more desirable color," University of Kentucky Extension Tobacco Specialist Gary Palmer explained. "Tobacco needs to go in and out of order (case) at least half a dozen times to produce a solid color rather than a 'K' grade."

In a secure location, such as a traditional burley barn, Palmer recommends keeping the barn doors closed while it's dry. When there's a chance of dew, he encourages growers to open the doors overnight and then close them in the morning before the dew lifts.

Tobacco in field curing structures may also benefit from a longer hanging time, he said.

"Field cured tobacco should come in to order (case) a lot quicker because more surface area is exposed," Palmer noted. "The key is managing the cover to control ventilation and protect the tobacco from wind and rain."

Palmer cautions growers to remember that field curing structures are not designed for storage and that tobacco should not be left hanging in a field structure any longer than necessary due to potential damage from high winds.

"The longer you can let tobacco hang this year, the better your odds are of getting a proper cure," Palmer concluded.

Oh, yes, back to those quotes that I promised. I was almost on a roll there for a minute and forgot I was in a funk. Here are a couple that refer to women: "Life is an endless struggle full of frustrations and challenges, but eventually you find a hairstylist you like," and "The only time a woman wishes she were a year older is when she is expecting a baby."

I know the one about the hairstylist could be about men, but the baby one definitely is just for women.

(About now I'm supposed to ask myself: Are we about there? There being enough words to fill a column. Only 360 some words, you say? Where are those terrific one-liners when I need them? I tell you, it's that funk thing.

Let's try a couple more quotes that should fill in some words. "If at first you don't succeed, see what lovely parting gifts the loser gets," or "Brain cells come and brain cells go, but fat cells live forever."

Now those two are fairly amusing, provided you aren't in a funk.

I bet I could watch a whole show of Carol Burnett, Harvey Korman and Tim Conway and not break a smile. Folks, that is a funk. That crew could make a stump laugh (provided the stump is not in a funk).

You say this is a terrible column? Let me see you type over 500 words that have a semblance to a column when you are in a funk. I bet you can't do it.

Maybe next week I will be out of this funk and will write something that is either entertaining or informative (and then again maybe I won't). Just try to stay out of a funk.

Funds

for distressed counties must climb.

Under the leadership of co-chairman Jesse White, the ARC has increased the percentage of non-highway funds that go to distressed counties from 20 to 30 percent.

And a few of the wealthiest Appalachian counties have seen their ARC funding dry up.

These are steps in the right direction, but we would like to see a greater commitment of resources to the poor in the future.

Over the past 35 years, the ARC has been generous to boomtowns like Birmingham and Pittsburgh. Now, it's time for the ARC to focus on Booneville, Pikeville, Harlan, Hazard and Hindman.

A PAINT
BY ANY OTHER NAME

With the recent introduction of solid-color stains, consumers may be asking what differentiates them from paint. After all, both are opaque, contain pigment and binder, and (if applied incorrectly) can peel and blister. The difference rests with the fact that, while paint forms a smooth surface, solid-color stain allows the texture of the wood to show through. Thus, solid-color stains are often selected for their ability to preserve the texture of rough-sawn clapboards. Because they form thinner films than paint, however, they are generally not as durable. The life span of a solid-color stain ranges from 3 to 7 years, while paints under similar conditions can be expected to last from 7 to 10 years.

HINDMAN PROMART features an outstanding selection of most everything you may need for your next painting, finishing, or wall covering project. Among the products we carry are the decorative wood finishes by Sikkens. Before you start, come see us so you can do the job right the first time. We also work with professional contractors in this area by providing them with everything they need at competitive prices. We are close by at #1 Pro St., Hindman (785-3151). ELECT AND KEEP JUDGE JULIE PAXTON

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

On November 2, you will be voting for Family Court Judge (Circuit Judge, Division 3). I have the privilege of being Floyd County's first Family Court Judge and I am asking you to please vote for me so that I can continue this important work. My only agenda is to make the Family Court the best that it can be for the people of Floyd County.

I am married to Martin "Marty" Osborne, a Prestonsburg Attorney. Our two children, Jackson 9 and Clara 7, are eighth generation Floyd Countians (Martins and Osbornes). They attend Mountain Christian Academy at Martin. We live on Mill Branch on Middle Creek (Rough and Tough Precinct).

WHY SHOULD YOU KEEP ME AS YOUR FAMILY COURT JUDGE?

All matters in Family Court are important to me. It is important to you who the Family Court Judge is: this person will be making decisions that affect the lives of our children.

This court requires someone with legal and practical experience; someone who knows juvenile and family law; someone who is tough when necessary but always fair and compassionate. And it requires someone who is truly interested in the problems families, and children in particular, face in difficult and sometimes bad situations. I AM THAT PERSON.

Some of my life and work experiences which make me the right choice for this job are:

- Wife and mother
- Practicing attorney for 13 years
- Sunday School Teacher
- Former Social Worker
- Former Staff Member, Senator Wendell Ford's Office, Washington
- Former Staff Attorney, Kentucky Court of Appeals
- Former Assistant Floyd County Attorney, 1987-1990
- Former Assistant Commonwealth Attorney for Knott and Magoffin counties
- First Woman President of the Floyd County Bar Association
- Former Chairman, Floyd County Housing Authority
- Tried Criminal and Civil cases in District and Circuit Court and in the Appellate Courts
- First Family Court Judge; organized and staffed new Family Court; created Family Court Advisory Committee so that Family Court can continually improve and help families beyond the courtroom.

As Family Court Judge I am required to make decisions in difficult and emotional situations. Be assured that all of my decisions are based on the law and the facts, and are always made with compassion, fairness and common sense.

I care about our families and our children. This court is important to me. Please vote November 2nd to keep me as your Family Court Judge. Thank you.

27th annual Colgate youth for America campaign rewards local youth groups

Local clubs and troops of the six largest national youth organizations are invited to enter their best community service projects as part of the "Colgate Youth for America" campaign.

Colgate-Palmolive Company presents cash grants of up to $2,000 for the most creative and best executed projects by local units of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys and Girls Clubs, Girls Incorporated, Camp Fire and 4-H, organizations which represent 13 million young Americans.

A celebrity panel of judges who volunteer their time and talent to the campaign will determine the top winners.

Past judges have included Alex Trebek, Andrew Shue, Ethan Hawke, Jackie Joyner Kersee, Phylcia Rashad, Jack Wagner, Dean Cain, Yasmine Bleeth, Rebecca Gayheart and many other stars.

Community service programs from local clubs and troops running between March 1, 1999, and March 1, 2000, are eligible to win one of more than 315 cash awards.

Last year's top winners reflect the ingenuity and resourcefulness of today's kids in their approach to modern problems:

- A Boy Scout troop from Indiana instituted a "Safe Rides" program after their community lost six teenagers to alcohol-related car accidents. More than 100 volunteers recruit, train, advertise and raise funds for the service which operates weekend evenings. It is open to anyone who is too impaired to drive or whose designated driver is impaired.

Area fire departments fight kitchen fires

by Randell Reno
Staff Writer

The Betsy Layne Fire Department responded to a house fire in the Pike-Floyd Hollow early Saturday morning around 6:23.

Sue Hall was awakened early that morning to the smell of smoke, got up and left her home. The fire department found, upon arriving on the scene, a small fire in the kitchen, said Fire Chief Eddie Clark.

The Prestonsburg and Auxier fire departments were called to Wells trailer court, near Highlands Regional Medical Center around 9 p.m., Sunday. Both fire stations responded, with Prestonsburg giving way to the Auxier FD, allowing them to take charge of the incident, according to Myra Joyce of the AFD.

The residents of the trailer had the fire, which originated in the kitchen, extinguished before firefighters arrived on the scene. The kitchen area sustained smoke and fire damage around the stove and sink said firefighters. One resident received burns to her hands in the fire. She was treated at Highlands.

KSP, NHTSA host Labor Day 2000 workshop

The Kentucky State Police, Kentucky Association of Chiefs of Police and National Highway Traffic Safety Administration hosted a workshop geared to increase seat belt usage, September 28-29, at the Marriott's Griffin Gate Resort in Lexington.

Officers from state and local law enforcement agencies throughout Kentucky were briefed in strategies to encourage safety belt and child restraint usage in their areas.

A key component of the Labor Day 2000 plan is the participation and implementation by all law enforcement agencies. The Labor Day 2000 plan will be implemented immediately and will continue through the end of the 2000 calendar year with the ultimate goal of increasing safety belt usage in Kentucky to 69 percent.

Currently, in Kentucky, the seat belt usage rate is only 54 percent, second lowest of the eight states in the NHTSA Region IV area that includes Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina. If the safety belt usage were increased to 70 percent in Kentucky, 146 lives would be saved each year.

By enrolling all 3,438 law enforcement agencies in the region by Labor Day 2000, NHTSA hopes to reach their year 2000 goal. NHTSA also hopes to decrease child occupant fatalities by 15 percent in 2000.

The Kentucky State Police Highway Safety Branch will work to publicize and promote this initiative, as well as continue with this year's Buckle Up Kentucky Thank You Ticket campaign.

The Buckle Up Kentucky program rewards drivers observed wearing their safety belts by issuing

Thank You Tickets that can be returned to the Highway Safety office, making that driver eligible for a cash prize. The Buckle Up Kentucky campaign is sponsored by the Kentucky Automobile Dealers Association, AAA, and the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky.

Lamar Outdoor Advertising and the Outdoor Advertising Association of Kentucky will be providing free billboard space throughout Kentucky in support of the statewide seat belt campaign.

Mitchell Smith, KSP Highway Safety Branch Law Enforcement Liaison, will coordinate and promote the Labor Day 2000 program and other efforts geared at making the state's Highway safer by encouraging local agencies to become involved in the lifesaving program.

Shelter collecting cans

Saturday, October 16, will be the first "Cash for Cans" collection day to benefit the Johnson County Animal Shelter.

The shelter takes in hundreds of stray and unwanted animals each year and the costs associated with feeding the animals and providing them with medical care are high. Members of the community are needed to save cans and donate them so that they can be converted to cash for the shelter.

Volunteers are also needed to collect cans and deliver them to a central location.

A large red, white and blue aluminum can collection receptacle is at Paintsville Lake near the marina boat ramp. When it is full, it produces enough cans to earn $100. The goal of this first drive is to collect enough cans to fill it three times. All of the money will go to the shelter.

Considering saving all your aluminum cans from now until October 16, and donating them to help pay for food and medical supplies at the animal shelter. Call the Paintsville Lake Visitor's Center at 297-6312 or Rick Casper at 886-3863, ext. 241. They will arrange to pick up the cans.

Volunteers with trucks or vehicles large enough to collect the cans and transport them to the receptacle at the lake are also needed.

Reading gains still 'significant,' says NCES

FRANKFORT — The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) has issued a statement reiterating that Kentucky's gains on the National Assessment of Educational Progress are "statistically significant."

Kentucky was one of only three states to make statistically significant gains from 1992 to 1998 and from 1994 to 1998. Kentucky 4th-grade readers started out two points below the national average in 1992, equaled the national average in 1994, and moved three points above it in 1998.

The statement notes that NCES compared data from NAEP and KIRIS to determine that Kentucky's 4th-grade reading scores were not significantly affected by NCES-mandated exclusion rates.

The full statement may be found at <http://www.nces.ed.gov/Pressrelease/naep599.html>.

A statement from Lauress Wise of the Human Resources Research Organization (HumRRO), which undertook a separate analysis, may be seen at http://nces.ed.gov/commissioner/remarks99/9_27_99.asp.

NAEP reading assessments were given to samples of 4th-graders in 39 states and to 8th-graders in 36 states in 1998. The 4th-grade tests also were given in Kentucky and most of the same states in 1992 and 1994. The NAEP is generally considered to be the only test given in the United States that gives valid results that can be compared from state to state.

The reptiles are coming

Prestonsburg Community College's Division of Biological Sciences, Natural History Science Center, and Community Biology Club will host a live reptile program on Friday evening, October 15, at 6:15 p.m., in Pike Auditorium.

The event is free and open to the public. (Donations will be accepted, however.)

A naturalist from Scott Shupe's Natural History Education Company of Cadiz, will present the program, which will feature a live alligator, monitor lizard, venomous snakes from our area, and a 12-foot python.

There will even be an Indian snake test, in which volunteers from the audience will participate. The show will last about an hour, with a question and answer period to follow.

"We always have a full house for this activity," says Dr. John Shiber, human ecology and animal biology professor and coordinator of the event. "Reptiles are greatly misunderstood—and, thus, often feared. Actually, they are very important to the health of our environment, and most are quite harmless to humans."

"Everyone attending this program will go away with a little better feeling about reptiles and how essential it is to protect them from extinction."

Light refreshments will be served after the program. For information, contact PCC's Division of Biological Sciences at 606/886-3863.

HIGHLANDS

REGIONAL

The Medical Center of Eastern KentuckySM

A Subsidiary of Consolidated Health Systems

The strike called by SEIU/District 1199 is over one month old. The bad news is the average Highlands Regional Medical Center employee has lost over $2,500 in wages. The Union has tried to deny the community access to health care services with the strike.

The good news is numerous employees have returned to work and Highlands Regional Medical Center is providing emergency, inpatient, and outpatient care.

The Union continues to picket the Medical Center and will not allow the Medical Center's contract offer to the Service, Technical and Clerical workers to come to a vote.

The 1997 bylaws of SEIU/District 1199 state in Article VII-Section 5—Rights and Privileges of Members: "Every member of the District in good standing shall have the right to enjoy the full benefits of the District without discrimination of any kind, as follows:

- (a) To vote on contracts directly affecting the member as an employee by secret ballot.
- (b) To vote on all strike call and strike settlements directly affecting the member as an employee, by secret ballot."

The Union members of Highlands Regional Medical Center have paid over $385,000 in membership dues since 1996, they have lost over $885,000 in wages since September 2, 1999. All this for a Union that will not allow them to vote on a contract.

The Union's Columbus, Ohio, leadership is prolonging this strike, destroying the Medical Center's reputation, and denying the community needed health services over two issues:

- Mandatory membership in the Union for all Registered Nurses, and
- Simultaneous contract expiration dates for the Service, Technical and Clerical workers, and Registered Nurses

This is wrong and irresponsible. The Union membership should be allowed to vote. Employees should be allowed to earn a living. The Medical Center looks forward to the day we have all of Highlands employees back to work and to the day our positive working relationship with the local Union leadership is restored.

President's Council on Year 2000 Conversion unveils Y2K youth education program

The President's Council on Year 2000 Conversion recently launched the "Y2K Youth Education Program," an unprecedented effort to provide teachers, students and their families with accurate, up-to-date information about the Year 2000 (Y2K) issue.

Consisting of easy-to-use materials, the program is specifically designed to help teachers educate students about the Y2K issue through Newspaper in Education (NIE) program across the country. This initiative is a partnership between the President's Council, the Newspaper Association of America (NAA) and the National Newspaper Association (NNA), which collectively represent the nation's daily, weekly and community newspapers.

"The Year 2000 challenge needs to be met by informed and educated communities," said Council Chair John A. Koskinen. "Communities with information about readiness for the date change will be better prepared to deal with whatever difficulties arise. We believe one of the best ways to educate people about Y2K is through newspapers and schools."

Daily, weekly and community newspapers will receive a sample copy of a student supplement, teacher guide, and a five-part newspaper feature series. Additionally, they will receive a CD-ROM disk containing the electronic files for use in publishing and promoting these materials locally. Publishers across the nation will use the disk to easily reproduce the materials and distribute them with the newspaper to schools within their communities. Individual teachers whose local papers do not participate in the program will also be able to request information directly from the Council at its web site (www.y2k.gov/youth) or by calling 1-888-USA-4-Y2K.

The President's Council on Year 2000 Conversion, established on February 4, 1998, by Executive Order 13073, is responsible for coordinating the Federal Government's effort to address the Year 2000 problem. The Council's more than 30 member agencies are working to promote action on the problem and to offer support to public and private sector organizations within their policy areas. Visit the Council via the Internet at www.y2k.gov. For consumer information on the Year 2000 problem, call the Council's free information line at 1-888-USA-4-Y2K (1-888-872-4925).

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

TMJ SYNDROME

Do you grind or clench your teeth when sleeping? Does your jaw make clicking sounds or get stiff or painful? Perhaps your jaw may "lock" or "catch." You could be suffering from TM (temporomandibular) joint disorder or TMJ. The TM joint, where your lower jaw (mandible) and skull meet, is similar to a ball and socket. Normally, when you open and close your mouth, muscles contract and relax. A cushioning disc allows the skull and lower jaw to glide smoothly.

But when muscles tighten, your skull and lower jaw are pulled closer together. This puts pressure on the joint, and the disc can get stuck in the wrong place. TMJ can cause facial pain, headaches and earaches. A chiropractor is trained to restore the health of your joints. He or she can recommend a treatment program to reduce pain and improve range of motion in your jaw.

Shelter undergoes a face lift, observes domestic Violence Awareness Month

Around the nation and throughout Kentucky, battered women's advocates are working to focus public awareness on the epidemic of domestic violence, while encouraging all Americans to become part of the solution, during the month of October.

Domestic violence has reached epidemic proportions. In the United States, four million women are physically abused each year by the men who promise to love them. Within eastern Kentucky, hundreds of women and children had to seek shelter, due to domestic abuse over the past year. These families were served by The Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, a spouse abuse shelter, of the Christian Appalachian Project.

The Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, serves victims in the Big Sandy Area Development District, comprised of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. Besides offering victims safe harbor from the abuser, the facility also provides counseling, legal advocacy and assistance in obtaining educational, employment and housing opportunities.

The shelter has recently undergone some renovations and cosmetic changes that were possible through a financial windfall given by Gov. Paul Patton to Kentucky domestic violence shelters. Shelters throughout the Commonwealth benefited from the monetary assistance. Improvements at Big Sandy Family Abuse Center included a new van; black-topped parking lot; remodeled kitchen with new appliances and cabinets; new furniture; construction of a deck and new pantry.

"All the changes are resident focused improvements," stated Anita Seals, assistant director of human services for Christian Appalachian Project.

No woman should fear violence in her own home. No child should dread coming home. During the month of October, domestic violence prevention advocates will be raising public awareness of domestic violence, providing people with ideas for action, and letting women who are abused know that they are not alone and that help is available.

Domestic violence affects all of us—every community, every workplace, every family. And we all have a responsibility to end domestic violence. Action can be simple as contributing money, clothing or any other household item to a local women's shelter. Some people might prefer to volunteer their time to a local program or shelter.

Individuals who are looking for ways to help, or would like to participate in Domestic Violence Awareness Month activities call 606/886-6025 or the crisis line at 1-800-649-6605.

The Christian Appalachian Project, (CAP) is a interdenominational, non-profit Christian service organization committed to serving people in need in Appalachia by providing physical, spiritual and emotional support through education, crisis intervention and community development. With more than 70 programs and services, CAP's efforts reach people through the 13 Appalachian states.

Murphy is inspector general for health services cabinet

FRANKFORT — Pamela J. Murphy, an attorney with more than 10 years of state government experience, has been appointed the inspector general for the Cabinet for Health Services, Secretary John Morse has announced.

Murphy has served as deputy secretary of the Justice Cabinet since February 1997. She previously worked in the attorney general's office as deputy attorney general, assistant deputy attorney general and as director of the criminal appellate division.

The inspector general's office licenses and regulates health care and child care facilities such as nursing homes, hospitals and day care centers, conducts audits and performs investigations involving fraud and abuse.

"I'm looking forward to the challenges of serving as inspector general," Murphy said. "The office performs important work that touches the lives of thousands of Kentuckians every day."

Murphy is a Louisville native who received bachelor's and law degrees from the University of Louisville. She became an attorney in 1984 and worked as a public defender. She joined the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet in 1988 as a staff attorney.

Murphy worked on Gov. Paul Patton's crime bill during the 1998 legislative session and this year began serving on the Kentucky Bar Association's Ethics Committee.

Other recent cabinet appointments include:

• L. Bert Hawkins is the new executive director of the Cabinet for Health Services' Office of Program Support. Hawkins has significant administrative and leadership experience in state and local government and higher education. Hawkins spent 19 years at Georgetown College, where he served as vice president. He also served as commissioner of public safety for the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government and was director of public safety for Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

• Joe Thompson, who has more than 21 years of computer experience, has been named the Chief Information Officer for the Cabinet for Health Services. Thompson most recently served as the Desktop Operations Manager for Norton Healthcare in Louisville, where he supported 8,000 computer users. Before that, he served with the Air Force in several technology positions. He retired as a major in January 1996.

Blue River resident sues optical company

by Randell Reno
Staff Writer

On September 7, a suit for Carol Ann Rowland of Blue River was entered into Floyd County Circuit Court against Marcus S. Minix, Howard Crum, and Minix Optical.

The suit alleges that Minix Optical and its doctors did not treat or diagnose the condition of glaucoma or other conditions or diseases of the eyes.

Therefore, they are accused of being negligent in properly treating Rowland's condition and "causing damage to and loss of eye sight, physical and mental pain, suffering and anguish."

The suit asks for compensation of her loss of sight, permanent impairment, past, present, and future mental and physical pain, suffering and anguish, medical expenses and attorney fees and cost.

Rowland is represented by Dan Rowland of Prestonsburg.

Raiders fall to Blackcats in district match-up

Sport Writer

Monday was the Stephanie Adams show at Prestonsburg when the Blackcats hosted the South Floyd Raiders on Senior Night. Prestonsburg honored four seniors with Coach Russell Shepherd presenting Courtney Harris, Maranda Sturgill, Heather Ousley and Lois Rogers with roses.

The volleyball season is winding down with the tournament scheduled to start this weekend. The South Floyd Raiders had been playing very good volleyball lately, but it was the Blackcats coming away with the win. 15-4 and 15-3.

Monica Hobson served for the Raiders to start the game. She failed to score, giving the ball back to the Blackcats. Stephanie Adams scored the first two points for the Blackcats. Then it was pretty much back and forth with the serve.

There were some pretty long volleys between the two teams. At the end of the first rotation, it was three-two in favor of the Blackcats. Then, on Stephanie Adams' second serve, she really put on a show. She scored ten straight points for the Blackcats, putting the game out of reach for the Raiders. Monica Hobson, Minnie Tackett, Monica McKinney, and Tara Berger each scored one point for the Raiders.

Lauren Majakey scored the other three points for the Blackcats, giving them the match, 15-4.

The second game was pretty much the same. The Raiders kept some good volleys going and they set the ball up well, but when the score was put on the board it went to Prestonsburg. The Raiders would score three points in the match. Minnie Tackett scored two and Monica McKinney scored one. For the Blackcats, it was Stephanie Adams with five, Angela Howell with one, Amelia Conley with three, Lauren Majakey with three and Cheres Shepherd also with three.

The Blackcats took the second match, 15-3, giving them the game. The Blackcats improve to 14-3.

The junior varsity game was a different story. It was the Raiders of South Floyd defeating the Blackcats of Prestonsburg in two very good matches. The Raiders had to go the extra point to defeat the Blackcats in the second match.

Reynolds scored for the Raiders to start the game. Shepherd served for the Blackcats but failed to score, giving the ball back to the Raiders. Berger scored two points for the Raiders and Lauren Majakey answered for the Blackcats by scoring three points and tying the score.

M. Hall then scored one point for the Raiders, and Lois Rogers scored two for the Blackcats. This was a evenly-played match. South Floyd capitalized on the last two serves, giving them the win. The score was close the whole game.

M. Hall scored a total of five points for the Raiders, while M. Hobson scored four. For Prestonsburg Erin Majakey scored three points, while Lois Rogers scored four.

The second match was closer than the first. The Raiders had to score 16 points to defeat the Blackcats, 16-14, in the second match, giving the Raider Junior Varsity the game.

The Blackcats traveled to Pikeville on Tuesday and will travel to Paintsville on Thursday to finish up the regular season.

The Raiders will host the Tigers from Paintsville for senior night tonight (Wednesday) and will travel to Knott County Central on Thursday night to end their regular season.

A Look at Sports

Some questions about major league playoffs

The stage has finally been set for the upcoming major league playoffs with the New York Mets ending a "dream season" for the Cincinnati Reds with a 5-0 shutout Monday night.

After laboring in Milwaukee Sunday night under cold and rainy weather, the Reds finally salvaged the third game of a three-game series with the Brewers.

Actually, there should have never been a playoff game had the Reds won on Monday night when they had a 3-0 lead.

But it has been a good season for Cincinnati. Now the Reds have some questions that will need answering.

Like, will Jack McKeon be brought back as manager of the Reds? Will they sign Greg Vaughn, who blasted 45 home runs? Will they be able to ink Juan Guzman for next season?

All of this is going to cost them millions more to keep the team intact, and I don't think even the ownership will be willing to put out some money for the players.

Now, why doesn't major league baseball plan a 200 game schedule (only 38 more games) and play some doubleheaders during the summer months. I remember when every Sunday was a doubleheader. You looked forward to listening (not much television then) to them on the radio.

Also, there has to be a way around all the post season stuff being played in bad weather. Now the playoffs are starting, it will take a round to see which two teams play for the pennant and then the World Series.

Baseball should not be played in weather suited for football.

Back to the Reds. Jack McKeon, I believe, will return to the Reds but will command more money. Now, do you spend that on him or a Greg Vaughn?

Also, will the Reds make some player moves over the winter? I like the crop of players they have. But the pitching staff, well, it could use a little help.

Guzman figured in only one decision in his last five starts and that was a losing one in Milwaukee. The four before that he did not win nor lose.

I understand he wants to return to Cincinnati next year, as does Vaughn, as does McKeon.

Look for the Reds to deal Barry Larkin this winter.

Until I get back from vacation, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Adams Girls basketball team wins a close one at Herald Whitaker

Tabitha Caudill scores 15 points and Heather White scores 14 in the win

by Karen Joseph
Sport Writer

The Lady Cats from Adams Middle School traveled to Magoffin County on Monday night to take on Herald Whitaker.

The Blackcats went into the game with a record of 2-1, and they were hoping to improve their record. The Blackcats played consistently in all four quarters, scoring ten points in each quarter. All four quarters were close between the teams with Herald Whitaker outscoring the Blackcats in the first and fourth quarter. But it was the Blackcats coming away with the victory 40-36.

The first quarter was nip-and-tuck with Herald Whitaker having the one-point lead at the end of the first quarter. Heather White hit two three pointers in the first quarter for the Blackcats and Michelle Lackey and Megan Harris each had a two-point basket in the quarter.

In the second quarter, the Blackcats held Herald Whitaker to only eight points. Heather White and Tabitha Caudill had the only field goals for the Blackcats in the second quarter with the remaining points coming from free throws. The Blackcats went into the locker room at halftime with a 20-19 lead.

The second half was pretty much a replay of the first half. Prestonsburg scored 10 points in the third quarter with Tabitha Caudill scoring four points and Heather White scoring three. Megan Little scored a field goal and Molly Burchett connected on a free throw. The Blackcats went into the fourth quarter with a five-point lead.

Herald Whitaker would rally back in the fourth, but was four points shy of the Blackcats. Most of the Blackcats' points were scored on free-throws. Tabitha Caudill had the only field-goal of the quarter, but she hit four out of eight free throws. Heather White, Michelle Lackey and Megan Harris each scored a free-throw, giving the Blackcats 10 points for the quarter. The Blackcats chalked up another win improving their record to 3-1. They will travel to Warfield on Thursday to take on the Warfield Indians.

VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT PREVIEW

by Karen Joseph
Sports Writer

The area 1 volleyball tournament will begin this Saturday morning at Paintsville High School.

Area 1 district consists of Prestonsburg, Paintsville, South

Floyd, Sheldon Clark, Allen Central and Betsy Layne. Prestonsburg will take on the Tigers of Paintsville to open the tournament. In the second game, South Floyd will tangle with the Cardinals of Sheldon Clark. Allen Central and Betsy Layne drew a buy in the tournament. Allen Central will play the winner of the Prestonsburg and Paintsville game, and Betsy Layne will play the winner of the South Floyd and Sheldon Clark Game. The tournament will continue on Monday and Tuesday and conclude on Wednesday.

PRESTONSBURG VS PAINTSVILLE

Prestonsburg has only lost three times this season and Paintsville was one of the losses. Prestonsburg has been playing very good volleyball lately. They won the Powell County Invitational this past weekend by defeating Powell County, Hazard and Allen Central.

Russell Shepherd has some very good players on this team. He doesn't have any seniors who start on the varsity squad. Their record is 14-3. They will play Paintsville in a regularly-scheduled game on Thursday night at Paintsville.

Brooke Coleman is a junior and a very good athlete. She has height and can spike the ball when needed.

Amelia Conley is also a junior. Amelia has been playing very good ball lately. She can give you some mean spikes and is very effective in serving the ball.

Angela Howell is another good player for the Blackcats. She can get a save at a crucial time.

Chrissy Nelson is a very sound player. She gets a lot of assists during the volleyball game.

Stephanie Adams usually serves first for the Blackcats — and serves she does. She scored a total of 23 points in the Powell County Invitational.

Lois Rogers is a senior and sees a lot of playing time on both junior varsity and varsity.

Lauren Majakey is the other starter, and she is a very good player.

Ashleigh Ousley plays on varsity and junior varsity most of the time and does an excellent job.

Maranda Sturgill, Courtney Harris, Erin Majakey, Rachel Mitchell, Rachel Johnson, and Heather Ousley make up the rest of the bench.

Cheresh Shepherd is only a sophomore, but sees a lot of time on the varsity squad. Cheresh gives the team all the encouragement they need with her keen sense of humor.

This game should really be a good one.

SOUTH FLOYD VS SHELDON CLARK

This South Floyd volley ballteam has been on a roll as of late. They started out a little slow but have really come on strong lately. They attended a camp at the University of Kentucky a couple of weeks ago, and their record has improved since then. They defeated Hazard last week in a very good game. They fell to the Blackcats on Monday night but played a very good game. The Raiders have a lot of good sound players. They will host the Tigers of Paintsville tonight (Wednesday) for senior night. These girls play together as a team and are very encouraging to each other.

Coach Jacqueline McKinney added, "The South Floyd high School Team has made tremendous strides in improvement this year. Our record went from a winless season last year to a season of 6 and 8 so far this year. The junior varsity improved to a current record of 10-4.

"I can't say enough about this team of girls. They are a pleasure to work with and are always willing to learn and help each other. Rarely, if ever, do I have to discipline the team for anything.

"The girls come to every match wanting to do their best. Sometimes we fell short, but we always made strides to improve. The leadership of the seniors have helped the underclassman fit in and improve."

Coach McKinney had this to say about her players.

"Minnie Tackett has become an excellent server. When her serves are falling in, most of them are in the ace category. She has been working on her blocking and spiking skills. As a junior, I feel that she will improve over the summer and be a very productive player and leader next year.

"Monica McKinney, a senior, has improved this year and is the floor leader. She has taken on the responsibility of being the 'communicator' on the floor. Her level of play has improved drastically since last season.

"Margaret Morgan, another senior leader on our team, can be counted on to play her best each and every game. She has been happy to alternate with another senior, Amber Smith, a very good front line player. Margaret rotates in during back line play, while Amber rotates in during front line play. Each is a good server and take turns serving according to when they come in."

"Senior Kayla McQuire is a senior. Kayla is one of those quiet players who is always there and is productive. She plays both the front line and the back line equally effectively.

"The other senior players are Jessica Pack and Rachel Little. Jessica can be counted on to come in and produce when it counts. She has an excellent serve and works best on the line. Rachel is one of those players who is always striving to improve her game. She has come a long way, and I only wish I could have had her for one more year as she is showing improvement all along the way.

"Robin Sword, a second year junior, is always willing to help out where she is needed. She doesn't complain when she doesn't get the playing time she would like and is a true team member.

"We have eight sophomores on our team. I can't say enough about this group of young ladies. Three of these players have moved into the starting rotation. Monica Hobson is a very good server and is working hard on all facets of the game.

"Stephanie Hall has also moved into the starting rotation. Stephanie has come a long way since last year. She has the confidence to work on the back line where most of the serves land. She is also working on her skills and is improving with each and every game. She rotates on the front line with the leader of the team Tabitha Berger.

"Tabitha Berger is another sophomore. If I can ever get Tabitha under control, she will be one of the best spikers and blockers in the region if not the state. I only regret that I do not have enough time during a match to play all the players.

"The other sophomores that get limited playing time are Becky Isaac, Amy Morgan, Sara Smith, Courtney Paige, and Sheena Hall. You will be seeing these names quite a lot more in the coming season.

"Last, but definitely not least, are my three freshman players. Ashley Reynolds is going to be an awesome front line player. Megan Hall is a good all around player but best of the front line. A player who has made a tremendous gain in both confidence and ability is Cynthia Isaac."

"This has been a very rewarding year for me, and I look forward to coaching these girls in the future if they will have me back. Volleyball is an exciting sport and if the public will come out to the matches, they will be equally excited and enthused," added Coach McKinney.

ALLEN CENTRAL VS PRESTONSBURG OR PAINTSVILLE

Allen Central is a very strong and athletic team with some very good players. They played in the Powell County Invitational last weekend. They lost to the Blackcats but played a very good game.

Shanna Howell probably is the team leader. She has a very good attitude and gives a hundred and ten percent.

Leslie Martin is also a leader. She gives her team encouragement and is determined.

Natalie Cooley and Amanda Potter are both strong players and could cause the opponent some trouble.

Kari Osborne can do some scoring and is a very good defensive player.

Shannon Sizemore has the height and the strength to play the front line. She can really get up in the air and spike the ball.

Jackie Brown and Becky Smith finish up the bench for the Rebels.

Sandy Warrens has a very strong team and will go far in the tournament.

BETSY LAYNE VS SOUTH FLOYD OR SHELDON CLARK

This Betsy Layne team has played with so much heart and determination all season. They have really improved and could surprise some teams in the tournament. According to coach Epperson, "Right now, our record does not reflect the growth and improvements the Betsy Layne Lady Cats have worked so hard for. Their dedication to practices and games outweighs the win-loss ratio. As far as I am concerned, these girls deserve recognition for their teamwork and extra praise for the support they show each other. Their efforts mirror the good sportsmanship this team acquired throughout this volleyball season."

Coach Epperson commented on her players and parents.

"Brittany Blankenship leads our team with experience with a level-headedness and spirit.

"Brandis Bradley graces us with diplomacy and cheers with a warm heart.

"Lacey Boyd adds a readiness and willingness to succeed.

"Delaina Collins adds strength and maturity with a smile.

"Courtney Hall directs her energies encouraging us with her humor.

"Heather Hamilton moves with quick decision making in setting precisely.

"Misty Lowe demonstrates character and determination.

"Sherrice Mullins add enthusiasm and motivates her team.

"We also have two that build up our team. Christen Blackburn and Denise Jones work hard and add valuable qualities to the team.

"We also appreciate the parents and fans who have assisted our players. Those who have raised such fine girls. Those who came and boosted their spirits as they played and those who willingly gave up time to be chauffeurs and chaperones. I'd like to thank Mrs. Hunt, who helped tremendously, as well as the other parents who have dedicated themselves in making this a successful season. We thank you."

The rookie coach also added, "All of our girls direct their athletic abilities to Betsy Layne's second year at volleyball. I am very proud to have coached this group and they have made a difference in my life."

Time Marches On

The sight of Dale Earnhardt making a late race charge to battle Jeff Gordon for the win last Sunday at Martinsville once again gave us a glimpse of the bridge that will span Winston Cup's rich past with its future. Both drivers were competing under circumstances that just any other driver wouldn't be able to overcome.

Earnhardt had to use a provisional just to make it into the starting lineup. That had him pitting way up between turns three and four in what had to look like the longest pit road in the sport. If pit road looked long, then the sight that Earnhardt saw in front of him at the beginning of the race had to be even worse. Having to pass the entire field on his way to the front would have done most drivers in, but as we all know Dale Earnhardt isn't like most drivers.

Jeff Gordon's circumstances were quite different from Earnhardt's. He qualified on the second row, but had to endure the endless distractions that came from the departure of Ray Everham earlier in the week. The questions about Gordon's ability to win races without Everham were quickly put to rest when Gordon crossed the finish line, giving his new crew chief, Brian Whitesell, his first Winston Cup win.

Earnhardt and Gordon are just a couple of drivers who compete and are able to win races regardless of the situations that they find themselves in, because they have the talent to be successful in the sport. Many times we look at certain drivers and wonder just why they aren't competitive in the sport.

Maybe it is because the sport has got so big in recent years that the one aspect of the equation that can't be controlled in determining the success of the team is often overlooked.

It seems that at the present time in the series there is more of a premium being put on the sponsorship level than the level of the driver's ability.

It is sad to sit and watch year after year when young drivers with very little success keep landing good rides because of their ability to pitch a sponsor's product at the expense of a driver who can actually do what they are hired to do, DRIVE!

Just like in years past as the season winds down, several drivers find themselves without a ride for next year. Some have a history of winning and being competitive, but the open rides continue to go to young faces who, at the present time, just don't have the talent to become competitive in the series. That is not to say that one day they won't, it is just a fact that they still need to get some experience before making the move up the racing ladder.

Cale Wells, who has already created a stir by taking the McDonald's and Tide sponsorship away from a couple of veterans in the series, has said that his choice of drivers will be made by his sponsors. The process goes like this: Wells turns in the list of names that he is considering for his driver and the sponsor's PR firm interviews each candidate.

When the selection of a driver is turned over to the sponsorship, the criteria that is used in the selection process has little, if any, to do with the driver's ability to win races. Instead, the sponsor looks for the face and voice that could help them sell their product and, if they can win a race or two, that is considered an added bonus.

That may just be why, at the present time, the series really has only a handful of teams that are competitive on a weekly basis. When a driver doesn't possess the talent to be competitive, then all the work that a team puts behind him goes to waste. So many drivers have been given great opportunities in the sport, only to squander them because of a lack of talent to get the job done.

Sales may be up for the sponsor and that is important to the sport, but for the owner the frustration level continues to rise with each passing race. I guess what I am saying but really don't want to, is that racing has indeed become a business. The days of looking at the win column at the end of season has sadly been replaced with an accountant's look at the bottom line.

SKIP FALL PLOWING

A great way to help wildlife this fall (and save yourself some time and money) is to leave crop residues in your fields.

Simply skip the fall plowing. This will leave a tremendous amount of seed for wildlife. With mechanized harvesting, as much as five to 10 percent of the crop may be left in the field. Crop residues also offer needed cover for animals.

One of the two stress periods that Kentucky's wildlife face each year is late winter (the other is summer when temperatures are very hot).

One problem facing wildlife in late winter is the lack of adequate cover. A reason for this lack of essential winter cover is a practice that has become commonplace throughout the state - fall plowing.

By plowing under crop residues in the fall, landowners create an essentially barren piece of land. Any waste grains that would be available for wildlife are lost as they are incorporated into the soil. Crop residues that would have provided substantial cover are also lost as they are turned under the soil. The practice is detrimental to wildlife and also contributes to soil erosion.

Farmers who fall plow lose, too. Studies have shown that fall plowing actually costs the farmer in both effort and money. Here's why.

By plowing under the crop residue in the fall, many of the nutrients released by decomposing plant materials are leached from the soils before the next crops can use them. This makes it necessary to use more fertilization for the spring crop.

Fall-plowed soils are also susceptible to erosion and can lose valuable layers of fertile topsoil. Finally, during winter, the soils become compacted and must be disturbed before planting, increasing time, labor and fuel costs for the farmer.

Wildlife, the farmer, and the environment in general would greatly benefit if fall plowing were a thing of the past.

DEER SEMINARS

If you're interested in knowing more about Kentucky's deer management practices, plan to attend one of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' (KDFWR) quality deer management seminars this fall.

Brian Murphy, executive director of the Quality Deer Management Association, and Jon Gassett, KDFWR deer program coordinator, will be the featured speakers at these free informational meetings.

Seminar topics are

- how-to's of quality deer management (QDM);
- non-typical antler development;
- current and future deer management in Kentucky; and
- implementing QDM techniques. Seminars will be held at Bowling Green, October 27, 7 p.m. in the University Plaza Hotel and in Frankfort, October 28, 7 p.m., at the Best Western. Seating is available and attendees will be admitted on a first-come, first-served basis. People will be eligible to win free door prizes and also have a chance to win an art print of the Kentucky record non-typical buck.

GOLDEYE HOOKS SPOT ON RECORD FISH LIST

Kentucky's official record state fish list has a new category. Chris Hoskins of Lexington, recently submitted a 1.92-pound goldeye to the program.

No one had submitted this species before, so a new category was established. Hoskins caught the goldeye, a member of the mooneye family, while fishing the Kentucky River on August 20.

Bearing some resemblance to the skipjack and the gizzard shad, the goldeye is silver with a white belly and steel-blue upperparts. Its eye is very large and somewhat golden in color. This oblong fish has a short snout and a relatively large mouth with teeth. The goldeye is found throughout the Ohio River including the lower sections of its larger tributaries. The fish also occurs in the low-gradient streams and large reservoirs of West Kentucky.

SPORTS IN KENTUCKY

by Bob Watkins

Negative to positive, UK posts 60 minute perfecto, could be headed to three Best 60 minutes of football by a Kentucky team last week since the Reagan administration. Or, at least since an OT win against Alabama two Octobers ago.

Across the board, the Wildcats were superb, upsetting the favored Razorbacks and putting themselves in position to win three straight (South Carolina and home to LSU).

It was inspired play by coach Mike Major's defense that left everyone buzzing. Toss in three turnover gains and two breaks on Arkansas penalties that torched touchdown drives, combined with more penetrating pass rush, fewer blitzes and better secondary play, and UK's 31-20 is no surprise.

Looking ahead and turning negatives into positives, if Bob Knight deserves a game ball for pep talking Indiana into an upset of Illinois then why not a game ball for the Kentucky fan foolhearty enough to telephone Hal Mumme's Big Blue Line last week and say the truth about UK's defense?

Critics are like sewage treatment plants. Don't like 'em, but gotta have them. Why not use them? In its manifest violence, college football has long fed on negatives. Testosterone-charged energy that takes sweeping forms:

"Nobody believed in us..." and "Nobody respected us..." and "Everybody gave up on us..." or "We had something to prove to everybody..."

Of course, we never know who nobody and everybody is. But Kentucky showed everybody last Saturday, and the coach ought to pay tribute to that element of UK fans who grumbled about the defense. After all, Wildcat faithful were told in preseason that defense would be better in 1999. Three games in, fan criticism was valid and, as it worked out last week, provided Mumme negative energy to go on a loyalty binge during his radio show.

Then, on a sunny first Saturday in October, UK's defense rallied to Mike Major, played blitzkrieg and stuff 'em, and overwhelmed the Hogs at the line and everywhere else. Posted a victory that might be described as a page-turner, even a benchmark, a bona fide step to another level.

Finally, UK's No. 17 became the muddled old Chicago Bear, No. 51. Like Dick Butkus, Jeff Snedegar was everywhere, dispensing violence with ears pinned back, then rubbed salt in the wound scoffing at the Arkansas sideline now-and-then as if he were saying, "... send us another running back."

No. 20 Eric Kelly was on Hogs' receiver Anthony Lucas like Goodwill clothes through the afternoon. Pinning and pushing the bigger man to the sidelines.

Marlon McCree and Willie Gary grabbed a fumble each and Anthony Wajda intercepted a pass. And Jamal White a blocked field goal.

Dusty Bonner and receivers, along with Anthony White and Derek Homer, were masterful in part because the offensive line play continues to come of age.

UK's kicking game was sterling too ... kickoffs, punts and coverage, extra points and a field goal.

UK's splendid show against Arkansas was wall-to-wall, 60 minutes. Nary a negative.

Now for a two-week dose of positive energy fueled perhaps by South Carolina, then LSU to set a stage for what could be for Kentucky fans a game of the year at Georgia Oct. 23.

THE BEST: WKU AT ECU

The stage is set magically once more for the oldest and most heart-thumping fun football rivalry in the Bluegrass — Western Kentucky at Eastern Kentucky for the 78th time. And once again for the top rung in the OVC.

The Hilltoppers (4-1) are 3-0 in league play, the Colonels (4-1) are 1-0. Western leads this rocking chair series which started in 1914, 42-32-3, but Eastern is 19-12-3 in Richmond where this one will be played.

With Kentucky at South Carolina Saturday afternoon and Louisville playing Army on Thursday, Western at Eastern at 7 p.m. EDT, in crisp mid-October is the hottest football ticket going.

LACEY PICKS UK OVER S. CAROLINA

Jim Lacey of Williamstown, who hasn't missed a pick on UK games since UofL, says, "Lou Holtz makes football fun in Columbia again, but it will take a little longer than one season to get the spurs back on the Gamecocks. UK 37 South Carolina 16. Write when you find work."

UK BASKETBALL NOTES

- When Tubby Smith's team suits up for the preseason NIT Nov. 17, the Wildcats will be within range of two more milestones. The Wildcats' second victory will push college basketball's winningest program to 1,750. What will be a more difficult achievement this season, an SEC championship, would be UK's 40th.

- Two of three newcomers to UK's roster will wear jersey numbers that hang in Rupp Arena's rafters. Keith Bogans, number 10 belonged to All-American Louie Dampier (67), and Marvin Stone's number 24 was worn by All-American Johnny Cox (59). JUCO Nate Knight will be No. 5.

BLUNDER DEPT.

While on a recruiting visit to a Mississippi high school star, UK's basketball coach Tubby Smith told Darius Rice he could expect early playing time if he signs with UK because sophomore-to-be Tayshaun Prince is going to have a big season then turn pro.

At best, Smith's remarks were indiscrete, presumptuous and puts pressure on Prince. Jeers to Rice too, for leaking Smith's statements to local media.

DIS 'N DATA

- Why have television directors made baseball telecasts into a 4-man show? On every pitch, it's the pitcher, catcher, hitter and umpire? Teevee people have lost touch with a large part of the beauty of the game, green expanses of a ball park. Whatever happened to live camera pitch delivery shots from behind and above home plate?

- The NCAA is presently negotiating a new television contract for its men's basketball tournament that could triple its billion dollar deal with CBS. Millions pouring into athletic department coffers. Anyone remember the last time a university announced student tuition reductions? Or, ticket prices to a football or basketball game were lowered?

Fire hazard outdoors

Frankfort — With the recent opening of squirrel and archery, deer and turkey seasons came an increase of activity in Kentucky's forests.

Officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Kentucky Division of Forestry caution all hunters and other outdoor enthusiasts to take special care while afield. Extremely dry conditions caused by the severe drought have made the grass and woodlands very dry and fire can be ignited easily.

"Extra precaution should be taken with any type of heat source," cautions Fire Management Chief Bernie Andersen with the Kentucky Division of Forestry. "The drought has produced extremely dry conditions, making the state's fields and woods very susceptible to fires."

Everyone involved in outdoors activities needs to be especially careful with potential fire ignition sources, including cigarettes, matches and vehicles in the field. A fire can be started by a vehicle's hot catalytic converter or tail pipe when the vehicle has been parked on dry grass.

Between July 1 and September 22, the Division of Forestry suppressed 450 fires that burned 11,155 acres. Outdoor burning bans have been issued for all Kentucky counties. The bans are issued by the county judges-executive and will remain in place at the discretion of each county.

According to Andersen, fires are still sprouting up despite the bans. The low moisture content of forest fuel, such as grass, leaves, etc., is causing the fires to burn hotter and move rapidly. KDFWR law enforcement officers are enforcing all bans on open burning and other emergency measures designed to minimize the threat of brush and forest fires.

Everyone is reminded to be very careful. Please do not throw cigarette butts, matches, charcoal or other flaming items on the ground. It only takes a spark to destroy acres of grass and woodlands.

EKU Alumni from Floyd County encouraged to homecoming '99

The estimated 350 Eastern Kentucky University graduates residing in Floyd County are urged to come to the Richmond campus, October 22-24, for Homecoming '99.

Thousands of alumni from across the Commonwealth and beyond are expected to come back to Eastern for a fall weekend full of floats, football, fun and fellowship.

The festivities get underway, Friday, October 22, with a Pi Kappa Alpha 30th anniversary dinner and the annual College of Law Enforcement Alumni Chapter Awards Banquet and Chapter Meeting, among other events.

Activities on Saturday, October 23, include an open house at the Mary Frances Richards Alumni House at 9 a.m., followed by the Homecoming Run and a parade at 10 a.m., down the traditional Lancaster Avenue-Main Street route. Advance entries for the race are $12 per entry; entries after October 15 are $14.

For more information about the run, call 606/622-1244 or visit EKU

Intramurals' web site, www.intramurals.eku.edu. To register a band for the parade, call Chris Hayes at 606/622-1429; for non-band entries, call Mary Doug Arthur at 606/622-1260.

Tailgate party
The largest tailgate party on campus, the Colonel Country Fair, follows from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., in the Alumni Coliseum parking lot. The fair will feature concessions, carnival booths and entertainment, including the EKU Dixieland Band, the EKU Latin America Dancers, EKU Dance Team, EKU marching Band and the Madison County Dance Inc. Team.

Every academic college will have its own tent, and several campus organizations also have scheduled reunions, including Chi Omega, which is celebrating its 30th anniversary. Receptions, brunches and other alumni events will be held throughout the weekend at various locations.

"Eastern is fortunate to have so many alumni and friends in Floyd County," said Larry Bailey, director of the Division of Alumni Relations, "and it always is exciting to see them back on campus.

"All the events are family-oriented," Bailey emphasized. "Homecoming at Eastern is a community celebration."

Screaming Eagles

At 1:45 p.m., 15 minutes prior to the Homecoming game against Ohio Valley Conference rival University of Tennessee at Martin, fans will be treated to an aerial demonstration by the U.S. Army 10th Airborne Division's Screaming Eagles Command Parachute Demonstration Team. The Team will deliver the game ball to mid-field.

The Screaming Eagles have performed more than 800 live aerial demonstrations nationwide.

The Homecoming game, at 2 p.m., will pit the Colonels against Ohio Valley Conference rival UT-Martin. The queen coronation will be held at halftime. Game tickets may be reserved by calling the EKU athletic ticket office at 606/622-2122 or, toll-free Kentucky, 1-800-262-7493, ext. 2122.

A complete listing of Homecoming events is available at www.alumni.eku.edu/activities.htm. For more information about Homecoming '99, call the alumni relations office, 606/622-1260, or toll-free in Kentucky, 1-800-262-7493, ext. 1260.

Reports Elk Sighting

Kentucky's elk reintroduction is proceeding better than expected. More than 300 animals are on the ground, and hundreds more are on the way this winter.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) and its partners are nearly three years into what may become the largest elk reintroduction program in history. And, for the first time in 150 years, wild elk are truly roaming the hills of East Kentucky.

With this extensive restoration effort and the natural dispersal patterns of these animals comes the increased chance of seeing elk in unexpected places.

This is where the KDFWR needs your help.

If you see an elk (especially one outside the 14-county elk zone), and can safely determine its collar number and color, ear tag number and color, sex and location, please report it immediately to: Jon Gassett, Deer and Elk program coordinator, #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort, KY 40601, 1-800-858-1549, jon.gassett@mail.state.ky.us

Remember that elk are wild animals and should not be approached too closely. Binoculars work fine for determining collar or ear tag numbers, although these identification devices are easily visible with the eye at closer distances.

All reports of elk are appreciated. However, the KDFWR is particularly interested in reports of animals that are outside the restoration zone. The 14 counties that make up the elk zone are Bell, Breathitt, Clay, Floyd, Harlan, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, Martin, Magoffin, Perry and Pike.

Elk restoration and research in Kentucky is a cooperative effort between the KDFWR and its partners, the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, The University of Kentucky and coal properties owned by Addington Brothers and Laird Orr, Inc.

Hearing Aids

Drs. Gregory Hazelett and Douglas Lamppin want to congratulate their Staff Audiologist, Amy Glessing. She has successfully completed her training in fitting and selling hearing aids, and is now a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist. Ms. Glessing has a B.S. Degree in Teacher of the Speech and Hearing Impaired, and an M.S. degree in Audiology from State University of New York College at Fredonia. Under the guidance of the two physicians, she is able to offer useful suggestions on how to handle difficult communication situations so that the effects of hearing impairment are reduced. She is highly trained to service or sell all types and sizes of hearing instruments, including digital and computer programmable aids.

So don't be embarrassed by missing out on conversations, or not being able to hear telephone conversations. Call our office today for an appointment for a hearing aid evaluation. Remember that hearing loss doesn't just happen to the elderly. Call today for an appointment at 432-4494 or 886-7224.

Free Hunter's education course

A free Kentucky Hunter Education course will be held on Saturday, October 9, at 9 a.m. at the Floyd County Fish and Game Club.

The 10-hour course, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Floyd County Fish and Game Club, will include classroom instruction in hunter ethics, wildlife identification, outdoor survival, first aid, firearms, bow hunting, and ammunition.

The last session will include actual range firing and an examination.

Upon successful completion of the course, a graduate card will be issued which is valid in any state where such certification is required. Attendance at all sessions is required for certification.

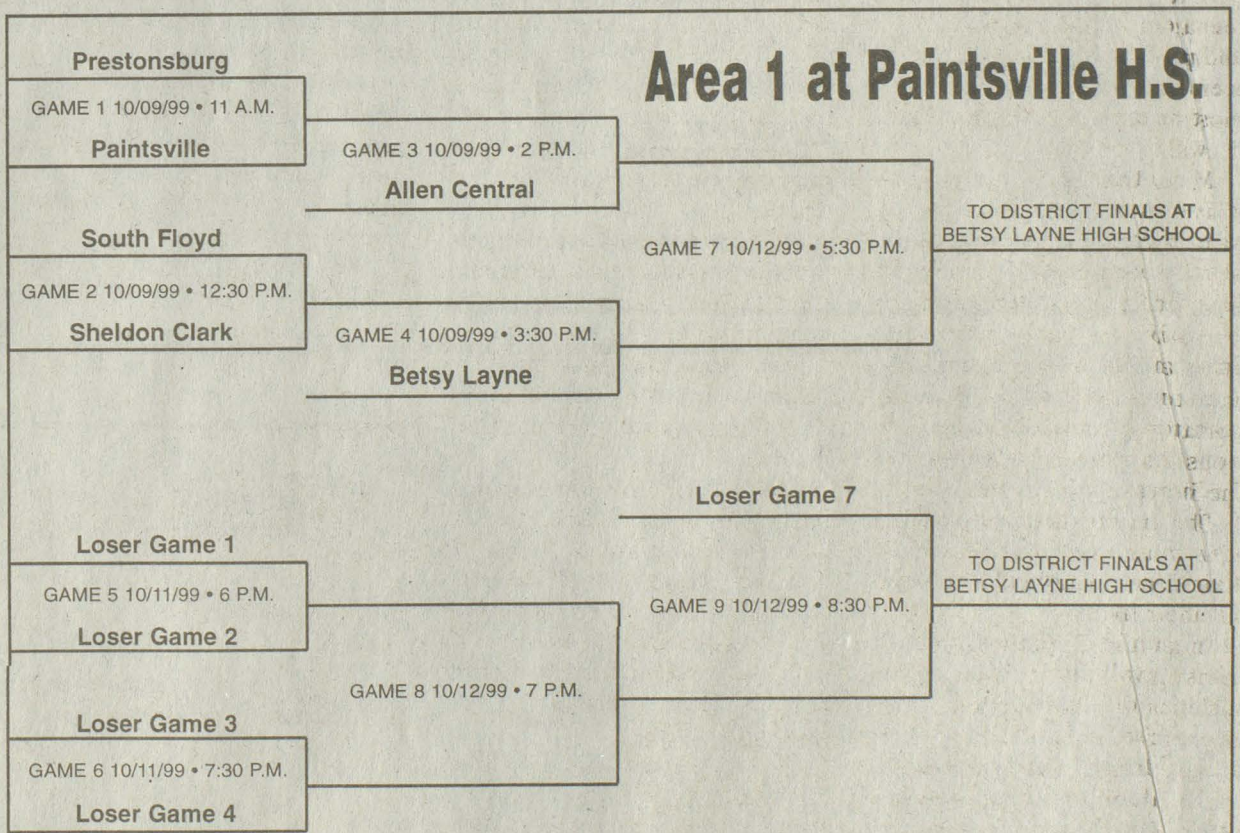

Effective March 1, 1991, all hunters born on or after January 1, 1975, shall, while hunting, carry a valid hunter education course graduate card in addition to the appropriate Kentucky hunting license requirements.

A bow hunter not in possession of a firearm may carry a "National Bowhunter Education Program" course completion card in lieu of the hunter education card. Children under age 10 and persons exempt from purchasing a hunting license are not required to possess the card while hunting.

Children under age 10 shall be accompanied by an adult of at least 18 years of age while hunting.

POISON OAK

To yesterday and beyond

Wouldn't it be great if every kid in America today could have the type of coal-camp/small-town upbringing we had 60 years ago?

I lump "coal camp"—which, of course, is the vantage point from which I first viewed life—and "small town" together, because I've become convinced that except for the obvious differences in having four rooms and a bath, and having four rooms and a path, things were pretty much the same.

Looking back—something I did a lot of last weekend when I got together with some old friends for a yearly visit to yesterday and beyond—I really don't think anybody could have had a better childhood than those of us who grew up in a world of home-made haircuts, the company store, and nine-cent Saturday matinees.

Certainly, we had little in the way of material things, but the older I get the more apparent it becomes that our adult lives were made better because we had the opportunity to experience want as kids. Of course, the "want" of which I speak had nothing to do with "need," because we coal-camp kids had more love than most of us probably deserved.

Speaking for myself, and most likely all those my age who enjoyed growing up in a time when a map of our entire world could have represented no more than an area five miles square, I never witnessed hunger. I knew no children who were not warmly clothed in winter. And, despite having a keen willow switch wrapped around my boney, bare legs whenever I needed it, I was never aware of any form of child abuse.

The values we were taught, and without even realizing it passed on to our children, have left coal-camp kids in good stead with the society that we've inherited.

Anyway, the afore-mentioned "looking back" involved close examination of many yellowed photos, some more than 60 years old. On one occasion, a bit of squinting brought back a couple of faces that had long been forgotten.

They were generally liked by the other kids and seldom fought, except with each other. As far as their character, they were typically ordinary miner's kids. So what made these two brothers so memorable after all three years? Two things, really, the first being their hair. Or, in this case, their lack of it. Their dad kept their heads nearly shaved during the summer time, and not much longer during the winter months. We used to see them coming across the school-house bridge and someone would remark, "Here come the door-knob twins."

But more memorable than their baldness, was the way they talked. Not like they had a speech impediment, or anything, (although we all could remember several kids who did) it's just that when they'd say something, it took us a second to quite get it. For example, if you asked one if he was going to the show, Saturday, he'd say something like, "Probably I will and probably I won't." And to the other, Manila was not a place, it was a flavor. "I don't like strawberry, but I sure do love manilla."

If one said, "I hain't got no marbles," the other would correct him, "Don't say hain't, say ain't."

So, with people like this still running around in our memories, it's little wonder that we feel that we just had to grow up in a place and time that compares to no other place at any other time.

Wish everybody could grow up like that.

The Thing About Goldfish

There are many good things about having a goldfish for a pet. It teaches even a small child a little responsibility. You don't have to walk it. It won't mess up the house. It doesn't shed. And one goldfish looks pretty much like another.

This last trait is very important, I found, in light of the one bad thing about goldfish - they have a relatively short life span.

There are 12 years and two sisters between my oldest daughter, Anna, and my youngest, Elliana. But the two of them have always been close. So I wasn't surprised when it was Anna who solved the problem created by Elli's fear of the dark.

We have four bedrooms in our house. When Elli graduated to a bed at age 2 1/2, we moved her in with her next oldest sister, Kayla. That left the two oldest girls with their own rooms, much to their delight. But Elli was afraid of the dark, and Kayla couldn't sleep with a light on. Anna knew she would have to come up with something if she wanted to keep her personal space.

The answer was a goldfish.

Anna bought Elli a bowl, a little plastic house for the fish to swim through, some colored gravel and a small light that kept the little aquarium illuminated. Elli kept the bowl on the nightstand next to her bed. That way, she had enough light to make her feel safe and a "friend" to murmur to quietly before she fell asleep. The light from the fish bowl was dim enough so that Kayla wasn't bothered. And both of them liked having a pet.

Elli fed that fish like clockwork and reminded us to clean the bowl more often than we would have liked. She was always careful about adding the anti-chlorine drops to the fresh water, lest her fish die a toxic death. And she named her fish creatively. Some days the fish would be "Jaws;" other days, it would be "Swimmy." A few times, Elli decided its name was "Patsy" or "Mabel," or some other name that struck her fancy at a particular moment. The fish's gender also varied according to my daughter's whim.

But goldfish don't live very long. As a result, all of us became co-conspirators in the game of making sure that Elli always had a live goldfish in that bowl. Every night when I kissed her goodnight, I would check the fish. If I covered up my sleeping children in the middle of the night, I would check the fish. I found that Anna checked the fish, too, many times before she went to bed herself. If any of us noticed the fish looking a bit peaked around the gills, a quiet trip to the pet store was quickly scheduled. For 50 cents, we kept a little girl very happy. It was a small price to pay, to be sure, and Elli certainly never questioned her fish's longevity.

Elli turned 6 years old two weeks before Anna left for college. I was having a separation problem of my own sending my oldest off. But I was more worried about how Elli would react.

In fact, Elliana became quiet and spent a lot of time in her room for the first days after Anna left. But assured that she could send her sister pictures and talk to her on the phone, Elli, like the rest of us, adjusted. Still, it did feel odd to have five of us around the dinner table where there had once been six. But Anna was happy at school, and her enjoyment of her new surroundings made the transition easier for all of us.

One evening as I was putting the two little ones to bed, Elli said to me, "Mommy, when this fish dies, will Anna come home and get me a new one?"

I don't know why I was surprised. Children don't really miss much, I guess. But I smiled at her and asked her how long she had known that her goldfish kept getting replaced every time one died.

Elli just shrugged. I asked her if it bothered her that the present goldfish wasn't the same one her sister had bought for her almost four years before.

No, it didn't bother her, Elli said. It never had. It had made Anna happy to play the game that way, so she just went along with it.

And so, I understood. The little love token from one sister to another and back again was swimming happily beside my daughter's bed. The fish may not have been the original, but the message had never changed.

As I turned out the overhead light and watched the little aquarium glow softly, I thought to myself, "Now I know one more good thing about goldfish!"

Drought and forests

by Jeffrey W. Stringer

This year's drought has stressed many forest trees in Kentucky and regardless of any rain we might get this fall the effects of the drought may be seen for several years to come. Each tree species has a different way of dealing with drought.

Understanding how each tree species responds to drought, and our observations from past droughts, allows us to predict how trees will respond to this year's situation. Some trees growing in extremely shallow soils, such as rock outcrops, have already died. When all of the leaves on a tree turn brown and stay on the tree during the middle of the growing season the buds and roots have also desiccated and the tree is dead.

This is different from a tree which sheds its leaves during a drought. Some species such as river birch, sycamore, and if it gets bad enough, yellow-poplar (or tulip poplar), lose their leaves. This is their way of avoiding the effects of the drought. By dropping leaves they reduce their demand for water. This helps keep their buds and small roots from desiccating. These species literally avoid the drought. Generally, drought avoiders will regain leaves after a rain or in most cases next year. Other species tough it out. Species of oak and hickory for example, do not lose their leaves. They tolerate moisture stress. These drought tolerators continue to compete with one another for the limited amount of moisture in the soil. While tree species have different ways of dealing with drought, they can not totally avoid the effects of extreme or severe drought.

We may well see these effects for the next several years, especially if trees are stressed next year. Generally, trees can deal with one stress episode. If we have several years of drought, or if other things such as a late spring frost or insect or disease-caused defoliation occurs in conjunction with this drought then the effects will become more pronounced. One of relatively mild effects of drought is reduced growth. The drought this year could very well effect the diameter growth of our trees next year.

However, the most important or dramatic effect will be the death of large forest trees over the next several years, especially if next year is bad. Research at the University of Kentucky Department of Forestry showed that droughts in the mid- and late eighties resulted in oak death for several years. While all species of oaks were affected, research showed that red and black oaks were more susceptible to the drought than white oaks.

If drought conditions continue into next year, this research indicates that it is very probable that some oak trees, particularly the red and black oaks growing along with white oaks will die. In older woods, red and black oaks are closer to the end of their natural lives than the longer-lived white oaks and are more susceptible to the effect of drought. However, it is important to note that no species is immune, and mortality can also come prematurely to white oaks if they are stressed enough.

Generally the drought does not directly kill these trees. Instead the weakened condition of the trees make them more susceptible to insect and disease attacks which ultimately kill them.

Unfortunately, there is little that can be done to help forest trees which have become weakened by drought. The best management option is to be ready to salvage these individual trees as they die. The hilly or mountainous nature of Kentucky's landscape and the wide variety of forest tree species present ensures that whole forests will not die. Instead individual scattered trees will become weakened and die. Small insects which attack and feed inside the bark of the upper branches and fungi which infest the roots are not easily seen, but are present throughout the state and are drawn to weakened trees. They can overwhelm the trees, sometimes during one growing season, but often over the course of several years. When large branches of oaks or whole trees turn brown in June, July or August, you know what they are stressed and are under attack.

Salvaging these trees quickly may be the forest owners only means of dealing with this situation. However, it is important to understand that dying oak trees can generally be left in the woods with little effect on surrounding trees. Dead trees or snags can have significant benefits for some species of wildlife, and if the trees around the infected ones have remained healthy, they should be able to withstand these drought related attacks.

Prestonsburg Woman's Club began its new club year

The GFWC/KFWC Prestonsburg Woman's Club began its new club year with two major events. The first monthly meeting was held on September 2, in the club house at Archer Park. Plans for the club year were discussed. It was announced that each meeting will have a monthly service focus. Decorations and desserts were provided by the arrangements committee. On September 18, the club held the annual new membership brunch and casseroles, breads and fruit were enjoyed by all. Fall flowers were provided by the decorating committee. Special recognition was given to those who served as hostess for both meetings: Teresa Apel, Judy Bowen, Mable Brown, Sandy Burchett, Melissa Forsyth, Dorothy Harris, Sabra Jacobs, Thelma Laferty, Kathy Lowe, Earlene Nelson, Beverly Oxford, and Shirley Thomas.

Electrical safety

Electricity has helped make our lives more comfortable. Used carelessly, however, it can cause fires, shocks and burns. It can even kill. Recognizing the danger signals and taking action to correct them can help prevent accidents and may even save a life.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that in 1993 the electrical system in homes was involved in 43,300 fires and 330 deaths and 1,720 injuries. In 1992, there were an estimated 530 electrocution deaths.

- Install ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI) outlets in areas at high risk for shock such as in bathrooms, kitchens, garages and outdoors. The GFCI detects current leaks and cuts off the power before you receive an electrical shock.

- Place lamp, extension, telephone and other cords out of the flow of traffic. Do not run extension cords under rugs and carpets, but place them against a wall. Use tape not nails or staples to attach to walls or baseboards.

- Make sure that all electric cords and plugs are in good condition.

- Never use light duty extension cords for heavy loads such as irons, heaters, or hair dryers. This can cause overheating of the cord.

- Use the appropriate size and type of light bulb recommended for the lamp or fixture. Place halogen lamps away from curtains.

These lamps become very hot and can cause a fire hazard.

- Locate space heaters away from passageways and flammable materials such as curtains, rugs, furniture or newspaper.

- Be certain that all fuses in your house are the right size and type for your circuits to protect from an overload and possible fire. Most general home lighting circuits should be protected with 15 amp fuses or circuit breakers.

- Unplug small electrical appliances when not in use. Unplug from the wall outlet first, then from the appliance. Always connect appliances first, then plug into the wall outlet. Unplug the toaster before removing any toast that is caught, or before cleaning the appliance.

- Wipe up all grease spills on ranges. Otherwise, this might cause a fire.

- Remove dust from space heaters and from clothes dryer vents. Dust could smolder and catch on fire.

- Immediately disconnect any appliances that cause a shock and have it repaired.

- Do not "tuck in" an electric blanket or place additional coverings on top. This can cause excessive heat buildup which can start a fire.

- Don't go to sleep with a heating pad that is turned on or serious burns can result.

Ask the CIS

Thalidomide

Q: Can thalidomide prevent colon cancer from returning?

A: The National Cancer Institute (NCI) is conducting a study of how well the drug thalidomide prevents the return of colorectal cancer (cancer of the colon or rectum) in patients who have had the disease.

The study involves patients with advanced colorectal cancer that has been successfully treated by surgery.

More than 80 percent of colorectal cancer patients are successfully treated by surgery. However, the disease returns in the colon or spreads to other organs in almost two-thirds of these patients.

Thalidomide has been shown to block the development of new blood vessels, a process known as angiogenesis. Tumors cannot grow larger than a pinhead if they cannot form new blood vessels to supply them with oxygen and nutrients. By blocking the development of new blood vessels, scientists are hoping to prevent the tumor from growing and spreading.

In past decades, thalidomide's ability to stop development of new blood vessels was the likely cause of limb malformations in babies of mothers who took the drug as a sedative during pregnancy. The drug was used for this purpose for a short time in Europe, but it was never approved for use in this country.

Men and women taking thalidomide in cancer treatment studies today are required to use two types of contraception to prevent pregnancy.

The current NCI study is open to men or women if their colon cancer has returned or spread to other organs and can be removed by surgery. After surgery, the patients receive either thalidomide or a placebo (an inactive pill that looks like thalidomide) for up to two years to see if the drug prevents the disease from returning.

Neither the patients nor the doctors will know which patients are receiving thalidomide. This will allow the researchers to see the benefits and side effects of the drug clearly.

All medical visits will take place at the Bethesda, Maryland, campus of the National Institutes of Health. Travel and medical costs are provided for patients who have been accepted into the study. For more information on this study, call NCI at 1-888-624-1937.

Ask the CIS is distributed by the Region 9 Cancer Information Service (CIS), which serves Kentucky, Arkansas, and Tennessee. The CIS is a program of the National Cancer Institute. Call the CIS toll-free at 1-800-4-CANCER between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. local time.

The Floyd County Times BUSINESS/REAL ESTATE

IBM class action lawsuit settled; former Lexington company agrees to pay retirees $15 million

About 300 IBM retirees will receive benefits totaling more than $15 million as the result of a settlement approved recently by the United States District Court in Lexington, based upon a decision rendered earlier this year by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in this case.

The plaintiffs are all retired employees of the IBM Lexington facility, which was sold to Lexmark in 1990. Middleton and Reutlinger, a Louisville-based law firm was lead counsel in the lawsuit.

The lawsuit centered on IBM's breach of fiduciary duties under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974.

Although the topic of "serious consideration" has been addressed before, this case is the first time a federal appellate court has so clearly defined the subject. "Serious consideration" was the central focus of the lawsuit because IBM encouraged a group of employees to take an early retirement package while it was seriously considering a major change in its retirement plans that would have benefited the retirees.

Prior to the sale to Lexmark, IBM had encouraged these employees to voluntarily take early retirement packages. The plans approved by IBM allowed an employee to take a five-year leave of absence to reach his/her full retirement date.

The dispute, and ensuing legal battle, focused on IBM's efforts to discourage its retirement eligible employees from exercising the LOA option.

The plaintiffs charged that IBM produced and distributed written statements to these employees saying they would suffer financially if they did not choose retirement dates prior to January 1, 1991. It was claimed that IBM made these statements at a time when it knew the statements would be false and when it already was seriously considering changes to its retirement plan that would greatly benefit employees retiring on or after January 31, 1991.

"This settlement is a victory for employees everywhere," said Ken Hale, the lead counsel for the plaintiffs and an attorney with Middleton and Reutlinger. "Through the tenacity of this group of retirees, we have forced a large corporation to correct this wrong. The case will also give guidance to both companies and employees on future occasions to help avoid this type of misrepresentation."

This suit also has significant legal repercussions. Under the ERISA law, once "serious consideration" of enhanced benefits under a plan has occurred, a company must correct written materials that are no longer accurate. The appellate court said that if information that has been disseminated to a group of employees changes, the company is required to correct those materials and disseminate them to the employees. The company becomes liable for making the change as soon as it begins to "seriously consider" the new alternative, even though the information may have been correct at the time it was originally written.

Middleton and Reutlinger, headquartered in Louisville since 1854, is a regional law firm that has played a leading role in many landmark decisions strengthening the rights of clients throughout Kentucky and the nation.

Is a 'boss-free' job right for you?

(NUE) - How happy are you with your job? A new study of 1,000 US workers suggests that you could be happier if you joined the ranks of America's more than 33 million "Independent Professionals" — freelancers, contractors, free agents, independent contractors or self-employed professionals.

The study, commissioned by Aquent, a global agency dedicated to helping Independent Professionals (IPs) succeed, reveals that America's happiest workers are those who work for themselves.

The nearly one in four Americans who are their own bosses report they love what they do, make better money and work less than their W-2 counterparts.

Is it time for you to take the plunge into a boss-free career? Read on to learn more about the IP lifestyle and if it's the right move for you.

- Are you truly self-reliant? One of the most prevalent myths about IPs is that they are only temporarily self-employed as a stopgap measure while looking for a "real" job. Conversely, according to The Aquent Index, four in five IPs actively choose to work independently. Most IPs are individualists at heart. They prefer to pave their own career path and enjoy the freedom and flexibility of calling their own shots.
- Do you want a better balance between your work and your personal life? Since IPs make their own schedules, it's easier to reserve time for family, hobbies, volunteer work and other personal interests.

The Aquent Index revealed that IPs are almost twice as likely than traditional W-2 workers to work under 40 hours a week.

- Do you want to make more money? Although they work fewer hours, many IPs make more money than their corporate counterparts in equivalent fields. The Aquent Index found that IPs are twice as likely to make annual salaries of more than $75,000. Corporations are increasingly turning to contractors as a staffing solution in today's tight labor market. For IPs skilled at negotiation, this translates into an opportunity for increased compensation — even if they work fewer hours.
- Are you tired of office politics? Many IPs cite freedom from office politics as a major benefit of independence. They can focus on their work without the complex maneuvering that preoccupies many full-time employees struggling to climb the corporate ladder. By working on a project or contract basis, IPs can focus on delivering good work while building careers on their own terms.

Although not everyone is suited to the IP lifestyle, The Aquent Index found that three-fourths of Independent Professionals feel "advantaged" over traditional W-2 workers because they enjoy what they do and achieve the right balance between work and personal life.

For more information on the IP lifestyle, including access to benefits, training and career advice, visit www.aquent.com.

Columbia Energy group Y2K contingency plan drills a success

Columbia Energy Group announced recently that its companies successfully completed Y2K contingency plan drills designed to test their readiness to maintain critical system operations when the date changes to the year 2000.

"We are pleased with the results of our Y2K contingency drills," said Richard Manson, vice president of information technology for Columbia Energy Group. "Our testing and contingency plan drills have demonstrated a high degree of readiness in ensuring the safe and reliable delivery of natural gas when the date changes to the year 2000."

During the weeks of September

6 and September 13, Columbia companies conducted Y2K contingency plan drills designed to test the preparedness of Columbia personnel and systems in reacting to simulated failures. They also monitored closely the date transition to September 9, 1999. Involving more than 763 employees at eight Columbia companies as well as gas suppliers and some customers, the drills focused on critical systems involving the secure and reliable delivery of natural gas. The successful results of the drills, coupled with the fact that no issues arose from the September 9, 1999 date change, reflect Columbia's commitment to ensuring a seamless transition when the date changes to the year 2000.

Since 1997, Columbia Energy Group companies have had project teams focused on Y2K assessment, remediation, testing and contingency plans for computer systems and embedded chips. The process has included initial assessment of approximately 61,000 gas transmission and distribution devices and systems. It also has involved extensive testing of systems and devices where potential exposure to Y2K issues was identified. In addition to evaluating its own systems, Columbia performed Y2K readiness reviews in connection with many third-party suppliers and vendors with which it conducts business.

For the remainder of 1999, Columbia companies will continue to monitor Y2K readiness issues as well as conduct change control—working to ensure that upgrades, replacements or routine modifications to systems are identified and tested for Y2K compliance. Columbia companies will also focus on their system of reporting to the oil and gas industry Mutual Aid Coordination Center at the U.S. Dept. of Energy, which will collect information and data from energy companies when the year 2000 date change occurs.

On December 31, 1999, Columbia companies will have teams in place to monitor the date transition to January 1, 2000. These teams will report to a central office on any Y2K-related issues that may arise. A number of back-up systems and processes have been developed to provide effective communications and to address any temporary loss of system functions.

Columbia Gas of Kentucky, a Columbia Energy Group Company, currently serves approximately 138,000 commercial, industrial and residential customers in 60 Kentucky communities. Headquartered in Lexington, Columbia Gas of Kentucky has area offices in Ashland, Maysville, Winchester, Frankfort, Lancer and Paris. Information about Columbia Gas of Kentucky is available on the Internet at www.columbiagasky.com.

Information about Columbia Energy Group (NYSE:CG) is available on the Internet at www.columbiaenergygroup.com.

Keep your business going with a succession plan

Nearly 70 percent of family businesses are either liquidated or sold after their founders retire. Even worse, only 10 percent of family businesses make it through the third generation. The primary culprit: failure on the part of the owner to plan adequately for succession. The worst thing you can do, says the Kentucky Society of CPAs, is to procrastinate in planning for the succession of your business. Whether you are planning to retire and pass on your business five or 10 years from now, you cannot afford to waste any more time. Here are some things to consider in order to ensure that you and your business continue to prosper.

Failure up to succession

There are several reasons why leaders of family businesses put off planning for succession. First, their identity may be so tied to the business that they either put retirement off indefinitely or go into semi-retirement, creating an uncertain, unhealthy environment within the business. Second, naming a successor from within the family can cause great conflict. As a parent, a founder wants to treat the children equally, which means dividing the wealth equally. But, the businessperson knows that the business should go to the most capable, qualified candidate. Often the easiest solution is to ignore the conflict, never planning for the future. Which can have disastrous consequences.

In general, family-run businesses need strategic and succession planning even more than public businesses do, for several reasons. First, CEOs of family businesses typically serve six times longer than their counterparts in public companies. The length of tenure makes the impact of change, when it comes, enormous. Second, family businesses have unique capital needs that require planning. For example, such businesses often must pay estate taxes when the founder dies. They must be prepared to buy out uninterested heirs. And the families can make unpredictable financial demands.

Therefore, planning for who will take over once the founder is gone is one of the most crucial decisions for the life of a business. Yet, according to surveys conducted among businesses, only 51 percent of the owners had a strategic business plan and, of that 51 percent, only 12 percent had written plans. In the absence of well-articulated plans, family-owned companies are especially vulnerable.

Selecting a successor

Selecting a successor is often a decision by default. Most family businesses will have one member of the next generation who is more active, qualified, and interested in the business than his or her siblings. Frequently, the founder has already spent a great deal of time grooming the successor-apparent or the successor has soaked up much of the necessary knowledge on his or her own over the years. The challenge, more typically, is in finding ways to assure equitable treatment for the non-participating family members, be they spouse or siblings.

If succession has not already been determined by interest, proximity, or birth order, a group effort in choosing and grooming an individual is one way to proceed. Key employees who are not family members can often be recruited for a transition team. If your valued, long-time key employee can participate in the selection and initiation of a successor, the entire team will benefit over the long run. Involving key employees is a good way to retain them, and retaining them is essential for continuity and credibility in dealing with outside sources such as banks and suppliers.

If there is competition between your children for the position, a decision to divide the power between them is not likely to be successful. Ownership may be divided, but management should be clearly delineated. Often ownership can be split into passive and active shares, giving the active successor the necessary control over the business but providing an equal economic benefit to the inactive shareholders. In some cases, the business can be divided along functional lines, so that different family members can assume control over well-defined functions or business units.

Putting the right spin on retirement

The more active your role in planning for the transfer of control to your successor, the more your business can benefit from your knowledge. Make an inventory of your job activities. This will serve as a guideline to your successor by highlighting the areas that are most important and by identifying tasks that might be eliminated. Conduct a future job analysis. Identify the challenges ahead and the requirements for meeting them. Create objectives to be accomplished before you retire.

Once you've decided to retire, there's some risk that you'll lose interest in the job. Setting goals can help you stay interested and focused. Create an inventory of content knowledge. Plan to transmit knowledge about your position that will be crucial to your successor, such as industry knowledge or historical knowledge about the company. It's also important to create an inventory of process knowledge. You do many things instinctively. Now is the time to become more conscious of the processes you use, so you can pass them on to your successor.

Finally, make it official

Too many family businesses pass the torch in private. It's beneficial to have a formal celebration or ceremony so employees and bankers are not confused about who's in charge.

Ownership of OLBH to change

Our Lady of Bellefonte Hospital in Ashland and the majority of its counterparts in the Franciscan Health Partnership Inc. soon will join the Bon Secours Health System Inc. (BSHSI), as part of a definitive acquisition agreement signed September 21.

Few local changes are anticipated as OLBH joins BSHSI which is headquartered in Marriottsville, Maryland.

As part of the agreement, Bon Secours will become sponsor for all Franciscan entities in Kentucky, South Carolina, New York and New Jersey and co-sponsors with the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth, Convent Station, for Tri State of New York entities.

Neither system plans to release specific details until the transaction closes sometime in the next few months.

A Catholic health care facility, OLBH has been sponsored by the Franciscan Sisters of the Poor congregation since its opening in 1954. Several Franciscan sisters work at the hospital and are expected to continue.

"The partnership presents endless opportunities for growth and allows us to continue our mission of helping those in need," said Robert J. Maher, OLBH president. "It presents great potential for improved buying power as well as access to a wealth of 'intellectual capital.'"

The two systems and their respective religious sponsors share a common vision and philosophy to preserve the Church's healing ministry, improve the health status of the communities they serve, increase the health and social well-being of the poor and marginalized, enhance operations excellence and seek opportunities for collaboration.

"Bon Secours also will be enriched by the talent and resources that Franciscan brings to our system," said Christopher M. Carney, CEO. "We look forward to the 'new BSHSI' and expanding our presence into these communities."

The expanded Bon Secours

Health System Inc. will include 24 owned or joint-ventured acute care hospitals, 10 long-term care facilities, seven assisted and independent living facilities, 11 home care and hospice services, along with numerous primary care and outpatient facilities located in nine states. The system will employ more than 30,000 people.

Presently, OLBH and its subsidiaries including ABLS Home Medical Supplies, the Bellefonte Home Health Care Agency and five hospital outreach centers will be the only Bon Secours entities located in Kentucky. OLBH employ about 1200 people with a medical staff of about 150 physicians.

Columbia Natural Resources expands New York holdings

Columbia Natural Resources Inc. (CNR) has announced it has expanded its holdings in New York by acquiring assets from Meridian Exploration Corporation. The property and wells are located in Seneca and Cayuga counties in New York.

The transaction involves 319 producing wells, an 88-mile gathering system, and two natural gas fields composed of 51,000 acres of minerals and 17 bcf of proven reserves. The company plans an active drilling and production program in this area, which will complement CNR's ongoing exploration and drilling program along the southern region of the Finger Lakes.

"These assets are strategically located and an attractive expansion of Columbia Natural Resources' holdings in New York State," said

W. Henry Harmon, president and CEO of CNR. "Over the past few years, CNR has aggressively expanded operations in New York, and today our company is ranked as the leading natural gas producer in the Empire State."

This deal comes on the heels of CNR's recent announcement of an exploration and production joint venture arrangement in the Canadian Maritimes. CNR's Canadian affiliate, Columbia Natural Resources Canada Limited, has partnered with Corridor Resources and with MariCo Oil & Gas to develop provincial licenses in New Brunswick.

CNR's 1999 acquisition strategy has included the purchase of the Appalachian Basin assets of The Wiser Oil Company. This transaction, completed in May, added more than 480 production wells, 350 miles of gathering lines and 43 bcf of natural gas reserves. CNR also is in the midst of a 230-well drilling program, the largest in the company's history.

Hackworth honored

Cindy L. Hackworth, green coordinator for the Prestonsburg Wal-Mart, recently traveled to Dallas, Texas, where she was honored with the Sam Walton's Award of Excellence Community Involvement.

Hackworth was given this award for the work that she has coordinated between her store and the community. She was chosen from 500 stores in her division. She has been with Wal-Mart since 1986.

Hackworth has served as chairperson of the annual Floyd County Environmental Day, which is attended by fourth through sixth graders from the seven-county area schools. She is a member of the CYFAR and Floyd County 4-H Program.

She is coordinator of Children's Miracle Network and United Way drives at her store and has organized a team of walkers for the Relay for Life Cancer Walk.

Hackworth's main goal is to keep a very strong working relationship between her store and the community in which she lives. She said she hopes to continue to establish programs and activities "to promote environmental awareness that will benefit the children of eastern Kentucky, which is the future of the community."

What do you know about customer service?

Remember when you could pull into a "service" station and some nice fellow would bound out to your car, window cleaner in hand and clean your windshield, fill your tank, and talk to you about how the Reds were doing?

That's customer service.

And isn't it nice to have your coffee cup refilled by a pleasant, smiling waitress? A warm welcome by a friendly front desk clerk makes a weary traveler feel pretty good, too.

All this hospitality speaks well of the community and reflects in the best way on your business. Sometimes, busy employers forget how important customer service is. If this is the case at your business, now is the time to do something about it.

The Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the Small Business Development Center, Morehead State University, and Community Trust Bank, will present a seminar on customer service on October 19 at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg.

Training will be led by Dennis Hillen of Community Trust. He will address issues such as telephone courtesy, how to handle complaints, listening skills, and other topics dealing with customer service.

Chamber Notes:

Plan to send several of your employees to this top-quality training.

Sessions will start at 9 a.m. and end at 2 p.m. Lunch is provided.

Cost for chamber members is $50 for the first attendee from your company and $40 for each additional attendee.

For non-members, the registration fee is $70 for the first attendee and $60 for additional attendees.

Call the Chamber office at 606/886-0364 or SBDC at 606/432-5848 to register. Registration is limited.

See you, same place, same time, next week. Stay in touch.

SMALL WORLD

Shopping around

by Aileen Hall

My husband and I started on a trip once when he was in need of a haircut, so we stopped off at the shop Astor Hicks operates at Lancer. Rather than wait in the car, I went inside and looked through some magazines while Astor worked his magic, and while the few men in the shop bantered about many things.

No doubt they were aware of my presence and some of the things they talked about were as much for my benefit as theirs. Anyway, one man started telling about his wife going to the beauty shop and how long she stayed in getting a haircut and a perm. Then he said when she came home she proceeded to work the rest of the day rearranging the hairdo she had just paid for. His conclusion was, "I think some women just go to the beauty shop for an outing."

My visits to Thelma's shop are not just for an outing, and I try to not even turn my head for a while after I've been there lest I undo the look she has given to help me face the world. But I will admit that I sometimes go shopping around as much to see people as to find things I'm supposed to be looking for.

I went out a few days ago and made my first stop at Peeble's to find Walter a new sweatshirt. It was a pleasant task and I had no trouble in looking and finding what I would like for him. I figured it might not suit him, but that will give me reason to go back next week to make a return. I like getting that kind of mileage as some of us welcome any excuse to go to a store.

While in the store, I saw Ruth Thomas, a clerk who lives at Mossy Bottom and is one of the nicest and most pleasant ladies I know. She told me Jewel had just come in to work and she figured I'd want to see her. My sister Jewel works there part time, but I never know when she is scheduled and I sure did want to see her. I soon located her and we bantered a bit about how we both were doing, and while she sold me a pair of shoes, I hadn't realized I needed.

As we talked and completed our transaction with the shoes, Peggy Lovern came by and it was a bonus to have a brief visit with her. Peggy's husband, Loyal, was my customer at the post office and, since I seldom see him now, I enjoy asking Peggy about him.

From there I went to Wal-Mart to return some item I'd purchased the day I ran into Dixie Hyden. I kind of hoped she might be there again, but instead I ran into Anna Rae Hall from McDowell who was waiting for Jim to emerge from one of those aisles anyone can get lost in. We talked about what we'd both been doing and how we couldn't seem to lose weight and such things as friends like to talk about.

I hadn't seen much of Anna Rae and Jim since their postmaster days at McDowell, but we used to get together at meetings and kept track of each other. She said she reads the column, but when I asked for some story from her, she thought she didn't have one. Then I asked about their son, Jimmy, and she said he lives in Holland. He is a pilot now and travels to many places all over the world. That in itself is an interesting story, and I wished I could have talked to Anna Rae all day, but we needed to move from the entrance where so many people were coming and going. Maybe next time she'll tell me more about the whole family.

On my way home I realized I hadn't been by the post office to pick up my mail so that was a necessary stop. Ned Bush of Harold had also stopped in and, since we hadn't seen each other much since retirement, he reminded me I was on the wrong side of the counter. I said, "Yes, and then when I saw you last you were working with the Board of Education."

Times do change and Ned told me he had taken what was to be a part time job with R & S Truck Body Company in Allen. But part time became more like overtime and he has traveled more than 50,000 miles in six months. We bantered a while about what we both were doing and about our families and mutual friends. Then I had to let him go for he was on his way to Orlando that day.

I decided it was time to come home and show Walter the sweatshirt I bought him. He said, "You know I don't like a shirt like that. The neck fits too close." That was good news to me, and now I'll look forward to seeing other friends when I go next week to return it.

1999 WATER QUALITY REPORT

INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER

The Beaver Elkhorn Water District consistently strives to produce water of high quality. We are pleased to report that we did not have any contaminant violations last year. This brochure is a summary of the quality of water provided to our customers last year (1998). It is a record reflecting the hard work by our employees to bring you water that is absolutely safe. Included in this report are details of where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to standards set by regulatory agencies.

The Beaver Elkhorn Water District is committed to providing you with information about your water, because customers who are well informed are our best allies in supporting improvements necessary to maintain the highest drinking water standards.

Plans for 1999

- Working to maintain compliance with new EPA regulations.
- Working to ensure Y2K compliance.

Where Your Water Comes From

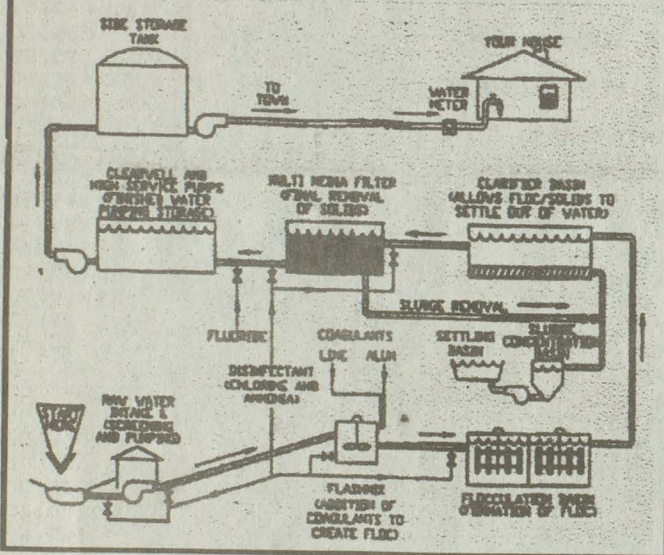

Source of Beaver Elkhorn's Drinking Water

Our source water is the Big Sandy River. It is considered a surface water source. The raw water intake is located at Allen, KY. As water travels over the land's surface or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and radioactive material, and can be polluted by animals or human activity. Contaminants that might be expected in untreated water include: biological contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria; inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals; pesticides and herbicides; organic chemicals from industrial or petroleum use; and radioactive materials.

"Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk." Normally, your tap water has been more thoroughly analyzed than bottled water and is always fresher in taste.

More information about contaminants and potential health risks can be obtained by calling the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 800-426-4791.

Representation of The Treatment Process

For questions about quality of our drinking water, or regarding this report, contact Bob Hackworth at the Beaver Elkhorn Water District at 285-9048.

Board meetings are scheduled at 4:15 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month. Customer views are welcome.

Chloroform	16 ppb avg. (5 - 24)	Not Regulated	Not Regulated

LISTED ABOVE are 13 contaminants detected in Beaver Elkhorn's drinking water during 1998. All were below allowed limits. Samples for total coliform are monitored on a monthly basis. There were no total coliform positive samples in 1998. NOT LISTED are the non-detected values of other contaminants monitored for in 1998. The results of all monitoring performed are available at the water office.

*DEFINITIONS:

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL)

"The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCL's are set as close to the MCLG's as feasible using the best available treatment technology."

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG)

"The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected health risk. MCLG's allow for a margin of safety."

Treatment Technique—A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

<0.5 96.2% indicates that 96.2% of the time, the turbidity at the finished plant tap was less than 0.5 NTU.

Action Level—The concentration of contaminant that triggers treatment or other requirement that a water system must follow.

EPA—Environmental Protection Agency

NTU—Standard turbidity unit

ppm—One part per million

ppb—One part per billion

Turbidity—How clear the water is. Turbidity is measured to monitor the effectiveness of the treatment process.

ND—not detected

NA—Only 1 test was performed in 1998 so a range does not apply.

A Special Note: The Beaver Elkhorn Water District was not notified until November 1998 that some of the organic parameters monitored in 1994 and 1995 had been rejected by the Federal EPA. This resulted in a monitoring violation. Once the water district received this notification, we contacted our laboratory to arrange for increased sampling and monitoring. Currently, all regulated results have indicated non-detected values. Monitoring for the full list of contaminants will continue through the end of 1999.

Special Info Available: "Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons—such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune systems disorders, some elderly persons and infants—can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their healthcare providers. Environmental Protection Agency and Centers for Disease Control guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791)." Drinking water is not the only source of these contaminants. They occur naturally in the environment.

Please call our office if you have questions. We at the Beaver Elkhorn Water District work around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap. We ask all our customers help protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, and our children's future.
