Where there's smoke, there's bingo

Court Street Bingo moving out of town

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — The four bingo games currently held at Court Street Bingo will be moving to another location, one organizer said this week.

Mary Stephens, who helps run two of the games, said Tuesday the smoking ban has resulted in a drop in attendance.

"I'm telling you that attendance has fallen, it's just gone down," Stephens said. "We've gained no new players, so we have a new building and will be moving after the first of the year."

Stephens said the two games she helps with, one for the Jenny Wiley Theatre and another for the Floyd County Animal Shelter, along with the other two games, one for the Prestonsburg Blackcats Touchdown Club and the Prestonsburg VFW, will be relocating to a new building constructed along Cliff Road.

The bingo hall has made adjustments since the smoke ban went into effect on Nov. 1, setting up an area behind the building for smokers to use and taping a line 10 feet from the front

Orange tape lines the parking lot ten feet from the door of Court Street Bingo in Prestonsburg. The marker was put in place following adoption of a smoke ban, but organizers of the four games housed at the location now say they are moving elsewhere.

A strong gust of wind blew the roof off East Kentucky Physical Therapy in Prestonsburg on Wednesday. The high winds also downed trees and power lines in some parts of the county.

Strong winds cause damage

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Strong winds picked up within an hour Wednesday, destroying property and knocking out power in Prestonsburg.

At about midday, winds exceeding 60 miles per hour blew through town and knocked out gutters, tossed garbage cans and wiped out porch furniture before finally blowing the roof off a downtown business.

The roof of East Kentucky Physical Therapy blew into the Taco Bell Parking Lot in downtown before the winds died down as evening approached. No one was injured, but following the windstorm, several residents were without power in Prestonsburg, throughout the rest of the county and the state.

According to a press release issued by Kentucky Power yesterday, some 12,000 of their customers were without power following the high winds, which caused damage to power lines, utility poles and other electrical equipment.

Also, downed trees played a key role in both power outages and some minor reports of damage to homes, according to emergency crews in Floyd County.

At this time, power company officials have said it could be Saturday before power is fully restored to all customers.

Power company crews continue to work on the downed lines and are advising residents to steer clear of downed lines no matter how harmless they may appear.

Kentucky Power customers are encouraged to report all downed power lines to the company at (800) 572-1113 or to notify local emergency or law enforcement.

Sweet and loving. Tender to the touch. An angel for us to share our love. Caring and understanding.

In a place where only angels can go, Always in our hearts, always in our soul.

Precious to us all After all these years, it seems like yesterday, If only we could have known that she could not stay. God took her to a place where the sun will forever shine. Even though she would have to leave her broken-hearted family behind...

Close to our hearts, no matter where we'll be

Our angel on loan,

Living now in the army of our Lord.

Leaving her family with a tear-filled home.

If only we could turn back time,

Never did we get to say our goodbyes,

Somewhere in time, we'll meet in Heaven where the sun will always shine...

We love you, Paige Pooh! Happy 10th Birthday!

Court holds special meeting

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG

County leaders met in special session Wednesday to decide on matters concerning the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center (MCCC), the Floyd County Rescue Squad and contract points with Waste Connections.

A resolution was passed during that meeting to see improvements made to MCCC's Martin Community Support Program building through a grant.

The fiscal court recognized the application for the grant on behalf of MCCC representatives. The grant is an Energy and Efficiency Block Grant.

The improvements will cost $112,145, according to estimates presented by Julie Paxton to the court, breaking down into $63,895 for materials and $48,250 for labor.

The improvements themselves will consist of work to windows, doors, lights and electrical systems, roof work and plumbing, as well as painting and trimming.

"This building needs major renovations," Paxton said, "and we will do all the work."

The resolution was passed unanimously, which Paxton said was good as the grant was only available until Dec. 18.

In other business, the fiscal court:

■ Approved an affiliation agreement with the Floyd County Rescue Squad and also acknowledged documentation from the rescue squad showing what funding would be used for. Squad Captain Tim Cooley outlined to the court that some $16,000 had been used to purchase boats, trailers and motors in recent months, further seeking a check be made out to Stokley's Marine in Lexington for these items.

■ Tabled a resolution to sign a contract with Waste Connections after Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens asked that some work sessions be conducted between now and the next regular meeting. Owens and others on the court said some of the language in the contract needed examination for an agreement to be reached between the two parties.

Bingo

door for visitors to use as a guide for the regulation.

But that has not been enough, said Stephens.

"It's dropped considerably, but we had anticipated this would happen," she said. "After the ordinance was passed, we were approached about constructing a new building and moving the games."

Stephens said James Pennington approached her and the other organizers immediately after the law was passed and pitched the idea of moving to a building of his on Cliff Road.

Also, whether food sales have increased or not, as many smoke ban supporters had suggested while the ordinance was being debated, is of little consolation to the charities, because those proceeds go to the food vendor.

"The charities get nothing from food sales," Stephens said, "so it doesn't matter either way if food sales increased or not in that respect."

In the series of discussions that took place before the ordinance was passed, Stephens and others, such as Court Street Bingo manager Audie Cooley, spoke out about the possible fallout from such a city law.

"I know smoking is bad, but with bingo players it kind of goes hand-in-hand," Cooley told city leaders just before the ordinance was passed into law. "If you take the smoking away, we'll lose revenue."

The bulk of the discussion at that time focused on efforts to see an exemption included for bingo halls in the city.

Grant

I applaud ARC for providing grant dollars to outfit a hybrid school, right here in Eastern Kentucky, that is specifically designed to assist children and families struggling to understand and respond to autism. This center is a forward-leaning, one-stop operation for parents searching for answers by offering medical information, counseling support, educational materials, and the latest in instructional resources to children who need our special attention."

The grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission is $360,000 that will be combined with $90,000 from local sources.

The Highlands Center for Autism will operate as a year-round private day school and accept students from earliest diagnosis through school age.

According to a statement released by Rogers, the center will use the grant funds for outreach services, the purchase of a new playground system, a small passenger van, information technology equipment, a security system and relevant classroom supplies.

said Missy Allen, administrator of Riverview Health Care. "He is missed and we want to thank his family for sharing him with us."

Also honored at the event were resident William Gibson, a well-known businessman, resident Delphia Morrison, an educator, and Prestonsburg native and Speaker of the House Greg Stumbo. Stumbo was unable to attend the event, and Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin accepted the induction plaque on his behalf.

Entertainment for the Hall

Guest View Private sector needs more understanding

In 1974, when inflation was just starting to get out of control but before it became the dread combination most establishment economists thought was impossible — inflation combined with economic stagnation, or “stagflation” — President Gerald Ford convened a Whip Inflation Now summit meeting. Stern speeches were given, and Whip Inflation Now (WIN) buttons were handed out. People were exhorted to save more and spend less and be good citizens:

If brave words and good intentions could have done the job, inflation might just have been whipped then. Unfortunately, the administration had little or no clue that inflation is a monetary phenomenon — too many dollars chasing too few goods and services — so they didn’t know how to fix it. The WIN campaign became a national punch line. Inflation was finally brought under control (for a while) under Ronald Reagan’s inherited Federal Reserve chairman, Paul Volcker, but not without paying the price of a recession.

President Barack Obama’s jobs summit Thursday couldn’t help but bring to mind that sorry WIN episode. Nobody likes it when unemployment is at 10.2 percent — or more like 17 percent, when you count in the underemployed holding part-time jobs who would prefer full-time and those who have given up looking for work. Public officials facing reelection next year get particularly nervous. Since they seem to have no inclination to review public policies that might actually be contributing to holding back employer hiring, they indulge in symbolic gestures to try to send the message that they really, really care.

It was a little curious that neither the Chamber of Commerce nor the National Association of Manufacturers nor the National Federation of Independent Businesses, whose members actually create jobs, were invited.

President Obama himself demonstrated that he knows some of the words but he seems to have no idea about the music. “While I believe that government has a critical role in creating the conditions for economic growth,” he told the audience, “ultimately, true economic recovery is only going to come from the private sector.”

The trouble is, this president and his advisers don’t seem to have a clue how the private sector works. They seem to think that it springs into action only when the government prods, pokes, manages, mandates or “stimulates” it. He doesn’t seem to know that the private sector responds to consumer demand and works best and creates the largest number of decent jobs when the government gets out of the way.

A sustainable job is one in which a person produces (or participates in a process that produces) something of greater value than what he or she is paid, measured by other people being willing to pay for that product or service. Reduce taxes, reduce onerous regulations, sign trade agreements that will facilitate exports, and put ambitious new government programs on hold, and we’ll see such jobs created.

Otherwise, it’s all hot air.

Tiger Woods discovers his true friends

by DONALD KAUL
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

If your luck is on empty, one day you might find yourself dazed and bleeding, lying on the grass next to your ruined vehicle, while your wife stands over you with a golf club. Then the police pull up. This is when you will find out who your true friends are.

They are the ones who accept without comment whatever cockamamie story you dream up to explain the circumstances. They might offer an understanding nod, nothing more.

Those who blurt out “Why, that’s the most preposterous thing I’ve ever heard. What really happened?” are not your friends. And those who say “It will be better for you if you tell the truth” are really not your friends. They are journalists.

Tiger Woods — the world’s greatest golfer, millionaire a hundred times over, good-looking devil with matching Swedish wife, all-purpose role model for America’s youth — contrived to put himself in the predicament described above over the Thanksgiving holiday. At first, he wouldn’t explain what happened. It’s a private matter, he said.

Personally, I tend to agree with him but I’m in the minority. When the public embraces a figure, be it an athlete, an actor or a politician, it figures it pretty much owns him or her and that there are no private matters.

Thus, on the eve of the President’s decision to send 30,000 more troops to Afghanistan, we had the streets around Woods’ home lined with TV trucks waiting to send the latest word on TigerGate to an anxious world.

If I were Woods, with millions in endorsements to protect, I would have done what he did: kept my mouth shut. The best story he could have come up with would be something like this:

“I had spent the evening reading The Wit and Witticisms of Ben Hogan and was about to get ready for bed when my lovely wife Elin said: ‘We’re out of mouthwash, dear. Would you mind running out to the all-night drugstore and getting some?’

“Of course not, my little nightingale,” I told her. ‘I’ll do it right now.’

“Unfortunately, I backed out of the driveway too quickly and ran into a fire hydrant at the curb. When I tried to pull forward I hit the gas pedal too hard and rammed a tree on my neighbor’s property.

“Curiously enough, the airbags failed to inflate and I smashed my face on the steering wheel, knocking myself out and cutting my mouth.

“Elin came rushing out of the house to help me, but the doors on my SUV were locked. As luck would have it, she was carrying one of my favorite golf clubs and broke out the rear window with it. She then reached in, grabbed me under the arms and dragged me into the back seat and out the broken window. She was about to give me mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when the police showed up.”

Not even Walt Disney could sell that. The truth was more like this:

“Elin had been on me all evening about those stories of me fooling around with a cocktail hostess during my recent trip to Australia.

“Finally I’d had enough and said: ‘I don’t have to take this; I am Tiger Woods, the world’s greatest golfer. I’m going.’”

“If you go, don’t bother coming back,” she said.

“I’m gone,” I said.

“As I’m backing my Cadillac Escalante out of the driveway, she comes out of the house yelling Swedish things like ‘Vasselglusen’ and ‘Nincompupin’ while waving one of my favorite clubs.

“This causes me to lose my focus and I drive into the rough, hitting a fire hydrant, at which point she starts beating on the car with the club, causing me to accidentally hit the gas pedal, and I run into my neighbor’s tree.

“So I get out of the car and say: ‘Give me the club, Elin.’

“That’s the last thing I remember until the police arrived.”

I don’t see where either story helps him much.

Oh well, few things are more boring than perfection. Woods just got more interesting.

by STEVE LeMASTER

JACKSON – After splitting a pair of home games, South Floyd hit the road Tuesday evening, traveling to Jackson City. The Raiders faced Jackson City following a lopsided 66-102 loss to Johnson Central Friday night. South Floyd was unable to work its way back into the win column against the host Tigers. Jackson City built an early lead and held off the Raiders in the second half, winning 84-76. “We got in early foul trouble and that hurt us,” South Floyd Coach Barry Hall confided. South Floyd’s early foul trouble allowed Jackson City to lead the Raiders at the conclusion of each quarter. Jackson City outscored the Raiders 23-11 in the opening quarter and carried a 40-31 lead into halftime. The Tigers extended their lead to double digits in the third quarter, outscoring South Floyd 17-15.

South Floyd was forced to play from behind throughout most of the game.

Jackson City featured three players with 20 or more points. Senior forward Zach Gayheart was the offensive leader for Jackson City as he scored a team-high 26 points. Senior guard Pedro Sierra netted 25 points and sophomore center Joshua Hollan added 20 for the Tigers.

Jackson City won its second straight game, improving to 2-1 following the victory.

Junior forward Shannon Turner turned in a pair of game-high performances for the Raiders. Turner led South Floyd with 36 points and 14 rebounds, both game-highs. Junior guard Dakota Hall followed with 17 points for the Raiders.

Sophomore guard/forward Brandon Marson scored nine points, junior guard Dakota Newsome netted seven, senior center Corey Paige pushed in five and senior forward Tommy Joe Hall had two for South Floyd in the setback.

South Floyd (1-2) will host 58th District/Floyd County Conference frontrunner Betsy Layne (3-1) tonight.

Lady Cats open season 2-0: The Betsy Layne Ladycats are 2-0 following wins over 58th District/Floyd County Conference counterpart Allen Central and longtime 15th Region rival Magoffin County. Betsy Layne defeated Allen Central 63-38 Friday (Dec. 4) at the Dome. The Lady Cats leveled Magoffin County 65-41 Monday in a road game.

Rock on, Dr. Don

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Like most people my age, I grew up listening to Dr. Don.

I idolized him, as so many did. WECL provided the soundtrack of my youth, and from six until midnight – or when Don was through rockin’ at 1:30 or 2 in the morning – the radio was on and so was Dr. Don.

There are so many bands and artists from that era that we heard about because of Don. Many of that era’s bands had nicknames we heard to the point that there was no need to say the actual name – there was “The Thunder from Down Under,” and, of course, “The World’s Greatest Rock ‘n Roll Band” – and we heard them all because of Dr. Don.

Fortunately for me, as the years rolled on I developed a relationship with Don, so when I heard he’d died on Sunday at 61 I lost not only an iconic cultural figure, but also a friend.

Don got me involved with WPRG after I left my fulltime position at the paper, and for two autumns before we began football at Pikeville College, I did play by play with Don on camera for the station’s broadcasts. I traveled with Don, and while

Alice Lloyd pulls away from KCU

TIMES STAFF REPORT

GRAYSON – The Alice Lloyd Eagles broke open a close game by outscoring the host Kentucky Christian University Knights 52-32 in the second half Tuesday, and won going away, 92-64.

The Knights have a well earned reputation as being a challenging team to play on their home court, but after falling at the Grady Nutt Athletic Center to KCU by three points last month, ALC was determined not to have a repeat performance. Both clubs played hard in the first 20 minutes. The Eagles, however, were able to perform well enough to grind out a 40-32 lead by the intermission.

The second half belonged to Alice Lloyd. After shooting 46 percent in the opening stanza, Alice Lloyd connected on 56 percent from the field in the final 20 minutes while holding the Knights to only 39 percent. With its solid play, ALC was able to turn what was once a close game into an insurmountable lead as it earned the decisive victory.

Junior guard Daniel Combs led Alice Lloyd (3-5) with 20 points. For good measure, Combs also added a game-high 11 rebounds. Big sophomore forward Nick Brumback pushed in 14 points while 6-10 freshman center Devon Adams came in off the bench and contributed 12.

The Illic brothers’ led KCU (6-4) in scoring. Svetomir Illic led all scorers with 24 points. Cedimir Illic added 12 points for the Knights.

Alice Lloyd is slated to host Spalding, an NCAA Division III foe, Saturday (Dec. 12). Tip-off for the Alice Lloyd-Spalding game is set for 2 p.m. at the Grady Nutt Athletic Center.

Junior guard/forward Nathan Martin (1) lofted a shot for Betsy Layne on the road at Knott County Central Tuesday.

Highly-touted Knott County Central, under the direction of veteran head coach Pete Fraley, packed a 2-0 record into the early-season game and wouldn’t be denied its third win. Knott County Central dominated the second and third quarters, outscoring Betsy Layne 52-21 en route to a convincing 85-67 win.

Betsy Layne was the better team in the opening quarter. The Bobcats eased out of the first quarter ahead 22-21. Betsy Layne, however, faltered in the two middle quarters. Knott County heated up in the second quarter, outscoring the Bobcats 21-11 en route to a 42-33 lead at the intermission. The Patriots extended their lead to a comfortable double-digit advantage in the third quarter, outscoring host Betsy Layne 31-10.

Ten different players provided scoring for Knott County Central. Braxton Ratliff scored seven points and Zack Davis chipped in five for the Patriots.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Strong named 21st head coach at Louisville

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE — Charlie Strong, former defensive coordinator at the University of Florida, has been named the 21st head football coach at the University of Louisville, Vice-President/Director of Athletics Tom Jurich announced on Wednesday.

“I’ve done a lot of homework with this hire, and I was amazed how well-respected and revered Charlie Strong is throughout the country,” said Jurich. “He commands a lot of respect from people within the game, including ex-players and coaches around college football.”

Jurich added, “However, after meeting him in person, I was even more impressed. Tony Dungy had a huge impact on me with this hire. He was passionate about Charlie as a coach and as person. I respect the opinions of Urban Meyer, who was part of our staff at Colorado State, and Jeremy Foley, who is one of the most respected athletic directors in the country. They both raved about Charlie as a football coach and his great character.”

Strong becomes the third African-American coach at a BCS school (Randy Shannon at Miami and Mike London at Virginia) and just the second ever in the BIG EAST Conference.

Arguably one of the most revered defensive coaches in the country, Strong brings 27 years of collegiate coaching experience, two National Championships and 20 different appearances in bowl games to the sidelines at U of L. He has also worked for three different head coaches who have won national championships in Florida’s Urban Meyer, South Carolina’s Steve Spurrier and former Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz.

During his tenure at Florida, he has coached 13 All-Americans, a National Defensive Player of the Year, a Jack Tatum Award winner, two SEC Defensive Freshmen of the Year, two Thorpe Award finalists, two Nagurski Trophy finalists and the 2008 Chevrolet Defensive Player of the Year. He has developed six first-round NFL Draft picks and 15 players that were selected in the third round or higher.

Strong comes to Louisville after spending seven seasons as the defensive coordinator at the University of Florida, including the last two as the Associate Head Coach. It was his fourth different stint at UF, having coached at Florida from 1991-94; 1988-89 and 1983-84. He served as Florida’s interim head coach in 2004, falling to Miami 27-10 in the Peach Bowl.

In 2009, Strong guided one of the nation’s top defensive units, finishing in the top five in four different statistical categories. UF was third in the nation in scoring defense (11.54 ppg), third in pass defense (151.46), fourth in total defense (253.08) and fifth in pass efficiency defense (93.91) in leading the Gators to a 12-1 record and a trip to the SEC Championship game for the third time in Strong’s tenure as the defensive coordinator.

Four Wildcats on Coaches’ All-SEC Team

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — Four University of Kentucky football players were named to the All-Southeastern Conference team selected by members of the league coaches.

Defensive tackle Corey Peters was picked to the first team. UK’s second-team honorees are linebacker Micah Johnson, cornerback Trevard Lindley and offensive tackle Zipp Duncan. Johnson and Lindley are repeat selections from the 2008 Coaches’ All-SEC squad.

Peters, a senior from Louisville, notched 52 tackles, 11 tackles for loss, four quarterback sacks and five pass breakups. He was chosen SEC Defensive Lineman of the Week twice this season.

Johnson, a senior from Ft. Campbell, hit the century mark with 100 tackles, with six games in double figures, despite playing with a sprained knee for much of the season. He also had 6.5 tackles for loss. He was the SEC Defensive Player of the Week in the Wildcat win at Auburn.

Lindley, a senior from Hiram, Ga., recorded one interception and led the team with nine pass breakups, even though he missed four games because of injury. He would have ranked third in the league in total passes defended per game if he had played enough games to qualify. He ranks fourth in SEC history in pass breakups.

Duncan, a senior from Magnolia, excelled at left tackle as the blindside protector for the UK quarterbacks. UK is averaging 193.2 yards per game, the team’s best mark since 1995. UK ranks in the top 25 nationally in both rushing yardage and fewest quarterback sacks allowed.

many would dread rides to the furthestmost parts of the station's coverage area, I looked forward to them because of the conversation we'd share during those rides.

Everyone who knew even a little about Don understood his passion for rock music, but it was during our car rides that I saw the depth of his passions for music of all parts. At that point in my life I had no interest in Bluegrass music, and that bothered him. "You don't have to like Bluegrass music," he once told me, "but you need to develop an appreciation for it. It's the music of your heritage."

Later, when I attended Bluegrass shows with my parents, it was not uncommon to see Don stroll in as well.

Don was also passionate about politics. He'd often talk about a desire to run for state representative. It was during these talks that I developed a respect for Don's intellect. He was a very smart person. Where most saw him and thought "rock 'n roll," I was fortunate to learn how intelligent he was across the board.

Don could talk to you intelligently about rock music, and about the relationships he had with the folks you and I listen to, but he could also talk to you about things like the importance of a clean water supply, about roads and about mining, both deep and mountain-top.

I often surprised people when I told them I thought Don would make an excellent representative for us here in Eastern Kentucky.

And the reason for that is simple: The thing Don loved most — more than rock music, more than radio, more than "have camera, will travel" — was his beloved Eastern Kentucky.

Don loved the mountains, and he loved the people of Eastern Kentucky. In the excellent story Russ Cassidy wrote about Don this week, Adam Gearhart talked about how Don would listen to anyone tell their story. He had a true passion for people, especially those with whom he shared a mountain heritage.

In my estimation, that was the best thing about Don's career change from disc jockey to videographer: He was able to document so much of our Eastern Kentucky hills and people, to tell their story, and to record things like that so people of future generations can be educated about it by someone who took pride in their craft and in his region.

In many ways, Don "was" Eastern Kentucky. He loved it, had a passion for the mountain ways and beliefs, and wouldn't stand by idly and listen to someone run it down.

I read with interest the online obit about my friend, and thought it was phrased exceptionally when it said Don "was a believer in the Old Regular Baptist faith." Here was another thing Don could discuss intelligently. He may have never joined the church, but he loved it and took a great interest in it.

A friend of ours tells the story about a car ride where someone said something Don took as derogatory about the Regular Baptists. Don told them in no uncertain terms they were welcome to walk the rest of the way, but if they were going to ride with him he wouldn't allow talk like that.

I had a lot of laughs with Don, listening to Don and watching Don. I'm not ashamed to tell you I was sad on Sunday when I learned of his passing. He was more than someone I respected, which I did and continue to now. Don was my friend.

I last saw him a couple of weeks ago. I was leaving the library near my office and met Don and his wife in the doorway. As usual, we spent about 10 minutes talking. We'd both just seen the REO Speedwagon show, and he told me how much he enjoyed it.

"Now if we could only get Bob Seger to come to Pikeville, Kentucky," he said in that booming baritone. "Wouldn't that be something?"

Don was proud of the Expo Center and the artists it brought to town. I will continue to go to concerts here and away, I'm sure. And I'll enjoy them.

But no matter where I've attended shows, no matter the genre of music, I always looked for Don. Most of the time, no matter where we were or if we were seeing the Stones or Ralph Stanley, I'd see him there.

And friends, at every show I attend for the rest of my life, part of me will be on the lookout for the taller gentlemen in the rock T-shirt with the full head of black hair.

I'll miss Don. I'll miss his smile, his handshake, the hug we shared when we met, be it at a show or in the grocery store where he'd take his beloved mother to shop. I'll miss my friend.

I lost a friend on Sunday. So did the Eastern Kentucky mountains he loved so dearly. And so did its people.

Goodbye, Don. Rock on, my friend.

Blair enlists in Marines

Travis C. Blair, son of Marie and Mark Blair of David, recently enlisted in the United States Marine Corps Delayed Entry Program.

This program allows prospective recruits the opportunity to get personal affairs in order and become better physically and mentally prepared before departing for Recruit Training.

During recruit training, Blair will learn military customs and courtesies, first aid and a variety of military related subjects. Marine Corps "boot camp" is a rigorous training period, both physically and mentally, designed to enhance raw talent and create the moral discipline required of all Marines.

After graduation, new Marines learn their occupation specialties at formal schools and gain further knowledge from on-the-job training.

Blair was enlisted by Gunnery Sergeant James H. Kirk from Recruiting Sub Station Paintsville located at 435 N. Mayo Trail, in Paintsville. For more information, on becoming a Marine contact Gunnery Sergeant Kirk at (606) 788-9361.

Your Heart is Talking Are you Listening?

We all know heart attack is the No. 1 killer of men in the United States yet every man experiences heart attack in a different way. You don't have to have all of the symptoms—or even the most common ones—to be having a heart attack.

When it comes to your heart, you can be your own best friend ... but you have to listen.

• Chest Pain

This is the major sign of a heart attack for men. The pain is often described as crushing, burning, tightness or pressure. It often starts in the center of the chest and radiates outward. Seek care immediately.

• Shortness of Breath

An inability to breathe, or the feeling that you're just not getting enough air, is another important sign. Seek immediate medical attention.

• Upper Body Discomfort

Men who've had heart attacks also report feeling pain or discomfort in the arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach. You may have one or more of these symptoms. Or none.

• Other signs

A feeling of anxiousness, unexplained dizziness, persistent nausea and cold sweats are all signs that can occur before or during a heart attack.

Whether you're a man or a woman, if you have one or more symptoms of a heart attack, call 9-1-1 right away. When it comes to your heart, time is muscle. The quicker you act, the better your chances of a complete recovery.

The heart experts at King's Daughters stand ready 24/7. Our accredited Chest Pain Center averages a door-to-balloon time of just 52 minutes. That's significantly better than the national standard of 90 minutes. And we do every major heart procedure – and more of them than anyone in the region.

Your heart deserves expert care.

'Patrick'

by TOM DOTY

A creepy dude wreaks all manner of havoc from his hospital bed in this horror effort from the Land Down Under.

by turning out all manner of product. Their specialty turned out to be action pictures, first evidenced with "Mad Max," but this thriller bears mention.

The story starts out with a twisted sequence that finds the titular character starting off into space as his mother cavorts with a bar pick-up on the other side of his wall. The pair are briefly glimpsed in a hot tub before Patrick bursts in and turns up the heat by chucking an appliance into the suds.

Cut to three years later, and Patrick is now ensconced in a private hospital after retreating into a coma.

The film follows the hospital's latest hire, Kathy, who is back in the nursing game after leaving her husband. The interview, conducted by the prudish Matron Cassidy, Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request.

Every way I turn, it's something about the energy crisis. And I haven't enough energy to bother with it.

CALAMITY DAZE

Now, speaking of crises, who can find such situations more trying than a boy. Who hasn't had them? I've had my own.

For instance:

The time when I paid a whole quarter for an "aggle" and learned, when I arrived home, that I had been had...the occasion when I tried—I say, tried—to smoke my first cigar...the time when departure from a certain swimming-hole was very important, and I could not get one of these shirts you peel off, back on, so that the buttons came out front...the time the pup died.

Then there are those latter-day crises, a dozen or more of them, which were so deep and personal that I shall not discuss them.

THERE IT GOES!

I am reminded, but do not vouch for the accuracy of it, that when the new traffic signals at Allen are placed in operation, this week, Prestonsburg will lose the distinction of having the only traffic lights in Floyd County.

Professor's Appalachia book a Southern Politics winner

LEXINGTON — Ronald D Eller, a professor of history at the University of Kentucky and award-winning author, recently received the Southern Political Science Association V.O. Key Award for his book "Uneven Ground: Appalachia Since 1945."

The Southern Political Science Association (SPSA) presents the V.O. Key Award annually to an outstanding book on southern politics. In "Uneven Ground," Eller takes an analytical look at the recent transformation of Appalachian life as the region has struggled to meet the nation's expectations of progress and to maintain a suitable standard of living for its residents. Eller also points out the real political and economic issues that the region faced during this time period and examines the impact of the War on Poverty and other Great Society initiatives.

Eller, a former director of UK's Appalachian Center, has also won the prestigious Weatherford Award as well as the East Kentucky Leadership Foundation's annual "private individual" award for his work on "Uneven Ground," which was published by University Press of Kentucky.

Eller will be presented the V.O. Key Award at the 2010 SPSA conference to be held Jan. 8, at the Crowne Plaza Hotel-Ravinia in Atlanta.

HOLIDAY TRADITION

12th annual Christmas through the Eyes of a Child held

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

The Floyd County Board of Education held its 12th annual Christmas Through the Eyes of a Child celebration at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center on Dec. 6.

Students from all schools in the county submitted written projects that would fit in 30-second radio spots, and winners were selected by the schools before being sent to a group of community judges. The students utilized various writing prompts related to Christmas and the holiday season to craft their pieces.

The winners of the contest each received a copy of "A Charlie Brown Christmas" written by Charles M. Schulz, along with t-shirts and certificates for a meal at McDonald's.

The event began with a welcome by Supt. Henry Webb and continued with introductions by Dr. Patricia Watson, a recognition of partners by Jeff Stumbo, board member, recognition of school coordinators and community judges, and a recognition of the students by school representatives, Rick Caudill, WMDJ Radio, and Cindy Wiley and Donna Kesner from McDonalds.

Also at the event, Sarah Joseph, a teacher at South Floyd High School, presented musical selections and a slide-show featuring the students.

Christmas Through the Eyes of a Child is a partnership program between the Floyd County Board of Education, WMDJ Radio and McDonalds.

The winners were Adams Middle School: Dakota Collins, Cody Craft, Savannah McIntyre, Makayla Minix, Jacob Calhoun, Autumn Hall, Mahla Little, Lance Phillips, Terry Adams, Blake Baldrige, Kristen Hall and Zach Slone. DINNER DIVA

Christmas morning

The countdown has started and now is the time to get the food ready for the Christmas holiday. I know not everyone celebrates Christmas (and we're in the midst of Hanukkah right now), but everyone enjoys the festivities of a celebration and when we can break bread together and feast together, it makes life rich and full. That is why I am so passionate about keeping the family dinner table a well-loved and well-used place to bring the family together.

Although we are still a few weeks away from Christmas morning, it's nice to get things done well in advance and have your menu pre-set, and the shopping done. You can buy everything here now (just freeze the French bread for the Strata and thaw before using). To keep it simple, I have an easy and doable menu that you make the night before Christmas morning.

Christmas Eve Shortcut Cinnamon Buns

Christmas Morning Strata
Chilled Tangerines (no recipe - just chill 'em in the fridge for a sweet treat that morning)

Sounds like this guy didn't quite know what he was doing

by TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:

We had a dead battery and called for a jump-start. The service agent could not jump-start the battery with his cables. He then proceeded to turn another battery over and lay it on top of my battery. Is this a common practice, and is this a safe practice? Could this have caused any damage to the electrical system? He left all the accessories on, and my headlights blew out and the alternator had to be replaced. — Susan

TOM: Can it cause damage? Apparently, yes!

RAY: It shouldn't, if it's done correctly (leaving out, for a moment, the issue of spilled battery acid). When you jump-start a car, essentially you're touching the terminals of two batteries together. You're just doing it via cables. So if you remove the cables, it should work exactly the same way, electrically speaking.

TOM: Unless you touch the wrong terminals together.

RAY: Bingo.

TOM: And that's what this guy did. He hooked up the batteries backward. They were in series — like when you line up several batteries inside the tube of a flashlight. So instead of 12 volts, he sent 24 volts through your electrical system.

RAY: Some accessories can handle that. For instance, if your windshield wipers had been on, the motor would just have pushed them to wipe so fast that the raindrops wouldn't have known what hit them.

TOM: Any accessories that were turned off would be protected, as would any components that are protected by fuses or fusible links.

RAY: But some things just can't handle 24 volts. Your headlights, for example, probably blew immediately. And if you'd had other lights on, like the taillights, they probably would've blown, too. Or at least suffered some damage that would've shortened their lives.

TOM: And the alternator can't take 24 volts because the diode bridge gets burned out.

RAY: But there won't be any hidden damage. Anything that was harmed will be apparent to you because it doesn't work now, or is on fire.

TOM: But you might notice that everyone on your car radio is now talking twice as fast.

What caused engine explosion?

Dear Tom and Ray:

My daughter was going to soccer practice in our 2001 Mercury Sable

Wagon. When she turned the key, there was an explosion that apparently blew the intake manifold off the engine. Needless to say, it drove a bit rough after that. The mechanic could not offer any speculation as to why this happened. But I really need to be able to discuss this semi-intelligently with my father-in-law, who is a car expert. Otherwise, he'll think I'm not manly. Please help. — Brian TOM: Well, you might want to stop wearing those flowered sundresses on New Year's Eve, Brian. That'll go a long way toward winning him over.

RAY: I'm wondering if it could be the manifold gasket that blew, rather than the manifold itself? I've never seen a manifold actually blow off an engine (although I'd like to!), but I can give you a semi-intelligent explanation for a blown manifold gasket — which is a rubberized "seal" that goes between the manifold and the engine.

TOM: If the manifold gasket was already cracked or breached somehow, that would have allowed extra air to be sucked into one or more of the cylinders, creating what we call a "lean condition" — that is, too much air, not enough gas.

RAY: My brother usually has too much gas, but that's a discussion for another day.

TOM: A lean condition also can be caused by a faulty fuel injector or a misfiring coil. But whatever the cause, a lean condition can lead to a backfire, which is an explosion in a cylinder that happens when it's not supposed to — when the valves are open instead of closed.

RAY: And a backfire can go in one of two directions: It can either go through an open exhaust valve and come out the tailpipe, or it can go through an open intake valve and come out the air intake — which is what happened on your car, Brian.

TOM: The backfire is most often recognized by the loud "ka-boom" it makes, and, occasionally, by the pieces of your former manifold or exhaust system clanging down the road behind you.

RAY: My guess is that a backfire blew out what was left of your already-compromised manifold gasket. That's what made the car run rough.

TOM: If it really was the manifold itself that blew off, it would have to have been a heck of a backfire — like the ones they use in the "William Tell Overture." Or the manifold would have to have been cracked or loose before the backfire occurred.

RAY: In either case, now that you've replaced the gasket and resecured the manifold, you've probably also solved the backfire problem. So my guess is that you're good to go, Brian.

TOM: But if the car backfires again, you can impress your father-in-law by asking him what else — other than a crack in the intake manifold or manifold gasket — can cause a lean condition in an '01 Sable Wagon. Then just nod your head as he goes through the list and say, "Yeah, that's what I was thinking, too."

A quartet of new releases saw Hollywood improving its batting average by going 3-for-4. Surprisingly the only botched effort also managed to misuse an entertainer with enormous energy and talent.

■ "World's Greatest Dad" — Best to get this one out of the way first. Here you get Robin Williams as a middle-aged man who isn't happy with his station. His son doesn't respect him and his art teacher girlfriend doesn't want anyone knowing about their romance. He faces a dilemma when a fatal accident offers him a chance to start his life over, if his conscience will let him. Unfortunately, this film can't answer the big questions it asks and would have worked better as a Lifetime Network flick.

■ "Public Enemies" — Michael Mann ("Heat") delivers a juggernaut of an action movie that manages to tell the story of John Dillinger's Depression-era reign of terror. What works here are Mann's trademark action sequences, though he also gets a boost from a talented cast. The thespians include Johnny Depp in the lead and Christian Bale as the wily G-man Melvin Purvis. Fun if not always historically accurate.

■ "Julie and Julia" — An unhappy cubicle worker decides to make every dish from Julia Child's first cookbook and write about the results on her blog in this humorous mix of fact and fiction. The film also traces Child's early days in France and manages to be funny and poignant. All thanks to Meryl Streep, as Child, and Amy Adams, as the blogging "Dilbert"-like woman.

■ "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince" — Things get much darker in the latest Potter adventure. Harry must team up with Professor Dumbledore (played by Michael "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and her Lover" Gambon) to stop the titular fiend who means to make a dent at Hogwarts through some bad magic. I don't understand the previous sentence but fans of the series should enjoy the returning cast (aging nicely) as well as the tense, and suitably grim story line.

Next week look for Quentin Tarantino's latest and some vulgar yuks in "The Hangover."

Strange ... but true

by SAMANTHA WEAVER

■ It was French author, philosopher and journalist Albert Camus who made the following sage observation: "Nobody realizes that some people expend tremendous energy merely to be normal."

■ According to records kept by the Social Security Administration, the name "Barack" was ranked 2,409th in 2008, up more than 10,000 spots from 12,535th in 2007.

■ Large cities often use high-occupancy vehicle (HOV) lanes in order to encourage carpooling and help reduce traffic congestion. As soon as the lanes appear, however, people start getting creative about ways to get around the restriction. Pregnant women have claimed to be carrying an extra passenger even when all the other seats are empty, and more than one person has placed a mannequin or inflatable doll in the front seat in an effort to fool authorities. Recently, an undertaker in Los Angeles went to court to appeal a judgment against him, claiming that the body in a coffin in the back should count as a passenger.

■ Are you a hypergelast? If you are, it's nothing to be ashamed of; in fact, it might mean you're the life of the party. A hypergelast is someone who laughs a lot.

■ Moore's Law is not good news to those of us who might be a bit technologically challenged; it states that computer technology doubles in complexity every 18 to 24 months.

■ Those who study such things claim that, when it comes to accidents involving household appliances, you're more likely to be injured by a washing machine, but if you are injured by a clothes dryer, it's more likely to be fatal.

Pikeville Medical to hold live nativity from Dec. 14-18

PIKEVILLE — Pikeville Medical Center's parking lot will come to life this month with the spirit of the holidays.

PMC's Live Nativity, an annual event depicting the birth of Jesus Christ, will be held on December 14-18. Free refreshments will be served during five evening and three daytime performances, which will be provided by PMC employees.

The opening ceremony will be Dec. 14 at 5 p.m. with a special performance by the Mountain Mission School Choir. In remembrance of the real reason for the season, the Christmas story will be read from Luke 2. Daytime matinees will be offered on Dec. 15-17 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and evening viewings will be from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Dec. 18.

"I think what makes this so unique is our employees volunteer their time to participate and play the roles of characters as they tell the story of the birth of Christ," said Melissa Coleman, director of human resources at Pikeville Medical Center.

Jesus Christ was born in a stable outside of crowded inns in the city of Bethlehem. This year, more than 60 PMC employees will volunteer to portray Mary, Joseph, the shepherds, wise men and an angel—the people who witnessed the miraculous birth for the Nativity. Camels, donkeys and sheep will flank the scene and attendees will be served hot chocolate, apple cider, milk and cookies.

"I personally think it's a way of giving back to the community a small portion of all they give to us all year," said Jane Robinson, the hospital's director of spiritual activities. "It's just to let them know that we think about them this season and I think it gives them an understanding of the true meaning of Christmas."

PMC's tradition of bringing the story of the birth of Jesus to life started 16 years ago.

"Our Christian mission is the foundation of everything we do at Pikeville Medical Center," said Walter E. May, president and chief executive officer. "This is another great way our hospital and our employees give back to our community."

Lagoon

is a horror film all its own, as Kathy must put up with intrusive questions about her background. Turns out the Matron thinks very little of women's lib and even less about divorcees.

She gives Kathy the job but warns that she could be fired at any moment, and that might be a good thing, considering her duties. Said chores include doing a bit of typing while sitting with the titular patient. Kathy is up for the job and immediately begins to relate to Patrick. Big mistake.

Pretty soon she's coming home to a wrecked apartment while the people around her begin having accidents. Is it just bad luck, or is her mysterious patient a psychotic psychotic, capable of inflicting harm on others via telekinesis? This is a horror movie so there's only one answer here, and it makes for an enjoyable time killer.

This works due to the talents of director Richard Franklin. The film definitely benefits from Franklin's obsession with the king of suspense films, Alfred Hitchcock. He realizes that Patrick must remain stationary but that doesn't mean his camera has to be static. You gets tons of great shots to compensate for the bedridden villain. They even frame one image in a door-knob, which makes for an interesting perspective.

The drama dulls a bit in the third act but they make up for that with a double shock ending that owes a bit to the finale of "Carrie."

This is one of the better Aussie exploitation flicks. Interested viewers should check out a documentary called "Not Quite Hollywood." It offers an up-close tour of shockers from Down Under and will have you scribbling down a Christmas list of new horrors to haunt your DVD player this Yuletide season.

Best line: "Even if he were to regain consciousness, he would have the intelligence of a penicillin culture."

Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine

Each year around the holidays, I publish a special recipe column. The recipes do not have medicinal value —nor typically, are they very healthy. But it's the holiday season, and physician or not, I know that we all indulge a bit this time of year. So here it is: my annual indulgence-in-moderation plug.

This fall, I had the good fortune to visit Sicily. While there, I ate the best cannoli I have ever had. Of course, this dish originated in Sicily, so I should not have been surprised that they were so tasty. Cannoli means "little tubes" in Italian, and they are just that: crispy pastry tubes that contain a sweetened ricotta cheese filling.

Since my return home, I have tried several recipes in an effort to replicate these fantastic-tasting cannoli.

I decided to start with the filling and buy the pastry tubes, although neither is too hard to make. These treats are not particularly good for the waistline, but they are wonderful for the taste buds.

The shells are made from pastry dough that is rolled very thin, wrapped around a metal tube and deep-fried briefly until brown. Again, several recipes can be found online and in cookbooks, but pre-made cannoli shells can also be purchased at many supermarkets.

As for the filling, many recipes are available, but I think I have found the perfect combination of ingredients. This recipe is very simple.

Cannoli Filling

1 pound of ricotta—whole milk
1/2 to 3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat all three ingredients until smooth. The sweetness of this recipe is up to you. In Europe, desserts and pastries are often not as sweet as ours in the U.S., so you may want a little more sugar to suit your taste and that of your family and friends.

After the filling is made, I put it in a plastic bag, cut one corner off and squeeze this into the premade cannoli tubes, filling from each end.

Some recipe variations use powdered sugar instead of granulated sugar, but I think the filling is lighter with the granulated sugar. Also, some people mix chocolate mini chips, chocolate shavings or candied lemon into the filling.

Top the cannoli with red and green sprinkles to turn them into a creative holiday dessert. I like to sprinkle powdered sugar on top, but I am told that classic cannoli have chopped pistachios on the creamy ends.

Have fun trying out this Italian treat. (Now I just may have to go back to Sicily to be sure I have the recipe correct!)

Salome's Stars

Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your love of the holidays creates a special bond between you and the people in your life. Use this as a way of building stronger relationships that will carry over well beyond this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new approach could go a long way toward resolving a painful estrangement, especially at this holiday time. And since your aspects favor friendship this week, why not go ahead and try it?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your positives continue to dominate, and any negative factors that squeeze in can be dealt with easily. The secret is to tackle them at once and not allow them to benefit by your neglect.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Good news: A colleague's remarks could help you move toward ultimately resolving that persistent workplace situation. Meanwhile, enjoy the holidays with loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) No one reflects the bright holiday more than all you Leos and Leonas who love the shimmer and glimmer of the season. P.S.: There just might be a very special something from Santa.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Celebrate the holidays by being more receptive to new experiences. Overriding the Virgo reluctance to try new things could be the best gift you've given yourself in a long while.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good news about a loved one makes the holidays even more festive. Expect some unexpected gifts, so be prepared with a few nicely wrapped packages of goodies to offer in return.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The holiday season provides an opportunity to meet new people, some of whom you might even consider "worthy" enough to join the Scorpio's select group of friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You always bring your own wonderful sparkle and light to the holidays, and don't be surprised if this year someone special reaches out to respond to your warmth in kind.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Togetherness is the dominant theme for the Goat's holiday celebrations this year. That means reaching out to bring everyone you care for into your very own special circle of light.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A reminder of a very special moment from the past makes the holidays more memorable for the romantic Aquarian. New friendships hold the promise of a romantic future as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting into the swim of things for all you party-loving Pisceans is easy enough this holiday season. And, of course, you can expect to impress people wherever you go.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your dedication brings you the success you strive for, and your generosity impels you to reach out and help others on their way up.

GOOD HEALTH

Fibroids can cause anemia in women

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 42 and have an anemia. My doctor thinks it results from my menstrual bleeding, which is quite heavy. I have been taking iron pills, but I am still anemic. The doctor says I should have my fibroids removed, and that will stop the excessive bleeding. I have no other symptoms -- no pain. Will you explain what fibroids are? They aren't cancer, are they? -- E.B.

ANSWER: Fibroids are not cancer. They're growths of the uterine muscle. The uterus is mostly muscle, with an inner lining designed to nourish a fertilized egg. Quite often, fibroids don't cause any problems. Large ones can lead to heavy menstrual bleeding, which, in turn, gives rise to an anemia. They also can put pressure on the adjacent urinary bladder and bring on the need to urinate frequently. Sometimes they produce pelvic discomfort, and they might be involved with infertility.

About two-thirds of women in their 40s have one or more fibroids. What causes them is still a matter of speculation. Female hormones make them grow. That's why menopause, with its drop in hormone production, usually shrinks fibroids. They also run in families, so there is a gene influence.

The best treatment for fibroids depends on their location in the uterus and their size. Sometimes removal is achieved with instruments introduced into the uterus through the vagina -- no skin incision. Recovery from this procedure is fast. Laparoscopic surgery -- surgery done with a scope and instruments inserted through small incisions -- is another technique that permits quick recuperation. At times, the entire uterus has to be removed.

A newer and popular treatment is uterine artery embolization: Here a slender, pliable tube is threaded from a surface artery to the artery that supplies the fibroid with blood. When the tube arrives at that artery, the doctor releases tiny pellets that promote the formation of a clot (embolus). Without nourishment, the fibroid shrinks and is eventually shed.

The booklet on fibroids gives greater details on this common condition. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue -- No. 1106W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor told me that I have costochondritis. I have had it for five days, and my chest is sore to the touch. It makes me short of breath. I am on ibuprofen, but it doesn't seem to help. Is there anything else I can take? -- D.H.

ANSWER: The "costo" of costochondritis is "ribs"; the "chondr," is "cartilage"; the "itis," inflammation. It's an inflammation of the cartilage attaching ribs to the breastbone.

Costochondritis is especially painful when taking in a breath or when twisting the chest. No one is sure what the cause is.

Your medicine and similar ones are the standard treatment for this condition. Heat, in the form of warm compresses or heating pads, eases the pain. Some find that cold works better. If the pain persists, the doctor can inject the area with cortisone. That usually brings quick relief.

Most are well in weeks to months.

note, which reads to this effect:

If you don't get what you wanted for Christmas, just blame it on Nixon for sending Santa by boat because of the fuel shortage at a time when the watergate is down, and you can also blame him, because during the energy shortage he won't let Rudolph light up his (Rudolph's) nose.

Those figures of the Appalachian Regional Commission which show a "startling" growth rate for

Floyd County over the last two and a half years seem to be at some variance with those published a year ago, predicting that the county would do a gradual fadeout, population-wise. As one old-timer put it, "We've been here, ever since the Indians, and if they won't have it back, we'll be here from now on."

SAYS HE'S DAMAGED

So much is being said and written about conserving fuel, energy and the like, that the small matter of saving on foodstuffs and curbing inflation is being forgotten by most of us. But we have an acquaintance who is the exception.

Says he began with the meat shortage, invested in a real good soup-bone and stayed with it. But now all his plans have been shot, so to speak. Said he made several "runs" of soup from this bone, and was good enough to loan it around to the neighbors.

And now it's ruined. The last fellow he loaned it to, cooked turnips with it!

My friend is thinking about seeing a lawyer.

pan. Place frozen rolls into the pan and sprinkle with brown sugar, the pudding mix, and cinnamon. Pour melted butter over the top. If you don't have a bundt pan, you can use a muffin tin, but they turn out better in a bundt pan.

Cover with a clean, damp cloth and leave overnight at room temperature to rise.

In the morning, preheat the oven to 350 degrees.

Bake rolls for 25 minutes, until golden brown.

Turn rolls out onto a serving plate and dig in!

Christmas Morning Strata

Serves 6-8

1 loaf French bread, cubed (either by hand or with a knife)
2 packages frozen chopped

spinach, thawed and squeezed dry

3/4 pound Provolone, chopped

14 large eggs

2 1/2 cups milk

Salt and pepper, to taste

2 teaspoons dry mustard (optional, but adds a nice little bite)

3/4 pound cheddar, shredded

Grease a 9 x 13 inch baking dish.

Make a single layer of bread cubes in the bottom of the baking dish. Cover the bread evenly with the spinach. Then add the chopped Provolone cheese. Top with another layer of bread cubes.

In a medium sized mixing bowl, whisk together the eggs, milk and seasonings. Pour over the layers evenly making sure that all of the top layer of bread is moistened. At this point, you have two options: refrigerate it overnight or bake for 1 hour (350 degree preheated oven)

When you bake it, watch it starting at about 50 minutes. It shouldn't be ready to pull until its puffed up a bit and just starting to get golden brown (you don't want it too brown).

If you want to test it, a knife inserted in the center should come out clean. While it is cooling, top with the cheddar cheese and allow it to melt by itself. You might need to return it for just a minute to the oven to finish melting.

Makes 6-8 servings—depending on how hungry you are!

Cyclists are not a nuisance, an obstacle or in your way. In Kentucky, bicycles have the same rights to use roads and highways as cars and trucks. But keep in mind that cyclists are at greater risk of injury or death in the event of a wreck. That is why it is important to use caution and courtesy when you encounter a bicycle. Pass them only when it is clear, give them a few extra feet when passing, and never do anything to startle a cyclist, such as blowing your horn, passing too close or yelling at them.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM GOV. STEVE BESHEAR

There are many reasons I am proud to be a Kentuckian. Today I am extremely pleased to announce that a Kentucky hospital has been selected as the National Hospital of the Year by the American Alliance of Healthcare Providers. There are close to 6,000 hospitals of all sizes in our country. This award is given to the "Best of The Best" in the nation.

"The Best of the Best"

I want to personally congratulate Pikeville Medical Center and all my friends of Eastern Kentucky on winning this prestigious award. There is no limit on what Kentuckians can do. I salute Walter E. May, President/CEO, the board of directors, the doctors, nurses and over 1,700 employees who work at Pikeville Medical Center.

I have long been aware of the excellent care that is given to the people of Eastern Kentucky by this fine hospital. I am very pleased to see them recognized as the Nation's top Hospital.

Again, congratulations and best wishes to everyone at Pikeville Medical Center.
